Farmers are the only large handlers of food supplies upon whom the government depends, entirely without supervision by inspectors, to guard their holdings against losses by fire; and in view of the supreme importance of guarding this season's stored crops, farmers are asked to consider destruction or spoilage of food through fire as a misfortune to the Nation and the allies as well as a personal loss to the holder.

Prominent among the many sources of fire in rural districts are lightning, defective flues and stoves, spontaneous combustion, carelessness with matches, incendiarism and sparks from chimneys and locomotives.

Effective means of fire prevention and control are understood by the majority of property owners, but particular attention is called to the importance of removing inflammable trash from the vicinity of buildings and to adequate equipment in ladders and buckets when more modern equipment for extinguishing fires is lacking. Properly installed systems of lightning rods and conductors are suggested as protections against lightning. The paramount thought is to save from loss not only farm buildings, but the food and feed they contain.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our thanks for the aid and sympathy given us during our recent bereavement; also for the many floral tributes.

JOHN KNIGHT AND FAMILY.
DR. AND MRS. SHEFFER.
CRAIG SHEFFER.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Tennis slippers for old or young at Beams & Co., store.

—‡—‡—‡—

Only two more weeks to get THE NEWS at $1.00. Pay up your subscription now.

Misses Vernice and Katherine Reichelderfer, of Fort Wayne, spent the past week with Miss Zora Garton.

—‡—‡—‡—

Clayton Hathaway, of Garrett, spent Thursday and Friday with his parents, H. C. Hathaway and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Ladies waists, dresses and aprons—a new supply now on at Beams & Co. store.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Ada Bassett and Mrs. Lizzie Miller and three children were Wednesday guests of A. D. Brunson and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Charles Jackson and wife spent from Tuesday until Sunday at Camp Meigs, near Washington, with their son, Ford.

—‡—‡—‡—

Carl Bassett, while working at the elevator Wednesday, got a particle of steel in his left eye which required the services of a physician to remove it. He was able to go to work Thursday noon, however.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Josephine Hathaway and Mrs. Fred Thompson and baby, of Garrett, spent Thursday and Friday at the H. C. Hathaway home

—‡—‡—‡—

W. H. Northrup and wife, M. H. Andress, wife and daughters, Pauline and Melba, T. A Northrup, wife and baby and Will Hamilton, wife and daughter, Margaret, spent Sunday at Garrett the guests of Harry Hursh and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

O. K. Shull and family were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Katherine Hamilton. The Shull family, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Delphia Provines and son, James, were Sunday evening guests at the Will Hamilton home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mr. and Mrs. George Swineford and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. James Sherwood, spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Hamilton lake.

—‡—‡—‡—

William Coble, wife and two children, of Williamson, W. Va., and Miss Florence Storer, of Peebles, Ohio, came Thursday to visit the ladies' sister, Mrs. Otto Cannon and husband. The Cobler family expect to return the last of the week, while Miss Storer will remain until September. The Cannons and their guests spent Sunday afternoon at Robison park.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mark Morr and wife, Mrs. Violet Rober and Mrs. Nellie Smith, of Elkhart, spent from Thursday until Saturday at the R. H. Able home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Arthur Flynn and wife and Mrs. Thompson, of Chicago, returned home on Sunday, after several days' visit with the S. S. Davis and H. M. Widney families.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Marie Otis, of Battle Creek, came Friday for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Ella Patterson, and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Albert Schaaf, of Ft. Wayne, spent Thursday with her mother, Mrs. Ellen Wiers.

—‡—‡—‡—

While Carl Hadsell and wife, of Fort Wayne, were here attending the funeral of Mrs. John Knight, Friday, they received a message that their little son had broken an arm and had been taken to a hospital.

—‡—‡—‡—

Those from here who attended the Christian Endeavor county convention at Garrett, Sunday, were Mrs. Retta Hathaway, Misses Lela Wallace, Marjorie Curie and Dorothy Scholes, Russell Hathaway and Charles and Lloyd Curie.

Subscribe for this paper.

Frank Sebert and wife were recent guests of Waterloo relatives.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Leon Sechler and baby, of Garrett, came Friday for a visit at the Frank Sechler home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Minor Botts, wife and son and Byron Botts, all of La Otto, and Miss Marguerite Milliman were recent dinner guests at the George Webb home. Herbert Pond and wife were also afternoon guests

—‡—‡—‡—

Clyde Hart and wife and Mrs. Alice Hart went to Flint, Mich., on Tuesday for a couple of days' visit.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. B. E. Widney has so far recovered from her fall of a few weeks ago as to go to the home of O. L. Widney, where she will resume the treatments she was taking at Hicksville before she was injured.

—‡—‡—‡—

With recent loans of nearly $16,000,000 to Greece and $11,000,000 to Belgium, the aggregate loans made by the United States to our allies are practically $6,000,000,060.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. A. B. Goebel and children, of Lima, Ohio, are guests at the E. C. Goodwin home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Joseph Beerbower and wife, Geoge Hooten and wife, Miss Mary Hooten, all of Hicksville, and C. S. Hart and family visited at the T. W. White home on Sunday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs Cornelia Hadsell, of Hicksville, was a week-end visitor at the home of her son, Saxe Hadsell, and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Perry and Mr. and Mrs. Ella Wilmot, took dinner Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Mason.

—‡—‡—‡—

B. A. Hadsell and Harry Bushong, accompanied by their wives, and Mrs. Ira Hadsell took supper Friday evening with S. P. Hadsell and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

John Varner and family, of Coletown, visited at the home of Curtis Hursey and wife, of Concord, Sunday.

—‡—‡—‡—

The Lutheran missionary society cleared about $25.50 at their supper Saturday evening.

—‡—‡—‡—

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bachtel and daughter, of Waterloo, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Ellen Weirs.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mr. and Mrs. John Wineland and Mrs. Elma Brown spent Sunday with Auburn and Garrett relatives. Miss Fairie Cole accompanied them home for the week.

—‡—‡—‡—

George Wybeck, who has been working as relief operator for Geo. Baker at the tower, left Tuesday for Hicksville.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mr. and Mrs. Will Keeler and family were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Mary Meek. Mrs. Violet Rohrer was also a guest in the Meek home for a few days this week.

—‡—‡—‡—

The editor wishes to thank those who have paid up their back subscription, during the past month also for the new subscriptions given to THE NEWS. But still there are a number who are indebted to us yet and unless they call and settle, their paper will be stopped and steps taken toward the collection of the account. Take advantage of the opportunity, now.

—‡—‡—‡—

Sixty-four million silver dollars have been melted into bullion by the United States treasury, most of which has been exported to India. Fifty-eight million dollars of silver certificates have been withdrawn from circulation and destroyed, as the silver by which they were secured was melted down. The treasury still holds 426,000,000 silver dollars, against which $390,000,000 in silver certificates are outstanding. Federal reserve bank notes of the denominations of $1 and $2 are being issued to replace the silver certificates withdrawn.

For Sale

Bargain if you act quick. Georage Shutt estate, just opposite Spencerville high school. House, twelve rooms; barn, 30x40; corn crib and hog pen, 20x30; cow barn, 20x35; new chicken coop, 12x15; wood house, 20x25; wind pump, with running water in house; 18 37-100 acres facing on Auburn street for 30 rods. The soil is black loam. The whole farm is a garden. Call, write or telephone.

Howard Benninghoff, Adm'r
514 Shoaff Bld. Ft. Wayne Ind. Telephone, 479

Cough Medicine Made at Home

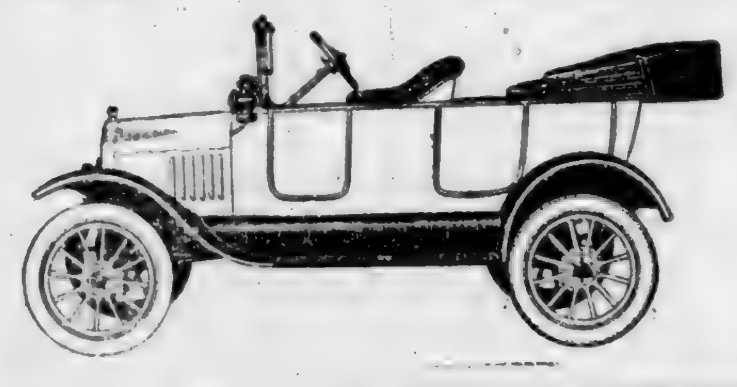
400 Per Cent. Saved--why Pay $2 Per Pint For Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, brunchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine, to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. Manufactured by the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain: and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necessities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE



The Gossips Say-

Magazines at NEWS office.

—‡—‡—‡—

Every-day dishes at Kinsey's hardware.

—‡—‡—‡—

Class No. 4 of the Concord Sunday school gave a donation of $9 to the Red Cross, for which the latter is very grateful

—‡—‡—‡—

William Kleckner and wife, Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Hull, of Hicksville, and Neff Culler and wife picnicked at Robison park, Sunday.

—‡—‡—‡—

C. A. Woodcox and William Maxwell left on Wednesday for Newport News, Va., where they have accepted positions as carpenters in the government ship yards.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. S. S. Sheffer, of Bucyrus, Ohio, who came to attend the funeral of Mrs John Knight, remained over Sunday, visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer. R. W. Sheffer, of Angola, a nephew of the doctor, and his family were Sunday afternoon visitors.

—‡—‡—‡—

Ralph Adolphus Fry and Miss Beulah Malinda Steele, of near St. Joe, were united in marriage by Justice John Zimmer, of Auburn, at 10 a. m. Monday. The young couple will make their home on a farm near this place.

—‡—‡—‡—

A car containing 258 barrels of salt, consigned to Lafayette, Ind., parties, was sidetracked Sunday evening on the Wabash at this place, due to a hot box. About three o'clock the car caught on fire and burned completely. The salt was damaged considerably but is being reloaded and will be shipped to the intended destination or sold.

Mrs. Anna Abel spent from Friday until Monday with her brother, Mort Milliman.

—‡—‡—‡—

Three more boys of this vicinity have been changed as to classification. Peter R. Snyder has been taken from the deferred class and put in class 1; while Clyde Wineland and Hugh S. Strong have been transferred from class 3 to 2.

—‡—‡—‡—

Joseph R. Haifley and wife were called on Sunday to Hicksville by the serious illness of their daughter, Mrs. Nora Dorsey, who is threatened with typhoid fever. Latest reports are not encouraging. Another daughter, Miss Edith, who is a patient at Lutheran hospital, Fort Wayne, is much better.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

POST CARDS

are now on display at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratulation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent folders.

ST JOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY PUB
ST. JOE IND

JULY

L 90

0445

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

COLETOWN

Clarence Funkhouser and family ate Sunday dinner at the Lewis Hollopeter home.

A. E. Hart and Martha Andress called on W. M. Sauers and wife, Sunday.

George Brown and wife on Sunday were entertained at dinner at the J. D. Brown home.

Gladys Sauers took supper with Gladys Conine, Monday.

Irene and Bernice Hart, of Indianapolis, spent the latter part of the week with Gladys Conine.

Batha Hart, of Hicksville, visited the past week with Mrs. Henry Kling.

The little daughter of Adam Miller died Sunday afternoon. Funeral services were held at the home Monday afternoon.

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

Chicago American at NEWS office.

—‡—‡—‡—

Harry Kinsey and wife, of near Butler, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his parents, George Kinsey and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Hollis Jackson and wife spent Sunday with the former's sister, Mrs. Lester Sebring, and husband, of Auburn.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Bert Jackson and daughter, Edna, Mrs. Thomas Rickett and George Wade and wife were Friday guests of Willis Baker.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Lucinda Braybrook, of near Springfield Center, came Sunday to spend the week with Mrs. Mary Scholes.

—‡—‡—‡—

Lead pencils, pens, ink, tablets, envelopes, mucilage and paste at the NEWS office.

—‡—‡—‡—

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price spent Sunday afternoon with Dr. and Mrs. Cook, of Hicksville.

—‡—‡—‡—

Frank Terman and wife had as Sunday afternoon callers Stewart Crawford and wife and Earl Crawford, wife and two children, all of near Sherwood.

—‡—‡—‡—

Huntington college entertained all the county agents, their wives and the county home demonstrators of the Northeastern Indiana County Agents association, Monday. B. V. Widney and wife, of this place, were among the guests.

—‡—‡—‡—

Charles Koch and wife motored to Roanoke on Sunday to visit Aud Harter and wife, having received word that Mrs. Harter, who is an invalid, had fallen from bed and broken a leg near the hip. Mrs. Koch remained for a few days.

Frank Kinsey and family visited friends at Butler, Sunday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Pay up your NEWS account before July 1—$1.25 per year after that date.

—‡—‡—‡—

The Martha society will meet this afternoon (Thursday) with Mrs. Leona Mason.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Mattie Bowman and daughter, Dorotha, spent Sunday with Spencerville relatives.

—‡—‡—‡—

George Watson and wife and Ray Wasson and wife were Sunday guests at the Champ Bailey home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Stanley Koch, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday night at the home of his parents, Charles Koch and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Misses Eula and Aileen Showers came Friday and will remain this week with their aunt, Mrs. Ed Miser, and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Lucile Provines and baby and Mrs. Margaret Fisher, of Concord, spent Monday with the former's mother, Mrs. Flora Gee.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop and children of Cleveland, are here guests in the families of M. T. Bishop and H. C. Hathaway.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Jesse Copp and little daughter, Vernell, of New Haven, spent Saturday night and Sunday with her parents, F. M. Bowman and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Emma Abel went home with her grand-daughter, Mildred Woodcox, Monday, to remain with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Woodcox, for the week.

—‡—‡—‡—

The work of excavating for the new bank building begun Wednesday. Wm. Curie was appointed as chairman of the building committee last week and he proposes to rush the work.

—‡—‡—‡—

Florence Buchanan and wife, of this place, and Mrs. John Sturgis and children, of Butler, spent Sunday with Frank Rhoades and wife, of Spencerville, the occasion being in honor of Mrs. Sturgis' birthday.

—‡—‡—‡—

E. R. Kinsey and family visited at the home of George Pepple and wife at Waterloo, Sunday. They also drove to Ft. Wayne and called on Hollis Dilley and wife and were accompanied home by Elmer Hart and family.

MICKIE SAYS

POME BY ME—"AN AD IN THE MAIL IS SOON TRUN AWAY, BUT ONE IN THE PAPER IS RIGHT THERE TO STAY." THE BOSS SAYS THAT'S MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY
CHARLES SUGHROE

SPENCERVILLE

See Kinsey for your dishes for every-day use.

Dr. and Mrs. Fanning, Dr. Kramer and son, Harold, and Miss Clara Kramer, of Butler, were Sunday guests of Harvey Kimes, Sr., and Miss Minnie Thompson.

Mr. Adams and family, of Hnntinton, and William Bishop and wife, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday dinner guests at the Dennis home, east of town

Rev. A. K. Mumma was called to Monroeville on Monday to conduct the funeral of Henry Franz, a former parishioner.

R. U. Bowser and family returned home on Sunday, after a week's outing at Blue lake; near Churubusco.

Raymond Rhodes and wife left Saturday to spend a week with relatives in Michigan.

George Wilson and wife, of Auburn, were Sunday guests at the Samuel Cole home.

Miss Elva Cobler, of Garrett, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Sylvia VanZile for a few weeks.

Vernie Kelley, wife and daughter, Madonna, were Sunday guests at the home of the lady's parents, Vol Hay and wife.

LOST: A small white poodle dog at Spencerville Tuesday.
Mrs. John Shilling.

Archie and Rilla Beam and nephew, Harvey Beam and wife and Mrs. Nancy Rummel spent Sunday at the William Timbrook home, near Hicksville.

The C. C. club will be entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louie Beam, and the Pansy club will be entertained the same afternoon at the home of Miss Vivian Quesenberry.

Mrs. Sylvia VanZile and son, Clifford, and Miss Eva Cobler were Sunday guests at the Cal. Gump home, near Huntertown. Mrs. VanZile and Mrs. Gump are sisters.

Jason Kees and wife, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of William Allen and family; and Mesdames W. S. Tyndall and Violette Erick were afternoon guests at the same place.

The ladies' guild will be entertained on Thursday, July 25, at the home of Mrs. Milton Chaney.

Spencerville Lutheran Sunday school voted on Sunday to make a trip to Jerusalem in the near future. Go next Sunday and learn the time of starting and other particulars.

Mrs. Hannah Waters, of Antwerp, returned home on Saturday, after spending a month with her sister, Mrs. Margaret Koch.

Harley Sailor and wife were Sunday guests at the home of the former's parents, Cal Sailor and wife.

The following persons from this place attended the Christian Endeavor convention at Garrett, Sunday afternoon: Mrs. A. K. Mumma, Misses Gaylen Markle, Clara Keesler, Margaret Lake and Jean Mumma, John Ruppert and Levi Mumma.

Mrs. John Bair and daughter, Mamie, and Ross Bair visited at Cedarville, Sunday.

John Benninghoff and wife left Monday to viset their children at Fort Wayne.

Winona Has Another Fire.

The Winona Lake Inn at Winona lake was partly destroyed by fire at noon Sunday. The loss is estimated at $9,000. When the fire was discovered, an evangelist who was holding services in the auditorium, a short distance away, dismissed his congregation and organized a volunteer brigade to fight the flames.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only.
—EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale:--Registered Jersey bull No. 140,664, past 2 years old. Inquire of Israel Layman, St. Joe, Ind. ,phone 71-4. $100 takes him, if taken soon.

For Sale:--Two-year-old red Durham bull. B. Welch, Spencerville.

For Sale:--A horse. Inquire at News office.

Important---NEWS Readers.

Subscription Price Will Be Advanced

THE NEWS very reluctantly is obliged to do what nearly all other similar publications are and have been doing—advance its subscription price. This will occasion no great surprise among its readers, who are aware of the great increase in the cost of doing business. Everything that the printer uses is higher. This is especially true of print paper, which has been the subject of congressional investigation. The general rising costs have caught newspaper publishers all along the line. For months, we have been repeatedly asked if the subscription price was still $1.00; and so we know that our forced increase, as previously stated, will occasion no great surprise. We have refrained from taking this action as long as possible, and held the paper at $1.00 per annum until compelled to make an advance.

Beginning July 1, our subscription price will be $1.25 per year—strictly in advance. That our readers may not think we are making this advance without due notice, the new rate, though in effect on July 1, will be waived for all who pay their subscriptions during July. All arrearages must, of course, be paid at time of renewal. If you settle your subscription at any time before Aug. 1, the rate will be $1.00, as heretofore. After that date, all accounts will be figured at $1.25 per year, dating from July 1. A special effort will be put forth to make the paper better than ever before, and we confidently ask for the continued support of our big family of readers.

Advertising rates also will be increased July 1. This is rendered necessary for the same reason that subscription is advanced. The new scale of prices will be made known on application.

Remember, all payments on subscriptions received during the month of July will be at the old rate, $1 00 per year. This applies to new subscribers and to renewals. All accounts unpaid at the end of that time will be left for collection. We have been lenient—too lenient—and a few are indebted to us for subscriptions. They must settle, either voluntarily or forcibly. We hope for no trouble.

COBURN'S CORNERS

Patronize the advertisers.

C. R. Headley and family spent Sunday at St. Joe, the guest of Mrs. Amanda Coburn.

Mrs. Opal Thompson, of Chicago, has returned home, after visiting relatives at this place.

Cups, saucers and deep dishes at Kinsey's.

Miss Alta Headley was a week-end guest of Wayne Hughes and family.

Miss Drage is spending the week with her niece, Mrs. Opal Coburn.

Rev. Syayd and W. P. Coburn and wife were Sunday dinner guests at the Ella Wilmot home.

John D. Milliman and family, of St. Joe, spent Sunday with the former's father, J. M. Milliman.

Mrs. Anna Headley spent Thursday with Mrs. Frances Borden.

O. L. Dermott and family and J. M Dermott were entertained at dinner Sunday at R. F. Place home.

Fruit jar rings, 10c per dozen--three dozen for 25c.
Kinsey.

Walter Coburn, who had been attending the Asher Johnston Bible school, has been called into the service of Uncle Sam and is located at Camp Gordon, Ga.

The following young people ate Sunday dinner and spent the remainder of the day at the T. H. Shull home: Misses Mildred Gee, Bernice Hart, Helen Place, Minnie Walker, Estella Headley and Euda Todd. Roscoe Place, Will Quance, Fern Walker and Gladys Place were afternoon visitors.

Miss Sopha Levy spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Nellie Shull.

Fred Hart, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Alice Hart, and J. S. Shull and wife, called on Dan Shull and family, of Rosedale.

C. E. Wolford and family, of West Milford, were visitors at the Will Moore home, Sunday.

Charles Helmuth and family, of Garrett, and E. F. Hurni and family, of the state line, spent Sunday with M. B. Shull and wife.

Mrs. T. H. Shull and George Place and family visited Mrs. Ralph Nelson, Sunday.

Mrs. T. H. Shull entertained the members of her Sunday school class Saturday afternoon: Harold and Olen Waltz, Glen Hart, Delta Headley, Wilbur Perry, Nellie Shull, Portia Hadsell, Doris Shull and Glen Place. Ethel Pflaumer and Opal Hurni were guests. The boys made ice cream, which was served to all.

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS

By Dr. Harry E. Barnard, Federal Food Administrator for Indiana.

More than forty Indianapolis bakers, confectioners and restaurant keepers have been cited to appear before the federal food administrator during the past week for failure to make correct reports and for not conforming to the regulations as to the use of substitutes. Various excuses were offered and all were released on parole, on their promises to reform. Warnings were issued that further violations meant suspension of federal licenses in all cases.

Licenses of Nickolas Prescan and N. K. Manolea, Indianapolis bakers were revoked for their failure to make proper reports and not using the required substitutes on bread and rolls.

Wm. Greisinger, a South Bend confectioner, was found to have made a false affidavit as to having purchased sugar on contract and as a result A E. Eby, St. Joseph county food administrator, was directed by Dr Harry E. Barnard, federal food administrator for Indiana, to take charge of his business and not permit him to handle it until July 15. The sugar secured through misrepresentation was seized.

Roast beef at noon Monday; stewed or boiled beef or beef hash at noon Wednesday; beef steak or hamburger steak at noon Thursday; stewed beef, boiled beef or beef hash at noon Saturday; with by-products such as ox-tails, livers, tongues, sweetbreads, hearts, kidneys, brains and tripe at any time, is Hoover's suggestion of a meat menu in order that beef consumption be limited to 1½ pounds per person per week. Hotels and public eating houses have been directed by the food administration in Indiana to fix some such arrangement and then refrain from advertising the service in order not to induce an excess consumption on the days when beef is served.

WHITE OXFORDS AND PUMPS!

...ALL...
THE NEW PATTERNS
That are being worn now are here for your selection.

Hot Weather Is Here
And calls for WHITE FOOTWEAR—the most comfortable and cool shoe you can find.

Women's Oxfords or Pumps in high or low heels, $2.00 to $3.50.

Men's White or Palm Beach Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.

Children's Mary Jane Slippers, $1 to $2.

Full line of Rubber Soled Slippers, 80c to $3.00.

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA
Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5.

STOMACH TROUBLES

AN IRRITABLE, fault finding disposition is often due to a disordered stomach. A man with good digestion is nearly always good natured. A great many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by Chamberlain's Tablets after years of suffering. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Try them. They only cost a quarter.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP.
Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

0446

Twenty Minutes Difference

By WILLIAM HAMILTON OSBORNE
of The Vigilantes

In a hospital in New York there were two clever surgeons, each of whom had earned world-wide renown by his remarkable specialized knowledge. Only the most desperate cases, those requiring intricate surgical knowledge, were brought to them. It was noted by a close observer of these two men, that the subjects operated on by one of them almost invariably succumbed—while those operated on by the other surgeon almost invariably survived. The curious observer was a confidential friend of the resident physician of the hospital. He wanted to know.

"Just what," he queried, "is the difference between these two distinguished operators?"

"The difference," returned the house physician, "oh, about twenty minutes, I should say."

There was the secret—twenty minutes difference in the time of performing an operation. One man was deft, swift, sure. The other was sure, but slow. His too deliberate methods kept the nervous system of the patient under too long a strain, and the system frequently could not survive the shock. The other man was like a flash—he cut and slashed—in a jiffy he was through. Through twenty minutes sooner than his brother surgeon. That twenty minutes meant life on the one hand—death on the other.

If you've got a friend or relative in the trenches, there is one picture that keeps recurring to your mind. A thousand times you see this boy meeting instant death. Your young friend hasn't one chance in ten thousand of being instantly killed. The number of bullets that find their mark in the brain, or that pierce any vital organ, is extremely limited. The great loss of life upon a battlefield does not result from wounds immediately fatal. The great danger in this war as in all wars, is from wounds, not in themselves immediately fatal, but wounds that become serious only with the passage of time. Flesh wounds may be entirely superficial, and yet may become terribly fatal. The victim may bleed to death, he may suffer exposure, infection, fever, pneumonia—from his enforced exposure — gangrene, mortification — death.

The Answer Is—Time.

In such a case, why does he live and get well, if he lives? Why does he die, if he dies? What is the difference? The answer is, time. The answer may be, twenty hours or twenty minutes.

Suppose it were possible to pick up every wounded man the instant that he's hit, to remove him swiftly from the battlefield or the trench to a first-class hospital, to give him the immediate attention of nurses and surgeons. If that picture were true, the fatalities in our armies would be almost infinitesimal.

Look in the darker picture. Your young friend goes over the top in a big allied drive. He is wounded in the leg. It is a big drive—hundreds of thousands of men engaged—hundreds killed instantly—thousands upon thousands suffering with wounds, most of them superficial and seemingly unimportant. Your young friend is disabled but for the present he feels no unusual discomfort. Shock sustains him. He feels that very shortly he will be picked up and taken in to an emergency hospital where his leg can be fixed up. He is disappointed—no one comes. Terrific pain sets in—with the inflammation a heavy fever. Twenty-four hours go by. Finally he is picked up. He is rushed to a hospital as fast as possible, considering the number of ambulances. He reaches the hospital. The nurse looks at his leg—she calls a doctor. They both shake their heads—they ought to have had the man hours ago. All right, he thinks to himself, they'll take care of him now. But ahead of him is a waiting list of groaning, wounded men. There's nothing for it, he's got to wait his turn. Hours pass. The wounded come in by dozens. Medical supplies give out—medicine gives out. Dressings give out. There are not enough surgical instruments to go around. Finally, with your man at the height of a raging fever they get to him and operate. Twenty hours before an operation would have been unnecessary. They remove the leg—a leg which had suffered a superficial wound, not dangerous in itself but which became dangerous only with the passage of time. But gangrene already has set in—it is followed by mortification. The boy suffers the tortures of the damned. He dies—is glad to die.

Now, what's the answer? Would twenty minutes have saved him? Possibly. Would an hour and twenty minutes have saved him? Quite likely. Would three hours and twenty minutes have saved him? Almost certainly, yes. Five hours certainly would have saved him. He died because there was a delay of hours or minutes—that's the difference—time.

Your Money Will Help.

Now, what's the trouble? Where does the fault lie? Why didn't they get your man fixed up so his life and limb could be saved? Don't ask that question of army doctors or army nurses, nor Red Cross doctors nor Red Cross nurses, nor ambulance drivers—don't do it. If there's any swift, efficient, capable corps of workers on the face of this earth, workers who are working at top speed, workers skilled, capable to the last word, working their fingers to the bone, it's these people. What, then, is wanted, in order that they may get to your young friend twenty minutes sooner, an hour sooner, five hours sooner? What will do this?

Money, that's all. More money means more Red Cross people on the field, more Red Cross ambulances on service, more equipment, more medicines, more instruments, more bandages, more dressings—more everything The Red Cross has got efficiency worked up to its highest point. It is doing its best—it can do no more.

But you can do more. All you've got to do is to multiply this efficiency and keep on multiplying it. And dollars will do that—nothing but dollars. If your dollars can get a wounded man attention twenty minutes earlier than he otherwise would get it, you give him a hundred chances where he has but one—you are likely to save his life. You've subscribed to the Red Cross before—we all understand that. We all did that, too. But our friend over there in the trenches is likely to get wounded half a dozen times. He's asking, in his desperation, for your help, your money. He needs it badly now. Every dollar that you put in may heal one wound. Every fifty dollars that you put in may save one life—or more.

A PRAYER

By JAMES W. WISE
of the Vigilantes.

Oh God of right, to thee today
We raise in awe our fervent prayer:
Grant victory unto the men
Who fight for freedom over there.

We do not ask a victor's prize,
But power to stay the cruel hand
Of Prussian tyranny and greed,
And to avenge a plundered land.

Today we seek thee in the fight,
Thy mighty arm of wrath made bare;
Lord God of hosts, thy cause redeem
And right the wrong!—This is our prayer.

PATRIOTS, BEHIND THE LINES

By BARNETTA BROWN
of the Vigilantes.

These patriots are way, way behind the lines. They live in Brooklyn, and not only in Brooklyn, but far in the rear of Brooklyn, where the last end of a subway is coming to a conclusion. These patriots may be called alien patriots, for many of them have not been here long. They are small patriots, for the eldest is only about ten. Their mothers keep the homes, and their fathers dig the peaceful trenches for the subway. So they are not very well-to-do patriots. In fact, they are quite otherwise; they are poor in everything but patriotism. In that they are very rich. They are full of it, crammed in, pressed down and running over, as you will agree. It bubbled so, inside of them, that they had to put it into expression, somehow.

But how? They had just nothing to express with. No pennies to make a fund to send somewhere; no pennies to buy tobacco for the soldier's pipes; no pennies to buy worsted to knit with. What should they do?

A hopeless little group they were as they stood one day, discussing ways and means, or rather, the utter lack of them, till at last the situation was cleared by one determined little mite. She took off one of her mittens, saying:

"I can change the other one round. Anyhow you can't knit with mittens on."

Five or six pairs of childish eyes watched her eagerly, as she commenced to unravel her mitten.

"Go get me some skewers, Johnny."

Johnny flew, and soon returned with several. The nearest butcher had been kind.

"I'm going to knit," the small girl announced. "I'm going to knit squares for blankets, for those Belgian babies."

The idea caught at once. Such a scurrying as there was! Mothers were pleaded with; odd corners were searched; even ash barrels were investigated. From unsuspected quarters old tams, old scarfs, old shawls, old stockings, old mittens, were brought forth. All things that could be spared, and some that could not, but everything that could be gotten hold of that would unravel was unearthed; and the work began, and went on. The children knitted with skewers, with pieces of steel, with anything that would hold a stitch and connect it with another.

And so we found them one day, sitting all huddled together on the stoop of one of the tenements; all knitting with the crinkly wool, the little squares. It was a picture of child life not easily forgotten, and we watched, and thought; and as we turned away, we knew that our hearts would always be more soft and kind, because we had seen this little group of little patriots, knitting their little squares, to cover the little cold babies of Belgium.

THE WOMAN'S GIFT

By BLANCHE SHOEMAKER WAGSTAFF
of the Vigilantes.

I cannot shoulder rifle
Or march as soldiers do,
I cannot cross the shell-fields
When smoke obscures the blue.

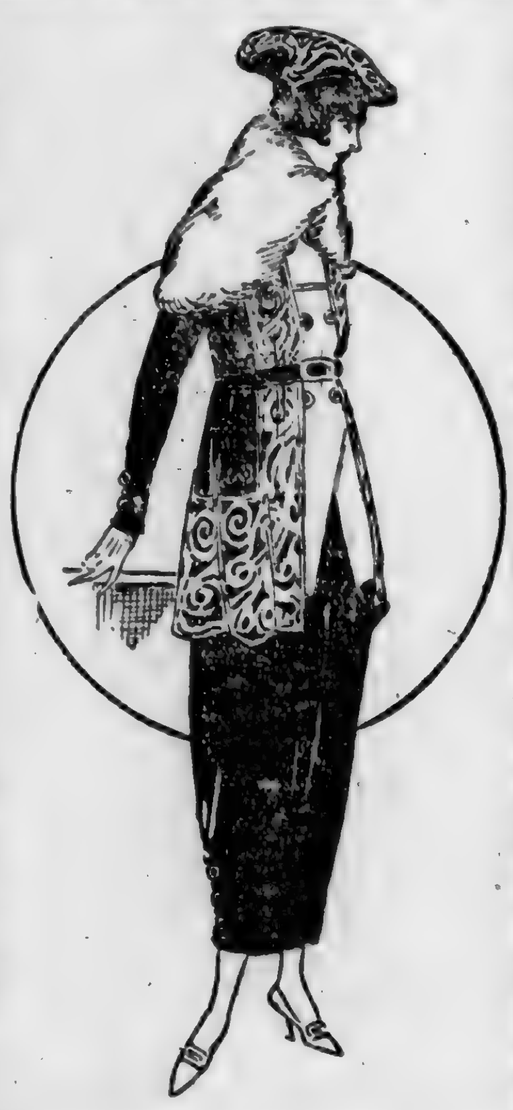
I cannot tend the cannon
Or brave the shrapnel-shower,
I cannot join the host who die
For freedom, hour by hour.

I cannot swoon in glory
Upon a battle-plain,
Yet—I can give my loved one's life
And know a martyr's pain!

Wear Sealskins, Latest Request

New York.—The American government is interested in the exploitation of sealskin. That is a sentence pregnant with significance. It means one thing: to Hooverize on the other furs and use the kind which the Pacific coast produces, writes a leading fashion correspondent.

It is said that the dyes and the preparation of fur for costume usage are exceptionally good. The story goes that quite a degree of sharp irritation has been caused among certain groups of individuals concerning the dyeing knowledge that St. Louis has made her own. Whatever the outcome of the irritation, the fact remains that the fur people say that women have nothing to fear from the grade, the quality or the coloration of the fur that will bear the American label.



Designers of clothes have already started October fashions, and here is one of them. It is a suit of green duvetyn, with a big collar of squirrel. It is embroidered in squirrel-gray chenille, and the wide double-breasted waistcoat is of gray silk.

Everyone does not know the extraordinary situation which was developed in the fur trade before the war broke. The simplest piece of American peltry that an American girl wore had probably made a little journey half around the world and was far more traveled than its possessor. You could catch a 'coon in Georgia, send it to London for preparation, across the English channel to France to have style and finish put into it, then, from a port in France to an Atlantic port, and finally journey it across the continent, drop it into various places, well known and unknown, and sell it to an American woman.

Such was the fate of a piece of fur. Today our peltry stays at home. We can catch a 'coon in Georgia, an opossum in Alabama, trap a mink in New England, get together all the cats and rats the nation does not need, and turn them out between St. Louis, New York, Chicago and San Francisco into a motley array of admirable furs.

Will Push Native Sealskins.

Fostering this condition is the American government. Our native sealskin will be pushed to the limit of exploitation as a fashionable fur, and there is no reason for women to linger far behind tthe government in its desire to have these skins sold in a steady fashion.

The reason for the enthusiasm on the part of the majority of women for this soft and pliable fur, is its effect upon the human face and figure. It is singularly attractive to flesh and bone. It falls into supple folds; it brings out the best in a complexion. Raccoon, opossum, skunk and all the other long-haired furs are stylish, one admits, but they are not becoming. Silver foxes are graceful enough in their undulations and the hairs are soft enough to keep a woman's face gentle and feminine, but when a stiff-haired fur is put against the chin, the features are hardened as though a cold wind had passed over them.

Paris is augmenting the use of sealskin. Capes are made with 18 and 20-inch borders of it; skirts are made with floating panels of it lined with chiffon; medieval cuirasses of heavy embroidered satin that show a glint of silk and metal in the design have long, medieval sleeves of American sealskin which flare over the knuckles.

The sealskin sacque will come back with the ostrich feather. These have always been associated in the minds of those who remember the days of old, when the height of bliss to a fashionable woman was a summer in Saratoga, a pair of drop solitaire earrings, a short, untrimmed sealskin sacque and a hat ornamented with two or more long, floating ostrich plumes.

The diamond earrings will not return to fashion, but the ostrich feather and the sealskin coat will come out on the primrose path of fashion in the early autumn.

The women of England and France have led the way. The ostrich plume was first demanded by those who made money in munitions and had to spend it on the symbols of luxury; but soon the French women took it up for its beauty and again we have soft felt hats with blue and rose pink, black and brown thickly curled ostrich plumes floating around the crown and dropping down on the shoulder.

One of the new bits of millinery shows a hat that has a Joffre blue plume pulled around over the left shoulder like a curl, and one gets a quick, flashing backward glimpse of those women of royal France who hunted through the forests with a plume down their back and a falcon in their hand.

New Suits Show Peltry.

The American designers, as well as those in France, are taking time by the forelock and exhibiting autumn gowns that may be bought at the present moment and worn at summer resorts cool enough to make fur endurable.

To the outsider, the very thought of peltry in our hot, humid climate during July and August, is depressing; but there are thousands who are not so easily depressed by a circumstance over which they have full control. They want fur; they like to wear it, and it pleases them to make a piquant contrast between their costume and the thermometer.

Therefore, the designers will let them have their way. They not only give them separate pieces of fur, but gowns trimmed with it, capes bordered with it and blouses heaped with it.

Mind you, they are not stingy about fur on these new clothes. There is not a tiny fringe of it on a chiffon ruffle, as in other days, but it is used in a bold and lavish manner, such as 20-inch bands, medieval sleeves and huge girdles with bows at the back.

It does not take superfine reckoning to realize that the American sealskin is about the only fur that can be used in this generous fashion. The stiff-haired pelts cannot be manipulated into pieces of a garment; they must remain as separate entities used as accessories.

Imitates Medieval Coat of Mail.

We are not only going to embellish our bodies with soft furs as a protest and protection against the lack of coal and hot water in zero winters; but we delightedly find that the designers are giving to the world a new material that looks exactly like a coat of mail.

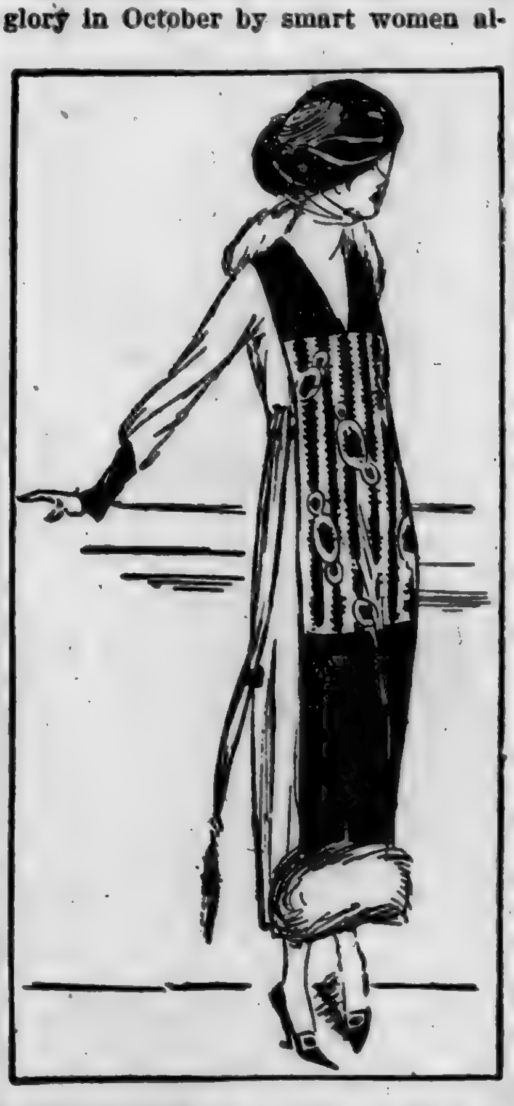
Women will have jerkins of it with sealskin sleeves, or they will have long tunics of it, girdled at the waist with Indian red silk and glittering in the sun.

There will be short skirts of sealskin sometimes worn under these long jerkins or coats of mail, and there will be evening gowns built of this silver and gold coat of mail cloth.

In contrast to these glittering and sumptuous fabrics of a day when men had to wear armor as a constant protection from the danger thrust of an enemy, are the new coats of leather.

They shimmer and shine in the rain; they protect one from the cold; they will be used as jerkins, as short jackets over thick, woolen skirts when the autumn comes.

This fashion has been stolen of its glory in October by smart women already advancing the idea in sport and country costumes for bad days.



This frock is in medieval effect and is built of green cloth and black satin, which is embroidered with white Angora wool. There is a band of white fox on the skirt, and a collar of this fox at the back of the blouse.

Paris wore these coats all during the spring because of the constant rain and the fact that she was in the open more than ever before. They are of seal and light brown, of dark blue and black, and they are fastened with leather-covered bottons. Usually there are pockets and a loose girdle cut from a strip of leather. This is not fastened by a buckle, but in the medieval manner of one end of the thong slipped over and over the other.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Soft Pile Fabrics.

Very decorative silk or wool embroidery appears on coats of soft pile fabrics.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 21

PRAYING TO GOD.

LESSON TEXT—Psalms 145:18, 19; Luke 11:1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.—Hebrews 4:16.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Luke 11:5-13.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Psalms 37:4-5; Matthew 7:7-11; II Corinthians 12:8-9; James 4:3-8.

PRIMARY MEMORY VERSE—Jehovah is nigh unto all them that call upon him.—Psalms 145:18.

STORY MATERIAL—Matthew 14:23-25; Acts 12:1-12.

INTERMEDIATE, SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Why and how to pray and the results.

Prayer ought to be a matter of great concern to every believer (Psalms 145:18).

Prayer is a matter but little understood by Christians; in fact, only as divine aid is given can we really pray. The range of prayer is from the depths of the soul to the very thoughts of God. There was something about the praying of Jesus that so impressed the disciples that they requested him to teach them to pray (Luke 11:1). We nowhere read of them asking him to teach them how to preach. Praying is more important than preaching. No one is fit to teach or preach who does not know how to pray. May each one enroll at once in the school of prayer with Christ as our teacher. He is a most willing and capable teacher. In response to the disciples' request he outlines the following principles of prayer:

I. The Right Relationship of the One Praying (Luke 11:2).

1. Filial—"Father."

In order to pray to God, the suppliant must be a child of God. God is a father; his gifts and blessings are for his children. This relationship can only be entered into through regeneration. Not all men have a right to say, "Our Father" when addressing God. Only those who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ can so address him. It is not only professing to be children but living like God's children. Children have rights and privileges which are denied to others.

2. Fraternal—"Our Father."

God has more than one child. His children are bound up together in nature and interests. Even in our secret prayer we should address him as Our Father, which is a recognition of the interests of others, alongside of ours.

II. The Right Attitude in Prayer (Luke 11:2).

1. Reverent adoration.

As children we have certain privileges, and yet holy reverence becomes us. We should hallow his name; we should adore him as the eternal God.

2. Loyalty.

When praying to God we should come with the spirit of loyalty which cries out "Thy kingdom come."

3. Submission—"Thy will be done."

We should have no will of our own regarding the rule of God. We should let him direct us in all things.

III. The Right Spirit (Luke 11:3-8)

1. Dependent Faith—"Give us our daily bread" (v. 3).

We should realize that not only what we have, but life itself is ours to enjoy because of him, and that he is able to do for us exceedingly abundantly above all that we ask or think.

2. Penitence and Love—"Forgive us our debts" (v. 9).

We should come to him realizing that we have sinned, and cry unto him for forgiveness. Our hearts should be so filled with love for others that we will forgive those who sinned against us as God is willing to forgive us.

3. Holiness and Caution—"Lead us not into temptation" (v. 4).

Because we are God's children and realizing the depravity of our natures, and the consequent tendency to practice that which displeases him, we should shrink from that which, if indulged in, would dishonor him.

4. Intercessory (vv. 5, 6).

The man who asked for bread did not ask for himself, but for a friend. Prayer which pleases God is unselfish in its requests.

5. Perseverance (vv. 7, 8).

Prayer which pleases God and gets results is importunate, perseveres until the object is achieved.

IV. Encouragement to Pray (Luke 11:9-12).

1. God's promise (vv. 9, 10).

True prayer cannot fail of an answer, because God definitely promises that every one that asketh receiveth, he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

2. The example of an earthly father (vv. 11-13).

No father will give a stone to his son who asketh for bread, or a serpent instead of a fish, nor a scorpion instead of an egg. God is infinitely more willing to answer the prayers of his children than earthly parents are to give good gifts to their children.

V. The True Goal of All Prayer (Luke 11:13).

God's gift is himself in the person of his Holy Spirit. All those who practice the principles which Jesus taught in this model prayer shall be blessed with the gift of the Holy Spirit. God's best gift to man.

Ford Owners Attention!
A POSITIVE CURE FOR OIL PUMPERS
Ever-Tyte Ford
SPECIAL PISTON RINGS
stop all carbon deposits and fouled spark plugs.
Increase compression and speed wonderfully.
PAY FOR THEMSELVES IN SIX MONTHS BY SAVING IN GASOLINE AND OIL
Guaranteed to do the work or your money back.
$8.00 PER SET OF 8 RINGS
EVER-TYTES made in all sizes for auto, tractor and gasoline engines. Ask your nearest dealer or write
THE EVER-TIGHT PISTON RING COMPANY
Department F. St. LOUIS, MO.

Do YOU want Clothes that Dazzle?

It's SO easy!
A single trial package of
Red Cross Ball Blue
will convince you that never before have you known true happiness at the end of the day.
White?—why it gives your clothes a whiteness that even the fleeciest clouds cannot rival.
Don't Wait, Don't Doubt—Get it—Use it—and KNOW
5 Cents. At GOOD Grocery Stores

SAW OMEN IN HAWTHORNS

Red Berries Growing in Place of White Had Deep Significance for This Irishman.

Even the humor of Ireland is given a new hue by the war. Nothing escapes its influence.

Two of us were seeing a bit of Dublin from the vantage point offered by a jaunting car. And no Irishman is more filled with the effervescent spirit of the old sod than the "garry" driver of Dublin.

We crossed the river Liffey—a river once fragrant with the fragrance undesirable. Now it is spick and span. The driver made comment. "Sure, it usen't to be so classic," he said, with a brogue as broad as the clean-swept walk along the now "classic" bank. "They'll be catchin' salmon in the Liffey yet, it's that clean an' swate now."

We passed a square, all blooming with hawthorns. "Now look," said our driver, philosopher and guide. "The hawthorns are all red this year. I'm thinkin' it's an omen. They've been white in other years, but this year they're all red. Sure it's an omen. I don't know what it means, but it's an omen o' some kind."

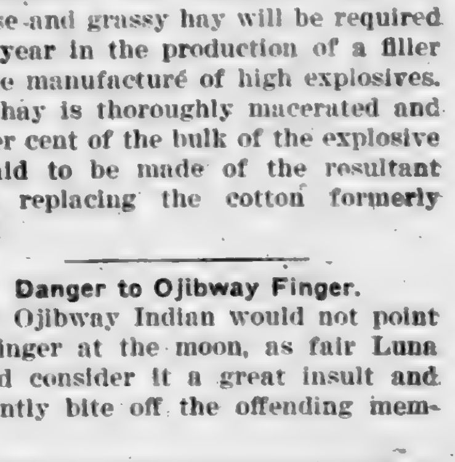
His tone was lugubrious, but his melodious rounding of the turns in his pronunciation was delightful. The blooms were red—and, omen or no omen, they were beautiful.

Hay in Explosives.

The statement has been made by a representative of the United States government that 5,000,000 tons of coarse and grassy hay will be required this year in the production of a filler in the manufacture of high explosives. The hay is thoroughly macerated and 20 per cent of the bulk of the explosive is said to be made of the resultant fiber, replacing the cotton formerly used.

Danger to Ojibway Finger.

An Ojibway Indian would not point his finger at the moon, as fair Luna would consider it a great insult and instantly bite off the offending member.



The Balance
as between POSTUM and other table beverages is in favor of the Wholesome, Healthful drink.
POSTUM
is all this and more. It's most delicious. Besides there's no waste, and these are days when one should Save. Try
INSTANT POSTUM

JULY

L 90

0447

SWIFT & COMPANY U.S.A.

Meat Must Be Sold

Fresh meat is perishable. It must be sold within about two weeks for whatever it will bring.

A certain amount of beef is frozen for foreign shipment, but domestic markets demand fresh, chilled, unfrozen beef.

Swift & Company cannot increase prices by withholding meat, because it will not keep fresh and salable for more than a few days after it reaches the market.

Swift & Company cannot tell at the time of purchasing cattle, what price fresh meat will bring when put on sale. If between purchase and sale, market conditions change, the price of meat must also change.

The Food Administration limits our profit to 9 per cent on capital invested in the meat departments. This is about 2 cents per dollar of sales. No profit is guaranteed, and the risk of loss is not eliminated.

As a matter of fact, meat is often sold at a loss because of the need of selling it before it spoils.

Swift & Company, U.S.A.

Power Plant Planned.

The largest hydraulic power system in Europe is to be built in Bavaria and operated as a public utility, according to plans completed recently. The power is to be obtained from Walchen lake in South Bavaria, and will be transmitted by cable from Koechel to all towns and villages throughout Bavaria. A commission, which has been studying the undertaking for two years, has submitted a detailed memorial to the Bavarian diet estimating the cost of the enterprise at 78,000,000 marks. The cost of the system is to be borne proportionately by the Bavarian government and the municipalities benefiting by this great electrical plant.

Too Much Thought of Self.

"Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "a man thinks so much about his own comfort dat he makes hisse'f puffickly miserable."

One thing that has saved many a man from hanging is the fact that the jury did.

Up Against It.

"This daylight saving scheme is rough on the bashful young fellow who goes courting."

"How so?"

"He hasn't the nerve to drop around until it gets dark, and then it's time to go home."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

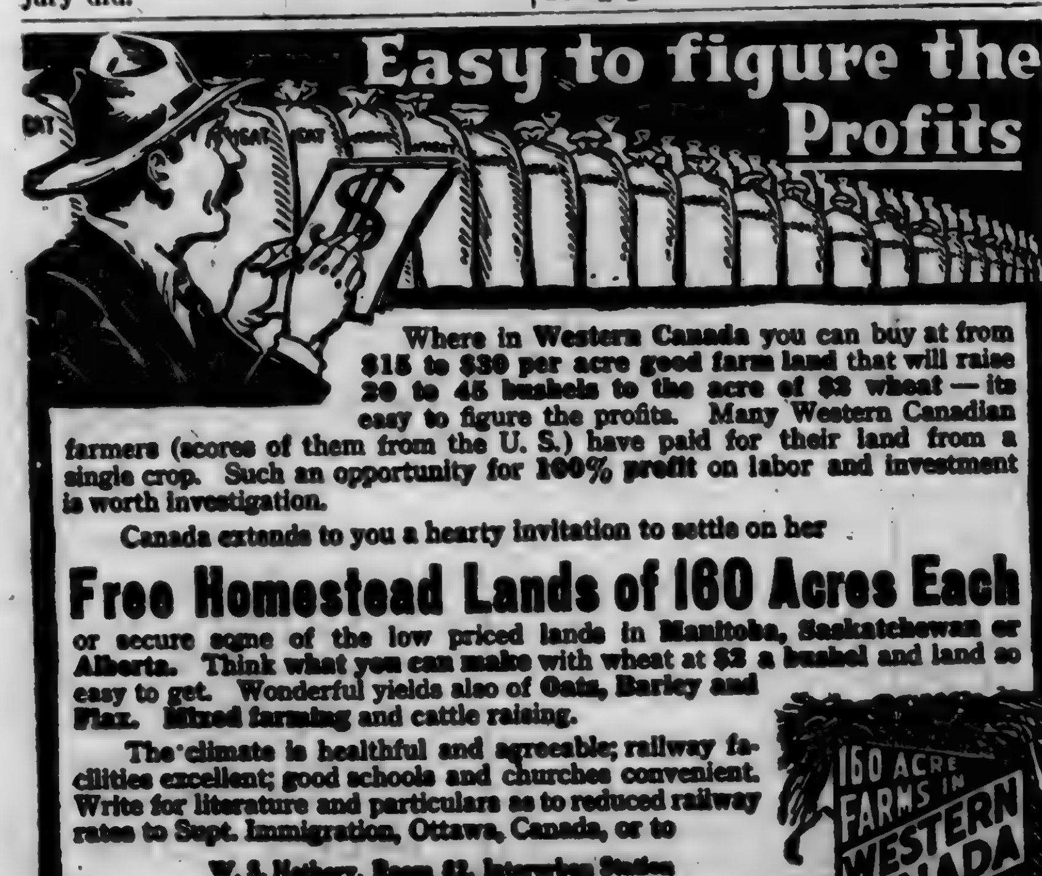
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Spurgeon's Philosophy.

To get, we must give; to accumulate, we must scatter; to make ourselves happy, we must make others happy.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Broken promises make a mighty poor foundation for a good character.

There's a great difference between being good and doing good.



Easy to figure the Profits

Where in Western Canada you can buy at from $15 to $30 per acre good farm land that will raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre of $2 wheat — its easy to figure the profits. Many Western Canadian farmers (scores of them from the U. S.) have paid for their land from a single crop. Such an opportunity for 100% profit on labor and investment is worth investigation.

Canada extends to you a hearty invitation to settle on her

Free Homestead Lands of 160 Acres Each

or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Think what you can make with wheat at $2 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming and cattle raising.

The climate is healthful and agreeable; railway facilities excellent; good schools and churches convenient. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

HEAD OF GIANT BUSINESS

Who's Teagle? This was a question generally asked when it was announced that Walter Clark Teagle had been chosen president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, the world's greatest oil refiners since the disintegration of the original Standard Oil company. Aside from his business associates and personal friends few had ever heard of Teagle. He is only thirty-nine years old, and his success in life has been due to industry and the careful training of his mind in absorbing infinite detail.

In Cleveland, where he was born on May 1, 1878, both he and his family were known perhaps as well as any citizen of that community.

Mr. Teagle's father, who was of English birth, became interested in the oil business and it was in his father's offices that Walter Teagle as a boy received his first business inspirations and instructions. He entered Cornell university when eighteen years of age, and three years later was graduated with the degree of bachelor of science. He took a place in his father's firm, and from that beginning has risen to his present high degree.

It requires only a short talk with Mr. Teagle to convince one of his encyclopedic knowledge of the oil business, but while he is so packed full of business detail he is described as having a singularly attractive personality. He is a warm advocate of co-operation, not alone in business but in all relations of life.

HONORED FOR BRAVERY

Stories of the heroic daring of American naval officers and men in rescuing 34 of the 75 members of the crew of the American munitions ship Florence H., which caught fire and broke in two in French waters last April, are told in the report of Rear Admiral Wilson, commanding American naval forces in France, made public by the navy department.

Among those commended by their commander for their bravery in the rescue is Lieut. Howard R. Eccleston, U. S. N. R. F.

Lieutenant Eccleston is thirty years old and was an examiner in the patent office for six years prior to enlisting in the naval reserve force in June, 1917. Before coming to Washington he had attended the United States Naval academy for several years, which fitted him for a lieutenancy.

He was born in Baltimore and attended the Baltimore City college. Shortly after leaving the naval academy he went to Washington, and while employed in the patent office studied at the National Law school. Besides his father, Lieutenant Eccleston has a sister and three brothers. His father holds a position with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

JEW IN HIGH COMMAND

Monash valley, one of the names with which the Anzacs have enriched the geographical nomenclature of Gallipoli peninsula, was so called by the men of an Australian regiment in honor of their colonel, now Sir John Monash, who has just been promoted to the rank of lieutenant general and placed in the command of a British army corps in France.

Sir John Monash has the distinction of being both the first Australian and the first Jew to reach so high a position in the British army. The distinction is all the more notable because he comes from outside the ranks of the regular army. His promotion has been won entirely by merit, personal qualities and technical abilities. Monash was born in Melbourne on June 27, 1865, and is thus fifty-three years of age.

His first big fighting chance came with the Anzacs. Throughout the terrible ordeal of the Gallipoli campaign he commanded an Australian regiment and left his name on the peninsula along with Quinn, Pope and other leaders after whom their men named various hills, valleys, etc. Colonel Monash was adored by the soldiers who fought under him, and was fully appreciated by the commander in chief. Thrice he was mentioned in dispatches for his efficient work and gallant conduct, and royal recognition came in the form of a Companionship in the Order of the Bath.

PLANS ATLANTIC AIR ROUTE

Maj. Gen. W. S. Brancker of the British army has been in Washington to establish an air route from the United States to Europe in order to bring the full force of American effort in the air to bear against Germany. Plans are already well advanced for the initial air flight to take place in August. General Brancker believes that airplanes driven with Liberty motors will be crossing the Atlantic in fleets next summer.

General Brancker is controller general of British air equipment and a member of the new British air council. He was born in 1877 and joined the Royal artillery in 1896. In 1913 he was attached to the Royal Flying corps, and a year later was appointed assistant director of military aeronautics. He has seen much active service as an air pilot.

The Aero Club of America is in hearty accord with General Brancker's plans and already has asked for bids for airplanes capable of making the transatlantic flight. Caproni, designer of the giant Italian plane, probably, will make a machine for the purpose

HIS INTERVIEW WITH VETERAN

Reporter Met Oldest Member of Organization, but Results Were Not Altogether Satisfactory.

Everybody in this outfit wears a gold stripe on his left arm, and a goodly number boast campaign badges in addition. So it occurred to an energetic correspondent attached to the battalion to request an interview with the organization's veteran.

"Sure," agreed the major, "but there are certain difficulties. He's hard to interview."

"Aw, I can make him talk," declared the reporter. "Just lead me to him."

The major got up and led the way out into the courtyard and around to the stables.

"Here he is," said the officer, grinning. He had stopped in front of an aged mule. "His name is 'Peanuts.' He has served in Cuba, the Philippines, China, at Vera Cruz, on the border and in France. Go to it, young man."

But all that Peanuts would say for publication was, "He-haw! He-haw!"

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Drop Freezone on a touchy corn, then lift that corn off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! No humbug!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.—Adv.

Birds Use Their Brains.

The English thrush brings its snails to a certain convenient stone on which it will crack their shells by beating them upon it. Some sea birds carry shellfish to a height and drop them on the rock to break their shells.

Many marriages are due to the fact that the contracting parties fail to understand each other.

It may be up to the lowly potato to save our bacon.

DOCTOR URGED AN OPERATION

Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Was Cured.

Baltimore, Md.—"Nearly four years I suffered from organic troubles, nervousness and headaches and every month would have to stay in bed most of the time. Treatments would relieve me for a time but my doctor was always urging me to have an operation. My sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before consenting to an operation. I took five bottles of it and it has completely cured me and my work is a pleasure. I tell all my friends who have any trouble of this kind what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Nellie B. Brittingham, 609 Calverton Rd., Baltimore, Md.

It is only natural for any woman to dread the thought of an operation. So many women have been restored to health by this famous remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after an operation has been advised that it will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to consider trying it before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

SELDOM SEE

a big knee like this, but your horse may have a bunch or bruise on his ankle, hock, stifle, knee or throat.

ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG.U.S.PAT.OFF.

will clean it off without laying up the horse. No blister, no hair gone. Concentrated—only a few drops required at an application. $2.50 per bottle delivered. Describe your case for special instructions, and Book 8 R free. ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Painful Swellings, Enlarged Glands, Wens, Bruises, Varicose Veins; allays Pain and inflammation. Price $1.25 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Liberal trial bottle postpaid for 10c.
W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

GIRLS Clear Your Skin Save Your Hair With Cuticura

Soap, Oint., Talcum 25c. each. Sample each of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, for $1.00.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DE KALB AVE., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

DAISY FLY KILLER

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 29--1918.

A British scientist claims to have discovered a simple and inexpensive process for converting ordinary peat into a highly concentrated fertilizer.

Some folks go abroad to complete their education and some to begin it.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY CLEANSES YOUR KIDNEYS

For centuries GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been a standard household remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and stomach trouble, and all diseases connected with the urinary organs. The kidneys and bladder are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of your blood. If the poisons which enter your system through the blood and stomach are not entirely thrown out by the kidneys and bladder, you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, headache, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, difficulty when urinating, cloudy and bloody urine, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago, all warn you to look after your kidneys and bladder. All these indicate some weakness of the kidneys or other organs or that the enemy microbes which are always present in your system have attacked your weak spots. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are what you need.

They are not a "patent medicine," nor a "new discovery." For 200 years they have been a standard household remedy. They are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil your great-grandmother used, and are perfectly harmless. The healing, soothing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and through the bladder, driving out the poisonous germs. New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue the treatment. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day; they will keep you in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not delay a minute. Delays are especially dangerous in kidney and bladder trouble. All druggists sell GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They will refund the money if not as represented. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They are prepared in correct quantity and convenient form, are easy to take and are positively guaranteed to give prompt relief. In three sizes, sealed packages. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL. Accept no substitutes.—Adv.

Cold Drinks Bad for Your Stomach

How to Avoid the Digestive Miseries That Hot Weather Brings

Cold drinks in hot weather are bad enough for any stomach but doubly so, in fact, dangerous—when the stomach is out of fix and you suffer from indigestion, acidity, food-repeating, heartburn, sour stomach, and that awful puffed-up, bloated condition after eating. In fact, all stomach and bowel miseries are greatly aggravated in hot weather. You can't be too careful. Sunstroke can be traced in many cases to poor digestion. Everyone should watch their stomach in hot weather.

Keep it sweet and cool. Here is an easy and pleasant way to correct stomach ills. A compound has been discovered which surely takes up the harmful juices and gases from the stomach, leaving it sweet, clean, cool and comfortable. You won't know you have a stomach if you take one or two EATONIC tablets after your meal, so light and pain-free you will feel.

There is not a harmful thing in EATONIC tablets. They taste fine! Just like eating candy. Druggists will tell you that EATONIC users say they never dreamed anything could give such quick and wonderful results; you can insure yourself a good, cool, sweet stomach, you can eat what you like, and always have the appetite to eat it.

EATONIC is absolutely guaranteed. Get a box from your druggist today. Use it to get rid of and prevent the stomach and bowel troubles that are bound to come in hot weather. If EATONIC fails, return to your druggist and get your fifty cents back. If you cannot obtain EATONIC where you live drop a card to Eatonic Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill. They will mail you a box at once.

JULY

L 90

0448

Fertilizer.

We have received several cars of F. S. Royster Famous Grain Growers Fertilizer for which we are now booking orders. This shipment arrived here about July 12—the first orders booked the first to be served. Call us and get our prices and analysis.

COAL

We have some thrashing coal—wash nut for cook stoves which is fine The quantity is limited so get your coal early.

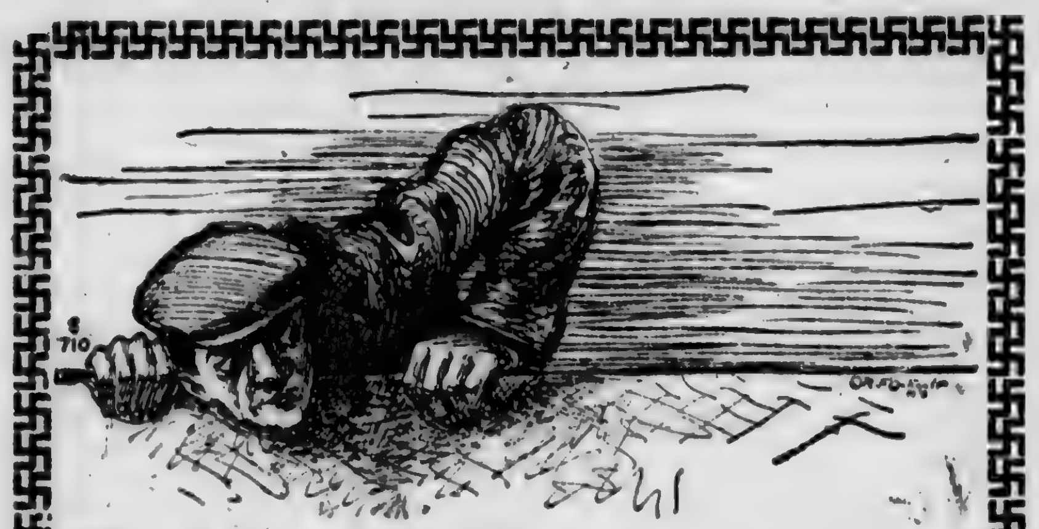
Hog Feed: We have just unloaded a car load of Middlings and Homing Feed—a real hog feed and one that can't be beaten for feeding:

Middlings per 100 pounds $2.75
Hominy per 100 pounds $3.10

—o—

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.

Spencerville, Indiana



The Man with Money hides his Valuables in Our Safety Deposit Vaults where they are SAFE. He has no FEAR of Fire or Burglars.

Mobilizing Finances:

—o—

It's dead easy when your available cash is all snugly reposing in a sound Bank. You can handle your finances with less cost and trouble. This Bank can render you valuable service in all matters of finance.

Join Our Army of Depositors

and be prepared for the financial battles that face you—Your bank account is always available.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

The Girl With Thirteen Daddies.

Story written especially for The News by Local Talent and is worthy of your weekly attention. Back numbers supplied while they last.

CHAPTER V. (CONTINUED)

"Do any o' you coyotes think our little lady is goin' to hit the same trail Adobe Nance did?" Peddler spoke slowly with a tigerish smile on his lips. "The one who gives the first yap had better be mighty quick with his gun."

"Nein, nein! Neffer, never! I lofe her too mootch! I lofe her too mootch! Virst I kill her und den I hang, und dank Gott vor safin' dot leedle lady. Gott helpfen! Gott helpfen!" Dutch concluded by burying his face in his hands and sobbing outright.

Peddler's hand fell from his gun and the tension that held the others relaxed. Never before had they been near bloodshed among themselves and each felt great relief when it was averted. Peddler went to Dutch and occupied a chair beside him. He laid a hand—kindly, too—upon the shoulder of his weeping friend.

"Pardners," he said, addressing the others, "I'm shore sorry fer that crazy hoss play o' mine." Before any of them could reply, he turned to Perfessor and asked: "How long will it take—meanin' our little lady bein' away?"

"'Bout eight years, Mrs. Dal says," was the reply.

Jedge felt that it was incumbent upon him to say something, the weight of his opinion being necessary. He arose and cleared his throat, a hint to those about him that they were soon to hear something worth listening to.

"Pardners, we all love our little lady. We love her so much that we pull up short at the thought o' partin' with her fer a few years fer her good. That thar is crazy hoss love—the little lady has locoed us. That thar Peddler is no worse than we all—a little more ediotic in lookin' fer gun play. We all reminds me of a play I seen at the theayter at 'Fr'sco. I plumb ferget the name o' that thar play an' o' the nigger that got as crazy as a drunk Piute over Desde-somethin' 'r other—Desdemony, that's it. He wasn't a nigger in them countries whar the play was writ; but down Texas way we pass the buck an' call fer a new deal when they tries to cold deck us with a black Cawcashun, an' so I calls him a nigger. But that thar nigger he don't stand fer no bluffin': he shoves all his chips to the center an' calls fer a show down on Desdemony; an' he wins the pot over a tenderfoot four-flushin' Dago an' the gal's dad, which the last is a senator. Not a United States senator, y'understand, fer he wouldn't stood for his gal marryin' no nigger, but a senator like they have in them furrin parts. I didn't cotton to a likely filly like that thar Desdemony gett'n' into double harness with a nigger, but she done it. The nigger war shore locoed over that thar white wife o' his'n an' starts makin' crazy hoss plays jest as we all does over our little lady. A piker named Ague comes 'long an' deals crooked cases on that thar nigger, an' he gits plumb crazy over a dinky han'kercher that don't cost more'n two bits an' he kills that thar Desdemony gal—smothers her with a piller. I felt fer my gun, but it wasn't thar. But I'll say fer the nigger he died game—not one squeal from that thar black Cawcashun His last words fits we all. He said: 'I loved not wisely, but too damn much.'"

"Pardners," said Perfessor, who had been nervously waiting for Jedge to run down, "them eight years will be long ones fer our little lady an' fer us; but it's our dooty. That good woman, Mrs. Dal, will go 'long with her an' stake out a claim fer her in one o' them colleges whar they eddicate the female sect."

For the first time, the queen had her will disputed. She raged, she cried, she begged; but the rebels, under the leadership of Perfessor, held their position. At last, she surrendered.

The day for departure came. A pitiable little queen got aboard the hack with Mrs. Dal. Thirteen men watched until a distant turn in the road was passed, and then turned dejectedly away.

CHAPTER VI.

Nearly seven years had rolled by since the departure of Margaret for school, and then the placidity of Paradise Lost was shaken from center to circumference, the center being the home of the thirteen and the circumference the remainder of the town. The term placidity, when applied to a frolicsome place like Paradise Lost, is a relative one It is not to be inferred that her citizens ceased to take interest in the saloon, in the dance house or in the rattle of chips on the green velvet or that her echoes were not disturbed by the bark of a revolver in the hands of a too hilarious individual or in the clinching of an argument between parties who differed upon a question of a personal nature. Oh, no! nothing of the kind: these pastimes were not engaged in to their fullest extent. It means a partial reversal of the rule that "all play makes Jack a dull boy," and not a violation of the precedents that ruled the place throughout her entire history.

The months immediately following the departure of Margaret were long ones to her daddies. They realized to the fullest extent their affection for the child: they pined for the sound of the voice that was music to them, for the footstep that had no power to disturb them, for the presence that cheered them. They counted the time that would have to elapse before she would return; and the more they dwelt upon this subject the more the day of her coming back seemed to recede. They passed the days like men searching for something they can not find; and they sat until late at night about the stove, where the incense of their pipes arose before the memory of the little lady. This feeling passed away in time, but their loyalty to and love for Margaret never abated an iota.

They heard from her. At first, they received a brief monthly report from her teacher; and, every quarter, they received a statement of the child's expenses. Which afforded them the more pleasure is a question. No auditing of the accounts was thought of: the mere mention of a doubt as to any item would have been regarded as disloyalty to the little lady. Indeed, had they been charged with a coach-and-four, they would have paid the bill cheerfully.

But, one-never-to-be-forgotten day, there came a letter from Margaret herself. Thirteen proud men gazed upon the childish scrawl in a sort of ecstatic trance, and Mrs. Dal was called in and was as proud and silly as the daddies. The world was challenged to produce another such a letter, and Punkun Seed echoed the sentiments of all when he declared that the "president of the Yoonited States couldn't write any better." Frenchy and Dutch, who could not read English, and Truthful Jim, who could not read anything at all, each looked it over from every angle and declared that he got as much out of it as any of the others, which was probably true. In time, letters from Margaret became more frequent, bringing pleasure to her daddies and the knowledge that her affection spanned the continent and was not lessened by time nor surroundings. They also learned the great lesson that blessings are measured out most abundantly to them that measure out blessings to others; that the greatest happifier is the making of others happy.

But, as stated in the foregoing, Paradise Lost was shaken up. One evening the stage rolled in bearing a letter for "Samuel Perkins." This the post master handed to Perfessor, and the latter gazed upon it with a dazed expression upon his face until he remembered that his boyhood playmates had called him 'Sam" and his father's name was "Perkins." The contents of the letter displeased him, that was evident; and his partners were summoned from their usual resorts and gathered about the stove at home, the place dedicated by custom to the discussion of weighty questions.

"Pardners," began Perfessor, "I never heard that we all here in Paradise Lost need a guardeen."

"'Tain't human natur that we should," declared Jedge. "We all's shore playin' the game all right an' not overbettin' our kyards."

"Shore," assented Perfessor He took the letter from his pocket and continued: "This here is from a Bible sharp named Choate—Joe his other name is. This here Choate is herdin' somewhar 'bout Boston when he wrote, but he feels it to be his dooty to come out here an' round up the sinners o' Paradise Lost. Now, what be we all goin' to do with this here gospel gardeen when he comes?"

"I never put my brand on a maverick that keeps beyond the length o' my rope," observed Deacon.

"But he's shore comin'," insisted Perfessor.

"We'll rope this here maverick when he comes," argued Deacon "He may not be worth brandin'—jest a locoed runt runnin' 'bout loose."

"A fool stampedes a herd oftener'n a man o' sense," grunted Calamity.

"Let him come," put in Fish Hook; "an' when he gits tired o' browsin' 'bout here, he can go back to them green pastoors in the east When we all wants an idea o' what's comin' to us in the futoor, we all's got Fiddler an' thar thar fiddle o' his'n; an' when we all wants some thin' excitin', the Adobe dance hall holds aver the Salvation Army."

"You ain't got no"—

Fiddler got no further. He was interrupted by Jedge.

"Pardners, thar's an old sayin' 'bout never fordin' a river whar thar ain't no water. Thar's no sense in we all wadin' 'round in them waters o' argyment till we sees what we has to argefy 'bout when that thar Bible sharp gits here. If he's pay dirt, we'll let him stay. If he assays all right, he'll shore know 'nuff not to take any chips in a game whar tenderfeet is barred What do we all care as long as Adobe Mert pounds the pianner an' Greaser Juan plays the new gag at the dance hall, an' the ball rolls an' Buck Dobbins deals faro at Headley's, an' the red likker holds out fer sech as has the two bits to buy it. But if he don't assay 'nuff brains to see the footility o' interferin' with them harmless amoosments, we'll take him up to the hills an' show him the graves o' them misguided individooals who plumb fergot the limit an' plays the game too high fer Paradise Lost an' come to an ontimely end tryin' to git the drop on Peddler. If he pulls his freight, we all 'll give him a good send off; an' if he don't, we all will hawg tie the delooded parson an' load him on the hack."

"An' if he comes back?" inquired Canuck.

"We'll ship the remnants to the frien's back east," was the reply.

Jedge's plan was agreed to.

Paradise Lost had not long to wait. Within a week, the preacher arrived. He was a six-foot, broad-shouldered specimen of young manhood, black-haired and dark-eyed. There was something about those eyes and the face they surmounted that attracted attention and won favor. There was also a square jaw that denoted determination and combativeness. He moved with the free stride and elasticity of the trained athlete, and there was nothing about him that suggested his calling.

Jedge was standing near when the young man alighted from the stage. His first impressions of the stranger were favorable: he thought he had never seen a finer looking person, and his heart warmed toward him. The new comer looked about him and then started toward Jedge; and the latter, in turn, took a step or two forward. Jedge was not surprised when the young man came up to him and reached out a hand, for Paradise Lost did not stand on conventionalities; but, a moment later, he was surprised.

"Judge, I believe?" inquired the stranger.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS

By Dr. Harry E. Barnard, Federal Food Administrator for Indiana.

The Kuss Baking Company of Mishawaka, paid into local war charities $1,225.66, a sum representing ½ cent per loaf for every loaf of bread baked by them during April and May. The company admitted failure to conform to the regulation relative to the use of wheat flour substitutes and chose to make this payment in lieu of forfeiture of license and suspension of business for the period of the war.

John M. Thompson, food administrator of Bartholomew county, confiscated 3,600 pounds of sugar from Albert Schumaker, proprietor of a bottling works. Schumaker was warned that further offense would involve him in proceedings for hoarding which is punishable by fine and imprisonment.

H. G. Sponsel, an Indianapolis baker at 1006 S. East Street, failed to conform to the wheat flour regulations and exceeded his allotment of thirty-two barrels per month. Accordingly he will not be permitted to have any more flour for baking sweet goods until September 1.

The meat division has prepared the following list of beef by-products which may be served at any meal without violation of the regulation restricting the consumption of beef: Heads, tongues, tails, livers, hearts, tripe, feet, barreled beef, potted beef, beef loaf, chili con carni and beef trimmings. Beef trimmings made into bologna, sausage and frankfurters need not be conserved.

Grocers are urged not to wash eggs as washing causes deterioration.

"Maximum canning with minimum of sugar" is the season's slogan of the food administration. The housewife is being urged to avail herself of the numerous publications issued by the United States department of agriculture giving instructions as how best to proceed with the preserving of fruits and vegetables with the least requirement of sugar.

"Barley and rye are cereals good for human consumption and should not be fed to animals where other grain is available, as indicated by numerous wires from Indiana to us,' says a wire from Cecil Barnes, head of the United States Grain Corporation.

This information answers numerous inquiries that have come in to the federal food administrator from all parts of the state, asking whether it is permissible to feed barley and rye to hogs. The Grain Corporation insists there is still a plentiful supply of corn in Indiana suitable only for feed. It has issued no positive orders on the subject, but will expect that in every instance the question be solved in the light of the facts indicated above.

Notice is given of the repeal of Rules 27 and 28 relative to the distribution of wheat flour on the 70 per cent. basis. The effect of this repeal permits the sale and purchase by wholesalers and jobbers, of wheat flour without reference to the 70 per cent. restriction, based upon the volume of business during the three months periods from February 1 to April 30 and May 1 to July 31 in 1918. This limitation was in proportion to the purchases made in the corresponding three months of 1917. The effect of Rule 28 was to regulate distribution by districts and prohibited the seeking of new markets or channels of distribution. It is now permissible that millers secure a wheat supply from any available sources.

PROTECT Your Grain

—‡—‡—‡—

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

—‡—‡—‡—

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer.

TILE!

I have on hand now tile in all the sizes ranging from 4 to 30 inch. Get your supply now while we are able to make the shipments from Portland mills. The best clay tile obtainable. See me.

Orange Herrick,

Phone No. 47-11

St. Joe, Ind.

A Sluggish Liver Needs Attention

An Inactive Liver Affects the Kidneys and Deranges the Stomach and Bowels.

Too much stress can not be placed on the necessity of keeping the liver in good condition; upon it the health of the body largely depends. When the liver becomes sluggish, the kidneys are overworked, the digestive fluids are not properly secreted and a languid, bilious, nervous or sick headachy condition results. Poisonous matter accumulates within the body. Constipation, bloating, dizziness, belching, pain or soreness in the right side, impaired vision and, in fact, most diseases have their origin in an inactive liver. An inactive liver is easily corrected if taken in time, but the only way to doctor is to get at the cause. Glando Tonic is a liver remedy that has a splendid record for renewing activity, removing the poisons and building up the system. For bilious attacks, it can not be beaten. Mothers who are nursing a baby should take Glando Tonic to keep the bowels well regulated. This will keep baby's bowels in a good condition. Glando Tonic is a three-in-one treatment that brings results. A trial will convince the most skeptical. Testimonials will be furnished upon request. Glando Tonic is sold by druggists or may be obtained by sending 50c direct to the Grand-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

L 96

0449

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 25 1918 NO. 30

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

En Route, July 8.

Dear Grandma:—

I must make this another all inclusive letter, as I can not write to each one individually.

It is a beautiful Sunday forenoon. The sun is shining so brightly—everything is all smiles and sunshine and as happy as a lark, and why not? We have the best reason on earth to be happy and content. The simple explanation is just this: Saturday afternoon at exactly 4:00 o'clock, we left Camp Doniphan behind us and set our faces toward the land of the rising sun, where we knew new and varied experiences awaited us. We were given a grand send off by the band, with people waving and shouting good luck and God speed, and every soldier laughing. Who wouldn't be jolly and happy?

No one who has not traveled on board a train in such a crowd knows how much he misses. It is the most fun in the world. Every town through which we pass has its entire population lined up along the station and tracks to give us a cheery word and a pleasant smile.

Last evening in Oklahoma City, I held in my arms one of the cutest little 6-year-old girls you ever saw. She used almost perfect English, and just loved me to beat the band; and when the train started to move away, she threw her tiny, loving arms around my neck, kissed me and said: "Good bye, soldier man." You may imagine how I felt after that little episode, the first of its kind in my career for a long, long while. But soon darkness had swallowed up our rapidly receding train and she was gone forever.

Say, maybe you think this sleeping on a Pullman right up beside an open window doesn't beat our old army cots all to pieces? I'll say it does. I surely had a good night's rest. We are feeling fine, too. There are three sections to our regiment, with fifteen cars to a section; and there are three regiments in our bunch. Quite a group, isn't it? I guess yes.

Grandma, the time is now at hand when it will be utterly impossible for me to write you every day, much as I regret it. Only a short time now, and you probably won't hear from me for over a month. But don't grow lonesome—God will keep you; and don't worry about me, for I am in His hands, too, seeing the sights and having the time of my life. I will write you just as often as possible.

My serial number is 1,298,988. Always remember it. I am distinguished by it and not by name.

Love forever,
Willie G. Woodcox.

Pennsylvania, July 9.

Joe, Byron and Folks:—

Well, how is everybody at home? Sincerely hope you are all as well as well as we are.

I was very close to you people last evening: we passed through Decatur, Ind., at supper time and were at Delphos, Ohio, at 8 o'clock. I would have given my old hat (and then some) to have gone about 35 miles north of there. We stopped at Delphos for an hour. It is a city of 6,000. There were approximately 600 women and girls down around our train and only about 200 men. They have all left.

Say, we didn't waste our time while we were there, either. They served us ice cream, and our band got off and gave them a military concert, while the soldiers marched through the streets. I talked with two or three ladies who had been at St. Joe. Don't know their names. We surely did feel sorry to have the train pull out of that station. There were five troop trains passed through there yesterday.

We passed through Cleveland at 4:30 a. m. this morning. I was still asleep, and so did not get to see it. Just my luck, of course. We passed through Erie, Pa, an hour ago, and now are 98 miles from Buffalo.

It is raining this morning, but everybody is out to wave us just the same; and, say, you don't know how good that makes us feel. Never let an opportunity pass by to waive at a troop train. Once in a while, we wave at some one who doesn't wave back; and you ought to hear the remarks made about him. All of us fellows think that anyone who is too reserved to wave at a bunch of soldiers bound in our direction is not much good and certainly not very patriotic at heart. Old ladies and gentlemen, middle aged, young girls, men and children—all are waved at by us with equal enthusiasm. Every once in a while, some old lady stands out in front of her home, so proud and anxious to show that she has sons in the army. One white haired old lady waved a service flag with three stars on it, and cheers arose from the whole length of our train as we passed by. Many a middle aged lady has stood wiping the tears from her eyes as we passed, only to be greeted with a sunny from all of us. Old civil war veterans stand out waving their flags as long as they can see our train. One farm we went by had flags tacked up on the fence posts for nearly half a mile. Every old gentleman we pass is hailed as "Dad" and the old ladies are "Mother" to all of us.

And not the least of our pleasures on this trip is the attention given us by the Red Cross girls in the larger cities. They send us candy, drinks, cigarettes, post cards, etc.—all free, of course. Oh! we are living the life of a king just at present. I only hope I can impart some of my joy and happiness to all of you people.

We are in the same coach as is the band, and they make things lively. One fellow is playing a cornet right now. They are all as happy as can be.

We have gone by vineyard after vineyard here in Pennsylvania. All crops are in the very best condition and are looking fine.

Lovingly,
Willie G. Woodcox.

A party was given Thurday evening at the home of Wesley Zimmerman and wife in honer of their son, Ray, eighty-five being present.

Miss Josephine Johnson, of Columbus, Ohio, who had been the guest of her uncle, G. M. Barney, and family, left Monday for home. She was accompanied part way by her cousin, Miss Pauline Barney, who will visit uncles at Bowling Green and Toledo for a few weeks

GOD AND GOTT

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

Who soothes the sighs of sorrow
  And heals the hurts of pain?
Who gives us for the morrow
  The songs we sing again?
Who taught us love for others?
  Who guards us as we roam?
Who links our hands as brothers
  And sanctifies the home?

Who girds our souls with sureness
  That we may cast out fear?
Who blesses woman's pureness
  And bids us hold it dear?
Oh, whispered in our praying
  From cradle to the sod
Our name—our faith displaying—
  The hallowed name of God!

Who teaches torture's terror
  And laughs at lies and loot?
Who holds no faith is fairer
  Than one to shame a brute?
To whom are women shrieking
  And sobs of children maimed
As sweet as some one speaking
  Of those both loved and famed?

Who spurns the ill and lowly
  That falter at his gate?
Who holds supremely holy
  The hoarsest curse of hate?
Oh, bestial, hellish being—
  On God's great name a blot!
Unthinking and unseeing,
  The Prussians call it Gott!

St. Joe Hoops Her Up.

Here come the doughboys,
  With dirt behind their ears!
Here come the doughboys—
  Their pay is in arrears.
Artilleree and infantree
  And the lousy engineers—
You couldn't lick the doughboys
  In a hundred thousand years.
—Doughboy Song.

The irrepressible American humor and jollity that prompts the singing of the foregoing song by the doughboys as they swing into a French town "over there," was manifested in St. Joe last Thursday night, when news of the allied victory was received.

The celebration began about midnight and lasted about two hours; and if a town ever was gloriously enthusiastic, that town was St. Joe. There was no set program: every one just celebrated to suit himself—exhausted his enthusiasm in his "own peculiar way." There was music—plenty of it—shot guns, sleigh bells, a drum of the coal scuttle kind and chin music.

The celebration started in the News office. About a dozen men (including one who stoutly denied being pro-German) were called up over the phone—all of them men whose lungs were in good working order; and all of them responded to the call. Next, St. Joe had to be awakened to the fact that something was going on, which was done enthusiastically, effectively and vociferously. Every body turned out and proceeded to get busy.

There were some amusing incidents. One lady (half awake) heard the word "Germans" and Charley Koch's announcement that he would go and get his gun; and she concluded that the Huns had attacked the town. Others, hearing the shots, thought a fight between robbers and citizens was being waged on the streets. One man, it is reported, ingloriously sought safety under the bed and then indignantly called his wife a coward because she would not go out and see what was the matter.

To H. C. Hathaway belongs the credit of ending the celebration: he attached himself to the bell rope at the school house; and then proceeded, like the watchman, to "ring, ring the bell."

Here come the doughboys,
  Let's hit the grit and run.
Here come the doughbys—
  They put us on the bum.
We've infantree, artilleree
  And Prussian grenadiers;
But we can't lick the doughobys
  In a hundred thousand years.
—Kaiser Bill.

Sam Keesler and family were Sunday guests of the former's brother, Alvin Keesler, and family, east of town. John Keesler and wife, of Edgerton, Ralph Furnish and family and Miss Clara Keesler, of Spencerville, and Clark Roberts and family were also present.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	92	3.25
M. P.	75	2.50
Christian	71	2.51
M. E. Spencer	100	6.04
Lutheran	118	4.48
Coburntown	66	1 87
Newville U B	65	2.68
Concord	77	2.05

PROTECT
Your Grain

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

IT'S TIME TO PLOW NOW.

and we are going to make a special price on some of our stock as follows:

Bryan riding plow
Special price.................. $40.00

Oliver riding plow
No. 11, Special price........ $60.00
(With Combination Jointer all complete.)

Walking plows while they last at only.................. $25.00

A complete line of Disc Rollers—a necessary implement.

CURIE'S

4 1/2 %

LIBERTY LOAN ANTICIPATION
U. S. Certificates of Indebtedness
Dated June 25, 1918—Due October 24, 1918.

The Banks of this country have been called upon by the Treasury Department of the U. S. Government to purchase Certificates of Indebtedness in anticipation of the Fourth Liberty Loan. This bank, believing it to be its patriotic duty to respond to this call, will take its full quota of these Certificates from time to time as the Treasury Department needs funds to finance the war.

To the people of this community, who have responed so loyally in purchasing past issues of Liberty Bonds and who expect to take bonds of the Fourth Loan, and to those who may desire a short-time Government investment, we recommend the purchase of these Certificates, which we will supply in denominations of $500, $1,000 and upwards without profit to this bank.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

The Most Complete Stock of DRUGS
and Drug Store Goods in Northeastern Indiana will be found at STAMAN'S.

Large stock of Spray Material, Rexall Remedies, Kodaks and Supplies—in fact you will find every thing here that you would expect in an Up-to-Date Drug Store. We shall esteem it an honor to become your druggist.

ASHTON STAMAN
The Rexall Store
AUBURN

Take Your FEED
Home when you haul your grain.

Highest market prices paid for all grains.

Come in—Call on us—we like to see you.
The Place That Does Things.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

JULY

0450

CHATEAU THIERRY TAKEN BY FRENCH AND AMERICANS

Allies Break Through and Pursue Foe on Whole Line.

INFLICT TERRIBLE LOSSES

Huns Did Not Burn Chateau Thierry Before Retreating—Foch's Armies Clear Enemy From East and South of Marne.

Washington, July 22.—At ten o'clock Saturday morning the Americans had taken 17,000 prisoners actually counted, and 560 guns, General Pershing reported in his communique made public tonight. No Germans were on the south side of the Marne at 10:30 Saturday morning, the communique continues.

With the Americans at the Marne, July 22.—The Germans did not set fire to Chateau Thierry before leaving, fearing the flames would light up their retreat and draw our artillery fire. Two hundred civilians greeted the French and Americans as the latter entered the town. These civilians had been herded in a cathedral so they could not witness the German evacuation.

With the American Army on the Marne, July 22.—The French and Americans have broken through the German line northwest of Chateau Thierry.

The French and Americans driving the spearhead toward the northeast have already advanced five kilometers (3¼ miles) at various places.

The allied troops have taken many prisoners, including three officers, who said they were tired of the war.

American infantrymen captured two 77s.

Previous to the breaking of the German lines the allies battled with the desperate machine gunners, who were mowed down as the allied re-enforcements arrived. The German losses were terrible.

Retreat Turns Into Rout.

The German retreat across the Marne began on Friday under cover of a great smoke screen. At last accounts great hordes of Germans were continuing north. Organized resistance has been met with so far only at a few places.

The district south of the Marne and east of Chateau Thierry is entirely cleared of Germans. Two badly cut-up regiments were left south of the Marne in the German retreat.

Allied aviators bombed the bridges across the river and their escape was impossible.

Germans Throw in Reserves.

The Germans continue to fling re-enforcements into the battle and are bringing up more guns of all calibers in their desperate efforts to stem the Franco-American advance.

We have already counted elements of eight divisions opposite us.

Our artillery is shelling the Aisne bridges at Soissons.

All Saturday night the allies hammered at the widening wedge between the Germans and Paris as the Germans withdrew north of the Marne. Americans continuing to take prisoners and guns.

Allied re-enforcements are pouring in to overcome any determined resistance the Germans may attempt.

Clear Line North of Marne.

The heavy artillery of the allies continues the clearing of districts north of the Marne.

An attack from Chateau Thierry to Reims began on Saturday. American forces captured Hill 193 north of Vaux and advanced more than two kilometers. At last accounts they were more than holding their own against German resistance.

French Enter Chateau Thierry.

Paris, July 22.—French and American troops entered Chateau Thierry Sunday morning, according to an official statement issued by the war office. The French also have taken the town of Braies, one mile east of Chateau Thierry, on the north bank of the Marne, according to word received here.

The French line includes the heights north of Brasles, which gives the French a good bridgehead on the north side of the Marne.

Violent combats continue north and south of the Ourcq and between the Marne and Reims. In spite of the violent resistance by the enemy, the French have continued to advance, the statement adds.

The Franco-American forces continue to make progress, repelling the enemy, who is defending himself obstinately, according to the official statement.

With every hour it becomes more evident that the Germans, hard-pressed on three sides, are facing the prospect of a retreat beyond the Aisne.

Their desperate resistance in the pivotal areas around Soissons and Reims shows how critical Ludendorff himself considers the situation.

Prisoners Total 25,000.

His forces are hemmed in a pocket the mouth of which is not more than 20 miles wide.

Prisoners are being brought in in steady streams. The total is unofficially reported to be near the 25,000 mark. Considerably more than 400 guns have been captured.

The Franco-American troops are pressing on relentlessly everywhere, not giving the enemy the slightest respite.

The Americans are attacking in their shirt sleeves.

British Take Prisoners.

London, July 22.—Successful minor enterprises were reported by Field Marshal Haig in his day bulletin, as follows:

"A few prisoners and machine guns were captured by us during raids and patrol encounters southwest of La Bassee and in the Merville and Dickebusch (Flanders) sectors.

"Beyond artillery activity on both sides at different points there is nothing further to report from the British front."

BONE-DRY MEASURE PUZZLES

Means Loss of Billion Dollars and Taxation of Necessities if Passed.

Washington, July 22.—A billion dollars stands between congress and national prohibition for the period of the war. It is the people's money to be raised by taxation to help pay the enormous cost of the war. The billion can easily be raised by taxes on whisky, wines and beer. Otherwise, members of congress who will vote for prohibition are frank enough to state that they dont know where this billion will come from unless consumption taxes are imposed upon some of the necessities of life.

Congress will face the question of a billion for booze when the regular sessions are resumed next month and the members of the ways and means committee, now framing the new war revenue bill, are ready to report. They must find a way to raise $8,000,000,000 by taxation this year.

Take away the billion dollars in prospect by the enactment of national prohibition, putting the whole country on a bone-dry basis, and members of the ways and means committee, who have been struggling with the matter for some weeks, say there is no way to find the money except under some scheme of general taxation that will fall upon all the people.

AMERICAN CASUALTY REPORT

Two Hundred and Twenty-Five Killed or Wounded by the Huns.

Washington, July 22.—Two hundred and twenty-five casualties were shown in the list received here from General Pershing, commandant of the American expeditionary force in France. Of these 199 were in the army and 26 in the marine corps. The army casualties consisted of 43 killed in action, 23 died of wounds, 33 died of disease, nine died of accidents of which one was an airplane accident, 71 were wounded severely, and 30 are missing in action.

The marine corps casualties were 12 killed in action, two died of wounds, and 12 were severely wounded in action.

BRITISH AIRMEN DO DAMAGE

Photographic Reconnaissance Shows Success of Recent Attack on German Hangars.

London, July 22.—"As the result of a photographic reconnaissance carried out on the 20th instant," says the report of the British air ministry, "extensive damage is revealed at the hostile aerodromes at Merhange, attacked by us on the nights of the 19th and 20th.

"One large shed and three hangars were destroyed. There is nothing further to report."

POTATO RATE IS REDUCED

Commerce Body Orders Reduction of 10 Per Cent Per 100 Pounds on Commodity.

Washington, July 22.—A commodity rate of 70 cents per 100 pounds applied by western railroads to potatoes moving from Minnesota and Wisconsin to Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex., and nearby points, was declared excessive by the interstate commerce commission, which fixed the rate at 65 cents.

ALL MUST WORK OR FIGHT

Every Able-Bodied Man in California Regardless of Age or Wealth Included.

San Francisco, July 22.—Every able-bodied man in California, regardless of age or wealth, must work during the war. An order to this effect was issued by the state council of defense.

QUENTIN DEAD, FOE REPORTS

Dramatic Confirmation of Young Roosevelt's Death Dropped in American Camp.

Paris, July 22.—German aviators have dropped a note into American aviation camps confirming the death of Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt in an air battle.

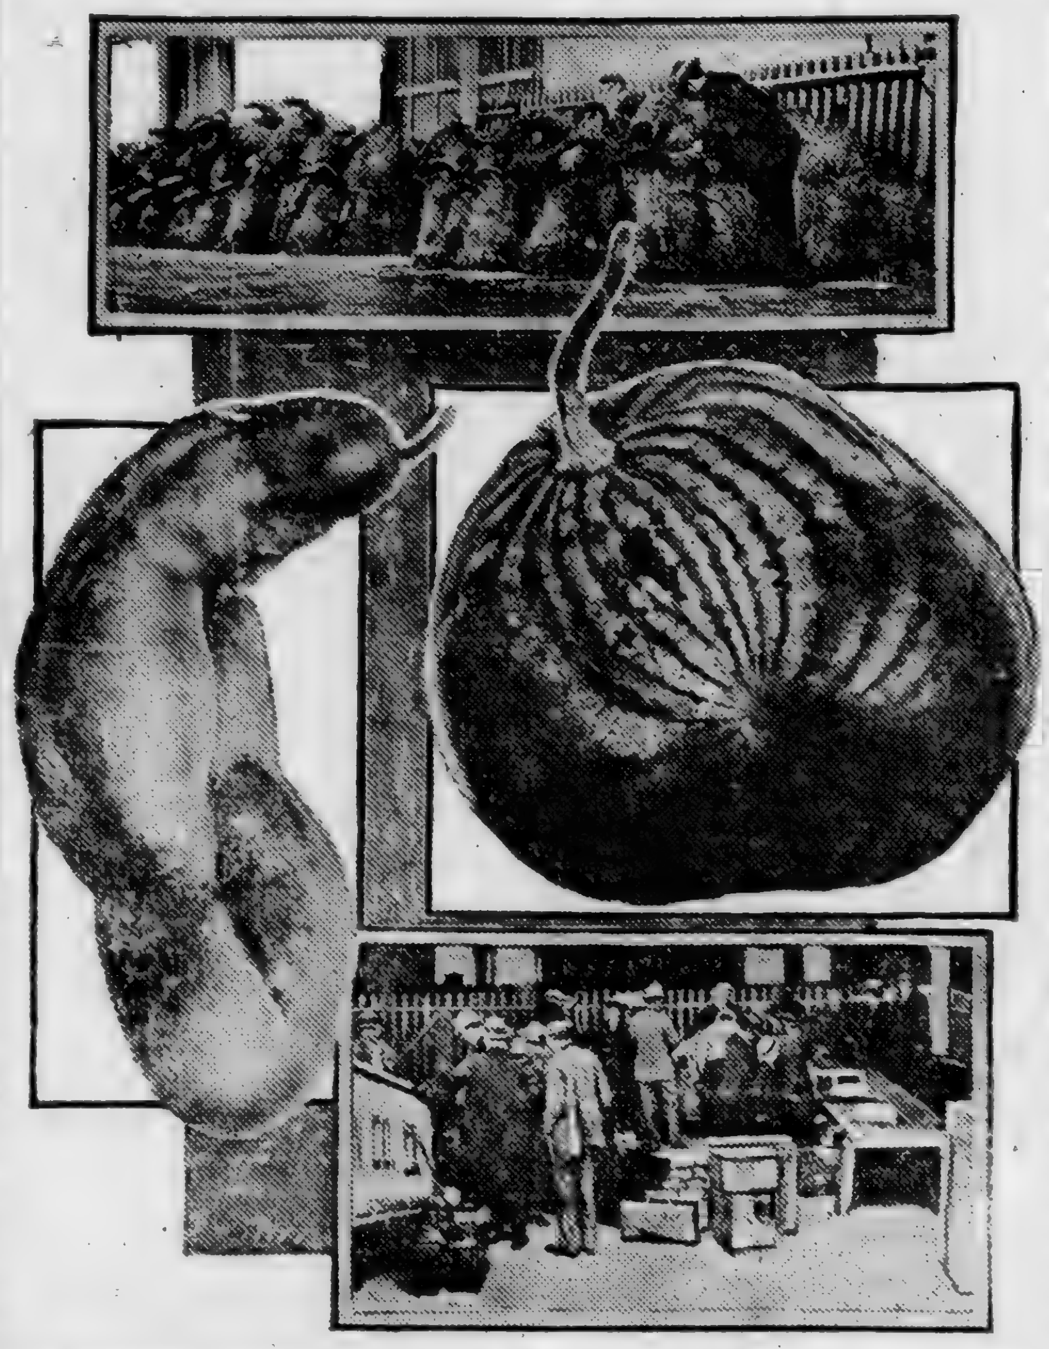
McAdoo on Way Home.

Seattle, Wash., July 22.—Director General McAdoo of the federalized railroads; Mrs. McAdoo, Oscar A. Price, assistant director general, and others in the McAdoo party, left here for Spokane, en route to Washington, D. C.

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

GUARDING AMERICA FROM NEW INSECT PESTS



Top, Inspector Examining Bananas on San Francisco Docks; Center, Cucumber and Watermelon Decayed and Deformed by Fly Attacks; Bottom, Baggage of Travelers Arriving at San Francisco From Hawaii Being Inspected for Infested Fruits and Vegetables.

INTERCEPT AND DESTROY FLIES

Half of Insect Pests Could Have Been Kept Out of Country by Quarantine.

FRUIT FLIES ARE BEAUTIFUL

Immense Losses Caused Annually to Fruits and Vegetables of United States Could Be Prevented—Precautions Being Taken.

More than half of the insect pests that annually cause immense losses in fruits and vegetables of the United States could have been kept out of this country by thorough quarantine against them, according to officials of the United States department of agriculture. To guard against more injurious insects being brought in from other countries is the object of the federal plant quarantine act of 1912 which, with the development of knowledge of insects throughout the world, has resulted in the bars being put up wherever the pests are likely to enter.

Among the insects of other lands that have not yet become established in this country are the serious pests known popularly as fruit flies. They resemble ordinary house flies but are far more beautiful, inasmuch as their wings are prettily spotted and banded and their bodies are usually more brightly colored. They are like house flies also in that they lay small, white eggs that hatch into whitish maggots. However, the maggots do not develop in refuse or decaying matter as do those of the house fly, but they feed upon the living tissues of fruits, nuts and vegetables. Eggs are laid just under the skin of the host plant or fruit and these hatch into the maggots which burrow in all directions through the pulp. As the maggots tunnel about they cause decays to develop and these rotting areas often produce greater injury than the maggots themselves.

Where Danger Lies.

Increasing imports from the countries where fruit flies now abound, extension of trade to remote corners of the earth, increasing density of population in the warmer portions of this country, are making greater each year the danger that fruit flies may become firmly established in the United States.

To intercept and destroy fruit flies as well as other pests, the federal horticultural board of the department of agriculture, charged with the enforcement of the plant quarantine act, prohibits the entry of all horticultural products likely to carry insect pests unless they have been rendered free from danger as pest carriers, either by federal inspection or by treatment by approved methods under federal supervision.

The department also has established in the Hawaiian islands a system of inspection that is heartily supported by fruit growers and transportation companies, whereby all plantations and packing houses from which fruit is shipped are kept from becoming sources of fruit-fly dissemination. No shipments of fruit can be made from Hawaii to the Pacific coast or unloaded there unless they have first received federal approval. The federal horticultural board also maintains a fruit-fly specialist whose duty it is to gather available information regarding this pest either by travel in foreign lands or by correspondence with specialists serving foreign governments.

Aid From the Public.

Travelers from foreign lands have been called upon to help to the utmost in seeing that they do not become the carriers of insect pests. Printed matter calling attention to the serious consequences that may follow the careless and unintentional introduction of fruit flies from Hawaii is distributed to all persons entering Pacific ports from the Hawaiian islands. Each passenger must sign an affidavit stating that he has in his baggage no fruit subject to fruit-fly attack. Inspectors who search the baggage of incoming travelers for fruits carrying fruit flies or their maggots find infested fruit every month. Any one of these instances if not dealt with promptly and properly might mean the loss of thousands or millions of dollars to American farmers and fruit growers.

FRUIT FLIES SPREAD

The Bermudas probably would not now be infested by the Mediterranean fruit fly had not a sailing vessel bound for New York from the Mediterranean region during the Civil war times, been blown from her course and forced to unload her cargo containing infester fruits at St George. The Mediterranean fruit fly did not become established in Australia until steamships and cold storage made it possible for the infested Mediterranean countries to ship oranges to Perth and Sydney. With the pest established in eastern Australia the ships plying between Australia and Hawaii carried the maggots to Honolulu, and today the inspectors of the state of California and the United States are intercepting infested fruits on ships arriving at San Francisco and San Pedro from Honolulu and Hilo.

Fertilizers From Wastes.

Industrial wastes furnished about 40 per cent of the potash, 8 per cent of the phosphoric acid, and 85 per cent of the nitrogen used in this country in 1916, according to a recent United States department of agriculture publication, "Fertilizers From Industrial Wastes."

The potash was obtained from such wastes as tobacco stems, cottonseed hulls, hardwood ashes, wool washings, blast-furnace flue dust, cement flue dust and sugar residues; the phosphoric acid from bones, shells, fish scrap, basic slag and other materials; and the nitrogen from wastes in the manufacture of castor, linseed and fish oils; from animal wastes, as blood, hair, horns, hoofs and hides; from leather and wool wastes, coke, and many other substances.

Mating Guinea Fowls.

Guinea fowls have a tendency to mate in pairs, but one male may be mated successfully with three or four females.

ADVANCEMENT IN WESTERN CANADA FARM LAND PRICES

Stories of phenomenal advancement and prosperity in Western Canada have been told the reading public for some years past. The stories were told when there were hundreds of thousands of acres of splendid land adjacent to railways and projected lines, which could be had on the payment of a mere $10 entry fee, and under cultivation and living conditions. As was prophesied then, the day has come when these are few. There are still available thousands of these; they are some distance now from the railways. The land is as good as ever, but pioneering conditions will have changed. A great many are still taking advantage of this free offer from the government. The story was told when good lands near lines of railway could be bought for from $3 to $10 per acre and the prophecy made that these prices would double in a few years, for the intrinsic value was far more than that. That day has come more quickly than expected. The immense crops of grain that could be raised has brought about the change, and the demand for low priced lands with maximum returns has prompted the keen purchaser as well as the owner of higher priced land from which no greater return could be looked for. Prices of land in Western Canada are still advancing, and will continue to advance until, of course, the limit is reached—when returns will warrant no further increase. That day is not far distant. But, in the meantime, there are large tracts of land owned by land companies and private individuals that have not felt the advance that has been shown in other districts. The opportunity to purchase these should not be lost sight of, and if there are those amongst the readers of this article, which is authorized by the Canadian government, who wish cheap land, such lands as produce from 25 to 40 bushels per acre, and will pay for themselves out of one year's crop, advantage should be taken of the present opportunity.

Coming to Alberta with his family thirteen years ago, his assets consisting of a small outfit and $20 in cash, Mr. O. F. Malmberg has accumulated by farming and live stock raising assets to the value of more than $300,000, and has a personal credit, worth on demand, $100,000. He has not speculated in land, but bought only to farm. Near Blackie, Alberta, he operates 3,100 acres of wheat land. He has just purchased an additional 11,500 acres near Cardston, in Southern Alberta. His personal credit enabled him to finance this deal in Calgary in a little over three hours. The ranch just purchased is a fully equipped stock and grain ranch. At the present time it carries a thousand head of cattle and several hundred horses, and is fully equipped with buildings, machinery, corrals, sheep sheds, dipping vats, etc. That is a story from one district. Let us select one from a district some hundred or more miles from that.

"Peter A. Klassen, who recently moved to Herbert, Sask., from Kansas, has purchased a section of prairie land in the Hillsboro district, about 24 miles northwest of Herbert, for which he paid $12,000 cash. He is erecting temporary buildings to live in while putting the place in cultivation, and this summer plans to erect good buildings on the farm and equip it for a home. Mr. Klassen recently sold his 80-acre farm in Kansas for $15,000 and is investing the proceeds in Canada."

With the proceeds of the sale of his land in Kansas, this farmer purchased in Saskatchewan a piece eight times as large as he had previously been farming, and had a balance with which to purchase equipment, stock, etc., of $3,000. Moreover as land in Saskatchewan may be expected to yield twice as much grain per acre, he will be able to produce sixteen times as much as formerly.

The average value of farm land for the whole of Canada, including land improved and unimproved, together with dwelling houses, barns, stables and other farm buildings, is approximately $44 per acre as compared with $41 in 1916, according to the latest report of the Census and Statistics branch at Ottawa. The average value of land in the Prairie Provinces is as follows:

Manitoba	$31.00
Saskatchewan	26.00
Alberta	26.70

It is the low prices at which land can be obtained in Western Canada which is rendering this country such an important factor in the production of foodstuffs at the present time. It is enabling men who have been farming small areas in older districts to take up and farm with the same capital areas not only many times as great, but which are also capable of producing considerably larger crops to the acre.—Advertisement.

Save the Babies

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. There can be no danger in the use of Castoria if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher as it contains no opiates or narcotics of any kind.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Desertion.

She—"Tomkers has been arrested for desertion." He—"You don't say so! Wife or army?"

New York will pay school teachers a minimum of $1,000 a year.

Frank Admission.

"Where are you going to spend your vacation?" "Oh, pestering some farmer, I suppose."

Dame fortune is too old to be caught by flattery of false jewels.

Libby's
Vienna Style Sausage

Libby's Vienna Sausage

A Refreshing Change

THE tenderness of the meat, the delicacy of the seasoning are noticeable the moment you taste Libby's Vienna Sausage. For it is made from morsels of choice meats, seasoned with the greatest care—to bring out all the rich, savory flavor.

Serve Libby's Vienna Sausage today. Not only is it a refreshing change, but a hearty and inexpensive meat.

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

Probably Peddlers.

Miss Oldbird was airing her views on marriage and men to Miss Flappette and it was evident that she was what is known as a man hater.

"I don't care for men, my dear," she said to her young friend. "In fact, I have already said 'No' to several of them."

"Indeed!" said the young thing, with a twinkle in her eye. "What were they selling?"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Every time a woman misplaces anything she thinks that it has been stolen.

Hooveresque Delicacies.

"Neurasthenia," said Mrs. Biggums to her cook, "I think we will have some chicken croquettes today out of that leftover pork and calves' liver."

"Yes'm," said Nerasthenia, called Teeny for short. "An' we got a little bread dressin' what went wid the pork, mum. Shall I make some apple sauce out'n hit, mum?"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

When Your Eyes Need Care Try Murine Eye Remedy

No Smarting — Just Eye Comfort. 50 cents at Druggists or mail. Write for Free Eye Book. MURINE EYE REMEDY CO., CHICAGO

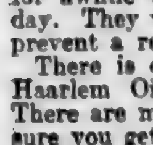
JULY

L 90

0451

Cuticura
For Baby's
Itchy Skin
All druggists; Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

Every Woman Wants
Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC POWDER
FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE
Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.



PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit.
Helps to eradicate dandruff.
For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair.
50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Not Hard Luck.

"Wasn't that hard luck? He let his fire insurance lapse and the day after his house burned down."

"That wasn't hard luck. That was just bad judgment."

WHY WOMEN DREAD OLD AGE

Don't worry about old age. Don't worry about being in other people's way when you are getting on in years. Keep your body in good condition and you can be as hale and hearty in your old days as you were when a kid, and every one will be glad to see you.

The kidneys and bladder are the causes of senile afflictions. Keep them clean and in proper working condition. Drive the poisonous wastes from the system and avoid uric acid accumulations. Take GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules periodically and you will find that the system will always be in perfect working order. Your spirits will be enlivened, your muscles made strong and your face have once more the look of youth and health.

New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue this treatment. When your first vigor has been restored continue for awhile taking a capsule or two each day. They will keep you in condition and prevent a return of your troubles.

There is only one guaranteed brand of Haarlem Oil Capsules, GOLD MEDAL. There are many fakes on the market. Be sure you get the Original GOLD MEDAL Imported Haarlem Oil Capsules. They are the only reliable. For sale by all first-class druggists.—Adv.

'PANTS' SEEMED SMALL THING

Fair Driver of Electric Buzz Wagon Had Other Matters That Were Weighing on Her Mind.

A smart electric zigzagged rather uncertainly to the curb in front of the Majestic theater. The driver was a young woman with a Madonnalike face, daintily veiled. Before she could quite stop the car she managed to bump into a pedestrian and tear his trousers slightly. He was by no means a prepossessing specimen, but of the type of human flotsam generally found along South State street. Before a crowd could gather, however, the Madonna of the car opened the door, pulled her victim inside, and was off again.

"My pants! My pants!" he wailed; "you've ruined 'em. You've tore 'em all to tatters."

"Never mind about your pants!" snapped the Madonna.

"But I tell you you've ruined 'em. Them pants cost me ten dollars."

"Forget your pants, I say," repeated the Madonna. "I'll buy you a dozen pairs. They're the least of by troubles. If my husband ever hears of this, it's all off."

The car stopped a few minutes later at a clothing store.—Chicago Examiner.

Life isn't a question of how much you can make but of how much you can do.

Combine The Grains

That's what is done in making Grape-Nuts food — barley and other grains are used with wheat. This adds to food value and flavor, and the sum total requires less wheat. The malted barley in Grape-Nuts also helps digest other foods.
For an economical, nourishing and delicious food, try
Grape-Nuts

WELL-PAID WOMEN BUY NEW CLOTHES

New York.—A wounded Anzac had come to America to lecture. He bore some honorable scars on his body, which were symbolized by stripes on his arm. A woman touched the stripes and asked what were his worst wounds. He described one, which was a clean hole made by a bullet. In his informal Anzac manner, he asked if she would like to see it. She would. So would everyone else at the luncheon. So he showed her the bullet hole below the collar bone.

"How very disappointing!" she exclaimed. "I expected a great gash."

The Anzac buttoned his collar thoughtfully, and turning to the table said: "Now, I ask you, what are we going to do, with women if they begin to expect so much of men in this war?"

And what will they do with them? Men have begun to expect so much of themselves, that the situation is the most vitally interesting thing on this planet, next to the war, observes a distinguished fashion writer.

Women are gaining so much more by this war than they ever demanded, that many are puzzled and some are near-hysterical.

Once we were a contented race; then we became an unquiet sex; then we became a restless force; and then we became a militant power.

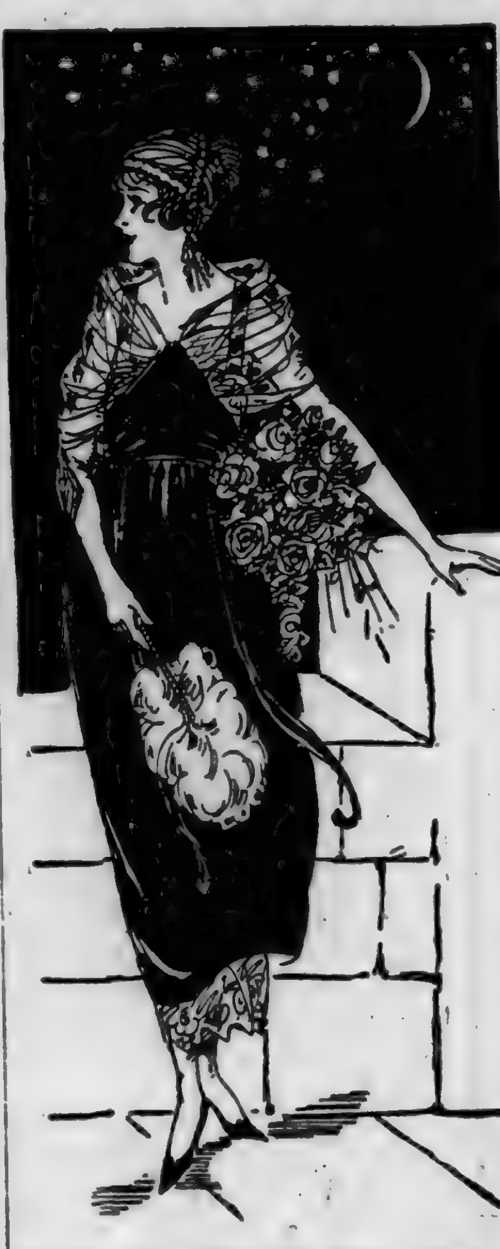
Those with the keenest visions saw ahead of them a long struggle. They outlined the propaganda of self-education for women; they lectured to men and of men concerning what we should have in the way of industry and commercial opportunity. Whenever men said that we were not sufficiently educated to take over the commercial burdens of the world, we retorted that we would never be educated if we did not begin to study.

Women Spend More Money.

Of one thing the prophets are sure; that women, making money, will spend more. Not having to ask for it, they will cease to be petulant about it. When a woman knows there are three thousand jobs open to her and that she can command as good a salary as the man she sent to war, she is not going to be niggardly about getting new clothes, enjoying herself and refurnishing her house.

Human nature never changes, no matter what else changes on this planet, and spending will be a woman's antidote to hard work. If she has been repressed in the matter of buying attractive things for the house or for her body, she will go out and gorge herself on those things when the first freedom from debt gives her a buoyant feeling of happiness.

The business of feminine apparel should always have been attended to by women, not men. This channel of activity is being directed to its right course. A million or more men on this continent, who are mixed up in women's apparel, will have to give up their places to women, who have an instinctive knowledge of what other women want, and do not want. With training, which will give them a cool head, a smooth tongue and the ambition to rise, they will make admirable clerks, floorwalkers, heads of departments, buyers and shopkeepers.



Black satin, tulle and lace. There is a long tunic, which starts with a pointed bodice built of the satin and swings free over a tight petticoat of black Chantilly lace. There is a shawl of black tulle, which stands well away from the shoulders and reaches to the elbows.

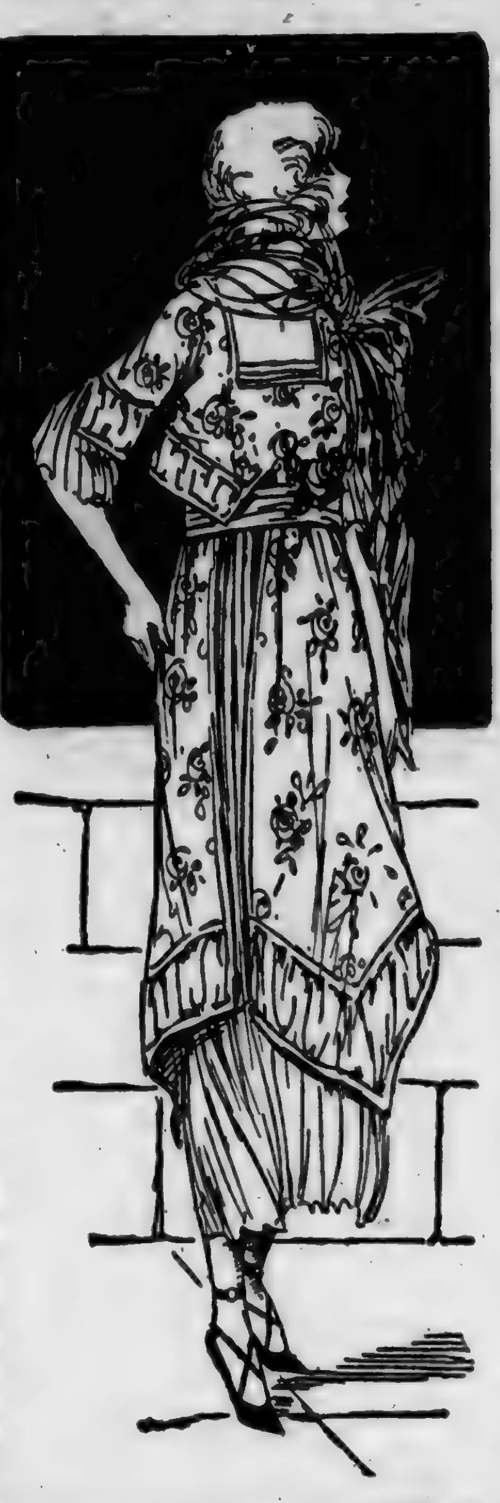
It is toward the apparel business that they are rapidly drifting. That is their desire, and all their preliminary training of the centuries has fitted them for this particular sector of industry. Being in the business, they will spend more money on clothes, and they will influence the expenditures of other women.

This is the situation which all serious-minded women realize and which will probably dominate the country before peace is concluded.

It is useless to tell women that they must not buy clothes. The reformers mean well, but they are planting seed on barren soil. There must be some pleasure in this world, or we would all go mad with the pain and anxiety of it and if you ask three million women to work for their living, you must give them the chance to deck themselves out in a bit of gay plumage and go out and eat and laugh; otherwise, they will become useless for all service, patriotic or industrial.

Demand for Evening Clothes.

Let me tell you an odd thing about this development of women's work, which has been brought about not only through their service in paying positions, but in war relief work.



This gown is of mauve and yellow-figured taffeta cut as a paneled tunic over a skirt of mauve-colored plaited chiffon. The bodice is cut in the new indefinite fashion, with elbow sleeves showing ruffles of chiffon.

It is the growing demand for evening clothes by women who have heretofore never indulged in them. We are only following in the footsteps of human nature as it has asserted itself in France and England during the last eighteen months. Paris has shown an extraordinary interest in this development, and the London thinkers and merchants have found it to be an engrossing by-product of the war.

Evening dress has always been a thing for the luxurious. It has been indulged in by those whose lives were more or less given to leisure. Millions of women have not considered it necessary to change their somber street clothes into low or half-low, fragile ones for the evening meal or evening gayeties. The street suit, with a few changes, has served during the waking hours. The shirtwaist and sport skirt have filled in the rest of the service needed.

But this condition no longer exists in Europe, and it has changed in America in the twinkling of an eye. Why?

Women have more money; they have more opportunities; industry, charity, war relief, hospital service and committee work have brought women from the depths of social obscurity into hourly contact with those who lead fashions and live leisurely lives.

All of this has lifted the art of dress instead of degrading it. It enlivens life; it brightens the prospect of our sacrifices; it is a light to our endurance.

There were days when a woman used her motor coat for any chance evening gayety. Today she is asking for one of the vast assemblage of evening capes that the shops and dressmakers offer to this new type of buyer.

These new wraps have extraordinary charm. They are figured, whereas they used to be solid. They are lavishly trimmed with fur, regardless of summer weather.

Chiffon, in great Dresden patterns, is used over silver or gold metallic cloth, or a lining of plain satin.

Dark colors are chosen, as well as light. The two new blues, "Liberty" and "Blue Devil," are chosen in crepe or chiffon that has an immense pink, scarlet or white and yellow flower on it.

There are other wraps made of Dolly Varden, flowered white chiffon which are lined with lace, with mauve or pink chiffon as an interlining.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Wide Girdles.

Very effective and useful are wide girdles with sash bow and ends made of fancy flowering ribbon when worn on simple white dresses. The coloring in the ribbon of such girdles is chosen usually to match the colors in the hat trimming.

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how freckles, sunburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

In Sheol.

Satan banked the furnaces of everlasting torment, saw to it that there was plenty of red-ash brimstone on hand and told his friends that if the temperature went down to less than 6,000 in the shade to turn on the forced draft. Then he went to preside at a conference he had called on the banks of the Styx.

Roll call showed that Lucifer, Ahriman, Belial, Samuel, Beelzebub, Titan, Shedim, Mephistopeles, Asmodeus and Moloch were on hand.

"Now, gents," said the original heat administrator, "we have come to confer on the matter of punishment for one Bill Hohenzollern and his six trifling and healthy sons who have been abominating the earth. What shall we do to 'em?"

"Six billion years in the heated hereafter without their medals," they shouted, as with one voice. Whereat the conference closed.

Cuticura Stops Itching.
The Soap to cleanse and Ointment to soothe and heal most forms of itching, burning skin and scalp affections. Ideal for toilet use. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." Sold by druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Discouraged.

"Where is the nearest photograph gallery?" asked the stranger in the town.

"We have no photographers in town," replied the native with the long whiskers.

"How is that?"

"Well, they all moved out when the town became bone dry."

"Liked their little nip, I suppose?"

"No, not that. But, say, stranger, what action do you suppose a photographer could get in a bone-dry town when he'd ask a man to look pleasant?"

FRECKLES
Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

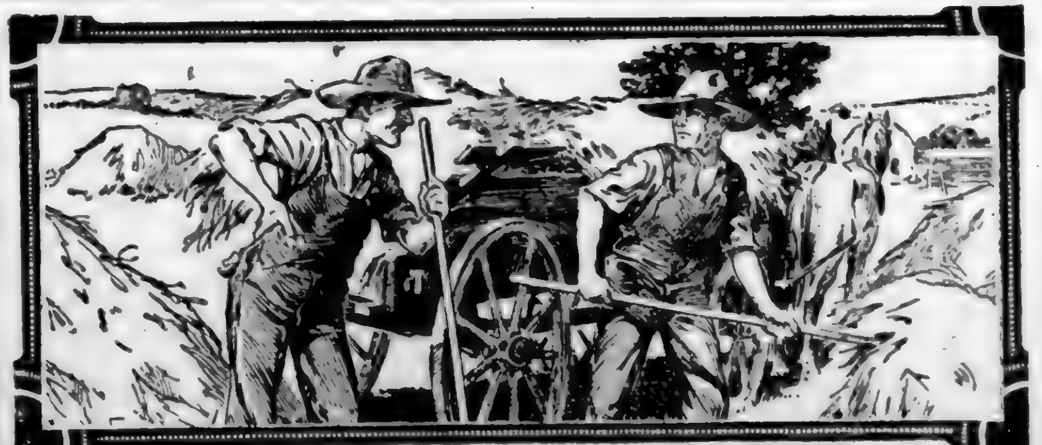
Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

Where He Got Even.

Church Usher (confidentially)—That woman I just seated is Mrs. Stuckup. She had me sent round to the back door one day when I called at the house on a business errand. Made me transact the business through a servant, too. But I've got even with her.

Friend—You have given her one of the best pews in the church.

Usher—Wait half an hour. She's right where a stained-glass window will throw a red light on her nose.



Don't Neglect a Bad Back!
It's Mighty Poor Policy to Worry Along Thus Handicapped When Health and Strength is So Needed

THE man or woman handicapped with a bad back in these times when physical fitness is so necessary, is indeed crippled. It's mighty poor policy to worry along with an aching back day after day; work is neglected and the simplest duties are a burden. Plowing, planting, harvesting, churning, the daily housework all throw a heavy strain on the kidneys and kidney ills, with attendant backache, are a common result. Don't wait! Neglect may mean gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills today. They have helped thousands. They should help you.

Personal Reports of Real Cases

AN OHIO CASE.
Mrs. E. Freeman, 625 S. St. Clair St., Painesville, Ohio, says: "My back was weak and the pains in it were as though I had been beaten. It was such a steady ache and it hurt me dreadfully, especially when I leaned over. My kidneys were not acting right at all, and mornings when I arose I felt stiff and lame. My ankles and wrists were puffed up and sacs formed underneath my eyes. Upon the advice of another of the family I bought Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. They helped me so much I continued using them until I was feeling fine again."

ANOTHER OHIO CASE.
Henry Palmer, retired engineer, 222 Cole St., Barnesville, Ohio, says: "Over-exertion and exposure in the army brought on my kidney trouble. The pains were so severe, I was in misery. My feet and hands swelled twice their natural size and when I stooped I had dizzy spells. My kidneys were in terrible shape and I had to get up often at night on account of this weakness. Some one who had been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills told me to try them and I did. They made a permanent cure and I feel sure that they have prolonged my life and spared me a lot of suffering."

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
60c a Box At All Stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., Chemists

A Hazardous World.

Kind Old Gentleman—My boy, I am surprised to see you idling away your time in this manner. Don't you realize that there is a possibility of your becoming president some day?

The Youngster—Well, I notice pa and you and some others escaped, so I guess I can take my chances, too.

Puzzle.

"How old is Ann?"

"Well, she gets more frantic for the vote every year."

DAISY FLY KILLER

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE
Placed anywhere, Daisy Fly Killer attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Ask for
Daisy Fly Killer
Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, $1.00.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DE KALB AVE., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

SONG WRITERS, POETS, COMPOSERS—Big opportunity. PEERLESS MUSIC CO., Cleveland, Ohio

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 30–1918.

Hot Weather Hits Us Hardest in Stomach

Keep a close watch on your stomach this summer. We need all our fighting strength. War work—change of diet—will make us all easier prey to stomach and bowel trouble than ever before. It is so easy to become overheated on a blazing hot day, especially after eating a hearty meal. And then the excessive heat makes us flood our stomachs with all kinds of cold drinks. That's bad at any time; much worse—even dangerous—when there is the slightest feeling of stomach trouble.

Keep the stomach sweet and cool and free from too much acid—that's about all that is necessary. It's not so much the diet as to keep the poison from starting trouble. You can easily do this if you will just take a tablet or two of EATONIC after your meals.

EATONIC is the wonderful new compound that absorbs the harmful gases and juices and almost instantly drives away stomach misery.

Instead of sudden and painful attacks of indigestion, after you begin using EATONIC you'll forget you have a stomach. And there will be no more heartburn, food repeating, sour stomach, gas pains, or that lumpy, bloated feeling you have so often experienced after eating. Then your appetite—you know how hard it is to satisfy in hot weather—eat one or two EATONIC Tablets a half hour before meals—and you will enjoy the results and feel better in every way.

These are a few reasons why you should start using EATONIC today and fortify your stomach against the chance trouble this summer. It costs only 50c for a big package. Your druggist whom you know and can trust, will promptly refund your money if you are not more than satisfied.

Tired Nervous Mothers
Should Profit by the Experience of These Two Women

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. I had professional attendance most of that time but did not seem to get well. As a last resort I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which I had seen advertised in the newspapers, and in two weeks noticed a marked improvement. I continued its use and am now free from pain and able to do all my housework."—Mrs. B. B. Zielinska, 202 Weiss Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound the credit."—Mrs. Josephine Kimble, 935 West Race Street, Portland, Ind.

Every Sick Woman Should Try
LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND
LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. LYNN, MASS.

JULY
L 90
0452

Walnut Wanted!

We dig them out when the stumps are large and good enough. If you have a tree or two—NOW is the time to dispose of them. The Government needs Gun Stocks and Aeroplane Propellers.

"Do Your Bit"

GOODWIN LUMBER CO.,
Pleasant Lake, Ind.

The Girl With Thirteen Daddies.

Story written especially for The News by Local Talent and is worthy of your weekly attention. Back numbers supplied while they last.

CHAPTER VI. (CONTINUED)

"Hey!" exclaimed Jedge, so surprised that he was not sure that he had heard aright.

The youg man bit his lip, and it was evident that he had been over hasty in his speech; but Jedge did not notice his embarrassment. The latter was the first to recover. "Stranger in these parts?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Me an' you never crossed trails afore, I'm sure," said Jedge looking intently into the face of the other; "an you rolls my name out o' the box the fust throw. Who be you, stranger?"

The young man was pleased at this question, for it gave him an opportunity to change subjects and avoid embarrassing explanations.

"I am only too glad to make myself known," he replied with an engaging frankness that charmed Jedge. "My name is Joseph Choate, and I hope to number you among my friends."

Jedge stepped back and his face darkened. The preacher was aware that Jedge had been kindly disposed toward him at first, and he determined not to lose his advantage.

"Judge, I took you for a true sport; and a true sport always gives a man a chance. Why not be fair to the preacher? Give him a chance."

Jedge looked into the frank face of the minister and was won. He replied:

"Parson, you shore plays the game fair: you runs off the top kyard an' don't fix the deck. I likes your style o' play. I am in on your game so fur as bein' a friend o' your'n."

"Thank you," heartily exclaimed the young man.

"Parson, over thar's a seat in the shade. Let's go an' talk the matter over. Thar's a whole lot you ought to know."

Choate assented. Jedge led the way; and as he did so, he never thought that the young man could not have called him by name without previous coaching. He would have been amazed had he known that his companion carried with him the pictures of thirteen men. Who did the coaching? Who furnished the pictures?

"Parson," said Jedge, when the two were comfortably seated, "you knows more 'bout a good many things than I do, but I knows more 'bout Paradise Lost than you do. You shore hit the center o' the Lord's vineyard in Paradise Lost, but the grapes is so mighty high you won't be able to reach them. The boys hereabouts is welded to thar idols, so to speak; an' they are powerful sensitive respectin' them idols. You've shore got to break down them idols afore you can do any good; an' any attempt to do that, my boy, would be 'bout as disastrous as Buddy Young tryin' to make a grizzley turn tail by lookin' him in the eyes. In addition to bein' rash, Buddy was shore the cross-eyedest tenderfoot that ever struck Paradise Lost. Lookin' Eph in the eyes is only safe when the bar is in a cage. So, what chanct would a cross-eyed man have up in the mountains? Buddy didn't profit none by his experience—he war too dead. Thar wasn't 'nuff remnants left to hold a funeral over. Them idols I alloods to is gamblin', drinkin', the Adobe dance hall an' other cussedness; an' should you go surgin' 'round too promisc'ous, you might git shot up to that extent your frien's down east would be afeard to weep over the remnants fer fear o' bein' the victims of misplaced confidence."

Jedge paused and then added as an afterthought: "Parson, thar's but one person in Paradise Lost worth savin', an she's already saved —Mrs. Dal."

CHAPTER VII.

The young minister soon discovered that he was an unwelcome addition to the population of Paradise Lost. It was apparent to him that the people of the place, particularly the men, did not wish to be bettered and carried their determination to continue in sin nearly to the point of hostility. No violence was offered him, but all of his advances were repelled and he was met at every turn by cold glances and contemptuous words. Men spoke to one another in low tones as he passed them, and then followed shouts of derisive laughter. Some counterfeited a sanctimonious air, while others mimicked his ways. In his presence, they addressed one another as "Brother," looking sidewise at him as they did so; and cries of "Amen" and "Glory hallelujah" were mingled with oaths, coarse jests and guffaws. Paradise Lost emphasized the fact that she had no desire to be saved by nightly crowding the saloons, the gambling rooms and the Adobe dance hall; and the uproar in those places increased if young Choate happened to be nearby.

The minister in no way resented these evidences of hostility and these insults. It was well for him that he did so, for the proprietors of the various places of vice were on the lookout for an excuse to employ their favorite means of opposition, brute force. Vice is ever on the defensive, even when aware that no immediate danger threatens. It thrives because subjected to periodic opposition only, due to spasmodic reform waves or to public resentment against intolerable conditions.

Choate was worried but not altogether discouraged, for opposition but stimulated his combative nature and made him more determined to succeed. He sought for means of gaining the good will of the people of Paradise Lost. He reasoned within himself that there must be some who were not altogether bad or indifferent to good influences, and such he looked for. The thirteen being the most influential citizens of the place, he naturally turned to them first; but they, with the exception of Jedge, repelled his advances and some of them, particularly Peddler, Fish Hook and Red, were among his most active opponents. Jedge's friendship was of a negative character, without encouragement and limited to the warning and advice given on the evening of the minister's arrival. "Parson," he said on one occasion, "thar's no pay dirt here fer a tenderfoot like you. Take my advice and stake out a claim somewhar else." There was deep concern in the speaker's voice, but he received in reply a dogged shake of the head.

The preacher had one friend, Mrs. Dal; but that good woman could do him no good further than to repress all discourtesy toward him within her doors. In his extremity, he went to her for encouragement.

"Mrs. Dal, what shall I do?" Choate asked.

"You think them all bad?" Mrs. Dal answered his question by asking one in return.

"I don't like to, but I am forced to," was the reply.

"Wrong!"

Mrs. Dal spoke so sharply that the young man, who was pacing the floor, stopped instantly. Then she added: "Sit down—you give me the fidgets."

The preacher complied, his manner plainly indicating that he feared he had given offense. Mrs. Dal noticed this and quickly explained:

"No, no! That's just my bluff way of speaking." She continued: "Now, listen to me. You think these men are bad, and I don't wonder at it; but they are not, and I am in a position to know. There is no place on God's green earth where distress is more quickly relieved nor where a good woman is more respected and safer from insult. They are good—that is, nearly all of them are. Of course, there are bad men here. There are bad men everywhere, too many of them—and women, too. The boys are just as good as you'll find anywhere—better, I sometimes think."

"Better?" questioned the man in surprise. "They swear, they profane the Lord's day, they get drunk, they fight, they gamble, they frequent the Adobe, they revile religion. You do not defend such action, Mrs. Dalrymple, I am sure."

"Oh, no!" was the reply; "but I still insist that the boys are not bad. Let me explain. When Mr. Dalrymple (my husband, Mr. Choate) was alive, we lived in British Columbia. The people up there were trying to get rid of Scotch thistles, which had become a pest. These thistles all spread from one seed which a Scotch immigrant brought over by accident. The first thistle was such a reminder of their old home that the Scotchmen of that section protected it. In Scotland, the thistle is not a pest; but, in British Columbia, it is. When I was a little girl, I heard my father tell of an Englishman who ate water cress in America. He liked it so well that he took some home and planted it in the River Severn. It spread until it impeded navigatisn and they had to dredge the river. In England, they never mind the sparrow; in this country, it is a nuisance. Jamaica was infested with rats. They imported the mongoose from Asia to kill the rats. The rats are gone, and now they are looking for something to kill the mongoose. Things are all right as long as they are where they belong. Put them where they don't belong and they go wrong. The boys are not bad—just where they don't belong. There, Jedge could not have done better Now you may talk while I get my breath. O-h-h-h-h, MY!"

"What would you have me do, my friend, wipe Paradise Lost off the face of the earth?" inquired the preacher, laughing notwithstanding his discouragement.

"Oh, no!" was the reply. "Let me explain myself. The boys are out of place because they lack the restraining influence of good women. Each sex has an influence for good upon the other; and either sex, without the other, goes wrong. The devil entered Eden to see eve; but a Garden of Eden, all Eves and no Adams, would be too hot for the devil. It is not quite so bad as that here in Paradise Lost—rightly named, too—for the devil is still here and in full control."

"I regard you as a good woman, Mrs. Dalrymple, one of the best I have ever met," remonstrated Choate; "and yet you say there are no good women in Paradise Lost."

"I ought to be good, according to my own rule," replied Mrs. Dal, pleased at the compliment paid her; "but one woman is no restraint upon hundreds of men who have—without any intention of doing wrong, I believe—sold themselves to the devil. If there were two hundred good women here, the devil would lose his grip on the place. A room half full of pretty faces next Sunday would do more good than your sermon."

"I believe you are right," assented the preacher. "As I can't colonise the place with good women, what shall I do? Can you tell me?"

"Do nothing—you began wrong. To do any good in a place like Paradise Lost, you must deal with men that have run wild; and to do that, you must first study your men. You made a mistake when you sent word you were coming. That gave them time to get ready for you. You should have come without letting them know you were a preacher. You could have mixed with the boys and they would have learned to like you, even if you did not take part in their orneriness. Then you could have done some good. It's roo late now, I'm afraid."

The young man's jaw tightened.

"I'm determined to try, any way," he declared.

"I admire your grit," said Mrs. Dal, giving the minister her hand, "and I hope you'll win out; but I'm afraid you'll be disappointed. You don't understand Paradise Lost."

"I'm determined to try, any way," repeated Choate.

"Whatever the result may be, remember the boys are not bad—just gone wrong." Then Mrs. Dal changed the subject: "Mr. Choate, where is your home?"

"Boston," was the answer.

Mrs. Dal smiled, but said nothing.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

Concord–Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10:30 A. M.
St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching at 8:00 P. M.
Subject, "The Christian and his Country."
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00. Teacher Training.
Quarterly Conference at St. Joe on Wednesday evening, August 7, at 8:00 P. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
L. W. Spayd, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.
The pastor will preach morning and evening at Coburntown Church next Sunday.

Lutheran Church Announcements
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching 10.45 A. M.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

For Sale

Bargain if you act quick. Georage Shutt estate, just opposite Spencerville high school. House, twelve rooms; barn, 30x40; corn crib and hog pen, 20x30; cow barn, 20x35; new chicken coop, 12x15; wood house, 20x25; wind pump, with running water in house; 18 37-100 acres facing on Auburn street for 30 rods. The soil is black loam. The whole farm is a garden. Call, write or telephone.

Howard Benninghoff, Adm'r
514 Shoaff Bld, Ft. Wayne Ind. Telephone, 479

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved—why Pay $2 Per Pint For Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine, to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. Manufactured by the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain; and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necesrities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. 2

Mrs. Ben Soule spent last Sunday with Mrs. Della Smith.

Miss Nellie Kelley spent Sunday with Miss Jessie Cook.

Melvin Betz, of Grabill, left Tuesday for Camp Taylor, near Louisville.

Ray Means and family spent Sunday with Wes and Ray Zimmerman and their wives.

Harrison Norrick and wife and daughter, Mary, and Frank Norrick and son, Clarence, spent Sunday with Mary Cook and family.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.00
Six Months,	.50
Three Months,	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Magazines at NEWS office.

Every-day dishes at Kinsey's hardware.

Isaac Strebig and family and Charles Gibbons and wife spent Sunday at the lake.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

POST CARDS

are now on display at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratulation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent folders.

ST JOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY PUB
ST JOE IND

JULY

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

COBURN'S CORNERS

Miss Portia Hadsell was a Sunday guest of Miss Doris Shull.

—‡—‡—‡—

O. E Cannon and family, together with company from Ohio, spent Sunday at Hamilton lake.

—‡—‡—‡—

Glen Shafer and wife, of Marion, came Wednesday evening for a short visit with the latter's parents W. P. Coburn and wife. They returned home on Friday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Fred and Clyde Hart, together with their mother, Mrs. Alice Hart, and their families, attended church at West Milford on Sunday and ate dinner with Paul Hootman and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Word was received last week of the arrival of a 5-pound daughter at the home of Willis Willard and wife, of Union, Iowa. The mother will be remembered as Miss Laura Coburn.

—‡—‡—‡—

I. S. Hadsell, wire and daughter, Maurine, of Hicksville, Mrs. Blanch Miller, of Peru, and Miss Linnie and Winnie Miller, of Indianapolis, spent Sunday evening with S. P. Hadsell and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

O. L. Dermott and family went to the home of J. E Dermott and wife, of Coldwater, Mich, Saturday afternoon and returned Sunday evening. They brought Mrs. J. M. Dermott, who had been visiting at that place and at Fulton, Mich., with them.

—‡—‡—‡—

Misses Irene and Berniece Hart, in company with their mother, Mrs. W. B. Morrison, of Indianapolis, left on Monday for Chicago. The young ladies had been visiting their grand parents, Wesley Hart and wife. A social gathering was held in Erick grove Sunday afternoon in honor of these young ladies and Miss Lotis Schoolmaster, of Lansing, Mich. The following families were present: John C. Hart, of St. Joe, Jay Hart, McClellan Hart, Roscoe Conine and Aaron Hart; also John, Clarence and Allen Coburn.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Elmer Wyatt came home from Fort Wayne on Wednesday, returning next day. She reports that Mr. Wyatt expects to return home in a few days.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —Editor News.]

For Sale:--Registered Jersey bull No. 140,664, past 2 years old. Inquire of Israel Layman, St. Joe, Ind. phone 71-4. $100 takes him, if taken soon.

For Sale:--Two-year-old red Durham bull. B. Welch, Spencerville.

For Sale:--A horse. Inquire at News office.

Mrs. John Miller was the guest of Mrs. Mary Webster on Wednesday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Myrtle Webster and children, of Butler, were Newville visitors on Friday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Herbert Webster and wife, of Coicago, were guests of his parents, Henry Webster and wife, and other relatives a part of last week.

—‡—‡—‡—

Twenty ladies worked in the Red Cross sewing room Tuesday afternoon, making ten pairs bed socks and seven black sateen dresses for French children. Some other work was not quite finished.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. John Miller has received word of a little grand-daughter at the home of Ira E. Mendenhall, of Angola. The little lady weighs 3½ pounds, She will have to grow some before she gets as big as—well, as big as some of her relatives Any way, she was born on Independence day, July 4.

COLETOWN

Merritt Maxwell and family visited Sunday at the E. D. Nelson home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Gladys Sauers and Gladys Conine spent Friday evening at Robison park.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. G. W. Palmer is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Alvin Walker.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Violet Hart, of Indianapolis, spent the latter part of the week with R. H. Conine and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Herbert Ginther and Miss Myrtle Ginther spent the past week with Herbert Ginther, of Indianapolis.

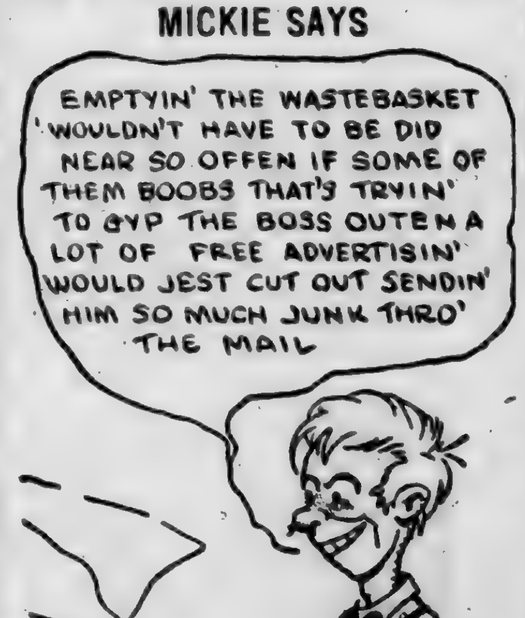
—‡—‡—‡—

Alvin Walker and family and Henry Kling, wife and little daughter, Lillian, spent Sunday with Ernest Gillespie and wife, Hicksville.

SPENCERVILLE

Raymond Rhoades and family, who spent several days visiting the former's uncle and aunt, David Sanders and wife, of Mason, Mich., returned home Saturday.

MICKIE SAYS



EMPTYIN' THE WASTEBASKET WOULDN'T HAVE TO BE DID NEAR SO OFFEN IF SOME OF THEM BOOBS THAT'S TRYIN' TO GYP THE BOSS OUTEN A LOT OF FREE ADVERTISIN' WOULD JEST CUT OUT SENDIN' HIM SO MUCH JUNK THRO' THE MAIL
SUGHROE

Indigestion

DO YOU KNOW that indigestion can be cured, permanently cured, so that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? It has been done not only once, but in almost every case when Chamberlain's Tablets are used. An instance: Mr. J. Pominville, Stillwater, Minn., who had spent over $2,000.00 for medicine and treatment was permanently cured by these tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Subscribe for this paper.

—‡—‡—‡—

John Benninghoff and wife left Monday to spend the week at Fort Wayne.

—‡—‡—‡—

William Smith and wife and Mrs. Margaret Koch spent Sunday with Mrs. Louise Vesher, of Antwerp.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Ada Berry was called to Auburn on Sunday by the death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Sol Shearer.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Anna Boger, of Auburn, is spending the week with her daughter, Mrs. Claud Hafner, and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Florence Markle, of Fort Wayne, spent Saturday and Sunday with her grandparents, Jerry Markle and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Glen Betz, wife and son, Forest, of near Woodburn, were Sunday guests at the home of his parents, Joel Betz and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Vern Wilmot and family and Mrs Frank House were Sunday guests at the home of Stanley Devitt, of Mooresville.

—‡—‡—‡—

Thomas Peterson and son, who had been working in New York for the past three months, returned home Friday evening.

—‡—‡—‡—

Roscoe Walters and wife, W. P Steward and family and Fred Steward and wife Sundayed with Mrs. Cora Steward and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Ray Wasson and wife, Mrs. George Watson and Mrs. Ethel Edwards and daughter were Friday guests of Samuel Cole and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Fred Steward, Beeks Erick and Henry Walle spent Saturday night and Sunday at home. The boys are in training at Indianapolis.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. R. U. Bowser and children and a number of Fort Wayne friends were Sunday guests of Adam Walters and wife, of Acadamie.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Earl McNabb and babe, of Auburn, and Mrs. George Horn spent Thursday at the home of the latter's brother, Joel Betz, and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Joel Betz and wife, Charles Boston, of Grabill, and Frank Smith and daughter, Leone, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday dinner guests of Frank House and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Class No. 9 of the M. E. Sunday school enjoyed a picnic dinner at the Jack Henderson woods, Sunday. The teacher, Mrs. Orange Carnahan, accompanied them.

—‡—‡—‡—

C. G. Rectenwal will take the third trick at the Wabash station and Fred Osborne will go to Grabill to relieve Mr. Benjamin. The Wabash company is needing operators.

—‡—‡—‡—

Delta McKinley, Ray Wasson and Ray Zimmerman were called on Tuesday to leave to do their bit It is understood that Zimmerman will be excused this time to care for his crops.

—‡—‡—‡—

Word has been received from Rev. Glenn Bryan that he recently underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids. He is at the home of his wife's parents at Geneva.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Ella Patterson, Mrs. Bessie Tustison and daughter, Margaret, and Miss Pauline Barney, of St Joe, Miss Marie Otis, of Battle Creek, Mich., and Miss Josephine Johnston, of Columbus, Ohio, spent Friday evening with Rev. Mumma and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

William Vallieu and family, of Harlan, Mrs. Priscilla Hardesty and Orla Woodring and wife, of Newville, and Frank Lake and family, of New Haven, were Sunday afternoon guests of James Vallieu and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Anna Henderson on Sunday was brought home from the Lutheran hospital, Fort Wayne, where she had been a patient for over ten weeks Mrs. Henderson is still confined to her bed, but she stood the trip home nicely.

Important---NEWS Readers.

Subscription Price Will Be Advanced

The News very reluctantly is obliged to do what nearly all other similar publications are and have been doing—advance its subscription price. This will occasion no great surprise among its readers, who are aware of the great increase in the cost of doing business. Everything that the printer uses is higher. This is especially true of print paper, which has been the subject of congressional investigation. The general rising costs have caught newspaper publishers all along the line. For months, we have been repeatedly asked if the subscription price was still $1.00; and so we know that our forced increase, as previously stated, will occasion no great surprise. We have refrained from taking this action as long as possible, and held the paper at $1.00 per annum until compelled to make an advance.

Beginning July 1, our subscription price will be $1.25 per year—strictly in advance. That our readers may not think we are making this advance without due notice, the new rate, though in effect on July 1, will be waived for all who pay their subscriptions during July. All arrearages must, of course, be paid at time of renewal. If you settle your subscription at any time before Aug. 1, the rate will be $1.00, as heretofore. After that date, all accounts will be figured at $1.25 per year, dating from July 1. A special effort will be put forth to make the paper better than ever before, and we confidently ask for the continued support of our big family of readers.

Advertising rates also will be increased July 1. This is rendered necessary for the same reason that subscription is advanced. The new scale of prices will be made known on application.

Remember, all payments on subscriptions received during the month of July will be at the old rate, $1.00 per year. This applies to new subscribers and to renewals. All accounts unpaid at the end of that time will be left for collection. We have been lenient—too lenient—and a few are indebted to us for subscriptions. They must settle, either voluntarily or forcibly. We hope for no trouble.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Chicago American at News office.

Anna Abel made a business trip to Auburn Saturday.

W. O. Leighty of Chicago is here on his vacation for a few days.

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the News office.

Mrs, Al Hull and two children were at Huntertown over Sunday.

Lyman Layton and wife spent Sunday at the Walter Peterson home.

Mrs. B. S. Sheffer spent Monday with her son, Craig, and family, of Butler.

Pay up your News account before July 1—$1.25 per year after that date.

Lead pencils, pens, ink, tablets, envelopes, mucilage and paste at the News office.

Mel Herrick and wife were Sunday guests of the latter's parents, Oliver Washler and wife.

Mrs. Frank Hart returned on Friday from several weeks' visit with her children at South Bend.

A glorious rain visited this vicinity Tuesday evening and it was received with thankful hearts.

Mrs. W. Z. Hathaway and children of South Bend are here the guests of F. P. Hart and wife.

Fruit jar rings, 10c per dozen--three dozen for 25c. Kinsey.

Twenty-two met on Wednesday afternoon at the Red Cross sewing rooms west of the surgical dressing rooms.

T. E. Balkrens, wife and daughter, Yvonne, of Chicago, spent Wednesday and Thursday with the Goldsmith sisters.

Send the home paper to that son who is away from home—it's like a letter from home and besides he can depend on getting it every week. $1.00 this month.

John Wineland and wife, Mrs. Elma Brown and Miss Fairie Cole on Sunday motered to Harlan and were guests of Alvin Andrews and wife. Miss Cole returned to her home at Garrett with her parents, who were also guests.

A son was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Clay Coburn.

LOST: A bunch of keys numbering four. Finder rewarded. Dr. B. O. Shook.

Rolland Bearss and wife were Saturday guests of Fred Bearss and family at Auburn.

Miss Garcia, daughter of Jacob Krabill and wife, and John Cook, of Hicksville, were married in Michigan this week.

J. C. F. Abel and wife on Sunday entertained the following company at dinner: Glen Abel and wife; Charles Benjamin and son, of New Haven; Mrs. Ann Abel.

The appearance of things at the elevators at St. Joe and Spencerville Saturday, put one in mind of "Days gone by" when the wagons were lined up for a great length waiting their turn to unload. The wheat averages 25 to 30 bushels.

Frank Sechler and wife have received the announcement of the coming marriage of their nephew, Walter Bowen to Miss Julia, daughter of M. W. Meyer and wife, all of Fort Wayne, to take place at the home of the bride next Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Sechler and daughter, Mrs. Agnes Monroe, left on Wednesday noon for Fort Wayne, where they will visit Hollis Dilley and wife, the latter until the first of the week and the former until Friday. She will be joined by her husband and they will go to Greenfield, where they will be guests of Mrs. Ralph Sechler over night, going from there to Camp Taylor to visit their son, Ralph, over Sunday.

Go to Do Their Bit

Among the DeKalb county boys who left for Camp Taylor on Tuesday were two from this place, Tom Brunson and Walter Zonker. The former has passed his entire life in this vicinity, and leaves with the best wishes of all, particularly of those who know him best. He leaves a wife and baby. Mr. Zonker was, until a few months ago, engaged in running a meat market here. Since then, he has resided at Kendallville. He passed the last week at this place. His wife accompanied him to Auburn.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1887

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP

Fort Wayne, Ind.

WHITE OXFORDS AND PUMPS!

...ALL...
THE NEW PATTERNS
That are being worn now are here for your selection.

Hot Weather Is Here

And calls for WHITE FOOTWEAR—the most comfortable and cool shoe you can find.

Women's Oxfords or Pumps in high or low heels, $2.00 to $3.50.

Men's White or Palm Beach Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.

Children's Mary Jane Slippers, $1 to $2.

Full line of Rubber Soled Slippers, 80c to $3.00.

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

Office Day—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township]

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5.

JULY

L 90

Louisa Goes Over the Top

By GIDEON HOE
of The Vigilantes

Louisa is the school scrub woman. She has been connected with the school for years. She has been there with her brooms, her pails, her mops and her eternal thoroughness.

Louisa was German. She spoke German. She thought German. She dreamed Germany. She was in America only because she could not "earn so much as here." She had come here a generation ago with a young married sister. The sister had gone back to Germany, leaving her baby with Louisa. He grew up as most boys do whose mothers are not about and whose supporting aunts have to go out to work.

He was stoop-shouldered, he smoked. He spent his wages as he wished. Louisa would look at him grimly and mutter: "Ach, if only I had you in Chermany."

It was for the boy that she worked. It was of him and the Faderland" that she talked as she rubbed, rubbed, rubbed. "Ach, what think? That boy he lends five dolars to a man on the block and he move away and we can't find him.

"Not so it is in Chermany. There he could not do this. Make bills and hide himself. There you have a little book. From school yet you have it. In it stands your name, your age, your hair, your eyes, and all what you do for a living.

"First thing you do if you move, you must go to the police and show your book, then again when you arrive you show your book to the police.

"No, no, in Chermany you cannot run away. There they have it much better. You are all bosses. Nein! You have not the discipline. Hrrp! Rrrp! Forward march!" and Louisa shouldering her brooms and mops marched down the corridor to the applause and laughter of the little children marching into school.

Louisa liked to mingle with the teachers. At the beginning of the war, when the teachers gathered in their little knots discussing the possibilities and speculating on the outcome of it all, Louisa made her contribution: "Ach, the discipline. Von Hindenburg, Von Hindenburg. He is for discipline. He is the soldier. Such a fine one never lived. You will see he will win. He is a Gottlike man."

"Oh, Louisa, have a heart. Don't scare us so early in the morning," scoffed Boy Teacher, reaching for the brief case that rested at his feet. But Louisa was before him and placed it in his hands.

"Oh, thank you, Louisa, but you mustn't do that. You'll spoil me. I'm not used to it."

"I should hope not," sniffed another young teacher, "I should hope not indeed. The idea of a woman waiting on a perfectly healthy, strong young man. I bet I wouldn't do it."

"Ach, no? In Chermany you would be better disciplined. You would save the man all."

"Why? Why?" stamped the young teacher. "Why should a woman save a man anything?"

"Because," Louisa condescended. "Because he is a soldier. He fights for the Faderland. Without the man what are you? Nothing. It is for you to marry a fine soldier, mother a fine soldier, raise up a fine soldier. That is your duty. That you were placed in the world for. Now he," pointing to the Boy Teacher, "would make a fine—" But the young teacher had fled.

The teachers began to grumble. "Germany, Germany. Louisa is always cheering for Germany. Why don't these people go back and fight for the Fatherland? No. They stay here and root for Germany."

The Lusitania Was Sunk.

Then came the news of the sinking of the Lusitania. The teachers gathered and discussed the news angrily. "The devils. Our people. Hundreds of them. Frohman, Archie Butts, Hubbard. It's awful. It was full of women and little children. Shameful."

Wondering, Louisa poked her head inside the door. "What is? Is some-one dead you cry so?"

"Yes, they're dead," and a teacher sprang forward and pushed the headlined paper full in Louisa's face. "Your lovely Germans killed them."

"Killed? What is?"

"The Lusitania was sunk by the Germans. She was carrying many Americans."

"So!" said Louisa coolly. "Well, they was told to stay off that boat. The fools. Served themselfs well right."

"Keep still," screamed the young teacher. We'll ask your precious kaiser whether we may sail over his ocean when he isn't using it, I suppose. Well, we won't." Then taking fresh umbrage at the other's stolid composure, she burst out: "What do you think you would be doing if you were in Germany now? Going about a building like this one, dressed as you are, mingling with the sort of people you meet here? Not for a minute. You'd be dressed in rags, your feet in wooden shoes, and you would be pulling a plow like an ox for your precious kaiser."

Louisa Is For Uncle Sam.

Louisa went out shaking her head.

At last war was declared. We were "in it." Louisa paddled by the office with her pails and brushes. "Hurrah, Frau von Hindenburg: We're going to Berlin to get your precious kaiser."

"Ya, ya," said Louisa sadly. "Such things must be. It stands in the Bible. Purification by fire. If it's God's will we fight, then we fight."

When the teachers had gone to their rooms Louisa appeared in the office. "Hark," she whispered to the head teacher. "My boy has volunteered for the war. What you think of that? Isn't that fine? He says: 'Mother Louisa, I must go,' and I tell him: 'Go. We live in America, we are Americans.'"

One morning when the teachers had gathered for the morning chat, Louisa came in, her face shining. "Look," she said to the young teacher, "here is my boy's picture. He is a soldier now. How grand he looks. He is a sergeant already."

Louisa gazed lovingly at the post-card picture of a fine looking soldier boy. "Ha, ha, my fine fellow. Now you don't turn over and sleep again while I call you five times more. Ta tata, Ta tata, Ta ta ta. Forward march. That is fine for you," she chuckled.

The Liberty Loan posters came. The big loan drive was on. Louisa fell in love with one of the posters. "Such a beautiful young lady. How strong she is waving the flag and leading the army. She is schoen, ya, ya, she calls for money for the soldiers. She shall have it. Ya, ya."

Glancing about to be sure she was not noticed. She slipped into the office. Once inside she drew from her pocket an envelope with the red triangle in the corner and laid it before the head teacher. "Look. This money my boy sends. It is the money they give him for being a good soldier. That money I never spend. Take it and buy a Liberty Bond." So Louisa went over the top for Uncle Sam.

THE TEST

By JOHN BROWN JEWETT
of the Vigilantes.

This is your crisis, this your hour;
  Earth's oceans and its shores
Hold but one place of portent power,
  One duty—it is yours.

Think not to hide amid the crowd
  That covers land and sea;
The voice of Fate is calling loud;
  "Look to him, world—'tis he!"

Yes, you—no other. None are born
  To do what you must do;
No beaten captain waits such scorn
  For failure, as must you.

It is the test, the fine one;—
  Shall king or people reign?
Who are the people? There are none
  If one is called in vain.

On you the sorrow, blood and cost,
  The glory or the shame.
If freedom's cause today is lost,
  You only are to blame.

THOSE WHO CANNOT GO

By EDWARD A. G. HERMANN
of the Vigilantes.

Are you sorry? Or are you glad? Perhaps you would go if you could, but you must stay at home.

You cannot be a hero at the battle-front, but you can live heroically wherever you are.

It takes five men at home to keep one man in the trenches.

YOU belong to one of those groups of five men.

The five men at home must stand together and do the things that count most for one man at the front. For any one man to fail is to play false to the cause for which we work and they fight.

You cannot fight, but you can work and pray; you can love and serve; you can save carefully and give sacrificially. Above all else you ought to worship in times of war.

We believe our cause is righteous. Our faith is justified. Our human instincts are not lying to us.

The lofty ideals for which our brave boys are fighting are the ideals for which pure Christianity has stood for 1,900 years. When the church has been blind to the vision of the ideals she has grown weak and unworthy of the great Leader. We stand with him today for the sanctity of womanhood and the protection of children; for justice and mercy, truth and righteousness; for industrial, political and social democracy; for international law and universal brotherhood; for the establishment of the kingdom of God on earth.

These are the great ideals which carry with them freedom, peace and happiness for all the future.

After all, true religion is the real conservator of civilization and the ultimate unifier of humanity. The future of democracy and civilization is bound up with Christianity.

THE FLAG SPEAKS

By THEODOSIA GARRISON
of the Vigilantes.

Great minds planned me,
High hearts made me,
Strong arms raised me
To fly while life endures;
Fine souls wrought for me,
Brave men fought for me,
Bound and broken sought for me,—
Now—I am yours.

The wide world sees me,
The wild seas know me,
The four winds lift me
A signal and a flame;
Your youth and your age,
Your hope and heritage,
Your father's father's page
That bears your name.

Your hands uphold me,
Your strength sustains me,
Your service honors me
With every task it gives.
Hold me your word and worth,
Hold me your sword and hearth,
Hold me your sign to earth
That Freedom lives.

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Indianapolis.—Fourth vein Indiana coal, the best grade of coal taken from Indiana mines, probably will be taken off the market except for certain industrial plants engaged in work essential to the prosecution of the war, and that can use no other grade of Indiana coal successfully. A prediction to this effect was made by R. L. Flood of the quartermaster's department of the United States army, who was assigned to Indiana to supervise the establishment of preference lists for industrial plants engaged in war work, and to work in co-operation with the state fuel administration. Scarcity of the fourth vein coal will cause the district representative of the fuel administration in the state to recommend to the federal fuel administration at Washington, D. C., that delivery of this type of coal be restricted to gas plants and factories that could not operate with other grades of Indiana coal, Mr. Flood said. Such a recommendation probably would result in many plants now using fourth vein coal being prevented from obtaining further deliveries.

Washington, D. C.—A pension of $12 has been granted the minor of Thomas S. C. Yocum of Indianapolis. Pensions of $25 have been granted the following Indianians: Eliza A. Tucker, Shideler; Elnora Tillson, Winchester; Margaret James, Monticello; Lucinna J. Davis, Colfax; Eliza E. Aldredge, Mount Vernon; Anna L. Tranbarger, Cromwell; Adaline Sutton, Lafayette; Sarah E. Plummer, Carwood; Emma F. Fulwider, Letts; Nancy A. Dinsmore, Lebanon; Letitia V. DePauw, New Albany, and Mary E. Bowman, Bloomington.

Peru.—Fifty-five machines will be busy with wheat and oats crops until September 15. The crops are heavy and the acreage almost double that of last year. Threshing is being done and the average yield reported is above 30 bushels an acre. Many farmers report that the growing corn, which was harmed by the frost, is showing improvement and will yield half a crop. Many silos are being built in this county and silage will be made of the corn if it does not mature.

Wabash.—Through an agreement reached by the chairmen of the Republican and Democratic parties and granted by the voters' registration commissioners, it has been decided to send clerks of the registration board to each township in Wabash county for three days during the coming month. They will fill out registration blanks. More than 3,200, or about half of the voters in the county, have registered.

Huntington.—The Huntington county council has voted to appropriate $3,000 to buy a 20-acre tract of land to be leased to the Purdue university experiment station for 99 years. Prof. A. T. Wiancko, head of the experiment station, explained that an experiment field grows more valuable from year to year. Two members of the council said they were ready to sell 20 acres for the price set.

Petersburg.—Filmore Sumner, a Clay township farmer, raised off a tract of two and one-half acres, in the White river bottoms, 126 bushels of wheat, an average of 50 bushels to the acre. Canteloupes are ripe here and shipping has begun. Tomatoes are ripening. Over 400 acres have been planted. The prospect for a bumper tomato crop has never been better.

Evansville.—The W. H. Dyer Packing company of this city is completing its facilities for handling the largest crop of tomatoes ever grown in this part of the state. More than 2,300 acres of tomatoes are growing in Spencer and Perry counties alone and from 600 to 700 freight cars will be required to bring the crop to Evansville.

Rushville.—George Whissing of Walker township has reported the largest wheat yield for Rush county, his crop averaging 38 bushels to the acre. Many fields averaged 30 to 34 bushels. Marion Detrick, county agent, says that the wheat acreage next fall will be larger than this year.

Indianapolis.—The United States food administration will not undertake to establish the price of pork, Harry E. Barnard, federal food administrator for Indiana, announces, but as in 1917 will undertake to keep the price of $15.50 a hundred pounds.

Newcastle.—George Harter thrashed 1,446 bushels of wheat off of 50 acres, an average of 29 bushels, for which he received $3,000. William G. Veach thrashed 2,500 bushels off 100 acres and received $2.10 a bushel, or $7,500.

Huntington.—The first threshing ring to report in the county shows 8,000 bushels of wheat, averaging 27 bushels to the acre, and 200 bushels of rye, averaging 26 bushels to the acre.

Oxford.—The best wheat yield of the season in this vicinity is reported by Henry Ehrmann, Franklin county. He threshed 926 bushels of fine grain from 30 acres.

Washington, D. C.—One-fourth of the 12,143 registrants who are to report to the various technical schools between August 1 and August 28, have been assigned to schools in Indiana. The school conducted under the auspices of the Indianapolis chamber of commerce will get 990 of the men, 460 from Indiana, 300 from Minnesota, and 230 from Wisconsin. Purdue gets 1,015; 500 from Indiana and 515 from West Virginia. Valparaiso university gets 1,000; 500 from Indiana and 500 from Michigan. The men assigned to Indiana are all to report for duty by August 15.

Petersburg.—The largest yield of wheat in Pike county was 400 bushels off 12 acres. Wheat threshing is half done, and the yield is running 12 to 40 bushels an acre. The average for the entire county is about twenty bushels to the acre. Tomatoes are ripening, and shipping will begin this week. About 400 acres are planted, and the vines are full, no rains having interfered with the first blooms. The canteloupe vines are full. The melons will be ready to ship this week, but the acreage was cut down, as most of the growers heeded the government's wishes and allowed the rye, planted for fertilization, to ripen.

Indianapolis.—Ruth, gleaning after the reapers, will be impersonated by a number of Indianapolis women and girls on farms in Marion county. Groups of these women go out daily to the farms in the country to pick up among the stubble the wheat which the farmers have missed. The movement has been started by the organization recently formed to establish a vocational school for training girls and women. It has a two-fold purpose, to help conserve the country's food supply, and to increase the fund for the school. The money received for the wheat will be turned into the fund.

Seymour.—With the threshing less than half completed, Jackson county's crop will aggregate 860,000 bushels, according to an estimate by A. D. Cobb, county agent. The value of the crop is estimated at $1,828,800. More than 43,000 acres was planted and the average yield is expected to be more than twenty bushels an acre. The value of the wheat crop is approximately the same amount as has been invested in this county in Liberty bonds and War Savings stamps.

Muncie.—The seventeenth annual convention of the Kappa Alpha Phi fraternity will be held in Indianapolis, August 3. As a war move the national fraternity has decided to make the convention a one day's business session, leaving out all social events that usually form a part of the annual convention program. With the exception of Thomas Smith of Alexandria, treasurer, all national officers are in military service. There are more than sixty members of the fraternity in the One Hundred and Fiftieth Field artillery.

Indianapolis.—A large number of Indiana state banks have applied for membership in the federal reserve system recently. P. H. Welfard, deputy in the office of the secretary of state, said that from five to ten banks have applied at the office each day for several weeks and have asked for their incorporation papers. The banks must obtain copies of these papers before they can obtain membership in the reserve system.

Cambridge City.—Wheat thrashing is well under way in western Wayne county. The quality of the grain is good and the yield better than had been expected. Thrashers are charging 7, 7½ and 8 cents for thrashing wheat, 5 cents for oats and 10 cents for rye. Clover hay is above the average, the quality of potatoes is excellent, but the crop is below normal.

Sullivan.—Appointment of a board of appeals, the duty of which will be to hear complaints brought against persons accused of failure to respond adequately to patriotic calls sent out by the government, has been announced here by G. W. Gambill, chairman of the Sullivan county council of defense. It is the first body of its kind that has been chosen in Indiana since the United States entered the world war.

Gary.—Twenty-four mills will be added to the plant here of the American Tinplate company, the cost of which will be approximately $10,000,000. An announcement by officers of the concern to that effect was made in this city and was confirmed in New York by E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, of which the tinplate company is a subsidiary.

Muncie.—Considerable rye is being received at the eastern Indiana grain elevators, and wheat shipments are beginning to become heavy. Many of the wheat fields are showing yields of 30 to 35 bushels, and some heavily fertilized fields have grown more than 40 bushels to the acre. Considerable spring wheat was planted experimentally in Delaware county, and is showing up well, growers say.

Seymour.—"God save the fatherland and the kaiser," Rev. H. Zumbingst, pastor of the White Creek Lutheran church, northwest of Seymour, is alleged to have said in a prayer in his pulpit at a service six weeks ago. He was arrested on a presidential warrant charging him with being a dangerous enemy alien.

Indianapolis.—The importance of householders in Indiana getting their orders for their winter's coal supply on the books of retail dealers at once was pointed out in a statement by Horace H. Herr, director of conservation of the state fuel administration.

Brazil.—John W. Webster reports a yield of 550 bushels of wheat on an 11-acre field. The average of 50 bushels an acre is the largest ever known in this vicinity.

Franklin.—Harry George, thirty years old, a young farmer, is wheat king of Johnson county for the second consecutive year. The record exceeded all yields thus far reported, and local grain dealers say that it probably will stand as at the top of this year's yield in the county. George had 80 acres of wheat which averaged 41 bushels to the acre. One small tract yielded at the rate of 51 bushels an acre. Mr. George last year had 90 acres of wheat which averaged 38 bushels an acre. He will receive $6,822.40 for his 80 acres of wheat this year, an average of $85 an acre.

SCHOOL OPEN FOR BLINDED FIGHTERS

VOCATIONAL INSTRUCTION AND REHABILITATION AT HOSPITAL IN BALTIMORE.

MEN TAUGHT USEFUL TRADES

Soldiers in Field and Camp Get Many Books—Secretary Wilson Explains General Mobilization of Labor for War Industries.

(From Committee on Public Information.)

Washington.—Returning federal soldiers, sailors and marines are being received now for vocational instruction and rehabilitation at Hospital Training School, General Hospital No. 7, the former home of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, at Baltimore, Md. The hospital is outfitted to accommodate 250 men and has large recreation fields and an extensive acreage in gardens.

Col. James Bordley of the surgeon general's office in charge of the reeducation of the blind, has announced the appointment of O. H. Burritt of the Pennsylvania Institute for the Instruction of the Blind as the educational director of this army hospital training school, with Miss Jenny A. Turner, former designer for the Massachusetts commission for the blind, as a reconstruction aide. Miss Turner has been working with the returned wounded soldiers at the Walter Reed hospital, Washington.

The blinded soldiers from overseas will be discharged from the hospital after they have been taught a practical self-supporting trade, have been put in good physical condition, and taught to read standard printing in raised type. The men will be sent to their own home communities and placed in the trades for which they have been trained. Red Cross workers will watch after their welfare.

Co-operating with the army medical department, the Red Cross Institute for the Blind is now making a national survey of industries open to blinded soldiers. Instructions will be made to conform with preparations for these industries. The federal board for vocational education is arranging a plan for the economic and social supervision of all wounded and maimed soldiers.

The war service committee of the American Library association reports that 435,000 books were shipped to American soldiers in France up to July 1. The books went in tonnage space granted at the request of General Pershing on the decks of transports, where they were used by the men on the voyage and unpacked for use in France; in naval vessels for naval bases abroad; and in Red Cross tonnage for the hospitals in France and England.

A total of more than 2,500,000 books have been supplied by the American Library association to the camps and stations in the United States and overseas. Approximately 500,000 of these books were purchased, others having come as gifts from the American people through the public libraries of the country. Nearly 40 library buildings have been erected, and 600 camps in America, alone, have received collections of books.

Two hundred librarians, including leaders in their profession in this country, are giving their time to library war service. Most of these are serving as camp librarians, assistants, and organizers in the field; others are in dispatch offices for the shipment of books to France.

Methods of thrift now enforced in the army quartermaster general's office, including the repair of clothing and shoes, where possible, have cut down the issue of new clothing and shoes from 30 to 40 per cent in some instances.

The plants where the mending is done are run in connection with forts and camps by the camp quartermaster. When a soldier tears or rips a garment he turns it in to his supply officer. When the soles of his shoes wear out or the heel runs down, the shoes go back to the same officer. These garments and shoes are taken to the repair shops managed by the conservation and reclamation officer. When repaired and put in order they are returned to the original owner if possible, and if the original owner cannot be located they serve some other soldier.

Hundreds of women are being employed by the war department in the work of repairing the garments of soldiers and in the laundries at camps and cantonments. Preference in this employment is given the wives, sisters, and mothers of men in the service. By paying $1 a month a soldier is entitled to a weekly bundle of laundry in which the number of articles is not limited.

Do not waste ice, says the United States food administration. Do not use as a luxury to serve with salads, fruits, and sea foods and do not put more than is necessary in glasses of water, tea, and other drinks.

There is to be no curtailment on the use of ice as a necessity, but it should be used carefully in localities where any shortage is indicated. It is considered a necessity when used to preserve food and in administering comfort, and every reasonable effort will be made to see that families are supplied with their legitimate needs.

Secretary of Labor Wilson makes this explanation of the general mobilization of labor for war industries, recruiting for which is to begin August 1 under direction of the United States employment service:

"Beginning with common labor, this service will gradually take charge of the mobilizing and placing of all labor for war industries employing 100 or more workers. This will profoundly affect all other industries and all other workers. It will correct the abuses and troubles growing out of the large labor turnover with the consequent disruption of regular work.

"Every safeguard must be taken to protect the standard of living and the morale of the wage earners. Especially must great care be taken to keep the age limit of those who enter industry at a high level, lest we rob our future citizenship of its right to growth and time for education. We must also take knowledge of the dangers attendant upon the large entrance of women into heavy and hazardous industries.

"The exigencies of war times should not be made the occasion for the breaking down of those standards of hours wages, and conditions of work which are designed to protect the childhood, the womanhood, and the motherhood of the present and the future.

"Experts tell us it takes from six to ten workers at home to keep one soldier on the firing line in Europe. Whatever, therefore, helps to mobilize, distribute and energize those who do the work of our war industries has become as important a factor in winning the war as the prowess of our armies in the field or our navy on the seas."

The war department has established five central officers' training camps, at which civilians and enlisted men will be trained for commissions in the officers' reserve corps. Infantry training camps are located at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va.; Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., and Camp Pike, Little Rock, Ark.; field artillery at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., and machine gun at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga.

These training schools will be run continuously, a new class being admitted monthly. The course of training will be four months at the infantry and machine-gun schools and three months at the field artillery school. The schools are open to qualified enlisted men in all branches of the service except coast artillery, signal corps and labor units. The number of civilians admitted will be limited.

To be eligible for admission candidates must be between twenty years, eight months and forty years; citizens of the United States, and not born in any of the countries with which the United States is at war or allies of such countries. Enlisted men must have the moral, educational and physical qualifications required of an officer. Civilians must be graduates of a high school or have pursued an equivalent course of instruction, be of good moral character, and have the required physical qualifications.

In addition to the above qualifications, candidates for the field artillery must possess a thorough understanding and working knowledge of arithmetic, and plane geometry. Trained civil, mechanical, electrical, mining and architectural engineers are desired. Civilian applicants will be certified by the army officer on duty as professor of military science and tactics at the educational institution nearest the residence of the applicant.

A children's recreation drive is on to continue during July and August, under the auspices of the children's bureau, department of labor, and the woman's committee of the council of national defense. It will culminate in "patriotic play week," September 1-7, in which the work of 11,000,000 women in organizing recreation in 10,000 communities will come to an end.

"To be strong for victory the nation must let her children play," said Charles Frederick Weller, associate secretary of the Playgrounds and Recreation Association of America. No time nor money can be spared from war-winning activities, but the winning of the war depends on man power, and man power cannot be sustained in any nation without health and wholesomeness in the children.

Far worse than exhausting America's financial capital would be the exhaustion of child life, which is man-power capital.

"England and France began as the United States has been tempted to begin—by letting the children pay too heavily for the war in child labor, increased delinquency, overtaxed nerves, weakened bodies, and premature deaths, but England and France turned to lift war burdens from the children by giving them a chance to play. There is urgent need to give our boys and girls an American square deal—their safety valve of play."

The postal censorship board, post office department, announces that translators of Spanish are in demand at New York and other port cities. These positions are open to women who can translate accurately and quickly.

Mrs. Stanley McCormick, in charge of the department of food production and home economics of the woman's committee, council of defense, gives this advice to farmerettes: "Watch your feet. Don't ignore footwear. You must have a good spinal column to keep up with a good job. The condition of the spinal column depends greatly on the feet. Be picturesque if you wish, but be sensible. Wear good stout boots to preserve health."

Paper thread is a Denmark war substitue for use in binder twine.

JULY

L 90

0455

"OVER THE TOP"

By An American Soldier Who Went

Arthur Guy Empey

Machine Gunner, Serving in France

Copyright 1917, by Arthur Guy Empey

EMPEY AND HIS COMRADES MAKE THEIR MACHINE GUNS PERFORM SOME MARVELOUS TRICKS.

Synopsis.—Fired by the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of American lives, Arthur Guy Empey, an American living in Jersey City, goes to England and enlists as a private in the British army. After a short experience as a recruiting officer in London, he is sent to training quarters in France, where he first hears the sound of big guns and makes the acquaintance of "cooties." After a brief period of training Empey's company is sent into the front-line trenches, where he takes his first turn on the fire step while the bullets whiz overhead. Empey learns, as comrade falls, that death lurks always in the trenches. Chaplain distinguishes himself by rescuing wounded men under hot fire. With pick and shovel Empey has experience as a trench digger in No Man's Land. Exciting experience on listening post detail. Exciting work on observation post duty. Back in rest billets Empey writes and stages a successful play. Once more in the front trenches, Empey goes "over the top" in a successful but costly attack on the German lines.

CHAPTER XXII—Continued.

—18—

This punishment is awarded where there is a doubt as to the willful guilt of a man who has committed an offence punishable by death.

Then comes the famous field punishment No. 1. Tommy has nicknamed it "crucifixion." It means that a man is spread-eagled on a limber wheel, two hours a day for twenty-one days. During this time he only gets water, bully beef and biscuits for his chow. You get "crucified" for repeated minor offenses.

Next in order is field punishment No. 2.

This is confinement in the "clink," without blankets, getting water, bully beef and biscuits for rations and doing all the dirty work that can be found. This may be for twenty-four hours or twenty days, according to the gravity of the offense.

Then comes "pack drill" or defaulters' parade. This consists of drilling, mostly at the double, for two hours with full equipment. Tommy hates this, because it is hard work. Sometimes he fills his pack with straw to lighten it, and sometimes he gets caught. If he gets caught, he grouses at everything in general for twenty-one days, from the vantage point of a limber wheel.

Next comes "C. B." meaning "confined to barracks." This consists of staying in billets or barracks for twenty-four hours to seven days. You also get an occasional defaulters' parade and dirty jobs around the quarters.

The sergeant major keeps what is known as the crime sheet. When a man commits an offense, he is "crimed," that is, his name, number and offense is entered on the crime sheet. Next day at 9 a. m. he goes to the "orderly room" before the captain, who either punishes him with "C. B." or sends him before the O. C. (officer commanding battalion). The captain of the company can only award "C. B."

Tommy many a time has thanked the king for making that provision in his regulations.

To gain the title of a "smart soldier," Tommy has to keep clear of the crime sheet, and you have to be darned smart to do it.

I have been on it a few times, mostly for "Yankee impudence."

During our stay of two weeks in rest billets our captain put us through a course of machine-gun drills, trying out new stunts and theories.

After parades were over, our guns' crews got together and also tried out some theories of their own in reference to handling guns. These courses had nothing to do with the advancement of the war, consisted mostly of causing tricky jams in the gun, and then the rest of the crew would endeavor to locate as quickly as possible the cause of the stoppage. This amused them for a few days and then things came to a standstill.

One of the boys on my gun claimed that he could play a tune while the gun was actually firing, and demonstrated this fact one day on the target range. We were very enthusiastic and decided to become musicians.

After constant practice I became quite expert in the tune entitled "All Conductors Have Big Feet."

When I had mastered this tune, our two weeks' rest came to an end, and once again we went up the line and took over the sector in front of G—— wood.

At this point the German trenches ran around the base of a hill, on the top of which was a dense wood. This wood was infested with machine guns, which used to traverse our lines at will, and sweep the streets of a little village, where we were billeted while in reserve.

There was one gun in particular which used to get our goats, it had the exact range of our "elephant" dugout entrance, and every morning, about the time rations were being brought up, its bullets would knock up the dust on the road; more than one Tommy went West or to Blighty by running into them.

This gun got our nerves on edge, and Fritz seemed to know it, because he never gave us an hour's rest. Our reputation as machine gunners was at stake; we tried various ruses to locate and put this gun out of action, but each one proved to be a failure, and Fritz became a worse nuisance than ever. He was getting fresher and more careless every day, took all kinds of liberties with us—thought he was invincible.

Then one of our crew got a brilliant idea and we were all enthusiastic to put it to the test.

Here was his scheme:

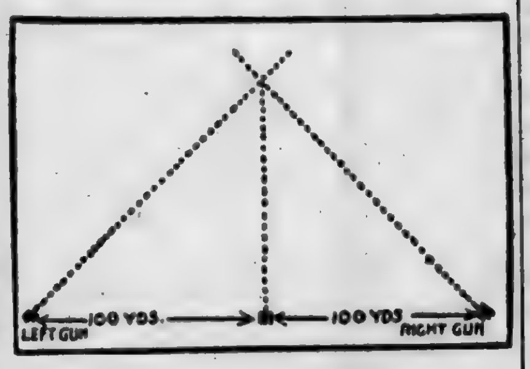
When firing my gun, I was to play my tune, and Fritz, no doubt, would fall for it, try to imitate me as an added insult. This gunner and two others would try, by the sound, to locate Fritz and his gun. After having got the location, they would mount two machine guns in trees, in a little clump of woods to the left of our cemetery, and while Fritz was in the middle of his lesson, would open up and trust to luck. By our calculations, it would take at least a week to pull off the stunt.

If Fritz refused to swallow our bait, it would be impossible to locate his special gun, and that's the one we were after, because they all sound alike, a slow pup-pup-pup.

Our prestige was hanging by a thread. In the battalion we had to endure all kinds of insults and fresh remarks as to our ability in silencing Fritz. Even to the battalion that German gun was a sore spot.

Next day, Fritz opened up as usual. I let him fire away for a while and then butted in with my "pup-pup-pup-pup-pup-pup." I kept this up quite a while, used two belts of ammunition. Fritz had stopped firing to listen. Then he started in; sure enough, he had fallen for our game, his gun was trying to imitate mine, but, at first he made a horrible mess of that tune. Again I butted in with a few bars and stopped. Then he tried to copy what I had played. He was a good sport all right, because his bullets were going away over our heads, must have been firing into the air. I commenced to feel friendly toward him.

This duet went on for five days. Fritz was a good pupil and learned rapidly, in fact, got better than his teacher. I commenced to feel jealous. When he had completely mastered the tune, he started sweeping the road again and we clicked it worse than ever. But he signed his death warrant by doing so, because my friendship turned to hate. Every time he fired he played that tune and we danced.



Showing How Fritz Is Fooled.

The boys in the battalion gave us the "Ha! Ha!" They weren't in on our little frameup.

The originator of the ruse and the other two gunners had Fritz's location taped to the minute; they mounted their two guns, and also gave me the range. The next afternoon was set for the grand finale.

Our three guns, with different elevations, had their fire so arranged, that, opening up together, their bullets would suddenly drop on Fritz like a hailstorm.

About three the next day, Fritz started "pup-pupping" that tune. I blew a sharp blast on a whistle, it was the signal agreed upon; we turned loose and Fritz's gun suddenly stopped in the middle of a bar. We had cooked his goose, and our ruse had worked. After firing two belts each, to make sure of our job, we hurriedly dismounted our guns and took cover in the dugout. We knew what to expect soon. We didn't have to wait long, three salvos of "whizz-bangs" came over from Fritz's artillery, a further confirmation that we had sent that musical machine-gunner on his Westward-bound journey.

That gun never bothered us again. We were the heroes of the battalion, our captain congratulated us, said it was a neat piece of work, and, consequently, we were all puffed up over the stunt.

There are several ways Tommy uses to disguise the location of his machine gun and get his range. Some of the most commonly used stunts are as follows:

At night, when he mounts his gun over the top of his trench and wants to get the range of Fritz's trench he adopts the method of what he terms "getting the sparks." This consists of firing bursts from his gun until the bullets hit the German barbed wire. He can tell when they are cutting the wire, because a bullet when it hits a wire throws out a blue electric spark. Machine-gun fire is very damaging to wire and causes many a wiring party to go out at night when it is quiet to repair the damage.

To disguise the flare of his gun at night when firing, Tommy uses what is called a flare protector. This is a stovepipe arrangement which fits over the barrel casing of the gun and screens the sparks from the right and left, but not from the front. So Tommy, always resourceful, adopts this scheme: About three feet or less in front of the gun he drives two stakes into the ground, about five feet apart. Across these stakes he stretches a curtain made out of empty sandbags ripped open. He soaks this curtain in water and fires through it. The water prevents it catching fire and effectively screens the flare of the firing gun from the enemy.

Sound is a valuable asset in locating a machine gun, but Tommy surmounts this obstacle by placing two machine guns about one hundred to one hundred and fifty yards apart. The gun on the right to cover with its fire the sector of the left gun and the gun on the left to cover that of the right gun. This makes their fire cross; they are fired simultaneously.

By this method it sounds like one gun firing and gives the Germans the impression that the gun is firing from a point midway between the guns which are actually firing, and they accordingly shell that particular spot. The machine gunners chuckle and say "Fritz is a brainy boy, not 'alf he ain't."

But the men in our lines at the spot being shelled curse Fritz for his ignorance and pass a few pert remarks down the line in reference to the machine gunners being "windy" and afraid to take their medicine.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Gas Attacks and Spies.

Three days after we had silenced Fritz, the Germans sent over gas. It did not catch us unawares, because the wind had been made to order, that is it was blowing from the German trenches toward ours at the rate of about five miles per hour.

Warnings had been passed down the trench to keep a sharp lookout for gas.

We had a new man at the periscope on this afternoon in question; I was sitting on the fire step, cleaning my rifle, when he called out to me:

"There's a sort of greenish, yellow cloud rolling along the ground out in front, it's coming—"

But I waited for no more, grabbing my bayonet, which was detached from the rifle, I gave the alarm by banging an empty shell case, which was hanging near the periscope. At the same instant, gongs started ringing down the trench, the signal for Tommy to don his respirator, or smoke helmet, as we call it.

Gas travels quickly, so you must not lose any time; you generally have about eighteen or twenty seconds in which to adjust your gas helmet.

Empey is assigned to the intelligence department, but finds it is not the "soft" snap that he anticipated. The next installment tells of some of his experiences in his new job as a spy-catcher.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Acts of Heroism Recognized.

Twenty-four acts of heroism were recognized by the Carnegie hero fund commission in its fourteenth annual meeting. In seven cases silver medals were awarded, in 17 cases, bronze medals. Ten of the heroes lost their lives, and to the dependents of nine of these pensions aggregating $4,560 a year were granted. In addition to these money grants, in two cases, $2,100 was appropriated for educational purposes, payments to be made as needed and approved, and in 11 cases awards aggregating $8,000 were made for other worthy purposes. Payments in these cases will not be made until the awards have been approved by the commission.

Cornmeal in Honduras.

Because of the marked success of recent governmental and private efforts to promote the production of more cereals during the period of the war, writes Consul Walter F. Boyle, Puerto Cortes, an American company has imported and erected the first mill for the milling of cornmeal. This was purchased in the United States and has been erected at San Pedro, Sula, Honduras. It is a small equipment, but marks the beginning of a new industry.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

PORK IN WAR TIME BACKS PATRIOTISM

The Meat Line Helps to Strengthen the Battle Line.

SUPPLY OF FATS IS URGENT NEED

Requirements Can Be Met Most Quickly by Increasing Number of Hogs on Farms.

SWINE REQUIRE LESS LABOR

Animals Have No Rival in Putting Waste Material to Profitable Use —Department of Agriculture Offers Assistance.

Not only on the farms, but also in the small towns and suburbs where space is available, everyone who can should raise one or more pigs and thus furnish the pork supply for himself and perhaps for a soldier. Assistance in doing this may be obtained from publications of the United States department of agriculture which will be sent free on request.

Pork is the mainstay of the nation, the laboring man and the soldier, and the need for increasing the supply of fats is especially great. The need for meat and fats can be met more quickly by increasing the number of hogs than in any other manner. Hogs require less labor, equipment and capital, make greater gains for the quantity of food fed and give a quicker turnover of money than any kind of live stock except poultry. Furthermore, pork products have the advantage of being easily transported. No branch of live stock farming gives better results than the intelligent raising of well-bred swine.

Food From Garbage.

As a consumer of by-products the hog has no rival, which is an additional reason for pork raising now when the elimination of waste is an emphatic necessity. There is ample evidence that where table scraps form a part or all of the pig's diet the gains cost considerably less than the gains made by grain-fed animals.

There is no "best" breed of swine. Some breeds are superior to others in certain respects and one breed may be better adapted than another to certain local conditions. There are two distinctive types, the lard type and the bacon type. Swine of the lard type far outnumber those of the bacon type in the United States.

With the ingredients of a good ration constantly placed before them so that they may eat it well, hogs will make gains more rapidly and more economically than when fed by hand. The self-feeder is growing in popularity. It is simply a device by means of which a supply of grain or other feed is kept constantly available to the hogs in order that they may always satisfy their appetites with the proper kind and amount of feed.

"Soldiers of the Commissary."

By means of the boys' pig clubs of the department of agriculture thousands of boys are being instructed in hog raising, and by this means are helping to produce a very important food for our soldiers and sailors. Your county agent, club leader or director of extension work at your state agricultural college will tell you of the work in your own state and how to join a club. The department wants 200,000 boys to raise pigs—40,000 did it in pig clubs last year—but whether you are young or old, if you live in the country or the suburbs of a city, you can do it, too, and thereby become a "soldier of the commissary."

How to Get Information.

Farmers' bulletins covering practically every phase of the swine industry are available for free distribution and may be obtained by writing to the United States department of agriculture, Washington. The states also have published much excellent material on the subject of hog raising. An inquiry about hogs addressed to your state agricultural college will bring you information on what has been issued by your own state. Your county agent can supplement the printed advice by suggestions as to the adaptation of directions to your local conditions.

Some of the hog raising publications of the United States department of agriculture are listed below:

"Swine Management," Farmers' Bulletin 874; "Breeds of Swine," Farmers' Bulletin 765, containing information on the various breeds, their origin, general appearance, development and adaptability; "Pig Clubs and the Swine Industry," describing the pig club work; "Movable Hog Houses," Secretary's Circular 102; "Hog Houses," Farmers' Bulletin 438; "The Self Feeder for Hogs," Farmers' Bulletin 906; "Hog Cholera; Prevention and Treatment," Farmers' Bulletin 874 "Tuberculosis of Hogs," Farmers' Bulletin 781.

Don't forget that the meat line is of direct importance to the battle line.

CATTLE AFTER WAR

The United States at present probably has more purebred cattle of beef and dairy types than is possessed by any other nation or combination of nations, according to the department of agriculture. At the close of the war European countries will require the different types of purebred animals to rebuild their depleted herds.

Study of present and future world conditions leads to the conclusion that continental Europe will bid high for the dairy type, while Russia will require all types, especially the beef types. It seems certain that importing countries will require cattle free from disease.

Disease eradication in our cattle is therefore a matter of the highest importance not only for the benefit of our own consumers but to facilitate after-the-war trade.

Time to Start Sheep Raising.

Late summer or early fall is the most favorable time to make a start in sheep raising. Ewes may be procured more readily at this time, and when purchased may be kept on meadows, grain stubble fields, or late-sown forage crops to get them in good condition for breeding

Experience with the ewes through fall and winter will also make a beginner more capable of attending to them at lambing time It is seldom possible to buy any considerable number of bred ewes at reasonable prices.

The inexperienced sheep raiser should begin with grade ewes of the best class available and a purebred ram. The raising of purebred stock and the selling of breeding rams can best be undertaken by persons experienced in sheep raising.

Don't Wait on Hog Cholera.

Don't take a chance with a sick hog. Act quickly. Get a veterinarian or a trained man immediately. Only prompt action will stop hog-cholera losses. Every hog saved will help to win the war.

The time for argument about anti-hog-cholera serum is past, declare specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Figures prove that when administered efficiently and in time, hog-cholera serum will keep well hogs from taking the disease.

Quick action is imperative to get serum and a trained operator to treat the hogs.

Be a Weed Detective.

If the first appearance in this country of weeds, such as Russian thistle, field hawkweed, and Canada thistle, had been reported, much of the loss and trouble they are causing might have been prevented. It is important to report to federal or state authorities the appearance of new weeds and to take precautions to prevent their spread.

Fighting the Sheep-Killer.

Five states during 1917 enacted improved legislation to protect sheep from dogs, and similar action is being considered in other states. Protection of this kind means more mutton and wool.

Feed for Young Calf.

When the calf is two weeks old a little mill feed may be added to the milk. This quantity may be gradually increased.

Best Base for Separator.

A concrete base for the separator is a good thing, but between it and the base of the machine, bolt down a board to provide elasticity.

For persons who put mutton first, the Southdown is the best breed.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 28

OBEYING GOD.

LESSON TEXTS—Matthew 4:18-22; John 14:22-24; James 1:22-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments.—John 14:15.

DEVOTIONAL READING—John 15:8-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Loving God and doing his will.

LESSON MATERIAL—Matthew 4:18-22; James 1:22-27.

INTERMEDIATE, SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Obedience: To whom? Why? How?

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—I Chronicles 16:15; Psalms 103:17-18; Matthew 5:19; John 15:12-14; 1 John 2:3-6, 17.

Obedience is a vital part of our religion. The obedience of the Christian is not legal but filial. Eternal life is not secured through obedience, but obedience is the tangible evidence that one possesses it.

I. The Call of the First Disciples (Matt 4:18-22).

1. By whom—Jesus Christ (v. 18).

Jesus is the Son of God. Since he is equal with God, he has the right to call. Those who hear his call should render instant and hearty obedience.

2. The circumstances of their call (v. 18).

The call came to them while they were busy with their business interests. God always calls men who are vitally engaged in some business, not those in idleness.

3. The nature of (v. 19).

It was a definite call, in that definite men were called into a definite service.

(1) To follow Christ. We must follow Christ before we can serve him. Only Christians can do Christian work. We should follow him to be like him, in order to win others to him.

(2) To win men for him—"Fishers of men." Christ calls men into work of the same character as that in which they were engaged. They had been fishing for fish; now they are to be fishers of men. When Christ calls men he does not call them to a lower service. This is a fine case of promotion. Men catch fish to kill and feed upon them, but Christ's disciples catch men to make them alive and feed them.

4. Response to Christ's call (vv. 20-22).

(1) They left their business interests immediately.

(2) They not only left their business, but James and John left their father also. Following Jesus sometimes means turning one's back upon business interests and dearest friends and relations. Regardless of what it costs, the true disciple will render instant obedience to the call of Christ, because he has a right to call us, and we can trust his wisdom to not call until he has need.

II. The Motive for Obedience (John 14:22-24).

The grand motive actuating obedience is love to Christ. The proof that we do love him is that we obey him. Even when we may not be conscious of unusual outgoings of the affection, the conclusive evidence that we love is that we obey. Keeping his commandments means such a regard for them that we highly treasure them as something precious. The reward for such obedience is to have Christ's prayer for us to God to send his Holy Spirit upon us (John 14:16, 17). Then, too, the Father will love us, and he and the Son will take up their abode with us. This abode is not temporary but permanent.

III. The Kind of Obedience That Counts (James 1:22-27).

1. The obedience of deeds (vv. 22-24).

Hearing God's Word will do no good unless it is accompanied with obedience. Hearing and not doing is as futile as beholding one's face in a looking glass and forgetting what manner of man he is. Calling Christ Lord, and not doing what he says, will avail nothing (Matt. 7:21, 22). To pretend to know God and not keep his commandments is to lie (1 John 2:4).

2. The obedience of perseverance (v. 25).

We should not only look into God's Word and admire its perfections, but steadfastly and persistently do the things required. Only those who thus persevere shall be blessed in their deeds.

3. The obedience of speech (v. 26).

The one who has genuine religion will control his tongue. Just as the physician ofttimes can diagnose the physical condition of the patient by an examination of the tongue, so the moral and spiritual condition of the individual can be determined by the speech of the individual. The one who does not control his tongue proves that his religion is empty and void.

4. The obedience of kindness (v. 27).

Those who have received the kindness of God will manifest that kindness in their lives. This kindness will express itself in ministering to the fatherless and widows.

5. The obedience of purity of life (v. 27).

The Law of God enjoins upon his children not only purity of life, but abstinence from all appearance of evil. The one who has been made a partaker of the Divine nature keeps himself from the sins of the world. It means his separation from the things of the world which corrupt

JULY

L 90

0456

The Man with Money hides his Valuables in Our Safety Deposit Vaults where they are SAFE.

He has no FEAR of Fire or Burglars.

Mobilizing Finances:

It's dead easy when your available cash is all snugly reposing in a sound Bank. You can handle your finances with less cost and trouble. This Bank can render you valuable service in all matters of finance.

Join Our Army of Depositors

and be prepared for the financial battles that face you—Your bank account is always available.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

LOCAL NEWS

LOCAL HISTORY MADE DURING THE PAST WEEK, IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Mary Jones, of Waterloo came Friday to visit over Sunday with Mrs. Jennie Randall.

—‡—‡—‡—

Milo Provines, wife and baby Mrs. Agnes Monroe were Sunday guests of S. D. Gee and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Glen Abel and wife came Saturday evening to visit his parents, J. C. F. Abel and wife. He returned home Sunday evening, while his wife returned for a longer visit.

—‡—‡—‡—

Charles Emerhiser, wife and two children, and Joe Croft, of Albion, were Saturday guests at the William Randall home; and Fred Randall and family, of Grabill, were Sunday guests at the same place.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Belle Ridgway left Sunday for an indefinite visit with her daughter, Mrs. Eva Chandler, of Hobart. She was accompanied by her niece, Miss Bernice Frisinger, who had been visiting here for the past two weeks.

—‡—‡—‡—

Jasper Snyder and wife on Sunday entertained their children in honor of their son, Donald, who left Tuesday for Camp Taylor. Those present were Cal Snyder and family, of Fort Wayne; Warren Snyder and family, of Leo; Grover Morr and family, of Anburn; Jay Snyder and family, Leland Hade and wife, Mrs. Estella Hughes and daughters, Fay and Eva, and Floyd Snyder.

—‡—‡—‡—

The following were Sunday guests of Tom and A. D. Brunson and their wives: C. R. Brunson and daughter, Wanda, of Willard, Ohio; George Seavers, wife and child, of near Logan, Ohio; S. N. Brunson, wife and two children, of near Butler; C. C. Bassett, wife and son, Carl, of St. Joe; Clark Roberts and daughter, Gladys, John Bash and wife, John Rosenbury, wife and son, Waldo, Frank Seberts and wife, Joseph Hull and son, Harvey, L. D. Carpenter and son, Paul, Jacob Keeler, Arthur Schisley and Huntsman brothers.

Foster Gee and wife spent Saturday at Fort Wayne.

—‡—‡—‡—

Homer Ridenhour, of near Six Corners, called on C. C. Bassett Monday afternoon.

—‡—‡—‡—

Clayton Hathaway, of Garrett, came Monday for a visit with his parents, H. C. Hathaway and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Little Martha Sechler returned home on Monday from a visit with her uncle, Leon Sechler, and wife, of Garrett.

—‡—‡—‡—

J. P. Buckingham and wife spent Sunday with Mrs. Sarah Stevick, of Cedarville. C. A. Patterson and wife, of Fort Wayne, also were present. The occasion was in honor of three birthday anniversaries: Mrs. Stevick's being on Sunday, Mr. Patterson's the Sunday before and Mr. Buckingham's next Sunday.

MICKIE SAYS

NO, MUM! THE EDITOR AINT IN! ....NOPE, WE DIDN'T KNOW NUTHIN' ABOUT IT. IS IT A BOY ER A GURL?......WELL, WHY DIDN'T YA PHONE US ABOUT IT? WE DO THE BEST WE KIN, BUT WE AIN'T NO MIND READERS NER NUTHIN' AN' SOMETIMES WE MISS AN ITEM......YES'M, WE'RE ALWAYS GLAD TO GIT ITEMS OVER THE PHONE! THANK YOU--G'BY!

Increase in Assessment

A compilation of the work of the township assessors shows that the assessed valuation of the personal property in the county has increased nearly $500,000 during the past year. Following is a table showing the assment returns for the years 1917 and 1918:

	1918	1917
Auburn	$ 915,700	$ 905,170
Waterloo	168,290	187,700
Butler	270,150	257,660
Garrett	360,320	295,170
Ashley	40,100	35,170
St. Joe	103,140	103,290
Corunna	62,100	61,310
Altona	6,330	9,370
Townships:—
Butler	125,390	116,580
Jackson	305,110	234,400
Concord	130,180	115,660
Spencer	205,590	178,850
Newville	81,650	72,300
Stafford	81,480	74,180
Wilming'n	229,120	209,210
Union	161,790	129,440
Richland	214,600	199,210
Fairfield	384,380	338,680
Smithfield	285,150	218,050
Franklin	272 640	242,690
Troy	149,200	139,690
Keyser	174,930	146,310
Grant	174,000	162,480
Total	$4,889,390	$4,429,170

The total taxable property in the several corporations and townships of the county is as follows:

Auburn	$ 2,247,580
Waterloo	345,480
Butler	726,610
Garrett	1,352,910
Ashley	129,300
St. Joe	178,730
Corunna	180,290
Altona	39,290
Townships:—
Butler	635,270
Jackson	1,058,020
Concord	513,060
Spencer	588,780
Newville	391,440
Stafford	393,590
Wilmington	990,520
Union	666,200
Richland	759,560
Fairfield	1,164,500
Smithfield	1,026,980
Franklin	1,061,780
Troy	469,840
Keyser	781,710
Grant	586,170
Total	$16,225 410

Patronize the advertisers.

—‡—‡—‡—

See Kinsey for your dishes for every-day use.

—‡—‡—‡—

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price were Fort Wayne visitors Wednesday afternoon.

—‡—‡—‡—

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price spent Sunday at Fort Wayne, the guests of Will Hart and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

A. D. Perry and wife and Clyde Mason, wife and daughter, Vivian, spent Friday evening at Hicksville.

—‡—‡—‡—

Simon Bernard and wife and Mesdames George Wade and Thomas Rickett were Sunday guests of Mrs. Jane Hull.

—‡—‡—‡—

C. R. Brunson and daughter, Wanda, of Willard, Ohio, came Saturday and visited until Monday with A. D. Brunson and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

A number of friends and relatives eathered at the home of Roy Koch on Sunday and helped him celebrate his 31st birthday anniversary.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. W. G. Miller and three children left Friday morning for Erie, Penn., after a four weeks' visit with her uncle, C. C. Bassett, and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mesdames Mary Betz, Blanch Leighty and Arline Koch on Friday went to Roanoke, where they visited Mrs. Aud Harter. Mrs. Koch remained over Sunday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Peter Kosht remembered the News in a substantial manner on Tuesday, advancing her own subscription and that of her brother, D. R. Krabill, of Branch, Mich., each one year.

—‡—‡—‡—

B. S. Bowman and wife entertained the following guests at dinner, Sunday: John Benninghoff and wife, of Fort Wayne; Cyrus Ritchey and family, of Hamilton. Frank Silberg, wife and baby were afternoon guests.

Merritt Hull Goes East

Merritt Hull passed through New Haven on Tuesday evening, en route from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Long Island.

Two auto loads from here—John C. Hull and wife, Fred B Leighty, wife and son, Dr. and Mrs. B. O. Shook, F. M. Monroe and wife and Mesdames Ed Leighty and Will Curie—went to see him. Merritt is in excellent health, although not so heavy as when he left, weighing but 143 pounds; and he is enthusiastic over army life and anxious to get "over there." The troop train was transferred from the Wabash to the Nickel Plate at New Haven, making a fifteen-minute stop, which all improved visiting. Hubert and Richard Shook were also with the visiting party.

Fae Wilmot also passed through the same day, but the train he was on had gone through. He and Merritt belong to the same command, the Fifth engineers. They left Corpus Christi on Saturday.

Patriotic Program

Next Friday evening at the M. P. church, the W. C. T. U. will hold a patriotic meeting, to which every body is invited. The following interesting program has been arranged:

Piano Duett.—Lora Leighty and Flossie Widney.
Song.—"America."
Prayer.—P. P. Buckingham.
Reading.—Dorothy Bowman.
Song.—"Battle Hymn of the Republic."
Address.—"What Is Patriotism?" Rev. J. C. Coons.
Duett.—Dermott Sisters.
Piano Duett.—Pauline Andress and Lela Wallace.
Talk.—"How Can We Help Win the War?" H. M. Widney.
Solo.—"The Marseillaise," Lora Leighty.
Reading.—Madonna Kinsey.
Talk.—"Resume of the War," Rev. L. W. Spayd.
Song.—"Star Spangled Banner."
Benediction.—Rev. J. C. Coons.

Red Cross to Hold Fair

The Red Cross will hold an all-day fair on the streets of St. Joe on Friday, Aug. 16. Further particulars will appear in the News. A good time is promised.

Legal Notice

Notice is hereby given that there will be a meeting of the members of the St. Joe Methodist Protestant Church at their regular place of worship on Monday evening, August 5, 1918, at 8:00 P. M., for the election of a trustee.

John C. Coons, Pastor.

B. E. Widney
E R. Kinsey } Trustees.
Adam Shilling

Concerning Thrashing.

"The threshing and buying of damp wheat is absolutely contrary to the desires and purposes of the Food Administration and is contrary to the principles of food conservation," said Dr. Harry E. Barnard, federal food administrator for Indiana today. "Wheat should not be threshed or purchased containing over 14% moisture. Dealers who purchase damp wheat and permit it to get out of condition will be considered guilty of contributing to the destruction of food stuffs."

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS

By Dr. Harry E. Barnard, Federal Food Administrator for Indiana.

Displays of cakes and pies at county fairs and the State fair will not be at the expense of a special allotment of sugar or flour. Individual exhibitors must take from their apportionment of both staples. Fair judges have been asked to make their awards upon the basis of conformity to the federal food regulations.

Fruits and vegetables packed in Indiana for the war and navy departments will be inspected by representatives of the Federal Food Administrator for Indiana. This is at the request of the government officials.

Increased demands upon the baking division made it necessary that it find new quarters and hereafter it will be found at 817 Merchants Bank building, Indianapolis.

Indiana farmers are urged to sow a normal acreage in rye. Rye is no longer a wheat flour substitute, but there is a possibility of a wheat shortage next year.

County agricultural agents are distributing books in which are to be set down the acreage of wheat threshed by threshers who will be held for the figures by the department of agriculture. The books also ask for comparative statement of yields, acreage and price for threshing for 1917 and 1918. The government thus obtains valuable information as to the wheat in the country, its cost and the average yield per acre.

The Food Administration has received inquiries from over the State as to whether the government would make any guarantees as to hog prices. Information received from one of the county agricultural agents indicates that some farmers have made preparations to hog off corn and soy beans, fattening the light pigs that usually go to market at this time of year, but that fear is now felt in some quarters that the market will not be sustained, and the prospect for an increased production of pork has served to discourage many farmers from proceeding with their purpose. The food administration advises that it will not guarantee the price of pork, but, as in 1917, will undertake to maintain a minimum of $15.50 per hundred pounds.

Radical increases in milk prices which threatened the citizens of Marion have been adjusted by a local committee composed of the judge of the circuit court, the largest milk producer in Grant county, and the superintendent of Marion's largest bottling works. The price agreement is effective at once, on the basis of 10 cents a quart and 6 cents a pint for bottled, pasturized milk; cream, bottled, 40 cents a quart, 15 cents a half-pint; and an increase of 10 cents per hundred pounds was granted to producers for milk delivered at bottling stations, making the new price $2.75. As a conservation measure, consumers are requested to discontinue the use of whipping cream. Referring local price disputes to a representative citizen committee for adjustment is in line with the policy suggested by the state food administrator, and the prompt and satisfactory adjustment at Marion is typical of the success of the plan.

Reduce the eat in wheat and meat and toot the tute in substitute

Mrs. John Keesler, of Edgerton, spent from Tuesday at the Sam Keesler home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Grace Ritchey, of Hamilton, is here, the guest of her cousin, Miss Dorothy Bowman, for the week.

—‡—‡—‡—

Master Henry Keesler is spending the week with his uncle, Ralph Furnish, and family, near Spencerville.

—‡—‡—‡—

C. C. and Carl Bassett went to Auburn on Tuesday to see the DeKalb county boys off for Camy Taylor.

—‡—‡—‡—

John Betz and wife were called to Auburn on Sunday by the serious illness and death of the latter's sister-in-law, Mrs. Sol Shearer.

- - - This paper has enlisted with the government in the cause of America for the period of the war - - - - - -

Cups, saucers and deep dishes at Kinsey's.

—‡—‡—‡—

Archie Cummins made a business trip to Fort Wayne and Auburn, Monday.

—‡—‡—‡—

On Tuesday, Nelson Thomas went to Reading, Mich., to visit his son, Charley, and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Gladys Cruikshank, of Fort Wayne, is spending a couple of weeks at the F. M. Thornton home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Misses Malvina and Geraldine Onson, of Miller, Ind., were the week-end guests of F. M. Thornton and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

O. E. Ginther on Monday evening came home from Chillicothee, Ohio, for a two days' visit with his family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Jennie Bodiker and R. Miller and family, of Montpelier, were entertained Saturday at the Iona Woodcox family. The gentlemen are cousins.

—‡—‡—‡—

William Curie, F. R. Bowman and Merritt Maxwell attended the banquet of the DeKalb County Bankers' association at Auburn on Thursday evening.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Mary Bowman and son, Ray, Mrs. Nan Lysher and children and S. S. Widney left early Tuesday morning for an outing at the Bowman cottage at Hamilton lake.

—‡—‡—‡—

Will Hamm and wife left early Tuesday morning for Marion to visit friends for a couple of days. Grover Sapp and wife, of Garrett, are caring for their home during their absence.

—‡—‡—‡—

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer.

TILE!

I have on hand now tile in all the sizes ranging from 4 to 30 inch. Get your supply now while we are able to make the shipments from Portland mills. The best clay tile obtainable. See me.

Orange Herrick,

Phone No. 47-11

St. Joe, Ind.

A Sluggish Liver Needs Attention

An Inactive Liver Affects the Kidneys and Deranges the Stomach and Bowels.

Too much stress can not be placed on the necessity of keeping the liver in good condition; upon it the health of the body largely depends. When the liver becomes sluggish, the kidneys are overworked, the digestive fluids are not properly secreted and a languid, bilious, nervous or sick headachy condition results. Poisonous matter accumulates within the body. Constipation, bloating, dizziness, belching, pain or soreness in the right side, impaired vision and, in fact, most diseases have their origin in an inactive liver. An inactive liver is easily corrected if taken in time, but the only way to doctor is to get at the cause. Glando Tonic is a liver remedy that has a splendid record for renewing activity, removing the poisons and building up the system. For bilious attacks, it can not be beaten. Mothers who are nursing a baby should take Glando Tonic to keep the bowels well regulated. This will keep baby's bowels in a good condition. Glando Tonic is a three-in-one treatment that brings results. A trial will convince the most skeptical. Testimonials will be furnished upon request. Glando Tonic is sold by druggists or may be obtained by sending 50c direct to the Grand-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

L 90

AUGUST

AUGUST

0458

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 1 1918 NO. 31

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

CAMP MERRITT, N. J., July 27.

DEAR PARENTS:—

Well, I will steal a few minutes and let you know that we arrived at port of embarkation O. K. Am fine and happy and rearing to go over. We stand various inspections, get new equipment, etc.

This camp is a city in itself, approximately 100,000 soldiers being here. All branches are in evidence.

Our trip from Texas was fine, and everybody was glad to get back up in God's country again. We passed through the following states: Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey. We were six days and seven nights on the way.

We get twenty-four hours' passes today or tomorrow.

Barracks are used here instead of tents.

Information as to our whereabouts from now on no doubt will be censored. So I will refrain from military details, only I am happy to think I will get the honor to serve my dear sweet land of liberty to help end this unholy war.

Things look as though we may never get to France, if rumors can be relied upon. I do hope to get one before they quit.

People in the eastern and middle states show greater hospitality to soldier thrn those of the south.

Well, I will close and write every day.

Your son,

MERRITT HULL.

Annual Red Cross Credit

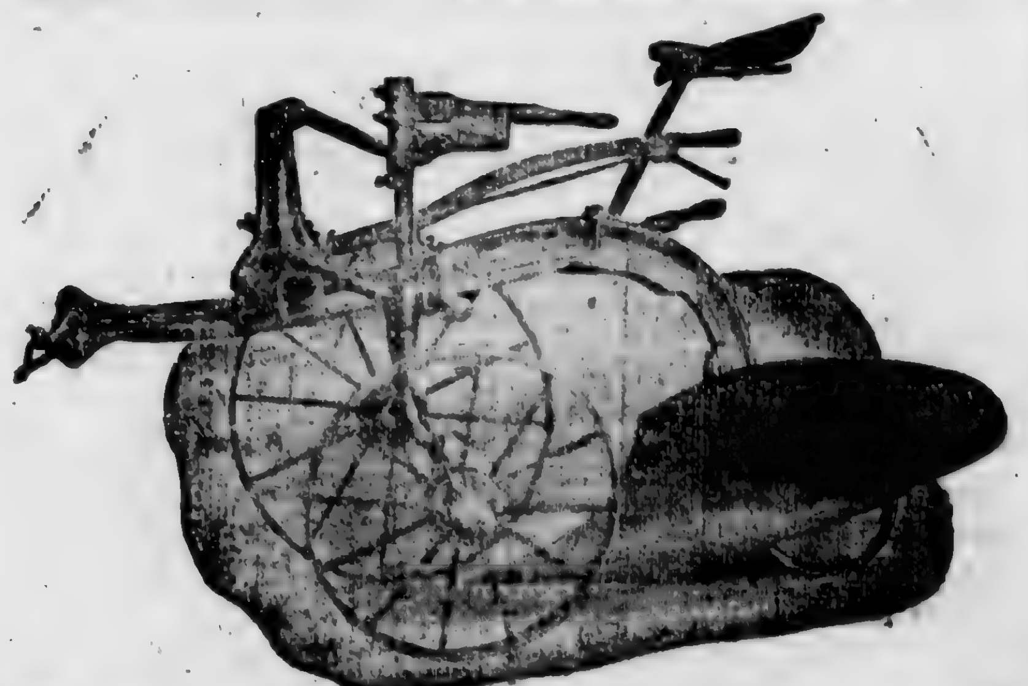
ST JOE, Ind., July 23.

We, the undersigned auditing committee, beg leave to report the following:

We find that the secretary-treasurer and chairmen of the various committees were very accurate in executing the duties assigned them in this great war relief work, which is a very creditable showing for each party.

We find from June, 1917, to June, 1918, the total cash receipts were	$927 88
Total paid out	771 82
Cash balance	$156 06

J. C. HULL,
FRANK CURIE, } Committee
J. A. HULL,



IT'S TIME TO PLOW NOW.

and we are going to make a special price on some of our stock as follows:

Bryan riding plow Special price........ $40.00

Oliver riding plow No. 11, Special price........ $60.00
(With Combination Jointer all complete.)

Walking plows while they last at only........ $25.00

A complete line of Disc Rollers—a necessary implement.

CURIE'S

$4\frac{1}{2}$%

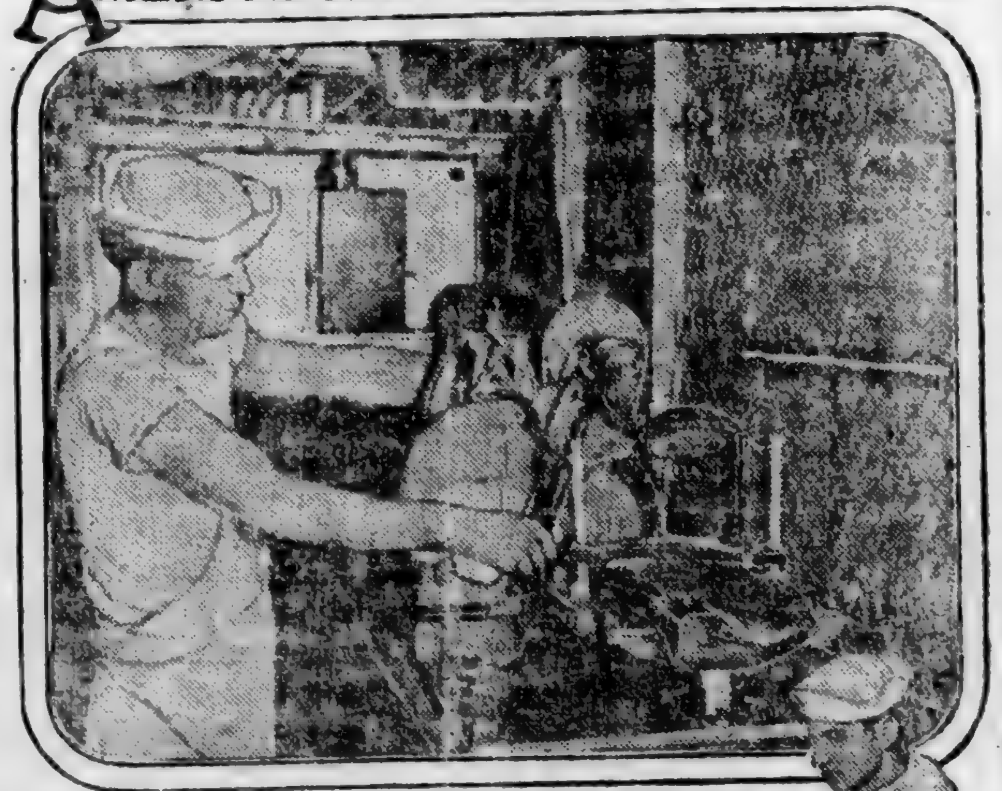
LIBERTY LOAN ANTICIPATION
U. S. Certificates of Indebtedness
Dated June 25, 1918—Due October 24, 1918.

The Banks of this country have been called upon by the Treasury Department of the U. S. Government to purchase Certificates of Indebtedness in anticipation of the Fourth Liberty Loan. This bank, believing it to be its patriotic duty to respond to this call, will take its full quota of these Certificates from time to time as the Treasury Department needs funds to finance the war.

To the people of this community, who have responed so loyally in purchasing past issues of Liberty Bonds and who expect to take bonds of the Fourth Loan, and to those who may desire a short-time Government investment, we recommend the purchase of these Certificates, which we will supply in denominations of $500, $1,000 and upwards without profit to this bank.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

AMERICAN NAVY ELIMINATES WASTE



SLICING BACON ON BATTLESHIP

HOW THEY PEEL POTATOES ABOARD SHIP

JACKIES in the American navy are classed as the best fed body of men in the world. In the ship's galleys every effort is made to eliminate waste.

In the upper photo one of the cooks on the North Dakota is operating a meat slicer that cuts bacon with the least possible wastage. Fat is fuel for fighters. Bacon is badly needed in the allied armies and navies. The allied needs in pork products are 150,000,000 pounds monthly, three times as much as before the war.

Another waste eliminator on the North Dakota is the potato peeler, shown in the lower photo. Nothing is lost except the actual potato skin.

There is a sufficient quantity of potatoes in America for greater use in every home and for all needs of army and navy. Eat more potatoes, eat less wheat.

Are Safely Overseas

Roy Haifley, Vernie Monroe, Merwin Place and Gray Woodcox have joined the boys "over there" and will help can the kaiser. Word of their safe arrival has been received here.

Red Cross Department

The Question of Veils

Confusion seems to exist concerning the coifs to be worn in the work room. Relative to this, Miss Ina M. Taft, superintendent of garments bureau of chapter production, national headquarters, sends definite instructions:

"Divisions are interpreting differently the use of the word 'instructor' with reference to those who have the right to wear the red veil. It is not the intention that the word should be construed to mean only those who are instructing in the making of surgical dressings. This work room uniform applies alike to all Red Cross work rooms, whether the articles being made are garments, comforts or surgical dressings."

The intention was that the colors would make it easy for workers to locate the instractors in the room and so save time. The blue veil was intended to indicate the woman in charge of the work room The red veil was intended to indicate those assisting her and instructing the workers in the making of the articles.

The use of these veils in the work room is not obligatory, and chapters may or may not adopt it, at their option; but when worn, the red and blue must be used to indicate the above service.

The use of the word "instructor" in the regulations is general, and applies to all those teaching in a work room, no matter what articles are being made.

The yarn for socks has been received. St. Joe's quota for socks is twenty-five pairs. All those who would like to help knit those socks please call on Mrs. Bassett for yarn and instructions.

The following ladies were present in the sewing room last Wednesday afternoon: Mesdames J. C. Hull, Spayd, Northrup, E Woodcox, Dilley, Meese, Meek, Swineford, E. Tustison, Hathaway, Barney, E. Abel, A. Abel, Patterson, Will Curie, B. Tustison, Shook, Sheffer, H. Ulm and McCrory.

It is hoped that the amount of sewing given this auxiliary for August shipment can be furnished this week.

The Red Cross wishes to thank Prank Meese for the donation of $1.00 in cash to further the good work.

Children Were Home.

Don Burley and family, of Brook, Ind., visited over Sunday with D. D. Burley and wife, west of town. Mrs. John Maurer and children, of Union City, Mich., and Mrs James Maurer, of near Coldwater, were also guests of the ladies' parents, arriving last Thursday. Mr. Burley and wife also visited at the home of G. W. Woodcox. They made the trip in their new Ford.

Mel Herrick and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Frank Steffens and wife, of Butler Center They attended the funeral of John Hippenheimer in the afternoon.

MICKIE SAYS

YEP, THEY'S SCADS OF GOOD FELLERS AROUN' THIS HERE TOWN, BUT THE BEST OF 'EM ARE THE FELLERS WHO BRING IN THEIR COPY AN' ADS EARLY SO WE AIN'T RUSHED TO DEATH GITTIN' OUT THE PAPER ON TIME! NO?
YOU SAID SOMETHING, MICKIE!
CHARLES SUGHROE

O. H. Widney Passes Away

O. H. Widney, of Auburn, one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of DeKalb county, paseed away Tuesday forenoon. For a week preceding his death, he had been confined to the house as the result of running a rusty nail into one of his feet. He was seemingly on the way to recovery from the wound until Sunday, when he became seriously ill. Physicians think he suffered a light stroke of apoplexy. He never recovered from this until the end came.

Nearly all of Mr. Widney's life was passed in this vicinity, and St. Joe was his home immediately preceding his going to Auburn. He never parted with all of his property in this place, owning the opera house block and several residences at the time of his death; and the farm on which his son, H. M. Widney, now lives, once belonged to him.

Deceased is survived by his wife and two children, the latter being the son mentioned above and a daughter, Mrs. Lenore Kagey, and other relatives. He served his country during the civil war.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 2 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon The local Knights of Pythias lodge, of which Mr. Widney was a member, will attend in a body. The G. A. R., as the last request of the deceased, will have charge. The remains will be brouhgt to St. Joe for interment. The casket will be opened at the cemetery, giving all an opportunity to bid their old friend a last, long farewell.

An extended obituary of Mr. Widney will appear next week.

Boys Meet Tuesday Evening at Town Hall

The next regular meeting of the Concord Township Selective Service association is next Tuesday evening. Place, the town hall. All members that are anxious to go to war are advised not to attend.

Anniversary Services

Rev. Charles Reign Scoville, who is in Chicago at present, expects to finish his work in that city this week. He will come home; and on Sunday, Aug. 11, he will hold anniversary services in the grove in front of the Christian church, Newville, both morning and evening.

Rev. Scoville recently closed two successful meetings in the west, one at Albion, Neb., and the other at Trinidad, Col. At the former, 1,625 persons were converted; at the latter, 1,832.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

M. P.	92	3.46
Lutheran	80	2.85
Christian	66	2.86
M. E. Spencer	104	5.20
Lutheran	117	4.53
Newville U B	78	2.44
Concord	88	2.43

PROTECT Your Grain

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

The Most Complete Stock of DRUGS
and Drug Store Goods in Northeastern Indiana will be found at STAMAN'S.

Large stock of Spray Material, Rexall Remedies, Kodaks and Supplies—in fact you will find everything here that you would expect in an Up-to-Date Drug Store. We shall esteem it an honor to become your druggist.

ASHTON STAMAN
The Rexall Store
AUBURN

Important Order of U. S. Food Administ'n

gives Mills and Elevators the right to exchange flour for wheat at the rate of 8 pounds per person per month and you can have your supply until October 1, 1918. If you are a Farmer and bring in wheat grown by you, also if you sign the following certificate.

Bring This With You.

Certificate to be signed by Farmer exchanging wheat for flour.

I.................................... hereby certify that the wheat this day delivered by me to St. Joe Elevator of St. Joe, Indiana, was grown by me on my farm, that the amount of flour to be delivered to me, together with that already on hand, will not give me a supply more than sufficient to meet the requirements of my household or establishment, under the regulations of the United States Food Administration, that I will not sell, lend or deliver said flour to anyone, nor permit such flour to be used for any purpose except for human consumption in my household or establishment.

Signature..................................

Address..................................

For more particulars call on us.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

AUGUST

L 90

0459

THE KITCHEN CABINET

A morning glory at my window satisfies me more than all the metaphysics of books.

THE ART OF COOKERY.

We are told that cookery is one of the fine arts. Where can one mix colors giving greater delight than in a tasty dish? The development of cookery and its progress has gone hand in hand with civilization. The more intelligent a people the more attention they pay to the food which they give their families. It is an art as old as history and its evolution is as interesting a study as the evolution theory is to the scientist.

Probably more people are spending a part or all of their time cooking than in any other occupation. The importance of food selection and preparation is the most important factor on which rests the health, happiness and prosperity of mankind.

Cookery has its law of proportion or right values, its law of harmony and contrast as does all other arts.

Cookery appeals to the taste as music appeals to the hearing or color to the sight.

An educated sense of taste is as gratifying as the indulgence of any of the senses and as necessary for good digestion and physical as well as mental well being.

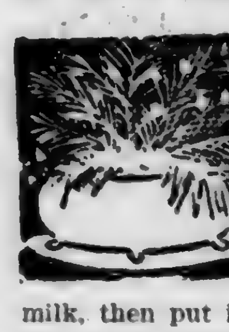
The study of cookery should be a part of every young woman's education. She should know when she has prepared a well-balanced meal as well as to know how to cook one. She should be able to feed the sick, the aged, an office man, a farmer, or a baby intelligently.

To serve a meal that is attractive to the eye, satisfying to the taste and nourishing to the body, food that is digestible and the cost of which is kept within reasonable bounds of the income, is an accomplishment which any young woman may be proud of attaining. Such accomplishments come only by practice and training. Few cooks are born cooks; most of them have attained their proficiency as other artists attain theirs, by hard work and practice.

A trained cook should be in position to command respect, for she keeps people well by providing them with the right kind of food, while the professional doctor only takes us for repairs. Perhaps some day we will become as progressive as some of our Oriental brothers who pay their physicians to keep them well.

The community cannot rise much above the level of the individual home, and the home rises only by the pull of the community regulations or by the initiative of a few especially far-sighted individuals.—Ellen Richards.

IDEAS FOR THE COOK.



Before the sweet corn is gone do not fail to prepare some for winter use. Pick it and husk it and cut it from the cob within an hour from the time it has been growing; then if it is to be dried stir it over the heat for a few minutes to set the milk, then put it to dry as usual. If it is to be canned, boil it for five minutes on the cob, then dip in cold water and drain, cut from the cob and pack into jars; into each put a teaspoonful of salt to a quart, can and fill the remaining space with boiling water. Seal slightly, so that the jar may be handled without loosening the cover. Perhaps a better way is to seal it tight, then turn back a quarter way round; this leaves the jar so that air may escape into the boiler and keep the pressure inside and out. Have a boiler with a wooden rack in the bottom to hold up the jars and cover them to the depth of an inch over the top of the highest jar. Count the time of cooking only when the water is boiling and cook three hours, adding 10 to 15 minutes longer for two-quart cans. Remove and seal tightly. If the rubber bulges out, unscrew the top and slip it back, without exposing the contents to the air; this may be done quickly and no bad results will follow.

Corn Relish.—Cut the corn from two dozen ears, chop fine one head of cabbage, four large onions, four green peppers, all chopped. Mix three cupfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of mustard, and a teaspoonful of turmeric; when well mixed add a quart of vinegar and the other vegetables and boil one hour; add two teaspoonfuls of celery seed and put away in glass jars, sealed for winter use.

Make a list of all fruits, vegetables, meats and foods in the fruit cellar; then have each well labeled, for no memory is good for several months, and often it is hard to tell just what the jar contains. From the list one may choose what will be needed without looking over the collection.

Quince Honey.—This is a delicious confection to use as a garnish for dainty puddings or ices. Grate the fruit and cook together with equal parts of sugar. Put in glasses and seal as usual.

Pineapple and Cheese Salad.—Arrange a slice of canned pineapple on crisp lettuce, then place a ball of nicely seasoned cottage cheese in the center of the pineapple. Garnish with strips of pimentos and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

He is happiest who hath power
To gather wisdom from every flower,
And wake his heart in every hour
To pleasant gratitude.
—William Wordsworth.

LET US ENTERTAIN.

Webster defines hospitality as receiving and entertaining strangers with kindness. To the vast majority of us hospitality begins and ends with our friends, forgetting that we are told to "be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares."

We are apt to dwell lightly upon the side of the guests in entertaining, but they have certain requirements to meet which must be met if the visit is enjoyable mutually.

For the Guest.—First, I shall announce the time of my arrival and the limit of my stay, and not unless plainly urged, overstay my time.

Second, I shall be on time for meals and will not strew my belongings from drawing room to attic.

Third, I shall never allow my hostess to guess "that it doesn't run in our family to eat cabbage," for being well trained, with rare exceptions we can eat and enjoy all foods. I shall eat what is set before me, or perish in the attempt.

Fourth, I shall share the daily duties of the household; even with plenty of help I can at least care for my own room.

Fifth, I shall endeavor to prove to my hostess that I came to enjoy her and her family, instead of the scenery.

Sixth, I shall on leaving make some return for my entertainment, either in invitation or gift, and I shall be careful to leave none of my personal belongings to be sent after me.

Seventh, I shall not forget to write an original and thankful letter to my hostess, showing that I appreciated and was grateful for her hospitality.

For the Hostess.—First, I shall invite my guest for a certain definite time.

Second, I shall not bore my guest with too much entertainment, but let her have time to confer with her own personality.

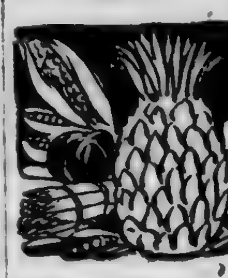
Third, I shall endeavor to serve food that is both agreeable and digestible, and if there be some idiosyncrasy as to food, I will not try to change her tastes (unless she be very young).

Let's pretend, just for today,
That our hearts are free from woe;
That the wind blows just the way
We would like to have it blow.

Let's pretend that what we do
Is the work we like the best;
Let's pretend the scene we view
Is of all the loveliest.

Let's pretend we're satisfied:
Let's pretend we're brave and strong;
Maybe after we have tried
We can do it right along.

A WORD TO THE COOK.



Do you love your work or do you call it drudgery? "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." Do you plan to save labor, time and fuel in your cookery? When making a custard leave out the sugar and flavoring, cook it as usual, then divide it into a custard and a salad dressing, adding sugar and flavoring to one, salt and seasoning with vinegar to the other.

When using cooking dishes, if they are washed at once, or put to soak, they will wash much easier and the work that follows will not be hindered.

Coffee is much improved if it has not been freshly ground to stir it over the heat before adding water.

Soap that is stored and dried will last longer than the fresh variety.

Do you plan your meals in regard to the people to be served? For example the farmer, the indoor worker, the child or the invalid, each finding what he needs from the prepared menu.

An emergency shelf with canned fruits, jellies, vegetables, meats and soups is a wonderful refuge in time of company.

Do you try to balance your meals so that there is never an overabundance of any one food principle, as starchy foods or meats?

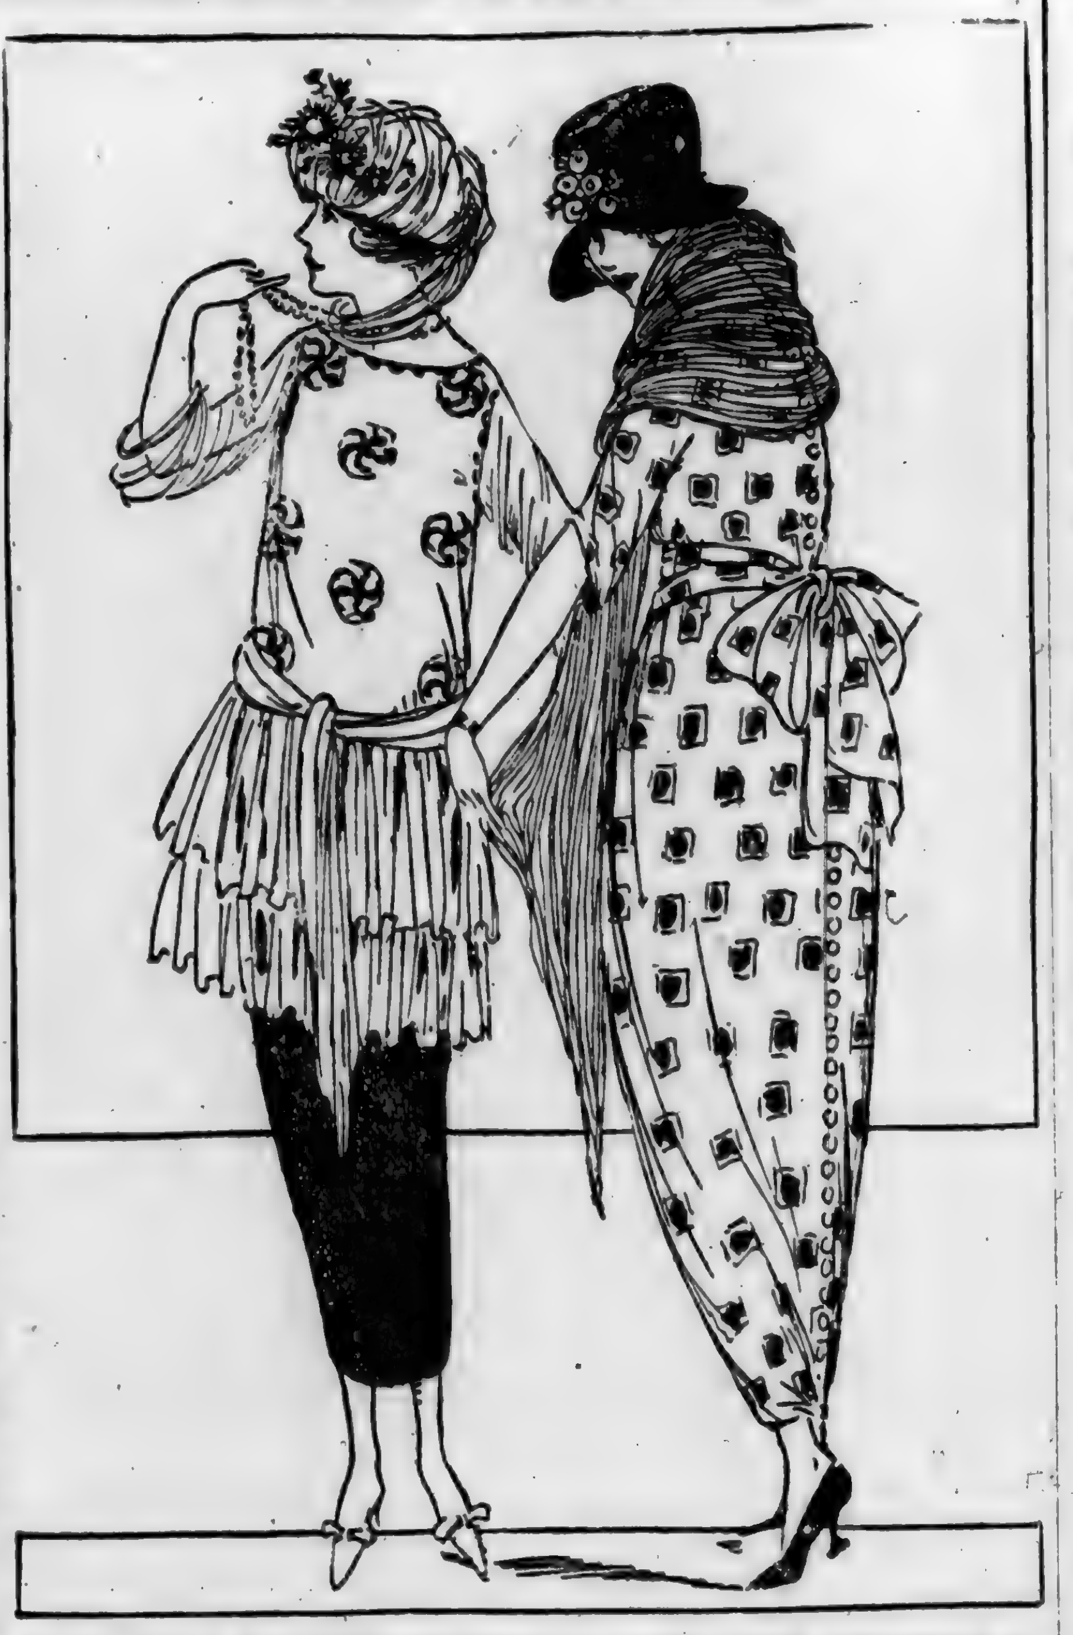
Are you studying foods and planning new dishes, trying new combinations, and originating new dishes?

Are you studying the food value of milk and do you give your family plenty of this best of all foods?

All fruit juices should be saved to use as pudding sauces or in frozen dishes.

A small-sized baking powder can with holes punched in the top makes a good chopper to use for potatoes while frying.

Nellie Maxwell



Here Is Shown a Separate Tunic Blouse of White Chiffon Embroidered in Circles of Blue, With Two Ruffles of Plaited Chiffon Below the Waist. Sash and Skirt of Crepe de Chine.

BE OWN DESIGNER--AMERICA'S SLOGAN

New York.—Fashions are rarely fixed, but never have they seemed to fluctuate more fluently and perversely than now. It does not need a Diogenes with a lantern, asserts a foremost fashion writer, to find the reason for this condition. Certain raw materials are lacking; labor grows scarcer every moment, although it shouldn't with so many women to be employed, and the designers put out in the morning whatever they dream of at night.

To the observer these days are fascinating. To the woman who thinks she has settled the question of clothes for an entire season by buying her costumes at the beginning of it, the situation is not only perplexing but irritating.

It is quite useless for the world to go against human nature by preaching standardization of apparel or food. We will not eat the same dishes three times a day 365 days in the year, and we will not wear the same gown ten hours a day for twelve months. If we can't get raw materials to diversify our food and apparel, at least we can stimulate the appetite and the eyes by mixing what we have into new forms.

Everyone Plays on Fashions.

Viewed from the airplane point of view, it looks as if the entire world of women will attempt to bring out something new in clothes for themselves or for their neighbors.

This does not mean that they have ceased to work for the Red Cross. It only means that such work has intensified their desire to dress well before the public, and has brought them into such an active current of air that they see new things and think of them with brains that might have been almost atrophied from inaction before the war. Stimulate a brain in one direction, you know, and it reacts in all directions.

Stimulation is the heart and soul of life, and it is undoubtedly the means of producing the very best kind of national dressing. It will cause a woman to rebel against looking as if she belonged to a procession in which every member must dress alike. It kindles a flame in the brain, which heats it up and makes it respond to whatever there is in it of creative power.

Therefore, every woman becomes her own designer. She no longer goes to a shop and takes the gown that she is assured "everyone is buying." Once she regarded that phrase as the decree of power; today she listens to it with a shrug of her shoulders and usually insists that that's the last gown she wants to buy.

Heretofore the woman with slender opportunities and rare contact with the outside world chose her clothes blindfolded, led by the hand of the saleswoman to whatever was cut by the hundreds and sold by the thousand.

She is not so easily hoodwinked as she was, because the public was as much to blame for the constant repetition of one model, sold at varying prices, according to the overhead charges, as the dressmakers and shops.

French Women and Clothes.

Soon these women will be trained into the same kind of power that has governed France for 300 years. The French dressmakers do not govern the styles in Paris; it is done by the women who wear the clothes. They are artists; they are skilled in the science of clothes, and it is their insistence upon changes and peculiarities, their experimentation in new things, which guides the designing world into a sure groove of success.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

TRY A BURLAP KNITTING BAG

Choose Any Color of Material and Make a Useful and Beautiful Convenience.

Some day, when you want a change from the brilliant-hued knitting bag, try concocting yourself one of burlap. Choose any color that you want, a natural colored one, for instance. Make just a plain rectangular bag, quite deep so that there will be plenty of room for that sweater that you are working on or any other knitting; turn up each of the lower corners slightly, to make it hang a bit more gracefully, and gather the top with a ruffled heading.

If a stiff, easily opened top is desired, a pair of bag sticks, finished off with balls at each end and painted some gay color, may be bought and inserted, instead of the more ordinary draw-string. Cotton cords, to match the burlap, may be attached to these sticks as handles.

As for decoration, one might make such a bag attractive with very little [illegible]. A conventional puattern, the [illegible] of flowers or some geometrical design, might be stencilled upon it or embroidered on in mercerized cottons. Or a worsted decoration may be added, either embroidered on or crocheted and appliqued upon the burlap. A design might be cut out of felt of harmonizing colors and sewed to the bag, with large stitches of contrasting shades. Such an adornment may be as elaborate or simple as chosen and the burlap bag be made a thing of beauty, as well as of decided usefulness.

Transformable Hats.

A very clever milliner showed some hats which were transformable; that is to say, they had crowns and brims which one could take apart and combine again in great variety. A white silk brim could be worn with soft crowns of different colored organdie, to match different frocks, and the operation was simple.

Pin Tucks in Evidence.

Fine pin tucks are a noticeable feature of some of the cloth coats that are a part of two-piece suits of fine fabric.

War Demand for Shoddy.

The process of reclaiming wool from all sorts of rags has become a task of increasing magnitude since the placing of the government's big orders for army clothing, special machinery being employed to reduce the rags to shreds, wash them, separate the wool from the cotton, etc. Cloth experts claim this reworked wool, or shoddy, is suitable for use in overcoats, because a warmer, more closely woven fabric can be produced, if used in the right proportion with virgin wool, says Popular Mechanics. For this reason it is used in army overcoating, but all other uniform cloth is now pure wool, according to government officials.

Paper From Fibrous Plant.

England has been manufacturing paper from alfa, a fibrous plant growing in northern Africa, since 1862. This paper is of excellent quality, snowy white and has been extensively used in England in the printing of books and magazines.

SWIFT & COMPANY U.S.A.

Fresh Beef Travels on a Rapid Schedule

Fresh beef for domestic markets goes from stockyards to retail stores within a period of about two weeks. Although chilled, this meat is not frozen; hence it cannot be stored for a rise in price.

A steer is dressed usually within twenty-four hours after purchase by the packer. The beef is held in a cooler at the packing house, at a temperature a little above freezing, for about three days.

It is then loaded into a refrigerator car where a similar temperature is maintained, and is in transit to market on an average of about six days.

Upon arrival at the branch distributing house, it is unloaded into a "cooler", and placed on sale.

Swift & Company requires all beef to be sold during the week of arrival, and the average of sales is within five days.

Any delay along the above journey means deterioration in the meat and loss to the packer.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

SIMPLY HAD TO BE DONE

Hungry Diner Forced to Strenuous Action to Secure the Only Relief in Sight.

Speaking at a political meeting Congressman Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts referred to wartime economy and fittingly related this little anecdote:

One afternoon a man went into a restaurant and selected an Irish stew from the bill of fare. Soon the dish was placed before him, and after giving it a critical glance he removed his coat, then his vest and then his collar and necktie.

"What in the world are you trying to do, mister?" demanded the wondering waiter as the patron reached down to untie his shoes. "This isn't bedtime."

"A casual glance, young man," responded the patron, "should suffice to show you that I am removing my clothes."

"But—but," objected the waiter, "you can't remove your clothes in here."

"I can't swim with them on," answered the patron, pointing to the stew, "and swim this ocean of water I must in order to reach yonder tiny island of mutton."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Lovers Estranged.

The cruel wind tore at the waves as if to whirl them away.

The man and the maid sat close together on the beach and watched the storm.

"How the wind howls, darling," said she, yelling to make herself heard.

"Yes," shrieked her lover.

"Why does it howl?" she screamed.

"Dunno. Perhaps it's got the toothache," he bellowed.

"The toothache?" she howled. "However—"

"Yes," he roared. "Haven't you heard of the teeth of the gale?"

Then the wind howled worse than ever, as she handed him back the engagement ring.—Stray Stories.

His Listening-In Post.

"Now, Tommie, I am going to have company tonight, and if you go to bed early I'll give you 10 cents," said the sweet young thing to her kid brother.

"All right, sister Sue, give me the 10 cents."

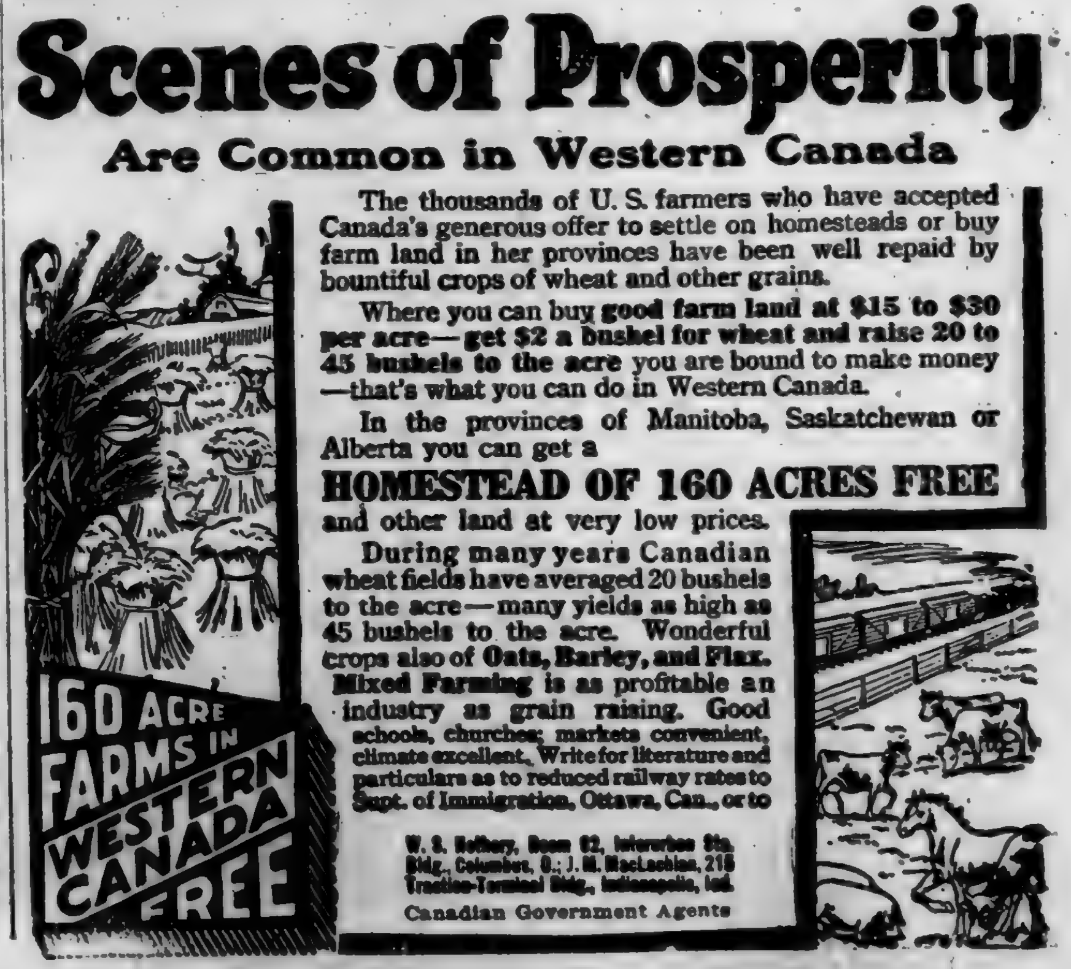
"Well, there it is, Tommie. Now go to bed."

"All right. You know I'm going to sleep in the hammock tonight."

What They Say.

"What are the Hun shock troops, pa?"

"Those who get one when they meet the Americans, son."



160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Scenes of Prosperity
Are Common in Western Canada

The thousands of U. S. farmers who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops of wheat and other grains.

Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $30 per acre—get $2 a bushel for wheat and raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre you are bound to make money—that's what you can do in Western Canada.

In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta you can get a

HOMESTEAD OF 160 ACRES FREE

and other land at very low prices.

During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley, and Flax. Mixed Farming is as profitable an industry as grain raising. Good schools, churches; markets convenient, climate excellent. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Sta. Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Canadian Government Agents

AUGUST

L 90

0460

Cap'n Ben's Spy Glass

By JONATHAN BANG
of The Vigilantes

Passing through the North station in Boston on my way home one evening last fall, I caught sight of a striking figure that I knew at once.

Taller than most men and slow in his movements, his clothes a combination of nautical and rustic, he stood out like a lone pine tree in a field. He was the ideal type of the old-fashioned New England shipmaster, with an eye as blue as the sky on a summer day. I recalled how I had first seen him at a little town down East where I was spending my summer vacation. He was standing out on the wharf looking out to sea through a large spyglass. We had got into conversation, he had taught me how to use the glass and I had learned how greatly he valued it and had carried it around the world with him on several voyages.

Seeing him again now in the crowded station, I went up to him at once.

"Why, Cap'n Ben," I exclaimed, "where in the world did you come from and what are you doing in Boston?"

"Oh, my daughter is married to a feller that works down in the market district and I've been up here makin' them a visit. I'm goin' back tonight on the train. I'd rather go down by boat, but they have pulled 'em all off on account of the war."

"Well, how is the old spyglass?" I said. "I presume you go down every little while and have a look around just as you did last summer."

Cap'n Ben paused a minute before he answered and then said, "There's quite a little yarn ter spin about that old glass since you last saw her. My train don't go for an hour and if you have the time and would like to hear it I'll spin it to yer."

"Well, Captain, a real yarn from a real sailor isn't to be heard every day. I think that we had better take one of these seats and you reel it off to me."

Old Man Did His Bit.

"Yer know," said Cap'n Ben after being seated, "I told yer last summer that I thought a powerful lot of that glass and I didn't think that she and I would ever part company, and now, by jingo, I've sold her, or just as good as sold her for a dollar."

"Why, Cap'n Ben," I exclaimed, "how did that happen?"

"Well, I'll tell you," resumed Cap'n Ben. "Ever since Uncle Sam went inter this war, I've felt meaner than a skunk that I wa'nt in it. I wrote to Washington and to some kind of a shipping board here in Boston offerin' my services, but they wrote back I was too old. I ain't but seventy-three at that, and then, too, they said that they wanted men who had experience in steam and as I'd been on a windjammer all the time I went to sea, they didn't seem ter have any place for me.

"Well, of course, like everybody else, I was reading in the papers as how the submarines were sinking vessels right and left and how our boys on the destroyers had gone over to help the English ter destroy that special breed of sea lice, and one day I saw a piece saying that the navy was mighty shy of marine glasses of all kinds. It seems that most of them had been made in Germany and we couldn't make them here fast enough because we had to have a lot of 'em right away quick, and this article said that if anybody had a spyglass or a pair of binoculars, if they would send them to the navy department they could use them to mighty good advantage; it said that Uncle Sam would pay a dollar for the use of them and return them after the war, but if they were lost the dollar was to be the purchase price of 'em. It seems that they had to give you the dollar, for there was some kind of a law that wouldn't let you give 'em to the government.

"Well, I got to thinking the thing over, and I concluded that if they wouldn't give me a show, here was a chance for the old glass to do her bit, and I sent her along. My name was engraved on it, had that done years ago, and in about a week I got a letter from this man Roosevelt who is assistant secretary of the navy, saying he had received it.

Glass Saved Thousands of Men.

"Of course I missed the old gal a good deal, but I didn't regret it fer a minute, although I'll admit I didn't bank much on ever seeing her ag'in.

"Well, do you know about three weeks ago I got one of these letters from across that had been opened by the censor; I couldn't imagine who it was from, and I looked at it quite a while before I opened it, but when I did I sure got a good surprise. I've got the letter here in my pocket and you can read it for yourself."

He took out a large, old-fashioned wallet from an inside coat pocket and took a letter from its spacious depths and handed it to me to read.

"Mr. Benj. F. Buck:

"Dear Sir—I have in my possession, aboard the U. S. torpedo destroyer J——, a spyglass on which your name is engraved. As I am aware that a great many patriotic citizens have contributed such articles to the U. S. navy, I take it for granted that you were one of that number. As this glass was only yesterday probably the means of saving the lives of several thousands of our boys on one of our transports, I thought it might interest you to be acquainted with the fact. Of course naval regulations are such that I cannot at present give you the details of the affair, but after the war is over, I hope to meet you and tell you about it. I would like to say in addition how much we appreciate having such a fine glass aboard and we all feel sure that it will help us in the future as it did yesterday.

"Yours truly,
"J. R. E.,
"Commanding Destroyer J——."

"Thar," said Cap'n Ben, "isn't that the windup of quite a yarn? Just think of that old glass saving the lives of so many of our boys! Why, some of them boys on that transport might have been from our own village. Who knows? Do yer know if I hadn't sent them that glass I don't believe I could have looked the women who have sent their boys in the face again.

"Well, so long, Son; my train is in. I guess I must be gettin' aboard. Be sure and come and see us next summer."

MY LETTER TO HIM

By EDNA H. M'COY
of the Vigilantes.

Now this is the letter I write him,
While my heart is sick with dread:
"You are just where you should be, my son,
Standing staunch, where your duty led

"At home we are well and happy,
And cheerful, and proud of our boy,
In this war of the World—laddie—
A soldier son is a joy!

"Your father struts, just a little,
And 'sis' wears your pin all the while,
While I—well the star on your Service Flag,
Brings to my lips a smile."

And I write the little nothings,
Of home, that are much, when away,
The funny things that have happened,
Throughout my homely day.

Then I go and sit by a window,
And look to the rising sun,
Where "over seas"—in the trenches—
He will fight till the victory's won!

Then—going back to my letter
With tear-wet eyes I sign:
"With dear love from your mother
Who is glad her boy's in line!"

WHOSE BOOTS DO YOU BLACK?

By HARRISON RHODES
of the Vigilantes.

The bootblack is one of our greatest national institutions. In Europe he is both rare and incompetent upon the public streets. Here, to sit in a comfortably padded chair on a sunny corner and watch the world go by while a strong and willing toiler polishes your foot coverings till they reflect your handsome face in them is one of the American experiences which makes the average citizen feel, temporarily at least, like a god, at ease with the world and superior to it.

But what about it now? Just how are these strong and willing toilers the bootblacks, helping to win the war against Germany? Isn't their job unnecessary? Wouldn't they, fighting in the front line, or working in the factories or toiling in the wheat fields, be helping America more than by polishing your shoes and mine?

Couldn't we, in fact, polish our own? People used to. There were things covered over with a square of gaudily colored Brussels carpet, which were called boot blacking boxes, usually in every home. And pater familias and the boys at least shined their own shoes. When they went on trips there was a compact traveling kit which they put into their bag. Perhaps the boots weren't done quite so well, perhaps they didn't reflect your handsome face. But which, to put it briefly, is more important, to have your boots polished for you or to whip the Germans?

Does this sound ludicrously trivial to you? It is true that all the bootblacks in the country released for the real services of war time would be but a little part of our military or civilian army. But it cannot be said too often that nothing is too trivial nowadays to be worth paying attention to.

Think it over! Would you rather polish your own boots, or lick the Kaiser's when he gets here?

"THE SNAKY PEACE"—A FABLE

By EUGENE H. BLAKE
of the Vigilantes.

A snake having invited a tame squirrel to play on the ground and enjoy the fallen acorns, swallowed the little animal half down before it knew what had happened.

But the squirrel catching its breath, twisted around and caught the snake's neck.

"The squirrel attacked me," the snake managed to say to a man who had come up with a stick to see what the trouble was.

"Let the man decide what is just," the squirrel offered, "and we will abide by it."

The snake objected: "I must, as things stand today, in the name of the Serpentine Power, decline this court as prejudiced."

The squirrel asked what the snake would agree to.

"An intimate meeting for discussion would be the way to remove the numerous intentional or unintentional misunderstandings. Let us crawl into this hollow log where we can't be annoyed by outsiders and I will cheerfully disgorge and return to the status quo ante."

Just as soon as the belligerents had got out of sight in the log and the snake could finish annexing the rest of the squirrel, its fangs darted out of a knot-hole and sank into the man's foot.

Back-fire: The world had better have a look in at the peace conference.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 4

GROWING STRONGER.

LESSON TEXTS—Luke 2:42-52; II Peter 1:5-8.
(MAY BE USED WITH TEMPERANCE APPLICATIONS.)

GOLDEN TEXT—But the path of the righteous is as the dawning light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day.—Proverbs 4:18.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Ephesians 6:10-18.

PRIMARY LESSON MATERIAL—Luke 2:42-52.

INTERMEDIATE, SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The kind of strength we need; getting it; using it.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Isaiah 40:29-31; Ephesians 3:14-21; Philippians 4:8-13.

I. Jesus Christ Growing (Luke 2:42-52).

While Christ was indeed divine, his deity did not interfere with his development as a human being. The processes of his physical, mental, and spiritual growth were the same as those of any human being.

1. Jesus tarrying behind at Jerusalem (vv. 42, 43).

At the age of twelve a Jewish child took his place as a worshipper in the temple. He was considered a "child of the law." Being conscious of his mission, when Joseph and his mother were returning from attendance at the Passover, he tarried behind to enter the temple and inquired into the meaning of the ordinances of God's House. He had an alert, eager mind, which inquired after the truth, especially the truth concerning his Father's House. His heart yearned after his Father.

2. Jesus found in the temple (vv. 44-50).

When Joseph and Jesus' mother had gone some distance on their return journey they perceived that Jesus was missing, and sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance. Not finding him there, they turned back to Jerusalem where they found him in the temple.

(1) He was "sitting" (v. 46) showing that he was no passing visitor or sightseer. He was perfectly at home in his Father's House.

(2) He was "hearing" the teachers of God's Word (v. 46). This shows he was eager to learn God's will.

(3) He asked questions (v. 46). The growing mind is inquisitive. It more than receives that which is taught; it inquires after.

(4) He answered questions (v. 42). His answers showed great wisdom. It was not an exhibition of his divine wisdom, but an expression of the workings of a perfect human mind suffused by the Holy Spirit.

3. Mary's complaint (vv. 48-50).

She remonstrates with him for his behavior. He made no apology, showing that he was more than the son of Mary; God was his Father.

4. Jesus obedient (v. 51).

Though he was conscious of his divine being and mission, he lived a life of filial obedience.

5. Jesus' development (v. 52).

It was

(1) Mental—"Increased in wisdom."
(2) Physical—"Stature."
(3) Spiritual—"Favor with God and man."

II. Growth in Grace (II Peter 1:3-11).

This is not growth into grace, but growth in it. We get into grace by the new birth. This new nature which has its source in God must be developed in order that our lives be fruitful for God (v. 8), that they bear testimony to the cleansing power of Christ's blood (v. 9), and that we may have assurance of salvation (v. 10). The following are lines of growth:

1. "Virtue" (v. 5).

Virtue here means energy or courage. This is not "added" as in the Authorized Version, but as in the Revised Version which reads: "In your faith supply virtue." It means increase by growth, not by external junction. Faith is the root from which spring all these excellencies.

2. "Knowledge" (v. 5).

This means a right understanding, a practical knowledge.

3. "Temperance" (v. 6).

Temperance means self-control. This self-control extends to all the affairs of life. Practical knowledge will supply to itself the government of all appetites.

4. "Patience" (v. 6).

This means endurance. Having control of self within, there will be endurance of that without.

5. "Godliness" (v. 6).

This means piety, reverence for God, the submission of the human will to the will of God. This is a part of that practical knowledge which we are obliged to supply.

6. "Botherly kindness" (v. 7).

Love of the brethren must be developed in godliness. The proof that one is godly is that he loves the brethren (1 John 5:1). This means the special love of Christians for each other.

7. "Charity" (v. 7).

This is love. Peter's climax is reached in love. Out of faith, which is the root, springs this seven-fold fruit. In order to prevent apostasy, Peter calls all to be diligent in the development of these graces. All such shall endure.

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

Army Makes Record Meat Purchase.

Chicago.—The largest single order for bacon and canned meats in the history of the world—99,560,000 pounds of bacon and 134,000,000 pounds of canned meat—has just been placed by the Quartermaster's Department, U. S. A., for the American Army overseas.

Louis F. Swift, in commenting on this today, said the order will take the bacon from approximately 1,900,000 hogs, and if other work were dropped to produce it, would be equivalent to the total bacon production of the five largest Chicago packers for nearly five weeks. However, six months will elapse before delivery is to be completed. Mr. Swift said:

"At the current prices on the day, made, the packers would pay the live stock producers about $80,000,000 for the necessary hogs and over $50,000,000 for about 900,000 cattle required. The cattle will cost us twice as much, and the hogs two and one-half times as much as in the pre-war period.

The whole order will be made up before the first of the year, despite the fact that, even before this purchase, one-fourth of the packers' facilities have been devoted to filling military demands. In order to get out the canned goods the packers will find it necessary to employ night and day shifts of canners. Notwithstanding the fact that the products are being rushed forward thus hurriedly, not a single complaint has been received on meats delivered to the armies abroad.

The five packers are now killing about 360,000 hogs weekly to keep abreast of martial and domestic needs."

Secretive.

The old farmer had read the repeated warnings about keeping his knowledge to himself during the war, lest information of value might get into the ears of a Hun spy. So when an affable stranger approached him with a smile and looked like he would enjoy a little commonplace conversation, the old fellow was ready for him.

"Looks like it would rain, doesn't it?" suggested the pleasant one.

"It's looked like that afore, an' didn't," snapped the farmer.

"Had any rain in these parts lately?—"

"See here, young feller," roared the food producer, "I don't know who you be, an' goshdinged if I'm agoin' to give out any information like that without I do."

Identified.

The queen of hearts, she made some tarts. "You are certainly a sugar card," we remarked admiringly.

After a man has been disappointed in love he develops into a first class cynic.

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN A WEAK BODY

When you're fifty, your body begins to creak a little at the hinges. Motion is more slow and deliberate. "Not so young as I used to be" is a frequent and unwelcome thought. Certain bodily functions upon which good health and good spirits so much depend, are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Unpleasant symptoms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the inconvenience and pain due to advancing years. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put up in odorless, tasteless capsules. These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles.

Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill, with a small swallow of water. They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules cleanse the kidneys and purify the blood. They frequently ward off attacks of the dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys. They have a beneficial effect, and often completely cure the diseases of the bodily organs, allied with the bladder and kidneys.

If you are troubled with soreness across the loins or with "simple" aches and pains in the back take warning, it may be the preliminary indications of some dreadful malady which can be warded off or cured if taken in time.

Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. GOLD MEDAL are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil Capsules. Accept No Substitutes.—Adv.

Watch Your Stomach In the Summer Time

Hot summer days upset the strong stomachs as well as weak ones.

Your vital forces reach their lowest level when the weather is the hottest. Then the danger is the greatest.

You can't guard your stomach and bowels too carefully through the long, hot season. Don't take any chance. Indigestion, sour stomach, that wretched, bloated feeling, belching, food repeating, pains that claw at stomach and bowels and an endless train of stomach ills that make life miserable are greatly aggravated in the hot weather.

This year of all others—it is vital that we keep our strength and full power at work. The extra war work, change of diet—all must be looked after because they hit us in the stomach. And now it is good news to tell you that tens of thousands are now using EATONIC—for all stomach and bowel ailments caused by too much acidity with such truly wonderful results that every one should always have it in the house.

EATONIC Tablets stop the cause of indigestive and dyspeptic ailments by neutralizing the poisonous fluids, acids and gases largely the result of superacidity. This makes the stomach pain-free and ready to perform its proper work.

You can have a good appetite in hot weather to eat the things you like when you want them if you take one or two EATONIC Tablets after each meal. Such quick, wonderful relief would seem unbelievable but for the fact that thousands of sufferers everywhere have received marvelous results from EATONIC. Obtain a large box of EATONIC Tablets from your own druggist who you know and can trust. If they fail, go back to him and he will gladly refund your money. Do this today. You will then know what real stomach comfort means in hot weather.

SOLDIERS "ADOPTED" BY PIG

Odd Mascot That History Records as Attaching Itself to Company of Kentucky Volunteers.

There is in the history of the state of Kentucky an odd incident in connection with the invasion of Canada by the Kentucky troops in 1812. A company of volunteers, destined for Selby's army, assembled at Harrodsburg and formed a nucleus around which the military recruits of the country gathered on the march to the Ohio.

On the outskirts of the town named, so the story runs, the company saw two pigs fighting and delayed the march to watch the combat. When the march recommenced it was observed that the victorious pig was following the company; and when the men encamped at night, the animal lay down near at hand. Of course the soldiers fed their plump recruit. The next day the pig followed them, and this it did daily on the march to the river.

Overheard.

"Margaret irritates me dreadfully."

"Why?"

"She is so effeminate."

"My, but she must be getting old?"

Many a man's popularity consists of never telling the truth unless it is necessary.

Decidedly an Improvement.

Mrs. Flannigan was doubtful about the new patent carpet sweeper, but the traveler was expert in singing its praises and the result was that she invested in one. Some time later the traveler was passing that way again, and he called on Mrs. Flannagan and asked:

"How do you find the new carpet sweeper working, madam? Far better than the old-fashioned broom, isn't it?"

"Shure," she replied. "It bates the ould broom into fits. Whoy, I can knock ould Flannagan three toimes as fur with it."

For Pimply Faces.

To remove pimples and blackheads smear them with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. For free samples, address "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

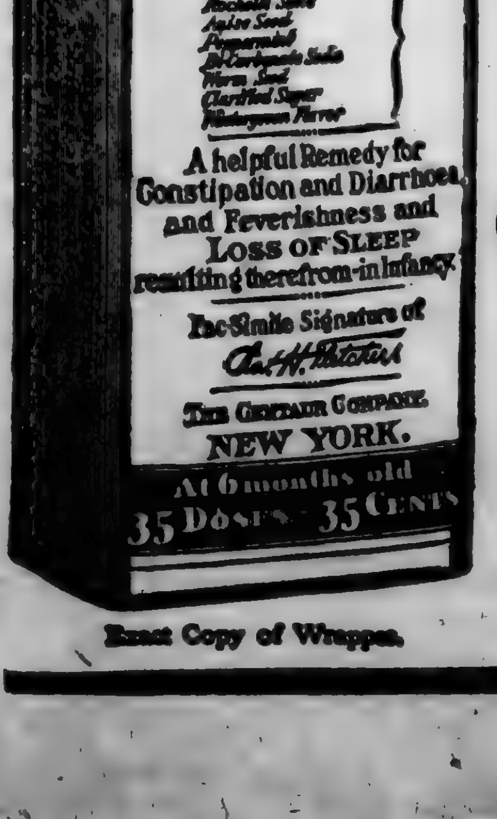
Safest Way, Too.

"Why is it that you never mention your ancestors?"

"Because I believe in letting bygones be bygones."

Solitaire is one of the few games that two cannot play.

Necessity knows more law than a lot of lawyers.



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom-in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES - 35 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

AUGUST

L 90

0461

Walnut Wanted!

We dig them out when the stumps are large and good enough. If you have a tree or two—NOW is the time to dispose of them. The Government needs Gun Stocks and Aeroplane Propellers.

"Do Your Bit"

GOODWIN LUMBER CO.,
Pleasant Lake, Ind.

The Girl With Thirteen Daddies.

Story written especially for The News by Local Talent and is worthy of your weekly attention. Back numbers supplied while they last.

CHAPTER VIII.

The first Sunday of Rev. Choate's stay in Paradise Lost was near at hand. Saturday afternoon came and the young minister began to get ready a room in which to hold services the next day; and, much to his surprise and delight the male population of the town, almost to a man, turned out to assist in the good work. They labored with a will; and the preacher had nothing to do but direct affairs, smile his thanks and secretly congratulate himself over the sudden change for the better. Peddler, Red and Fish Hook, three of his previous most active opponents, were among the busiest ones. Jedge was the only one of the thirteen not present. Paradise Lost was in a kittenish mood: the man capered about while carrying furniture and other needed articles and seemed to derive as much pleasure from the work as school children at a picnic, telegraphing to one another, through the code of the eye, an unbroken series of messages. The mouse saw nothing of this: in his presence, they were polite and deferential—too much so; and their suddenly changed demeanor should have put him on his guard. He forgot Jedge's warning on the evening of his arrival; but the words of Mrs. Dal, "The boys are not bad," encouraged him. He pictured the good woman's pleasure at the success that promised to attend his first meeting.

Others, the preacher was unaware, were busy in another way: they were out inviting mining camps and ranches to attend the coming religious services. They dashed madly up and down the valley, urging their horses as if endeavoring to make the latter keep pace with the spirit of mischief that urged them on. With whoops and swinging hats, they raced up to those whom they sought and a hurrieed conversation followed, which was emphasized by kicks and blows that would have caused resentment on any other occasion and by frequent pointing toward Paradise Lost.

Meanwhile, the preacher was complacently directing the work of furnishing the hall, never dreaming that the devil, through the aid of a lot of frolicsome miners and cowboye, was planning his undoing.

That evening, Choate took a stroll among the hills at the edge of town. The despondency and misgivings of the preceding day were gone, and in their stead was a feeling of elation. He was thinking over his sermon and what was best to impress his hearers. He was so deeply engrossed in thought that he did not know that he was being followed until he heard his name called. He turned and saw Jedge coming. Jedge laid a hand upon the young man's shoulder. "Parson," he entreated, "don't ride no herd on Paradise Lost sinners tomorrow—pull your freight."

"Oh, pshaw! my friend, you apprehend danger where there is none."

"I knows more about Paradise Lost than you do, Parson," and Jedge shook his head dolefully as he spoke. "You'll have a church full o' all the bad men fer miles 'round, an' these here bad men'll be full o' bad whiskey. Bad men an' bad whiskey ain't no good fer church goers. Thar'll be no need fer a pipe organ when the musid begins."

"You are mistaken, Jedge, I am sure you are; but what do you mean by bad men?"

"I mean a lot o' fellers who are soaked full o' cussedness without knowin' it; who don't want to be bad, but jest nacherally can't help it; who are out to have a good time an' don't care how they do it or whose trail they crosses while so doin'. They are mighty quick to get insulted when drinkin' an' likewise mighty quick with thar guns."

"Jedge, I still insist that you are mistaken. However, I wish to thank you for your well meant advice."

Choate held out his hand as he spoke. Jedge shook it without saying a word and turned and walked away; but he looked back over his shoulder and repeated his warning, "Pull your freight." In reply, he received a smile and a friendly wave of the hand. He walked slowly away without offering any further advice.

Early the next morning, the preacher was awakened by the tramp of horses' feet on the streets. He looked out of a window and was pleased at what he saw: Paradise Lost was fast filling up with men. He dressed and went out on the street. He saw something that was not so pleasing: Paradise Lost was crowding the saloons. Jedge's warning came back to him and filled him with apprehension; but this was partly allayed by the seeming friendliness of all he meant, sober and tipsy alike.

Half an hour before the time for services, the preacher entered the hall. It was already packed to the door, some standing up. Allowing for the wearing of hats, the packing of guns and that all had been drinking, no minister ever faced a more orderly congregation. He excused their lack of church manners when he remembered that they wore hats and carried guns everywhere except in bed. If he had had any misgivings when he entered the room, they passed away when he saw what the boys had done—a piano occupied a place at one side of a rostrum that had been built by them overnight. Behind the instrument sat Adobe Mert, the dance hall primi donna. She still bore evidences of former beauty; and she had, in a measure, concealed the ravages of dissipation by the artful use of paint. Funny, isn't it? The female saint and her sinful sister both employ the same methods, one in a silly attempt to improve upon the Almighty's handiwork and the other to hide its defilement, both forgetting that the clown's rightful place is in the circus.

The services began auspiciously: the congregation stood and joined in the singing of several familiar sacred songs, led by Adobe Mert; and Choate was surprised at the quality of the music. When he knelt in prayer, he was surprised to see that a majority of the heads were bowed. Then he announced his text: "He that hath ears to hear let him hear."

Then Paradise Lost and her allies broke loose.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coops, Pastor.

Concord—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching at 8:00 P. M.
St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10:30 A. M.
Followed by the Communion.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00. Teacher Training.
Annual Business Meeting Monday evening, August 5, 8 p. m.
Quarterly Conference at St. Joe on Wednesday evening, August 7, at 8:00 P. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
L. W. Spayd, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.
The pastor will serve with the church n St. Joe, next Sunday.

Lutheran Church Announcements
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m
Preaching at 8:00 p. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

For Sale

Bargain if you act quick. Georage Shutt estate, just opposite Spencerville high school. House, twelve rooms; barn, 30x40; corn crib and hog pen, 20x30; cow barn, 20x35; new chicken coop, 12x15; wood house, 20x25; wind pump, with running water in house; 18 37-100 acres facing on Auburn street for 30 rods. The soil is black loam. The whole farm is a garden. Call, write or telephone.

Howard Benninghoff, Adm'r.
514 Shoaff Bld, Ft. Wayne Ind. Telephone, 479

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale: Jersey cow and two heifer calves. John Knight.

Found: Log chain, east of the Thomas White corners. Call on Geo. Swineford.

For Sale: Two fresh cows with calves, also two to be fresh soon. Inquire of R. U. Bowser, Spencerville, Ind. Phone 36-12

LOST: A bunch of keys numbering four. Finder rewarded. Dr. B. O. Shook.

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved—why Pay $2 Per Pint For Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine, to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. Manufactured by the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Chain Letters to be Stopped.

The State Council of Defense again requests the Chairman of the County Council of Defense to call the attention of the people to chain letters which should be discouraged. There is one chain letter especially which is not authorized by Red Cross or by the National War Council. This is a chain letter for the founding of a certain hospital in France for the treatment of wounds for the face and jaw. It seems this is still being widely circulated in certain parts of the state. We request that every effort be made to break this up. We appeal to the people of DeKalb County to have nothing to do with chain letters whatever.
J. Y. W. McClellan, Chairmna.

Auto Nearly Ruined

While driving home from Robison park Sunday evening, Raymond Rhodes, through no carelessness of his own, had his auto, a Dodge touring car, nearly destroyed by fire. The accident happened near Hurshtown. Here he met Sherman Miller, of Hicksville, who had run out of gas. The latter asked Mr. Rhodes if he could spare some. The Spencerville man replied that he could, as an accommodation. All the gas he had was in the tank at the rear of his car, and it was necessary to draw it out of this. The Hicksville man foolishly lighted a match to see how much gas was in the vessel they were using. The result was an explosion, which set the car afire. The top, upholstery and tires were destroyed; and the loss is estimated at $500. Mr. Rhodes badly burned a hand and an arm trying to put out the fire. With him at the time were his wife, two daughters—LaVerne and Lucile—and Miss Mary Tyndall.

Hunters Reunion

The Maine hunters reunion was held at the home of Harvey Kimes on Sunday. About fifty were entertained at dinner, which was one of the features of the occasion. The following persons were present: Samuel Smith and family, Edward Ely and family, Clyde Dice, Max Bedell and Mr. Cruse, all of Milan Center; Arthur Allen and Alfred Allen, of Scipio; William Wallace and Mervin Widney and families, of St. Joe; Neff Culler and family, of Newville; Dr. Fanning and wife and Dr. Kramer and sister, Clare, of Butler; Elmer Moody and Theodore Dinius, of this place.

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

Lead pencils, pens, ink, tablets, envelopes, mucilage and paste at the NEWS office.

MICKIE SAYS

EMPTYIN' THE WASTEBASKET WOULDN'T HAVE TO BE DID NEAR SO OFFEN IF SOME OF THEM BOOBS THAT'S TRYIN' TO GYP THE BOSS OUTEN A LOT OF FREE ADVERTISIN' WOULD JEST CUT OUT SENDIN' HIM SO MUCH JUNK THRO' THE MAIL

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain; and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necesrities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country. Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE

NEWVILLE

Patronize the advertisers.

Every-day dishes at Kinsey's hardware.

A 9½ lb. daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Omo Richmond, Sunday A. M., July 28.

Miss Tyler, of Kendallville, is a guest in the L. W. Yeiser home for an indefinite length of time.

The Christian Ladies Aid held an ice cream social at the home of Mrs. Stella McNabb, last Thursday evening.

Guy Smith was at home from Ft. Wayne over Sunday. Guy has enlisted in the Navy and expects to go when his call comes.

25 ladies sewed in the Red Cross rooms Tuesday afternoon; 16 dresses were made for the foreign children. Yarn was gave out for sweaters, but the yarn for socks had not yet arrived.

Frank Snellbaker of Swanton, O. came to Newville, Thursday, to get hands to help thresh. Charlie Harter and Howard Smith went home with Mr. Snellbaker. Mrs Harter's baby also accompanied them.

McKinley Beree answered his country's call and went to Auburn Monday to leave for camp. Mrs. Beree is returning to the home of her parents where she will no doubt remain until her husband's return from the service. This couple just recently set up to housekeeping. Nearly every home has felt the blightning touch of war.

And yet there are some that haven't got respect enough for their country that the boys are fighting for to keep it clean. Fellows that could buy and sell the poor devils they are serving will for the paltry sum of $5 or $10 go and fetch a car load of booze; we think a fellow that will bring booze into a dry territory couldn't get any lower if he crawled into a hog wallow.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.00
Six Months,	.50
Three Months,	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5.

Mrs. Manford Smith and daughter Lucile, of Hicksville, were over Sunday guests of Elmer Wyatt and wife.

Elmer Wyatt and wife came home from Ft. Wayne, Friday evening. The former is improving quite well for one of his age.

Send the home paper to that son who is away from home—it's like a letter from home and besides he can depend on getting it every week. $1.00 this month.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

POST CARDS

are now on display at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratulation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent folders.

ST JOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY, PUB.
ST JOE IND.

AUGUST

0462

CASH FOR YOUR CREAM!

SPENCERVILLE is now equipped with a modern cream station. Bring your cream where you will receive prompt and excellent service. We will receive cream each day and evening. We pay highest market price at all times consistent with the market.

You are Assured of Honest Weights and Correct Tests.

GIVE US A TRIAL!

We know you will be satisfied. Nearly all of the farmers in this vicinity are fully acquainted with our method of doing business and know we have built up our business by Fair and Square dealing.

Located in Markle Grocery.

GEORGE FREESE'S SONS
CREAMERIES
NAPPANEE. - - - INDIANA.

Obituary

John S. Wise, son of George and Harriet Wise, was born in Allen county, Indiana, Dec. 15, 1855; and died at Auburn on July 23, aged 62 years, 7 months and 8 days. Death was due to paralysis, from which he suffered two strokes, the first three years ago and the second on the day that the end came.

Since his fifteenth year, deceased passed practically his entire life in this county, residing at Spencerville, Butler and Auburn.

On Sept. 9, 1880, he was united in marriage to Miss Mellie Partee, who, with eight children, survives him. The children are: Mrs. Beulah Vallieu, of Spencerville; Vern V., of Waterloo; Mrs. B. Woodring, near Butler; Ralph, of Jackson township; Don, in France; Clarence, of Auburn; Georgia and Frankie, at home.

When a young man, Mr. Wise united with the Methodist church at Spencerville; and he continued to identify himself with some branch of the Christian church until his death.

Funeral services were held at the home Friday morning. Interment at Spencerville.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

Headache

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN suffer miserably from periodic attacks of headache, never dreaming that a permanent cure may be had. Headache nearly always results from some disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will correct these disorders and there will be no more headache. Many have been permanently cured by Chamberlain's Tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

COLETOWN

Miss Lotis Schoolmaster, of Lansing, Mich., spent the latter part of the week with R. H. Conine and family.

Gladys Sauers was an over Sunday guest at A. E. Hart's at Hicksville.

Lois Coolidge is visiting with her aunt, Mrs. Lewis Haller, at Oakwood, Ohio.

S. Shanks visited Sunday with Alvin Walker and family.

SPENCERVILLE

Cecil Hollopeter, who has been working at Toledo, returned home Saturday.

Fruit jar rings, 10c per dozen--three dozen for 25c.
Kinsey.

Samuel Cole and wife were Friday guests of George Watson and family, west of town.

William Schlatter and family were Sunday guests of Mrs. Schlatter's mother, Mrs. Sylvia Vanzile and son Clifford.

Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Badica and children, of near Ft. Wayne; Anson Dunton and wife, of Huntertown; Mrs. Emila Gloyd and sons, and Edwin Harwood were Sunday dinner guests of Fred Osborne and family.

Frank House and wife, Joel Betz and wife, Vern Wilmot and family, and Mrs. John House, of this place, Glen Betz, wife and son Forest, of Woodburn; Walter Perkinsf wife and son Lloyd, of Harlan, and Charles Boston, of Grabill, were Sunday guests of Edward Billman and wife, east of town.

Subscribe for this paper.

Chicago American at News office.

Ernest Steward and wife spent Wednesday and Thursday in Toledo.

Mrs. A. Kruse, of Ft Wayne, is visiting Miss Minnie Thompson, of east of town.

Frank Wertman and wife and Chas. Gibbons and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Stephen Brown and wife.

Miss Nellie Baltz, a nurse located at Chicago, and Frank Baltz and wife, of Auburn, were Sunday guests of Jacob Baltz and wife.

Miss Josephine Huggins, of Fort Wayne, and David Wells, of Montgomery, Ind., spent the week end with Levi and Jean Mumma.

William Hallabaugh and family visited at the home of his parents, the former coming on Saturday and the latter on Sunday. The elder Mrs. Hallabaugh is bedfast.

During the electric storm which visited this vicinity on Tuesday evening a valuable horse was struck by lightning and killed belonging to John Koch, east of town.

John Emrick and family, of Peru, spent Saturday night with the former's sister, Mrs. Frank Burler, and wife. All motored to Lake James on Sunday and enjoyed an outing.

Patriotic services were held at the Lutheran church Sunday evening, in charge of the Christian Endeavor society. Rev. Mumma delivered a special sermon to the young folks.

Miss Rose Walker and Mrs. Gadhart, of Ft. Wayne; Mrs. Abe Miller, of South Scipio, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Miller, of east of town, were Sunday dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Silberg.

Rev. Glenn Bryan, wife and son, who had been staying at the home of the lady's parents, Mr. Strout and wife, of Geneva, Ind., while he was recovering from an operation for adenoids, returned home on Friday.

Bernie Rhoades and family, of Auburn, spent Sunday at the home of tha former's parents, Charles Rhoades and wife. Two children, Josie and Albert, remained with their grandparents to spend the week.

The Ladies Guild of the M. E. Church was entertained at the home of Mrs. Milton Chaney, last Thursday afternoon. The following guests were present: The Misses Cleo Bowser and Aleen Allen and Mrs. Reason Chaney. Ice cream was served by the hostess.

Charles Freese and wife and Mrs. John Bair and son, Ross, spent Sunday with Dan Metcalf and family, of Auburn.

Swat! Swat! Swat!

When you wake up in the morning
And a fly is buzzing near
And you know he'll soon be horning
Into your defenseless ear,
Wait awhile until you spot him,
Till you know he's off his guard;
Then lift up your hand and swat him—
Swat that buzzer good and hard!

When within your office busy
You try hard to do your work
And a fly makes you so dizzy
'Neath your desk you long to lurk,
Pause until in range you've got him,
Steel your heart, though mercy pleads,
Take the office clock and swat him
Right where Mary wore the beads!

There is lots of satisfaction
In the course that I suggest,
With each victim nerved to action
To abate this insect pest.
When you see a fly just pot him,
Nail him as, of course, you should;
Grab a baseball bat and swat him—
Swat him while the swatting's good!

STARVE THE FLY.

STARVING the fly was added to the swatting of it in Paterson, N. J. The board of health set apart a day for householders to wrap up their food so that the housefly will fail of sustenance.

It was even asked that all refuse food be well wrapped before it is put in garbage cans.

In addition, every one of the 125,000 residents who was able to swat was asked to kill 200 flies.

Miss Edith Haifley was brought home Sunday evening from the hospital at Wayne, where she has been for the past three weeks.

A Call to Every American

War Savings Stamps are a call to the thrift and patriotism of every American—a call that must be met by every man, woman and child who shares the blessings of this free country, if we are to carry on this war as a united people.

What They Are

War Savings Stamps are the most democratic form of government securities ever issued—a profitable, simple and secure investment backed by the entire resources of the government and people of the United States. They steadily increase in value from the date of purchase to the date of maturity—this increase is guaranteed by the government.

These stamps are issued in denominations of $5.00. Thrift Stamps 25 cents each.

The $5 War Savings Stamps

The $5 War Savings Stamp is a stamp for which the government will pay you $5 on January 1, 1923. Its cost to you if bought in February, 1918, is $4.13 (this cost increases one cent each month during 1918)—that is 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly.

Simple, Secure

You don't have to figure interest, nor clip coupons, nor worry about the safety of your loan; the certificates are not transferable, and behind them are the wealth and taxing power of the richest country ever known. You can get your money back, on 10 days' notice, any time you need it.

Invest in U. S. Government
War Savings Stamps
and earn 4% interest on your savings

This space paid for and donated by

ST. JOE NEWS
FRED B. LEIGHTY, PUB.
ST. JOE - - - - - - - - IND.

Marion Keller's babe is quite ill.

Fred Steward was home from Indianapolis on a leave of absence over Sunday. He visited his wife and new son, Frrderick Steward, Jr.

William Burns, the 15-year-old son of John Burns, south of town, was kicked on the arm by a horse as he was hitching up Monday morning, preparatory to going to work. He was brought to town, where it was found that no bones were broken.

Magazines at News office.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
-810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP
Fort Wayne, Ind.

WHITE OXFORDS AND PUMPS!

...ALL...
THE NEW PATTERNS
That are being worn now are here for your selection.

Hot Weather Is Here

And calls for WHITE FOOTWEAR—the most comfortable and cool shoe you can find.

Women's Oxfords or Pumps in high or low heels, $2.00 to $3.50.

Men's White or Palm Beach Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.

Children's Mary Jane Slippers, $1 to $2.

Full line of Rubber Soled Slippers, 80c to $3.00.

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

Office Day—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA
Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

AUGUST

L 90

0463

POLICIES OF THE WAR LABOR BOARD

RIGHT OF UNIONIZED WORKERS TO BARGAIN WITH EMPLOYERS IS UPHELD BY IT.

BETTER CONDITIONS SOUGHT

Great Storage Lumber Depot Opened at Gilmerton, Va.—Conservation of Kerosene Is Urged—Allies' Bombing Planes Now Work in Squadrons.

(From Committee on Public Information.)

Washington.—The war labor policies board has made no rulings, it is announced, making it impossible to change rates of wages or working conditions in industry during the standardization of such pay and conditions for war work. The board does not seek to place restrictions on labor, but is striving to better conditions that will make for satisfaction and greater efficiency.

Enunciating its principles the war labor policies board is committed to the right of workers to organize into trade unions and to bargain collectively with their employers; continuance of existing union standards with the right of the workers to obtain better conditions, wages and hours under decisions of the national war labor board; equal pay for equal work, whether performed by men or by women; recognition of the basic eight-hour day where a law requires it but settlement of all questions of hours of work with due regard to government necessities and the welfare of the workers; maintenance of the maximum of production; due regard for labor standards, wages and other conditions in particular localities; the right of all workers to a living wage, insuring health and reasonable comforts.

Felix Frankfurter, chairman of the war labor policies board, makes this further explanation of the resolution of the board setting forth its principles: "Inasmuch as wage stability was recognized as the essential need by labor and by the government the purpose of the resolution was to prevent changes in the standards which had been created either through an adjustment board such as the labor wage adjustment board of the emergency fleet corporation, or the arsenal and navy yard standards, or the standards which govern the cantonment adjustment board, but under no circumstances was it intended to prevent the lifting of wage scales in specific instances up to the standards."

There were no aerial bombing organizations in the allied flying corps during the first year of the war. Practically all the work in the air was in the nature of observation. No pilots could be spared for anything else. Today probably 25 per cent of the aerial arms are bombing squadrons of 12 machines per squadron.

The first bombing was done by volunteer pilots who flew over the German lines and dropped three or four bombs, made from artillery shells, on concentration camps and cantonments. Showers of small steel arrows were spilled sometimes on convoys, troop trains and bodies of massed men. The Germans began day bombing of cities in 1915, and the allies bombarded Karlsruhe in reprisal later in the same year. Since then evolution in organized bombing developed rapidly and the French began night bombing, but this was not undertaken by the Germans until August, 1916.

At the present time large groups, including several squadrons of bombing machines, go over the lines from time to time and completely destroy their objective, be it a city or a camp, a column of troops or a trench system. Unfortunately the allies' air forces have to travel for many miles over hostile territory defended by anti-aircraft guns to attack Germa ncities, while the enemy can attack French cities by flying only a short distance beyond the allied lines.

The allies are developing large bombing planes which carry sufficient fuel for long excursions and armament to protect them when they are attacked by fighting airplanes. Bombing squadrons are escorted usually over the lines by fast fighting squadrons of 18 planes to a squadron, and then left to their own devices, for the fighters seldom carry sufficient fuel to permit them to accompany the bombers on the round trip.

The dropping of the bomb is similar to shooting a rifle. First you set your sights and wind gauge, you hold the rifle properly, and finally you pull the trigger at the proper moment. If your ammunition is standard your sights correct, you hit the target. So with bombing. If you set your sights correctly, fly your plane correctly over the objective and drop the bomb at the proper time you will hit the target. If the ammunition manufacturers gave you good bombs the objective will be destroyed.

The United States will be short of potash next year. Estimates for 1918 show an available supply of about 500,000 tons of potash salts, or only about half of the normal imports before the war. Commercial fertilizer concerns must bear the brunt of the shortage.

The army needs straw, says the bureau of markets, department of agriculture. Farmers are urged to bale the straw immediately after thrashing, and the bureau of markets will help to market it if asked.

The need of platinum in war industries and in the sciences is explained by Dr. Charles L. Parsons, chief chemist, bureau of mines, department of the interior, in an argument for discontinuance of the use of platinum in jewelry.

"The war cannot be won without platinum," says Doctor Parsons, "and it is equally essential in times of peace if our country is to excel Germany in the development of chemical science and industry. With the aid of platinum from one ordinary wedding ring about 100 pounds of nitric acid can be made every 24 hours. This 100 pounds of nitric acid converted into high explosives will send a number of three-inch shells against the Germans and help to bring the boys back home.

"Platinum rings, pins, cigarette cases, and mesh bags are not factors in winning this war—explosives are. I wonder if the purchasers and wearers of platinum jewelry know that explosives cannot be manufactured without the use of sulphuric and nitric acids; that the manufacture of these acids requires the use of supplies of platinum; that airplanes must have platinum for important instruments they need; that platinum is absolutely necessary in the manufacture of special pyrometers; that pyrometers are necessary in all steel treatments; and that no guns can be made without the use of pyrometers.

"There is a shortage in the supply of platinum. Russia has a corner on the world's supply, and Germany is in Russia. Our domestic production of platinum is negligible, while our military requirements are increasing at a rapid rate."

Many housewives have learned from sad experiences in loss of perishable foods that next to the ice is not the coldest place in the home refrigerator. To the housewife who has not had this experience the food administration gives this advice:

"Many put their butter and milk right next to the ice because they think this is the coldest place, but, as a matter of fact, the coldest place is at the bottom of the refrigerator. Hot air rises and air that is not being constantly purified by circulation around the blocks of ice soon is unfit to come into contact with the food. When the warm air in the refrigerator rises it carries with it impurities and moisture which are absorbed from the surface of the food and which if allowed to remain in the air spoil the food. The air which is warmed by passing over the food comes in contact with the ice, where the moisture is condensed upon the surface and the impurities are carried off by the melting ice. The air is thus dried, cooled and purified. The cooled air immediately descends to gather up more moisture and impurities and thus the process is repeated continually.

"It is advisable to allow heated food to cool off before placing it in the refrigerator. If put in when warm it raises the temperature of the refrigerator higher than it should go and melts ice unnecessarily. The trapdoor through which the meltage passes out at the bottom of the refrigerator should be kept in place, because if it is broken or lost a constant stream of warm air is allowed to flow into the refrigerator."

The war department has opened a great storage lumber depot at Gilmerton, Va., to meet emergency demands of the army for lumber. Through its operation it is estimated that a yearly saving of approximately $250,000 will be effected.

Whenever army constructors in the past were required to buy additional lumber the purchases were made at yards in the immediate vicinity. The average increase in price for this material over the lumber originally purchased for the job would run from $9 to $12 per 1,000 feet. By purchasing in large quantities and charging only for yard maintenance the greater part of this excess price is expected to be saved to the government.

A stock of from twelve to fifteen million feet of lumber will be carried, and it is estimated that the yearly turnover will amount to between fifty and sixty million feet. A fund of $500,000 has been set aside by the war department for use by the construction division of the army as necessary working capital for the yard.

The supply of kerosene will run short next winter and the government is urging every user to do his part toward making every gallon to do full war duty by giving forth its full measure of light and heat. Saving can be accomplished, it is said, only if care is given lamps, lanterns, heaters and stoves.

The director of oil conservation of the United States fuel administration issues these rules for fuel-oil saving:

Keep all lamps and lanterns clean. Let the light out; don't confine it behind smoked and dirty chimneys.

See that burners and wicks of all oil-burning devices are clean. Clean burners require less oil and give better lights.

Don't allow a lamp, lantern, heater or stove to burn a minute longer than is necessary. Don't light one you can do without.

Don't use coal oil for cleaning purposes. Hot water will do the work.

Girls are helping in airplane production by splicing cables and in other ways, according to H. E. Miles, chairman of the section for industrial training for war emergency of the council of national defense.

Secretary Daniels has commended H. E. Allen, chief machinist's mate, and Harry Koppel and William H. Kane, seamen, United States naval reserve forces, for rescuing from drowning Assistant Lighthouse Keeper Austin Foss on June 16.

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

WINTER WORK TO HELP A FARMER

The County Agent in This Picture Traveled 20 Miles on Snowshoes to Explain Tested Farming Methods.

COUNTY AGENT IS QUITE BUSY MAN

Field Workers Entitled to Much Credit for Present Expansion of Agriculture.

DON'T LINGER IN LIMELIGHT

Often Give Unusual Service in Peculiar Way—Put Enthusiasm and Interest Into Work Essential in Bringing Results.

In the present great expansion and development of American agriculture officials of the United States department of agriculture are confident that a large share of credit must be given to the county agricultural agent—the "missionary of better farming" who works co-operatively for the federal government and the states and carries to the farmer the knowledge developed by the specialists and scientists.

The work of the county agent, like every other line of work, is largely routine and it is never spectacular. But there is ample evidence that the county agents as a whole put into their work the enthusiasm and the interest always essential in bringing results. And occasionally, too, may be found instances of unusual work done in an unusual way.

Working on Snowshoes.

The picture with this article shows a county agent who traveled 20 miles on snowshoes to help a farmer. He knew that the farmer wanted an analysis made of his business so that he could know what crops would bring him the largest return. The county agent chose the wintry weather because he knew it would prevent the farmer from doing outside work. So he put on his snowshoes and made the journey over the snowdrifts and rough country of El Paso county, Colorado.

Five years ago there was no purebred live stock in William county, North Dakota, which is well adapted for grazing. The county agent began to advocate live stock raising and now the county has approximately fifteen fine herds of Shorthorn, Angus and Hereford cattle. A demand for purebred cattle is now strong in this county. At two sales last March and June more than two hundred head were sold by Williams county farmers to their neighbors.

Supplying Seed Corn.

Last spring Indiana farmers found they did not have half enough seed corn for their needs. They put up their plight to an assistant state leader for county agents, with the result that the county agents surveyed the state and got accurate estimates from farmers of the amounts needed. The assistant state leader spent several weeks in New Jersey, New York and Delaware and personally selected enough corn to meet the Indiana demand. Preferences in shipping were given to the seed corn and it was delivered in ample time for planting.

In Illinois a county agent was stationed in Chicago with the state council of defense to work on the seed-corn situation. He handled 150,000 bushels of seed corn and met the Illinois demand. The work was financed at first by Chicago bankers and later by the department of agriculture.

An Opportunity Developed.

In Madison county, Kentucky, the county agent found that the farmers in one portion placed little value on the soil and took little interest in trying to improve it. He also found that many farmers of this section were growing in an indifferent way a small acreage of cantaloupes and that the cantaloupes yielded well and were of fine quality. The county agent started in to develop cantaloupe growing and in 1916 induced about twenty farmers to plant small areas to Rocky Ford seed. The result—in 1917 farmers of this section sold 20 cars of cantaloupes with gross returns of over $12,000. Receipts per acre ranged from $150 to $250.

The farmers began to appreciate the value of their land, started sowing winter crops, called upon the county agent concerning silos and began looking about for cattle for their farms. Land that had a slow sale at $25 an acre jumped in two years to $75 an acre, according to report to the United States department of agriculture. Not least important, through the cantaloupe enterprise the county agent gained the confidence of the farmers of the entire county in his work for better farming.

WHAT FARMER THINKS OF THE COUNTY AGENT.

The states relations service of the United States department of agriculture has on file thousands of letters from farmers telling of help they have received from county agents.

The following is quoted from a letter written by W. H. Harvey, a farmer of Long Beach, Cal.:

"Farming is no longer a blundering job. It is growing into a science. To succeed, organization, method, system and scientific knowledge are needed. These steps are developed and brought about or made possible by the right kind of a county agent. He is, therefore, a trained, skilled man in personal touch with the farmer to help solve the thousand and one farm problems as they come up and has at his beck and call the scientific men of this great country."

Cities Need Rat Defenses.

The city is the great stronghold of the rat, its permanent refuge and its last line of defense. The rodents might be destroyed in all rural districts and villages, but if not routed in the cities the whole country would soon be repopulated with rats from these centers of infestation.

Old wooden wharves, brick cellars, extensive lumber yards, ancient factories, grain elevators, markets and many other institutions of cities attract and harbor rats. As a rule the older the city the more rats are found in it, but even in parts rebuilt after large fires they are still to be found, though less abundant. Many large buildings, rat-proof as to walls and foundations, have become infested with rodents through carelessness or oversight of owners or occupants and the animals are intrenched behind fixtures or merchandise. Fortunately it is possible to rout the rats from these hiding places.

The biological survey of the U. S. department of agriculture recommends that cities require that all buildings to be erected shall be made rat-proof under a rigid system of inspection; that all existing buildings with rat-proof walls and foundations be made really rat-proof by closing or screening every opening through which rats might enter; that rat-proofing repairs be applied voluntarily to all buildings that need them. Use of dogs, cats and traps also may bring benefit.

Keep the Garden Going.

Don't let the garden loaf after the crops planted in the spring have been gathered. Plant new crops for fall harvesting and get the maximum benefit from your food plot.

In most sections of the United States nearly all the common garden vegetables can be planted early in August with plenty of time for their maturity before the first killing frost in the autumn. As late garden crops which may follow others the following are suggested:

Beets, Brussels sprouts, late cabbage, cauliflower, celery, sweet corn, kale, peas, spinach and turnips.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

ISN'T IT QUEER!

It clubs him while at work and he loses his job.

It clubs him on the head and sends him to the insane hospital.

It clubs him in the stomach and he has the delirium tremens.

It clubs him in the home and his home is broken up.

It clubs him in the pocketbook and leaves nothing there.

It clubs him in his liberty and throws him into jail.

With its final blow it throws him into an early grave.

Certainly the poor man's club.

—The Connecticut Citizen.

ALCOHOL A DECEIVER.

The experimenter took three substances for the experiment—food, alcohol and hot water. After taking the food he found the heat in the interior of the body increased as the food digested—the organs of the body became filled with warm blood, and the internal temperature became considerably raised. At the same time he found the surface of the body became cold. Hot water and hot tea raised the internal temperature and external temperature, but when he took alcohol a curious thing occurred. When he took it, diluted, of course, it gave him a feeling of warmth. It was the first time he had taken any for many years, and he felt that feeling of warmth, with the result that he asked himself whether they had not been making a mistake all these years, if there was really an increased temperature within the body? When the temperature record was developed, however, it showed that at the very period he had thought his inside was being warmed by the alcohol just the reverse was taking place. The surface temperature had risen considerably, but the internal temperature had gone down. Alcohol was a deceiver. There was no doubt about it in regard to temperature. The actual temperature was falling at the time he thought it was rising. This proved that men taking alcohol before going into the night air were doing a very unwise thing, and possibly preparing themselves to be chilled.—Prof. Sim Woodhead, M. D., University of Cambridge, England.

THE SALOON THE POOR MAN'S WORST ENEMY.

All of a poor man's wealth is invested in his children. The poor man sacrifices his whole life to raise his children and hopes that when they grow up they will be a help to him in his old age. If the rich man's children go to the bad the rich man still has money to support him, but when the poor man's children go to the bad all his wealth is lost and he is left in his old age to a life of misery. The saloon is an institution that robs the poor man of his children and he ought to be against it even more than the rich man.

The rich men will not live where there are saloons. They will have their land deeds fixed up so that no saloons can be established, or they will have laws made to bar out saloons. Some Christian people ease their consciences by having laws made to keep the saloons away from the church doors; but when you drive the saloons away from the rich man's home and the doors of the church, you drive them to the homes of the poor people—the least able of all to withstand their ravages. The poor man cannot drive the saloon away from his door with money, like the rich man, for he has not the money; but he has a vote, and with that vote he can, and should, drive the saloon away from his door.—John F. Cunneen.

HOW THE BREWERS "REFORM" THE SALOONS.

The breweries control 4,952, or 70 per cent, of the licensed saloons of Chicago; own 2,232, or 34 per cent, of the licenses, and own the fixtures in 4,689 saloons, or 67 per cent of the total number. Some of the most notorious dives in Chicago have been under the actual or practical supervision of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing company.

When Mr. Busch issued his statement that the beer interests were going to reform the liquor trade, Federal Judge Landis was considering cases of several brewery agents. When he was told that the Anheuser-Busch Brewery association controlled 32 saloons in East St. Louis, Judge Landis said:

"Here are thirty-two saloons confessedly managed by Mr. Busch's company, and they have been steadfastly breaking the law for at least ten years." Turning to the clerk, the judge said: "I want you to make a transcript of the cases I have tried in this court and send it by special delivery to Mr. Busch; I think it will do him good."

BARLEY AS FOOD OR WASTE?

"When barley is taken to the miller, 80 per cent becomes flour for human food; 40 per cent becomes offal for cattle food.

"When barley is taken to the brewer, 25 per cent only becomes offal for cattle food; 75 per cent is wasted in making a deleterious drink."—Lord Devonport.

EFFICIENCY.

Abstinence is necessary for the highest efficiency.—Admiral Sir John Jellicoe.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE SPORT FISHES.

"Along the seashore," said Daddy, "was a row of very queer-looking objects.

"They were sport fish, not real, alive fish, but sport fish, made out of rubber and covered with oil cloth. Their faces were painted with eyes like the fish have. They had painted fins and painted bodies. In fact they were very gay in color and were all ready to go in the water.

"'I say,' remarked one sport fish, painted mostly in red, 'what do you think we'll do today?'

"'Have you never been here before?' asked the sport fish painted blue and yellow.

"'Never,' said the red sport fish.

"'Ah, you see,' said the blue and yellow sport fish, 'we are blown up like tires of automobiles.'

"'Oh dear,' said the red sport fish, 'when is that going to happen? I'd hate to be blown up. It sounds quite too awful for words. Quite too awful. I'm dreadfully afraid. Oh, why did you tell me this? Was it to warn me that danger is near? Will it happen today? When will it happen? Oh, I am so frightened!'

"'My dear sport fish, calm yourself, calm yourself.'

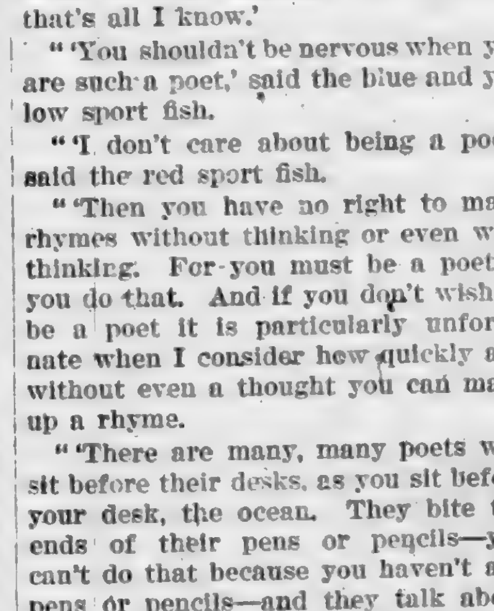
"'It's all very well for you to talk about calming myself. It's a very fine thing to be calm when another creature is going to be blown up. Very fine indeed!

"'But if you think I am looking forward to being blown up, you're very much mistaken, very much mistaken. In fact I am dreading it with every bit of my queer-shaped body. It makes me sad, it makes me mad!'

"'You made a rhyme there,' said the blue and yellow sport fish, 'and that shows you're not so unhappy. We don't make rhymes when we are sad you know.'

"'I didn't mean to make a rhyme,' said the red sport fish. 'You shouldn't tease me so. I didn't really and truly mean to make that rhyme. It just came out of its own accord.'

"'Then,' said the blue and yellow sport fish, 'I admire you all the more. You are a real poet. Rhymes just drop from you, or fall from you, whichever you prefer.'



"What Fun It Is to Be a Sport Fish!"

"'I don't prefer either way,' said the red fish, without thinking much just what he was saying. 'I'm nervous, that's all I know.'

"'You shouldn't be nervous when you are such a poet,' said the blue and yellow sport fish.

"'I don't care about being a poet,' said the red sport fish.

"'Then you have no right to make rhymes without thinking or even with thinking. For you must be a poet if you do that. And if you don't wish to be a poet it is particularly unfortunate when I consider how quickly and without even a thought you can make up a rhyme.

"'There are many, many poets who sit before their desks, as you sit before your desk, the ocean. They bite the ends of their pens or pencils—you can't do that because you haven't any pens or pencils—and they talk about a great idea which is coming to them and they wait and wait for that idea. And what do you think? The idea doesn't come at all, or when it does come it's been such a long time coming that it's pretty well worn out when it gets there. And an idea for a poet means a rhyme. So you're a poet without any effort and that is very fine.'

"'It won't do me any good if I am going to be blown up.'

"'You are already blown up.'

"'I'm blown up now, without knowing it?' asked the red sport fish.

"'Of course,' said the blue and yellow sport fish, 'but you wouldn't give me a chance to tell you so. You became so excited. We're made for the amusement of the swimmers and also for those who can't swim, for we stay on top of the water. We're like life-savers too!'

"'Oh, then I'm glad I'm a sport fish.' And all the sport fishes on the beach looked at each other out of their painted eyes and said, 'We're going to have such fun riding over the breakers with the people on our backs. We'll jump them and ride them, and the breakers will laugh, and the people will laugh too. Oh, what fun it is to be a sport fish.'

"'I'm glad I'm a sport fish,' said the red sport fish a few minutes later when it had been taken for a wonderful ride over the breakers by a modern mermaid in a beautiful purple bathing suit."

AUGUST

L 90

0464

"OVER THE TOP"

By An American Soldier Who Went

Arthur Guy Empey
Machine Gunner, Serving in France

Copyright 1917, by Arthur Guy Empey

EMPEY AND HIS COMRADES REPULSE A FIERCE GAS ATTACK MADE BY THE GERMANS.

Synopsis.—Fired by the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of American lives, Arthur Guy Empey, an American living in Jersey City, goes to England and enlists as a private in the British army. After a short experience as a recruiting officer in London, he is sent to training quarters in France, where he first hears the sound of big guns and makes the acquaintance of "cooties." After a brief period of training Empey's company is sent into the front-line trenches, where he takes his first turn on the fire step while the bullets whiz overhead. Empey learns, as comrade falls, that death lurks always in the trenches. Chaplain distinguishes himself by rescuing wounded men under hot fire. With pick and shovel Empey has experience as a trench digger in No Man's Land. Exciting experience on listening post detail. Exciting work on observation post duty. Back in rest billets Empey writes and stages a successful play. Once more in the front trenches, Empey goes "over the top" in a successful but costly attack on the German lines.

CHAPTER XXIII—Continued.

—19—

A gas helmet is made of cloth, treated with chemicals. There are two windows, or glass eyes, in it, through which you can see. Inside there is a rubber-covered tube, which goes in the mouth. You breathe through your nose; the gas, passing through the cloth helmet, is neutralized by the action of the chemicals. The foul air is exhaled through the tube in the mouth, this tube being so constructed that it prevents the inhaling of the outside air or gas. One helmet is good for five hours of the strongest gas. Each Tommy carries two of them slung around his shoulder in a waterproof canvas bag. He must wear this bag at all times, even while sleeping. To change a defective helmet, you take out the new one, hold your breath, pull the old one off, placing the new one over your head, tucking in the loose ends under the collar of your tunic.

For a minute, pandemonium reigned in our trench—Tommies adjusting their helmets, bombers running here and there, and men turning out of the dugouts with fixed bayonets, to man the fire step.

Re-enforcements were pouring out of the communication trenches.

Our gun's crew were busy mounting the machine gun on the parapet and bringing up extra ammunition from the dugout.

German gas is heavier than air and soon fills the trenches and dugouts, where it has been known to lurk for two or three days, until the air is purified by means of large chemical sprayers.

We had to work quickly, as Fritz generally follows the gas with an infantry attack.

A company man on our right was too slow in getting on his helmet; he sank to the ground, clutching at his throat, and after a few spasmodic twistings went West (died). It was horrible to see him die, but we were powerless to help him. In the corner of a traverse, a little, muddy cur dog, one of the company's pets, was lying dead, with his paws over his nose.

It's the animals that suffer the most—the horses, mules, cattle, dogs, cats and rats—they having no helmets to save them. Tommy does not sympathize with rats in a gas attack.

At times gas has been known to travel, with dire results, fifteen miles behind the lines.

A gas, or smoke helmet, as it is called, at the best is a vile-smelling thing, and it is not long before one gets a violent headache from wearing it.

Our eighteen-pounders were bursting in No Man's Land, in an effort, by the artillery, to disperse the gas clouds.

The fire step was lined with crouching men, bayonets fixed, and bombs near at hand to repel the expected attack.

Our artillery had put a barrage of curtain fire on the German lines, to try and break up their attack and keep back re-enforcements.

I trained my machine gun on their trench and its bullets were raking the parapet.

Then over they came, bayonets glistening. In their respirators, which have a large snout in front, they looked like some horrible nightmare.

All along our trench, rifles and machine guns spoke, our shrapnel was bursting over their heads. They went down in heaps, but new ones took the places of the fallen. Nothing could stop that mad rush. The Germans reached our barbed wire, which had previously been demolished by their shells, then it was bomb against bomb, and the devil for all.

Suddenly my head seemed to burst from a loud "crack" in my ear. Then my head began to swim, throat got dry, and a heavy pressure on the lungs warned me that my helmet was leaking. Turning by gun over to No. 2, I changed helmets.

The trench started to wind like a snake, and sandbags appeared to be floating in the air. The noise was horrible; I sank onto the fire step, needles seemed to be pricking my flesh, then blackness.

I was awakened by one of my mates removing my smoke helmet. How delicious that cool, fresh air felt in my lungs.

A strong wind had arisen and dispersed the gas.

They told me that I had been "out" for three hours; they thought I was dead.

The attack had been repulsed after a hard fight. Twice the Germans had gained a foothold in our trench, but had been driven out by counter-attacks. The trench was filled with their dead and ours. Through a periscope I counted eighteen dead Germans in our wire; they were a ghastly sight in their horrible-looking respirators.

I examined my first smoke helmet. A bullet had gone through it on the left side, just grazing my ear. The gas had penetrated through the hole made in the cloth.

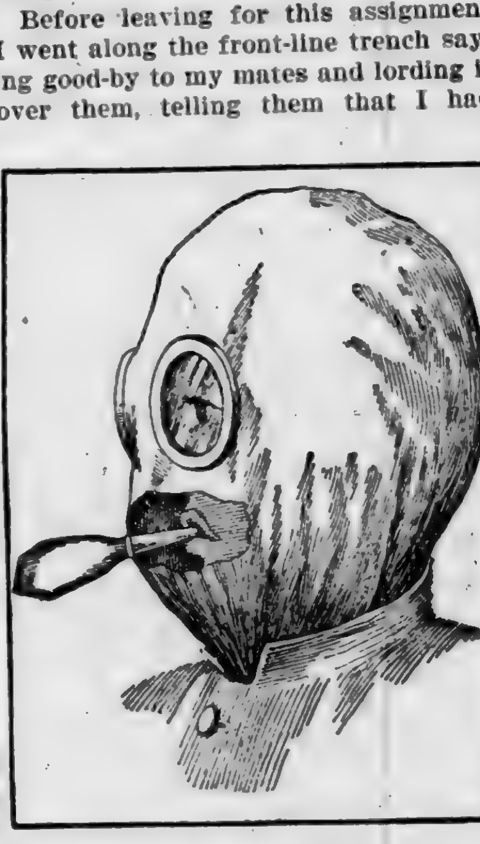
Out of our crew of six we lost two killed and two wounded.

That night we buried all of the dead, excepting those in No Man's Land. In death there is not much distinction; friend and foe are treated alike.

After the wind had dispersed the gas the R. A. M. C. got busy with their chemical sprayers, spraying out the dugouts and low parts of the trenches to dissipate any fumes of the German gas which may have been lurking in same.

Two days after the gas attack I was sent to division headquarters, in answer to an order requesting that captains of units should detail a man whom they thought capable of passing an examination for the divisional intelligence department.

Before leaving for this assignment I went along the front-line trench saying good-by to my mates and lording it over them, telling them that I had clicked a cushy job behind the lines, and how sorry I felt that they had to stay in the front line and argue out the war with Fritz. They were envious but still good-natured, and as I left the trench to go to the rear they shouted after me:



A Gas Helmet.

"Good luck, Yank, old boy; don't forget to send up a few fags to your old mates."

I promised to do this and left.

I reported at headquarters with sixteen others and passed the required examination. Out of the sixteen applicants four were selected.

I was highly elated because I was, I thought, in for a cushy job back at the base.

The next morning the four reported to division headquarters for instructions. Two of the men were sent to large towns in the rear of the lines with an easy job. When it came our turn the officer told us we were good men and had passed a very creditable examination.

My tin hat began to get too small for me, and I noted that the other man, Atwell by name, was sticking his chest out more than usual.

The officer continued: "I think I can use you two men to great advantage in the front line. Here are your orders and instructions, also the pass which gives you full authority as special M. P. detailed on intelligence work. Report at the front line according to your instructions. It is risky work and I wish you both the best of luck."

My heart dropped to zero and Atwell's face was a study. We saluted and left.

That wishing us the "best of luck" sounded very ominous in our ears; if he had said "I wish you both a swift and painless death" it would have been more to the point.

When we had read our instructions we knew we were in for it good and plenty.

What Atwell said is not fit for publication, but I strongly seconded his opinion of the war, army and divisional headquarters in general.

After a bit our spirits rose. We were full-fledged spy-catchers, because our instructions and orders, said so.

We immediately reported to the nearest French estaminet and had several glasses of muddy water, which they called beer. After drinking our beer we left the estaminet and hailed an empty ambulance.

After showing the driver our passes we got in. The driver was going to the part of the line where we had to report.

How the wounded ever survived a ride in that ambulance was inexplicable to me. It was worse than riding on a gun carriage over a rock road.

The driver of the ambulance was a corporal of the R. A. M. C., and he had the "wind up," that is, he had an aversion to being under fire.

I was riding on the seat with him while Atwell was sitting in the ambulance, with his legs hanging out of the back.

As we passed through a shell-destroyed village a mounted military policeman stopped us and informed the driver to be very careful when we got out on the open road, as it was very dangerous, because the Germans lately had acquired the habit of shelling it. The corporal asked the trooper if there was any other way around, and was informed that there was not. Upon this he got very nervous and wanted to turn back, but we insisted that he proceed and explained to him that he would get into serious trouble with his commanding officer if he returned without orders; we wanted to ride, not walk.

From his conversaion we learned that he had recently come from England with a draft and had never been under fire, hence his nervousness.

We convinced him that there was not much danger, and he appeared greatly relieved.

When we at last turned into the open road we were not so confident. On each side there had been a line of trees, but now, all that was left of them were torn and battered stumps. The fields on each side of the road were dotted with recent shell holes, and we passed several in the road itself. We had gone about half a mile when a shell came whistling through the air and burst in a field about three hundred yards to our right. Another soon followed this one and burst on the edge of the road about four hundred yards in front of us.

I told the driver to throw in his speed clutch, as we must be in sight of the Germans. I knew the signs; that battery was ranging for us, and the quicker we got out of its zone of fire the better. The driver was trembling like a leaf, and every minute I expected him to pile us up in the ditch. I preferred the German fire.

In the back Atwell was holding onto the straps for dear life, and was singing at the top of his voice:

We beat you at the Marne,
  We beat you at the Aisne,
We gave you hell at Neuve Chapelle,
  And here we are again.

Just then we hit a small shell hole and nearly capsized. Upon a loud yell from the rear I looked behind, and there was Atwell sitting in the middle of the road, shaking his fist at us. His equipment, which he had taken off upon getting into the ambulance, was strung out on the ground, and his rifle was in the ditch.

Empey is called upon to do duty as a member of a firing squad. His description of the execution is given in the next installment.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Traits of Bird Lovers.

Years ago, during a winter's visit in London, I used to watch the persons who regularly fed the birds in Hyde park. I noticed that most of them were people of apparently humble circumstances, a few pretty close to underfeeding themselves. It was delightful to see how much pleasure they all took in keeping these birds from hunger.

Two that I saw each day for a week or so, evidently husband and wife, I ventured to speak to. Eagerly they talked about the birds as they might have talked about children, noting and relishing individual characteristics.

"We have become so fond of them," said the wife. "They recognize us now, many of them, and a few come to us quite fearlessly. We should feel quite uncomfortable if we should miss a day. They are like members of the family that have to be cared-for."—Exchange.

A Swedish engineer's stoking device makes 1.3 tons of pulverized peat produce as much power in locomotives as a ton of coal.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

RIZZO, DREADNAUGHT CHASER

© BY COM.
ON PUB. INF.

Italy has a mighty hunter, a young sailor who pursues neither men nor beasts, nor yet submarines, but dreadnaughts. Already he has four in his bag, and two of them certainly will never furrow the Adriatic again. He is Commander Luigi Rizzo, knight of the Military Order of Savoy.

On the night of June 10, two Austrian battleships of the Viribis Unitis type stole from the great Austrian base at Pola, surrounded by a wheeling fleet of ten destroyers. Rizzo with two little torpedo boats was cruising through the morning mist off the lower coast. Glimpsing the Austrian ships looming up vague and gray, he ordered full power ahead, darted through a gap in the shielding line of destroyers, slammed a torpedo home against the side of the 20,000-ton Szent Istvan, saw it sinking, launched another torpedo at the following dreadnaught, watched a huge column of spray shoot up as the ship keeled over badly damaged, and then in the confusion slipped away scot free with both his boats. Last December he torpedoed two Austrian battleships in Trieste harbor.

HEADS POLISH WHITE CROSS

Copyright Underwood & Underwood

Mme. Paderewska, wife of Ignace Paderewski, the distinguished musician, is president of the Polish White Cross and through her efforts the organization in this country has recently recruited a unit of nurses for service in France.

These nurses are of splendid material and received their training at St. Vincent's and St. Francis' hospitals in New York. Among them are ten graduate nurses and a number of practical nurses. They are headed by Miss Mary Suchowski, a young woman of much ability and experience.

Only five of these nurses were born in this country. Some were born under German rule—and these have distinct recollections of Hun cruelty and injustice, which now steel them to serve the cause all the better.

Mme. Paderewska devotes her energy and enthusiasm to the Polish White Cross and her husband devotes his time to relief work for Poland and its re-establishment. Through his efforts many thousands of valiant Poles are on the fighting line in France.

GALLANT SURGEON HONORED

Surgeon Wrey G. Farwell, U. S. N., one of the Americans cited for valor in France, is a Washingtonian and is very popular in army and navy circles there. He is a son of Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Farwell, U. S. N., and his wife, formerly Miss Virginia Schaefer, is living at the Washington navy yard with her mother, Mrs. Benjamin White, and her uncle, Dr. Edward F. Green, U. S. N.

Brief cabled reports from General Pershing's headquarters state that Doctor Farwell was with Col. A. W. Catlin, U. S. M. C., when that officer was severely wounded on the firing line, and gave first aid to the stricken man. After his wounds had been dressed by Surgeon Farwell, Colonel Catlin was carried to the rear by Capt. Tribot Elaspierre of the French army and Sergt. Sidney Colford of New York city, who were at his side when he was hit. This, according to the cabled reports, was accomplished under a terrific shellfire. Doctor Farwell, at his own request, was relieved from sea duty last year and detailed with the United States marines when these troops were sent to France eight months ago. He has been in charge of a front-line hospital during the recent heavy fighting in which the American marines have covered themselves with glory. He entered the service 14 years ago, has risen rapidly, and is known as one of the most skillful young surgeons in the navy.

WANTS GREAT BOMBING FLEET

Copyright Underwood & Underwood

W. H. Workman, general manager of the Handley-Page company, Ltd., of London, himself an American, has come to the United States to promote his plan for the construction of 10,000 bombing airplanes, which would be piloted across the Atlantic by American aviators and then used to shower explosives on German-held territory.

In his proposal as made to the war department and the aircraft board Mr. Workman said he believed the planes could be built by April 1, 1919, and that they would go far toward bringing the war to an early end. He added:

"Twenty thousand pilots could easily be trained by May 1, 1918, to fly the Atlantic. All we need are 4,000 in December, and 4,000 each month thereafter, with those who have already been trained. I understand that there are 45,000 applications to the army and navy authorities to join the flying forces."

The first American-built plane of the Handley-Page type was recently completed and christened the Langley. It is designed for a transatlantic flight.

Flowers on Our Hats.

The way flowers are used on the new summer hats is attractive. Really more ingenuity has been shown this year by the milliners than for several years. Sometimes large velvet flowers are appliqued flat against the straw or silk foundation of a turban or other hat. Flowers are massed under tulle, all over the crown and brim. Sometimes a wreath of flowers is used around the edge of the crown, with a band of tulle fastened over them to keep them neatly in place. Many field flowers—daisies and buttercups, with poppies and corn flowers—are also used on the summer hats.

Button Down the Back.

The new trick in clothes is to button the bodice down the back. This was introduced in France five years ago. Young girls are wearing fitted satin bodices cut to a point in front, with high organdie fence collars attached and buttons of jet or bright black bone run in a line that covers the spine.

HUSBAND SAVES WIFE

From Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"For many months I was not able to do my work owing to a weakness which caused backache and headaches. A friend called my attention to one of your newspaper advertisements and immediately my husband bought three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. After taking two bottles I felt fine and my troubles caused by that weakness are a thing of the past. All women who suffer as I did should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JAS. ROHRBERG, 620 Knapp St., N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should accept Mrs. Rohrberg's suggestion and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial.

For over forty years it has been correcting such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

He Found It.

Mr. E. Z. Mark's arrival into the room had been preceded by a good deal of giggling by three small boys. He was always the butt of all jokes and expected no better treatment on this occasion. He knew he was in for a prank and he wished to hurry up and get it over with. "Boys, I don't see any point to this joke at all," he said finally after nothing had happened. "Neither do we," shouted the miscreants, "but there is one." And then he sat down on the pin they had carefully arranged for him.

Mean Betrayal.

"What a high color Miss Pringle has!"

"Well, it's gone up like everything else."

Ford Owners Attention!
A POSITIVE CURE FOR OIL PUMPERS
Ever-Tyte Ford
SPECIAL PISTON RINGS
stop oil carbon deposits and fouled spark plugs.
Increase compression and speed wonderfully.
PAY FOR THEMSELVES IN SIX MONTHS BY SAVING IN GASOLINE AND OIL
Guaranteed to do the work or your money back.
$8.00 PER SET OF 8 RINGS
EVER-TYTES made in all sizes for auto, tractor and gasoline engines. Ask your nearest dealer or write
THE EVER-TIGHT PISTON RING COMPANY
Department F. ST. LOUIS, MO.

ABSORBINE STOPS LAMENESS
from a Bone Spavin, Ring Bone, Splint, Curb, Side Bone, or similar troubles and gets horse going sound. It acts mildly but quickly and good results are lasting. Does not blister or remove the hair and horse can be worked. Page 17 in pamphlet with each bottle tells how. $2.50 a bottle delivered. Horse Book 9 R free.
ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Painful Swellings, Enlarged Glands, Wens, Bruises, Varicose Veins; heals Sores. Allays Pain. Will tell you more if you write. $1.25 a bottle at dealers or delivered. Liberal trial bottle for 10c stamps.
W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Rx Red + Cross Ball Blue
Dr. Wise

First Aid for Laundry Troubles
If every wash-day is a day for the "Blues"—the right blue will send them scuttling away
Red Cross Ball Blue
is the secret of successful washing;—Pure White, dazzling clothes that leaves the happy smile of satisfaction at the end of a day of hard work.
5 Cents. At Your Grocers'

Use Cuticura Soap To Clear Your Skin
All druggists: Soap 25, Ointment 25 & 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, for $1.00.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DE KALB AVE., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

Fiber Brooms Guaranteed one year, $1.25 postpaid. Ask how to get one free. Excellent war substitute. Agents wanted. Keystone Fiber Broom Co., 618 Duquesne Way, Pittsburgh, Pa.

AUGUST

0465

The Man with Money hides his Valuables in Our Safety Deposit Vaults where they are SAFE.
He has no FEAR of Fire or Burglars.

Mobilizing Finances:

It's dead easy when your available cash is all snugly reposing in a sound Bank. You can handle your finances with less cost and trouble. This Bank can render you valuable service in all matters of finance.

Join Our Army of Depositors

and be prepared for the financial battles that face you—Your bank account is always available.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

LOCAL NEWS

LOCAL HISTORY MADE DURING THE PAST WEEK, IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

See Kinsey for your dishes for every-day use.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. S. E. Warner attended the Cincinnati millinery opening at Fort Wayne last week.

—‡—‡—‡—

C. M. Pinchon and wife, of Brookfield, Ill., spent a few days the latter part of the week with the former's sister, Mrs. W. H. Randall, and husband.

—‡—‡—‡—

S. N. Brunson and family, of near Butler, A. D. Brunson and wife and Mrs. Tom Brunson and babe were Friday evening guests at the C. C. Bassett home.

—‡—‡—‡—

A line was received Monday from Tom Brunson, who is located at Louisville, Ky., in which he says he is fine, although quite warm. His address is: 2d Co., 1 Tr. Bu., 159th Depot Brigade.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mesdames Ella Patterson and Bessie Tustison spent Friday at Fort Wayne. Miss Marie Otis, who is their guest and who had been spending a few days there, returned home with them.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Norma Brown and Miss Kathleen Phillips, of Butler, and Mrs. Zelphia Steward and babe, of Spencerville, were over-Sunday guests of Mrs. Elma Brown. Miss Helen Place was also a Sunday guest.

Mrs. Ed Miser spent Saturday at Auburn.

—‡—‡—‡—

Elder and Mrs. Joseph Scholes, of Johnstown, Pa., came Tuesday for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Mary Scholes, and other relatives.

—‡—‡—‡—

J. O. Copp, of Detroit, spent from Saturday until Tuesday with his parents, Ab Copp and wife. He went to Hamilton to visit relatives before returning home.

—‡—‡—‡—

H. C. Hathaway and wife, accompanied by Mesdames Ceil Rainier and Josephine Hathaway, of Garrett, spent Friday night and Saturday at Pierceton, the guests of Will Booth and family.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Gladys Cruikshank returned on Monday to her home at Fostoria, Ohio, after a two weeks' visit at the F. M. Thornton home. Dr. and Mrs. Klinger and Mr. Culbertson and wife, of Garrett, were Sunday guests.

—‡—‡—‡—

Every time you stick a thrift or war saving stamp on your card, you are mailing money to yourself to be received later with interest. Cashing in these stamps is going to be better than "getting money from home," for with the money comes the reminder that you contributed to the great victory which then will have been completely won.

NOTICE
TO SCHOOL SCHOLARS!

WE have provided to handle the School Books this year—and have a complete supply of school necessities for all the grades. You needn't worry where to get your supply. All school books and supplies are strictly sold for CASH.

DO NOT ASK FOR CREDIT!

ELZA R. KINSEY.

Cups, saucers and deep dishes at Kinsey's.

—‡—‡—‡—

Archie Cummins and family are moving to Fort Wayne this week.

—‡—‡—‡—

George Kees spent Sunday at the Bowman cottage at Hamilton lake.

—‡—‡—‡—

Quenten Myers, of Hamilton, spent Sunday here, the guest of Dorothy Bowman.

—‡—‡—‡—

Wayne Sharp and wife, of near Edgerton, spent Thursday evening with J. C. Abel and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

B. V. Widney came home ill from Albion on Friday, but was able to return to his duties again on Monday.

—‡—‡—‡—

George Kinsey and wife spent Friday at Auburn, guests of the latter's parents, Charles Jenkins and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

Nelson Thomas returned home on Friday, after spending a week with his son, Charles Thomas, of Reading, Mich.

—‡—‡—‡—

O. E. Cannon, wife and son, Morris, Miss Florence Storer, and John Ulm, wife and son, Fred, spent Sunday at Hamilton lake.

—‡—‡—‡—

Frank Curie, wife and daughters, Mary and Ruth, and Merritt Sechler were Sunday guests of H. L Dunkle and wife, of New Haven.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Sherman Rickett, who is at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Anton Boviski, in Minnesota, reports the recent birth of a daughter to Mr. Boviski and wife.

—‡—‡—‡—

William Cobler and family left Friday for their home at Williamson, W. Va., after a week's visit with Mrs. Cobler's sister, Mrs. Margaret Cannon, and other relatives.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Rose Widney is improving rapidly from injuries received a few weeks ago by falling from a manger to the cement floor of the barn. She is home again and able to be about the house.

—‡—‡—‡—

Abe Mason, wife and daughters, Mabel and Georgia, of Auburn, were Sunday dinner guests at the Durwood Ridgway home. Miss Mabel remained for a few days' visit with St. Joe relatives.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Adam Shilling is home from the Lutheran hospital at Ft. Wayne, and is much improved. She has regained the sight of one eye as the result of an operation; and the removal of a tumor has bettered her general health.

—‡—‡—‡—

Misses Opal Haley and Gladys Bandilier, of Angola, accompanied Miss Norma Gamble home Saturday and visited here over Sunday. They returned to school on Monday, and Iris Gamble went with them for a few days' visit.

—‡—‡—‡—

If you wish to know the latest about milking a kicking cow, see J. E. Ulm, as he recently had experience along that line. He hangs them up on the rack; and then, besides, brushes their teeth with a broom. And, say, it was funny, too.

—‡—‡—‡—

The following party spent Sunday at Hamilton's grove: Richard Clark and wife, of Fort Wayne; A. D. Perry and wife, Clyde Mason, wife and daughter, Vivian, George Wilmot, wife and sons, Carlton and Keith, Ray Herrick, wife and sons, Russell and Clayton.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. L W. Spayd gave the monthly missionary talk at the Christian church last Sunday morning before the study hour. Another star was added to the service flag hanging in this church. It represented Donald Snyder, who left on July 23 for Camp Taylor.

—‡—‡—‡—

Charles Bassett, who enlisted in the service a few weeks ago, is stationed at LaFayette as master mechanic. He likes his work fine. Walter Keesler and Carl Bassett saw him Sunday. Carl will enlist in the coast artillery in another week, as soon as he completes his visit at Attica and other points.

...This paper has enlisted with the government in the cause of America for the period of the war......

Harry Hursh and wife and Gordon Dill, of Garrett, were over-Sunday guests at the Marsh Andress home.

—‡—‡—‡—

The White family reunion will be held at Eckhart park, Auburn, on Sunday, Aug. 18; and the Draggoo reunion at Rome City on Aug. 11.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Katherine Kinsey returned home Friday evening from a three weeks' visit with her brother, Walter Kinsey, and wife, of Jackson, Mich.

—‡—‡—‡—

Among the contracts for new bridges to be let by the commissioners on Aug. 7 is one in Newville township between sections Nos. 17 and 18.

—‡—‡—‡—

Indiana stood second among the states for cash sales in the war savings and thrift stamp campaign during June. Not only did Indiana win second place in the per capita of cash sales, but also in the gross amount of sales.

—‡—‡—‡—

Last Thursday, George N. Delucenay, of Newville township, lost a steer, valued at $166, by lightning. The animal was grazing near a wire fence, which it followed for nearly 20 rods. The steer was the best in the herd. Claim has been filed with the Farmers' Mutual Insurance company.

Legal Notice

Notice is hereby given that there will be a meeting of the members of the St. Joe Methodist Protestant Church at their regular place of worship on Monday evening, August 5, 1918, at 8:00 P. M., for the election of a trustee.

John C. Coons, Pastor.

B. E. Widney }
E. R. Kinsey } Trustees.
Adam Shilling }

Sheriff's Sale

DeKalb Mortgage Loan Company vs. Oliver Greenfield, Clara Greenfield and George F. Burgoyne.

No. 4.266.—In the DeKalb Circuit Court, State of Indiana

By virtue of an order of sale, to me directed and delivered by the clerk of said court, in the above entitled cause, I have levied upon and will expose for sale by public auction at the court house door, in said county, between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock p. m., on the

31st Day of August, 1918

the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following described premises, viz:

A part of the west one-half of the northwest quarter of Section thirty (30), in Township thirty-three (33) north, of Range fifteen (15) east, described as follows: Commencing at the northeast corner of the said west one-half and running thence west on the north line of said land thirty-two (32) rods; thence south parallel with the west line of said section to within sixty (60) rods of the center line of said section running east and west; thence east on a line parallel with the south line of said section thirty-two (32) rods to the east line of said land; thence on a straight line to place of beginning; containing twenty (20) acres of land more or less, all in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

And on failure to realize therefrom the full amount of the judgment, interest thereon and costs, I will at the same time, and in the manner aforesaid, offer for sale the fee simple of the above described premises. Taken as the property of the defendant to satisfy said order of sale.

FRANK BALTZ, Sheriff
DeKalb County.

C. M. BROWN, Attorney.

Aug 1-8-15

Reduce the eat in wheat and meat and toot the tute in substitute

Smith Serves the Red Cross

By T. J. EDMONDS,

Director of Civilian Relief of the Potomac Division.

I.

"Well," said Smith as he walked into my office, "I've wound up all my business interests."

"What for?" I said as I rose to greet the man I had known in my home city years before.

"So I could offer myself if I'm worth having. I've got to get into the game. Anything useful and human. I'm ready for marching orders."

"Worth having?" I echoed. "You've dropped like a God-send. We've got the biggest man-sized job you ever tions. You're going straight with the Home Service. Something useful and human? Why, in a week this thing will be gripping you so that you'll eat and sleep it!"

II.

The Home Service Section of a big Red Cross chapter was in session. As Smith and I arrived they were discussing the problem of a soldier's wife and six children found living in two tenement rooms in a building that had been condemned because of a leaky roof, mouldy floor and lack of fire protection. They had sold most of their furniture piece by piece for current living expenses. The children had no change of clothing. There was no income and, because of the mother's condition, no possibility of one, except the expected allotment and allowance, which even when it came would not entirely meet the cost of living in the city. The Home Service worker had given a generous sum of money to meet the urgent needs, and now the committee was planning to rent better quarters, move the family, secure medical and nursing attention for the woman, outfit them all with clothing and furniture and keep regularly in touch with the family.

III.

In Smith's next case the Home Service Section and the tuberculosis society had arranged hospital care for a man discharged because of tuberculosis contracted "in the line of duty." Some attorney had told him he would get compensation for him on a fifty-fifty basis, but the lawyer-member of the Home Service Section helped him fill out the proper form which the Red Cross office supplied and assured him that no discharged soldier or soldier's beneficiary should ever pay for collecting either compensation or insurance.

IV.

A member of the women's uniformed corps drove us in her machine out to a camp where there are 80,000 men.

Here we met the Red Cross Home Service man. We didn't take his time—we just watched him. One moment he was helping a man to fill out duplicate allotment blanks; the next he was arguing the merits of insuring to the limit; the next he was wiring a Home Service Section to visit a man's family; next he was going with a boy who had received a tragic telegram from home to see the commanding officer about a leave of absense; then he was speeding on his way a poor fellow discharged because of permanent injury; then we saw him talking to a soldier and a girl wife at the hostess' house; and as the shadows fell he was closeted with a worried chap, who was telling him about an impending mortgage foreclosure and an expected baby.

V.

Later the same evening we saw him stand up in the Liberty theater and, his eyes glowing with the service picture in his own mind and his voice ringing with the conviction of his own enthusiasm, tell a thousand young fellows what Home Service is. He painted homes made happier by Home Service—told of friends for fighters' families found by the Red Cross—pictured devoted Home Service workers fighting the country's battles this side the trenches. When he ended some fellow struck up "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

We were silent for a long while on the way home, Smith and I. Finally Smith broke out:

"Can I do it? The sort of thing—camp service, you call it? Why, that's where I want to be—at the point of first contact with those living problems. Pershing was right when he said, 'The thing most needful to the American fighting forces overseas is anything and everything that will contribute to the morale of the men in service.'

"Home Service—I see it now—means morale. When can I go to work?"

Steel in His Eye

Last Thursday, while engaged in sharpening a plow point at the Ford garage, St. Joe, David Baughman got a piece of steel in his right eye. He went to his physician several times, but the latter was unable to remove it. So on Saturday he was taken to a specialist at Ft. Wayne, where the eye was operated upon and the steel removed, necessitating an incision on the eyeball one-quarter of an inch long. It was a narrow escape from losing the eye entirely, as the steel was barbed like a fish hook.

Mr. Baughman is improving and does not suffer as much pain as before.

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

Rev. L. W. Spayd was a Sunday dinner guest at the Saxe Hadsell home.

—‡—‡—‡—

The Martha society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Arminta Northrup.

—‡—‡—‡—

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer.

—‡—‡—‡—

John Knight and daughters, Evelyn and Dorotha, and sister, Miss Esther Knight, were Sunday dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Shefer.

—‡—‡—‡—

The Lutheran Sunday school will start on an automobile trip to New York by classes in a contest next Sunday. Come and learn the details.

—‡—‡—‡—

J. P. Buckingham and wife spent from Saturday until Tuesday at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Margaret Foltz, of Continental, Ohio.

—‡—‡—‡—

W. H. Randall and wife accompanied their guests, C. M. Pinchon and wife, of Chicago, as far as Wolf Lake, where all visited until Monday, when they returned to their respective homes.

—‡—‡—‡—

The three ticket offices at Auburn Junction have been consolidated under one management. J. W. Huffman will have charge of all the work, with assistants. This is due to governmental control.

—‡—‡—‡—

Will Hamilton, wife and daughter, Margaret, Mrs. H. G. Provines and son, James, and Mrs. Katherine Hamilton motored to Defiance on Sunday and visited at the Lee O. Tustison home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Diplomas were presented to six of the Lutheran teachers' training class Sunday morning by M. T. Bishop, superintendent, who made the presentation speech. The six are Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma, Miss Jean Mumma, Mrs. Jennie Sechler, Mrs. Retta Hathaway and Mrs. Grace Dilley.

A Sluggish Liver Needs Attention

An Inactive Liver Affects the Kidneys and Deranges the Stomach and Bowels.

Too much stress can not be placed on the necessity of keeping the liver in good condition; upon it the health of the body largely depends. When the liver becomes sluggish, the kidneys are overworked, the digestive fluids are not properly secreted and a languid, bilious, nervous or sick headachy condition results. Poisonous matter accumulates within the body. Constipation, bloating, dizziness, belching, pain or soreness in the right side, impaired vision and, in fact, most diseases have their origin in an inactive liver. An inactive liver is easily corrected if taken in time, but the only way to doctor is to get at the cause. Glando Tonic is a liver remedy that has a splendid record for renewing activity, removing the poisons and building up the system. For bilious attacks, it can not be beaten. Mothers who are nursing a baby should take Glando Tonic to keep the bowels well regulated. This will keep baby's bowels in a good condition. Glando Tonic is a three-in-one treatment that brings results. A trial will convince the most skeptical. Testimonials will be furnished upon request. Glando Tonic is sold by druggists or may be obtained by sending 50c direct to the Grand-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AUGUST

L 90

0466

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 8 1918 NO. 32

Letter From "Coxey"

NEWPORT NEWS, Va, July 31.

FRIEND FRED:—

I am going to try and tell you of some of the warlike things we see here on the eastern coast around Norfolk, Hampton, Fortress Monroe, Newport News, etc., all within 25 miles of one another; and in the list you may include Yorktown, Jamestown, Old Point Comfort, Cape Charles, Cape Henry and smaller towns and hamlets all bending every energy toward the support of and carrying on of the war.

The reason for such extraordinary activity at this center is because of the excellent harbor and shipping facilities supplied by the James river. A safer port can not be desired. We are 20 miles inland, practically immune from any attack except from aircraft, and even that is provided for by anti aircraft guns, powerful search lights, etc

The ship yards here are very extensive, employing 12,000 men. There are two dry-docks, each large enough to accommodate a 600-foot transport, where all kinds of marine repairs can be made in the shortest order. They are building freighters, transports, destroyers, etc., here. In fact, can build any class of craft that floats; but attention is given now to the above types.

More troops are shipped from this point than from any other port in the United States on account of the safety of embarkation. They load by day as well as by night. The other evening, Will Maxwell and I inspected a big liner that had been loading for two or three days. We were within a few hundred feet of her, and the way soldiers were swarming over her reminded us of a large ant hill with its millions of insects roaming over it. They tell us that there is a fleet of fourteen transports putting out now for "over there." Week before last, twenty-five sailed from here; and during June and July, 300,000 soldiers left this port.

There are eight large camps within 20 miles of Newport News, including two aviation fields. There are many receiving stations for troops en route to ship; and nearly every night, a vast bunch of them pass through the city afoot, headed for the docks. Every day, many trainloads are turned over to the overseas transportation companies, and never stop here only to rest for a short time.

I might go on and tell much more, but it really is too big for me to attemyt to describe. I can not grasp the magnitude of it, even after seeing it personally.

Now, a few words about Newport News and I have finished. I imagine no such conditions ever existed before in any city in the United States. Two years ago, it was a city of 20,000 inhabitants—a quiet, peaceful, lazy town of old Virginia; non-progressive, dead, deteriorating. Today, more than 100,000 people are trying to adjust themselves to accommodations for one-fifth that number. Many sleep out in the parks and in the open, the only places they find not occupied. People who have rooms to rent or food to sell are getting rich hand over fist. Will ate 90c worth last night and then went to bed hungry. Laborers are being shipped in here by the hundreds every day, lured by the attractive wages; and they can get them, too. These men are employed by large concerns building barracks, cantonments, housings for ship yards workers, etc.; and it was estimated last week that there were more than 50,000 such laborers in the city. Is it any wonder that it costs to live?

Our own party belongs to this great aggregation. We are employed by the Hampton Construction company, and we are all under one boss. Our entire gang numbers about twenty. We are building soldiers' barracks. Today, Maxwell was working on windows, Baughman and Scholes were siding and Williams and myself were laying floor. Williams and Baughman are from Auburn, and came with our crowd two weeks ago.

Say, I haven't begun to tell you anything yet; and, as I said before, it is too many for me. I will close ere you vote me a chair in the "Ananias" club. C. A. WOODCOX.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

George Chapman, Aged 60 years, Shoots Wife Three Times and Then Takes His Own Life—Lived in Spencerville for Years Before Moving to Fort Wayne—Wife Expected to Recover says Dr. Zehr.

Geo. Chapman

Mrs. Chapman

George Chapman (60) is dead and Mrs. Chapman (42) lies at St. Joseph's hospital with three bullets in her body, as the result of a tragedy which occurred at their home, 419 West Third street, shortly before 7 o'clock Monday morning. Both were taken to the hospital, the man dying on arriving there, the result of drinking four ounces of carbolic acid and slashing his throat with a razor from ear to ear.

The tragedy, which is the climax of years of trouble between the two people, was witnessed by three of the children, who were still in bed. Fred, the oldest child living at home, had gone to work. There is another, Mrs. Anna Hunt, who lives in New York.

Chapman had not been staying with his family, as the result of a restraining order secured by his wife in connection with divorce proceedings. He went to the house Monday morning and called for Mrs. Chapman. When she came, he stepped into the house and, drawing a 38-calibre revolver, fired three shots into her back. Chapman then drew from his pocket a bottle containing four ounces of carbolic acid and drained the contents.

Dr. N. Zehr, who attended the injured woman, stated last night that Mrs. Chapman was resting comparatively easy and had a fair chance for recovery.—Ft. Wayne Journal-Gazette.

Chapman and his family once lived at Spencerville. They left there five or six years ago. Mrs. Chapman's maiden name was Ina Soule.

Vacation week

There will be no issue of The News next week as the editor and family will enjoy their week off instead of at the Holiday time. The office will be open for business as usual with Mr. Carson, our printer in charge. Your wants will be attended to just the same.

Injured by a Bull

Martin Davis, a retired farmer of Spencer township, was probably fatally injured at the home of his son-in-law, Henry Walter, 2 miles east of Spencerville, Monday evening.

Mr. Davis and his son had gone to the Walter home on an errand; and while the younger man was doing chores, the old gentleman stepped out into the barn yard. His presence infuriated the bull, which was confined in a pen nearby. The animal broke through the gate leading to the yard and attacked Mr. Davis, who was thrown down and gored and trampled. His chest was nearly crushed in and he was injured internally. He has not yet regained consciousness, and physicians think he will not recover.

The unfortunate man is 84 years old.

Later.—Mr. Davis passed away about 9:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Red Cross Department

No woman can fail to hear the call for service that goes out from the Red Cross. Socks for soldiers are wanted—thousands of them. With every pair she knits, the American woman does her part against the Germans as truly as though she wielded a bayonet instead of needles; for she is helping to keep her son or her brother or her sweetheart healthy and comfortable. It is the dreaded "trench foot" that causes this extraordinary demand for woolen socks. An attack of "trench foot" disables a soldier as completely as a German bullet; and, with the winter coming on, the boys in the water and mud of the trenches must be protected from it. Scrupulous care will be taken: the feet of the soldier will be inspeced twice a day, and officers will be held responsible for the early detection of the disease; and dry socks—plenty of them—will be the chief preventive, and so each of our boys over there will have from four to six pairs of socks. May not any woman be proud to know that a soldier fighting in the mud and icy slush of the trenches is wearing a pair of socks carefully knit by her? This Red Cross work is as democratic as the draft itself, which is taking to France the youth from all the elements that go to make up the American people.

Twenty-seven ladies met at the sewing room last Wednesday afternoon and completed the quota for August. The ladies sewed on Wednesday of this week, making articles to be sold on Aug. 16.

Old papers and magazines gathered up in June by Mesdames Bearss, Abel and Bassett and recently sold to Mr. Barney added $11.75 to the Red Cross treasury.

The August Red Cross shipment for August was as follows:

NEWVILLE

Bed shirts	3
Bed socks, pairs	10
Chemise	5
Pinafores	15

ST JOE

Pinafores	24
Bed socks, pairs	26
Chemise	6
Surgical dressings:—
T bandages	15
Abdominal bandages	15
Many-tailed bandages	5
Gauze rolls	15
" strips	40
" compresses	50
" sponges	80
Absorbent pads	12
Stacks of gauze squares containing ten each	2

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Mesdames James and John Maurer and the latter's daughter, of Coldwater, spent Thursday with Mrs. W. H. Randall.

Word has been received that George Jackson, son of C. W. Jackson, south of Hicksville, was killed in action recently over in France. The deceased hero is a grand-nephew of Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

Sunday School Report.

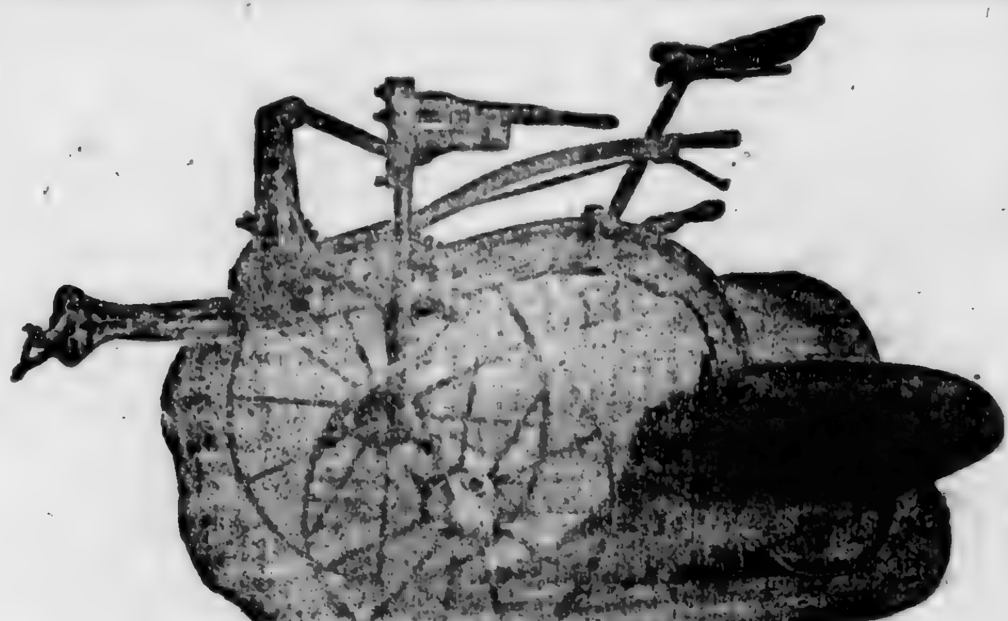
The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday

M. P.	90	3.00
Lutheran	88	2.91
Christian	50	2.43
M. E. Spencer	90	4.45
Lutheran	130	4.46
Concord	71	1.94
Coburntown	69	2.80

PROTECT
Your Grain

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.



IT'S TIME TO PLOW NOW.

and we are going to make a special price on some of our stock as follows:

Bryan riding plow
Special price............ $40.00

Oliver riding plow
No. 11, Special price.......... $60.00
(With Combination Jointer all complete.)

Walking plows while they last at only.......... $25.00

A complete line of Disc Rollers—a necessary implement.

CURIE'S

4½%

LIBERTY LOAN ANTICIPATION
U. S. Certificates of Indebtedness
Dated June 25, 1918—Due October 24, 1918.

The Banks of this country have been called upon by the Treasury Department of the U. S. Government to purchase Certificates of Indebtedness in anticipation of the Fourth Liberty Loan. This bank, believing it to be its patriotic duty to respond to this call, will take its full quota of these Certificates from time to time as the Treasury Department needs funds to finance the war.

To the people of this community, who have responed so loyally in purchasing past issues of Liberty Bonds and who expect to take bonds of the Fourth Loan, and to those who may desire a short-time Government investment, we recommend the purchase of these Certificates, which we will supply in denominations of $500, $1,000 and upwards without profit to this bank.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

The Most Complete Stock of DRUGS
and Drug Store Goods in Northeastern Indiana will be found at STAMAN'S.

Large stock of Spray Material, Rexall Remedies, Kodaks and Supplies—in fact you will find every thing here that you would expect in an Up-to-Date Drug Store. We shall esteem it an honor to become your druggist.

ASHTON STAMAN
The Rexall Store
AUBURN

Important Order of U. S. Food Administr'n

gives Mills and Elevators the right to exchange flour for wheat at the rate of 8 pounds per person per month and you can have your supply until October 1, 1918. If you are a Farmer and bring in wheat grown by you, also if you sign the following certificate.

Bring This With You.

Certificate to be signed by Farmer exchanging wheat for flour.

I.................................... hereby certify that the wheat this day delivered by me to St. Joe Elevator of St. Joe, Indiana, was grown by me on my farm, that the amount of flour to be delivered to me, together with that already on hand, will not give me a supply more than sufficient to meet the requirements of my household or establishment, under the regulations of the United States Food Administration, that I will not sell, lend or deliver said flour to anyone, nor permit such flour to be used for any purpose except for human consumption in my household or establishment.

Signature..
Address..

For more particulars call on us.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

AUGUST

L 90

0467

"Carrying On" in France

By LT. CURTIS WHEELER
of The Vigilantes

(These two pictures of French life are given in a recent letter from France by the author of "Letters from an American Soldier to His Father.")

Before I turn over for good this one of many other pages, I must draw for you two little pictures.

The first I saw one sunny afternoon when the shadows were beginning to lengthen out. Three of us, Americans all, were walking down a country road that bordered a rolling field. In the distance, at the end of one long straight black furrow, a figure was toiling at a two-horse plow. As it turned and started back, after considerable confusion, we could make out two horses, a steady old white one, and a frisky bay. The old white horse plodded steadily along in the furrow just made, using what little strength he had as cleverly as an aged expressman. But the bay, being little more than a colt, bounded up into draught and back again, to left and right, like a green wheel-horse on a caisson. As the team came closer, we looked with amazement at the figure guiding it. It was a boy of ten.

The French two-horse plow is hung different from ours, and does not require as much weight on the handles; but even so, he had practically to ride it all the way. It was plain that guiding it when it threatened to twist off or up required every ounce of strength the kiddy had. Yet each moment he applied it at just the right moment and just the right place, so the furrow remained deep and true.

As the team came just below us in the field and started to turn for the next furrow, something went wrong. The boy was busy swinging his plow around and didn't see it in time. When he looked at the horses they were all tangled up, the bay lunging desperately into her old team-mate. He had only a single rein to the nigh horse and on this he yanked and shrilled at them valiantly enough. They quieted obediently at the sound of his voice, but seemed unable to move. He dashed forward cracking his whip, but nothing happened.

Never Felt So Ashamed.

Then I saw where the bay had her off hind snarled up in the trace, and hopped off down the road. It was only a second's work to lift her foot out and straighten the trace. As I stood up the youngster came to me, thanked me, and looked at me squarely with his clear blue eyes. I have never felt so ashamed in all my life.

There he stood, the sweat of a long day's work beaded on his brow, in ridiculous big looped-up trousers and huge wooden shoes—his father's. And there we stood, three great hulking, broad-shouldered figures against the sun, who had done no man's work all that day. There might be other days, to be sure, but this day was gone, and here was this boy, plowing for France.

There was an awkward silence and one of the men, moved curiously by I know not what, offered the youngster a package of cigarettes. He smiled and shook his head, saying, obviously enough, "ne fume pas." "For your father," insisted the man, and I wished the words unsaid; "or your brother." The boy said nothing for a minute, his eyes clouding a little, and in the interval he had grown much larger than we. We stood before him like truants. Finally he took the cigarettes, wadded them down into his bagging trousers, chirruped cheerfully enough to his team, and plodded sturdily on across the field. Behind us, on the hill-top, three crosses stood black against the sun.

The second picture I saw but two days before I left, as I was walking up the hill to dinner. The sun had set as I left the village and the frogs in the pond below the horse-trough, where the ducks quacked and dabbled in the mud all day, were beginning to sing their evening song. Suddenly I heard the pitter-patter of many feet. The road ahead was packed as far as the next turn with sheep. On they came, butting each other from side to side and occasionally baaing querulously. Their even, gray-white backs seemed to pave the road evenly from side to side, until you began to see, darting back and forth, scores of little lambs.

As I watched, two mongrel dogs, guardians of the flock, came bounding silently along one side. A lamb had strayed up on the bank there and they pounced upon it to turn it back. But one of them bit too deep, and not even pure sheep-dogs are always proof against blood. I saw what would happen in a minute and leaped on the bank. At my approach, the dogs skulked off like a military policeman discovered in a cafe after closing hours. The lamb lay motionless, blood running from its nose.

The Mothers of France.

I called the universal French appeal for someone, anyone—"Dis donc!" and was answered immediately. The sheep huddled stupidly in the road below, in sight of home, while a little girl toiled up the bank. She looked at the lamb dispassionately, kicked it, and it rose to its feet immediately and rushed back to the flock, too frightened almost to bleat.

Then she called the nearest dog. He pretended not to hear at first, and then crawled up to her on his belly. She held him by one ear, and kicked with all her might at his stomach. He shut his eyes and screamed for mercy, but never budged. This finished, she let him go, and he squatted behind her, watching what he knew would follow.

Then, while it grew darker, she called the other dog, who was now just a shadow on the hillside. She was very, very small, but she was absolutely determined and eventually he came cringing up. The other dog waited till she was through, and then they both raced back to their proper places on either flank of the flock and started to drive the sheep on home.

When the dogs stood on their feet without cringing they came up almost to the little girl's shoulder. I do not think she was more than eight years old. She smiled at me, with the unselfconsciousness of little children, and hastened back to the flock. I stood there for some time watching her tiny figure striding down the road, driving the flock before her. No one could have any doubt that she would handle any situation which might arise. Of such are the mothers of France.

MOTHER OF MEN

By ALICE WARD BAILEY
of the Vigilantes.

Mother of men, do not mourn,
  They have said that your boys must go.
And your empty arms
And your soul's alarms
  Are now all that life can show—
But look at the flag so proudly borne!
Mother of men, do not mourn.

Mother of men, do not mourn,
  They are taking your mirth and joy;
But gladness comes
With the roll of the drums
  To the heart of each marching boy,
While Right and Honor aloft are borne!
Mother of men, do not mourn.

Mother of men, do not mourn,
  They have broken your heart, you say;
And the radiant gleams
Of our happy dreams
  Have all been driven astray—
But for Heaven and Earth your cross is borne—
Mother of men, do not mourn!

BRAVADO AND THE WAR

By ROBERT GRANT
of the Vigilantes.

Recently during an intermission at the movies a performer came out and sang with gusto a song, which pleased the audience about "Pershing Crossing the Rhine." Every few days one reads headlines in the newspapers proclaiming that nine Americans have repulsed or vanquished 33 Germans. This is baleful talk. Our delay in the production of ships and airplanes and guns may have been unavoidable, seeing that some people are thanking God that the United States entered the war unprepared, but we should at least refrain from bravado, stop boasting of what we are going to do and recognize the gravity of our undertaking. I heard an American officer high in command say not long ago, "If our troops ever reach Berlin, when they come to a certain building—the quarters of the German military staff, let them lift their hats." He spoke from the point of view of military prowess.

It is meet for Americans to bear in mind that all other wars which they or any other people have fought were child's play compared with this the most terrible and relentless contest in history, and that their part in it has only just begun. Let us cease to hug the delusion that our troops are "over there" to show the others how to fight and that all will soon be over but the shouting. Let us open our minds to the grim truth that this war which we have pledged ourselves to win is likely to be a supreme test of American energy, endurance and self-sacrifice and to cost thousands of American lives. We are all of the belief that no man is braver than an American, but it is indispensable that we appreciate the quality of the foe against whom we are pitted; that he is the arch-fiend of military competency and power, the ruthless, unwearying embodiment of masterly force and resistance, a monster of resourcefulness such as the world has never seen.

The prophecy that Pershing will cross the Rhine had better be postponed until he arrives in sight of it, and the confidence that two of Uncle Sam's soldiers can handle three of the enemy be put in cold storage until a later stage of the conflict.

DON'T SELL YOUR BOND

By HAROLD A. LAMB
of the Vigilantes.

Your Liberty bond—whether it is for $50 or $5,000—is your savings. To sell it is to lose your savings. The longer you keep your bond, the more valuable it is going to be.

It does no good to Uncle Sam to subscribe to his loan, and then sell the amount of your subscription. Many of us have strained ourselves to buy the bonds, and necessity may force some of us to get the money back. But the way to do this is not to sell a bond. Dishonest sharpers will take your bonds and give you, say, $80 for the $100.

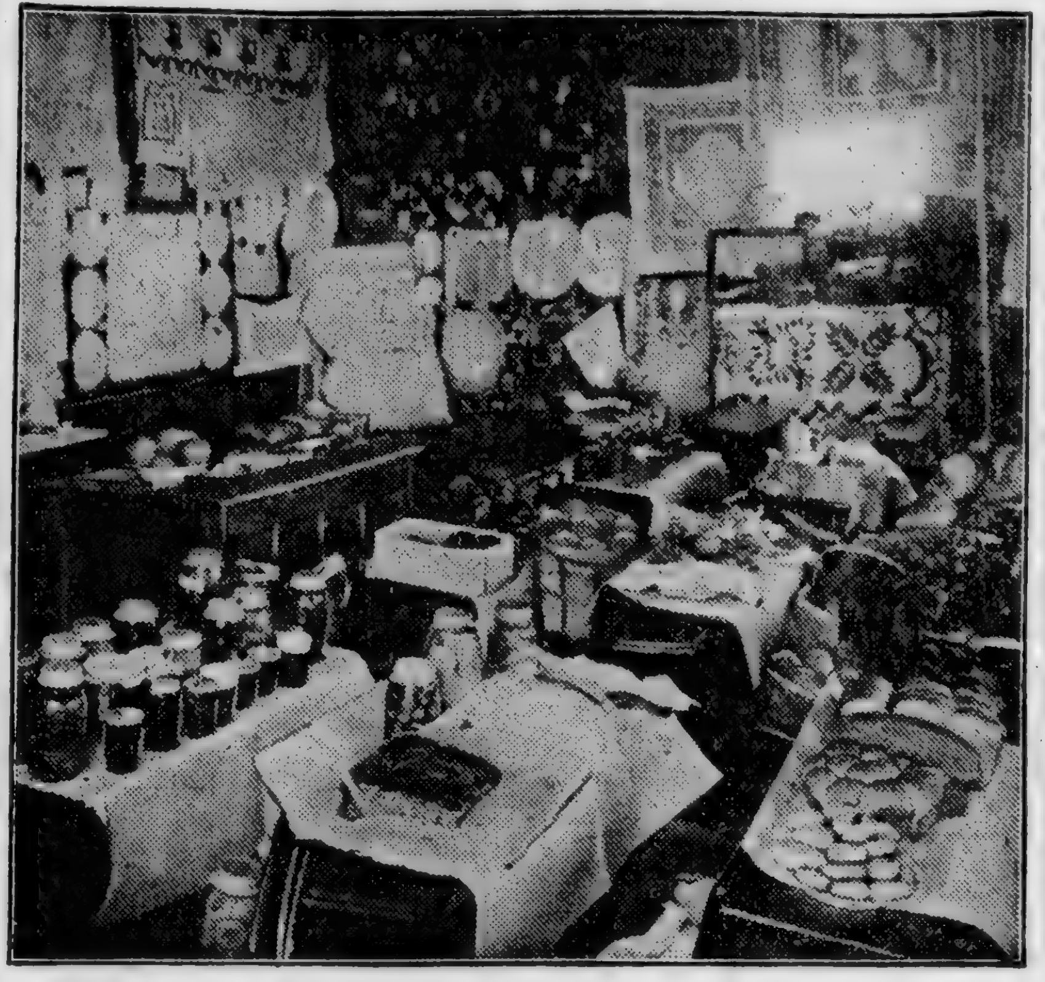
If you must have money, go to a reliable bank or broker. They will lend you $90 on the $100, and the interest on your bond will nearly pay the interest on the money they lend you. Then by paying the loan, you can have the bond back.

Uncle Sam's securities are making money for you while you hold them. Two years after the war ends they will be worth—it is estimated—$110. If the war ends in three years or under you will then be receiving 6¼ per cent—on the safest investment in the world!

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

COMMUNITY FAIRS SPELL CO-OPERATION



The Schoolhouse Makes a Central Place to Hold a Community Fair.

COMMUNITY FAIR FOSTERS RIVALRY

Farmers and Families Co-operate With Neighbors in Exhibiting Best Products.

PEOPLE BROUGHT TOGETHER

First Step Is to Interest Leaders, Then Elect Officers and Appoint Committees — Ribbons Usually Awarded as Premiums.

John Jones' basket of potatoes takes the blue ribbon at the fair, and immediately every farmer in the community secretly plans to take that prize away from Jones next year. And Jones, seeing Jim Brown's winning corn, resolves that next time he will add that premium to his other trophies.

And so on down the line of all exhibits, the community fair fosters the spirit of friendly rivalry. It calls not only for the exhibition of the best products that have been grown and the best work that has been done, but it includes as well games, athletic contests, pageants and other features which bring the men and women and the boys and girls together for wholesome recreation.

The first step toward holding a community fair is to interest the leaders of the community; the second is to call a meeting of the whole community to elect officers and appoint committees to have charge of the work. The fair should be well advertised, and effort should be made to secure exhibits from as many persons as possible, rather than to secure exhibits of exceptional quality. For premiums ribbons are usually awarded rather than cash payments. As most of the preparations for the fair are made by volunteer workers, the small amount of money required for incidental expenses can be raised by subscription or by the sale of advertising space in the catalogue or on the program. There should be no entry fees or admission charge.

Grouping the Exhibits.

While it is to be expected that the exhibits at a community fair will receive special attention for the purpose of exhibition, nevertheless they should represent as nearly as possible the normal production of the community, for one of the purposes of holding a community fair is to stimulate a desire to increase the quantity and to improve the quality of the average product. Freak exhibits of all kinds are to be avoided.

Personal solicitation has been found to be the most effective means of inducing people to make exhibits. Each exhibitor should realize that he is in competition only with other members of the community and that it will not be possible for some stranger to take all the prizes.

Satisfactory results are usually obtained in community fairs by grouping certain classes of exhibits. Thus, in the live stock department, horses, cattle, swine, poultry, and pets are exhibited. In the farm products department are shown different varieties of grains and seeds, grasses and forage crops, field beans and peas, peanuts and potatoes, together with dairy products and bee products. The orchard and garden department includes such exhibits as fruits and vegetables, ornamental shrubbery, and flowers.

The woman's work and fine arts department includes prepared foods, canned goods, jellies, preserves, and pickles, and all kinds of needlework, together with such exhibits as paintings, metal work, raffia and reed basket work, pottery, painted china, and handmade jewelry.

The school and club department includes all exhibits from organizations in the community which wish to bring the results of their work before the community in this way.

The historical relics department includes firearms, swords, caps, and other war relics, old looms, spinning wheels, and articles produced on them, old pictures, drawings, documents, Indian relics, family relics, geological specimens, and objects of interest from other lands.

Ribbons for Prizes.

Experience has proved that the awarding of money prizes not only makes the cost of a fair prohibitive, but, by placing the emphasis on money instead of on the honor of achievement, defeats the purpose of the fair. The best results have been obtained where ribbons have been awarded, the color of the ribbon denoting the grade of the prize. If money is available for printing the ribbons, each one should be so printed as to show the occasion, place, and date. Awards should be made on the basis of the excellence of the exhibit, and no premium should be awarded to a poor exhibit. Accordingly, for the information of exhibitors, it is well to publish for each class of exhibits the requirements that are to be considered by the judges in awarding premiums.

The managements of county fairs are beginning to realize the value of the community exhibit as a factor in making the county fair serve its purpose as an agricultural exhibition. Liberal premiums have been offered for these community exhibits, either in cash or in such form as to be of community use, as, for example, reference books on agricultural subjects to be kept in the community library, a watering trough conveniently located, or a drinking fountain. One state has recently passed a law providing for the holding of community fairs and appropriating money for the purpose of packing community exhibits and transporting them to the larger fairs.

EXHIBITS IN ONE COUNTY.

An interesting county fair, made up of 72 community exhibits, was recently held in a county in the Middle West. There were no races or side-shows. The 10,000 people in attendance spent their time for two days in visiting and inspecting the exhibits and in wholesome recreation under the supervision of an expert recreational director from a neighboring city. The exhibits, occupying in all about 15,000 square feet of floor space, and 55,000 square feet of wall space, were housed in vacant buildings on the business street and in tents. Each community had its booths, and the several committees vied with each other in making attractive exhibits of the products of the farm, home and school.

Honey in Place of Sugar.

The simplest way of using honey is to serve it like jam or sirup with bread, breakfast cereals, boiled rice, pancakes, and other mild-flavored foods. As ordinarily used on bread, an ounce of honey "spreads" as many slices as an ounce of jam. When it is to be used in the place of sugar some people dilute it by mixing it with hot water, which has the effect of making it not only less sweet but also easier to pour.

Honey or a mixture of honey and sugar sirup can be satisfactorily used for sweetening lemonade and other fruit drinks. Sirup of any kind is more convenient for this purpose than undissolved sugar, and when charged water is to be added it has a further advantage, since it has less tendency to expel the gas.

The fact that honey consists principally of sugar and water and is slightly acid suggests that it is a suitable substitute for molasses in cookery.

HOW FARM FOLKS HELP IN THE WAR

Little Stories From Real Life Illustrating How They Back Up Uncle Sam.

LIBERTY BONDS TEACH THRIFT

Encourage Saving Habit in Those Who Never Saved Before—Great Crisis Demands the Best From All of Us.

By HERBERT MYRICK.
President of the National Farm Power Group of Agricultural Papers.

Did you read that item in the newspapers the other day, of a one-time distinguished and prosperous citizen of Chicago who died suddenly in the hospital, unknown, alone, unloved? He was an old man, a victim of adversity, forgotten by the acquaintances of his prosperity. The authorities were about to consign the body to the potters' field when they found in his pocket a Liberty bond for $50 and a certificate of a fraternal lodge to which he had once belonged. That society was notified and gave him a Christian burial, the undertaker and cemetery accepting the bond in payment for coffin and lot.

Jamie, We Salute You!

A good man and true is Jamie Bliss, age five years, who lives with mamma and papa on a farm near Eau Claire, Wis. Jamie had heard all the discussion about Liberty bonds and Thrift stamps, and, not yet being established in business for himself, was puzzled a little to know how such a little boy could have a part in this great undertaking. At the same time he learned how sorely our fighting men need wool and the great idea came to him. Without consulting anyone, Jamie started about the farm harvesting from hedges and wire fences the little wisps of wool left there as his father's sheep pastured. As a result of his expedition Jamie came into the house with his pockets and inside of his waist bulging with wool. Mamma Bliss was somewhat astonished when he explained that he was gathering wool to sell so he could buy Thrift stamps, but being a wise mother, she saw the point quickly.

Since then Honorable Jamie, wool gatherer to Uncle Sam, makes daily excursions to the sheep pasture. Already his mamma has purchased two $5 War Savings stamps and a good start toward another one. This, folks, is something which was not taught out of a book, but it is a sample of the patriotic citizenship now growing up, ready to stand at the helm a few decades hence.

Becoming a Bondholder.

Among my friends for years is a hard-working farmer with wife and several children. He never seemed to quite "get there." Though he worked hard, he just lacked the knack of getting a bit ahead. During the past year he seemed to have prospered. When I saw him last week he said:

"It's this way: I subscribed $50 for a Liberty bond last year, and simply had to pay for it. I did so by paying in every dollar I could spare, instead of spending money for things we could just as well do without. It is curious how one accumulates if they go at it that way.

"I see now that one reason why I never saved any money was because I didn't have anything like this to take my cash a little at a time. I used to think that I would begin saving when I had my bills paid and $25 to the good, but I have discovered at this late date that the way to do it is to save a little at a time and put it by as you get it. I have been surprised to find that the same is true of so many other farmers, especially renters. What they have put into the Liberty bond is money that would have slipped through their fingers. They would have nothing to show for it, whereas now they have got a bond earning good interest, while their money is helping to lick the kaiser. My first bond is now paid in full and I am beginning to save up my subscription to the fourth Liberty bond."

This reminds me of still another case where the boys and girls have earned and saved along with their parents until their subscription for each of the three Liberty loans are now paid up. They did not see how they could raise the money for their first subscription, but their second was double that, and the third was still larger. The oldest boy was taken by the draft, which made the family all the more determined. The mother is saving her egg money, each of the children has a bit of a garden from which they are selling stuff, one of the girls is a member of the pig club, and the oldest boy still at home has quarter of an acre of onions that promises a splendid crop. The father is harvesting a heavy crop of wheat, and last spring made up his mind to devote not less than one third of the proceeds to the war. This one family is planning to subscribe $1,000 for the fourth Liberty loan, and if all goes well, will be able to pay down nearly half the amount.

A Horde of Huns at Your Door.

You know what they would do to you and your women—a fate far worse than death. You know how Huns have laid bare the countryside they have conquered—no animal or plant allowed to survive, even trees and vines cut off close to the ground. Rural homes demolished, barns burned.

You know how the Boches enslave the farmers of Belgium, Poland, the Ukraine. Words cannot depict the horror of it.

To prevent the same thing happening right here to you and your family, to your own community, state and nation—that is what our boys are fighting for "over there."

It is a question of right over might! Shall liberty be destroyed by slavery? This is the question the war is to answer for you and me and for generations yet unborn.

This final struggle for the survival of the fittest among humans demands every ounce of our energy, every cent of our money. Noble men and women are patriotically devoting some or all of their time, without money and without price, to help Uncle Sam win a victory. Others are giving produce or money to the good cause. Millions of our healthiest young men, the very seed of the race, are sacrificing their lives that you and I and others may live in peace.

The very least that each of us can do now is to lend our money to Uncle Sam so that he will have the funds with which to fight. The war is costing billions. The only way the government can get the money is to borrow it from the people or tax it out of them. The more the public lends to the government, the less taxes it will have to pay.

You can help in this crisis by subscribing to the fourth Liberty loan. These government bonds are the safest investment on earth. They are absolutely good. They yield good interest. You can get your interest money twice a year. If you have to use your principal, you can sell your bond any minute, or you can use it as security at the bank to borrow for temporary wants. The latter is the better way, because it doesn't help the government any for you to sell your bond or for somebody else to buy your bond. Get your bond direct from the government; then your money goes direct to the government and will be used by it to pay the wages of soldiers and sailors and to furnish the ships and munitions with which they shall win the victory.

Must Do Our Best.

It is up to each of us to do not our bit but our best. It's a question of life or death. Simplify, economize, go without things, so that the effort, time, thought and money thus saved may be transmuted into the things that shall enable the American flag to fly over Berlin—a symbol of the new civilization which is to insure peace through victory.

In our rural homes, on our farms, in the trenches, in other branches of service, in subscriptions to the Liberty bonds and War stamps, our American farmers have repeatedly gone over the top. Their efforts, their patriotism, their loyalty, have been universally recognized. Now in this fourth Liberty loan our rural folks will show the same generous confidence in the eternal principles of human liberty and of self government that were championed by those Middlesex farmers:

"Their flags to April breeze unfurled,
When fired the shot heard 'round the world."

LIBERTY BOND IN FIRE

Mixed With Newspapers It Was Used for Kindling.

Mrs. Charles Stoeckel of Georgetown, Del., found it rather cool and damp one day recently and decided to kindle a little wood fire in one of her stoves. She used an old newspaper or two picked up from the center table, to start the wood. Among the papers was a $50 Liberty bond that her husband had just purchased at the bank for his daughter, Nellie, and had laid on the table until he could present it. The bond was burned to ashes, but Stoeckel is trying to get a new one, as he has the number and the bank officials distinctly remember him buying it.

Build Ship in Fifteen Days.

Workman, Clark & Co., shipbuilders at Belfast, Ireland, have achieved a world's record in completing an 8,000-ton standard vessel in fifteen days after she was launched.

GOES WOOING IN AN AIRSHIP

Maiden's Neighbors in London Suburb Have Fears for Their Roofs.

London.—A pretty bit of chivalry was seen in a London suburb the other day. Early in the morning the knight-errant was out on his airplane and was flying low—so low as to make the tenants of the terrace anxious about their roofs.

On the miniature lawn in the center of the 30-foot garden the maiden waited until there fluttered down through the morning mist a little streamer of white material. It missed the garden and fell into the roadway.

The maiden rushed out and picked up her love letter.

The neighbors' curtains resumed their stillness, and the little episode of these grim days was closed.

Discard Hun Music Books.

San Francisco.—Because several songs in the music books used in California public schools savored of German origin, with perhaps a trace of the well-known German propaganda in them, the state board of education has decreed that the books must go into the discard. A new series has been prepared for the pupils, which, it is announced, is "free from all German taint."

AUGUST

0468

"OVER THE TOP"

BY

AN AMERICAN SOLDIER WHO WENT

ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

MACHINE GUNNER, SERVING IN FRANCE

©1917 BY ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

EMPEY IS MEMBER OF FIRING SQUAD WHICH CARRIES OUT DEATH SENTENCE.

Synopsis.—Fired by the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of American lives, Arthur Guy Empey, an American living in Jersey City, goes to England and enlists as a private in the British army. After a short experience as a recruiting officer in London, he is sent to training quarters in France, where he first hears the sound of big guns and makes the acquaintance of "cooties." After a brief period of training Empey's company is sent into the front-line trenches, where he takes his first turn on the fire step while the bullets whiz overhead. Empey learns, as comrade falls, that death lurks always in the trenches. Chaplain distinguishes himself by rescuing wounded men under hot fire. With pick and shovel Empey has experience as a trench digger in No Man's Land. Exciting experience on listening post detail. Exciting work on observation post duty. Back in rest billets Empey writes and stages a successful play. Once more in the front trenches, Empey goes "over the top" in a successful but costly attack on the German lines. Soon afterwards Empey and his comrades repulse a determined gas attack launched by the Germans.

CHAPTER XXIII—Continued.

—20—

I shouted to the driver to stop, and in his nervousness he put on the brakes. We nearly pitched out headfirst. But the applying of those brakes saved our lives. The next instant there was a blinding flash and a deafening report. All that I remember is that I was flying through the air, and wondering if I would land in a soft spot. Then the lights went out.

When I came to, Atwell was pouring water on my head out of his bottle. On the other side of the road the corporal was sitting, rubbing a lump on his forehead with his left hand, while his right arm was bound up in a blood-soaked bandage. He was moaning very loudly. I had an awful headache and the skin on the left side of my face was full of gravel and the blood was trickling from my nose.

But that ambulance was turned over in the ditch and was perforated with holes from fragments of the shell. One of the front wheels was slowly revolving, so I could not have been "out" for a long period.

The shells were still screaming overhead, but the battery had raised its fire and they were bursting in a little wood about half a mile from us.

Atwell spoke up. "I wish that officer hadn't wished us the best o' luck." Then he commenced swearing. I couldn't help laughing, though my head was nigh to bursting.

Slowly rising to my feet I felt myself all over to make sure that there were no broken bones. But outside of a few bruises and scratches I was all right. The corporal was still moaning, but more from shock than pain. A shell splinter had gone through the flesh of his right forearm. Atwell and I, from our first-aid pouches, put a tourniquet on his arm to stop the bleeding and then gathered up our equipment.

We realized that we were in a dangerous spot. At any minute a shell might drop on the road and finish us off. The village we had left was not very far, so we told the corporal he had better go back to it and get his arm dressed, and then report the fact of the destruction of the ambulance to the military police. He was well able to walk, so he set off in the direction of the village, while Atwell and I continued our way on foot.

Without further mishap we arrived at our destination, and reported to brigade headquarters for rations and billets.

That night we slept in the battalion sergeant major's dugout. The next morning I went to a first-aid post and had the gravel picked out of my face.

The instructions we received from division headquarters read that we were out to catch spies, patrol trenches, search German dead, reconnoiter in No Man's Land, and take part in trench raids and prevent the robbing of the dead.

I had a pass which would allow me to go anywhere at any time in the sector of the line held by our division. It gave me authority to stop and search ambulances, motor lorries, wagons and even officers and soldiers, whenever my suspicions deemed it necessary. Atwell and I were allowed to work together or singly—it was left to our judgment. We decided to team up.

Atwell was a good companion and very entertaining. He had an utter contempt for danger, but was not foolhardy. At swearing he was a wonder. A cavalry regiment would have been proud of him. Though born in England, he had spent several years in New York. He was about six feet one, and as strong as an ox.

We took up our quarters in a large dugout of the royal engineers, and mapped out our future actions. This dugout was on the edge of a large cemetery, and several times at night in returning to it, we got many a fall stumbling over the graves of English, French and Germans. Atwell on these occasions never indulged in swearing, though at any other time, at the least stumble, he would turn the air blue.

A certain section of our trenches was held by the Royal Irish rifles. For several days a very strong rumor went the rounds that a German spy was in our midst. This spy was supposed to be dressed in the uniform of a British staff officer. Several stories had been told about an officer wearing a red band around his cap, who patrolled the front-line and communication trenches asking suspicious questions as to location of batteries, machine-gun emplacements, and trench mortars. If a shell dropped in a battery, on a machine gun or even near a dugout, this spy was blamed.

The rumor gained such strength that an order was issued for all troops to immediately place under arrest anyone answering to the description of the spy.

Atwell and I were on the qui vive. We constantly patrolled the trenches at night, and even in the day, but the spy always eluded us.

One day while in a communication trench, we were horrified to see our brigadier general, Old Pepper, being brought down it by a big private of the Royal Irish rifles. The general was walking in front, and the private with fixed bayonet was following in the rear.

We saluted as the general passed us. The Irishman had a broad grin on his face and we could scarcely believe our eyes—the general was under arrest. After passing a few feet beyond us, the general turned, and said in a wrathful voice to Atwell:

"Tell this d—n fool who I am. He's arrested me as a spy."

Atwell was speechless. The sentry butted in with:

"None o' that gassin' out o' you. Back to headquarters you goes, Mr. Fritz. Open that face o' yours again, an' I'll dent in your napper with the butt o' me rifle."

The general's face was a sight to behold. He was fairly boiling over with rage, but he shut up.

Atwell tried to get in front of the sentry to explain to him that it really was the general he had under arrest, but the sentry threatened to run his bayonet through him, and would have done it, too. So Atwell stepped aside, and remained silent. I was nearly bursting with suppressed laughter. One word, and I would have exploded. It is not exactly diplomatic to laugh at your general in such a predicament.

The sentry and his prisoner arrived at brigade headquarters with disastrous results to the sentry.

The joke was that the general had personally issued the order for the spy's arrest. It was a habit of the general to walk through the trenches on rounds of inspection, unattended by any of his staff. The Irishman, being new in the regiment, had never seen the general before, so when he came across him alone in a communication trench, he promptly put him under arrest. Brigadier generals wear a red band around their caps.

Next day we passed the Irishman tied to the wheel of a limber, the beginning of his sentence of twenty-one days, field punishment No. 1. Never before have I seen such a woebegone expression on a man's face.

For several days, Atwell and I made ourselves scarce around brigade headquarters. We did not want to meet the general.

The spy was never caught.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Firing Squad.

A few days later I had orders to report back to divisional headquarters, about thirty kilos behind the line. I reported to the A. P. M. (assistant provost marshal). He told me to report to billet No. 78 for quarters and rations.

It was about eight o'clock at night and I was tired and soon fell asleep in the straw of the billet. It was a miserable night outside, cold, and a drizzly rain was falling.

About two in the morning I was awakened by some one shaking me by the shoulder. Opening my eyes I saw a regimental sergeant major bending over me. He had a lighted lantern in his right hand. I started to ask him what was the matter, when he put his finger to his lips for silence and whispered:

"Get on your equipment, and, without any noise, come with me."

This greatly mystified me, but I obeyed his order.

Outside of the billet, I asked him what was up, but he shut me up with:

"Don't ask questions, it's against orders. I don't know myself."

It was raining like the mischief.

We splashed along a muddy road for about fifteen minutes, finally stopping at the entrance of what must have been an old barn. In the darkness, I could hear pigs grunting, as if they had just been disturbed. In front of the door stood an officer in a mack (mackintosh). The R. S. M. went up to him, whispered something, and then left. This officer called to me, asked my name, number and regiment, at the same time, in the light of a lantern he was holding, making a notation in a little book.

When he had finished writing, he whispered:

"Go into that billet and wait orders, and no talking. Understand?"

I stumbled into the barn and sat on the floor in the darkness. I could see no one, but could hear men breathing and moving; they seemed nervous and restless. I know I was.

During my wait, three other men entered. Then the officer poked his head in the door and ordered:

"Fall in, outside the billet, in single rank."

We fell in, standing at ease. Then he commanded:

"Squad—'Shun! Number!"

There were twelve of us.

"Right—Turn! Left—Wheel! Quick—March!" And away we went. The rain was trickling down my back and I was shivering from the cold.

With the officer leading, we must have marched over an hour, plowing through the mud and occasionally stumbling into a shell hole in the road, when suddenly the officer made a left wheel, and we found ourselves in a sort of enclosed courtyard.

The dawn was breaking and the rain had ceased.

In front of us were four stacks of rifles, three to a stack.

The officer brought us to attention and gave the order to unpile arms. We each took a rifle. Giving us "Stand at ease," in a nervous and shaky voice, he informed:

"Men, you are here on a very solemn duty. You have been selected as a firing squad for the execution of a soldier, who, having been found guilty of a grievous crime against king and country, has been regularly and duly tried and sentenced to be shot at 3:28 a. m. this date. This sentence has been approved by the reviewing authority and ordered carried out. It is our duty to carry on with the sentence of the court.

"There are twelve rifles, one of which contains a blank cartridge, the other eleven containing ball cartridges. Every man is expected to do his duty and fire to kill. Take your orders from me. Squad—'Shun!"

We came to attention. Then he left. My heart was of lead and my knees shook.

Photo by Western Newspaper Union

Buried With Honors.

Empey, in the next installment, tells the gripping story of a "coward," whose streak of yellow turned white.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Inculcating the Spirit.

It was holiday week, but a mother and child had managed somehow to get a whole seat on the car. Suddenly the little girl slid off the seat, and facing her mother, cried out, with anguish in her childish voice: "Oh mother, I forgot to git anything fer teacher."

"Well, what uv it?" the mother answered tartly. "She didn't git nuthin' fer you," and she sat the child down hard on the seat, partly to keep the woman in the aisle from taking any privileges, and partly, perhaps to impress on the child the Christmas spirit—as she saw it.

Still on the Job.

"The old-fashioned door-knocker seems to have gone out of style," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "but, don't make any mistake, opportunity is still on the job."

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

USELESS DOG A NATIONAL ENEMY

A Thousand Dollars' Worth of Mutton Destroyed in One Night, and the Dogs That Did It.

DOG EATS MAN'S FULL ALLOWANCE

Canines That Serve No Useful Purpose Should Not Be Tolerated by Farmer.

MUST HAVE MEAT REGULARLY

One Cur in Single Night Has Been Known to Destroy $1,000 Worth of Sheep—More Mutton and Wool Wanted by Nation.

What are you doing about winning this war, anyway?

Of course you take a conscientious interest in it, but are you working at it just as diligently as though it were your own personal war, and as though your own personal salvation depended upon it—which it does?

Home folks have got to do a little bit more than strangers. You bought some of our Liberty bonds? Of course you did. But a blessed old pagan away over in the heart of Asia, entirely out of touch with us and owing us no duty whatever, bought $100,000 worth of these bonds by cable.

You buy a War Savings stamp now and then. Certainly. But a bunch of poor, hopeless human beings in exile who can never profit by the liberty that is to be won—to-wit, the lepers at Molokai—bought $3,000 worth of our savings stamps.

Must Do Your Part.

Now, you, to square yourself with yourself, have got to do more than a prince in Persia, or an outcast at Molokai. It doesn't mean a great deal to give away a little money, and to lend money to the government on the best security in the world means no sacrifice at all. It just means thrift and good sense. To do your part in your own war you have got to give up some of the trifling little things, some of your personal fads and fancies that to you probably do mean a good deal.

Take, for instance, that dog, silver-collared, silver-leashed, pampered, petted and persiflaged with a pet name. Or maybe he isn't collared or leashed or named. Maybe he is just a plain dog that runs where he pleases, even though he may not please where he runs. But one way or the other he is your dog.

Now, think it over. A dog eats as much as a man—more, if he gets a chance. Every dog absorbs a ration that would feed a soldier. Either you feed it to him, or he goes out somewhere and finds it for himself. Also, a dog demands—and takes—more of a meat diet than a man. A man may get along very comfortably and cheerfully on cabbage and corn cake, parsnips and prunes, tomatoes and tabasco, but a dog has got to have his meat. It may be beef and bacon from your table, or it may be live sheep from your neighbor's pasture. If you feed him his meat, he probably consumes about what a man would require. If he goes and takes it himself, he destroys pretty nearly enough to feed a regiment of men. One dog in a single night has been known to destroy $1,000 worth of sheep.

More Sheep Needed.

More sheep is one of the greatest needs toward increasing the nation's meat supply, and there is only one sound reason why the farmers of the United States do not raise more sheep. That one reason is the dog. It may not always be the actual physical dog, but it is the ghost of the dog, the fear of the thing that bides always in the heart of the farmer. He knows that one dog, absolutely worthless, incapable of producing a single dollar of wealth for the country, can and very likely will, in the dark hours of one night, destroy the accumulations of years and the profits of untiring industry. If that fear could be removed from the farmer's heart, if he could know that sheep could browse safely in his grass that goes to waste, the number of sheep in the United States would increase many fold in a little while.

That is one big phase of the dog question—this fact that the presence of too many dogs prevents the general raising of animals whose flesh and wool are both seriously needed for our armies overseas. But it is a phase of it that does not necessarily come into consideration at all. Of course your dog is not a sheep-killing dog. Nobody's dog ever was a sheep-killing dog — until, suddenly, some man's sheep were slaughtered and that dog was found to have blood on his chaps and wool in his teeth.

The United States department of agriculture is not an enemy to the dog — it recognizes certain definite uses for that animal, but it realizes that the country could get on mighty well with much fewer dogs than it has, and that both the actual and potential meat supply of the country would be greatly increased thereby. It has recently sent out several appeals on that point. If you have a dog that serves a genuinely useful purpose, keep him. He is a good citizen. But to help in the world's salvation, get rid of the useless dog!

HOW DOG LOVERS CAN AID.

The dog rightfully holds a strong place in the minds and affections of men.

The owner of a good dog finds in him a most faithful friend.

But it sometimes happens that the dog most highly esteemed is also one that kills and worries the most sheep and is the most cunning in obscuring the evidences of his guilt.

A well-bred dog's habit of lying innocently asleep in the front yard during daytime is no proof that the same dog does not kill sheep at night.

Because of the economic loss occasioned by sheep-killing dogs, and because such dogs bring the whole of their kind into bad repute, the true admirers and friends of this animal should help to further any steps likely to result in the limitation of the activity of these discrediting members of a noble race.

One of the most practicable methods of accomplishing this result seems to be to place upon dogs such a tax as will reduce the number of superfluous ones and result in fewer being kept by persons who cannot or will not give them the attention necessary to prevent the formation of habits and associations that lead to sheep killing.

Milk as a Food.

Economy in the diet does not always depend upon limiting the use of certain foods, but it is sometimes a question of actually increasing the use of foods which furnish nutritive material at relatively low cost. Milk belongs to the latter class, and the housewife would do well to study its food value and decide whether her family is using as much as it should. The average person in this country uses only a little more than half a pint of milk daily, and this quantity can very profitably be increased when safe milk is available.

Many people think of milk only as a beverage, but if they understood that it is in reality a nourishing food they would increase their daily allowance.

We eat foods for two main reasons: First, to renew body wastes and promote growth by forming new tissues and fluids; and, second, to supply energy for carrying on body functions. Milk contains the body-building materials (protein and mineral substances, such as lime and phosphorus), and also supplies energy.

The following table, compiled by specialists of the department of agriculture, shows the quantities of various foods needed to supply as much protein or energy as one quart of milk:

Protein.	Energy.
1 quart of milk is equal to—	1 quart of milk is equal to—
7 ounces of sirloin steak.	11.3 ounces of sirloin steak.
6 ounces of round steak.	14.9 ounces of round steak.
4.3 eggs.	9 eggs.
8.6 ounces of fowl.	14.5 ounces of fowl.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

SLEPT LATE THAT MORNING

Traveler in Sleeping Car Had His Own Reasons for Not Wanting to Turn Out Early.

A certain well-known local artist—who threaten dire doings if we use his real name and who is in a position to make good—was returning to Cleveland from Columbus the other night. He had a lower birth, and when he retired he noted that there was nobody in the berth above him.

The evening was chilly and our friend soon perceived the need of another blanket. He thought of the berth above, reached his hand up and pulled a blanket down. It came hard, but he got it; and in a few minutes he was comfortably asleep. But not before he had wondered what made the blanket so nice and warm around the neck.

There's no use in trying to work up to a climax in this yarn. The man from whose sleeping form that blanket had been dragged awoke with loud complaints later in the night. And his words were so violent that our artist friend feared to get up in the morning, until all but him had fled, as the old song hath it.—Exchange.

Lives 200 Years!

For more than 200 years, Haarlem Oil, the famous national remedy of Holland, has been recognized as an infallible relief from all forms of kidney and bladder disorders. Its very age is proof that it must have unusual merit.

If you are troubled with pains or aches in the back, feel tired in the morning, headaches, indigestion, insomnia, painful or too frequent passage of urine, irritation or stone in the bladder, you will almost certainly find relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This is the good old remedy that has stood the test for hundreds of years, prepared in the proper quantity and convenient form to take. It is imported direct from Holland laboratories, and you can get it at any drug store. It is a standard, old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. Each capsule contains one dose of five drops and is pleasant and easy to take. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. Your money promptly refunded if they do not relieve you. But be sure to get the genuine GOLD MEDAL brand. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

PHTHISIS AS DEADLY AS WAR

Expert Says That in Four Years It Has Killed as Many as Have Died in Battle.

The war has served effectually to disclose that during the four years of hostilities mortality from tuberculosis in the civilian population and in the armies of all the countries engaged has at least approximated the total number of soldiers killed in battle, according to Dr. Livingstone Farrand. As director of the American commission for the prevention of tuberculosis in France Doctor Farrand will resume his work overseas within a few days. He returned to the United States for graduation exercises of the University of Colorado, of which he is president.

"To make our country really safe for democracy we must first make it healthy," is the slogan Doctor Farrand suggests.

Of the men called to the colors in this country's first draft summons 50,000 were found to be tubercular, his appeal states. This, it declares, is one of the striking indications of the prevalence of the disease in the United States.

Doing Their Bit.

Graham is extremely patriotic and careful in his observations of meatless days, etc. The other day he turned to his mother and said, "Mums, what animal is it that goes for days without a drink of water? Is it a camel?" His mother told him it was. After a pause he looked up, his eyes sparkling, "The dear, dear things! Doing their bit!"

Watch Your Skin Improve.

On rising and retiring gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. For free sample address "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Like Rice Flour.

Willie—What's a substitute, dad?

Crabshaw—Anything that costs more than the real article.—Life.

Even the unsociable physician never objects to paying visits.

When Your Eyes Need Care Try Murine Eye Remedy

No Smarting — Just Eye Comfort. 60 cents at Druggists or mail. Write for Free Eye Book. MURINE EYE REMEDY CO., CHICAGO

AUGUST

0469

Walnut Wanted!

We dig them out when the stumps are large and good enough. If you have a tree or two—NOW is the time to dispose of them The Government needs Gun Stocks and Aeroplane Propellers.

"Do Your Bit"

GOODWIN LUMBER CO.,
Pleasant Lake, Ind.

HERE AND THERE

Frank Sechler has the jollification habit: he wants one like he takes medicine—after each meal.

Miss Lela Wallace spent the week end with Mrs. Mirwood Rhodes, southeast of town.

Sherman Musser and family returned home on Sunday from a week's outing at Lake Hamilton.

Sol Barney has been walking with a crutch for several days, the result of dropping a heavy steel beam on his foot while lifting one end at the bank site.

See Kinsey for your dishes for every-day use.

Little Misses Mildred and Thelma Dill, of Fort Wayne, spent the past week with their aunt, Mrs. C. R. Price.

Oliver Keesbury and family and Hollis Dilley and wife were entertained on Sunday at the Frank Sechler home.

H. M. Widney and wife entertained the following company at dinner Sunday: Mrs Cora Lodewick, of Ralston, N. Mex.; Miss Geraldine Hull, of Colorado Springs, Col.; Mrs. Alice Lewis, of Auburn; Mrs. Jud Davis, S. L. Widney and B. V. Widney and wife.

Rolland Bearss and wife and J. L. Rhodenbaugh spent Thursday at Fort Wayne.

Miss Norma Brown, of Butler, visited over Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Elma Brown.

Emanuel Ulm and wife and John Ulm and family attended the Lockwood family reunion at Eckhart park, Auburn, on Sunday.

John Knight and daughters, Evelyn and Dorothy, and Craig Sheffer, wife and son, Basil, were Sunday dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

Mesdames Ella Patterson and Bessie Tustison, the latter's daughter, Margaret, and M. Tustison were entertained at dinner Sunday by Earl Tustison and wife.

Lester Curie on Saturday came from Kentucky for a few weeks' visit with his parents, Will Curie and wife. The three are enjoying an outing at Hamilton lake.

Elgin Coburn and wife spent the last week with his sister, Mrs. Fred Hart, and other relatives. Mr Coburn is with Uncle Sam's army in Texas. His wife resides at Fremont, Mich.

William Hamilton went to Butler on Friday evening for an over-Sunday visit with his brother, John Hamilton, and wife on the occasion of the former's eighty-ninth birthday anniversary.

J. L. Rhodenbaugh, wife and daughter, Irme, and Mrs. Sarah McCrory attended the home coming at Mount Olive Sunday, being the dinner guests of John Hensinger and wife. Miss Irma remained for a visit with friends.

Red Cross Auction Sale

...AT...

St. JOE, INDIANA

FRIDAY, AUG. 16, 1918

Congressman Fairfield

Will be present and deliver an address at 10 a. m.—Other good speakers are expected, among them being Frank Adams, of Angola.

Hart's Girles Band

Of Hicksville, has been engaged for the day; and will give plenty of music in the afternoon and a concert in the evening. This band is one of the crack musical organizations of the land and is worth hearing.

Auction Sale

Of stock—horse, pigs, sheep, etc.—agricultural implements, useful and ornamental articles, etc. Five auctioneers will be present to coax dollars out of pockets.

Plenty of other attractions, calculated to furnish entertainment Come expecting to have a good time; and, above all, come expecting to GIVE—to give in the same spirit that the boys "over there" are giving.

Every-day dishes at Kinsey's hardware.

Mrs. G. W. Milliman spent Wednesday with Mrs. Fred Hart.

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

Mrs. Jane Pepple, of Auburn, is a guest at the E. R. Kinsey home.

Miss Florence Kagev, of Warsaw, visited over Sunday with Mrs. Lena Meek.

Henry and Jesse Hart spent Friday and Saturday with their aunt, Mrs. C Hursey.

Lead pencils, pens, ink, tablets, envelopes, mucilage and paste at the NEWS office.

Wilbur Collins and wife, of near Butler, were Sunday guests of Ray Reasoner and wife.

B. F. Terman and wife spent Sunday at the Stewart Crawford home, Sherwood.

The M. P. Ladies Aid society will meet Saturday afternoon with Mrs Blanch Leighty.

Miss Helen Place left Monday for Butler, where she will work in in the A. E. Farnham home.

Mrs. Nina Gier and Mrs. Smith, of Sherwood, were Tuesday guests of William Wallace and family.

Miss Florence Ankrim, of New Haven, came Saturday for a week's visit in Rev. J. C. Coon's home.

Fruit jar rings, 10c per dozen--three dozen for 25c. Kinsey.

Miss Geraldine Hull, of Colorado Springs, came Wednesday for an indefinite visit with her grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Hull.

Charles Tustison, wife and granddaughter, Irma, were the over-Sunday guests of Lee O. Tustison and wife, of Defiance.

Mrs. Violet Rohrer and daughter, of Elkhart, are here for a week's visit with Mrs. Ross Abel. They spent Sunday at Lake Hamilton.

Mrs. Lizzie Milliman and daughters, Marguerite and Leota, and Mrs. Mary Shuff spent from Saturday until Monday at Edgerton, the guests of John Keesler and wife.

The fourteenth annual reunion of the Walter family will be held at the George Beams home, 3 miles southwest of Spencerville on the county line road, Thursday, Aug 29, 1918.

E S Philley, wife and daughter, Helen, of Celina, Ohio, and Mrs. Edith Smith and two daughters, of Detroit, Mich., spent from Friday afternoon until Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Kate A. Leighty.

Frank R. Bowman, wife and daughter visited Monday evening at Auburn, where they were accompanied by Mrs. Charles Bishop and children, of Cleveland, who had been visiting relatives here.

H. C. Hathaway and wife and Mesdames M. T. Bishop and S E. Warner spent Thursday with Mahlon Baker and wife, of Auburn. Mrs. Maude Bishop and children returned with them for a few days' visit.

J. F Nelson, wife and daughters, Jessie and Jane, spent from Tuesday until Wednesday morning with Mr. Nelson's sisters, Mesdames Ella Patterson and Ann Abel. The last returned with them for a week's visit.

S. E. Warner and wife entertained the following company over Sunday: Messrs. and Mesdames Dick Evans, J. M. Riding and F. H. Langley and Mrs. Dreibelbiss, all of Fort Wayne. Mrs. Langley remained for a longer visit.

Rolland Bearss and wife and H. C. Hathaway enjoyed a motor trip from Saturday until Monday evening, passing through the following cities and visiting friends at various points: Fort Wayne, Huntington, Logansport, Marion and Wabash. Mrs. Sarah Aldrich and little daughter, of the last named place, returned with them for a short visit at the Bearss home.

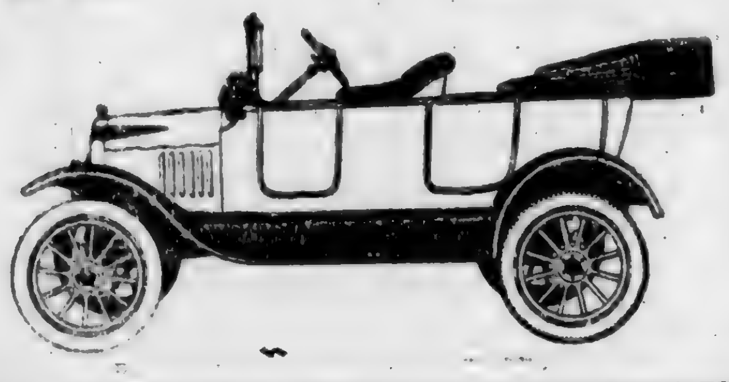
Mrs. Ross Abel entertained eleven members of the Rural Housewives club at a regular meeting Friday afternoon. The following guests also were present: Mrs. Violet Rohrer and daughter and Mrs. Mark Morr, of Elkhart; Miss Beulah Hart, of Akron, Ohio; Mrs. Floyd Morr and Mrs. Reba Davis.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain; and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necessities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE



Order Saturday Evening Post, 5.

Cups, saucers and deep dishes at Kinsey's.

Florence Buchanan spent Tuesday with his daughter, Mrs. John Sturgis, of Butler.

Miss Pauline Barney has returned home from a visit at Toledo and Bowling Green, Ohio. W. E. Turretin and wife and Miss Eulalia Collier accompanied her, making the trip in an auto. They visited here and at Hicksville over Sunday.

Roscoe Conine, wife and daughter, J. W. Hart and wife and Miss Lotus Schoolmaster, were visitors at the county farm one day last week Miss Schoolmaster's uncle was the keeper of the county farm of Newago county, Michigan, for some time and she was interested in knowing how DeKalb cared for her dependents and by her words of praise for Mr. M. E. Leighty, things sure looked good to her.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

Concord–Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10:30 A. M.
St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching at 8:00 P. M.
Subject "The Christian and His Fellow Man."

Union prayer meeting at the Christian church Thursday evening at 8.00 o'clock.

Christian Church Announcements;
L. W. Spayd, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.

The pastor will preach morning and evening at Coburntown Church next Sunday.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:–Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching 10.45 A. M.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.00
Six Months,	.50
Three Months,	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana as second-class matter.

Patronize the advertisers.

Miss Blanche Woodcox, of Columbus, Ohio, spent from Saturday until Monday with Iona Woodcox and wife.

George Koch, of Walkerville, Mich., is back among his former Spencerville and St. Joe friends for a visit. He moved from Indiana in 1883, and since that time has resided in the Wolverine state. He has not made up his mind how long he will stay. Mr. Koch had the misfortune to lose his wife recently, her death occurring very unexpectedly on July 21; and her death, no doubt, had much to do with his visit, creating a desire for the consolation of the hearty handclasp of an old-time friend or of communing with old-time scenes.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

NOTICE
TO SCHOOL SCHOLARS!

WE have provided to handle the School Books this year—and have a complete supply of school necessities for all the grades. You needn't worry where to get your supply. All school books and supplies are strictly sold for CASH.

DO NOT ASK FOR CREDIT!

ELZA E. KINSEY.

AUGUST

L 90

0470

CASH
FOR YOUR CREAM!

SPENCERVILLE is now equipped with a modern cream station. Bring your cream where you will receive prompt and excellent service. We will receive cream each day and evening. We pay highest market price at all times consistent with the market.

You are Assured of Honest Weights and Correct Tests.

GIVE US A TRIAL!

We know you will be satisfied. Nearly all of the farmers in this vicinity are fully acquainted with our method of doing business and know we have built up our business by Fair and Square dealing.

Located in Markle Grocery.

GEORGE FREESE'S SONS
CREAMERIES
NAPPANEE, - - - INDIANA.

SPENCERVILLE

Subscribe for this paper.

Born, Wednesday morning, to William Allen and wife, a son

The Coburntown Farmers' club gave a play, "Back to the Farm," for the benefit of the Hicksville and Spencerville Red Cross at the former place on Monday evening of last week. The proceeds were $147

Fred Osborne and family left Thursday morning for Kokomo to spend a few days with the former's mother.

Frank House and wife and Mrs John House spent several days visiting their uncle, Moses Price, and wife, of Black Creek, last week.

Joel Betz and wife spent Wednesday with their daughter, Mrs. Walter Perkins, and family, of Harlan.

Mrs Nettie Steward and daughter, Hazel, were Wednesday afternoon guests of George Hallabaugh and wife.

William Smith, wife and son and Mrs. Margaret Koch were Sunday dinner guests of Ira Smith and wife.

Misses Leone Widdifield and Eva Watt and Paul and Carl Carpenter, Roy Bowser, Henry Beams and Harold Miller spent Sunday at Robison park.

The Hock family reunion will be held at Robison park on Saturday, Aug. 17.

W. S. Tyndall and wife have received word that their son, Mark, reached France in safety.

Miss Ethel Palmer was a Sunday dinner guest at the John Benninghoff home; and Mrs. Win Archer and daughter, Mrs. Carrie Walker and Ivan Bowser and family, of Ft. Wayne, were supper guests at the same place.

Magazines at News office.

The C. C. club was entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Pearl Goldsmith. Two guests were present, Mesdames William Lucas and Mrs. Goldsmith. The Pansy club was entertained the same afternoon at the home of Miss Luella Shilling, west of town. Two guests, Mesdames Gertie and Bert Wasson, enjoyed the occasion.

Miss Cleo Bowser was a Sunday guest of Misses Anna and Venus Beerbower, south of town.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church will meet Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Emmons, west of town.

Miss Luella Youse, of Monroeville, visited last week with Jean and Levi Mumma.

Clarence Gloyd spent several days the latter part of last week visiting friends at Toledo.

Mrs. William Sommers and niece, Miss Ula Miller, of Akron, Ohio, and Miss Jessie Moffett, of Auburn, were guests of Jacob Baltz; and, on Saturday evening, they entertained at supper Rolla Moffet, wife and daughter, Pauline, of Auburn.

Are Married at Auburn

Kenneth E. Miller and Miss Ethel M. Soule, two Spencerville young people, were married at the M. E. parsonage, Auburn, last Thursday afternoon by Rev. Oscar E. Grimes, Christian minister. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Soule, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Miller. The young couple will reside on a farm near Spencerville.

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.

Chamberlain's Tablets

WANTED—EVERY HOOSIER IN A U. S. FOOD CLUB

(By C. V. Stainsby, Assistant to Dr. Harry E. Barnard, Federal Food Administrator for Indiana.)

One of the unique features of Indiana's war activities is the organization of U. S. Food Clubs by the Indiana Division of the U. S. Food Administration. Through these clubs the Food Administration will be able to emphasize more clearly the vital relationship between food and war. Every home in the state will be enrolled when the work is finished. Nothing less than a determination to render the greatest possible contribution to the nation's war needs would have prompted such a gigantic task. The Food Administration for Indiana, however, shares the true Hoosier belief in thoroughness and knows that Indiana will point with pride to the loyalty with which her citizens fought the great food battle.

The work of organizing the United States Food Clubs began last spring and so far has resulted in the formation of about fifteen hundred clubs. This means that the work is about one-third done. The beginning of such a movement is naturally slow as it means the development of an entirely new idea. The Food Clubs have secured a footing of some sort in all but four counties. The way has been prepared. From now on the Food Administration expects more rapid progress in finishing up the actual work of organization. When the clubs are formed their usefulness will continue for some years after the war is over.

Plans are under way now for a great Food Club drive to complete the organization of the clubs by the end of September. It is advisable that this work be done before the next Liberty Loan drive commences. The county and township presidents of U. S. Food Clubs are endeavoring to complete the organizations in their respective territories by the prescribed date. When the work is finished Indiana will have a gigantic machine which will guarantee the highest degree of co-operation between the Hoosier citizens and Uncle Sam in safeguarding our food supplies for the sake of those who are endeavoring to stamp out forever the Prussian menace.

Every resident of Indiana should be interested in the U. S. Food Clubs, and ready to help. They can contribute to the success of this war program by getting in touch with their county or township president and preparing the way for a new club. All information regarding the clubs and the names of the leaders in the various communities may be secured by writing to the Food Club Division, U. S. Food Administration for Indiana, Indianapolis.

Lost—On Sunday, June 23, not more than 3 miles northwest of Newville, a large heavy brown shawl and a heavy red sweater. I will give $2.00 for their retusn or $1.00 for either one of them. I live 5 miles south of Butler and 4 miles north of St. Joe. My postoffice address is St. Joe. CHARLES STRITE

R U Superstitious

Do You Believe In Signs ?

If you do you are a judicious advertiser and a good business man. Judicious advertising Always Pays and especially when you advertise in a paper that is read by everybody in its territory.

This newspaper reaches the eye of everybody who might be a possible buyer in this section.

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved--why Pay $2 Per Pint For Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine, to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. Manufactured by the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Fertilizer:

The F. S. Royster Famous Grain Grower is made of Lime, Tobacco and fish, making the best driller of any fertilizer on the market—besides its a big crop producer and soil builder.

The Second Car will arrive between the 22nd. and 24th. of August. Phone in and give us your orders now—It won't last no time at all.

PRICES!

The Prices will be as follows on this car.

16 per cent. at per ton	$29
1-2—13—1-2 per cent. per ton	$35

CASH—2 per cent. Discount
NET—Dec. 1st.

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.
Spencerville, Indiana

For Sale & Exchange

Farm of 22½ acres near church and school. Good soil, lots of young fruit trees, new house and cellar, small barn and out buildings. Must be seen to be appreciated.

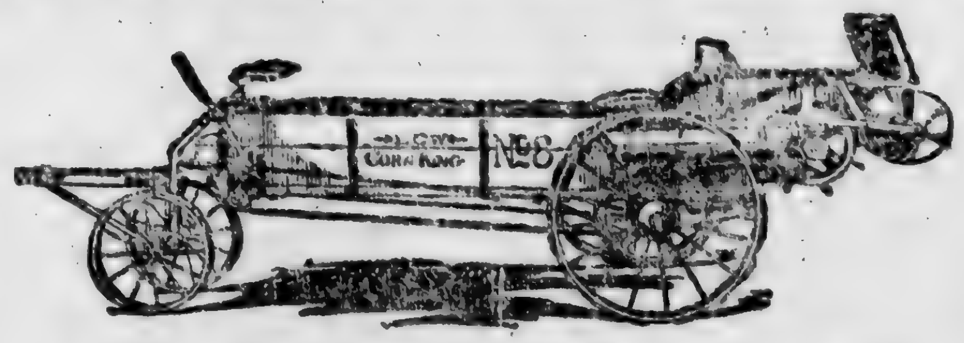
Also 5 acre garden tract, ½ mile from Auburn on paved road and car stop. Good house and other buildings. Will sell or trade on small farm.

A $6,000.00 grocery stock to exchange on farm.

In the city of Fort Wayne a $30,000.00 property which is leased 5 years at $1,800 per year. will trade on good large farm.

Many other farms for sale or exchange.
J. BENNINGHOFF,
Spencerville, Ind.

LOW CORN KING



Increase From Every Acre.

ONE sure way to get a profitable increase from every acre planted this year is to increase the fertility of the soil. The least expensive, least troublesome and surest way to do this is to apply stable manure in a light even top dressing with a Low Corn King manure spreader. The manure is already accumulated. The soil needs it and will respond to proper spreading- Five to eight tons to the acre does the business. No more help, no more power is needed. Just buy and lose a light draft.

Low Corn King Manure Spreader.

Three sizes—small, medium and large. All narrow boxes. All steel frames, with working parts of the spreader securely attached to the frame. Turns short. Drive from both rear wheels. Return apron driven by worm gear, which insures even spreading up hill and down. Pull comes straight on steel frame. Solid two-inch rear axle working in roller bearings carries 75 per cent. of the load. All-steel beater can not warp, shrink or rot. Built up to International Harvester standards of quality in every respects. Buy a Corn King spreader and use it. The increased yield from a few acres will pay for your spreader. Place your order now.

Wm. CURIE, St. Joe, Ind.

WHITE OXFORDS AND PUMPS!

...ALL...
THE NEW PATTERNS
That are being worn now are here for your selection.

Hot Weather Is Here

And calls for WHITE FOOTWEAR—the most comfortable and cool shoe you can find.

Women's Oxfords or Pumps in high or low heels, $2.00 to $3.50.

Men's White or Palm Beach Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.

Children's Mary Jane Slippers, $1 to $2.

Full line of Rubber Soled Slippers, 80c to $3.00.

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP
Fort Wayne, Ind.

Indiana News Tersely Told

Indianapolis.—The Indiana wheat shippers may get some relief from the car shortage as a result of the visit to Washington, D. C., of John McCardle of the public service commission and A. E. Reynolds of the Indiana state council of defense, is indicated in a telegram from McCardle and Reynolds to C. B. Riley, secretary of the Indiana Grain Dealers' association. It said: "The authorities here authorize us to advise you that all failures to receive cars shuld promptly be reported to C. E. Spens, food administration, Washington, by wire prepaid, giving railroad and station, number of cars needed and destination. This method will bring all cars possible to be had. In our opinion it is impossible to meet full demand, but this will give material relief. The authorities realize it is a critical situation and promise full co-operation."

Franklin.—A state record for wagon wheat receipts was made, it is believed, when 198 loads of wheat, totaling 13,000 bushels, were received at the elevator here. It was the company's biggest day and also established a record for the entire state. The company paid $27,996.80 for its wheat receipts. The second largest day in the elevator's history was July 10, 1914, when 189 loads were received, totaling 12,769 bushels, but the price instead of being $2.08 as it is today, was only 68 cents. The average value of loads hauled was $162. The average on July 10, 1914, was $46. Johnson county is in the midst of threshing its greatest wheat crop and the car shortage is becoming alarming. The farmers' elevator had such heavy runs that it was compelled practically to shut down. The elevators at both Whiteland and Greenwood closed and cannot take wheat until cars are received to transport the grain to city markets.

Indianapolis. — Michael E. Foley, chairman of the state council of defense, has made public, without comment, the details of a plan just adopted in Huntington county, under which persons who are disloyal to the government in the prosecution of war endeavors of all types, will "be served last" by all federal war agencies, such as the county fuel administrator and the county food administrator. The Huntington county council of defense has adopted a resolution, as follows: "Be it resolved, That the various agents of the government in this war are instructed by the county council of defense and requested by it to afford immediate protection to those who are supporting the government of the United States, by such preference as is proper, in the discharge of their respective duties."

Indianapolis.—Retail coal dealers in Indiana are to have preference in the distribution of coal over the manufacturing plants that are not included in the priority list prepared by the war industries board at Washington, D. C. Evans Woollen, fuel administrator for Indiana, who at this time is serving as an assistant to H. A. Garfield, federal fuel administrator, was in Indianapolis conferring with other officials of the state administration. Following the conference he directed a message to Charles G. Hall, district representative of the fuel administration, who has offices at Terre Haute, instructing Mr. Hall to see that retail dealers are supplied with coal before the manufacturing plants that are not directly or indirectly engaged in the making of war munitions.

Indianapolis. — When Richard O. Johnson, superintendent of the State School for Deaf and Dumb, dicovered he would be unable to get enough farm laborers to handle sheaves of wheat standing on a field of 17 acres owned by the school, to the threshing machine, he called upon Capt. J. Crawfils, commander of the vocational school, to help him. Captain Crawfils responded by sending 1,000 men under his command to do the work. Accompanying the 1,000 men was the new 40-piece band, which played "Bringing in the Sheaves."

Indianapolis.—A new movement has been urging farmers to plant a greater wheat crop for next year's harvest. Some time ago the food administration was satisfied that a maintenance of the present acreage would be sufficient, but it has since been learned that this will not be sufficient. G. I. Christie, state food director and now assistant secretary of agriculture at Washington, D. C., made this announcement when he stopped in Indianapolis en route from Washington to Chicago.

Jeffersonville.—One hundred more inmates of the Indiana reformatory left over the Monon railroad from New Albany for the Indiana state prison at Michigan City, under transfer orders issued by Governor Goodrich. The transfer is the third made from here to the state prison. Four hundred men have been moved from here to Michigan City recently.

Evansville.—As an initial step in a campaign to rid the streets of young girls without visible means of support, Judge E. H. Ireland in the city court fined Edna Ritzert and Addie Woods each $50 and costs under a recently enacted work or fight ordinance. The judge suspended sentence on condition that the girls find work in the local factories and made arrangements for daily reports from their employers in order to keep track of them. This is the first application of the work or fight law to females here, and the campaign will be vigorous, according to local authorities.

Indianapolis. — The summary of weather and crop conditions in Indiana for the week by J. H. Armington meteorologist, follows: The week averaged about three degrees above the seasonal normal in temperature. Relatively it was somewhat warmer over the northern half of the state. Numerous thunder showers occurred, and most localities were visited by highly beneficial rainfalls, which, with the warm days and nights, materially improved truck gardens and pastures and advanced nicely the substitute crops sown on frosted corn areas. Because of the local character of these storms there was in many small areas considerable damage by wind squalls or hail, and there were places in which little or no rain fell. The latter was true especially of the extreme southwestern parts of the state, where drought conditions were becoming severe at the end of the week. Reports show that the corn crop made material advancement, except in the extreme southwest, where it was deteriorated by dry weather. The crop is tasseling and in silk generally, and in some places is earing out well. Wheat threshing is still in progress in the central and northern divisions with satisfactory reports as to quality and yield continuing. In the southern division some ground was broken for fall sowing. Oats cutting is nearly finished. Threshing, however, is not far advanced generally, except in the south, but numerous estimates indicate yields of good quality somewhat above the average. Buckwheat, navy beans and field tomatoes made good growths. Tobacco also grew well, but the plants are somewhat small.

Indianapolis.—County or township supervisors have ample authority to keep highways in repair when a contract has been let for the improvement of the highways, but construction is delayed on account of the war, according to an opinion by Attorney General Ele Stansbury. The opinion was directed to Arthur W. Brady member of the state council of defense, who is to report to the council. It has been reported that many Hoosier roads have been grossly neglected because of the holding up of contemplated improvements, which may be deferred a long time now, and the state council took a hand in the matter. "The letting of a contract," wrote the attorney general, "does not oust local authorities from power to keep a road in repair during the time the improvement is suspended, the repair work being done in such a manner as not to affect needlessly the rights of the contractor. I suggest, however, that the contractors' consent be obtained whenever possible before any considerable repairs are made."

Indianapolis. — Purdue university, with its different departments and the state veterinary department have an agreement dividing the work that each is to do in the enforcement of the Indiana live stock laws. This, to prevent any chance of duplication, includes the extension forces, the veterinary department of Purdue and the state veterinary department, each carrying out its specific branch. That pertaining to the control of disease or the health of live stock comes directly under the supervision of the state veterinary department. Veterinarians and live stock growers have been advised that all reports of disease among the domestic animals must be made directly to the state veterinary department that he may get an expert at the scene of the outbreak to make diagnosis and if necessary put into action control measures.

Indianapolis. — Aiming to divert short-haul freight from congested steam roads to interurban lines, the public service commission of Indiana has lowered rates for this class of traffic. At the same time it has raised rates on long-haul freight on interurban lines, with a view to having this class of goods sent by the steam roads. The effect of the order will be to set the interurbans on a plane where their freight service will approach more nearly that of express service, and the order will wipe out applications for through joint rates by the interurbans, under whitch long hauls were carried by interurbans at far less rates than local freight of the individual companies. The order is limited to "a period of wartime operations, not exceeding two years."

Vincennes.—Knox county coal production last week totaled 95,000 tons, the largest weekly production in the history of the local mines. Almost every mine in the field worked six days. The supply of cars was sufficient for the first time in many months. The pay roll for the Knox county miners for the week totaled $125,000. Operators and miners are elated over the record and promise to keep up the pace if sufficient cars are provided.

Terre Haute.—Judge W. T. Gleason of the superior court caused 90 divorce suits to be stricken from the docket with still more to follow. Judge Gleason says there is lack of prosecution in many cases and that divorce decreeing has become so much to be expected as a perfunctory action in court that people in fits of temper rush into court with a suit and in a few days forget it.

Indianapolis.— The Indiana state board of tax commissioners, in a report made public added millions of dollars to the total personal property valuations for taxation purposes in Allen, St. Joseph, Vanderburg, Lake and Whitley counties. In these four counties tax officials had sent tax duplicates to the state board, showing that the amount of personal property valued for taxation purposes was much less than last year, and after hearings conducted by the state board and other investigations, the board made arbitrary increases in all personal property valuations.

New Styles Out of Old Fabrics

New York.—Paris is never handicapped in creating fashions by the actions of other designers. That is why she is powerful. America has always suffered under this handicap because she has followed Paris, asserts a prominent fashion authority. She has never been inclined to risk the exploitation of fabrics, fashions and colorings that were not sponsored by the mother of fashions.

It is said of us that we acknowledge the best in every nation and bring it to our shores. We know the best in every department of art, science and literature. If we are compelled to put our knowledge to practical use, we at least have the best to go on. We are not ignorant.

The time has come for this experiment, as we all know, and the observer thinks that a few medals of honor should be distributed to those who have gone "over the top" in designing clothes in this country. It took great commercial courage and it required a sound knowledge of the American public.

What France Did America Does.

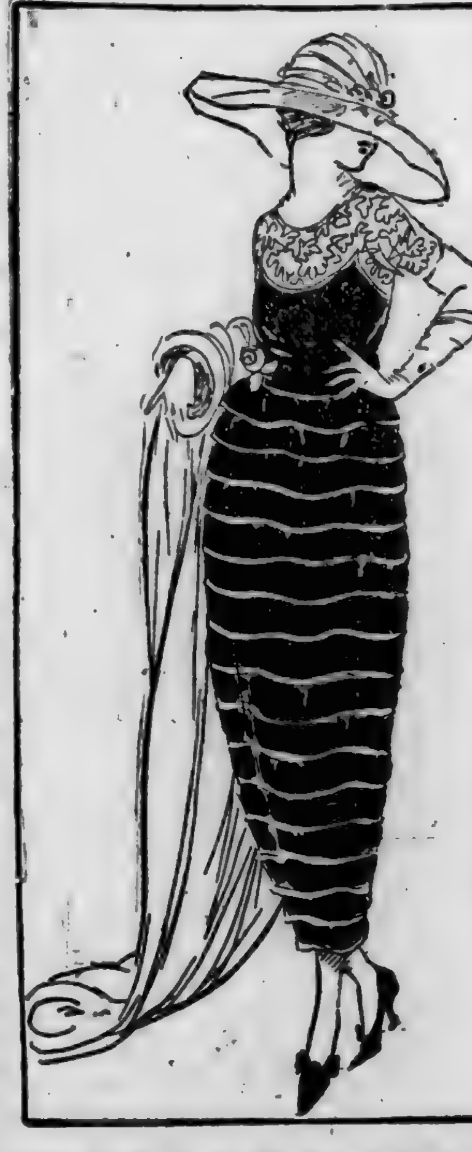
Here are two anecdotes which accentuate the point. They happened a dozen years apart. Mme. Paquin saw several bolts of checked silk in a manufacturer's hands. Neither the weave, the coloring nor the design was in fashion, to quote her own phrase. The manufacturer complained that he had no call for this quantity of material and that he would sell it for about a franc and a half a yard. Mme. Paquin took it all, went to her salons on the Rue de la Paix, turned the cheap check silk into an alluring frock of her own design, and then wore it at Trouville-by-the-Sea. She made the frock, the design, the color and the fabric fashionable. Everyone wanted to wear what she wore. She sold every inch of the material at a price that brought her unmeasured profit on the transaction.

Last month an American designer was looking over the stock of a lace importer. "Nothing new," said the importer. "Here I am held up with about fifty Spanish lace scarfs which I bought at a venture, thinking I could distribute them in the trade in America, but no one took them. The one answer was that they are not in fashion."

The designer said that if the importer would give him one he would turn it into a gown that would sell all the other scarfs, on condition that he received a commission on their sale.

The bargain was closed. The gown was designed. It sold immediately. It was copied so fast that the other 49 scarfs melted away like flakes of soap in hot water. Spanish lace was offered as a first fashion.

That is a good example of the change that has come over the American merchant and the American designer. We no longer have to ask what is the fashion, but are probably enabled to make the fashion for our own continent.



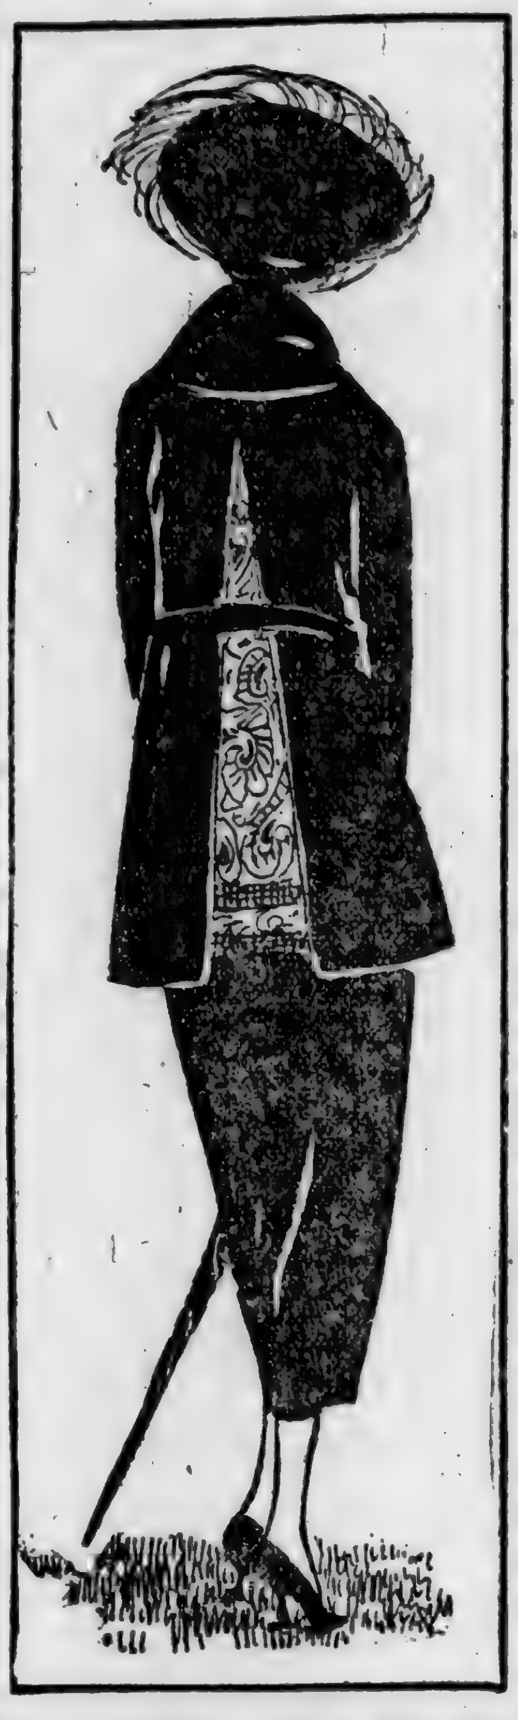
One of the new black taffeta gowns that is far from commonplace. The skirt is a series of small ruffles edged with white silk cord and cut in peg-top fashion. The slim bodice is mounted on a yoke of taffeta braided with white cord, and the short sleeves are cut in one with the yoke. There is a pink rose with green leaves at the waist, and there are green shoes and stockings.

Management of Black Taffeta.

It is easy to realize that taffeta has come into a first summer fashion, although the popular mind does not regard it as one of the lovely weaves of the world, because it is plentiful. There is no trouble about getting all the taffeta one wants, and it is best that we model our wardrobes for the near future on the materials that can be bought in this country in sufficient quantity to correspond to our needs.

Much can be done with this material that will result in a gown out of the ordinary and conspicuous for charm and cleverness. If you could have seen a woman who came into a restaurant for dinner wearing a certain black taffeta gown, you would have been convinced in the twinkling of an eye that the fabric matters nothing if the designer has cleverness.

The skirt was made of narrow ruffles that extended from waist to ankles, each ruffle edged with a white silk cord. The hem was excessively narrow. The foundation for these ruffles fitted the figure like a sheath. There was a bodice, straight and simple, and the major part of it was a yoke with short sleeves which was braided with white cord in a fantastic design. At the side of the waist was a deep pink satin rose with green velvet leaves. The slippers and stockings were green. There was nothing demure about this black taffeta gown.



Here's a blue serge coat split up the back to make commonplace blue serge less insignificant. There is a long cuirass of colored embroidery on blue tricot, and the coat is slashed to a deep V back and front to display the vivid undergarment.

Treat Blue Serge in Various Ways.

Blue serge is a fabric that will always be with us, as far as the manufacturers and the war board can look ahead.

It is usually midnight blue, and, given a few yards of it in this color, the designers do not want to sit down and turn it out into insignificant frocks and inconspicuous suits.

A woman who came to a "defense" luncheon one day wore a blue serge gown that was the product of a clever designer and it surely turned our ideas about suits topsy-turvy.

The coat was split up the back as well as the front. It was worn over a long cuirass blouse, the kind that gains in importance every day. The blouse was made of a richly embroidered tricot in blue, black and dashes of dull red. It did not cling tightly to the figure, but outlined it more than usual. Over it hung the loose blue serge coat, opening in a deep V in the middle of the front and the black. It was closed at the neckline and had a collar of the serge. There was a loose belt of the material, and the skirt was exceedingly narrow and short.

By the way, it is wise for any woman who orders a new suit today to see that the skirt has a sizeable hem, for the new order to the shoemakers, given by the government, which demands low shoes for the duration of the war, may change the skirt length.

I doubt it. The length may be changed, but it will not be because of the low shoes, for gaiters, which are made of fabric, may be as high as desired, and women prefer them to high boots.

We may also adopt the French fashion of wearing serviceable Oxford ties with straight heels and rounded toes. The bootmakers say they have more orders for these today than ever. With such shoes the average woman does not care whether her skirt is eight or ten inches from the ground, unless she is given to suffering from exposed ankles.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Foulard in large polka-dot design is very fashionable.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

DOES IT PAY?

Facts are facts, and when you see the fact right before your eyes you can't dispute it nor argue it down. It stands right there and tells the truth. What prohibition has done for one city is told in part by the Spokane (Wash.) Chronicle. After two years' trial of a dry regime the proprietor of the largest department store in Spokane said:

"We are doing 50 per cent more business today than we did three years ago under the wet regime. I estimate that half of the increase is due to prohibition. It is astonishing how many people who voted 'wet' are now strong supporters of prohibition."

The police commissioner, when questioned concerning his opinion of prohibition, said:

"Washington never again will be wet. There are not enough people in the state who would vote against prohibition, now that they have tried it. Crime, disorder and poverty have decreased and good citizenship and individual and collective property have been decidedly on the upgrade under prohibition in Spokane."

In a similar vein replied the county sheriff:

"Conditions under prohibition are notably better in many ways. Even with the presence of the bootlegger there is so much in favor of a dry state that I cannot imagine anyone in legitimate business wanting to go back to streets dotted with open saloons. Assault, robbery and the more serious crimes are greatly reduced."

And the county farm tells its story through its superintendent:

"Our records speak for themselves. In 1915, with the saloons open, we had 217 people at the poor farm. In March, 1916, with no saloons, we had 168. In March, 1917, there were 122. March, 1918, found just 120."

And one man who helps to feed the people, the proprietor of several grocery stores scattered over the city, reported as follows:

"I do not believe there is a merchant doing business in Spokane today who wants to go back to the conditions which prevailed during the wet regime. Easily 15 per cent of our 50 per cent increase in business now over three years ago is due to prohibition."

Maybe prohibition had nothing to do with causing these improved conditions, but the fact remains that the conditions exist and that prohibition at least did not prevent the improvements nor bring to pass the dire disasters prophesied by its opponents.

BOASTED BEER A POISON.

"Beer is a chemical combination of sugars, starches, extractive matters and yeast ferments, in a process of continuous change. This is a complex, chemical process which begins on the outside, and continues in the stomach."

The boasted claim that beer is a food and gives vigor and strength is contradicted by statistics.

"If beer had any food elements and were a tonic, exact measurements and studies of statistics would confirm it, but the evidence from these sources is entirely the opposite. The congested face, bloated body and dullness of body and mind are the best evidences of the poisoning and degenerative processes going on. There can be no conflict of opinions on this, because it can be measured and stated in mathematical terms, regardless of theories.

"Beer is a most insidious poison because it produces other poisons, and starts new processes of degeneration that are unknown until the final collapse reveals them. The beer drinker dies early from diseases of the heart and kidneys."—T. D. Crothers, M. D.

A POINTED QUESTION.

One of my warm friends and patrons who is a saloonkeeper took me to task because I was working for the drys and hurting his business. I asked him to pick out one man from his regular customers whom he would be glad to choose for his own father if he had the choice. When he hesitated I urged him with, "Which one would you choose?" He finally said, "I never thought of it in that way before. My God, I would pass them all up."

LARGEST STATE SETS A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Texas, the largest state in the Union in area, and fifth in population, has through its legislature endorsed the National Constitutional Amendment and enacted a state prohibitory law. On the contrary, Rhode Island, the smallest state in the Union, refused to ratify the Federal Prohibition amendment and consistently appropriated $760,000 to enlarge its penitentiary.

DIFFERENT CIRCUMSTANCES—DIFFERENT TUNE.

In 1912 the Anheuser-Busch (sounds rather German) brewing company advertised that they used 325 tons of coal a day, and that 50,000 cars were used by them during a year. That was during a prohibition campaign when they wished to emphasize what an immense business they had. We suppose they are like the brewer who said not long since, that he thinks now they do not use any grain at all, only just a few screenings.

MOTHERS TO BE

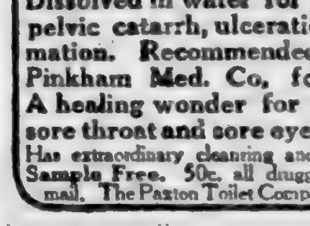
Should Read Mrs. Monyhan's Letter Published by Her Permission.

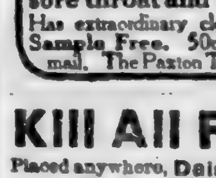
Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. Before taking it, somedays I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was entirely relieved of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when seven months old weighed 19 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. PEARL MONYHAN, Mitchell, Ind.

Good health during maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of health restored during this trying period by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Every Woman Wants
Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC POWDER
FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE
Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE
Placed anywhere, Daisy Fly Killer attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Ask for Daisy Fly Killer Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, $1.00.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DE KALB AVE., BROOKLYN, N. Y.





PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

HOW NAMES BECOME CHANGED

Sometimes Intentionally, but More Often Due to the "Wear and Tear of Time."

"Who Was Who?" is the suggested title for a new book to contain the names of all persons who have changed their names. A new publication will do that in England. If the work is carried back far enough it will be found that scarcely a name has survived the wear and tear of time. Some of the changes are intentional, like our daily applications in court, but most of them are due to bad spellers or poor pronunciation and phonetic spelling to express the errors of pronunciation. Our Dutch ancestors had a habit of cutting off everything that went down to and including the "Van." The name "Burch" was originally "Birch" and meant a man who lived by the birch tree. It is a curious comment on this new book that the London newspaper editor who is putting it out has juggled his own name after the English custom, when taking a tile. Good names are a misfortune when they are used like family portraits to make snobs.—Exchange.

Queered Himself Right There.

She was about to marry Mr. Moneybags, and it was a case of May and December. A party was given to celebrate the engagement, and one of the guests was requested by the hostess to sing.

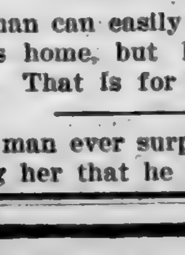
"Yes, do, Mr. Sweetnote," remarked the prospective bride. "Do you happen to remember 'My Sweetheart When a Boy?'"

"Great Scot!" exclaimed the vocalist. "Remember him! You must take me for a centenarian!"

He was not invited to the wedding.

A man can easily mar the pleasures of his home, but he seldom makes them. That is for the woman.

No man ever surprised a woman by telling her that he loved her.



A Cool Breakfast for warm weather
No fussing round a hot stove if you eat
POST TOASTIES
(MADE OF CORN)—Bobby

AUGUST

L 90

0472

IN THE LIMELIGHT

TURKEY'S NEW SULTAN

Mohammed Burhan-Eddine, who until the downfall of Abdul Hamid was the latter's favorite son, has now become sultan of Turkey, being proclaimed under the name of Mohammed VI.

Now in his thirty-third year, Burhan-Eddine has ever since his boyhood been groomed by Emperor William for the eventual occupancy of the Ottoman throne. He has been carefully brought up by the best, German, French and even English tutors, is thoroughly up to date and very modern in his ideas, and as a boy had charming manners. He is by profession a sailor, rather than a military man, and holds a commission of captain of the Ottoman navy, which until the beginning of the present war was far and away the most popular branch of the defensive service, its officers having as a rule held themselves aloof from the political intrigues which have done incalculable damage to the prestige and to the discipline of the army.

The main shadow on Burhan-Eddine's record, apart from his pro-Germanism and his evil association with the unsavory product of an imperial scullery, Enver Pasha, is his attitude toward his late father. Although Sultan Abdul Hamid had even gone to the length of bestowing upon his favorite son on the occasion of his twenty-first birthday the title of nahim, which may be rendered in English as coadjutor, associate or viceroy—a title which figures but rarely in the history of the Ottoman empire—yet Burhan-Eddine never raised a finger in defense of his father, either on the occasion of the first military pronunciamento in 1908 or at the time of his final deposition and imprisonment in 1909.

Burhan-Eddine became the most intimate friend of Enver, and contributed in no small degree to bring about the latter's marriage to the imperial princess, Nadjie Sultana.

RECRUITING WOMEN DOCTORS

After six months' trial of the women's overseas hospitals, the French government has asked the National Woman Suffrage association, which sent the unit over and is financing it, to supply immediately a personnel of 50 women, doctors, nurses, nurses' aids, clerks, chauffeurs, etc., to run a 300-bed hospital to be established for the care of gas cases. Mrs. Raymond Brown of New York, who went to France for the suffragists to inspect the units they had sent and report what was needed, came back with this official request and is scouring the country now for the very best experts her sex can furnish to enlist for this dangerous work.

"It is dangerous," she said in her office at national suffrage headquarters, "dangerous not only because it will probably be near the front, but because the gassed men come in so full of the poisonous stuff, their clothes and their bodies reeking with it, that the nurses and doctors must breathe in a good deal and the clerks who handle their clothes do, too.

The French will supply the hospital. It is to be ready for the suffrage unit whenever the latter arrives, and Mrs. Brown hopes to start for Europe with the 50 by the end of August. The French war department will supply some of the equipment, and will maintain the patients, but food and salaries for the 50 of the personnel will come out of the money the American suffragists are raising for this war work.

NOTORIOUS HUN INTRIGUER

Admiral von Hintze, German minister at Christiania and formerly minister to Mexico, who was selected to succeed Dr. von Kuehlmann as foreign secretary, is perhaps the most notorious intriguer in the German diplomatic service. China has been the scene of much of his activity, and there he hobnobbed not only with the Germanophile mandarins, but also with the robber bands and spies.

So scandalous, indeed, was his behavior that he was recalled for a while and at the outbreak of the war he was in Mexico. In the guise of an Englishman he managed to return to Germany by way of the United States, England and Holland, and in 1915 was sent back to China as minister.

He traveled once more by the way of America, and despite the close watch for him which was kept by the Japanese he managed to get across the Pacific as a supercargo in a Scandinavian tramp steamer. Von Hintze is as wily and tricky as any living diplomat, and when in Mexico tried hard to drag the United States into war with that republic.

WINS FAME IN THE AIR

Photo by Western Newspaper Union

Lieut. Tyler Cook Bronson, a young American aviator, only twenty-two years old, was mentioned in the dispatches as being one of the American group who brought down six of the kaiser's best fighting airmen, a unit of the famous Richthofen's own squadron.

The encounter took place near Chateau Thierry and was the largest air fight in which members of the American squadron have taken part. Six German planes were brought down while the rest took to flight, absolutely no loss resulting to our flyers.

Lieutenant Bronson comes from a fighting family, his uncle, the late Col. E. N. Knox, having been a Civil war veteran and medal of honor man. His mother, Mrs. Melvin A. Brown, is secretary of the national aeronautic committee of New York, and her only other son, Frederick P. Bronson, is with the engineers' corps in France.

The young fighter was educated in Switzerland, served on the Mexican border, and was trained for aviation service at Ithaca, Toronto, Canada and Fort Worth.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 11

HELPING OTHERS.

LESSON TEXTS—Luke 10:25-37; Galatians 6:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ.—Galatians 6:2.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Galatians 5:25-6:10.

PRIMARY LESSON MATERIAL—Luke 10:25-37.

INTERMEDIATE, SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Who needs our help, and how can we best give it?

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL — Proverbs 17:17; Matthew 5:42; Romans 12:10-15; I Corinthians 13:1-13; I John 3:16-18.

I. Being a Neighbor (Luke 10:30-37).

The story of the Good Samaritan is Christ's answer to the lawyer's question: Who is our neighbor? He shifts the question so as to show that the supreme concern is not who is our neighbor, but whose neighbor am I? If I am Christ's, my supreme concern will be to find those who have need that I may be a neighbor to them. If we love God supremely, we shall find all along life's highway souls who have been wounded and robbed by sin, whom we can love as ourselves. To be a neighbor is to—

1. See those about us who need help (v. 33).

Love is keen to discern need. Let us be on the lookout for those in need of our help.

2. Have compassion on the needy (v. 33).

Christ's pity was aroused as he came into contact with those who were suffering and in need. All those who have his nature will be likewise moved.

3. Go to those in need (v. 34).

Many are willing to give money to help the poor and needy, but are unwilling to personally minister to them. Many times the personal touch is more important than the material aid. We should give ourselves as well as our money.

4. Bind up the wounds (v. 34).

Many indeed are the wounds today which need our attention.

5. Set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34).

This is a proof that the love is genuine. Christians will deny themselves in order to have something to give to those who have need. This kind of sympathy is greatly needed today.

6. Bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34).

Genuine love does not leave its service incomplete. Much Christian service is spasmodic; helps once and then leaves a man to care for himself.

7. Gives money (v. 35).

It costs a good deal to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God his only Son; it cost Christ his life. May we go and do likewise!

II. Living and Walking in the Spirit (Galatians 6:1-10).

Those who are freely justified in Christ will conduct themselves as follows:

1. Restore the sinning brother (v. 1).

Restore is a surgical term which means the placing back of a dislocated member to its place. We are members of the body of Christ, and the sinning of a brother ought to as really give us pain as the dislocation of a member of our body. This service is to be done in the spirit of meekness, lest we also be tempted.

2. Bear one another's burdens (vv. 2-4).

Many are the burdens of life, burdens of weakness, temptation, sorrow, suffering and sin. Christ is the supreme burden-bearer. When we do this we fulfill the law of Christ.

3. Bear our own burdens (v. 5).

There are peculiar burdens incumbent upon each one to bear. These burdens cannot be borne by others.

4. Support teachers of God's Word (vv. 6-8).

It is incumbent upon those who are taught in the Word of God to give of their means for the support of the teacher. To repudiate this obligation is mockery of God, for he ordained that they who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel (1 Cor. 9:14).

5. Be earnest in well-doing (v. 9).

Some fail of the reward because they give up when the goal is about to be reached.

6. Work for the good of all men (v. 10).

The one who is free in Christ will have sympathies and interests as wide as the race. He will especially strive to help those who are members of Christ's body.

True Service.

There is no service like his that serves because he loves—Sir Philip Sidney.

Vaunteth Not Itself.

Put a seal upon your lips, and forget what you have done. After you have been kind, after Love has stolen forth into the world and done its beautiful work, go back into the shade again, and say nothing about it.

A Paradox.

It is one of the happy paradoxes of spirit that without dependence there can be no independence, and that precisely in proportion to our faith will be our intellectual and moral activity. —Susan E. Blow.

IN ANOTHER KEY

BADLY MIXED.

"And so, Mr. Pills," the elderly woman remarked to the country druggist, "poor old Joe is dead."

"Yes," replied Mr. Pills, "Joe died very early this morning. He was in the store here only last night."

"Yes, I seen him," went on the customer, "and I said to myself, 'Poor old Joe, he's a goner now he's going over there for medicine.'"

The chemist was anything but pleased, and the woman seeing she was misunderstood, endeavored to set matters right.

"I don't mean to say, Mr. Pills," she explained hurriedly, "as how your medicine killed him, nowt o' the sort. Old Joe never did like physic, and I'm sartin he'd never have took the risk o' comin' here if he'd had a chance o' living!"

Why He Quit.

"And have you always been a tramp?" asked the strong-faced woman at the back door.

"No, no, ma'am," was the seedy one's reply. "I used to be a drug clerk up in Maine."

"And why did you give up that occupation, pray?"

"Well, you see ma'am, since women's rights have been established, I couldn't stand the ladies coming up to the soda fountain and winking at me." —Yonkers Statesman.

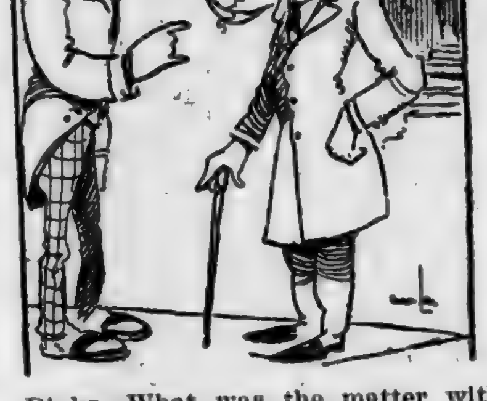
Woman's Way.

Patience—She's not satisfied with her new photographs at all.

Patrice—I don't know why not. They make her look younger than she really is.

"I know that, but she expected to have 'em look even younger than she says she is."

WORN OUT.



Dinks—What was the matter with the wedding party? The bride tottered, the best man looked groggy, and one of the ushers collapsed at the door. What was the cause of it?

Winks—Too many rehearsals.

Overconfidence.

That optimist, howe'er polite,
Should go on his way unheeded.
Who says that everythin's all right
And hard work isn't needed.

Too Early.

"Can you quote 'The Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner'?"

"No," replied Mr. Dubwaite. "It has been a long time since I read that poem, but I distinctly remember that, while the mariner told a corking good story of adventures at sea, he made no reference to U-boats."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Nursing a Luxury.

"Have you any idea of the amount of money you waste every year on tobacco?" inquired the severe-looking man.

"No," replied the serene man. "You know if I kept figuring on what it cost I might not enjoy smoking sufficiently to make it worth while."

A Serious One.

"Yesterday was the turning point in Jiggsby's career."

"How so?"

"His auto turned turtle."

A Danger.

Sometimes we vainly seek to boast
Of service in the fray,
An' when we're bent on helpin' most
We're gettin' in the way!

Art.

"Have you ever seen an Italian sunset?" asked the artist.

"No, I never have," replied the lady in the studio.

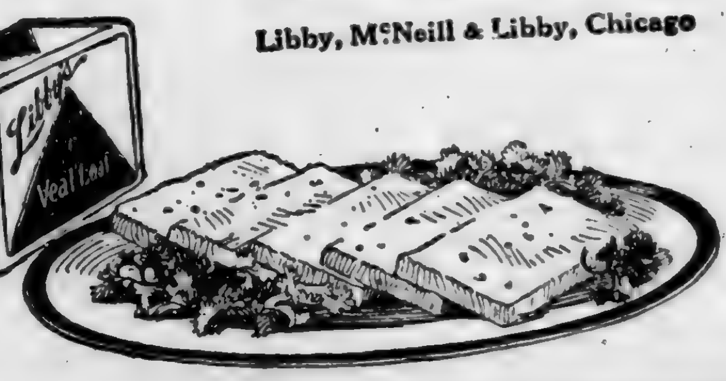
"Well, that painting of mine over there is an Italian sunset."

"Oh, really! And does it look anything like that?"

The Reason.

"So the bride eloped with the groomsman. Why do you suppose she did that?"

"Because he was the best man."



Libby's

Tempting veal loaf

WHAT is more tempting for a summer luncheon than Libby's savory Veal Loaf! Prettily garnished it makes a dainty yet substantial dish — and one all ready to put on the table!

Order Libby's Veal Loaf today. You will want it always on your shelves—for quick luncheons—for unexpected guests.

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

Help Save the Canadian Harvest

When Our Own Harvest Requirements Are Completed

United States Help Badly Needed
Harvest Hands Wanted

Military demands from a limited population have made such a scarcity of farm help in Canada that the appeal of the Canadian Government to the United States Government for

Help to Harvest the Canadian Grain Crop of 1918

Meets with a request for all available assistance to

GO FORWARD AS SOON AS OUR OWN CROP IS SECURED

The Allied Armies must be fed and therefore it is necessary to save every bit of the crop of the Continent—American and Canadian.

Those who respond to this appeal will get a

Warm Welcome, Good Wages, Good Board and Find Comfortable Homes

A card entitling the holder to a rate of one cent per mile from Canadian boundary points to destination and return will be given to all harvest applicants.

Every facility will be afforded for admission into Canada and return to the United States.

Information as to wages, railway rates and routes may be had from the

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT SERVICE
FT. WAYNE, KOKOMO, SOUTH BEND

Gosh!

Old Lady—Tut, tut! Do you know what becomes of little boys who tell fibs?

Willie Hibrow (aged five)—Oh, that is an optional matter with the boys' parents. Some are foolishly threatened with eternal damnation; corporal punishment is inflicted on some; others are incarcerated for short periods of time in cellars, sheds and closets or are humiliated by being put prematurely to bed. Others are subjected to a course of light mental gymnastics containing a smattering child psychology, psychopathy, psychomancy, oftentimes with an element of alectryomacy of dactyliomancy. After all the question is one of a belief in or against a personal devil. Personally, I—

(But the good old lady was gasping for breath.)

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

In Nowise Playful.

"I understand you have quit playing politics?"

"I never played politics," replied Senator Sorghum. "When I went into a campaign I never left the other fellow enough of a chance to warrant calling it any kind of a game."

That Is If He Isn't a Scout.

"What does a person usually grow in his garden?"

"Tired."—Boys' Life.

Inducements.

"Mrs. Dubwaite and Mrs. Twobble seem to be on friendly terms.

"Yes, indeed. They've been that way for a number of years."

"How do you account for the fact they never fall out, as most women do, sooner or later?"

"Well, their husbands' incomes are identical; both are passably good looking; they have about the same amount of money to spend for clothes, luxuries and amusements, and there are neither children nor poodles to stir up strife. In fact, they'd have a hard time finding something to squabble about."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Quite True.

"Crime has generally an excuse."

"What is it?"

"There is usually a warrant for it."

Some married women are so weak that they allow their husbands to keep part of their salaries.

ASTHMADOR
AVERTS-RELIEVES
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
Begin Treatment NOW
All Druggists Guarantee

Why Lose Your Hair

The Cause is Dandruff and Itching; The Remedy Cuticura

All druggists; Soap 25, Ointment 25 & 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 32–1918.

Do This After You Eat

Hot Weather "Out of Fix" Stomachs Easily Put Right

When hot weather comes, stomach and bowel miseries begin. Strong, sound stomachs as well as weak ones are easily affected by the harmful gases and acids so often produced in the things we eat and drink during hot weather. Winter—Nature's icebox, is gone—hot weather breeds the poisonous germs that cause ptomaine poison in all its many forms.

Every one knows that the after-eating nausea, belching, that wretched, bloated, "lumpy" feeling, sour stomach, heartburn, food repeating, and other forms of indigestion and dyspepsia are far more frequent during hot weather. It is the time when you have to guard constantly against an upset stomach and the many ills that are always apt to follow. Then again—we have the world's war to win—with the change of diet and extra work which means we must all carefully guard our stomachs this year—keep ourselves fit and fine.

A marvelous relief and prevention has been found for stomach sufferers, which makes it possible for you to eat the things you like best without a single unpleasant thought of what may follow. EATONIC Tablets, good tasting, quick acting, and absolutely harmless, have already proven an untold blessing to thousands of people.

One or two EATONIC Tablets after meals work wonders. They sweeten and purify the stomach by neutralizing the trouble-making acids and gases and stop the griping pains of indigestion and other stomach and bowel disturbances.

And the best part of it is—you can be your own judge. Just try EATONIC. Let your own stomach tell you the truth. If you are not pleased then they don't cost you one penny.

Druggists are amazed at the astonishing reports from EATONIC users, who have found EATONIC a quick, wonderful relief for stomach ailments.

So we tell you to get a large box of EATONIC from your druggist, whom you know and can trust, and then if EATONIC is not suited to your case, return it to your druggist at once and get back your money. That's a fair, square offer. Every person is urged to make the test. Let your own stomach tell you the truth. So start using EATONIC today.

AUGUST

0473

The Man with Money hides his Valuables in Our Safety Deposit Vaults where they are SAFE.
He has no FEAR
of Fire or Burglars.

Mobilizing Finances:

It's dead easy when your available cash is all snugly reposing in a sound Bank. You can handle your finances with less cost and trouble. This Bank can render you valuable service in all matters of finance.

Join Our Army of Depositors

and be prepared for the financial battles that face you—Your bank account is always available.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

Profits and Prices

Profits may be considered from two angles:

1st—Their effect on prices;
2nd—As a return to investors.

When profits are small as compared with sales, they have little effect on prices.

Swift & Company's profits are only a fraction of a cent per pound on all products sold, and if eliminated entirely would have practically no effect on prices.

Swift & Company paid 10 per cent dividends to over 20,000 stockholders out of its 1917 profits. It also had to build extensions and improvements out of profits; to finance large stocks of goods made necessary by unprecedented requirements of the United States and Allied Governments; and to provide protection against the day of declining markets.

Is it fair to call this profiteering?

Swift & Company, U.S.A.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas, Death has removed from our midst a highly respected citizen and from our lodge a faithful member in the passing away of Oliver H. Widney; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of St. Joe lodge, No 400, K. of P., deplore the death of Oliver H. Widney, but bow our heads to this expression of Divine will.

Resolved, That we extend to the family of our deceased brother our heartfelt sympathy, not in any empty phrase, but in the full meaning of that term.

Resolved, That the charter of our lodge be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days out of regard for the memory of our departed brother; that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the lodge; that they be printed in the St. Joe News and copies sent to members of the family of Brother Widney.

B. F. Terman,
J. B. Winebrenner,
H F. Garton,
Com'tce

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. 2

Mrs. Vernie Kelley and daughter and Miss Nellie Kelley spent last Sunday with Roy Zimnerman and wife, of St. Joe.

Clem Keener, wife and son, of Springfield Center, spent last Sunday with their son, Clarence Keener, and family.

Charles Cook and family and Mrs. Mary Cook spent last Sunday at the Harrison Norrick home.

The Betz family reunion will be held on Sunday, Sept. 1, 1918, at the home of George Horn and wife

Lawrence Means, wife and son, Stanley, spent last Sunday with Ray Means and family.

NEWVILLE

Miss Ruth Griest of Hicksville, was an over Sunday guest of Newville relatives.

Emery Welker and wife of Melbern, Ohio, were over Sunday guests of J. H. Benner and family.

Dale McNabb leaves this week for Syracuse, N. Y. for U. S. service, Dale leaves a wife and child.

Roger Tryon and wife of near Waterloo, were Sunday guests of L. W. Yeiser and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Miller took dinner with Omo Richmond and wife Sunday.

At the ice cream social last week at the McNabb home, $21 was served.

Will Thomas, who has been in the photograph business here for the past month, has moved to Butler.

Rev. Fred Thomas has resigned his pastorate here with the Christian church and will move away in the near future.

COLETOWN

Mrs. Anna Hursey, of Concord, spent Thursday with Mrs. Jay Hart.

Gladys Conine visited Thursday and Friday with friends at Auburn.

Grace Sauers and Beatrice Blackwell were Sunday guests at J. B. Miller's.

Miles Brown, of Van Buren, O., is visiting his brother J. D. Brown.

George Brown and wife spent Saturday night with Jackson Brown and family.

A. E. Hart and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blackwell and family, Mrs. Mary Blackwell and Mrs. Martha Andress, took dinner on Wednesday with W. M. Sauers and family.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —Editor News.]

For Sale: Jersey cow and two heifer calves. John Knight.

Found: Log chain, east of the Thomas White corners. Call on Geo. Swineford.

For Sale: Two fresh cows with calves, also two to be fresh soon. Inquire of R. U. Bowser, Spencerville, Ind. Phone 96-12

For Sale: Fresh cow and thoroughbred Holstein bull. T. A. Northrup, St. Joe.

Obituary

Oliver Hanna Widney, son of John P. and Jane L. Widney was born in the eastern part of DeKalb county, Indiana, on Nov. 12, 1841; and departed this life at his home in Auburn on July 30, 1918, aged 76 years, 8 months and 18 days.

Mr. Widney was united in marriage to Emily F. Maxwell on Nov. 3, 1864. To this union were born two children—Hugh M. Widney, of St. Joe; Mrs. Lenore Kagey, of Warsaw. On April 9, 1909, Mrs. Widney passed away.

On Jan. 1, 1910, Mr. Widney was united in marriage to Mrs. Lucy A. Griswold, who survives him and was with him in the hour of his death.

In the dark days of the civil war, deceased served his country by two enlistments, and was a soldier with a most honorable record; and after the days of strife, he was a most loyal friend of the men "who wore the blue" and served them in the capacity of a pension agent until his death, and was known by all to be a most honorable and painstaking pension attorney. Turned aside from his chosen profession of law by the war, he gave his energies to the clearing and building up of a splendid farm in the eastern part of the county, and was known for his aggressive and progressive methods, which materialized in splendid achievements

From 1882 to 1887, Mr. Widney served DeKalb county as a county commissioner. In his work in this capacity, he was ever the careful business man; and the county is the richer by reason of his services.

He was a member of the K. of P. lodge at St. Joe, and for many years took an active part in its workings.

As a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, he exemplified the noblest principles of patriotism and loyalty to all of the principles and institutions which flourish by reason of the old flag, for whose honor and glory he fought. In recent months since the war clouds have again gathered over our land, he followed with deep interest the movements of our soldiers as they left our county for the various cantonments, marching with the members of the G. A. R. to the railroad station on the days of the departure of the boys and bidding them God speed on their going.

Deceased is survived and mourned by a widow, Lucy A. Widney, a son, Hugh M. Widney, a daughter, Mrs. Lenore Kagey, a grandson, B. V. Widney, two grand-daughters, Doris Widney and Florence Kagey, a brother, Samuel L. Widney, a half brother, John P. Widney, and two half sisters, Mrs. Alice M. Lewis and Mrs. Cora Ludwig, and a host of other relatives and friends.

As a business man, upright, honorable and successful; as a citizen, patriotic, loyal and true; as a friend, loved and trusted most by those who knew him best; as a father and husband, kind, considerate and devoted—Oliver H. Widney made the world the richer by his living and these nearest to suffer most by his death.

COBURN'S CORNERS

Ralph Nelson and wife were callers at George Place's Sunday evening.

C. M. Coburn and wife were dinner guests of Fred Hart and family Sunday.

Harry Waltz and family called on P A. Walker and family Sunday evening.

Mr. McClellan Hart has been very ill the past week but is reported a little better at this writing.

We are informed that Lloyd Coburn and wife of Garrett, are the proud parents of a baby boy.

George Snyder and wife of Springfield and a Mrs. Snyder, of Fort Wayne, visited Thursday at P. A. Walker's.

T. H. Shull, wife and daughter, Doris, spent Friday in the home of their daughter, Mrs. L. A. Mercer, near Antwerp.

Clarence Hart and family, of near St. Joe, and Mrs. Alice Hart were entertained at the home of Clyde Hart and family, Sunday.

Guy Platter, wife and little son, Evelyn and Frankie Engle, of Newville, Mrs. C. C. Shull and daughter Nellie and Miss Doris Shull, visited at the county farm Sunday afternoon.

There will be no Sunday School or preaching service at this place next Sunday morning. We are all going to the Charles Reign Scoville meeting at Newville. Preaching in the evening, everybody invited.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, . . . IND

Sheriff's Sale

DeKalb Mortgage Loan Company vs. Oliver Greenfield, Clara Greenfield and George F. Burgoyne.

No. 4,266.—In the DeKalb Circuit Court, State of Indiana.

By virtue of an order of sale, to me directed and delivered by the clerk of said court, in the above entitled cause, I have levied upon and will expose for sale by public auction at the court house door, in said county, between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock p. m., on the

31st Day of August, 1918

the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following described premises, viz:

A part of the west one half of the northwest quarter of Section thirty (30), in Township thirty-three (33) north, of Range fifteen (15) east, described as follows: Commencing at the northeast corner of the said west one-half and running thence west on the north line of said land thirty-two (32) rods; thence south parallel with the west line of said section to within sixty (60) rods of the center line of said section running east and west; thence east on a line parallel with the south line of said section thirty-two (32) rods to the east line of said land; thence on a straight line to place of beginning; containing twenty (20) acres of land more or less, all in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

And on failure to realize therefrom the full amount of the judgment, interest thereon and costs; I will at the same time, and in the manner aforesaid, offer for sale the fee simple of the above described premises. Taken as the property of the defendant to satisfy said order of sale.

Frank Baltz, Sheriff
DeKalb County.

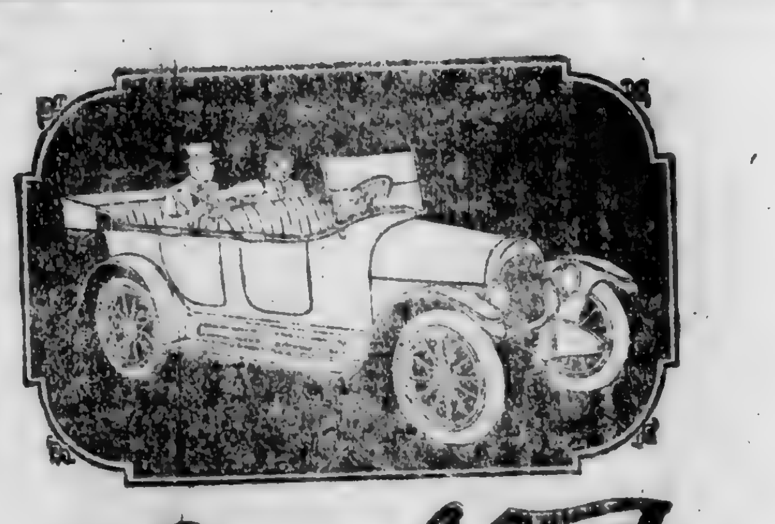
C. M. Brown, Attorney.

Aug 1-8-15

A Sluggish Liver Needs Attention

An Inactive Liver Affects the Kidneys and Deranges the Stomach and Bowels.

Too much stress can not be placed on the necessity of keeping the liver in good condition: upon it the health of the body largely depends. When the liver becomes sluggish, the kidneys are overworked, the digestive fluids are not properly secreted and a languid, bilious, nervous or sick headachy condition results. Poisonous matter accumulates within the body. Constipation, bloating, dizziness, belching, pain or soreness in the right side, impaired vision and, in fact, most diseases have their origin in an inactive liver. An inactive liver is easily corrected if taken in time, but the only way to doctor is to get at the cause. Glando Tonic is a liver remedy that has a splendid record for renewing activity, removing the poisons and building up the system. For bilious attacks, it can not be beaten. Mothers who are nursing a baby should take Glando Tonic to keep the bowels well regulated. This will keep baby's bowels in a good condition. Glando Tonic is a three-in-one treatment that brings results. A trial will convince the most skeptical. Testimonials will be furnished upon request. Glando Tonic is sold by druggists or may be obtained by sending 50c direct to the Grand-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.



Overland
The Thrift Car

THE outstanding automobile feature of today is the saneness in the use of cars.

This is aptly illustrated by the fact that more than 100,000 Model 90 cars have already been put to work by responsible citizens.

You too can practice the thrift spirit and still benefit by modern motor car accommodations and conveniences by ordering your Model 90 at once.

Five Points of Overland Superiority:
Appearance, Performance, Comfort, Service and Price
Light Four Model 90 Touring Car, $895—f. o. b. Toledo
Price subject to change without notice

STEWARD & BEAMS,
Spencerville, Ind.

AUGUST

L 90

0474

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII | ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 22 1918 | NO. 34

$1,522.55 Fair.

The Red Cross Fair Held Friday, August 16 at St. Joe was far beyond the expectations of the Committee in Charge—Donations were very liberal from everyone—Large enthusiastic crowd swarm the streets all day—Kaiser given a death blow for our Boys in France.

The weather man was on the giving hand last Friday and furnished St. Joe with an ideal day for the Red Cross sale. The people of Concord township were also on the giving hand; and, as a result, the Red Cross treasury is $1,417.07 richer than it was before. There have been larger crowds in St. Joe within the history of the town, but never one that was more enthusiastic (not in a noisy way) nor more bent on doing a duty than on having a good time. The people enjoyed themselves, of course: the irrepressible American spirit that puts songs and jokes into the mouths of the boys in the trenches causes the Yankee to enjoy himself even in the performance of duty.

An address by Congressman Fairfield at 10 a. m. came first on the program as previously arranged; but it was thought best to wait until after the arrival of the band from Hicksville on the 11:11 train before beginning. Then another change was made: Frank Adams, the inimitable, of Angola, the only man in America who can do anything he is called upon to do—make a speech, give a recitation or (if necessary) loop the loop in an aeroplane—was the first speaker introduced. "Introduced" may not be the proper term to use, because Mr Adams needs no introduction to a St. Joe audience: everyone hereabouts knows him and he is a general favorite. He made a short speech or, to be more concise, the first of a series of speeches; for throughout the entire program, he remained on duty in the speaker's stand, ever ready to stimulate the crowd when interest flagged, to add to the enthusiasm when money was pouring in, to amuse by a recitation from time to time, to assist at the auction sale, to do the right thing at the right time and be of use all the time as only Frank Adams can.

Mr. Fairfield was next introduced. He made a short address, but he crowded much that was worth listening to into a brief space of time. It was a masterful effort, replete with sublime periods and abounding in patriotism. He centered his remarks about what he termed the greatest two events in history—the crucifixion of Christ, which opened the way for liberty in the world; the discovery of America, which gave the world a chance. There two principles, liberty and opportunity, he argued, are menaced today by the enemy in the titanic war in Europe; and he concluded with an inspiring burst of patriotic eloquence.

The leading event of the day, the auction sale, came next. "Other events may have been more entertaining or amusing; but this one exceeded them all in importance, for it meant money, and money is what the Red Cross ladies needed above all things. The articles on sale, which ranged from live stock to vegetables and included a variety of things, were all donated. Five auctioneers, led by J. L. Rhodenbaugh, of this place, and aided and abetted by Frank Adams, attacked the pocket books of the crowd in massed formation. They got the money, too, for many of the owners of the aforesaid pocket books surrendered without a struggle—stuck up their hands and cried "Kamerad." , The auctioneers from out of town were: A. M. Grady, of Angola; Fred McNamara and Charles Baber, of Auburn; Garman Hallett, of Butler. Frank Adams tried his hand at selling, and a stranger would have been forced to the conclusion that Mr. Adams had done nothing but cry sales all his life.

The first article offered was a black rooster. He is a familiar sight at Red Cross sales—he's always being sold, yet never sold He changed owners seven times last Friday; and, in the end, no one owned him. The following gentlemen paid $5.00 apiece for him and handed him back to be sold over again: Sol Barney, Lester Curie, Will Curie Fred Jenkins, Elza R. Kinsey, Ed Leighty and H. M. Widney. This valuable bird goes to Hamilton, where he will figure in another Red Cross sale. With him goes a white rooster, donated by St. Joe. The latter's coop will be decorated with $61.60, the amount for which he sold, mostly at private sale.

A horse, donated by Charles Murphy, was put up at a raffle. H. H. Todd held the lucky number. He gave the animal back to the Red Cross to be sold at auction. Mr. Todd was the highest bidder, paying $35.00 for the horse.

The parade was an interesting feature of the day. It was not lengthy, but it was altogether appropriate to the occasion. First came Hart's girls' band, followed by the fire department, the Red Cross ladies and, the most touching part, the mothers of boys in the service. Farmer Corntassel and his wife, in a rickety old buggy, created much amusement; and, bringing up in the rear, was Walter Baker, of Concord, and the kaiser's goat.

The Red Cross was preceded by eight young ladies bearing an outstretched flag, upon which the crowd showered money as they passed; and $56.12 was gathered by this means. In the evening, a second flag parade netted an additional $6.00.

As the mothers passed along the street, each with a service flag across her breast, several with two stars, every true man uncovered and reverently bowed his head in recognition of the great sacrifice that American motherhood is making. Following is the list of the mothers as nearly as the News has been able to get it: Mesdames E. Hively, John Miller, J. C. Hull, Will Curie, Hilary Shuff, F. M. Monroe, Frank Sechler, William Maxwell, Belle Ridgway, John Hull, C. C. Bassett, Chris. Sailer, A. D. Perry, O. Ayres, Frank Scholes and J. S. Kain. Frank Adams, while the ladies were passing the speakers' stand, paid tribute to them by reciting a poem which portrayed the heroism and self sacrifice of the mothers of the land.

Farmer Corntassel and his wife made things lively on the street immediately after the parade; and, by the way, the old gentleman, notwithstanding a profusion of whiskers, resembled Clyde Hart, while beneath his better half's sunbonnet was a face that any acquaintance of Sam Mumaw would easily have recognized. Farmer Corntassel objected to fellows' winking at and pinching his wife and had twenty-four of the worst offenders haled before Justice Widney, who fined each one of the gay old sinners 25c. In the end, one of them retaliated on Farmer Corntassel and his severely virtuous wife by charging the latter with being public nuisances. The farmer pleaded guilty when brought before his honor and enriched the Red Cross fund to the extent of 50c. He kicked on paying his wife's fine, but he had to come across.

St. Joe reminded a visitor of the old poem of "The Spider and the Fly." Whichever way he turned, the Red Cross ladies had spun a web before him to catch his wallet. There were booths on every hand, wherein tempting wares were offered for sale by a bevy of tempting Red Crossites.

The Red Cross sale would have been incomplete without music, for music is the life of any public gathering. St. Joe was truly fortunate in securing the services of Hart's Girls band, of Hicksville. They were the chief source of entertainment throughout the day; and concluded the program by a concert in the evening, given from a stand at the Lutheran church corner.

The total receipts were $1,522 55; expenditures, $105.48. The receipts were as follows, the first four items being from Newville organizations:

Christian Aid	$ 17 70
Pythian Sisters	5 85
Red Cross	76 00
Class No. 5, U. B. Sunday School	38 51
Christian Sunday School	27 75
Firemen	28 30
I. O. O. F.	16 09
K. of P.	25 00
Pythian Sisters	52 02
Comfort Kit Girls	78 00
Lutheran Sunday School	16 02
Ladies' Literary Club	6 40
Loyal Temperance Legion	43 00
Red Cross Booth	61 35
Rebekah Lodge	2 00
M. P. Sunday School	50 17
W. C. T. U.	28 31
Auction Sale	710 03
Horse Tickets	81 00
Donations	159 05
Total Receipts	$1522 55
Expenditures	105 48
Balance	$1417 07

CARD OF THANKS

On behalf of the Red Cross, we desire to thank all who helped in any way to make our sale at St. Joe a success. The finance committee; the auctioneers; the firemen; Hart's Girls band; the several organizations of Newville and St. Joe; the general public, who so generously gave and so patriotically patronized the sale—all deserve special mention. You have accomplished a fine work, and have your reward in the consciousness of duty well done.

Belle Barney, Chairman
St. Joe Chapter

Subscribe for this paper.

Tomatoes and Pumpkins for sale. G. W. Milliman or J. M. Milliman.

Lost.—On Sunday, June 23, not more than 3 miles northwest of Newville, a large heavy brown shawl and a heavy red sweater. I will give $2 00 for their retusn or $1.00 for either one of them. I live 5 miles south of Butler and 4 miles north of St. Joe. My postoffice address is St. Joe. Charles Strite.

For Your
Fresh and
Salt Meats
Fish and
Canned Goods
SEE
W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET
Ask concerning SPECIALS.

Make Your Hogs Laugh
By Feeding
PIONEER
Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market, as you may know by the following ingredients:
Wheat middlings, Corn feed meal, Linseed oil meal, Ground and bolted screenings from wheat, barley and kaffir and dried buttermilk
To Contain Not Less Than
3.0 % of Crude fat.
12.0 % crude protein, not more than
12.0 % crude fiber.
PRICE: $3.50 for 100 lbs.
We have Coal For Thrashing.
The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.
Spencerville, Indiana

4 1/2 %
LIBERTY LOAN ANTICIPATION
U. S. Certificates of Indebtedness
Dated June 25, 1918—Due October 24, 1918.

The Banks of this country have been called upon by the Treasury Department of the U. S. Government to purchase Certificates of Indebtedness in anticipation of the Fourth Liberty Loan. This bank, believing it to be its patriotic duty to respond to this call, will take its full quota of these Certificates from time to time as the Treasury Department needs funds to finance the war.

To the people of this community, who have responded so loyally in purchasing past issues of Liberty Bonds and who expect to take bonds of the Fourth Loan, and to those who may desire a short-time Government investment, we recommend the purchase of these Certificates, which we will supply in denominations of $500, $1,000 and upwards without profit to this bank.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

Camp Meigs, July 21.

Dear Parents:—

I have been thinking of writing. So I will attempt it now. This leaves me well, feeling fine and enjoying myself the best kind. We have been taking some long hikes. Yesterday morning, we took a 10-mile hike In the afternoon, drilled, We don't do as much drilling as we did. We are getting that pretty good. We take the hikes and have some games.

We are to go out to a picnic today Major Armour, meat man of Chicago, is giving our unit of 167 men, which cost him $350 cash; but, of course, he won't miss it. We would think that is awful; but, of course, he don't.

Well, we had some time at the picnic. We had sandwiches, cake, ice cream and everything you could think of for dinner, soft drinks three or four kinds, all the cigarettes you wanted. Then, after noon, we boys had to furnish the sport—ten boxing matches, rescue races. They gave us prizes in this sport. I won two prizes, which consist of six packages of cigarettes. We sure did have a time.

The other day, about forty of our unit was invited to a national ball game. When we arrived there, we were somewhat surprised—the president of the United States was there. The officers gave us fifteen minutes to sell W. S. stamps. The first two gentlemen I asked to buy gave me $100 apiece. The next man told me he would give $1,000 if I would get some one to match it, but I was not successful in getting the man to match it; but, in the fifteen minutes we were allowed to work, we sold over $5,000 worh of stamps. We were allowed to work only fifteen minutes. We thought that was something great.

We were honored yesterday by a visit from Secretary of War Baker.

Well, mother, since I have been in the service I have learned a great deal and have enjoyed myself to the limit. We couldn't have better officers. They are mostly young men, and they treat us like men. We have good food and good clothes.

I am ready to go where Uncle Sam needs me, as I realize this is the best country on earth and we must protect its integrity.

Your Soldier Boy.
Ford V. Jackson.

The Odell Safety
Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

M. P.	91	3.65
Lutheran	106	4.24
Christian	59	2.50
M. E. Spencer	95	5.63
Lutheran	123	5.25
Concord	59	1 66
Coburntown	83	3 08
Newville U B	84	3.31

PROTECT
Your Grain

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Amid the din of all the drives, don't ignore the still, small voice telling you to save food.

Published by U. S. Food Administration for Indiana

No Hard Coal For St. JOE, IND.

Lay In Your SOFT COAL
NOW!

We are soroy to announce that St. Joe was not included in the list of Indiana towns to receive hard coal this coming season.

We have a great many cars of Soft Coal Coming So Place Your Order NOW. We Cannot Promise That we will receive Shipment of All the Coal we have Bought, SO GET YOURS OFF THE NEXT CAR.

This is a Little Friendly Advise.
Remember Last Winter. Prepare NOW.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

AUGUST

L 90

0475

FOOD OF SOLDIERS GIVEN GREAT CARE

NUTRITION OFFICERS WHO ARE EXPERTS BEING STATIONED IN THE ARMY CAMPS.

EDIBLE WASTE IS REDUCED

Navy Department Sends Uniformed Desk Men to Active Service—Ancient Armor Supplies Models for Modern American War Equipment.

Nutrition officers are to be stationed in every National army cantonment and in every National Guard camp, as well as in every camp where 10,000 or more soldiers are in training, the war department announces. These men are food specialists. Before they joined the army as members of the division of food and nutrition of the medical department they were connected with colleges and public bodies as physiologists, chemists, economists, food inspectors and experts in other specialized work relating to food.

Since last October these officers have gone from camp to camp, studied the food served, how it was inspected, stored and prepared, and made recommendations resulting in many advantageous changes. They gave instructions in the principles of nutrition, the proper selection of foods and the construction of dietaries to mess officers, medical officers and others interested. They told how to avoid waste, gave methods for judging and storing food, and emphasized the importance of keeping kitchens and mess halls clean and orderly.

At one camp seven companies were selected from various organizations totaling 1,135 men with which to try out an anti-waste plan. The average edible waste was found to be 1.12 pounds per man per day. The nutrition officer gave the mess sergeants and cooks instructions in food and mess economy with the result the average edible waste was reduced to 0.43 pounds per man per day, a saving of 0.69 pounds. This saving amounted to $61.75 per day for the seven messes, or $22,542 per year.

Sixty new officers are to be commissioned in the division of food and nutrition to handle the additional work. All will be food specialists similar to those already in the service. They will advise about the composition and nutritive values of all dietaries, make inspections for adulterations, spoilage and deterioration and co-operate with the mess officials.

Armor for the American soldiers, helmets, shields and breastplates, is being modeled in the workshops of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, the war department announces. The best of the types used by the soldiers of former days is being wrought into shapes for present warfare, some pieces on ancient anvils and by hammers that were actually used centuries ago.

In direct charge of the workshop where the work is being done is a French artisan whose skill has been known to armor collectors the world over, and whose forbears for generations back have kept alive the dying trade of the armorer.

This war in Europe has brought back into use many discarded weapons and practices of medieval warfare. There has been the adoption of steel helmets by all the warring powers, breastplates, armored waistcoats and trench shields. This necessitated an overhauling and new study of ancient armor, with the result that experts declare that scarcely a technical idea has been brought forward which was not worked out in elaborate detail by the old-time armor makers.

The Metropolitan museum collection is among the seven great collections of ancient armor. It is an incident to this collection that there was established at the museum an armorer's workshop. So far as known it is unique. In it were cleaned, repaired and restored pieces that were defective. Daniel Tachaux, a French artist, was in charge. He is working now under the direction of Major Bashford Dean of the ordnance department.

Armor models are being turned out there in accordance with the suggestions of General Pershing and the ordnance department. Twenty-five different types of armor defenses have been made in various factories in experimental lots, several in many thousands of pieces, which have won favor at army headquarters. The efficacy of armor protection for the soldiers is indicated by reports that more than 40 per cent of the hospital casualties suffered were leg wounds and about 33 per cent arm wounds, the legs and arms of the fighters being free from armor cover.

While Y. M. C. A. workers in a battle-torn region of France were carrying delicacies to American soldiers in the front line trenches they left their storehouse deserted. French soldiers entered the storehouse to guard the supplies. They found chewing gum, thought it food, stuffed whole packages into their mouths, masticated it for a time and then tried to swallow it. Some succeeded in getting it down. There were no casualties, but the French soldiers were inspired with a high regard for American digestive apparatuses.

The navy department has released from office and shore duty the regulars of the navy and the reservists and has assigned them to active duty with the fleet. Their places as clerks will be taken by women wherever possible. Rear Admiral McGowan, paymaster general of the navy, issued the order in connection with this change in policy.

"Every man released from shore duty, whatever his rank or rating, adds just one more to the fighting force," says this order. "Every man of every rank and rating desires, of course, to get to the firing line as soon as his services ashore can be spared.

"No man in the navy is willing in war time to do anything that a woman can do as well; whereas no officer can be expected to be content in any part of the shore establishment unless engaged upon supervisory work so important in its nature that it cannot properly be delegated to any person of lesser rating.

"Wherefore it is requested and directed that the officer in charge of each division of the bureau of supplies and accounts make a careful and critical survey of his personnel, both commissioned and enlisted, to the end that the paymaster general may know how many and which men can be spared without seriously interfering with the work. These reports will include not alone reservists but regulars as well, and it is to be distinctly understood in this connection that applications from individuals for sea or overseas service will not be necessary—the one and only object being to carry on the work here and at the same time release the maximum number of men for duty at the front."

The Liberty motor, developed by the department of military aeronautics, is to have a special engine oil which is to be known as the "Liberty aero oil." It was developed by the lubrication branch while the latter was still a part of the signal corps. It is a mineral oil and will be used not only on the Liberty motor but on all stationary cylinder aircraft engines of the army and navy.

Its development is due to the energy and skill of a staff of men who worked exclusively on the problem for a year. Capt. O. J. May, who deserves greatest credit for its production, so exhausted himself by his labors that he could not recuperate from an illness and died.

When the aircraft program was announced in 1917 no one in authority had a definite idea as to the proper kind of lubrication required. There was no uniformity. For every engine there was a specific oil. Some engineers insisted on castor oil, others mineral oil, still others castor and mineral oils mixed. It was estimated that 5,000,000 gallons of castor oil, costing $3 per gallon, would be required and that quantity was not available.

Captain May and assistants set out to develop a suitable lubricant for the Liberty motor at an average cost of 75 cents a gallon, and also a system for reclaiming oil already used. In 25 days Captain May supervised the running of 37 engine tests in a laboratory where five engine tests a week would be a complete program. These engines were run with different kinds of oils and each oil was analyzed and measured before and after tests. The work required ceaseless vigil. Altitude tests were made in an airtight building capable of having the air within it partly exhausted.

From these tests the Liberty aero oil developed. It will cost about one-fourth the price of castor oil, saving the government perhaps $11,000,000 a year. A system of reclaiming used oil was developed and at least 50 per cent can be made fit to use again.

The national war labor board has decided against establishment at this time of a minimum wage to be applied generally throughout industry. It adopts an attitude firmly opposed both to unjust profits on the part of capital and unreasonable demands on the part of labor, stating that capital should have only such reasonable returns as will assure its use for the world's and the nation's cause, and that the physical wellbeing of labor and its physical and mental effectiveness, in a comfort reasonable in view of the exigencies of the war, likewise should be assured.

The board declares the war to be an interregnum in which the wheels of industry should turn only in the common cause and for common ends, and neither for unjust profits on the part of capital or unfairly inflated wages for labor, stressing maximum production as the paramount necessity and unselfish co-operation as the preliminary essentials to this accomplishment.

There is a reaffirmation by the board of the principle that the worker is entitled to a wage sufficient to sustain himself and his family in health and comfort, and a restatement by the board to apply this principle in each of the cases to come before it for decision.

American dietitians have made bread by substituting as high as 25 per cent of rice for wheat flour and have obtained a white yeast bread of excellent flavor.

The mid-West states are turning to a larger use of motortrucks in the delivery of hogs to the important interior markets. This relieves railroad transportation conditions to a considerable extent.

The motortruck business is becoming so important that commercial organizations of Omaha are taking active measures to utilize the trucks on return trips to country points for hauling various kinds of freights. Experience has shown that motortruck marketing is as feasible in winter as in other seasons.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

ENCOURAGE USE OF FISH.

A Suburban Pool Capable of Putting Fish on the Table Many Times Oftener Than Usual.

EAT FRESH FISH AND SAVE MEATS

Sport of Fishing May Be Made to Serve Nation's Food Needs and Give Exercise.

MUCH GRAIN IS CONSERVED

Seas, Lakes, Rivers and Ponds Offer Practically Unlimited Quantities of Fish Living on Food of No Use to Man.

Every pound of beef, veal, mutton or pork that goes on the table represents a consumption of many pounds of corn or other valuable grain fed to the cattle, sheep or hogs from which the meat was taken. The more of these red meats you eat the more cereals you are taking out of the supply that is so greatly needed for the nation's war needs at this time. To a large extent, too, these statements apply to all kinds of poultry. The one kind of meat, the production of which does not require the consumption of other human foods, is fish. The seas, lakes, rivers and ponds of this country offer practically unlimited quantities of fish that live on food which is of no use to man. When you eat fish you save meat and save grain, both of which your government asks you to conserve.

Ordinarily it is possible to secure good, fresh fish at the meat market, but whether justly or not, fresh fish is always more or less under suspicion in the meat markets of cities and towns that are distant from the sea coast or the lakes. The suspicion in most cases is not justified, but even if it were it would not follow that people of inland towns and cities must necessarily refrain from eating fresh fish.

Fish for Family Use.

There are a large number of streams and ponds from which one may take the fish needed for family consumption, and there should be very many more such ponds. A fish pond does not necessarily take up much space and need not be confined to large places. Practically all country families, and very many suburban families, could have, without any great difficulty, a fish pond or pool in which enough fish could be grown at minimum expense to supply the table and to save large quantities of other meats and cereals.

There is a great deal of pleasure and recreation, too, in catching the fish. And there is a decided satisfaction in knowing that the fish you eat have been taken from your own pond or stream within a very short time before being prepared for the table. The United States department of agriculture has long urged a more general adoption of the family fish pond, and it points out the exceptional need for such practice at this time. It would be a genuine national service if several times more people than now indulge in fishing for sport or otherwise would, by devoting a little of their spare time to it, take enough fish from stream or pond to place this excellent food on the table several times oftener than is now the general practice.

The hour or two that every man should devote to some form of recreation, if intelligently applied to fishing, would afford the same rest and rejuvenation that is to be had from nonproductive sports and would, at the same time, be not only a domestic but a public economy.

There is another source of meat supply native to ponds and streams of which much fewer people avail themselves than of fish. That is frogs. There is no more delicious meat than frog legs. Yet with the exception of a few hotels widely scattered along the lakes and a few of the streams, frog legs are rarely served. Around practically every pond of any considerable size there are enough frogs if properly utilized to furnish an occasional meal and to furnish a very fine sport in shooting or otherwise taking.

More attention to fish and frogs would result in the saving of much food and would be of personal benefit to those who might become interested in it.

FISH FOR YOUR SECTION.

Probably every kind of fish has some peculiarly attractive qualities. The following species of fish are native to the sections indicated:

New England—Alewife, cod, cusk, flounder, goosefish, grayfish, haddock, hake, halibut, herring, mackerel, mullet, pollock, salmon, scup, sea trout, shad, smelt, squeteague, swordfish, tilefish, whiting.

Middle Atlantic — Alewife, bass, bluefish, butterfish, carp, catfish, cod, flounder, goosefish, halibut, mackerel, perch, rock, salmon, shad, smelt, spot, tilefish, weakfish, whiting.

South Atlantic — Alewife, bass, bluefish, carp, catfish, drumfish, mullet, perch, shad, Spanish mackerel, spot, squeteague.

Pacific Coast — Barracuda, bass, flounder, grayfish, halibut, herring, pike, rockfish, sable fish, salmon, smelt, trout.

Mississippi Valley — Black bass, bowfin, buffalo, burbot, carp, catfish, crappie, drumfish, pike, red snapper, rock bass, sturgeon, sucker.

Great Lakes—Bass, bowfin, burbot, carp, catfish, drumfish, lake herring, lake trout, perch, pike, sturgeon.

Gulf — Barracuda, buffalo, carp, catfish, croaker, drumfish, mullet, Spanish mackerel, squeteague, sturgeon.

More Sheep Needed.

That mutton and wool production in this country can be increased greatly admits of no doubt. This can be accomplished by developing sheep husbandry on farms, especially in the Eastern and Southern states. Steps should be taken in the East and South to do away with the sheep-killing dog menace by state or local action. Large results can be secured by improving methods of breeding and management on the range; by securing the restocking of improved farm lands with sheep; by the larger use of forage crops and pastures; by encouraging sheep and lamb clubs; by the elimination of parasites; by protection against losses from predatory animals; and by having lambs ready for market at from 70 to 80 pounds weight, thereby requiring a minimum of grain to finish them and making possible the maintenance of larger breeding flocks.

Feed for Next Winter.

Far-seeing farmers may advantageously plan to secure their winter supply of feed in September and October when danger of spoilage is past and avoid the uncertainty of deliveries during the winter when the demand for feed usually exceeds the output of the mills.

The velvet bean may be utilized by grazing in the field with various kinds of live stock, especially cattle.

WAR EXHIBITION TO OPEN IN CHICAGO

People Will Have a Chance to See How Our Boys Fight and What They Fight With.

IT IS A GOVERNMENT SHOW

Seventeen Carloads of Trophies Captured From the Huns and Material Used by the Allies—Battlefield to Be Reproduced.

Chicago.—Uncle Sam wants the people of this part of the country to know more of the life of their boys in the war zone of France, and more about the weapons they, their allies and their enemies use. Therefore, the government will open an immense war exhibition in Chicago September 2, to continue until September 15. The exhibits include all sorts of war material and innumerable trophies captured from the Huns.

It is not a private money making affair, but an official exposition, given by the government through the committee on public information and the Illinois State Council of Defense, and in which the governments of France, Great Britain, Canada, Italy, and Belgium participate. Nothing is for sale. Nothing is to be promoted. The admission fee will be very small, and if it pays the bare expenses of bringing the exhibits here and placing them before the public, that is all that is wanted. If there should be a surplus, it goes by law into the United States treasury and reduces by that much the burdens of the taxpayer.

Will Reproduce Battlefield.

It will be a battlefield, reproduced faithfully to the smallest detail, within the limitations of the grounds. Front line trenches will be there, laid out by the very officer who laid them out in that Flanders battlefield where the Princess Pats fought until there are now but three men left alive of the original regiment.

It will show No Man's Land—all but the ghastly death scenes and one can well imagine those—that strip of ground ruled over by jealous Death where neither Boche nor human being dares set foot except by stealth and in the darkest hour of night. No Man's Land, with its great cellars digged by shells, with its plowed and torn and pulverized dirt and gravel, with its wilderness of barbed wire entanglements, with its wrecks of guns and wagons and airplanes.

First aid stations will be shown, with the blessed sign of the Red Cross at the entrance—favorite mark for German shells.

Guns of all sizes and kinds, with soldiers and sailors to man them and show how they are used; airplanes, signal stations, listening posts, fire control stations—everything that can be reproduced in so small a field, will be shown.

Show American Trophies.

Of the greatest interest to Americans will be the war material used by our boys, and the trophies captured by them from the enemy. Oh, yes, there are guns and plunder of all kinds taken from the proud Germans by the Yankee boys—and if it be possible to get them here in time there will be a big display of cannon captured by Chicago troops in the great battle now raging between the Marne and the Aisne.

The Italian exhibit contains a great many specimens of Austrian guns and shells. There is an incendiary bomb dropped on Venice in an effort to burn that splendid city; an Austrian floating mine; guns from Austrian submarines; torpedoes taken from Austrian submarines destroyed by the Italian navy, and the innumerable forms of rifles, trench tools, shells, periscopes, bayonets, and clothing used by the Italian army.

Remembering their beloved cathedral of Reims, the French have placed with their exhibit a shrine, wrecked by the Germans. But they also have spoils taken in the hottest battles—guns and gun carriages, "whiz-bangs," trench mortars, mine wefers, German 8-inch incendiary shells, airplanes of the type which tried to destroy Paris, and Zeppelin bombs. There is a complete exhibit of the famous French field gun, the "75," so-called because its caliber is 75 millimeters.

Guns From Cruiser Emden.

The British exhibit includes guns from the cruiser Emden, which a British ship destroyed; guns taken from the Turks; guns captured in Gallipoli, and all manner of wreckage from a score of battlefields. Of great interest are the British medals awarded for conspicuous bravery or great service to the empire.

Canada, of course, sets great store by her trophies from famous Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele, Ypres and wherever the rugged fighters met the Hun.

Different Then.

Patience—Ages ago they used to write on stones.

Patrice—So I believe. I suppose they wrote letters on rocks.

"Yes, and I'll wager that a woman didn't have to wind a half ball of cord around her husband's thumb to remind him to mail her letters, then."

An Acquired Beauty.

Mayme—Gert says she got her beautiful hair from her mother.

Myrt—She did. The old lady kept a hair store for years.

WIT and HUMOR

That Toul Weather.

There are places in the world where the weather has been [illegible] the last few weeks than in the American sector northwest of Toul, but the prevailing dampness never [illegible] the American sense of humor.

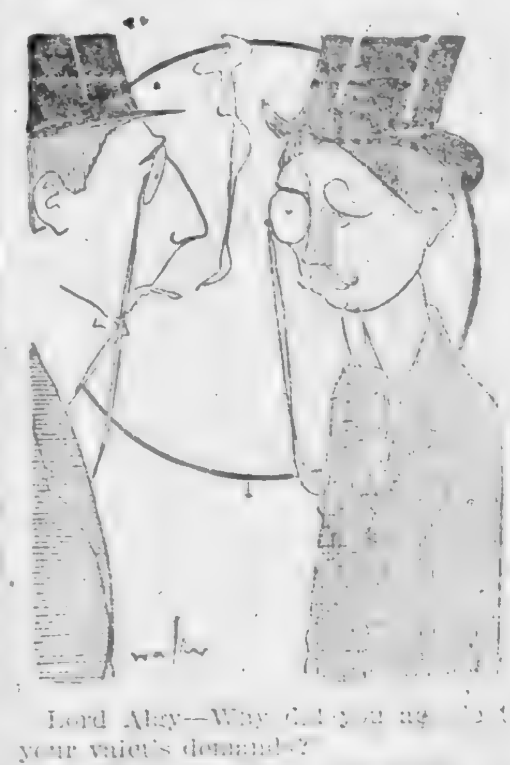
The colonel of a regiment, making a night tour of the trenches, was challenged by a sentry who had been standing at his post for two hours in a driving rain.

"Who's there?" said the sentry.

"Friend!" replied his colonel.

"Welcome to our midst," said the sentry. And the most serious thing the colonel did was to laugh.—From Stars and Stripes, France.

MEAN ADVANTAGE OF HIM!



Lord Algy—Why did you agree to your valet's demands?

Lord Arthur—He threatened to strike and quit just when I was half dressed, you know.

Undoubtedly True.

A new horror of war is indicated in the following bit from an English publication:

First Tommy (in front line trench)—Hark, Bill! I can hear Fritz advancing. Hear it—squish-squash all the time.

Second Tommy (after listening for a second)—You're wrong, Jim. That's only the Americans chewing their gum.

A Patriot.

Little Dorothy's uncles are both at the war, and she has a great admiration for soldiers. The other day in a crowded street car she was sitting on her mother's lap when a wounded soldier entered. Dorothy immediately slipped to the floor.

"Here, soldy," she offered, "you can sit on mamma's lap."—Harper's Magazine.

Patriotic.

"He's certainly patriotic."

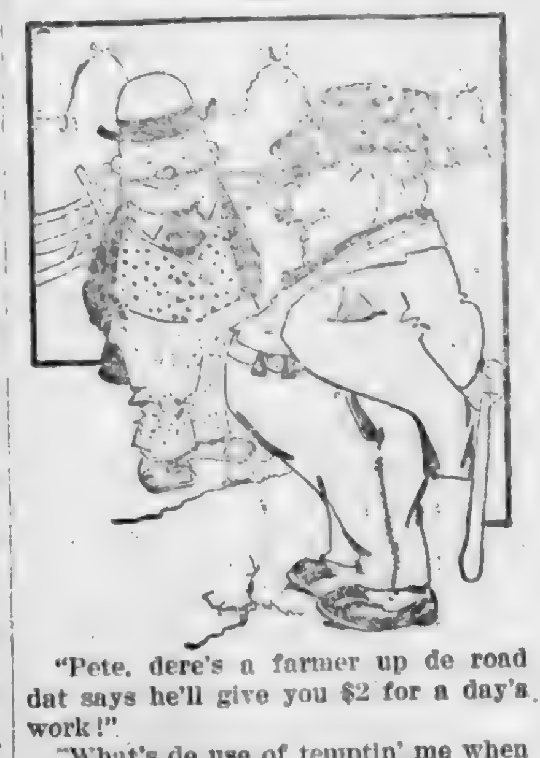
"That so? In what way?"

"He's spending as little money as possible on himself."

"Economizing, eh?"

"Yes. He's even brought himself to the point where he'll wear the neckties his wife's relatives gave him instead of buying new ones."

WITH THE HOBOES.



"Pete, dere's a farmer up de road dat says he'll give you $2 for a day's work!"

"What's de use of temptin' me when you know I ain't got de time. You orter understand dat out o' practice like I am, it 'ud take me at least six weeks to do a day's work."

The Reason.

Lady—Why did you leave your last place?

Maid—Because the lady's husband kissed me.

Lady—And didn't you like it?

Maid—Oh, I didn't mind, but the mistress didn't like it.

Not So Mean.

"Did the bride's father give her away?"

"No; on the contrary, he told the bridegroom she would make a very economical wife."

AUGUST

L 90

0476

"OVER THE TOP"

BY AN AMERICAN SOLDIER WHO WENT

ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

MACHINE GUNNER, SERVING IN FRANCE

© 1917 BY ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

EMPEY HEARS THE STORY OF THE TOMMY WHO HAD A BROAD STREAK OF YELLOW.

Synopsis.—Fired by the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of American lives, Arthur Guy Empey, an American living in Jersey City, goes to England and enlists as a private in the British army. After a short experience as a recruiting officer in London, he is sent to training quarters in France, where he first hears the sound of big guns and makes the acquaintance of "cooties." After a brief period of training Empey's company is sent into the front-line trenches, where he takes his first turn on the fire step while the bullets whiz overhead. Empey learns, as comrade falls, that death lurks always in the trenches. Chaplain distinguishes himself by rescuing wounded men under hot fire. With pick and shovel Empey has experience as a trench digger in No Man's Land. Exciting experience on listening post detail. Exciting work on observation post duty. Back in rest billets Empey writes and stages a successful play. Once more in the front trenches, Empey goes "over the top" in a successful but costly attack on the German lines. Soon afterwards Empey and his comrades repulse a determined gas attack launched by the Germans. His next experience is as a member of a firing squad which executes a sentence of death.

CHAPTER XXIV—Continued.

—21—

After standing at "attention" for what seemed a week, though in reality it could not have been over five minutes, we heard a low whispering in our rear and footsteps on the stone flagging of the courtyard.

Our officer reappeared and in a low, but firm voice, ordered:

"About—Turn!"

We turned about. In the gray light of dawn, a few yards in front of me, I could make out a brick wall. Against this wall was a dark form with a white square pinned on its breast. We were supposed to aim at this square. To the right of the form I noticed a white spot on the wall. This would be my target.

"Ready! Aim! Fire!"

The dark form sank into a huddled heap. My bullet sped on its way, and hit the whitish spot on the wall; I could see the splinters fly. Some one else had received the rifle containing the blank cartridge, but my mind was at ease, there was no blood of a Tommy on my hands.

"Order—Arms! About—Turn! Pile—Arms! Stand—Clear."

The stacks were re-formed.

"Quick—March! Right—Wheel!" And we left the scene of execution behind us.

It was now daylight. After marching about five minutes, we were dismissed with the following instructions from the officer in command:

"Return, alone, to your respective companies, and remember, no talking about this affair, or else it will go hard with the guilty ones."

We needed no urging to get away. I did not recognize any of the men on the firing squad; even the officer was a stranger to me.

The victim's relations and friends in Blighty will never know that he was executed; they will be under the impression that he died doing his bit for king and country.

In the public casualty lists his name will appear under the caption "Accidentally Killed," or "Died."

The day after the execution I received orders to report back to the line, and to keep a still tongue in my head.

Executions are a part of the day's work, but the part we hated most of all, I think—certainly the saddest. The British war department is thought by many people to be composed of rigid regulations all wound around with red tape. But it has a heart, and one of the evidences of this is the considerate way in which an execution is concealed and reported to the relative of the unfortunate man. They never know the truth. He is listed in the bulletins as among the "accidentally killed."

In the last ten years I have several times read stories in magazines of cowards changing, in a charge, to heroes. I used to laugh at it. It seemed easy for story-writers, but I said, "Men aren't made that way." But over in France I learned once that the streak of yellow can turn all white. I picked up the story, bit by bit, from the captain of the company, the sentries who guarded the poor fellow, as well as from my own observations. At first I did not realize the whole of his story, but after a week of investigation it stood out as clear in my mind as the mountains of my native West in the spring sunshine. It impressed me so much that I wrote it all down in rest billets on scraps of odd paper. The incidents are, as I say, every bit true; the feelings of the man are true—I know from all I underwent in the fighting over in France.

We will call him Albert Lloyd. That wasn't his name, but it will do:

Albert Lloyd was what the world terms a coward.

In London they called him a slacker.

His country had been at war nearly eighteen months, and still he was not in khaki.

He had no good reason for not enlisting, being alone in the world, having been educated in an orphan asylum, and there being no one dependent upon him for support. He had no good position to lose, and there was no sweetheart to tell him with her lips to go, while her eyes pleaded for him to stay.

Every time he saw a recruiting sergeant he'd slink around the corner out of sight, with a terrible fear gnawing at his heart. When passing the big recruiting posters, and on his way to business and back he passed many, he would pull down his cap and look the other way from that awful finger pointing at him, under the caption, "Your King and Country Need You;" or the boring eyes of Kitchener, which burned into his very soul, causing him to shudder.

Then the Zeppelin raids—during them, he used to crouch in a corner of his boarding-house cellar, whimpering like a whipped puppy and calling upon the Lord to protect him.

Even his landlady despised him, although she had to admit that he was "good pay."

He very seldom read the papers, but one momentous morning the landlady put the morning paper at his place before he came down to breakfast. Taking his seat he read the flaring headline, "Conscription Bill Passed," and nearly fainted. Excusing himself, he stumbled upstairs to his bedroom, with the horror of it gnawing into his vitals.

Having saved up a few pounds, he decided not to leave the house, and to sham sickness, so he stayed in his room and had the landlady serve his meals there.

Every time there was a knock at the door he trembled all over, imagining it was a policeman who had come to take him away to the army.

One morning his fears were realized. Sure enough, there stood a policeman with the fatal paper. Taking it in his trembling hand he read that he, Albert Lloyd, was ordered to report himself to the nearest recruiting station for physical examination. He reported immediately, because he was afraid to disobey.

The doctor looked with approval upon Lloyd's six feet of physical perfection, and thought what a fine guardsman he would make, but examined his heart twice before he passed him as "physically fit;" it was beating so fast.

From the recruiting depot Lloyd was taken, with many others, in charge of a sergeant, to the training depot at Aldershot, where he was given an outfit of khaki, and drew his other equipment. He made a fine-looking soldier, except for the slight shrinking in his shoulders and the hunted look in his eyes.

At the training depot it does not take long to find out a man's character, and Lloyd was promptly dubbed "windy." In the English army "windy" means cowardly.

The smallest recruit in the barracks looked on him with contempt, and was not slow to show it in many ways.

Lloyd was a good soldier, learned quickly, obeyed every order promptly, never groused at the hardest fatigues. He was afraid to. He lived in deadly fear of the officers and "noncoms" over him. They also despised him.

One morning about three months after his enlistment Lloyd's company was paraded, and the names picked out for the next draft to France were read. When his name was called, he did not step out smartly, two paces to the front, and answer cheerfully, "Here, sir," as the others did. He just fainted in the ranks and was carried to barracks amid the sneers of the rest.

That night was an agony of misery to him. He could not sleep. Just cried and whimpered in his bunk, because on the morrow the draft was to sail for France, where he would see death on all sides, and perhaps be killed himself. On the steamer, crossing the channel, he would have jumped overboard to escape, but was afraid of drowning.

Arriving in France, he and the rest were huddled into cattle cars. On the side of each appeared in white letters, "Hommes 40, Chevaux 8." After hours of bumping over the uneven French roadbeds they arrived at the training base of Rouen.

At this place they were put through a week's rigid training in trench warfare. On the morning of the eighth day they paraded at ten o'clock, and were inspected and passed by General H——, then were marched to the quartermaster's, to draw their gas helmets and trench equipment.

At four in the afternoon they were again hustled into cattle cars. This time the journey lasted two days. They disembarked at the town of Frevent and could hear a distant dull booming. With knees shaking, Lloyd asked the sergeant what the noise was, and nearly dropped when the sergeant replied in a somewhat bored tone:

"Oh, them's the guns up the line. We'll be up there in a couple o' days or so. Don't worry, my laddie, you'll see more of 'em than you want before you get 'ome to Blighty again, that is, if you're lucky enough to get back. Now lend a hand there unloadin' them cars, and quit that everlastin' shakin'. I believe yer scared." The last with a contemptuous sneer.

They marched ten kilos, full pack, to a little dilapidated village, and the sound of the guns grew louder, constantly louder.

The village was full of soldiers who turned out to inspect the new draft, the men who were shortly to be their mates in the trenches, for they were going "up the line" on the morrow, to "take over" their certain sector of trenches.

The draft was paraded in front of battalion headquarters and the men were assigned to companies.

Lloyd was the only man assigned to D company. Perhaps the officer in charge of the draft had something to do with it, for he called Lloyd aside and said:

"Lloyd, you are going to a new company. No one knows you. Your bed will be as you make it, so for God's sake, brace up and be a man. I think you have the stuff in you, my boy, so good-by and the best of luck to you."

The next day the battalion took over their part of the trenches. It happened to be a very quiet day. The artillery behind the lines was still, except for an occasional shell sent over to let the Germans know the gunners were not asleep.

In the darkness, in single file, the company slowly wended their way down the communication trench to the front line. No one noticed Lloyd's white and drawn face.

After they had relieved the company in the trenches, Lloyd, with two of the old company men, was put on guard in one of the traverses. Not a shot was fired from the German lines, and no one paid any attention to him crouched on the firing step.

On the first time in, a new recruit is not required to stand with his head "over the top." He only "sits it out," while the older men keep watch.

At about ten o'clock, all of a sudden, he thought hell had broken loose, and crouched and shivered up against the parapet. Shells started bursting, as he imagined, right in their trench, when in fact they were landing about a hundred yards in rear of them, in the second lines.

One of the older men on guard, turning to his mate, said:

"There goes Fritz with those d——d trench mortars again. It's about time our artillery 'taped' them, and sent over a few. Well, I'll be d——d, where's that blighter of a draft man gone to? There's his rifle leaning against the parapet. He must have legged it. Just keep your eye peeled, Dick, while I report it to the sergeant. I wonder if the fool knows he can be shot for such tricks as leavin' his post?"

Lloyd had gone. When the trench mortars opened up, a maddening terror seized him and he wanted to run, to get away from that horrible din, anywhere to safety. So quietly sneaking around the traverse, he came to the entrance of a communication trench, and ran madly and blindly down it, running into traverses, stumbling into muddy holes, and falling full length over trench grids.

Groping blindly, with his arms stretched out in front of him, he at last came out of the trench into the village, or what used to be a village, before the German artillery razed it.

Mixed with his fear, he had a peculiar sort of cunning, which whispered to him to avoid all sentries, because if they saw him he would be sent back to that awful destruction in the front line, and perhaps be killed or maimed. The thought made him shudder, the cold sweat coming out in beads on his face.

Empey learns that a streak of yellow sometimes can turn all white. He tells the unusual story in the next installment.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Best Material for Splints.

Galvanized wire netting is claimed to be much superior to wood as a material for surgical splints. It is strong, light in weight, non-absorbent and easily sterilized, and, unlike wood and plaster, gives free ventilation. The new splints are woven from wire so tempered that it can easily be pressed into shape to be bound closely upon the injured limb.

Daily Thought.

No nobler feeling than this, of admiration for one higher than himself, dwells in the breast of man. It is to this hour, and at all hours, a vivifying influence in man's life.—Carlyle.

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

GETTING ALONG WITH LESS SUGAR

The Pulp Left After the Juice Has Been Extracted May Be Made Into Pastes and Sauces.

WOMEN COOK AND CAN WITH SIRUPS

Plan to Make Fruit Juices, Butters and Pastes Without Use of Sugar.

MANY OF FRUITS ARE DRIED

Over-Sweetening of Tea and Coffee Is One of Our Greatest Faults—Home Demonstration Agents Use Substitutes in Recipes.

Instead of letting the sugar shortage bother her, the resourceful housewife is bending all efforts to learn the best ways of using less sugar in her cooking and preserving and of canning without it or with sugar substitutes. She is drying many of the fruits; she is learning to put up fruit juices and butters and to make sirups at home from sugar beets, quinces and apples. She is substituting corn sirup, molasses, maple sirup, and honey for sugar in her canning and general cooking, and she is making sugarless candies, fruit pastes and confections. Bulletins telling how to carry out these methods may be had free on application to the United States department of agriculture.

Sugar saving not only means cutting down on consumption, but it also means preventing waste. Americans have allowed their fondness for sugar to increase to the point where it has passed extravagance and become actual waste. Over-sweetening of tea and coffee is one of our great faults. More than this, too often a good part of the sugar is not dissolved and is left in the bottom of the cup to be thrown away. Every housewife should enforce the rule of "one teaspoonful to the cupful or none at all." The children as well as the grownups must be willing to do without some of the sweet things they want and every one must be satisfied with much smaller amounts of sweetening in general cooking.

Serve fresh fruits without sugar instead of sweet puddings; have salads often in place of desserts; use sweet dried fruits like dates, raisins or figs with the breakfast cereals, or a little sirup in place of sugar. Use cake sparingly and make it from recipes that call for molasses or sirups—instead of frosting spread it with a little jam, fruit butter, or paste.

Canning Without Sugar.

Fruits canned without sugar keep perfectly but will not have the fine color and flavor which they would have if packed in sirup. They are very good, however, when used in salads, desserts, pie fillings, ices and in fruit punches. Fruit juices take no sugar and their uses are just as varied during the winter months as are the fruits put up unsweetened. In this way, the juices are kept available for jelly-making at a future time when sugar may be more plentiful.

Many home demonstration agents have already substituted sirups successfully for sugar in their recipes for canning and preserving. Very satisfactory results may be secured if when one pound of sugar is called for in a recipe two-thirds of a pound of corn sirup is used and one-third of a pound of sugar. Where sorghum and cane sirups are used without first clarifying the sirups the product will be darker. These sirups, also, impart a flavor which destroys the natural fruit flavor, so the addition of spices to the recipes is sometimes advisable. Honey has been used successfully with cherries and peaches; in such cases the amount of liquid called for in the sirup is reduced one-quarter cupful for each cupful of honey.

The following are some of the best recipes used by the agents:

Blackberry Jam.

3 pounds crushed blackberries.
¾ pound New Orleans molasses or sorghum.
¾ pound sugar.

Cook all together, stirring carefully until it gives a good jelly test. Pack hot into hot jars and seal.

Peach Jam.

2 pounds peaches.
½ cupful peach juice.
½ teaspoonful allspice.
1 cupful corn sirup.
1 cupful sugar.
2 teaspoonfuls broken stick cinnamon.
1 teaspoonful cloves.
1 inch ginger root.

Tie spices in cheesecloth bag and cook all together until bright and clear. Pack hot into hot jars and seal at once.

Apple Pulp and Corn Sirup.

Take one quart of apple pulp, from which the juice has been extracted for jelly making, and cook it with one cupful of corn sirup until the mass brightens. Pack while hot in hot jars and seal at once.

Grape Paste.

Add one cupful of corn sirup to two cupfuls of grape pulp from which juice has been extracted for jelly making. Cook together until the mass is rather dry, then turn out on an oiled surface and place where a current of air will pass over it. Dry for two or three days. Cut into squares or roll and slice. Pack in glass jars, tin boxes or paraffin-covered containers.

Apple paste may be made in the same way.

Left-Over Cereals.

Remnants of cereal breakfast foods may often be utilized to make palatable dishes, to thicken soups or other foods, and in similar ways. Small quantities of cooked cereal left over from a meal can be molded in cups and reheated for later use by setting the cups in boiling water. Another way to economize cereal mushes is to add hot water to any mush left over so as to make it very thin. It can then easily be added to a new supply. The practice of frying the left-overs of boiled hominy or of cornmeal mush is as old as the settlement of this country, and the nursery song about the "bag pudding the queen did make" from King Arthur's barley meal shows us that for centuries other cereal puddings have been treated in the same way. In oatmeal oysters, left-over cereal is dipped in eggs and crumbs and fried. Left-over rice and other cereals are commonly used in croquettes and puddings.

Fruits for Children.

Fruits should be served in some form to children at least once a day. Fruit juices and the pulp of cooked fruit, baked apples and pears, and stewed prunes are safest. Whether the skins should be given depends partly on the age and health of the child and partly on the way the fruit is prepared. If the skins are very tender, they are not likely to cause trouble, except with very young children. When apples and pears are baked the skins can be made tender by frequent basting.

WHY SUGAR IS SHORT.

There is a greater shortage of both the sugar-cane and sugar-beet crops than was expected in the early part of the season. At no time since the beginning of the war has there been a normal output of sugar because of the devastation of foreign sugar-beet fields. There has been a serious loss of sugar at sea due to the submarine warfare. The government requires a generous supply to meet the needs of the men in the service.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 18

SOME ACTIVITIES OF THE PRIMITIVE CHURCH.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:42-47; 4:31-35; 6:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him and bless his name.—Psalms 100:4.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Psalms 122:1-9.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Mark 11:15-17; Acts 10:33; I Corinthians 3:9; 12:4-29; Ephesians 4:1-16.

I. The Church Worshiping (Acts 2:42-47).

As the result of Peter's preaching at Pentecost about three thousand persons confessed Christ in baptism. That their conversion was genuine is evidenced by what they did:

1. "Continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine" (v. 42).

Continuance and steadfastness are infallible proofs of the genuineness of one's conversion. They not only were steadfast, but they kept themselves in the school of Christ—came regularly to the meetings to be instructed by the apostles. Christians cannot grow unless they feed upon God's word. Trashy novels and story papers will not make Christians grow. The "sincere milk of the word" is essential to growth (I Peter 2:2).

2. Kept themselves in the fellowship of the apostles (v. 42).

This doubtless means that they attached themselves to the church and sought the friendship of Christian people. Christian growth is helped by association with Christian people, not by withdrawal. One who expects sanctification in seclusion will be doomed to disappointment.

3. They went regularly to the communion table (v. 42).

In the "breaking of bread" they symbolically fed upon Christ. True worshipers will not neglect this means of grace.

4. They went regularly to the prayer meeting (v. 42).

Prayer is the very breath of soul growth. It is as necessary to spiritual life as breathing is to physical life. The result of such life was:

(1) Wholesome fear (v. 43). (2) A powerful ministry (v. 43). Many wonders and signs were done by the apostles. (3) Mutual ministry (vv. 44-45). Those who give themselves to Christ are large-hearted and generous, giving of their substance to help the poor and needy. (4) A constant worship (v. 46). (5) Unity and gladness (v. 46). (6) Gracious influence among the people (v. 47). (7) A perpetual growth (v. 47). Where such genuineness is manifest there will be growth. The Lord added to the church daily—there was a continuous revival.

II. The Church Witnessing (Acts 4:31-35).

Note the characteristics of a witnessing church:

1. A praying church (v. 31).

For every want and every need they betook themselves to God in prayer.

2. A spirit-filled church (v. 31).

When they prayed the place was shaken wherein they were gathered together. They were all filled with the holy spirit. The spirit is given in answer to prayer (Luke 11:13).

3. A testifying church (v. 31).

The ministers had boldness in testimony.

4. A united church (v. 32).

They were of one heart and one soul, united in the one body to the one head by the holy spirit.

5. A charitable and generous church (v. 32).

They held nothing back from those who had need.

6. Its membership possessed unblemished characters; great grace was upon them all.

III. The Church Overcoming Difficulties (Acts 6:1-4).

Out of the beautiful fellowship of this early church grew a peculiar difficulty. Among the Grecian Jews there came a feeling that partiality had been shown in the distribution of funds. The difficulty was recognized at once and properly dealt with. The apostles refused to allow this to divert their ministry, so they proceeded with the initial organization in the church, the appointment of deacons. We have here set forth the qualifications of those who are to look after the business end of the church.

1. Good report (v. 3).

It is highly important that even the business affairs of the church should be in the hands of honest men. The church cannot afford to appoint men of doubtful reputation to do such work.

2. Full of the holy spirit (v. 3).

The temporalities of the church should only be entrusted to spirit-filled men.

3. Full of wisdom (v. 3).

The highest wisdom is required in the handling of the business side of church life, and this should be done by men other than ministers. Ministers should give themselves to prayer and preaching.

Bible and Education.

Men cannot be well educated without the Bible. It ought, therefore, to hold the chief place of learning throughout Christendom; and I do not know of a higher service that could be rendered to this republic than the bringing about of this desirable result.—E. Nott.

AUGUST

L 909

0477

MUDDY COMPLEXION

YOUR COMPLEXION is muddy. You look haggard and yellow. Your eyes are losing their lustre. The trouble is with your liver. Take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will correct that. Then avoid meats, hot bread and hot cakes, take frequent baths and a long walk every day, and you will soon be as well and as beautiful as ever. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Tablets

HERE AND THERE

Lead pencils, pens, ink, tablets, envelopes, mucilage and paste at the NEWS office.

For Rent.--House and lot at Concord. Inquire of Mrs. John Funk. 29

Willis Baker and wife and Bert Jackson and family were Sunday dinner guests at the Thomas Rickett home.

James and Arthur Arnold, of near Woodburn, were Sunday guests of their cousin, Mrs. Nan Lysher, and family.

C. W. Jackson and wife, of near Hicksville, and Charles Thayer, Jr., and wife, of Fort Wayne, were brief Sunday visitors of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

William Folk, wife and niece, Miss Josephine Whistler, of South Bend, returned home on Saturday, after a week's visit with C. C. Bassett and family and other relatives.

Patronize the advertisers.

Mrs. Hollis Dilley spent Friday here, the guest of her parents, Frank Sechler and wife.

Mrs. S. D. Gee visited the last of the week at the home of her son, Howard Gee, of Columbia City.

Mrs. Charles Mavis and little son, of Hicksville, spent Friday with her parents, Jacob Sechler and wife.

Mrs. Sarah Stevick, of Cedarville, died at a Fort Wayne hospital on Friday. Funeral services were held on Saturday.

Mrs. C. B. Carson, of Connellsville, Pa., is spending a week at the home of W. E. Peterson and wife. She expects to return home Saturday.

Mrs. Lee O. Tustison and son, Keith, returned home on Saturday, after a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. Katharine Hamilton. Mrs H. G. Provines and son, James, also left last week, after spending the summer with her mother.

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

Mrs. Howard Gee and little daughter, Lucile, are visiting S. D. Gee and wife.

FOUND—In St. Joe on Friday, a girl's coat. Owner can get same at the NEWS office

Charles C. Dean and family, of Decatur, Ill, are visiting with relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Ann Abel returned home on Monday from a two weeks' visit with Michigan relatives.

Mrs. Craig Sheffer and son, Basil, of Butler, were Friday guests of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

D. J. Baker and wife, of Fort Wayne are the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Frank Bowman, and family.

Frank Kincaid and wife, of Detroit, came Friday evening for a visit with the former's mother, Mrs. Rolland Bearss, and husband.

Will Hamilton and family, O. K. Shull and family and Mrs. Katharine Hamilton attended the Houk family reunion at Robison park, Saturday.

Charles Alender and family and Mrs. Theresa Alender, of Paulding, and Henry Shaffer and wife and Sherm. Ginder and wife, of Butler, were Sunday guests at the Frank Terman home.

H. S. Bowman, wife and daughters—Miss Dorotha and Mrs. Helen Benninghoff—and Miss Grace Leighty attended the White family reunion, held Saturday at Eckhart park, Auburn.

Carl Bassett returned home on Tuesday evening from a two-week visit with his brother, Charles, at Purdue and with friends at Covington and Attica. He took the preliminary examination at the marine recruiting station, LaFayette, and is awaiting a call to join that branch of the service.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.

Concord—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.

Union prayer meeting at the Christian church Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

Christian Church Announcements;
L. W. Spayd, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.

No services at Coburntown. The Christian churches of DeKalb Co., have their yearly meeting at the Park, in Auburn, Sunday. Pastor Cole, of Huntington, is the chief speaker for the day. Come and spend the day with us.

Lutheran Church Announcements
A. K. Mumma, Pastor

St. Joe: Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 8:00 p. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

Mrs. John C. Hart and daughter, Ellie, were at Hicksville, Saturday forenoon.

Mrs. Bessie Packer and baby, of Butler, spent Friday here, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Foster Gee.

Blaine Woodcox has returned to his home near Auburn, after a week's visit with relatives at this place.

Misses Portia Hadsell and Doris Widney spent from Friday until Monday with Miss Marjory May, of Montpelier.

King Patterson, of Tiffin, and F. A. Patterson, of Hicksville, were Wednesday afternoon guests of Mrs. Ella Patterson.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain: and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necessities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continuous from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE

Rev. Coons at Elwood

Last Sunday, Rev. J. C. Coons closed a three-year pastorate on the St. Joe M. P. charge. He is now at Elwood attending the annual conference. He leaves St Joe with the best wishes of all; and members of the church unite in recommending him, together with his estimable family, to those with whom he may be associated in the future. A list of the appointments will appear in this paper next week.

Baptismal services were held near Dills bridge Sunday morning. Mrs. E. R. Kinsey was immersed; and her two sons, DeWayne and Earl, were sprinkled.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Lizzie Smith, of Wabash, is the guest of Elmer Wyatt and wife.

Mrs Joe Rymel, of Chicago, is the guest of her foster parents, Al Gengnagle and wife.

William Maginnis and wife, of near Auburn, were Sunday guests of Dave Griest and wife.

Mesdames Rosetta Gillingham and Allie Smith and Jane Hatch were Butler visitors on Monday.

Services were held at the U. B. church every evening last week, ending Sunday. Rev. Beauchamp, of Waterloo, assisted Rev. Hively in the meetings.

J. H. Benner and wife on Saturday went to Bryan, where they visited their son, Horace Benner, and wife over Sunday. Mr. Benner returned the fore part of the week; but Mrs. Benner will visit a daughter at Monroe, Mich., before coming home.

Samuel Revett, a bugler in Uncle Sam's service at Camp Lewis, Washington, visited the Wyatt families the latter part of the week. He is a Butler boy, and is home on a thirty-day furlough on account of having been recently discharged from a hospital. Mrs. Elmer Wyatt is his aunt.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Zora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Guy Smith was home from Fort Wayne over Sunday.

C. O. Berry and family, of near Auburn, were guests of Sam Stafford and wife, Sunday.

Mrs. Virgil Kain and children, of Kalamazoo, were guests of J. S. Kain and family last week.

Come in and pay that overdue subscription account.
Don't wait until the paper stops.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

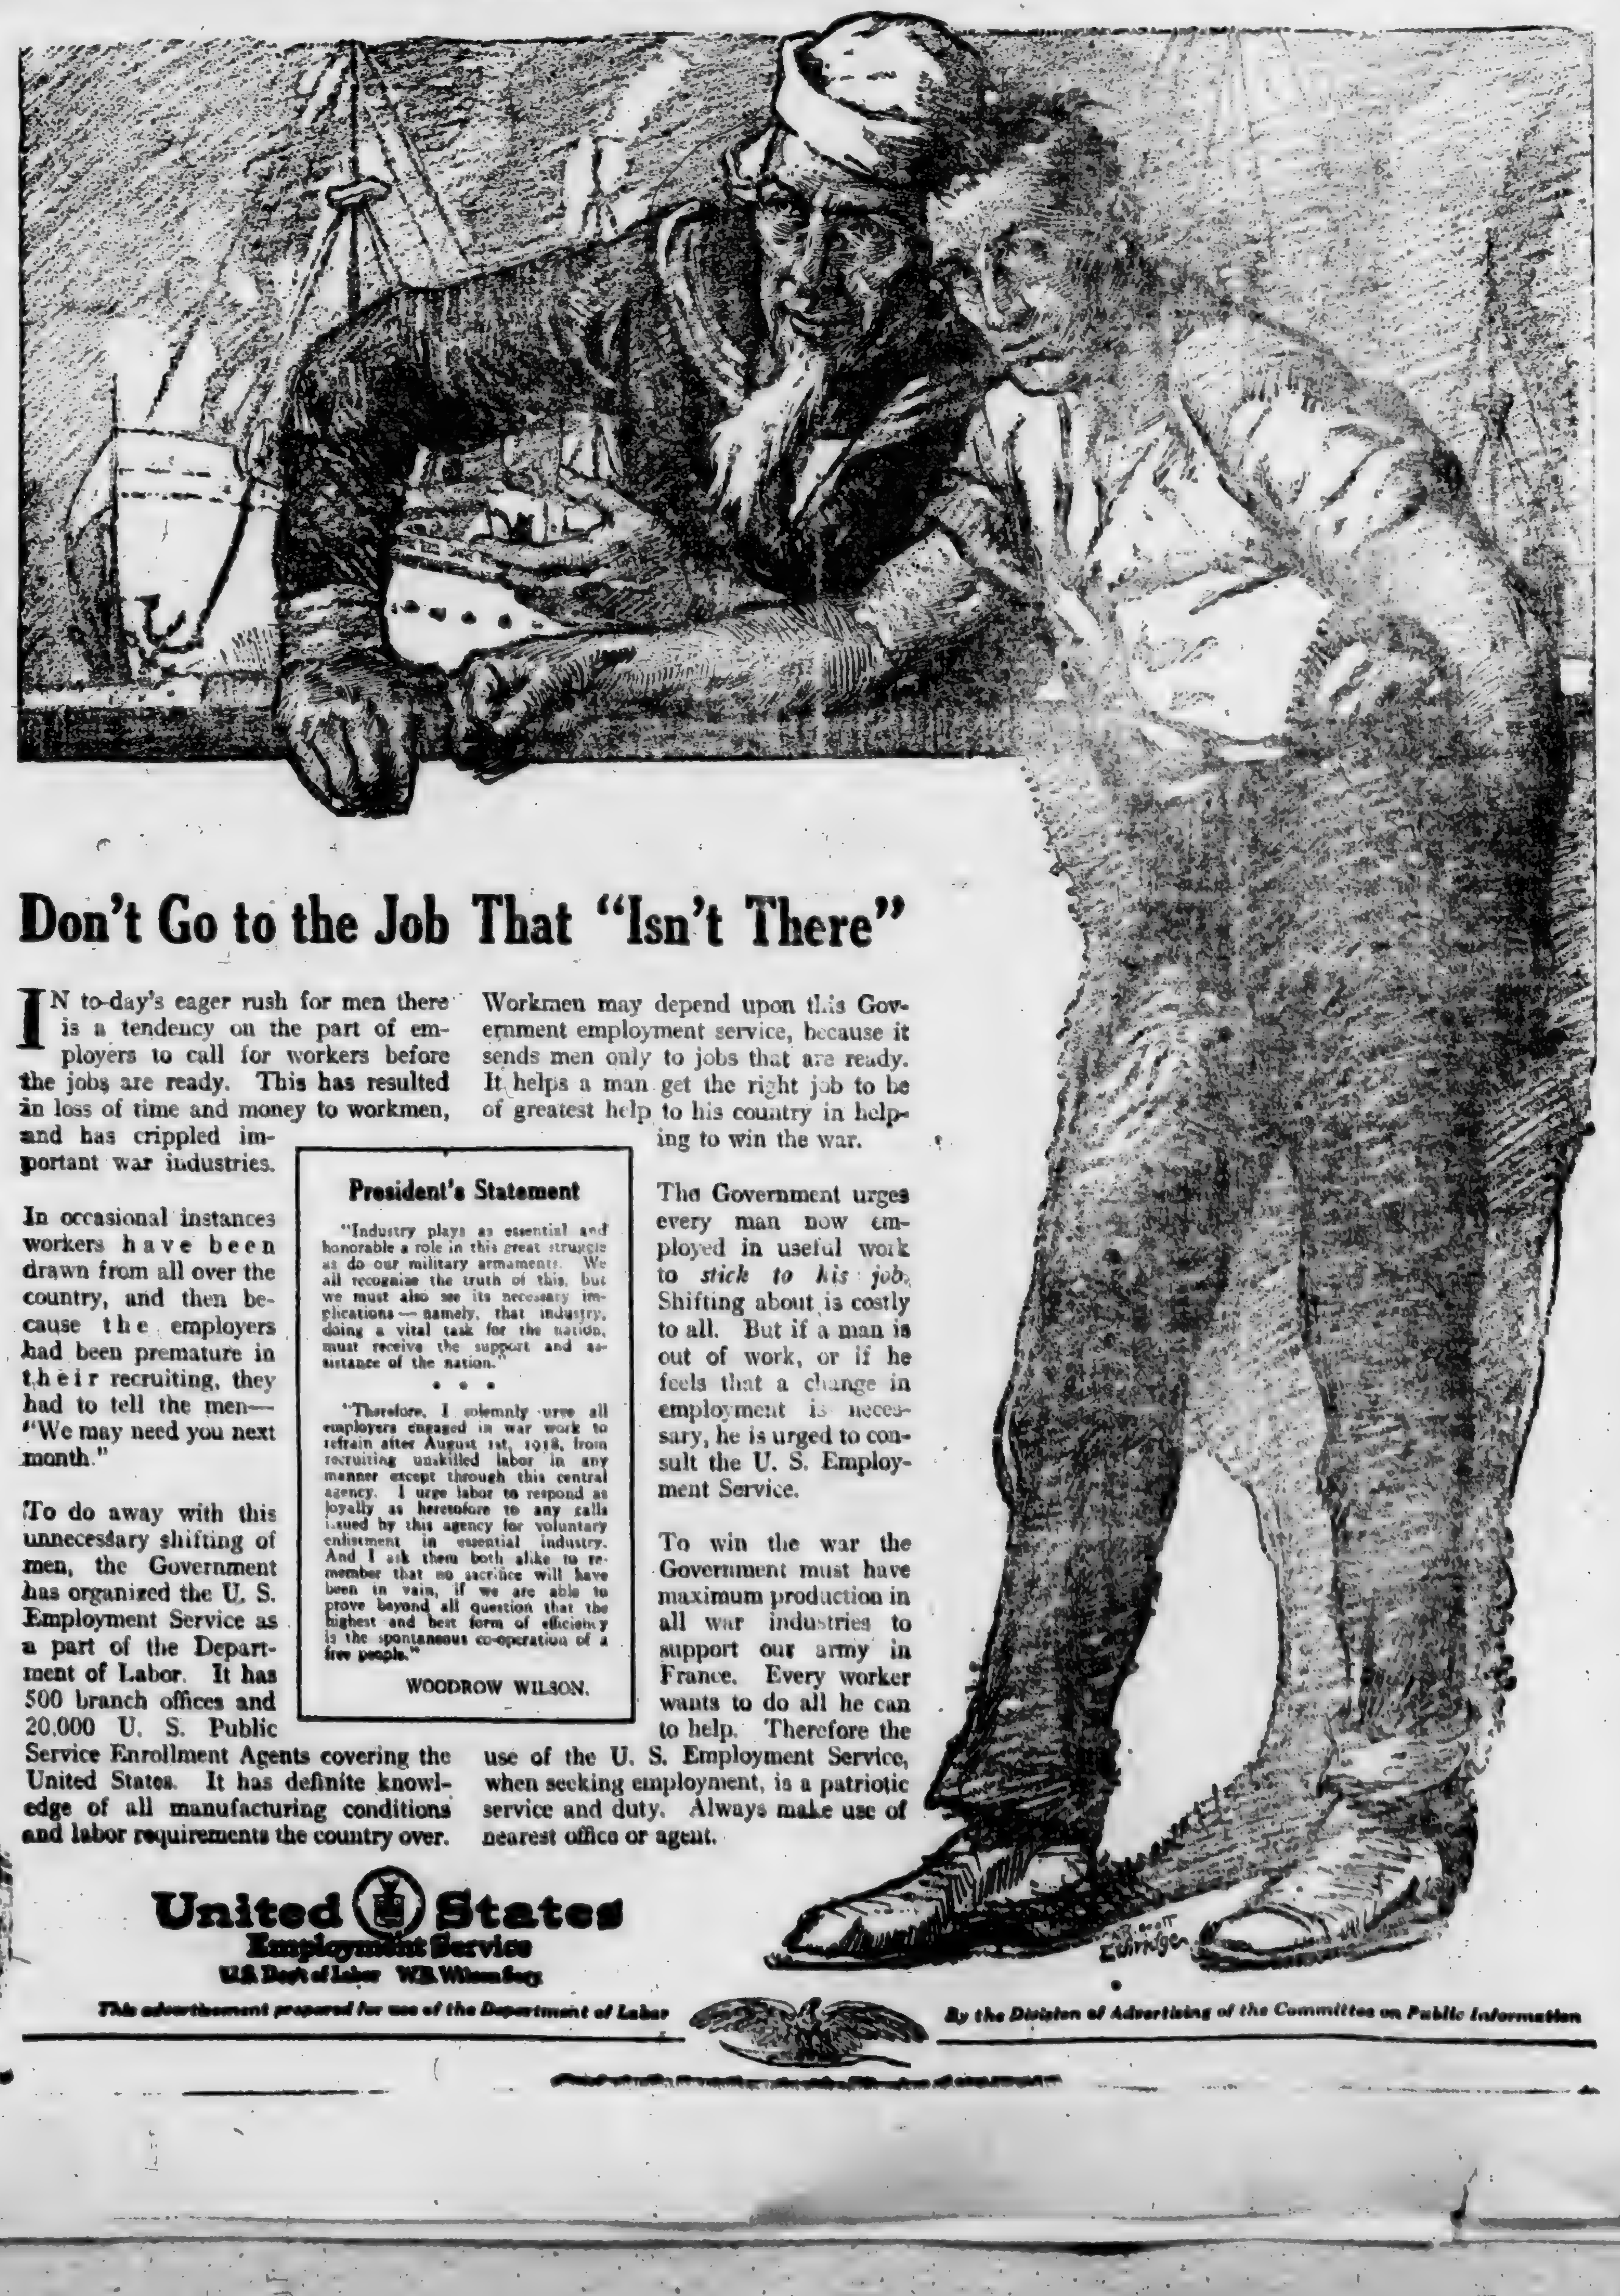
J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

NOTICE
TO SCHOOL SCHOLARS!

WE have provided to handle the School Books this year—and have a complete supply of school necessities for all the grades. You needn't worry where to get your supply. All school books and supplies are strictly sold for CASH.

DO NOT ASK FOR CREDIT!

ELZA E. KINSEY.



Don't Go to the Job That "Isn't There"

IN to-day's eager rush for men there is a tendency on the part of employers to call for workers before the jobs are ready. This has resulted in loss of time and money to workmen, and has crippled important war industries.

In occasional instances workers have been drawn from all over the country, and then because the employers had been premature in their recruiting, they had to tell the men—"We may need you next month."

To do away with this unnecessary shifting of men, the Government has organized the U. S. Employment Service as a part of the Department of Labor. It has 500 branch offices and 20,000 U. S. Public Service Enrollment Agents covering the United States. It has definite knowledge of all manufacturing conditions and labor requirements the country over.

Workmen may depend upon this Government employment service, because it sends men only to jobs that are ready. It helps a man get the right job to be of greatest help to his country in helping to win the war.

The Government urges every man now employed in useful work to stick to his job. Shifting about is costly to all. But if a man is out of work, or if he feels that a change in employment is necessary, he is urged to consult the U. S. Employment Service.

To win the war the Government must have maximum production in all war industries to support our army in France. Every worker wants to do all he can to help. Therefore the use of the U. S. Employment Service, when seeking employment, is a patriotic service and duty. Always make use of nearest office or agent.

President's Statement

"Industry plays as essential and honorable a role in this great struggle as do our military armaments. We all recognize the truth of this, but we must also see its necessary implications—namely, that industry, doing a vital task for the nation, must receive the support and assistance of the nation."

• • •

"Therefore, I solemnly urge all employers engaged in war work to refrain after August 1st, 1918, from recruiting unskilled labor in any manner except through this central agency. I urge labor to respond as loyally as heretofore to any calls issued by this agency for voluntary enlistment in essential industry. And I ask them both alike to remember that no sacrifice will have been in vain, if we are able to prove beyond all question that the highest and best form of efficiency is the spontaneous co-operation of a free people."

WOODROW WILSON.

United States Employment Service
U.S. Dep't of Labor W.B. Wilson Sec'y

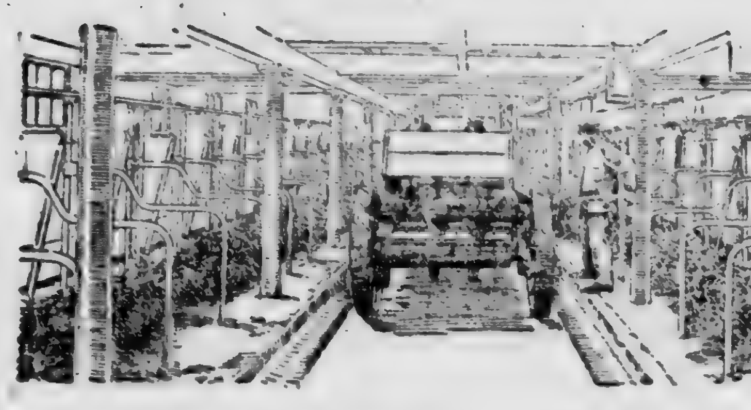
This advertisement prepared for use of the Department of Labor By the Division of Advertising of the Committee on Public Information

AUGUST

L 90

0478

LOW CORN KING



Raise The Limit.

EVERY farmer who has access to a pile of stable manure or who keeps live stock on his farm should have a Corn King manure spreader this year. Don't let power and help conditions keep you from raising as much as you can on every acre. Begin to use a Low Corn King spreader right after harvest, and fertilize your fields. There is no easier, surer or better way to secure a paying increase in crops from every acre you plant. How would a thirty-bushel-to-the-acre increase in corn, or a ten-bushel increase in wheat look to you next year? All right, then buy and use a

Low Corn King Manure Spreader.

Three sizes—small, medium and large. All narrow boxes. All steel frames, with working parts of the spreader securely attached to the frame. Turns short. Drive from both rear wheels. Return apron driven by worm gear, which insures even spreading up hill and down. Pull comes straight on steel frame. Solid two-inch rear axle working in roller bearings carries 75 per cent. of the load. All-steel beater can not warp, shrink or rot. Built up to International Harvester standards of quality in every respects. Buy a Corn King spreader and use it. The increased yield from a few acres will pay for your spreader. Place your order now.

Wm. CURIE, St. Joe, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. J. D. Gorrell returned home on Wednesday from Camp Sherman, Ohio, after spending a few days with her husband, who is located there.

Samuel Cole and wife and Melvin Howey, wife and son, Lynn, were Sunday dinner guests at the Roy Zimmerman home, west of town.

Henry Culbertson and wife were guests on Sunday of Jacob Gratz and family.

Mrs. Arthur White, of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. J. B. Sommers on Monday were guests of Samuel Cole and wife at supper.

Miss Helen Morrison, of Cleveland, is spending a few days with her aunt, Mrs. Vern Wilmot, and family.

Arthur Heyman, wife and daughter, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of the lady's parents, John Benninghoff and wife.

Rev. Arthur Emmons visited with his parents over Sunday.

Mrs. Emily Gloyd and sons—Clarence, Ralph and Geary—spent Sunday with the former's sister, Mrs. Anson Dunton, and husband, of Huntertown.

Mrs. Lucy Fairfield is very ill at the home of her son, William Fairfield.

George Howey and wife entertained the following company at dinner on Friday in honor of the latter's 70th birthday anniversary: Mesdames Clara Clark and Paul McPherson and the latter's son, Ronald, of Fort Wayne; William Brown and wife, north of Auburn; Vinton Miller and family, Mrs. William Rhoads and Stephen Brown and wife.

Miss Mary Comesky is visiting friends at LaOtto.

Rev. A. K. Mumma and family attended the Houk family reunion at Robinson park, Saturday afternoon.

R. U. Bowser and Thomas Peterson spent Thursday night with the former's niece, Mrs. Adam Waters, and husband, near Ft. Wayne.

Martin Kimes and family, of Robinson chapel, and Mrs. Frank Kimes and son, of Oklahoma, were Wednesday guests of William Allen and family.

Mrs. Ella Fischer and daughters, Dorothy and Marian, of Pleasant Lake, came Wednesday to visit her mother, Mrs. E. E. Provines. John Provines, accompanied by his wife, is also visiting his mother.

Miss Vivian Queensberry entertained about thirty guests on Tuesday afternoon in honor of her 12th birthday anniversary. Music and games were enjoyed. Supper was served by the hostess. She received many beautiful gifts.

Vern Wilmot and wife entertained the following company at dinner, Sunday: Lee Wilmot and family, of Garrett; Mrs. Arthur Wilmot and grand-daughter, of Coburntown; George Baker and wife, of Georgetown; Miss Helen Morrison, of Cleveland.

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved--why Pay $2 Per Pint For Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine, to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. Manufactured by the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

For Sale & Exchange

Farm of 22½ acres near church and school. Good soil, lots of young fruit trees, new house and cellar, small barn and out buildings. Must be seen to be appreciated.

Also 5 acre garden tract, ⅝ mile from Auburn on paved road and car stop. Good house and other buildings. Will sell or trade on small farm.

A $6,000.00 grocery stock to exchange on farm.

In the city of Fort Wayne a $30,000.00 property which is leased 5 years at $1,800 per year. will trade on good large farm.

Many other farms for sale or exchange.

J. BENNINGHOFF,
Spencerville, Ind.

13 Daddies.

(Continued from page 8, Col. 5.)

of her last day in Paradise Lost, she led Perfessor to a seat outside their home. She placed a finger on his lips to enjoin silence while she was speaking.

"Dear daddy, I want to tell you something."

Perfessor was about to reply, but she stopped him with an admonitory and a serious look.

"Dear daddy, there is something I must tell you. I can not go back to Boston without—you see—I—I—oh! I'm the luckiest girl in all the world."

Margaret gave Perfessor a hug and a kiss and hurried away.

"Poor little lady, she's thinkin' o' tomorrer," reasoned Perfessor to himself.

Silly Perfessor!

Shortly after, Calamity was enjoying a smoke outside. Margaret joined him, sitting silently at his side.

"What is it, little lady?" inquired Calamity kindly.

"Oh!" she cried in a startled manner. She quickly recovered herself and added: "Nothing. I—you are so good I like to sit and look at you and think how much I love you."

Then, strangely enough, she left him.

"The little lady hates to leave us." Thus reasoned Calamity.

Silly Calamity!

That evening, in the privacy of her room, Mrs. Dal held in her arms a weeping girl.

"Oh, Mrs. Dal! what shall I do?" sobbed Margaret. "I came home purposely to tell them something, but I can't. I've tried to, but I can't—I can't, indeed."

"Then don't," replied Mrs. Dal; "and don't worry about it dear."

Margaret was about to speak.

"No, no! Don't tell me—don't tell me," cried Mrs. Dal. "If you tell me, I may have to lie to them. I know your secret, little girl."

Margaret gave a sigh of relief and raised her face from Mrs. Dal's shoulder. "I am so glad you know it, dear Mrs. Dal."

"You may fool them, but you can't me," was the rallying reply. "I had my suspicions when a certain young minister was here. Now, I know."

"But what will they think when they learn it—what will they do?"

"As they always do, you little goose—wrong at first, right at last,' was the reply. "Don't worry, sweetheart: everything will be all right in the end. Now kiss me and run along to your daddies."

Margaret stopped with her daddies to bid them good night. In the doorway to her apartment, she hesitated for a moment. Then she passed inside.

Several hours later, the moon lighted up the little lady's room. A hand—the left one—lay outside upon the coverlet. On the third finger glistened a plain gold band. Before putting it on, she kissed it; and then she knelt beside her bed and the names of the giver and of her daddies went up in prayer to Him who said, "Blessed are the pure in heart."

(CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK)

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. 2

Melvin Betz and family and Harrison Norrick and daughter spent last Sunday at the home of Mrs. Betz's mother, Mrs. Mary Cook.

Bert Timmerman and family, of New Haven, spent Sunday with Mrs. Mary Cook and family.

Miss Nellie Kelley spent Sunday with Ray Means and family.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Cecil Shilling, who has been on the sick list since Saturday, is some better.

Word has been received that Ford Jackson has everything packed ready to go across.

Miss Thelma Curie is spending the week with her aunt, Mrs. Abe Mason, and family, of Auburn.

Glen Abel, of Huntingten, spent between trains Tuesday evening with his parents, J. C. F. Abel and wife.

Charles Kinsey, wife and son, of Auburn, spent Monday with Roy, George and Frank Kinsey and their families.

Clayton Hathaway, of Garrett, spent Tuesday night and Wednesday with his parents, H. C. Hathaway and wife.

Joseph Haifley and family and Mrs. Anna Dilley were Sunday guests of Charles Wasson and wife, west of town.

Misses Hilda and Emily Kimes returned to their home at Grabill on Wednesday, after a week's visit with relatives in and around St. Joe.

J. P. Buckingham and wife on Sunday entertained Mrs. Silas B. McManus, of Howe, and H. and R. Hillegass and wives, of Huntertown.

Jay Bleeks and family moved to the Joe Sechler farm, north of town, Wednesday. George Bleeks and wife will soon move from Auburn to their home at St. Joe.

Mrs. Ella Patterson and Miss Margaret Tustison left Wednesday for a visit with Ralph Patterson and family, of Springfield, Ohio. Mesdames Bessie Tustison and J. P. Buckingham accompanied them as far as New Haven, where the latter two passed the day with Mrs. C. T. Bayman.

The Hadsell reunion was held at the fair grounds, Hicksville, Wednesday. A number of the relatives from here attended.

Mrs. Alice Warner was in attendance at the Pigeon Millinery opening at Fort Wayne, Wednesday.

C. B. Leighty left Wednesday for Columbus, Ohio, where he has a good job.

..Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Mrs. Sarah Widney and daughter Miss Ida entertained the following guests at Sunday dinner, Miss Florence Hale of New Iberia, La., Clarence Widney, of Oklahoma City, Okla., O. L. Widney, wife and childrenn of Hicksville and H. M. Widney and wife.

Our Classified Ad Department

For Sale: Team work horses, 8 and 12 years old. B. W. Welch, Spencerville.

For Sale: Five year old Durham cow, and a sow to farrow soon.
F. A. Lothamer.

For Sale: Steel tire, top buggy, $25.00. No. 9 Jewel cook stove, $5.00. The Wilson, wood or soft coal heater $5.00. Two strips of linoleum 6-ft. wide and 12-ft and 10-in. long, $4.00 per strip. Bed mattress and springs $8.00. One 3 burner oil stove $10.00. Call at Erick farm Friday and Saturday. J. B. Winebrenner.

COLETOWN

Gladys Evans spent Sunday with friends at Garrett.

Russell Bair, of Angola, visited Friday at the R. H. Conine home.

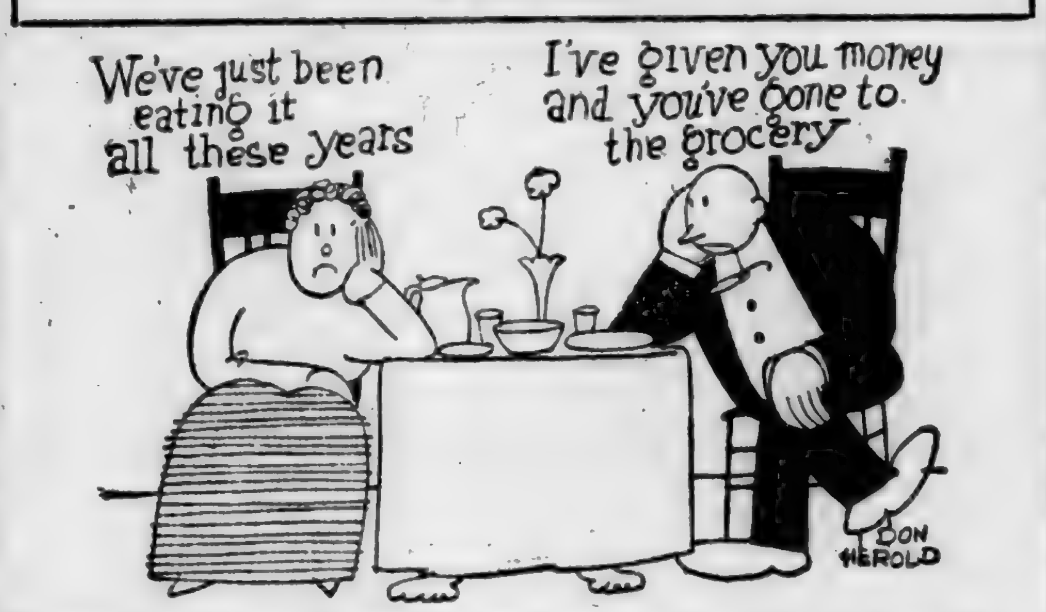
Rev. Bryan and wife took dinner Sunday at the Henry Kling home.

William Brown and wife, of Auburn, were over-Sunday guests of J. D. Brown.

George Mason and wife, of Farmer, Ohio, C. S. Ensign and wife, of Ridgway, Mich., and Howard Martin and wife took dinner Sunday at the Fred Martin home.

ONE-MINUTE FOOD TALKS

By Don Herold



We've just been eating it all these years
I've given you money and you've gone to the grocery
DON HEROLD

YOU MAY THINK FOOD COMES IN BASKETS, BUT IT DOESN'T

We have been getting our food so easily all these years that we forget that it is one of the fundamentals of life.

We forget that a large part of the work we do every day, we do for food. We get our pay in money, but we translate a large part of that money sooner or later into food.

No, grocery stores and dining rooms and three meals a day are just a habit with most of us, and it is hard to see how food has any connection with war.

But, honest, friends, food is one of the things that human beings need in this world.

And in wartime a lot of people are apt not to get any.

The big machine that has brought food to our mouths so smoothly that we have hardly even noticed it, is all out of order. The fine complex organization of farms, freight trains, steamships, stockyards, canning factories, wholesale houses and corner grocery stores isn't working as usual.

Once again we are conscious of food—just as our pioneer fathers were conscious of it.

We may recall now that entire families, tribes, nations used to bundle up and move hundreds of miles—for food. We may reflect that birds migrate for—food. We have seen a great Russia go to pieces largely for want of food. We saw Italy almost going to pieces at one time for want of food. We see England and France constantly threatened with a shortage of food.

There are spots in the world where the grocery boy does not come with a full basket if you call on the phone, even if you have the money to pay.

We must look out for France and England and Italy. Their hunger is our hunger. Their health is our health. There is nothing habitual now about the way our allies get their food. Every loaf of bread takes scheming, every bite of beefsteak takes planning.

And, over here, as we sit among our chicken pies and strawberry shortcakes we must stop and philosophize about—food, and, in fact, do some real tall thinking about it.

We have got to do some of that scheming and planning for that loaf of bread and that bite of beefsteak for France and England and Italy.

WHITE OXFORDS AND PUMPS!

...ALL...
THE NEW PATTERNS
That are being worn now are here for your selection.

Hot Weather Is Here

And calls for WHITE FOOTWEAR—the most comfortable and cool shoe you can find.

Women's Oxfords or Pumps in high or low heels, $2.00 to $3.50.

Men's White or Palm Beach Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.

Children's Mary Jane Slippers, $1 to $2.

Full line of Rubber Soled Slippers, 80c to $3.00.

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.
BEN LEHMAN PROP.

AUGUST

L 90

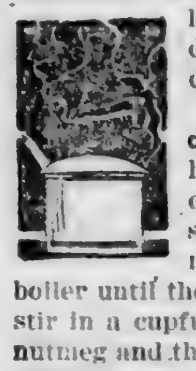
0479

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Through envy, through malice,
through hating,
Against the world, early and late,
No jot of our courage abating,
Our part is to work and to wait.
—Alice Cary.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Cereals, even the leftovers from breakfast, may be used to make delicious and nourishing dishes as puddings and desserts.



Date Hominy Pudding.—Soak a cupful of hominy in four cupfuls of water with a teaspoonful of salt over night. Cook in a double boiler until the liquid is absorbed, then stir in a cupful of honey, a grating of nutmeg and the grated rind of a lemon. Grease a pudding mold and in the bottom place four dates. Cover with an inch of the cooked hominy and arrange a row of dates around the dish, pour in the remainder of the hominy, cover and steam two hours. When done, unmold and serve cold with cream and sugar or hot with a sweet sauce.

Soy Bean Loaf.—Wash and drain well one pound of soy beans, place them in a saucepan and cover with plenty of cold water; put in an onion stuck with a clove, a little salt, a bay leaf and a half teaspoonful of thyme, tied in a bit of muslin. Cover the saucepan and cook at a low temperature until the beans are tender, adding more water if needed. When cold put through a meat chopper, season with salt and pepper, stir in a half cupful of catsup, two canned pimentos and the whites of two hard-cooked eggs chopped fine; mix well, turn out on a floured board, brush over with the beaten yolk of egg and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Place in a greased pan and bake in a moderate oven three-quarters of an hour. Garnish with parsley. Serve either hot or cold.

Chili Con Carne.—Cut two pounds of round steak into small square pieces. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter substitute in a saucepan and when hot add the steak, fry brown; then add one cupful of boiling water and four tablespoonfuls of rice. Cook until tender. Add three canned red peppers cut in pieces, one cupful of cooked beans, two parboiled onions cut in slices, one tablespoonful of flour, four cloves, one clove of garlic, chopped, a teaspoonful of salt and cook until the gravy is of the right consistency. Serve garnished with parsley.

String Beans With Pork.—Remove the strings from two quarts of green beans and slice them lengthwise into one-eighth-inch strips. Cut into dice one thin slice of salt pork, three inches square, and fry it in a granite stew pan. Put in the beans, with a cupful of boiling water, and let them cook half an hour; then add a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, a teaspoonful of sugar, half a cupful of vinegar and simmer until the beans are tender. When nearly cooked thicken with a teaspoonful of flour, if desired.

There is no contentment without congenial and useful occupation. Happy is the one who is skilled to do something very well.

FOOD HINTS.

When you fry cornmeal mush roll each slice in cornmeal with a pinch of sugar; the slices will brown quickly and evenly with less fat.

Rabbit en Casserole.—As rabbit is one of our meats we are asked to use to save beef, some of us will need to get over fussiness about eating rabbit which is most wholesome and good flavored meat. Dress the rabbit and cut it up in serving sized pieces, brown in any sweet fat, then add two tablespoonfuls of corn flour and two cupfuls of hot water. Stir until smooth, pour over the rabbit, add a few slices of onion which have been browned in a little fat, a cupful of celery, a bit of bay leaf, salt and pepper and enough water to half cover. Cover and cook slowly for an hour and a half. If a thicker sauce or gravy is desired add more corn flour. Serve hot with a tart jelly.

Bombay Soup.—Put a tablespoonful of peanut butter into a saucepan, add one onion sliced and cook slowly without browning; then add one large sour apple sliced, but not peeled, a teaspoonful of thyme, juice of half a lemon, a teaspoonful of curry powder, a teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of rice, cooked. Cover and simmer gently for ten minutes with one quart of good soup stock.

Rice and Meat Loaf.—Butter a mold and line it three-quarters of an inch thick with hot, steamed rice. Prepare a mixture of two cupfuls of finely chopped meat, seasoned well with pepper, celery, salt, onion and lemon juice; add a quarter of a cupful of crumbs and enough rice water to make of the right consistency. Stock of any kind may be used if there is no rice water. Nearly fill the mold with this mixture then cover with a layer of the rice, put on the buttered lid and steam for forty-five minutes. Turn out on a hot platter and pour a rich tomato sauce around the loaf.

Rice with chicken, lamb, mutton or chopped tongue makes most tasty croquettes.

SAVE THE SUGAR DESSERTS.

Among the light desserts which are easy for the inexperienced housewife to prepare are the fruit combinations. Fruits are rich in mineral substances and acids which are needed in the blood. The following desserts, while saving sugar, are giving us a new and delicious flavor.

Chocolate Pears.—Steam unstemmed pears until tender, after peeling and coring carefully. To the juice of a lemon and half a cupful of water add corn or maple sirup until it is quite sweet; to each cupful of the juice add a heaping tablespoonful of chocolate and vanilla to flavor. Cook until smooth and pour over the pears.

Pineapple Bavarian Cream.—Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatine in a half cupful of cold water. Heat together one grated pineapple or one can of preserved pineapple, a half-cupful of corn sirup, a tablespoonful of lemon juice; add to the gelatine and stir until the gelatine is thoroughly dissolved. Then chill the mixture in a pan of water, stirring constantly. When it begins to thicken fold in a cupful of cream, whipped. Place in a mold and set aside to chill.

Jellied Figs.—Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatine in half a cupful of water. Cook a pound of figs with two cupfuls of water slowly, until the skins are tender. Add the boiling water in which the figs were cooked to the softened gelatine and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Add a half-cupful of corn sirup and enough grape juice to make four cupfuls of liquid. Put the liquid and figs in layers in a mold, letting each layer of liquid partly set before adding the next. Serve when unmolded with cream.

Raisin Sandwich.—Stew raisins in a little orange juice until plump. Put aside to chill. Spread graham crackers with the raisins and a little grated maple sugar mixed with cream. Put on another cracker and the sandwich is ready.

The movement for conservation is not only helping in saving food for our army and allies but it is educating us away from rich pastry and puddings, which we are finding most important in keeping our nation's health up to standard.

A hearty welcome manifested in kindly and polite attentions, will make a very plain meal more enjoyable than a banquet.

WAYS WITH SWEETBREADS.

Sweetbreads, being perishable meat, are one of the best of summer meats which we may feel free to use. When the price is not prohibitive they should be frequently served.

Sweetbreads should be fresh, as they spoil quickly. Remove all the skin, fibers and tubes without breaking the sweetbreads themselves. Soak in cold water for an hour, changing it often to extract all the blood. Drain and put to cook in simmering water for 20 minutes. Use the broth in which they were cooked as a basis for the sauce in which to serve them. Plunge the sweetbreads as soon as cooked into cold water to keep them firm and white. If to be baked, wrap each sweetbread in a cheesecloth and put it under a weight.

Braised Sweetbreads.—Place in a baking pan a layer of new peas and small carrots with new potaoes; on this bed of vegetables place the prepared sweetbreads with a few cubes of fat salt pork. Add enough of the stock in which the sweetbreads were cooked to cover the vegetables. Cover tight and cook about forty minutes. Season with salt and pepper during the cooking.

Sweetbreads in Gelatine.—Cut into small dice two cupfuls of cooked sweetbreads. Soak a tablespoonful of gelatine in one-quarter of a cupful of the broth and dissolve it in half a cupful of hot broth. Add the sweetbreads, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and salt and pepper to taste. Stand the mixture in a pan of ice water, stir frequently and as it begins to stiffen fold in one cupful of whipped cream and two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley. Turn into molds and chill. Serve in slices laid on crisp lettuce leaves.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Sweetbreads.—Peel and scoop out the centers of medium-sized tomatoes, sprinkle with salt and invert to drain. Set on ice to chill. Cut sweetbreads previously cooked, into dice, add a few cooked asparagus tips, a spoonful of minced green pepper, season well with salt and paprika, add mayonnaise dressing to moisten, and fill the tomatoes. Garnish each with a stuffed olive.

Nellie Maxwell

Best Gowns Are Still in Favor

New York.—It is impossible to avoid bitter discussion on the question of entertaining our soldiers and sailors. As this struggle progresses, writes a fashion correspondent, it may be that the entire social fabric will cease to rend itself apart with personal and national arguments for and against people, in and out of power, institutions for the good of the cause, and the various phases of money expenditure that have arisen in the last year.

Anyone who goes about in various sectors of society—and by that is meant the grouping of people for all purposes, not alone gayety—begins to feel that the hate which is engendered on the battlefield has its reflection in the minds of those who are not in the struggle, except on the side-lines.

A Civil war veteran says that this pitching of women into the public arena, with its alleged bad effect on their tempers and temperaments, has nothing to do with the situation; that the Civil war engendered the same kind of personal animosities. Yet the Civil war—with all its tragedy, hate, death and sacrifice, which necessarily affected the personal lives of everyone in America more than this war has done—did not throw women together in groups of thousands.

Is it odd, therefore, in this rather malevolent turn which emotions have taken during a year of war, that the question of entertaining our soldiers should be thrown into the arena of argument?

Reason for Brilliant Costumery.

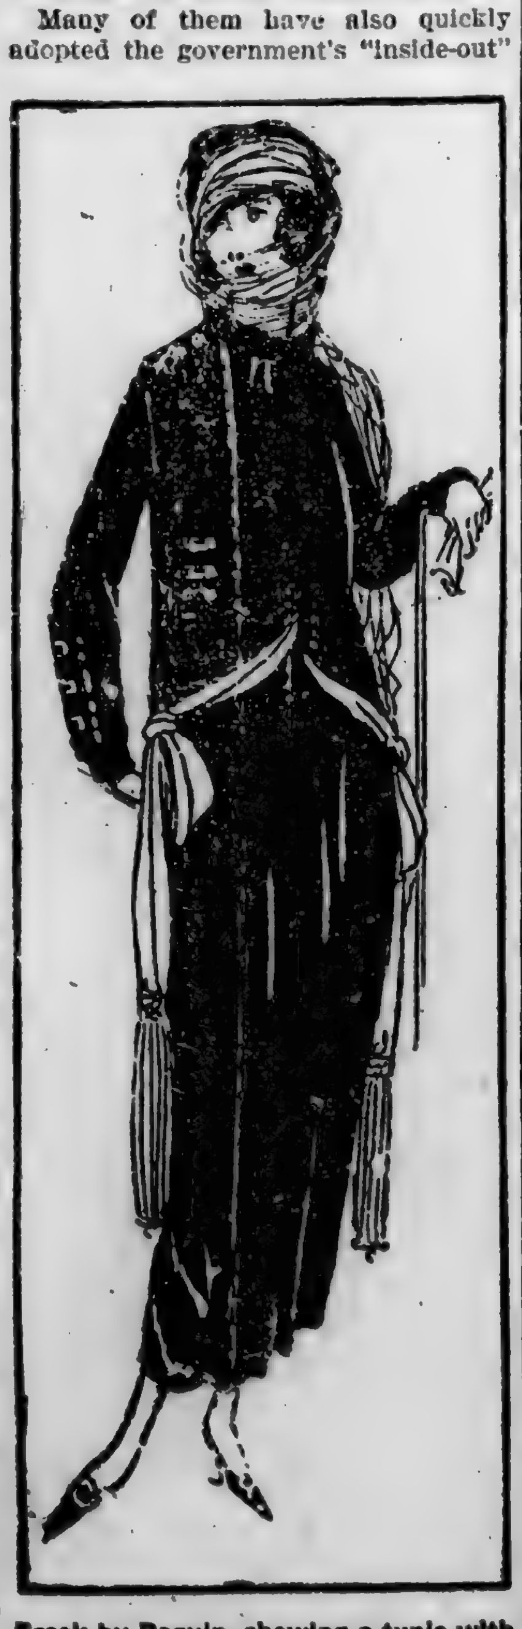
Now we come to the question of fashions. It is not possible to separate clothes from this peculiar and emphatic situation which has arisen through the conviction that the fighters must be entertained, going and coming.

Whatever the government has asked women to do in the way of clothes they have done gladly, but that does not keep them from dressing well every day and night as they pass to and from one entertainment to another.

These gowns are far from expensive in the mass. Of course, the individual who has money continues to spend it in going to her own dressmaker and paying well for excellent cloth, good fitting and perfect finish; but the average woman, even though she have money, has begun to find out all kinds of places where smart-looking clothes may be bought for small prices. They are also turning out a good deal of work in their own sewing rooms, after the fashion of 25 years ago.

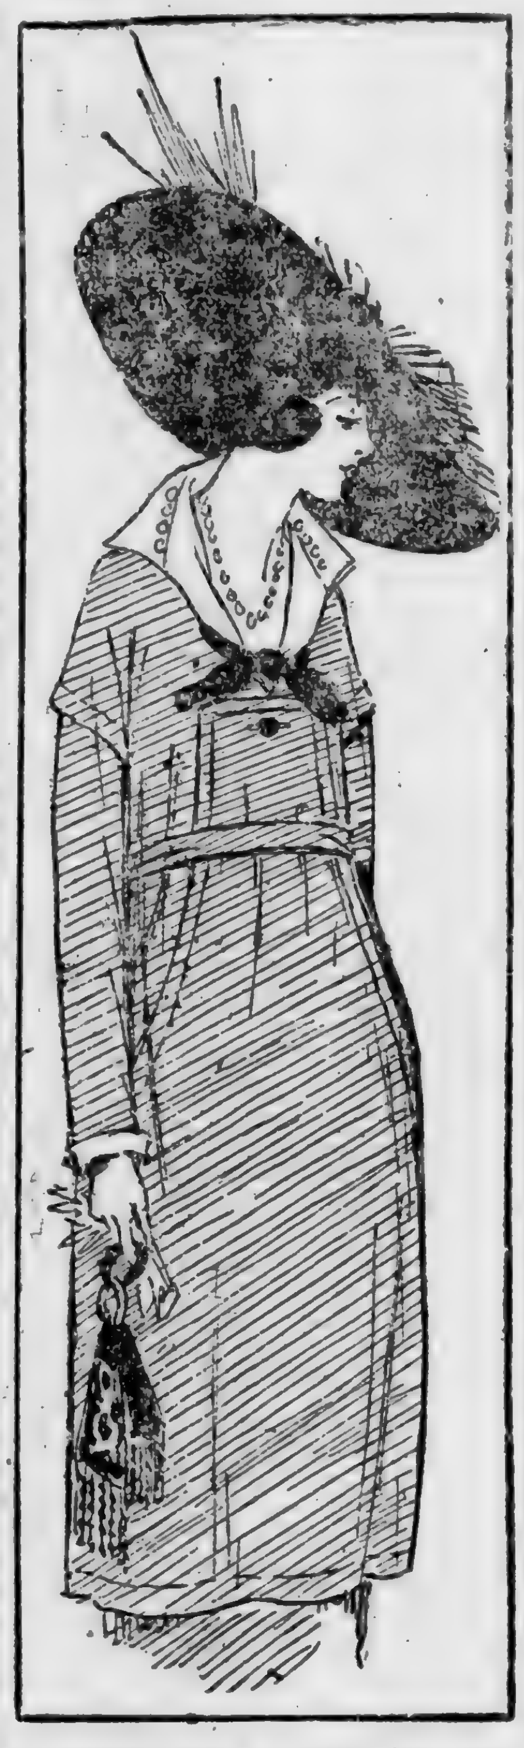
By the way, one of the striking phases of this war is that women boast of the cheapness of their clothes, and regale each other with the method of making old clothes into new, and the small shop where you can get something that looks like France for $19.

Many of them have also quickly adopted the government's "inside-out" suggestion. It is not unusual to see a woman holding up the tunic or panel of her skirt in the middle of Main street, as she greets a friend, saying, "Here's my 'inside-out' gown; how goes it?" Women confidentially whisper to each other at committee meetings about the secret little Paris dressmaker who is used to the economical tricks of the French dressmakers in turning and twisting to save money—and these addresses are only exchanged as a great privilege.



Frock by Paquin, showing a tunic with a military sash. It is a part of a navy blue serge frock, and it fastens on the right shoulder. Buttons and buttonholes are of old-blue silk. The sash is of apple-green silk, and the tassels are arranged as bags.

All of which is exceedingly good for the nation as a mass. As for the high-priced dressmakers, they have their own clientele who will probably never leave them, so they do not worry. As they say, there are always enough women in the world who must have individual fittings, which require expert workers. So everyone is satisfied, economically and commercially.



A mustard gown is better than mustard gas, and the suit by Paquin in this color is a departure from the conventional coat and skirt. There is a Medici collar, a black satin cravat and a narrow belt of the material which ties in back.

New Clothes That Paris Sends.

Now, of one thing be very certain: that while the French do not entertain the French poilu, they are most excited about the Anglo-Saxon idea.

The result is an inrush of gowns to this country during the last few weeks, and these are sent over in order to allure those who are dancing and dining the fighters. The gowns are expensive, but they will be speedily copied by the inexpensive shops, and so 'Arriet, who goes out to an entertainment with 'Arry, will have the chance to buy for eight dollars and a half a copy of the French gown that cost $300. That is the happiness found in treading the sartorial path in America.

It is good to get these advance things from Paris. They foreshadow what is to be shown to American buyers.

If they are honest forerunners of our early autumn costumery, then Paris has not created a revolution in the silhouette, as was persistently rumored during the month of June. The salient points of these new clothes are slenderness, shortness of skirts, an attempt to revive the minaret of Paul Poiret fame, an insistence upon sashes arranged in army fashion, a repetition of beige, mustard and tan colorings, and the introduction of broadcloth.

Floating panels, which have for six months dotted the entire surface of clothes in America, have been abolished, if we judge by these forerunners.

There are capes on evening gowns which are made in the most brilliant fairy-tale manner, reminiscent of the extravaganzas in the old days at the Drury Lane theater in London.

There are no high collars. The Italian decolletage is retained. The severe neck line, without a line of white, remains a part of the fashions.

Medieval Tunics Still in Fashion.

There has been no disposition on the part of the French designers to lift the tunic out of its popular position in apparel. They do not insist upon it in its genuine Slavic style, but they use it as a model for much that is done in the way of over-drapery.

There are tunics that are cut to a deep point at each side and are nothing but side pieces over a long embroidered cuirass that reaches nearly to the knees of a dark skirt.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Military Capes Worn.

Capes on military lines developed in dark blue lined with brilliant red and trimmed with gold buttons are being worn very advantageously by young women.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

NATIONAL PROHIBITION WOULD CONTRIBUTE TO CHILD WELFARE.

In the interest of child welfare, Superintendent Clarence H. Dempsey of the Haverhill, Mass., schools, thinks national prohibition should prevail, and the welfare of the children would immediately contribute to the welfare of the nation. Professor Dempsey says:

"I believe there is nothing that would contribute more to our national welfare than precisely this thing. I have found, in my experience, that the presence of licensed saloons prevents many children from getting as much out of school as they should on account of the lack of proper food and clothing, and the cases of destitution that come to my attention as a direct result of the use of liquor in the homes form one of the most convincing arguments to me for the abolition of the liquor traffic.

"Further than this, many children, as soon as they are of legal age to go to work, are forced to lose all schooling thereafter on account of the use of liquor at home, and in many such instances these children have the further misfortune to have made poor progress while they were in school. Inherited weaknesses, feeble-mindedness, and poor food and clothing, are very common accompaniments to the drink habit. I have no doubt, futhermore, that my own experiences would be duplicated and corroborated by superintendents and teachers the country over."

CHILDREN PROFIT BY DECREASE IN HOURS OF DRINK TRADE.

The children in Great Britain have gained, even under such measures of restriction of the liquor traffic as have been introduced by the board of control. A recent book written by Henry Carter, a member of the board, states that the number of deaths of infants from overlying decreased by 40 per cent in 1916 as compared with 1914. The number steadily declined with the decrease in arrests for drunkenness.

Cases of cruelty and neglect of children due to drunkenness dealt with by the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children decreased from 40.2 per cent in 1914-15 to 31.2 per cent in 1916-17. With it went a general improvement in the homes and nutrition of children, better rest because the streets became quiet earlier due to the earlier closing hour of the public house. The long evenings in Great Britain, coupled with late closing of the saloons, tended to keep the children on the streets often until midnight, while the streets would not grow quiet until one o'clock or later. Such conditions were, of course, detrimental to children's health and moral welfare. So much gain Great Britain has won for her children merely by diminishing the hours of the drink trade.

BEER NOT A TEMPERANCE DRINK

Alcohol is alcohol, either in whisky or beer. It is nonsense to claim that beer is a hygienic drink. It is drunk chiefly for its alcoholic effect, and if the alcoholic effect is produced, the danger of alcohol exists. Any one who doubts that beer can produce a certain form of intoxication need only visit the saloon and watch the beer-drinker in various stages of befuddlement or excitement. If beer does not intoxicate or produce any alcoholic effect, what becomes of the "racial craving of stimulants" which it is said to satisfy? Furthermore, heavy beer-drinking, as in the case of brewery employees, adds the danger of excessive fluid intake, entirely apart from alcohol. The heavy mortality of brewery employees is sufficient evidence that beer, so far as its effect on masses of men is concerned, is not a hygienic drink.—Eugene Lyman Fisk, M. D., in Atlantic Monthly.

A CATHOLIC PASTOR'S OPINION OF THE SALOON.

"The modern American saloon, with its gambling den, wine room, and back parlors, is nothing more or less than a living part of hell. It is the 'hang-out' for all loafers, toughs, sapheads, and would-be sports in town. The policeman in every town will tell you that murders, suicides, robberies, thefts, and all crimes, originate at the saloon bar, and any lawyer can tell you that the bought perjurers who crowd courts and make justice impossible, can be secured from any near-by saloon. The up-to-date barroom, whether we like to admit it or not, saps the vitality of our manhood, steals the blood money from the laboring man, starves the innocent, drives women to despair, makes beasts out of men, and sends countless souls to eternal perdition."—Father Henry McGuire, Joliet, Ill.

WHY HE OBJECTS TO THE SALOON

Recently a well-known congressman gave the following as a reason why he objected to the institution known as a saloon: "A man and a dog will go into a saloon together perfectly sober, and in 20 minutes they will come out. The man will be drunk; he will stagger and fall into the gutter and lie there like a hog, while the dog will walk away like a gentleman. I object to an institution that works such a difference in 20 minutes between a man and a dog."

TO ALL WOMEN WHO ARE ILL

This Woman Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Personal Experience.

McLean, Neb.—"I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all women who suffer from any functional disturbance, as it has done me more good than all the doctor's medicine. Since taking it I have a fine healthy baby girl and have gained in health and strength. My husband and I both praise your medicine to all suffering women."—Mrs. JOHN KOPPELMANN, R. No. 1, McLean, Nebraska.

This famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has been restoring women of America to health for more than forty years and it will well pay any woman who suffers from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues" to give this successful remedy a trial.

For special suggestions in regard to your ailment write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

Say "Nope"! to your Grocerman

If he tries to put over on you something "just as good as"

Red Cross Ball Blue

In the words of the immortal Josh Billings—"There aint no sich thing." There is positively nothing as good as, or equal to RED CROSS BALL BLUE for producing clothes of such white purity as bring a blush to new fallen snow.

Try It — Prove It
5 Cents — Everywhere

ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Reduces Bursal Enlargements, Thickened, Swollen Tissues, Curbs, Filled Tendons, Soreness from Bruises or Strains; stops Spavin Lameness, allays pain. Does not blister, remove the hair or lay up the horse. $2.50 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Book 1 R free. ABSORBINE, JR., for mankind—an antiseptic liniment for bruises, cuts, wounds, strains, painful, swollen veins or glands. It heals and soothes. $1.25 a bottle at druggists or postpaid. Will tell you more if you write. Made in the U. S. A. by W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

No Kick Then.

The motorcar dealer met an undertaker one afternoon to whom he had recently sold a second-hand car.

"Well, Lane," said the dealer, "how about that car I sold you? Everything going satisfactorily?"

"Well," replied the undertaker, "it did give me a little trouble at first. I used it for a mourning vehicle, you know, to carry the mourners and friends, and they don't like to be shook up in their grief. But now I'm using it as a hearse, and I haven't had any complaints so far."—Harper's Magazine.

His Disappointment.

"I found a letter lying on the sidewalk this morning," grumbled old Riley Rezzidew of Petunia. "It was signed 'Lucile,' and at first looked as if it might be worth reading. But when I had read the first line or two, which said, 'John and I went to Bethel to the big singing last Sunday,' I just throwed it down again. What kind of a letter was that to lose on the public street?"—Kansas City Star.

Some Exceptions.

"Talk is cheap."

"I didn't find it so when I got mad and talked back to the judge."

A cynic is a person who says hateful things because he is unable to attract attention any other way.

SAVING WHEAT is only one good point for
POST TOASTIES
(MADE OF CORN)
—says Bobby

AUGUST

0480

Very Much So.

"How are the German troops doing?"

"I notice by the news reports they are still in the running."

Fiery Red Pimples.

A hot bath with Cuticura Soap followed by an application of Cuticura Ointment to distressing eczemas, etc., proves their wonderful properties. For free samples address "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

The Cut Direct.

"If I give you a meal will you cut our grass?"

"Lady, I'll cut it dead; I'll scorn ter notice it."

Few women can manage a flirtation without bumping up against a lot of troublesome complications.

Only Thirty Days.

Gus Peterson hain't care much for dis har society business, but sum tam his wife her drag Gus out and he hav awful tam figering out vote tu du with his hand and feet.

Last veek Missus Peterson took Gus tu dinner party at Vashington hotel and Gus he hav tu set between tu society vimmen. These vimmen tank it bane gude yoke and they try tu talk tu Gus, but ha ain't say vary much.

"A got letter from my son. He's in Yale, you no," said vone of the vimmen.

"Ay got bruther vot bane there tu," Gus say.

"Is that so? Vot year?" ask the vooman.

"He don't got no year," Gus tal her. "He yust punch a Norwegian feller in the eye and the yudge give hem 30 day in yail."—Washington State Weekly.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Self-Supporting.

"Of course, you read up on agriculture."

"Yep," replied Farmer Corntossel, "I expect to make enough off the farm this year to buy books to teach me how to run it."

War Prices.

He—I feel like thirty cents.

She—How things have gone up since the war.

The Way She Dressed Him.

"What do you want to be when you grow up?" was asked of a small boy by the visitor.

"Oh," said he, "I want to be a man, but I think mamma wants me to be a lady."—Buffalo News.

Of Course You've Noticed That.

When a young man gets too fresh somebody is sure to favor him with a withering look.

GOOD-BYE BACKACHE, KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

For centuries all over the world GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has afforded relief in thousands upon thousands of cases of lame back, lumbago, sciatica, rheumatism, gallstones, gravel and all other affections of the kidneys, liver, stomach, bladder and allied organs. It acts quickly. It does the work. It cleanses your kidneys and purifies the blood. It makes a new man, a new woman, of you. It frequently wards off attacks of the dread and fatal disease of the kidneys. It often completely cures the distressing diseases of the organs of the body allied with the bladder and kidneys. Bloody or cloudy urine, sediment, or "brickdust" indicate an unhealthy condition.

Do not delay a minute if your back aches or you are sore across the loins or have difficulty when urinating. Go to your druggist at once and get a box of imported GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They are pleasant and easy to take. Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill. Take a small swallow of water if you want to. They dissolve in the stomach, and the kidneys soak up the oil like a sponge does water. They thoroughly cleanse and wash out the bladder and kidneys and throw off the inflammation which is the cause of the trouble. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gallstones, gravel, "brickdust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs. Your druggist will cheerfully refund your money if you are not satisfied after a few days' use. Accept only the pure, original GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. None other genuine.—Adv.

Watch Your Stomach In Hot Weather

A Cool, Sweet, Strong Stomach Your Best Safeguard Against Summer Sickness

"Keep your stomach in good working order during the hot summer months and you will have little to fear in the way of sickness" the advice many physicians give as hot weather approaches.

Good, sound, common sense advice, too. For very frequently, and especially in hot weather, these common stomach disorders which so many people seem to regard as of minor importance, do open the way for serious illness.

So keep your stomach sweet, cool and comfortable all summer long. The extra war work—change of diet—poisons that come with hot weather—all hit us in the stomach. The strongest stomach will need help this summer as never before.

The one easy way if you have the right remedy is to rid the stomach of too much acid. Because it's superacidity that interferes with digestion and assimulation, and this causes about all those stomach miseries you are so familiar with—heartburn, food-repeating, indigestion, sour, gassy stomach and that miserable, bloated, puffed-up condition after eating.

Now here is good news. An easy, sure relief has been found to get rid of the harmful acidity and gases in the stomach. It is called EATONIC, a good tasting compound that you eat just like candy. A tablet or two of EATONIC after meals will work wonders. You can have no idea of what sure, quick comfort EATONIC brings until you do try it. Use EATONIC after your meals, enjoy a good appetite and get full strength from the food you eat. At the same time protect yourself from summer stomach and bowel miseries.

Get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist today. He will tell you that people who have used EATONIC say that they never dreamed that anything could give such quick and wonderful results. It costs only 50c a box and if it fails in any way, your druggist, who you know and trust, will return your money.

Help Save the Canadian Harvest

When Our Own Harvest Requirements Are Completed

United States Help Badly Needed
Harvest Hands Wanted

Military demands from a limited population have made such a scarcity of farm help in Canada that the appeal of the Canadian Government to the United States Government for

Help to Harvest the Canadian Grain Crop of 1918

Meets with a request for all available assistance to

GO FORWARD AS SOON AS OUR OWN CROP IS SECURED

The Allied Armies must be fed and therefore it is necessary to save every bit of the crop of the Continent—American and Canadian.

Those who respond to this appeal will get a

Warm Welcome, Good Wages, Good Board and Find Comfortable Homes

A card entitling the holder to a rate of one cent per mile from Canadian boundary points to destination and return will be given to all harvest applicants.

Every facility will be afforded for admission into Canada and return to the United States.

Information as to wages, railway rates and routes may be had from the

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT SERVICE
FT. WAYNE, KOKOMO, SOUTH BEND

CAN FOOD AND PRESERVE THE NATION
U.S. DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE

GOVERNMENT EXPERTS' ADVICE ON HOW TO CAN

VEGETABLE MIXTURES

Attractive and economical vegetable mixtures to be served in salads, with omelets, escalloped dishes, and garnishes for meat dishes can be canned at home. This by-product may be canned often when small quantities are left from packing different vegetables whole. Any desired combinations may be made. Vegetables maturing in the same season should be used. A good combination for the spring would be carrots, peas, string beans and onions. A mixture which could be made from the fall garden might consist of peppers, celery, onions and small lima beans. (Beets cannot be used in such mixtures because they discolor the entire contents of the jar.) All these vegetables are prepared separately as for canning and packed in layers in previously boiled jars. Each layer should be packed as tightly as possible before the next is added. When the jar is filled, cover with brine (2½ ounces of salt to one gallon of water). Partially seal jars.

Processing with steam under pressure is recommended. Process pint jars 45 minutes under pressure of ten pounds. Seal immediately and cool in a draft-free place. When cold test for leaks and store in a cool, dark, dry place.

If the intermittent boiling process is used, boil for 90 minutes on the first day, and 60 minutes on the second and third days. Before each subsequent boiling the covers must be loosened, and after each boiling the covers must be securely tightened to make sealing complete. Cool, test for leaks and store.

If a single-period boiling process is used, place jars in the canner and boil for at least three hours. Seal, cool, test and store.—United States Department of Agriculture.

GREENS OR POTHERBS

A large number of cultivated and wild greens are edible, and when canned make succulent and valuable food for the winter and spring months. Among the cultivated greens are Swiss chard, kale, Chinese cabbage leaves, upland cress, French endive, cabbage sprouts, turnip tops, young, tender New Zealand spinach, beet tops, dandelion, young, tender dasheen sprouts, native mustard, Russian mustard, collards, and tender rape leaves. Among the wild greens are pepper cress, lamb's-quarter, sour dock, smartweed sprouts, purslane, pokeweed sprouts, dandelion, and milkweed (tender sprouts and young leaves).

Can greens the same day they are picked. Wash clean, sort thoroughly, allowing no foreign weed leaves or other vegetable matter to remain. Rid the greens of all sand, dirt, and dry, decayed or diseased leaves. Place the greens in a crate or cheesecloth and blanch in live steam either in an improvised homemade steamer, or regular commercial steamer, for 15 minutes. Remove the greens and plunge quickly into cold water. Remove to a freshly scalded pan or vessel and cut into convenient lengths. Pack into hot jars, add hot water to fill the container, and season to taste. If desired, a few strips of bacon, chipped beef, beef, or olive oil may be added to the greens. Partially seal jars.

Processing with steam under pressure is recommended. Process pint jars 40 minutes under steam pressure of ten pounds. Seal immediately, cool in a place free from drafts, test for leaks, and store in a dark, cool, dry place.

If the intermittent boiling process is used, boil for one hour on each of three successive days. Loosen the covers before each subsequent boiling, and after each boiling seal completely. Cool, test for leaks, and store.

If the one-period continuous boiling process is used, boil for at least two hours. Seal immediately, cool, test for leaks, and store.—United States Department of Agriculture.

PEAS

Green peas are among the most difficult vegetables to can at home. Absolute cleanliness, quick work, attention to every detail, are essentials to success. Only young and very freshly gathered peas should be canned. Peas are best gathered in the early morning when cool. Work rapidly from the moment they are gathered. Peas should not stand after being shelled. Get them into the previously boiled jars as rapidly as possible. Shell and sort, putting only peas of the same size and degree of ripeness together. Do not use hard, mature peas among tender ones or big peas with very small ones.

Blanching (dipping into hot water) is very important. If well done, it prevents cloudy liquor, makes the peas tender, and also removes some of the gluey substance which coats them.

Blanch by dipping the shelled peas in a clean cheesecloth sack, into boiling water one to four minutes, depending on the age of the peas. Put instantly, while hot, into cold water, (one teaspoonful salt to one quart water) and remove after about 30 seconds.

Drain and pack to within one-half inch of the top of the previously boiled jar. If the jar is filled too full, a few peas at the top may burst and make the liquor cloudy. Add seasoning (one-third level teaspoonful salt and two-thirds level teaspoonful sugar to the quart) and fill with hot water and paddle well to remove all air bubbles. Partially seal jars.

Processing with steam under pressure is recommended. Process pints 45 minutes under pressure of 10 pounds. Seal immediately, cool in a draft-free place. When cold test for leaks, and store in a cool, dark, dry place.

If the intermittent boiling process is used, boil for 90 minutes on the first day, and 60 minutes on the second and third days. Before each subsequent boiling the covers must be loosened, and after each boiling the covers must be securely tightened to make sealing complete. Cool, test for leaks and store.

If a single-period boiling process is used, place jars in the canner and boil for at least three hours. Seal, cool, test and store.—United States Department of Agriculture.

OKRA

To can okra select young tender pods. Remove stem without cutting the seed pod. Blanch by dipping into boiling water from three to six minutes. Plunge immediately into a cool salt bath (one teaspoonful salt to one quart of water). Remove at once. Pack into previously boiled jars, cover with hot brine (two and one-half ounces salt to one gallon of water). Partially seal jars.

Processing with steam under pressure is recommended. Process pint jars 30 minutes under steam pressure of ten to fifteen pounds. Seal immediately, and cool in a place free from drafts. When cold test for leaks, and store in a cool, dark, dry place.

If the intermittent process is used, boil for one and one-fourth hours on the first day and one hour on the two succeeding days. Loosen the covers on the jars before each successive boiling, and seal completely after each boiling. Cool, test for leaks, and store.

If the single-continuous boiling period is used, boil for at least two hours. Seal, cool, test for leaks, and store.—United States Department of Agriculture.

BABY BEETS

The following recipe for canning baby beets is applicable to carrots. Only young, tender beets should be canned to get a high quality product. The best variety for canning is the Detroit.

Sort the beets, putting uniform sizes together. Cut the stems off, but be careful not to cut off too closely or break the root. This will cause loss of juice, color and flavor. Boil in an enameled pan until three-fourths done, peel, pack hot in layers in previously boiled jars, fitting the second layer into the spaces left by the first layer and repeating. Cover with clear hot water; partially seal the jars and boil them in a water bath for one hour continuously, counting from the time the water boils again around the jars.

Do not allow cold water to touch the beets after they have been cooked. If beets are packed in tin the cans used must be inside-lacquered. Beets 1⅛ inch in diameter and over should be cut or sliced before packing into jars. When a steam-pressure canner is used, process pints 30 minutes under five pounds steam pressure.—United States Department of Agriculture.

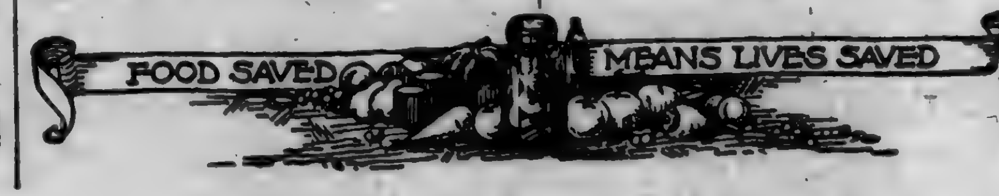
TOMATO SAUCE OR PUREE

If a more economical utilization of space within the jar is desired, a more concentrated mixture of tomatoes can be packed. This also provides for the use of small or broken tomatoes and large tomatoes unsuited for canning.

Cut the tomatoes and add one large-sized onion chopped and one cupful of chopped sweet red pepper to each gallon of cut tomatoes. Cook until tender, put through a sieve and add a third teaspoonful of salt and two-thirds teaspoonful of sugar (mixed) to each quart of pulp. Cook to the consistency of ketchup, stirring constantly. Pack hot in boiled jars and process as for tomatoes.—United States Department of Agriculture.

SHOW YOUR COLORS.

RED Berries.
WHITE Cherries.
BLUE Plums.
Home-canned for winter use.



SWIFT & COMPANY U.S.A.

Packers' Profits —Large or Small

Packers' profits look big—when the Federal Trade Commission reports that four of them earned $140,000,000 during the three war years.

Packers' profits look small—

When it is explained that this profit was earned on total sales of over four and a half billion dollars—or only about three cents on each dollar of sales.

This is the relation between profits and sales:

Profits ▮

Sales ▬

If no packer profits had been earned, you could have bought your meat at only a fraction of a cent per pound cheaper?

Packers' profits on meats and animal products have been limited by the Food Administration, since November 1, 1917.

Swift & Company, U.S.A.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
Get under the Shower of Gold

coming to farmers from the rich wheat fields of Western Canada. Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $30 per acre and raise from 20 to 45 bushels of $2 wheat to the acre it's easy to make money. Canada offers in her provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta

160 Acre Homesteads Free to Settlers

and other land at very low prices. Thousands of farmers from the U. S. or their sons are yearly taking advantage of this great opportunity. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed Farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. Good schools; markets convenient; climate excellent.

Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

Extremes Meeting.

"What did Maude do when Will insisted on a positive answer?"

"She gave him a decided negative."

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how freckles, sunburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

A mantel clock and savings bank are now combined.

Jamaicans can raise two vegetable crops yearly.

Your Eyes Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggists or by mail 60c per Bottle. For Book of the Eye free write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

Trying It Out.

"Why did the kaiser fire you?"

"For making a speech which was not well received."

"Tough luck, kamerad."

"All the more, since it was one he wrote himself."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

One Thing That Holds Its Own.

Everything else is getting smaller—doughtnuts and cakes and pies—but the "piece of mind" we get from our critics is the same old regulation size.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

ASTHMADOR
AVERTS • RELIEVES
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
Begin Treatment NOW
All Druggists Guarantee

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

Soldiers Soothe Skin Troubles with Cuticura
Soap, Ointment, Talcum 25c. each. Samples of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, for $1.00.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DE KALB AVE., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

AUGUST

L 90

0481

The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

1. An account in this bank is your best recommendation
   - —It is business like.
   - —It shows you are capable of tending your affairs
   - —It shows steady character and will power to get ahead.
   - —It puts you in a class with the influential men of the community.

A Check is a Receipt—GET THAT.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

Hey There! We want those $$$ that's due us on subscriptions=You know your stand'g

ENLIST Your Dollars in Your Country's Service

U. S. Bonds, War Savings Stamps, and U. S. Thrift Stamps must be purchased by the people from money saved from their incomes—every dollar spent for an unnecessary thing is a force for evil. When that dollar buys labor and materials for equipping our army and navy it has a double force—first it ceases to aid the enemy and second it is fighting for us in the behalf of mankind. Be sure that your pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and dollars are enlisted in the cause of your country. An idle dollar is a SLACKER dollar, but a dollar wasted in war time is a TRAITOR dollar.

All Banks and the Post Office Sell the Stamps

W.S.S.
WAR SAVINGS STAMPS ISSUED BY THE
UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

THIS SPACE CONTRIBUTED BY

ST. JOE NEWS
FRED B. LEIGHTY, PUB.
ST. JOE .... IND.

The Girl With Thirteen Daddies.

Story written especially for The News by Local Talent and is worthy of your weekly attention. Back numbers supplied while they last.

CHAPTER VIII. (CONTINUED)

Peddler took the lead. "Hats off, gents," he shouted, rising to his feet and glaring at the covered heads about him; and then he added sarcastically: "Whar war you all raised that you don't know 'nuff to take off hats in meetin'?" All command but Red, who, by previous arrangement, sat immediately in front of Peddler. Red even went to the point of defiance by pulling his hat down over his ears as far as a buffer of cotton and wood permitted.

'I don't allow no man to profane the house o' God in my presence," roared Peddler bringing the butt of his gun down on Red's well protected head.

Red crumpled up and slid from his chair to the floor. Peddler looked defiantly about and seated himself.

Choate stepped to the front of rostrum and was about to speak when he was interrupted a second time.

Fish Hook, who possessed a pair of enormous ears, arose and growled: "Parson, I consider that thar text as reflectin' on me. I don't allow no man"—

"Set down," roared Peddler.

Instead of obeying, Fish Hook reached for his gun; but he was too slow: Peddler's weapon was out first, and he fired twice. Fish Hook lurched forward and fell to the floor in the center aisle.

At this point in the program, the preacher was expected to faint or to make a hasty exit through a back window, but he did neither. He was beside Fish Hook a few seconds after the latter hit the floor. His jaw was set and his eyes were reduced to two narrow slits. "Get up," he said, pushing Fish Hook with a foot (not gently, either). The dead man suddenly came to life: he sprang to his feet, livid with rage.

"No man can kick me an' live to tell about," he yelled, drawing his gun.

Fish Hook did not shoot, however: he found himself looking into and held by the eyes of a man who did not flinch when threatened by weapon.

"YOU COWARD!"

Fish Hook quailed and lowered his gun.

"You coward!" repeated Choate. "You draw a revolver on an unarmed man."

"I'll fight you fair," and Fish Hook threw away his gun and sprang forward to the attack as he spoke. He did not go far: he met a fist that sent him to the floor, where he lay in a dazed condition.

The minister looked about him, and it was evident from his manner that the fires of youth had burnt out the restraint of his calling; that he was mad through and through.

"You curs!" he said in measured tones of contempt. "I came here to do you good. I find you are not worth saving."

Choate strode to the door through a lane of men opened up to let him pass. None of them spoke or laid a hand upon him. They were decidedly sheepish, feeling the parson had the better of it.

The young man did not go far before he met Mrs. Dal and Jedge.

"Parson, the time's come fer you to pull your freight," urged Jedge. "The boys is drinkin' an' 'll soon be ugly."

"Yes, do," entreated Mrs. Dal."

The minister did as advised.

CHAPTER IX.

"It's from the little lady, an' she says she's comin' home to visit her daddies."

This startling announcement was made by Perfessor as he burst in upon his partners one evening. The "it" referred to was a letter he held aloft for them to see.

This happened but a few weeks after the departure of the parson and at a time when he had not ceased to be the principal subject of conversation at Paradise Lost. No one had a good word for him; but secretly each one admired him, but would not admit it through fear of being ridiculed. Indeed, Choate was being discussed when Perfessor announced the coming of the little lady.

"She'll be here in three days," continued Perfessor.

The others waited in silence.

"Goin' to stay a month"

Silence.

"Has a s'prise fer we all."

"Sends her—no, that ain't it; let me see—will bring her love to her thirteen daddies."

Perfessor's message was at an end; and with it ended all thought of the parson, obliterated from the minds of the thirteen by the overwhelming news that the little lady was soon coming home. A scene of ecstatic foolishness ensued, combined with equally foolish plans for her entertainment, the latter ranging from "busting" a corralful of bronchos to getting out her dolls. Thirteen men not unlike the coats they wore—rough without, but hiding warmth within! Thirteen men whose veins swelled with red blood and whose love for an outcast dominated their lives! Thirteen men any one of whom would have died in defense of the little lady and blessed her for the privilege! Mrs. Dal was right: "The boys are not bad—just gone wrong" Benisons on the love that survived years of separation and spanned a continent! Yes, blessings on the simplicity that could not discern any connection between the coming of the little lady and that of Choate.

Yes, the little lady was coming; but three long, long days had to pass before she came. The sun was provokingly slow in the morning: for hours the eastern horizon was lighted up and the birds heralded the approach of Old Sol, and then he poked a rim of red into view, moving with a deliberation that was perfectly tantalizing. Then he loafed on the job all day, going even more slowly when traveling downward toward the west than he did when making the forenoon ascent.

All things come to him (or them) who waits. The hack hove into sight down the valley at the end of the third day, and from it came a message to the thirteen, A female form leaned out a side window and a handkerchief fluttered in the air, and hats were waved in return—Love wig-wagging love to Love.

The hack drew up. One woman and the daddies pressed forward Mrs. Dal and the little lady were soon locked in each other's arms, exchanging endearments as only women do; but the men were suddenly overcome by inertia. They had sent away a snub-nosed, freckle-faced, gangling, hoydenish girl. In her stead, stood a radiantly beautiful woman. They remembered the girl, but were not prepared to meet the woman. When she turned from Mrs. Dal to them, they stood before her like so many bashful school boys. Then the little girl returned The woman laughed at them, but with the laugh of the little girl. The woman rallied them, but with the voice and motions of the little girl.

"Oh! you foolish daddies!"

She sprang forward to Deacon, who was nearest to her, threw her arms about him and gave him a resounding kiss.

The spell was broken: thirteen daddies crowded about Margaret in a state of ecstatic delight. She was hugged and kissed and laughed over and given a welcome wherein the pent up love of seven long years was given expression to in a few short minutes. Perfessor afterward described the scene: "We all shore played the game o' ediotiey to the limit an' never overbet our kyards." Deacon added: "Our pot o' jy biled over an' never put the fire out." The foolishness was not limited to the daddies. Such foolishness is infectious, to which the little lady and Mrs. Dal gave ample evidence, ending, womanlike, in a "real good cry" The men did not take part in the last. Oh, no! that would have been unmanly. But hands went to eyes and came away wet, after which each tried to hide his own weakness by glaring indignantly at the same weakness upon the part of the others.

The visit of the little lady was one unbroken season of pleasure to her daddies, all of whom engaged in a friendly rivalry to make her stay pleasant. She was their queen again; but a changed queen—affectionate, lovable, womanly. They loved her with all the intensity of their intense natures; and, with pardonable pride, they contrasted they fair creature with them to the forlorn waif they had taken pity on; while she, knowing the world, shuddered when she thought of what she might have become and could not express her gratitude in words.

Oh! the pleasure of those long autumn evenings, when the queen and her subjects with Mrs. Dal, sat about the stove in the one-room house and recalled old times, beginning at the little lady's first coming; when she, for their pleasure, related experiences of her life in the east; when they, in turn, told of the happenings of the past seven years. She enjoyed hearing these stories; but when the name of Parson Choate was mentioned, she became strangely silent. Her daddies wondered at this. Mrs. Dal did not.

When with her daddies on the range, the little lady of the past came back: she had not forgotten to ride, to shoot or to throw a rope, the first lessons they had taught her. This pleased them, and their pleasure would have been heightened had they known that she had practiced these accomplishments while away for no other purpose than to please them upon her return. She took part in out-door life with all the zest of her girlhood, and was happy with her daddies. Toward the end of her visit, a change came; she sat apart in silence or took long rides alone. Other times, she would take a daddy along; and, on these occasions, she had little to say. On the morning

(Continued on Page 5, Column 3)

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale: Jersey cow and two heifer calves. John Knight.

Found: Log chain, east of the Thomas White corners. Call on Geo. Swineford.

For Sale: Two fresh cows with calves, also two to be fresh soon. Inquire of R. U. Bowser, Spencerville, Ind. Phone 36-12

For Sale: Fresh cow and thoroughbred Holstein bull. T. A. Northrup, St. Joe.

Sheriff's Sale

DeKalb Mortgage Loan Company vs. Oliver Greenfield, Clara Greenfield and George F. Burgoyne.

No. 4,266.—In the DeKalb Circuit Court, State of Indiana.

By virtue of an order of sale, to me directed and delivered by the clerk of said court, in the above entitled cause, I have levied upon and will expose for sale by public auction at the court house door, in said county, between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock p. m., on the

31st Day of August, 1918

the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following described premises, viz:

A part of the west one half of the northwest quarter of Section thirty (30), in Township thirty-three (33) north, of Range fifteen (15) east, described as follows: Commencing at the northeast corner of the said west one-half and running thence west on the north line of said land thirty-two (32) rods; thence south parallel with the west line of said section to within sixty (60) rods of the center line of said section running east and west; thence east on a line parallel with the south line of said section thirty-two (32) rods to the east line of said land; thence on a straight line to place of beginning; containing twenty (20) acres of land more or less, all in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

And on failure to realize therefrom the full amount of the judgment, interest thereon and costs, I will at the same time, and in the manner aforesaid, offer for sale the fee simple of the above described premises. Taken as the property of the defendant to satisfy said order of sale.

FRANK BALTZ, Sheriff
DeKalb County.

C. M. BROWN, Attorney.

Aug 1-8-15

A Sluggish Liver Needs Attention

An Inactive Liver Affects the Kidneys and Deranges the Stomach and Bowels.

Too much stress can not be placed on the necessity of keeping the liver in good condition; upon it the health of the body largely depends. When the liver becomes sluggish, the kidneys are overworked, the digestive fluids are not properly secreted and a languid, bilious, nervous or sick headachy condition results. Poisonous matter accumulates within the body. Constipation, bloating, dizziness, belching, pain or soreness in the right side, impaired vision and, in fact, most diseases have their origin in an inactive liver. An inactive liver is easily corrected if taken in time, but the only way to doctor is to get at the cause. Glando Tonic is a liver remedy that has a splendid record for renewing activity, removing the poisons and building up the system. For bilious attacks, it can not be beaten. Mothers who are nursing a baby should take Glando Tonic to keep the bowels well regulated. This will keep baby's bowels in a good condition. Glando Tonic is a three-in-one treatment that brings results. A trial will convince the most skeptical. Testimonials will be furnished upon request. Glando Tonic is sold by druggists or may be obtained by sending 50c direct to the Grand-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

PUBLIC SALE!

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located south of the Baker Store at Concord,

—ON—

SATURDAY, AUG. 24.

at 2:00 P. M., the following:

Side board, Large range, Heating stove, White dresser, 3 tables, White bed, Stand, 12 Books, Show case, 4 Pictures, 2 Stands, Washer, 3 chairs, 1 Iron pot and many other small articles not mentioned.

Terms: CASH.

E. B. TAYLOR,
CONCORD.

J. L. RHODENBAUGH, Auctioneer.

AUGUST

L 90

0482

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 29 1918 NO. 35

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

France, July 9, 1918.

Dear Grandmother:—

Well, I will drop you a few lines to let you know that I am feeling fine, and hope these lines will find you the same.

The 14th M. G. Bn. is back again from the trenches, after making a good record.

We have a good place to stay and plenty to eat. The trip across the pond was not bad, only I fed the fish for a couple of days.

I am glad that I am in the army and think that if ever get back I will enlist again.

Well, I think I will see the U. S. A. again before long.

Well, that is all for this time. Write soon. James A. Gloy.

Somewhere in France, July 8.

Dear Parents:—

Well, I thought I had better drop you a few lines, as I am well and feeling fine, and hope this finds you both well. Do not worry about me, as I am all right.

This is a beautiful country, and the scenery is fine. Especially the cross-country places, farms and fields of grain look very nice.

Well, can you tell me where brother is located now. I never hear anything from him.

Hope to return home soon, and will have many things to tell you.

Love to all.

Pvt. Stanley F. Monroe.
Co. C, 113th Infantry, A. E. F.

France, July 14, 1918.

Dear Mother:—

Have arrived safely overseas and am feeling very good. I like it over here, or as much as I have seen, for they have the finest gardens and fields of grain I ever saw.

This place is a very old town and all the people are very poor. It is lots of fun trying to talk to them. There is an old lady that comes over to talk to one of the men in the company who can understand her, and she said that she has seven sons in the army.

We have plenty to eat and good warm clothes. So we haven't much to kick about.

There are some railroads in this country, and some of the cars only have a capacity of ten tons. So you know that they are not very large.

I do not think this war will last much longer. Well, mother, I have no news that I can write, so will say good night. With love.

Your Son,
Harry Shuff.
Co. L, 145th Inf., A. P. O. No. 763, A. E. F. No. 1,-519,638.

Ellis Iland, N. Y., Aug. 2.

Dear Parents:—

I will not get home this month unless something unforseen happens. I have been assigned to run the commissary store room on Island No. 2 for this month, but may get a trip west. Chances are slim, though. May get a furlough in September. However, everything is uncertain.

We are having much liberty now. Every other night, we can have an all-night pass: i. e., from 5 p. m. to 7 a. m.—or on any night from 5 p. m. till 12:30 a. m. The plain privates have to get permission every time they want off; but the privates (1st class), corporals and sergeants go when they are off duty any time. It really seems funny that we can not get furloughs. Yet we are shy of men, but so are other camps and they issue furloughs. Fact is, a furlough means a rest to me; but I am so accustomed to the work that I don't mind it much.

I have experienced much, and that is worth a whole lot.

But I feel at times that I want to leave for a week at home, regardless of a furlough. Of course, I would not do that. Many have, though, and their penalty was six weeks' restriction. But it might get worse.

I can smell those blue gills frying and can picture out the whole lake in my mind.

Tell father that I am going over to see the Cubs and Giants play ball today. About ten of us are going, including a captain and a lieutenant.

Hundreds of visitors are here every week, and it keeps the guards busy sorting out those who have no business here.

A new Y. M. C. A. has been built in City Hall park on the bungalow style, and is a very fine place.

The Vaterland has just come in, and that probably means more patients when she docks at Hoboken.

Yours as ever,
Paul E. Curie.

For Your
Fresh and
Salt Meats
Fish and Canned Goods
SEE
W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET

Ask concerning SPECIALS.

Make Your Hogs Laugh
By Feeding
PIONEER
Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market, as you may know by the following ingredients:

Wheat middlings, Corn feed meal, Linseed oil meal, Ground and bolted screenings from wheat, barley and kaffir and dried buttermilk

To Contain Not Less Than

3.0 % of Crude fat.
12.0 % crude protein, not more than
12.0 % crude fiber.

PRICE: $3.50 for 100 lbs.

We have Coal For Thrashing.

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.
Spencerville, Indiana

4 1/2 %
LIBERTY LOAN ANTICIPATION
U. S. Certificates of Indebtedness
Dated June 25, 1918—Due October 24, 1918.

The Banks of this country have been called upon by the Treasury Department of the U. S. Government to purchase Certificates of Indebtedness in anticipation of the Fourth Liberty Loan. This bank, believing it to be its patriotic duty to respond to this call, will take its full quota of these Certificates from time to time as the Treasury Department needs funds to finance the war.

To the people of this community, who have responed so loyally in purchasing past issues of Liberty Bonds and who expect to take bonds of the Fourth Loan, and to those who may desire a short-time Government investment, we recommend the purchase of these Certificates, which we will supply in denominations of $500, $1,000 and upwards without profit to this bank.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

The Odell Safety
Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

C. O. Johnson at St. Joe

Following is a list of appointments of ministers of interest to our readers made on Monday at the M. P. conference held at Elwood:

President.—W. W. Lineberry.
Mansur Park, Indianapolis.—J. C. McCaslin.
Villa Avenue, Indianapolis.—I. M. McVey.
Marietta.—J. C. Coons.
Hopewell.—Frank Lineberry.
Altona.—C. C. Farmer.
Harlan.—G. W. Carnes.
Kendallville.—John Elston.
New Haven.—S. Heininger.
St. Joe.—C. O. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson comes here from Dunkirk.

For Rent.--House and lot at Concord. Inquire of Mrs. John Funk. 29

Lead pencils, pens, ink, tablets, envelopes, mucilage and paste at the News office.

Miss Edna Jackson spent Thursday and Friday with Mrs. Leota Milliman, north of town.

Will the War End in 1918?

Under the heading "Something to Think About," the Harland Herald prints the following:

President Wilson born	1856
Was elected president	1912
Years ruling	6
Years old	62
Total	3836
King of Italy born	1867
Started to rule	1900
Years ruling	18
Years old	51
Total	3836

The Harlan paper gives figures to show that the same holds true with the king of England, President Poincare of France, the king Serbia, king of Belgium, emperor of Japan, kaiser, emperor of Austria and sultan of Turkey; that the date of the birth of each one plus the year he became ruler plus the years ruled plus his age equals 3836. These are all given in tabular form, like the two given above, and we give another one to illustrate more fully:

Kaiser born	1859
Started to rule	1888
Years ruling	30
Years old	59
Total	3836

The Herald article concludes as follows: "The total for each leader is 3836, which, divided by 2, gives 1918. Is this an indication that the war will close this year?"

The figures are mystefying at first, but the solution soon becomes apparent. Any man's age plus the year of his birth equals 1918, and the year of any ruler's accession to power plus years ruled equals another 1918; and twice 1918 is 3836.

Verily, verily, we believe the Herald man has been hoaxed.

The News will give some figures of its own:

Old Dog Tray born	1912
Began chasing cats	1913
Years chasing cats	5
Years old	6
Total	3836
Little Tommy Green born	1902
Threw Pussy in the well	1910
Drowning pussies since (years)	8
Years old	16
Total	3836
Tom Cat born	1915
Dodged first brick at night	1916
Years dodging bricks	2
Years old	3
Total	3836

Query: Will all cats be exterminated in 1918?

Harry Hilgeman Here

The News, in its account of the Red Cross sale last week, overlooked the fact that Harry Hilgeman, Democratic candidate for congressman, was here and made a brief speech in the afternoon immediately preceding the parade. We wish to assure Mr. Hilgeman and his friends that this was not done intentionally.

Red Cross Department

The Red Cross is no longer an experiment. In villages along the Somme, in Italian seaports, in ruined Serbian villages, in Belgian convent schools, in military hospitals, on English country sides, as it fights the battle of humanity, it is a far-flung nation animated by a universal spirit. The great underlying motive of the Red Cross in Europe is supplies. The miracles they work are of daily occurrence, and yet so varied and far-flung are the results they bring that it is hard to say: "Here the Red Cross achieved today."

The Belgian Red Cross, to which $175,000 has been contributed, is directly responsible for free military hospitals maintaining 4,000 beds. The American Red Cross will pay half the running expenses and the Belgian government will contribute the other half.

Almost everyone in Switzerland has felt an obligation toward the sick and suffering at their gates and has endeavored to fulfill it. It is only just that the American Red Cross should, in turn, come to their rescue; and $125,000 given as a beginning will be used for the Swiss people whom war has touched and for the relief of allied soldiers and civilians in transit from the central powers. Every month, a hundred tons of food is being delivered at a Mediterranean port for the invalided Italian and Serbian prisoners returned to Switzerland from Teutonic prison camps.

Aross the mountains in Italy, the first regiments of the American army are fulfilling the promise of assistance made by the Red Cross when first its ambulance sections rushed from Paris to Milan last fall and the commission to Italy made its appearance in Rome: "America will stand with Italy to the end."

In England, the strengthening of the Red Cross organization is proceeding swiftly, keeping pace with demands which grow day by day as more American troops are placed in English camps.

Meanwhile, in tnousands of work rooms in America, surgical dressings and other necessities are keeping more than 2,000,000 women busy. Their work and the supplies which start daily for Italy, France, England, Switzerland and Palestine form the backbone of the Red Cross.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	101	3.96
M. P.	90	4.74
Christian	38	1.41
M. E. Spencer	108	6.24
Lutheran	118	5.55
Concord	42
Newville U B.	74	2.72

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Highest price paid for cream at J. Beams' store.

Will Curie and wife and Miss Katherine Curie on Tuesday went to Lake Hamilton for a few days.

B. Widder and wife, of Des-Moines, Iowa, are visiting at the Jacob Sechler home, coming here on Saturday.

Select your hats early, make a small deposit and have one of the newest and cheapest of the season.
Warner's.

James Rhodenbaugh, wife and daughter, Irma, spent Sunday with Benowell Swartz and wife, of Leo. Miss Irma remained until Monday.

PROTECT
Your Grain

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Amid the din of all the drives, don't ignore the still, small voice telling you to save food.

Published by
U. S. Food Administration for Indiana

No Hard Coal For St. JOE, IND.

Lay In Your SOFT COAL
NOW!

We are soroy to announce that St. Joe was not included in the list of Indiana towns to receive hard coal this coming season.

We have a great many cars of Soft Coal Coming So Place Your Order NOW. We Cannot Promise That we will receive Shipment of All the Coal we have Bought, SO GET YOURS OFF THE NEXT CAR.

This is a Little Friendly Advise.
Remember Last Winter. Prepare NOW.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

AUGUST

L 90

0483

THE LAND ARMY OF AMERICA

(Women as Farm Hands)

By JESSE LYNCH WILLIAMS
Of The Vigilantes

"I had to hire them for my farm because I couldn't get men. . . . Neighboring farmers who borrowed some of them later hated to admit that they were more efficient than man workers, but had to!"

The farmer who wrote those words employed 25 girls last summer to get in his crops, some of them girls from the "seasonal trades" out of a job, others students or college graduates out for a vacation, but few, if any, of them experienced farm hands. He made two important discoveries. First, that they were good workers. Second, that this kind of work was good for women, and as this farmer is none other than Doctor Sargent, the director of physical training, he ought to know.

He adds that he did not have a chance to try them at plowing or heavy work, though they can do that too, but at other kinds of farm work he found them in all ways the equal and in some ways the superior of men. They do not average as strong as men, though in proportion to their weight they are, but they made up in care and thoroughness what they lacked in "heft," and they did not loaf on the job when the boss was not looking. Women are nearly always more conscientious than the "superior sex."

Has Come to Stay.

The Woman's Land Army of America is still a new thing in most parts of the country, but it has come to stay and the sooner the farmers of America get that idea through their heads and live down their old-fashioned prejudice against this "new-fangled notion" the better for them and for the country. Every man released from the farm means one more man for the army or for other war work not done by women.

A year ago almost every farmer in the country shared this impractical and unpatriotic prejudice. Such prejudices die hard. All our prejudices about women die hard. I will give an amusing illustration. Last summer a number of "units" were employed in various parts of Westchester county, New York. A "unit" means a squad of woman workers (a "gang," we might call it, if they were men) who live and work together under the charge of a competent older woman experienced in agriculture, a sort of forewoman who manages the whole outfit, which includes their own cook and food and bedding. The farmer does not supply anything except the wages and possibly a place to put up a few tents. The farmer's wife has no bother or extra work in the matter at all. Well, every one of these units in Westchester county made good, and there were exactly as many surprised farmers in Westchester county as there were units. At the end of the season each employer was asked: "Will you employ woman farm hands again next year?" Each farmer made exactly the same reply, "Yes, if I can get the same women."

Each thought that he had happened to have the luck to get the only good bunch of girls! Sly, shrewd fellows, those farmers! For it seemed to them quite obvious that women as a class could not be good farm laborers. A perfectly natural prejudice. Men as a class have always had the same certainty that women could never be good at anything "outside of the home" until they went out and made good at everything from voting and doctoring to driving ambulances, and even at fighting in the trenches when the necessity arose over in poor betrayed Russia.

Kept Island From Starving.

American farmers, however, are the most enlightened in the world. Perhaps it will not take them so long to get the idea into their heads as it required to beat it into the British brain. In England, even after the scarcity of farm labor had become more acute than it is here now, the "woman's land army" movement was almost blighted by masculine prejudice until the government became alarmed and turned a clever trick. Prizes were offered at the county fairs for public competitions for woman workers in various departments of farm work. This aroused considerable curiosity and created a great deal of discussion. The question, however, was not whether girls could do farm work, but which girl could do it best! Big crowds gathered. Bets were made. Rivalry ran high. And when it was demonstrated before the astonished eyes of the British farmers that these "farm lassies," as they now affectionately term their "farmerettes" over there, not only knew their job but were experts at it, the prejudice broke down and the country was saved. The woman's land army of England, now 300,000 strong, has kept the island from starving. This patriotic fact has been publicly acknowledged in parliament.

There are already 17 states of the Union organized under the Woman's Land Army of America, and in New York alone 3,000 farmerettes are registered for this season. It is a fine patriotic service, a good thing for the farmer who can thus get good sober, industrious laborers at a cheap rate, a good thing for the girls, who can thus get a wholesome outing as well as fair wages, and the best thing of all for the nation, which needs food and needs men, and needs them at once.

MEETING THE EMERGENCY

By VIVIAN M. MOSES
Of The Vigilantes

When H. G. Wells called the present war the war of machines he had in mind the vast quantities of engines of war used at the front—the ordnance, both large and small, the bomb-mortars and mine-throwers, gas-projectors, airplanes and tanks employed in the actual fighting. But there is another sense in which this is the war of machines even more truly than that in which the great British novelist used the term: for on the machines in the shops and factories of the allied nations depends an allied victory—on the machines and the men who drive them.

As has been the case with each of her allies, the United States since it entered the war has had to increase stupendously the output of its machine shops. This result is being accomplished by the erection of new plants, by the enlargement and increase in facilities of the shops already engaged in the production of war products, and by the conversion to this purpose of plants previously engaged in other work. The problem of multiplying the shops to work in is a comparatively simple one; more difficult is the problem of supplying the skilled workmen to fill these shops.

Obviously we cannot quadruple our skilled workmen by the old methods of apprenticeship and training fast enough to meet the nation's needs. The old method has been found wanting. It consisted in taking the raw, unskilled laborer into the shop, starting him at the simplest work that could be found, and letting him fight his way slowly and painfully to the status of a trained mechanic. It was a method which wasted the three precious elements, time, material and man-power.

New Way Was Found.

The training accomplished by private and public vocational and technical schools brings far better results, but produces too small a quantity of skilled mechanics to meet the emergency.

France found a new way. Great Britain has adopted it. And now America must get in line—is already getting in line, in fact, with gratifying results. For the new method is swift, is sure, is comparatively cheap. It turns the grocer boy or the school teacher into a skilled mechanic with equal facility. It is the method of the shop training school.

Shop training schools are now maintained by most of the larger metal-working plants engaged in manufacture of war products. They are spaces set aside for this purpose alone, and equipped with machines of every type used in the shops proper. An expert mechanic especially selected for his aptitude for this work is in charge in each of these shops, and under him other skilled mechanics act as teachers. Here are received the raw or undertrained applicants for work. They are assigned to the types of work to which they best seem fitted, and quickly and practically instructed in this work at the very machines which they will have to operate in the main shops. They work with the materials and on the actual orders upon which the shop is engaged and the product of their labors becomes a part of the output of the shop. They are paid a fair hourly wage as learners, and this wage increases as the skill of the learner enables him to increase his output.

The results obtained in these shop training schools are almost beyond belief. The ideal conditions under which a raw man is taught to handle his machine enable him to become a skilled mechanic in a small fraction of the time formerly consumed in the old method under which he picked up knowledge bit by bit in the shop from such other workmen as had time to help him.

Mechanics Are Needed.

For example, here, in a New England shop, is a grocer's man, after a week's training, operating his milling machine effectively, and reading the blue-print related to his work. Here, in an Ohio shop, are three girls formerly employed in a department store; they are now operating heavy hand-turret lathes on work requiring great precision; and the length of their training required variously from three to ten days.

"Here is a particularly capable woman," says an expert from one of the greatest American war factories, visiting another shop (speaking of one who was probably a teacher). "How long have you been here?" he asks this product of the shop training school. "I came yesterday," replies the woman, who is working a great turret-lathe.

America needs skilled mechanics, and needs them greatly. The shop training schools will supply this need, quickly and efficiently. To the employer they offer the surest method of supplying the trained operators without which his machines cannot turn. To the individual seeking employment or willing to take a place in the swelling ranks of those providing the sinews of war for the American government, the shop training schools provide the opportunity for becoming, without undergoing a long period of training or probation, skilled mechanics, worthy of and receiving the wondrously high rates of payment which trained labor is commanding.

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

WAR GARDENS MORE PRODUCTIVE

Hoes and Rakes at Work Producing War Food in a Well-Kept City School Garden.

FOOD SUPPLY IS MUCH INCREASED

Spread of War Garden Movement Is Reported From Every Section of Country.

ADDS MUCH TO POCKETBOOK

Examples of Progress of Home, Children's and Community Gardens Indicate They Have Come to Stay —Some of the Advantages.

War gardens as a whole, including home, children's and community gardens, are more numerous and far more productive this year than last, according to the department of agriculture. This is the consensus of opinion of those who have been working on the garden problem, and is based on specific reports of the department's agents, and upon the observations of its specialists throughout the country.

While it is reported that seedsmen sold less seed to home gardeners this year than they did last, this does not mean that there are less gardens or smaller plantings. Amateurs learned last year that they bought too much seed. Some of this seed was undoubtedly kept over, and many gardeners saved seed from last year's crop for planting this season. A few gardeners going to work in 1917 with more enthusiasm than experience decided not to plant this year, but a great many more who did not make gardens last year made them this season.

Estimates Not Reliable.

Estimates of the number of gardens vary, and there are no figures other than conjectures. Department garden specialists say that an estimate of 10,000,000 home gardens is conservative, but admit that this figure represents only a good guess.

Specific examples show how the garden movement has grown. Before the war, according to the garden leader of the District of Columbia, there were not more than 5,000 gardens in the federal district which contains the capital of the country. Now there are 28,000, including school gardens, with a marked increase in 1918 over 1917. Chicago has 483,000 gardens, 140,000 of which are home gardens, 90,000 children's gardens and 238,000 community gardens. Oklahoma City had more than 18,000 gardens last year.

Gardens on Farms.

It must not be supposed, either, that city man and suburbanite constituted the only classes that needed admonition to start gardens, and the only ones that heeded the admonition. The county agent of Oswego county, New York, maintains that the majority of farmers in his county have not had gardens and that much of the effort toward more and better home gardens should be expended on the farmer rather than on the city man.

In the South last year more than 315,000 new gardens were started through the efforts of farm demonstration agents, and this figure takes no account of many gardens established as an indirect result of the work of the department of agriculture. Of even greater significance has been the great amount of gardening done through the co-operation of industrial enterprises. Many of the great lumber mills and cotton mills of the South have encouraged their employees to have home gardens even to the extent of furnishing the ground and the plowing, and allowing time off with pay for the planting, cultivation and harvesting of the crops. In Bibb county, Alabama, mine companies furnished land, seed and fertilizers. In Calhoun county, the same state, home gardeners co-operated with the military authorities at Camp McClellan, Anniston, in growing food for the camp mess. The city of Mobile has 4,000 war gardens. On many railroads, particularly in the South, the unused portion of the right of way has been given up to gardens made productive by section hands and construction gangs. There has been a decided movement for fall gardens and even for year-round gardens where there is a long growing season and the "fall food acre" of the South has been a direct result of the government's campaign for more home-food production.

Gardening Come to Stay.

These facts are significant as showing a tendency, and are an index of activities in every state of the Union. The most hopeful aspect of the gardening situation, according to the department officials who are willing to venture an opinion, is the unanimity of their belief that the home and community garden has come to stay, and that those who have undertaken the work as a wartime measure will continue it after victory has been won.

Their opinion is based, they say, upon the advantages which gardeners have found: cheaper vegetables, better quality and greater freshness, zest and healthfulness in gardening as recreative occupation, and the growth of community spirit and action through a common ground of interest.

HOARD

Plenty of home-canned fruits and vegetables.

All garden products dried that can't be canned.

Sugarless homemade fruit juices and sirups.

Your garden root crop in proper storage.

Be a patriotic hoarder.

Better Marketing.

Last year the production of perishables is estimated to have been 50 per cent greater than normal. Notwithstanding the large output, the marketing difficulties were relatively less than in former years because of the effective efforts of the people throughout the country, assisted by federal and state agencies, to conserve these products for future use by canning, preserving, pickling and drying. The department is again actively assisting in the conservation of perishables, as it did last summer, and is able to render more effective assistance with its largely increased staff. More effective assistance also is being rendered in the marketing of perishable products through the greatly extended daily market news service of the bureau of markets and the weekly reports of truck crop production prepared by the bureau of crop estimates.

Potatoes.

The normal acreage of Irish and sweet potatoes should be maintained in 1918, notwithstanding the large crops of 1917.

This is especially true in view of the necessity of releasing more wheat for export. Potatoes, both Irish and sweet, are the most popular and most generally used of the perishable staple crops. The department, through its extension and publication activities, is encouraging their greater use, especially the use of the Irish potato as a partial substitute for wheat in bread making.

The yield per acre can be made more certain by greater attention to the selection of disease-free potatoes of good varieties, by treatment of seed potatoes immediately before planting, and by the use of sprays to prevent loss from blight.

Those who are to fill the silos this year for the first time should exercise care in determining the ripeness of the crop to be cut for silage.

RISES IN DEFENSE OF DOG

Toronto Newspaper Man Vigorously Condemns Silly Proposal That They Be Killed Off in Wartime.

A wrathful correspondent of the Mail and Empire suggests that dogs ought to be killed off in wartime or else such a stiff tax imposed upon their owners as greatly to reduce the dog population. Similar views have been expressed since the war in England. Only the other day Lord Claud Hamilton said that pet dogs are a nuisance and that if he had his way he would "slaughter all the Pekingese dogs in the country and have them made into meat pies." Not long ago Punch presented a picture of a tough-looking citizen grooming an equally tough-looking bull terrier, while a curate addressed him as follows: "Don't you think, my good man, that in wartime you would be better employed in keeping a useful animal, a pig, for instance?" "Yus," growled the dog fancier, "and a nice fool I'd look goin' rattin' with a pig." Proposals to destroy dogs are founded rather on personal prejudice or ignorance than on a consideration of the advantage to be gained by their extermination. The assertion that they consume much food that might better be converted to human use is not justified. As a rule dogs live on table scraps and odds and ends of food which would otherwise be wasted. As for the Hamilton suggestion about making Pekes into meat pies, it is probable that all the Pekes in the British isles would not provide a single enjoyable meal for one battalion.

It is true that dogs frequently kill sheep, but they also kill cats and rats and thus help to square the account. In thousands of farmhouses they constitute an invaluable guard for the women folk. They even do such chores as driving up the cows, churning the milk, fetching and carrying and performing other services that make amends for the undeniable fact that they get their hair on the furniture and come into the kitchen with muddy paws. At the front they are doing war work of undeniable value. In Belgium they are beasts of burden. They carry messages from the trenches to headquarters in the rear. They guard against enemy raids; they locate the wounded lying in No Man's Land, and are a real pal to many thousands of homesick soldiers. A proposal to abolish dogs is about as sensible as a proposal to abolish nephews, and has about as much chance of succeeding.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Zeppelin Limitations.

Basing his statements on accurate measurements of a Zeppelin that was brought down in England last October, on known facts regarding the lifting power of hydrogen gas, on the state of the barometer during the flight, on the temperature of the air recorded in the airship's log, Jhadoo Jahoz writes in Aeronautics as follows:

"It would appear from the foregoing that the latest type of Zeppelin is designed to attain a height of 17,000 to 18,000 feet when over its objective and after dropping its bombs, but is capable of going even higher under stress of circumstances and at the risk of suffering some slight damage on returning to its base.

"These conclusions accord well with Mr. Warner Allen's statements that these airships are built with a view to flying between 16,000 and 18,000 feet. Of course, on a short flight they could go higher, in view of the reduced quantity of petrol to be carried."

Western Soldiers Rugged.

The "early to bed and early to rise" slogan is noticeable on the faces of the boys in khaki who are arriving here from the West and other parts of the country. These youths are certainly typical of the real American. Health, brawn and muscle are their principal characteristics and with all this there is a certain amount of chivalry that is not seen in New York. The average New Yorker is a pale individual. Indoor work, of course, is responsible for this and he always is in such a hurry that he thinks of no one but himself. Some of the New York youths marvel at the appearance of these visitors from the West. They cannot understand why they should be so ruddy. The explanation is easy. It is because they spend more time in the open. Nevertheless the appearance of the boys from other parts of the country is causing 17 kinds of jealousy.—New York Times.

Non-Inflammable Celluloid.

The usefulness of celluloid as a substitute for various materials is lessened by its extreme inflammability. Considerable interest has, therefore, been aroused by the invention by a professor in a Japanese university of a non-combustible, or at any rate slow-burning celluloid. While not exactly fireproof this substance requires a great deal of heat to kindle it, and burns very slowly.

The new material is made from the soy bean, which the Japanese have found so widely useful, and it is said, includes the use of formalin to produce a durable, hornlike substance. It is claimed that the Japanese product will be cheaper as well as much preferable to the combustible celluloid to which we are accustomed.

A Grand Passion.

"She seems interested in that aviator."

"That is hardly the word for it."

"No?"

"She says she loves the very air he flies through."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Came to this Woman after Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore Her Health

Ellensburg, Wash.—"After I was married I was not well for a long time and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest desire was to have a child in our home and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. It brought relief from my troubles. I improved in health so I could do my housework; we now have a little one, all of which I owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. O. S. JOHNSON, R. No. 3, Ellensburg, Wash.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years experience is at your service.

Clear Your Skin While You Sleep with Cuticura

All druggists: Soap 25, Ointment 25 & 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

Hay Fever-Catarrh
Prompt Relief Guaranteed
SCHIFFMANN'S CATARRH BALM
ASK YOUR DEALER

PUT IT SQUARELY UP TO DAD

Young Son of Famous Member of "Vigilantes" Frankly Considered His Father a Slacker.

Ellis Parker Butler, the author, who lives at Flushing, and is devoting his energy to aiding in the successful prosecution of the war, does not bear an enviable reputation for patriotism in his own household. Mr. Butler has been writing for the Thrift and War stamps campaign.

Mr. Butler is the father of twin sons of tender age. Several nights ago he returned home tired after a day's work for the Red Cross and took his seat at the head of the table. After they had finished their dinner, the twins produced their Thrift stamps and started to count them.

"Dad, look at all the stamps I have," said one of the youngsters. "I have 200. Look at brother's pile; he has more than I."

Mr. Butler nodded approvingly to Mrs. Butler and they both smiled. There was silence for a minute, then one of the twins looked up and exclaimed: "Dad, why don't you do something patriotic?"

He Could, All Right.

"The sounds of battle are something terrifying," roared the lecturer. "Can you imagine the screaming of the shells, the roaring of the cannons, the yells of the men, the rattle of the rifles and machine guns?"

"Yes, sir, I think I can," said the meek little man in the front row, who thought the question was meant for him. "We got three singers, two trombone players, eight pianos, fourteen talking machines, a violinist and a cornetist in our block, all trying to get back in practice."

Oh, Well!

"Do you raise flowers, Mrs. Subb Urbs?" asked Mrs. Sitty-Folks. "No, we merely plant 'em. The chickens raise 'em."

The Wear and Tear on that boy of yours during the active years of childhood and youth necessitates a real building food.

Grape-Nuts

supplies the essentials for vigorous minds and bodies at any age.

"There's a Reason"

AUGUST

L 90

0484

Packers' Profits Are Regulated

The public should understand that the profits of the packers have been limited by the Food Administration since November 1, 1917. For this purpose, the business of Swift & Company is now divided into three classes:

Class 1 includes such products as beef, pork, mutton, oleomargarine and others that are essentially animal products. Profits are limited to 9 per cent of the capital employed in these departments, (including surplus and borrowed money), or not to exceed two and a half cents on each dollar of sales.

Class 2 includes the soap, glue, fertilizer, and other departments more or less associated with the meat business. Many of these departments are in competition with outside businesses whose profits are not limited. Profits in this class are restricted to 15 per cent of the capital employed.

Class 3 includes outside investments, such as those in stock yards, and the operation of packing plants in foreign countries. Profits in this class are not limited.

Total profits for all departments together in 1918 will probably be between three and four per cent on an increased volume of sales.

The restrictions absolutely guarantee a reasonable relation between live stock prices and wholesale meat prices, because the packer's profit cannot possibly average more than a fraction of a cent per pound of product.

Since the profits on meat (Class 1) are running only about 2 cents on each dollar of sales, we have to depend on the profits from soap, glue, fertilizer (Class 2, also limited) and other departments, (Class 3) to obtain reasonable earnings on capital.

Swift & Company is conducting its business so as to come within these limitations.

Swift & Company, U. S A.

An honest man never has to sit up nights wondering how much his neighbors know about him.

United States in 1917 consumed 33,000,000,000 cigarettes.

There's Magic, in

Red Cross Ball Blue

A hundred years ago, the magic, dazzling whiteness it gives to the coarsest as well as most delicate fabrics would have caused its user to be hailed as a witch. To-day she is the envy of her neighbors, at much less labor to herself. Makes clothes beautiful.

Buy it—try it—and you'll stick to it.

At all good grocers

5 Cents Almost Free!

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG.U.S.PAT.OFF.

Will reduce Inflamed, Strained, Swollen Tendons, Ligaments, or Muscles. Stops the lameness and pain from a Splint, Side Bone or Bone Spavin. No blister, no hair gone and horse can be used. $2.50 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Describe your case for special instructions and interesting horse Book 2 R Free. ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Strained, Torn Ligaments, Swollen Glands, Veins or Muscles; Heals Cuts, Sores, Ulcers. Allays pain. Price $1.25 a bottle at dealers or delivered. Book "Evidence" free. W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple Street, Springfield, Mass.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

VERMIN ATTRACTED BY FOOD

If No Scraps Are Around There Will Be Little Trouble With Ants or Roaches.

The surest way to keep a house free from ants is to leave no food lying about on shelves or in open places, where they can reach it. Ants go where they find food, and if the food supplies of the household are kept in ant-proof metal containers or in ice boxes, and if all foods that may happen to be scattered by children or others is cleaned up promptly, the ant nuisance will be slight. Cake, bread, sugar, meat, and like substances, are especially attractive to the ants, and should be kept from them.

Roaches will not frequent rooms unless they find some available food material, and if such materials can be kept from living room and offices or scrupulous care exercised to see that no such material is placed in drawers where it can leave an attractive odor or fragments of food, the roach nuisance can be largely restricted to places where food necessarily must be kept.

Three Million Spangles in Flag.

A flag of extraordinary beauty, composed entirely of spangles, was recently displayed in a Chicago store window. The brilliant emblem, flashing back the light from innumerable points, extended almost the full width of the panel at the back of the display area. Three and one-half million of the tiny metal disks, strung on threads, were used in fashioning this flag.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Used to It.

"Here's that returned soldier boasting about how he was gassed in the trenches, and it never hurt him."

"How could it? He was a book agent for ten years."

Reading, Pa., posts a night guard around its city hall to prevent visits of supposed German spies.

When Your Eyes Need Care Try Murine Eye Remedy
No Smarting — Just Eye Comfort. 60 cents at Druggists or mail. Write for Free Eye Book.
MURINE EYE REMEDY CO., CHICAGO

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 1

SOME LAWS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

LESSON TEXTS—Luke 6:30-38; 21:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.

DEVOTIONAL READING—II Corinthians 9:6-15.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Luke 16:9; Romans 12:3; II Corinthians 9:6-15; Hebrews 13:16; Ezra 1:2-4; I Chronicles 29:1-5.

The principles of ethics which shall prevail in the earth when Jesus Christ shall be king are entirely different from those of the world. The worldly spirit always inquires as to what gain will accrue from an action or service. Its policy is doing good for the sake of getting good. Those who have been made partakers of the divine nature, who are really subjects of the kingdom, do good because they have the nature and spirit of God, not because they expect something in return.

I. Give to Every Man That Asketh of Thee (v. 30).

This does not mean that any request that may be made by the idle, greedy and selfish should be granted. Only evil would result from such indiscriminate and unregulated giving. Such benevolence would foster idleness and selfishness. Oftentimes the worst thing you can do for a man is to give him money. The drunkard will only spend it for more drink; the gambler will continue his dissipation. The meaning then is, give to the one asking the thing which he needs. The man in poverty needs to be given a way to earn his living, rather than to be given money without the necessity of labor. There is that in the human heart which refuses charity, and cries out for a means to honestly gain a livelihood.

II. Of Him That Taketh Away Thy Goods, Ask Them Not Again (v. 30).

"Ask" here means demand. It doubtless forbids the forcible demanding of the return of that which has been taken from one.

III. Do to Other Men as You Would That They Should Do Unto You (vv. 31-34).

This ethic puts life's activities on the highest possible ground. He does not say, refrain from doing that which you would not like to be done to you, as even Confucius taught; but to positively make the rule of your life the doing to others as you would wish them to do unto you. Loving those who love us, doing good to those who do good to us, and lending to those from whom we hope to receive, is just what all the sinners of the world are doing. The child of the kingdom of Christ is to be different.

IV. Love Your Enemies (v. 35).

That which is natural to the human heart is to hate the enemy. To love in the real sense means to sincerely desire the good of even one's enemy and willingness to do anything possible to bring that good. Such action is only possible to those who have been born again. Christ loved those who hated him. He was willing even to die for his enemies.

V. Lend, Hoping for Nothing Again (v. 35).

This is what the Heavenly Father is constantly doing. He is kind and gracious unto the unthankful and the wicked. He sends his rain and sunshine upon the unjust and sinners. He makes fruitful the toil of those who blaspheme his name. He thus does because it is his nature to so do.

VI. Be Merciful (v. 36).

The example for the imitation of the disciple is the Heavenly Father.

VII. Judge Not (v. 37).

To judge does not mean the placing of just estimates upon men's actions and lives, for, "By their fruits ye shall know them." The tree is judged by the fruit it bears. The thorn tree does not bear figs, nor the apple tree bear grapes. Our only way of discerning the character of men and women is their actions. That which is condemned is censorious judgment—the impugning of motives.

VIII. Condemn Not (v. 37).

This means that we should not pass sentence upon men for their acts, for to their own master they stand or fall (Rom. 14:4). The real reason why such action is not warranted is that the bias of our hearts and the limitation of our judgments render it impossible to righteously and intelligently pass judgment.

IX. Forgive (v. 37.)

Those who forgive shall be forgiven. The one who has realized the forgiving mercy of God will be gracious and forgiving toward others.

XI. Liberality Determined by What Is Left (Luke 21:1-4).

The rich cast into the treasury much, but it was from their abundance. The poor widow cast in all that she had; there was nothing left. God estimates a gift by what one has left, not by the size of the gift. To give the widow's mite is to give all. For the millionaire to give the widow's mite would mean for him to give his millions.

Genius and Taste.

To say nothing of its holiness or authority the Bible contains more specimens of genius and taste than any other volume in existence.—Landor.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try It! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

SHE GOT COMPOSERS MIXED

Queen Victoria's Error Must Have Caused Mascagni to Pass an Uncomfortable Few Minutes.

Sometimes when a great personage essays musical criticism embarrassing errors arise. Once Queen Victoria invited Mascigni, the composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana," to play for her at Windsor castle. When the musician was at the piano her majesty said:

"I am passionately fond of one of the numbers of your opera."

Mascagni played the Intermezzo.

"No," said the gueen, "that is not the melody I mean."

Mascagni played the Prelude.

"That's not it, either."

Mascagni played the dramatic Duet.

The queen became almost impatient. "I'll help you to remember it," she said, and hummed a few measures.

With increasing consternation Mascagni listened as the queen sang the Prologue to Leoncavallo's I Pagliacci!

Le Gaulois, in telling the story, does not say whether the musician informed the queen that she had made a mistake.—Youth's Companion.

Joy for Archeologists.

I was at Carchemish on the day the greatest Hittite find ever unearthed was revealed to the eye of man for the first time in three thousand years.

When the enthusiastic laborers had carefully uncovered the precious dolerite slab, and the overseer, bending over it like some near-sighted Silas Marner caressing his gold, had discovered that it bore the longest Hittite inscription ever found, ten shots from a big Colt revolver, fired as a backsheesh to the stone, echoed and re-echoed across the Euphrates, and workmen and directors knew that a big find had been made.

Pandemonium was let loose.. Laborers came running from all directions to share in the joy of discovery. I also shared in that joy. I shouted congratulations to Khalil, the giant pickman.

"Praise be to God!" I cried. He grinned so I could see all his teeth, and answered, "God's blessing return to you!"—Christian Herald.

More Milk at Less Cost.

If dairying is to provide either pleasure, or profit, United States department of agriculture specialists point out, the unprofitable cow must be disposed of. The well-bred high producer that takes her place must be properly and economically fed and cared for. Cow testing associations have demonstrated that the feed of the dairy herd can be selected and balanced in such a way as to decrease feed costs one-third and at the same time increase milk production.

Danger.

"Your majesty, the enemy is pursuing our gallant forces relentlessly."

"How close are they to our splendid troops?"

"Very close, your majesty, very close. They are in actual contact with our rear guards, and within three weeks of catching up to the place where the crown prince is."

No Older Than Your Face.

Is true in most cases. Then keep your face fair and young with Cuticura Soap and touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." Sold by druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Even With Ludendorff's Help.

The old woman who lived in a shoe boasted: "Yet the crown prince couldn't live in a pocket," she cried.

A Bright Pupil.

Teacher—Into what two great classes is the human race divided?

Pupil—Motorists and pedestrians.

Limit in Snobbery.

"Those society leaders who go about administering snubs and insults," the late Barton Willing once said at the Philadelphia club, "remind me of Greens.

"Greens ran a little grocery in South Eleventh street. He was tremendously proud of it, though it was in reality a wretched hole. He used to stride up and down in front of it all day with his nose in the air and his chest puffed out.

"An humble hodcarrier passing Greens one morning said affably:

"How are you, Mr. Greens? It looks as if we'd have some rain, don't it?"

"'We'd?' snorted Greens. 'We'd?' Since when, young man, have you and I been partners?'"

Philadelphia is to have a hospital for wounded negro soldiers.

Fewer German Socialists.

The membership of the socialist party in Saxony has decreased from 177,000 in 1914 to 23,000 paying members at present, according to a recent Dresden dispatch to the Berliner Tageblatt. The decrease was due to the number of socialists serving in the army and the split in the socialist party of Germany. Deputy Gradnauer, speaking at the convention of Saxon socialists, said that the circulation of socialist newspapers in Germany had increased from 618,000 copies on April 1, 1917, to 792,000 on April 1, 1918.

A Letter's Difference.

"Bliggins doesn't seem to care for work." "No. He prefers a rustful life. Not restful. Rustful."

St. Louis, Mo., is to be wholly without hard coal next winter.

A Message to Mothers

YOU know the real human doctors right around in your neighborhood: the doctors made of flesh and blood just like you: the doctors with souls and hearts: those men who are responding to your call in the dead of night as readily as in the broad daylight; they are ready to tell you the good that Fletcher's Castoria has done, is doing and will do, from their experience and their love for children.

Fletcher's Castoria is nothing new. We are not asking you to try an experiment. We just want to impress upon you the importance of buying Fletcher's.

Your physician will tell you this, as he knows there are a number of imitations on the market, and he is particularly interested in the welfare of your baby.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Not Rafferty's Feet.

At a parade of a company of newly called up men, the drill instructor's face turned scarlet with rage as he berated a new recruit for his awkwardness.

"Now, Rafferty," he roared, "you'll spoil the line with those feet. Draw them back at once, man, and get them in line."

Rafferty's dignity was hurt.

"Plaze, sargint," he said, "they're not mine; they're Micky Doolan's in the rear rank!"

A Dreadful Possibility.

He—The government is warning people to be economical with paper.

She—Oh, Harold, do you think they will make us cut out our love letters?

Illinois last year reported 22,241 fires with insurance of $6,747,267.

New York has registered 279,566 women voters.

Influences on Temperament.

"You don't write any more delicate and soulful poetry."

"No," answered Mr. Penwiggle. "By the time a man has gotten a fountain pen and a typewriter tuned up for a day's work he's in no mood for delicate and soulful stuff."

Stick Is Right.

You've noticed no doubt, during the last day or two that people have an unusual tendency to stick around.

We'll say this for money. It's the only thing that will make some fellows work.

ASTHMADOR
AVERTS • RELIEVES
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
Begin Treatment NOW
All Druggists Guarantee

HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES IF YOUR BACK ACHES

Do you feel tired and "worn-out?" Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged out," unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys, and the little poisonous animal germs, which are causing the inflammation, are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

Don't ignore the "little pains and aches," especially backaches. They may be little now but there is no telling how soon a dangerous or fatal disease of which they are the forerunners may show itself. Go after the cause of that backache at once, or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition, and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, and thus be sure of getting the genuine.—Adv.

Canada made me Prosperous

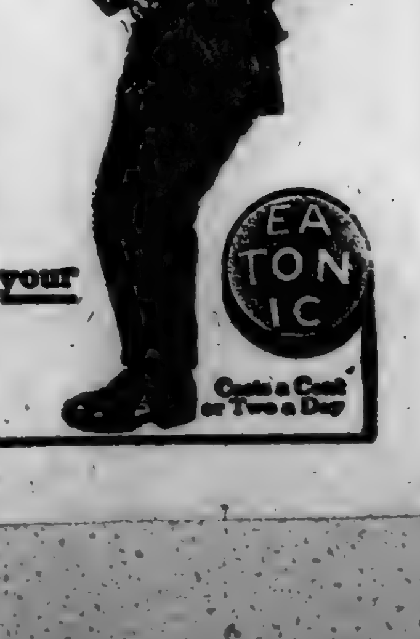
—that's what thousands of farmers say, who have gone from the U. S. to settle on homesteads or buy land in Western Canada. Canada's invitation to every industrious worker to settle in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta is especially attractive. She wants farmers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves by helping her raise immense wheat crops to feed the world.

You Can Get a Homestead of 160 Acres Free

or other lands at very low prices. Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $30 per acre that will raise 20 to 45 bushels of $2 wheat to the acre—it's easy to become prosperous. Canadian farmers also grow wonderful crops of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed Farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses, full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools and churches; markets convenient; climate excellent. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE



Are You Bloated After Eating

With that gassy, puffy feeling, and hurting near your heart? For Quick Relief—Take ONE

EATONIC

FOR YOUR STOMACH'S SAKE

You can fairly feel it work. It drives the GAS out of your body and the Bloat goes with it.

Removes Quickly—Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, etc.

Get EATONIC from your Druggist with the DOUBLE GUARANTEE

Send for the "Help" Book. Address Eatonic Remedy Co., [illegible] So. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Costs a Cent or Two a Day

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS

THIS is just what you need, madam. Many women who were troubled with indigestion, a sallow, muddy skin, indicating biliousness and habitual constipation, have been permanently cured by the use of Chamberlain's Tablets. Before using these tablets they felt miserable and despondent. Now they are cheerful and happy and relish their meals. Try them. They only cost a quarter.

Chamberlain's Tablets

HERE AND THERE

Patronize the advertisers.

Miss Zella Rush, of Denver, Col., is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Florence Buchanan.

Dan Myers and wife, of Ligonier, were Friday and Saturday guests of St. Joe relatives.

Francis Skilling, of Baltimore, is here visiting his grandparents, C. C. Curie and wife.

Mrs. Nan Lysher and son, Edgar, were Sunday guests of George Mann and wife, east of Spencerville.

Mrs. Helen Hull, of Wellington, Kan., and Mrs. Bessie Tustison were over-night guests of Fred Thornton and wife, Sunday.

S. A. Mumaw and wife, Mrs. Agnes Monroe and Miss Lela Wallace spent Sunday with C. T. Bayman and family, of New Haven.

Miss Inez Hart, of Hicksville, and Miss Imo Lancaster, of Angola, spent Sunday with the former's parents, Frank Hart and wife.

There is a scarcity of black velvet hats and the first display will be the best. Buy early. Mrs. Warner.

Will Beam and family, of near Edgerton, John C. Hart and family and John C. Hart and family were Sunday guests of Sam Kees and wife.

Clay Coburn, wife and children were Sunday dinner guests of Will Koch and wife. Mrs. Sam Keesler and daughters were afternoon guests.

Daniel Oberholtzer, of Coburntown, has purchased the W. A. G. Smith property, recently vacated by Durwood Ridgway, and will move to town from the farm.

S. E. Warner and wife on Tuesday evening entertained the following company at supper: Mrs. William Booth, of Pierceton; H. C. Hathaway, wife and son, Russell.

Millinery display at Mrs. Warner's, Aug. 30-31.

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

FOUND—In St. Joe on Friday, a girl's coat. Owner can get same at the NEWS office.

Mrs. Velma Kerchaert, of Mishawaka, came last week for a visit with Miss Olive Ridgway.

Miss Dorothy Bowman spent from Saturday until Monday with Miss Verda Steffen, of Garrett.

Mrs. Bessie Tustison went to Defiance on Thursday morning, visiting Lee O. Tustison and wife until Sunday.

Mrs. Emma Abel went on Saturday to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Woodcox, near Auburn, to visit a few days.

Harry Henderson, wife and two sons, of Walkerville, Mich., came on Thursday to visit C. C. Curie and wife and other relatives.

Wes. Hathaway, of South Bend, spent Saturday and Sunday at the Frank Hart home. His wife and children returned home with him, after spending several weeks here with her parents.

Mrs. Anna Moss, of Neva, Ohio, spent from Tuesday until Saturday with her sister, Mrs. John Hart, and family. Miss Arline Hart returned home with her aunt to spend the winter.

Bigelow Ramp, wife and daughters, Treva and Flossie, of Columbia City, Mrs. Iza Tyler and daughter, Dorine, of Ligonier, and Harry Randall, of Edgerton, were Sunday dinner guests of William Randall and wife.

J. P. Buckingham and wife entertained the following guests on Sunday: C. A. Patterson and wife, of Fort Wayne; Mrs Helen Hull, of Wellington, Kan.; Mrs. Bessie Tustison. Mr. Patterson returned to his work in Fort Wayne on Monday morning, while his wife and daughter remained for a longer visit with relatives.

EVERY THING THAT MEN WEAR

Clothing Furnishings and Shoes.

You Will Find that OUR Merchandise and Prices are RIGHT.

When In BUTLER Make Our Store YOUR Headquarters.

WM. KNISELY & SON.

U-boats and wastefulness are twin enemils.

See those fans for girls at Warner's, Aug. 30-31.

Grover Curie made a business trip to Hudson on Wednesday.

Frank Terman and wife spent Sunday at Butler, the guests of Henry Shaffer and wife.

Abner Copp and wife and B. V. Widney and wife spent Sunday at Fndfield park, Hamilton lake.

Clarence Garton and wife and Merl Ivans and family, all of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday at the H. S. Garton home.

A. D. Brunson and wife and S. N. Brunson and family, of near Butler, were Sunday afternoon guests of C. C. Bassett and family.

Pictorial Review, McCall's, Ladies' Home Journal and Good Housekeeping Magazine—all the August issues—now on sale at the NEWS office.

Abe Mason and wife, of Auburn, Mrs. Velma Kerchaert, of Mishawaka, Misses Pauline Barney and Olive Ridgway and Darwin Fry spent Sunday at Robison park.

The thirty-ninth annual reunion of the 44th regiment, Indiana volunteers, will be held at Auburn on next Friday. An interesting program has been arranged for the occasion.

Iona Woodcox, wife and daughter, Beatrice, of east of town, and Miss Lucile Woodcox, of Columbus, Ohio, who is their guest for a few days, spent Sunday with John Brown and family, east of Auburn.

Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, of this place, Charles Thayer, Jr., and wife, of Fort Wayne, and C W. Jackson, wife and daughter, Miss Birdena, of near Hicksville, spent Thursday at Rome City.

Howard Gee and wife and little daughter, Lucile, of Columbia City, Mrs. Milo Provines and little daughter, Lorine, of near Concord, and Foster Gee and family were Sunday dinner guests of S. D. Gee and wife.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.

Concord–Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
L. W. Spayd, Pastor.
St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.
The pastor will serve with the church n St. Joe, next Sunday.

Lutheran Church Announcements
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:–Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 8:00 p. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

Think not of the sugar you save, but of the good you do in saving.

The schools of Spencer township have not all been supplied with teachers, due to scarcity.

Mrs. Ezra Circle and daughter, of Springfield, Ohio, are here, the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Hannah Ulm, for a few days.

A. D. Perry and wife, J. C. Hull and wife and C. H. Sailer, wife and daughter, Luzerne, were Kendallville visitors on Thursday.

Mrs Grace Dilley, of Ft. Wayne, returned home on Wednesday evening, after a few days with relatives here. Miss Susie Sechler accompanied her home to visit until Sunday.

J. W. Showers, wife and son, Van, of Auburn, were guests at the Ed Miser home on Sunday. Van on Wednesday left Auburn for Valparaiso, where he will be given a given a six weeks' mechanical course and then he will ship overseas. Van is a brother of Mrs. Miser.

PRODUCTION NOW BIG FOOD PROBLEM

By Dr. Harry E. Barnard,
Federal Food Administrator for Indiana

With the growing shortage of farm labor, the food problem resolves itself largely into one of maintaining maximum production. The Federal Food Administration is committed to the support of the program of the United States' department of agriculture which is asking Indiana farmers to increase their wheat acreage for 1919 17 per cent. and at the same time continue the intensive effort to increase production per acre. The harvest of the corn crop is one of the present issues before the agricultural community, and every patriotic Hoosier available will make it his business to contribute his part. His part means his work, not just his sympathy.

The salvation of the unprecedented yield of tomatoes has become as important a task in Indiana as the purchase of thrift stamps and liberty bonds. It ranks with a prompt registration and report under the selective conscription law. The tomatoes are absolutely necessary to the success of the crusade for freedom and democracy and except that every man, woman and child in Indiana realize that it is a part of his business, where the opportunity affords, to help pick, peel and pack the tomatoes, his patriotism will not assay 100 per cent. when the test comes. The federal government has requisitioned one-third of the Indiana tomato pack, in a realization of the importance of canned tomatoes in the soldiers' rations.

The United States Boys' Working Reserve in Indiana, is one of the dependable supports of the farm labor line. There are, in the state, thousands of boys who have pledged themselves to assist in the patriotic work of tilling the soil. During the planting season, since school dismissed in the spring, they have demonstrated their usefulness, their ability and their right to claim succession to their elders who have left the farm for the training camp. The boys helped save the sugar beets in northern Indiana and southern Michigan; they plowed corn, shocked wheat and oats and have, in large measure, relieved their elders of the responsibility for doing farm chores, which added to the time every man might spend engaged in the heavier work of crop production.

Indiana farmers in many counties already have been educated to look to the Boys' Reserve for emergency help. They have done so profitably, satisfactorily and successfully. In other counties business men have banded together in a mutual agreement to close their stores, where necessary to save the crops. "Shock troops" have helped wherever they have been formed, and thousands of dollars' worth of grain and hay that might have been lost, have been saved to the nation's supply through the willingness and organized readiness of volunteers.

But for a successful program that will take care of the requirements over the possibly long period of time during which the government must draw more and more heavily on the labor supply, it is essential that every producer look ahead. He must accept the untrained youth between fifteen and eighteen years of age and teach him the rudiments of agricultural work. He must be patient and painstaking, and accept the boys as the only labor obtainable and realize that he can do his full duty to the fighters in France only by making the best of the situation at home and devoting himself wholeheartedly and without restraint to the task of producing food crops.

Arrangements are being made whereby school officials will permit boys of the Reserve to absent themselves from school to help in the corn harvest.

Farmers, canners and others engaged in this important war duty who may be in need of help are urged to write to Isaac D. Straus, federal state director of the U. S. Boys' Working Reserve, 83 State House, Indianapolis, Ind., for directions as to how to secure the assistance of the agency by means of which the federal government expects to maintain the production of food.

Indiana is allotted 12,276,000 pounds of sugar for September. This makes certain that there will be sufficient for all patriotic canners who are willing to abide by the regulations and not abuse the canning privilege to secure more than their fair share of sugar for ordinary consumption. The food administration encourages maximum canning with a minimum of sugar.

M. Zendal, a Lafayette grocer, was closed for a week; A. C. Foerster, a Batesville grocer, was deprived of 1,000 pounds of sugar, and O. M. Jeffries, a Union City bottler, was permitted to pay $200 to the local Red Cross, for violating the sugar regulations during the past week.

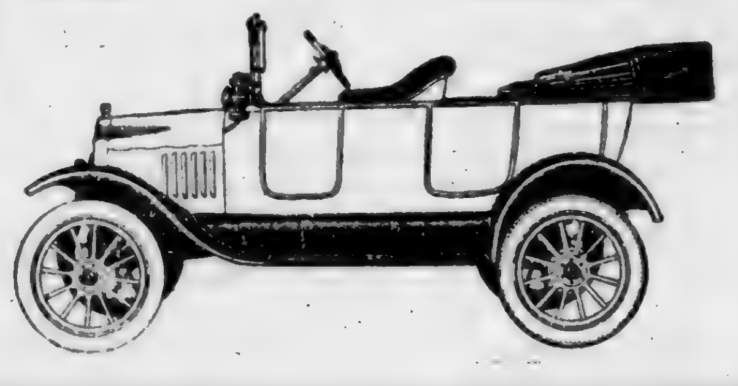
Indiana Candy manufacturers have been asked to adopt a regulation similar to that agreed to by New York manufacturers to limit candy sales to one pound per customer during the sugar shortage.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain: and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necessities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE



NEWVILLE

John Miller and wife were business callers at Butler, Saturday.

Archie Cummins, of Fort Wayne, was a Newville visitor on Sunday.

Bargains in fall millinery at Mrs. Warner's--Aug. 30-31.

Jacob Pressler and wife visited relatives at Newville the latter part of the week.

Mrs. E. Yeiser, of Avilla, spent the latter part of the week with L. W. Yeiser and family.

The Pythian Sisters of Newville held an ice cream social Thursday evening. They cleared $7.00.

Miss Tina Jones, of South Bend, and friend, Irvine Helfrick, of Elkhart, spent Sunday at the L. W. Yeiser home.

The Young People's class of the U. B. Sunday school will hold an ice cream social at L. W. Yeiser's on Thursday evening, Aug. 29.

George Haines, of near Auburn, came after Sam Stafford and wife on Sunday, taking them to his home, where they spent the day.

Miss Tyler on Friday returned to her home at Kendallville, after spending about six weeks with her niece, Mrs. L. W. Yeiser, and family.

Adrian Beree and son, Glov, and Mrs McKinley Beree left Saturday for Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., to visit McKinley Beree, who is one of the boys there.

Mrs. Maude Palmer and little son, Gilbert, came Saturday for a few days' visit. They are the present guests of John Miller and wife, and will visit their many friends around Newville before returning home.

Joe Richmond, who expected to leave Wednesday for the United States service, had a number of accidents with a gun he was handling Tuesday evening; and finally ended up by shooting two toes off the left foot. His cries for help were heard by and responded to by Hugh Traxler and Romeo Richards. The latter took the injured man to Hicksville, where his injuries were attended to.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Durwood Ridgway and family now occupy the Paul Maxwell property, on Main street. Jesse Loftus and family are also moving this week from the Burley property to that of Fred Reeder.

Come in and pay that overdue subscription account.

Don't wait until the paper stops.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

NOTICE
TO SCHOOL SCHOLARS!

WE have provided to handle the School Books this year—and have a complete supply of school necessities for all the grades. You needn't worry where to get your supply. All school books and supplies are strictly sold for CASH.

DO NOT ASK FOR CREDIT!

ELZA E. KINSEY.

AUGUST

L 90

0486

LOW CORN KING

The Easy Way Is Best.

GET that pile of manure on your fields right after harvest where it will do some good. No, not with a wagon. You waste a full third of it if you do it that way, and you have a hard, dirty, disagreeable job besides. The easy way is the paying way. Get a Low Corn King spreader that will tear the manure into small pieces, discharge its load in four to seven minutes, and spread it in an even coat over the entire surface of the ground. That's the way to use stable manure. Then you can depend upon an increase of crop yields without having to plant more acreage than you can care for. Look at present prices of farm produce. Raise all you can. Buy and use a

Low Corn King Manure Spreader.

Three sizes—small, medium and large. All narrow boxes. All steel frames, with working parts of the spreader securely attached to the frame. Turns short. Drive from both rear wheels. Return apron driven by worm gear, which insures even spreading up hill and down. Pull comes straight on steel frame. Solid two-inch rear axle working in roller bearings carries 75 per cent. of the load. All-steel beater can not warp, shrink or rot. Built up to International Harvester standards of quality in every respects. Buy a Corn King spreader and use it. The increased yield from a few acres will pay for your spreader. Place your order now.

Wm. CURIE, St. Joe, Ind.

Obituary

MARTIN DAVIS, eldest child of Robert and Lydia Davis, was born in Franklin county, Pensylvania, on June 21, 1834; and departed this life Aug. 6, 1918, aged 84 years, 1 month and 16 days.

When he was 10 years old, with his parents he moved to Ashland county, Ohio; and, at the age of 16, they moved to Spencerville, Ind., and located on what is known as the William Shutt farm. That same year, they moved to what is so well known as the Davis farm, 3 miles southwest of Spencerville, which was at that time an unbroken forest. He remained there for about seven years and assisted his father in clearing the farm of 160 acres. At first, a small piece of ground at the north part of the farm was cleared and a log cabin was erected immediately.

April 23, 1857, he was united in marriage to Susanna Fisher. To this union were born five children, one son and four daughters, all of whom survive, except one daughter (Esther) who died in infancy. Those who survive him are Mrs. Samantha Walter, near Spencerville; Mary Davis, of Chloride, Ariz ; Sarah Cramer, near Fort Wavne; Robert Davis, who remained at nome with his father.

In 1869, Mr. Davis, with his family, moved to the farm south of Spencerville, which he owned at the time of his death, and lived there until 1881, when he moved to the Robert Davis farm. In 1907, he moved to Spencerville, where he resided until his death.

Nov. 8, 1910, after fifty-three years of wedded life, his companion was taken away from him.

Early in life, he accepted Jesus as his savior and united with the Lutheran church at Spencerville, where he remained a member until the time of his death.

Mr. Davis was respected by all who knew him. He lived a plain, honest, upright life, and passed away in the full expectation of an everlasting salvation.

He leaves one son, three daughters, six grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and a large circle of friends to mourn his departure.

Charles and Eb. Chapman are building a handsome porch at the Frank Rhoades country home.

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved--why Pay $2 Per Pint For Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine, to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. Manufactured by the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

CREAM

Sherman-White Cream Station at J. Beams' Store

Highest Cash price paid for cream. Tested before customer

J. Beams

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

SPENCERVILLE

Sherman-White cream station at J. Beams' store.

Mrs. Vern Wilmot visited relatives at Garrett on Friday.

Owing to sickness, the C. C. club will not meet next Friday.

Mrs. Rolla Moffet and daughter, Jessie, of Auburn, and Mrs. Jacob Baltz visited Mrs. Nelson and family, of Fort Wayne, Friday.

Mrs. J. D. Sommers is visiting her son, William Sommers, and wife, of Coburntown.

Mrs. George Steward, of Fort Wayne, is visiting at the home of her brother, Charles Markle.

R. U. Bowser is building a large cement porch to his residence.

Mrs. Merritt Butler, who has been ill, is able to be around some again.

Fred Osborne, of the Wabash, left last week for West Point, Ind., near Danville, Ill., where he will take the place of the agent, who is seriously ill.

Harvey Beam and wife on Friday entertained Rev. Arthur Emmons and parents and Curt. Emmons and wife at dinner.

William Kohler, wife and two daughters, of Mansfield, Ohio, and Frank Horn and wife spent Saturday with Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumaw.

Miss Lucile Rhodes is slowly recovering from the effects of ivy poisoning.

Mrs. John House arrived home on Sunday morning from Camp Sherman, where she had been visiting her husband, who was located there. He belongs to Company C, 309th engineers, and was moved east on Sunday.

Joel Betz and wife, Edward Billman and wife and Walter Perkins, wife and son on Sunday motored to Edgerton and passed the day at the Olan Helf home.

Charles Rhoades and wife, who took treatment at Blue Cast springs last week, returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Emila Gloyd left Monday evening to spend a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Isidore Bodica, and family.

The Betz family reunion will be held on Sunday, Sept. 1, at the George Horn home.

Kenneth Coburn was a Sunday guest of Vern Wilmot and family.

Roy Bowser and Ralph Gloyd were Sunday guests of Donald Dinius.

Vinton Miller and family, Stephen Brown and wife, William Lake and family and Mrs. William Rhoades spent Sunday at Hamilton lake.

Mr. Cotren, wife and sister and Mrs. Samuel Squires, of Auburn, and Raymond Squires and wife, of south of Auburn, visited at the W. M. Lucas home.

Miss Clara Eye, of Chicago, is visiting at the Mrs. Mary Renn home.

The Lake family reunion was held Saturday in basement of the Harlan Lutheran church. The old officers were re-elected. The following Spencerville people attended: William Lake and family, Mrs. William Rhoades, Mrs. Mary Renn and children and Reuben and Flora Renn.

What it takes to feed a U. S. Soldier for a year. Beef, 475 lbs., or bacon, 275 pounds; wheat flour, 413 pounds; potatoes, 458 pounds; beans, 55 pounds; prunes, 27 lbs.; coffee, 26 pounds; sugar, 73 lbs., syrup, 7 pounds; condensed milk, 11½ pounds; butter, 11⅓ pounds; lard, 11⅓ pounds; vinegar, 3⅓ lbs.: salt, 13½ pounds.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The State Council of Defense has sent out the following resolution:

"The protracted drouth has caused a condition that hazards homes and the harvested products of the fields, now in the granaries; Therefore be it resolved that the widest publicity be given admonishing everyone to be extremely cautious in the use of matches and the throwing away of lighted cigars and cigarettes in an effort to obviate fires."

As chairman of the County Council of Defense, I appeal to the people of DeKalb County to be extremely careful. Carelessness often causes great loss. I saw in Smithfield Twp. last week, fire passing over two farms caused by sparks from a railroad engine. The property, buildidgs, etc., were endangered from this fire. This is one instance. The farmers were out with shovels fighting to save these homes. This is a concrete lesson. As long as this drouth continues, people should be extremely careful in every way to prevent fire. J. Y. W. McClellan, Ch'm.

Camp at Winona Lake

Winona Lake has been selected as a site for a United States army training camp; and, by Sept. 15, 1,450 soldiers will be in camp there, according to the present plans. This will include a staff of 200 and 1 250 men in training. It will be a training camp for truck drivers.

Announcement of the selection of Winona Lake as a training camp came to Dr. Sol C. Dickey, head of Winona assembly, in a telegram from C. R. Dooley, of the committee on education and training, Washington, D. C. Mr. Dooley said that the committee has approved of Winona, and that within a few days an army officer will arrive to close the negotiations and sign up all the necessary contracts.

It was stated that by Sept. 15 it is expected to have 1,450 men at Winona Lake. The big Winona and Westminster hotels will be used as quarters for the soldiers. It is estimated that these will furnish accommodations for several thousand men. They are steam heated, and are suited for both winter and summer quarters.

Several months ago, Dr. Dickey visited Washington and offered all of Winona's facilities to the war department. Three different committees were sent here to investigate and they all reported favorably.

FOOD CLUBS FERRET OUT THE DISLOYAL

(By C. V. Stainsby, Assistant to Dr. Harry E. Barnard, Federal Food Administrator for Indiana.)

The U. S. Food Clubs show their Americanism by ferreting out that which is un-American. Germany has her spies and secret supporters in every land. While we were still at peace with Germany her representatives betrayed our confidence and violated our neutrality. Now that we are at war her agents are trying to hinder our war preparations and thus help the very country from which they fled for greater freedom. Germany's supporters work in every conceivable way to hurt America. Some, who have ample means, refuse to buy government bonds. Some will not support the Red Cross or Y. M. C. A. Others go to the extent of burning bridges and blowing up factories. Still others do nothing but spread lies about America. These last are the most contemptible. They are among the most dangerous. They are the hardest to catch. Every complete U. S. Food Club will have a "Slacker Committee." This committee will report to the proper authorities for investigation all cases of failure to support America. Failure to observe food regulations is one form of disloyalty and will be reported to the Federal Food Administrator of the county or state. Disloyalty of any other sort will be reported to the County Council of Defense. When the members of four thousand U. S. Food Clubs have their eyes and ears open there will be little room in Indiana for German sympathizers.

Get ready to join a U. S. Food Club in your neighborhood.

Saving Sugar Saves Shipping

UNLOADING HAWAIIAN SUGAR AT A CALIFORNIA PORT.
LOADING CANE IN HAWAII FROM WHERE AMERICA GETS HALF A MILLION TONS OF SUGAR A YEAR.

AMERICAN families would have less sugar than the people of war torn France, if we depended entirely on our home-grown sugar stocks.

Approximately 75 per cent. of our sugar is shipped to our shores. We produce about 1,000,000 tons of sugar a year. Our imports from abroad amount to over 3,000,000 tons a year in normal times.

The United States Food Administration asks each family to limit its use of sugar to two pounds per month per person for household use. The military situation demands that every available ship be placed at the disposal of the Army or Navy. When we save sugar, we save shipping.

WHITE OXFORDS AND PUMPS!

...ALL...
THE NEW PATTERNS
That are being worn now are here for your selection.

Hot Weather Is Here

And calls for WHITE FOOTWEAR—the most comfortable and cool shoe you can find.

Women's Oxfords or Pumps in high or low heels, $2.00 to $3.50.

Men's White or Palm Beach Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.

Children's Mary Jane Slippers, $1 to $2.

Full line of Rubber Soled Slippers, 80c to $3.00.

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1867
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.
BEN LEHMAN PROP.

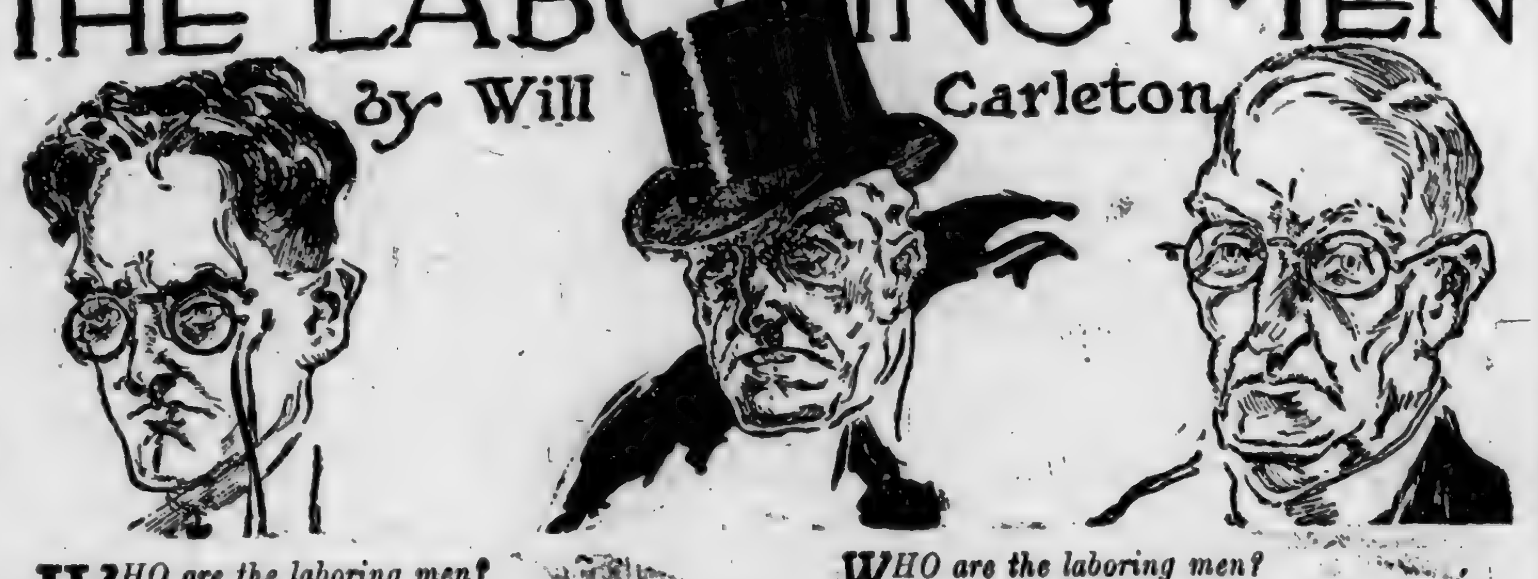
AUGUST

L 90

0487

THE LABORING MEN

by Will Carleton



WHO are the laboring men?
We are the laboring men:
We, the muscle of the tribes and lands,
With sun-trod faces and horn-gloved hands;
With well-patched garments, stained and coarse—
With untrained voices, heavy and hoarse;
Who brave the death of the noontide heats,
Who mow the meadows and pave the streets,
Who push the plow by the smooth-faced sod,
Or climb the crags with a well-filled hod.
Yes, we are the laboring men—
The genuine laboring men.
And each, somewhere in the stormy sky,
Has a sweet love-star, be it low or high;
For pride have we to do and dare,
And a heart have we to cherish and care;
And power have we—for, lose our brawn,
And where were your flourishing cities gone?
Or bind our hands or fetter our feet,
And what would the gaunt world find to eat?
Aye, where were your gentry then?
For we are the laboring men!

WHO are the laboring men?
We are the laboring men:
We of the iron and waterway,
Whom fire and steam and tide obey;
Who stab the sea with a prow of oak,
Who blot the sky with a cloud of smoke,
Who bend the breezes unto our wills,
And feed the looms and hurry the mills;
Who oft have the lives of a thousand known
In the hissing valves that hold our own!
Yes, we are the laboring men—
The genuine laboring men.
And though a coat may a button lack,
And though a face be sooty and black,
And though the words be heavy of flow,
And new-called thoughts come tardy and slow,
And though rough words in a speech may blend,
A heart's a heart, and a friend's a friend.
And power have we, but for our skill,
The wave would drown and the sea would kill;
And where were your gentry then?
Aye, we are the laboring men!

WHO are the laboring men?
We are the laboring men:
We who stand in the ranks of trade
And count the tallies that toil has made;
Who guard the coffers of wealth untold,
And ford the streams of glistening gold;
Who send the train on its breathless trips,
And rear the buildings and sail the ships;
And though our coats be a trifle fine,
And though our diamonds flash and shine,
Yet we are the laboring men—
The genuine laboring men.
We bolt the gates of the angry seas,
We keep the nation's granary keys;
The routes of trade we have built and planned
Are veins of life to a hungry land.
And power have we in our peaceful strife,
For a nation's trade is a nation's life;
And take the sails of our commerce in.
Where were your "artisans' pails of tin?"
Aye, where were your laborers then?
For we are the laboring men!

WHO are not the laboring men?
They're not the laboring men,
They who creep in dens and lanes
To rob their betters of honest gains;
The rich who stoop to devour the poor,
The tramps who beg from door to door,
The rogues who love a darkened sky,
And steal and rob, and cheat and lie;
The loafing wights and senseless bloats
Who drain their pockets to wet their throats.
They're not the laboring men—
The genuine laboring men.
And all true hearts that the price would give
For honest joy and a right to live,
And every soul to truth alive,
Willing to thrive and let others thrive,
Should rise with a true and steady hand
And mark these foes with a villain brand,
And shame them into the ranks of toil,
Or crush them under their kindred soil
Away from the laboring men—
The genuine laboring men.

HELPS WORKERS IN DENMARK

Labor Insurance Law Has Been Proved of Material Benefit to People in That Country.

In 1907 Denmark enacted a labor insurance law. Fully 111,000 persons and 60 per cent of the workmen in Denmark are now insured. (The proportion is 73 per cent of the men insurable and 28 per cent of the insurable women.) Practically all the industrial laborers are insured under the act.

Within the limits prescribed by the law, the conditions of unemployment insurance vary with each fund. The dues vary from the minimum of $1.40 paid by the unskilled workmen to the maximum of $7 per year paid by the workers in stucco. The daily stipend is one, one and a half, or two krone, according to the financial status of the fund. A krone is equal to about 27 cents. The period of payment runs from 50 days in the year allowed the unskilled laborers to the maximum of 160 allowed the printers. The total amount of the benefits paid in 1912 was $459,810, of which 53.8 per cent was distributed by the members; 31.9 per cent by the state, and 14.3 per cent by the communes. The sums spent in aid of unemployment from all sources for the five years, during which the act has been in operation, amounts to $1,755,000.

IN such times, and such moods as the time compels, labor is sure of just honor. Workers are certain to be valued at their true worth. Labor's holiday becomes more than ever the recognition of mighty forces of the most vital importance to all mankind.

All Labor Honorable.

It is harder to make a watch spring than to dig a ditch, harder to prepare the lens of a telescope than to make a watch spring, hard to measure exactly the length of the wave light of a certain element than to construct the most marvelous telescope.

What is needed in the world is realization of the fact that all labor is equally honorable when done earnestly, with dignity, self-respect, without hatred of those more fortunate, or contempt for those less fortunate.

Ever Upward

IT is not enough to win rights from a king, and write them down in a book,
New men, new lights, and the code of the fathers the sons may never brook,
What is liberty now were license then; their freedom our yoke would be,
And each new decade must have new men to determine its liberty.
Mankind is a marching army with broadening front the while,
Shall it crowd its bulk on the worn paths or clear to the outward file?
Its pioneers are those dreamers who heed neither tongue nor pen,
Of the human spiders whose silk is wove from the lives of toiling men.
—John Boyle O'Reilly on Wendell Phillips.

Unionists Defined.

Wage workers, members in good standing of the union of the trade or calling at which they are employed, who realize as a fundamental principle the necessity of unity of all their fellows employed at the same trade or calling; who recognize the vital, logical extension, growth and development of all unions of all trades and callings and who strive for the unity, federation, co-operation, fraternity and solidarity of all organized wage earners; who can and do subordinate self for the common good and always strive for the common uplift; who decline to limit the sphere of their activity by any dogma, doctrine or ism—finally, those organized wage workers who fearlessly and insistently maintain and contend that the trade unions, the trade union movement, are paramount to any other form of organization or movement of labor in the world, are the ideal unionists.

Men Who Make a Nation.

The attitude of government toward labor lies at the heart of almost everything that concerns us as a nation. A nation may be said to consist of those who do its daily labor, and America has always boasted that she was the home of free labor, that all were welcome to come to her shores and partake of her unbounded opportunities.

ALL CALLED ON TO WORK

Necessity for Some Useful Occupation Must Be Apparent to Every One at This Time.

Labor has gained throughout the last year in the feeling and thought of the world. The strain and perils of the times have brought an unusually sober and reflective state of mind. Men and women have been more than commonly concerned with the gravest problems of existence. They have given more than the ordinary consideration to the needs and dangers of life.

All this has contributed to the dignity and honor of hard work. Never was there more general recognition of the necessity of meeting real trials manfully and playing a man's part in the serious business of living. Never in recent times was it more difficult to shirk without discredit or spend the crowded years in idleness without forfeiting respect and reputation. The world has so much to do, so many great tasks crowded upon its mental and physical resources that work is more than ever before the plainest and most vital duty of all who have strength for service.

AND because eternal things are true this is the biggest Labor Day and also one of the most serious. It is as sober in its deeper relations and aspects as it is inspiring to labor leaders and members of labor organizations because it comes in a time of notable labor gains and demonstrations of labor's power and prestige.

Labor's Fair Share.

The "dignity of labor" sounds well from the rostrum, but the men and women who do the world's work and produce the world's wealth are rapidly learning that their dignity as well as their happiness depends upon their insistence on a more equitable distribution of the products of their toil. They have learned that the only way to secure anything like a fair division is by organized effort through banding together in unions for the raising of wages and the shortening of the hours of toil. Through such organized effort they have raised the standard of living for every worker.

ARMY HEALTH RATE BEST EVER KNOWN

DEATHS FROM DISEASE REMARKABLY FEW, BOTH AT HOME AND IN FOREIGN LANDS.

TWO NAVY HEROES ARE CITED

Rowed Through Flames to Rescue Men From Burning Spanish Steamship—Work of Children's Year Is Proving Very Effective.

A health rate which as far as known has never been surpassed has been established by the American armies both here and overseas, according to reports received by Surgeon General Gorgas.

For a recent week the combined reports of the American expeditionary forces and of troops stationed in the United States show an annual death rate for disease of 1.9 per 1,000, less than two men per 1,000 per year. The annual death rate from disease of men of military age in civil life is 6.7 per 1,000.

This new rate is based on approximate strength of 2,500,000 men, and includes men living under abnormal conditions. The overseas' record was made while American soldiers were participating in the heavy fighting in the Marne salient, when they were compelled frequently to sleep and eat under the most primitive conditions.

That this record is truly representative of the general health of the troops is shown by the combined reports which indicate the figure of 2.8 per 1,000 as the average death rate from disease during the past two months.

An idea of the progress being made in military sanitation is gained by a comparison with the following: During the Mexican war the annual death rate from disease was 100 per 1,000. During the American Civil war the rate in 1862 was 40 per 1,000, while during 1863 the rate jumped to 60 per 1,000. The disease death rate for the Spanish-American war was 25 per 1,000. As far as available records show the lowest figure heretofore recorded was 20 per 1,000 during the Russo-Japanese war.

Two men of the American navy proved themselves heroes and won commendation from Secretary Daniels for the rescue of seven men from the burning Spanish steamship Serantes July 13 last. They are William E. King, seaman, and Clarence F. Ready, machinist's mate, second class, U. S. N. R. F., of the U. S. S. Isis.

The two men took the port launch of the Isis to the side of the burning ship and rescued from the burning forecastle seven men who were hemmed in by flames and who were too panic stricken to jump into the water.

The launch's trip to the Serantes was made through an area of burning gasoline and the rescuers were in constant and imminent peril. Their commanding officer reports that the conduct of King and Ready during this time was cool and courageous. They probably owe their own lives and the lives of those they rescued to their steady nerves and cool judgment. Their commendation was for bravery and their initiative in undertaking the rescue.

The army general staff has completed plans for expansions at some of the camps and changes at training centers. Additional plans are being worked out and will be put into effect.

Camp Hancock, Georgia, is to be a machine gun center and will be enlarged to accommodate between 55,000 and 60,000 men. The officers' training school now housed in tents at this camp will be provided for in barracks and quarters similar to those at other cantonments. These improvements outside of enlargement of the camp, will cost about $2,000,000.

It has been decided to make Camp Grant an infantry replacement camp to accommodate between 55,000 and 60,000 men. The present capacity of this camp is about 42,000. The alterations and changes necessary will be made after the division now located there has been removed.

Field artillery firing centers are to be located at West Point, Ky., Camp Jackson, S. C., and Fayetteville, N. C. Options on sufficient land for this purpose have been secured at all these places. It is planned to locate six brigades at Fayettesville, six at West Point and four at Jackson.

It has been decided also to erect permanent buildings for the officers' training schools at present housed in tents at Camps Lee, Gordon and Pike. These schools have a capacity of about 6,000 men. The estimated cost of these improvements is about $6,000,000.

As a result of the immediate and growing needs of the army for trained nurses, Miss Jane A. Delano, director of the department of nursing of the Red Cross, has sent an appeal for enlistments from this year's graduating classes at 3,000 nurse training institutions throughout the country. It is expected that about 13,000 students will be graduated as nurses between now and October 1, and it is hoped many of these graduates will be enrolled so they can be assigned to the nurse corps before that date.

The work of children's year is proving to be an effective Americanization measure. The children's bureau of the labor department has as its goal 100,000 baby lives saved this year. According to reports received, foreign mothers are as eager as the native mothers, if not more so, to learn all they can about the proper care of their children.

The Japanese women of Seattle are asking for pamphlets on prenatal care, the Italian women of Wallace, Idaho, 1,500 strong, have arranged to study a standard book on the care and feeding of children, with the aid of an interpreter. The foreign mothers of the remote lumbering regions of Washington and of the manufacturing cities of New England are united by the common desire to learn everything possible about safeguarding the health of their children.

This desire is resulting in the breaking down of the barriers of alien language and old-world superstition that have long stood in the way of the health of little Americans born of foreign parents. It has been necessary in many cities to employ interpreters at the weighing and measuring centers to answer the questions of mothers who do not speak English. Classes in the care of baby being conducted in Seattle and Pittsburg are made a means of teaching mothers to speak and read English.

Perhaps the most important educational measure that has been adopted is the provision of public health nurses whose function it is not only to give care and service to the sick but to advise mothers how to keep their children well. As a result of Children's year activities many communities have succeeded in obtaining public or private funds for public health nursing. Wisconsin has adopted the slogan, "A Public Health Nurse for Every County," and in Washington state an active campaign for school nurses is being carried on.

The work of the state councils of defense has been so valuable to the country that it has drawn public commendation from President Wilson with an accompanying suggestion that its unique and widespread organization be utilized by all government departments and agencies so far as practical.

Secretary Baker, chairman of the council of national defense, which brought the state councils into existence, reported to the president: "It is difficult to estimate the importance of the service rendered, since our entrance into the war, by these state councils, their county councils and the multitude of workers banded together under them, whom we estimate to number at least one million. I feel sure that you, Mr. President, as their commander in chief, will be proud of their unique contribution in the war and will use your authority to broaden the scope of their activities as conditions permit so that they may go on to still greater achievements."

The state councils, says Secretary Baker, have active county, or equivalent, councils of defense under them, while in nearly every state the organization of community councils in the school districts, bringing the government to the people and the people to the government, is progressing rapidly.

The president replied: "I shall be glad to have you express to the state councils my appreciation of the service they have so usefully rendered. I am particularly struck by the value of extending our defense organization into the smallest communities and by the truly democratic character of a national system so organized. I believe in the soundness of your contention that in the interest of economy and efficiency such machinery as that provided by the state council system for the execution of many kinds of war work should be utilized as far as possible by federal departments and administrations."

A recent proclamation by President Wilson puts into effect provisions of the shipping act making it impossible for foreign interests to obtain control of American shipping or shipyards.

Chairman Edward N. Hurley of the shipping board explains that the new law provides that during war or national emergency proclaimed by the president, it is a criminal offense to sell, mortgage, lease or deliver an American ship to a foreigner without the consent of the shipping board, or to make any agreement by which control of a ship is turned over to a foreigner. The prohibition applies not only to completed ships, but to ships under construction.

It is made illegal, without the board's consent, to make any contract for ship construction for foreign account, unless the contract expressly provides that construction on the ship shall not begin until after the war or the emergency has ended. Shipyards, also, cannot be transferred to foreigners without the consent of the shipping board.

The act has provisions which it is believed will prevent all attempts to evade the ship-transfer sections of the law by means of dummy directors and stockholders in corporations nominally American but actually dominated by foreigners.

Farmers who have been placed in army service deferred classifications to stimulate production are organizing throughout the country and reporting to Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture. "We are ready with 110 per cent increase of wheat, or whatever else you may call upon us to do to help win the war," is their message to the secretary.

The shipping board has allotted a vessel to bring coffee from Brazil to the United States to prevent a possible coffee shortage.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

"BAR THE BARLEY FROM THE BAR AND BAKE IT INTO BREAD."

Barley flour makes excellent bread and barley mush is a splended breakfast food. The country needs the barley that is being rotted to make beer. The following recipes are offered to those who do not know how to use barley flour to make barley flour and wheat flour bread:

Five cupfuls wheat flour.
One cupful barley flour.
(Above flour sifted together.)
One cupful scalded milk.
One cupful water.
One tablespoonful shortening.
Two tablespoonfuls sugar.
Two teaspoonfuls salt.
One cake compressed yeast, dissolved in one-quarter cupful lukewarm water.

Place the sugar, salt and shortening in the mixing bowl and pour in the scalded milk and water. When cooled to lukewarm add the dissolved yeast, then stir in the flour previously sifted together, and when thoroughly mixed place on breadboard and knead until smooth and elastic, adding a little flour from time to time if necessary; then place in a greased bowl, cover and let rise in a warm place until light (about two and a half hours). Knead it down in the bowl and allow it to stand until light, which will require about one hour. Knead down and let stand for 20 minutes, then mold into loaves, place in greased pans and let rise until light. Bake well in a moderate oven.

If it is preferred to set overnight, use only one-half compressed yeast cake or one dry yeast cake and an extra one-half teaspoonful of salt.—Union Signal.

WASTING FOOD, LABOR, LIFE.

These are the chief factors in winning the war;—and the liquor men are wasting all three!

They are wasting food. Last year the waste amounted to 7,000,000,000 pounds of foodstuffs! And they have no right to starve some men by making others drunk!

They are wasting labor. About 300,000 men are engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of booze—in breweries, saloons and restaurants, as brewers, bartenders and waiters—at a time when every man is needed in some useful occupation to help win the war. The labor of these 300,000 men is worse than wasted—no possible good can come of it, but much harm is done.

They are wasting life. Bartenders, brewery workers and waiters in saloons lose an average of six years of life on account of their occupations. If the 300,000 men who make and sell booze lose an average of six years of life, it makes a total of 1,800,000 years of life. The average man works about 30 years—so that the liquor traffic is using up the equivalent of 60,000 men in each generation. And this is too great a price for the nation to pay.—Charles Stelzle.

GERMAN'S BEER-POISONED.

This from an article by Professor Daly of Harvard, in the New York Times:

"A mildly alcoholic state is usually not conspicuous by a very decided lack of efficiency or of social decorum in the poisoned man. Hence the effects of steady beer drinking are not as striking as in the case of persons poisoned with whisky, rum, or absinthe. Yet I venture the hypothesis that lifelong drinking of mild beer has been one of the most potent causes for the amazing brutalities of official Germany. Those crimes have been ordered by men who, for decades, have been poisoned by beer. In times of peace and quiet the poisoning causes derangement of brain tissue, often expressed merely in some form of sentimentality, plain or maudlin. If, however, the victim is put under stress, his nervous disorder is likely to lead to bad temper and bad judgment, with endless possibilities in the way of loss of dignity, poise, and the sense of human fellowship. The final result here considered is the development of true savagery."

SCIENCE OUR GREAT ALLY.

The aim of science—says a great scientist of our day—is not primarily improvement of the community or government of the state. These are merely its by-products. Its purpose is the revelation of truth. Hence the conclusions of science should have, do have, enormous weight in this age of truth-seeking; in these times when reason, not sentiment, rules, when the people are everywhere asking to be shown. The voice of science should have, is having, great influence in the settlement of the liquor question. We should see to it that our statesmen, our lawmakers, our men and women thinkers and voters, are informed as to its latest word concerning alcohol.

FEWER INEBRIATES.

The State Hospital for Inebriates at Knoxville, Ia., is finding its supply of patients steadily diminishing. Two years ago it cost $12,243 to maintain the hospital for one quarter. For the quarter ending December 31, 1917, the maintenance was only $3,445, a 75 per cent decrease in two years.

During the month of May sixteen New Jersey towns voted dry, among them Princeton. In Wisconsin the important cities of Superior, Ashland and Beloit voted dry.

AUGUST

L 90

0488

"OVER THE TOP"

By An American Soldier Who Went

Arthur Guy Empey

Machine Gunner, Serving in France

Copyright 1917, by Arthur Guy Empey

EMPEY LEARNS THAT SOMETIMES A STREAK OF YELLOW CAN TURN PURE WHITE.

Synopsis.—Fired by the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of American lives, Arthur Guy Empey, an American living in Jersey City, goes to England and enlists as a private in the British army. After a short experience as a recruiting officer in London, he is sent to training quarters in France, where he first hears the sound of big guns and makes the acquaintance of "cooties." After a brief period of training Empey's company is sent into the front-line trenches, where he takes his first turn on the fire step while the bullets whiz overhead. Empey learns, as comrade falls, that death lurks always in the trenches. Chaplain distinguishes himself by rescuing wounded men under hot fire. With pick and shovel Empey has experience as a trench digger in No Man's Land. Exciting experience on listening post detail. Exciting work on observation post duty. Back in rest billets Empey writes and stages a successful play. Once more in the front trenches, Empey goes "over the top" in a successful but costly attack on the German lines. Soon afterwards Empey and his comrades repulse a determined gas attack launched by the Germans. His next experience is as a member of a firing squad which executes a sentence of death.

CHAPTER XXIV—Continued.

—22—

On his left, in the darkness, he could make out the shadowy forms of trees; crawling on his hands and knees, stopping and crouching with fear at each shell-burst, he finally reached an old orchard and cowered at the base of a shot-scarred apple tree.

He remained there all night, listening to the sound of the guns and ever praying, praying that his useless life would be spared.

As dawn began to break, he could discern little dark objects protruding from the ground all about him. Curiosity mastered his fear and he crawled to one of the objects, and there, in the uncertain light, he read on a little wooden cross:

"Pte. H. S. Wheaton, No. 1670, 1st London Regt. R. F. Killed in action, April 25, 1916. R. I. P." (Rest in Peace).

When it dawned on him that he had been hiding all night in a cemetery his reason seemed to leave him, and a mad desire to be free from it all made him rush madly away, falling over little wooden crosses, smashing some and trampling others under his feet.

In his flight he came to an old French dugout, half caved in and partially filled with slimy and filthy water.

Like a fox being chased by the hounds, he ducked into this hole, and threw himself on a pile of old empty sandbags, wet and mildewed. Then—unconsciousness.

On the next day, he came to; far distant voices sounded in his ears. Opening his eyes, in the entrance of the dugout he saw a corporal and two men with fixed bayonets.

The corporal was addressing him:

"Get up, you white-livered blighter! Curse you and the day you ever joined D company, spoiling their fine record! It'll be you up against the wall, and a good job too. Get hold of him, men, and if he makes a break, give him the bayonet, and send it home, the cowardly sneak. Come on, you, move, we've been looking for you long enough."

Lloyd, trembling and weakened by his long fast, tottered out, assisted by a soldier on each side of him.

They took him before the captain, but could get nothing out of him but:

"For God's sake, sir, don't have me shot, don't have me shot!"

The captain, utterly disgusted with him, sent him under escort to division headquarters for trial by court-martial, charged with desertion under fire.

They shoot deserters in France.

During his trial, Lloyd sat as one dazed, and could put nothing forward in his defense, only an occasional "Don't have me shot!"

His sentence was passed: "To be shot at 3:38 o'clock in the morning of May 18, 1916." This meant that he had only one more day to live.

He did not realize the awfulness of his sentence; his brain seemed paralyzed. He knew nothing of his trip, under guard, in a motor lorry to the sandbagged guardroom in the village, where he was dumped on the floor and left, while a sentry with a fixed bayonet paced up and down in front of the entrance.

Bully beef, water and biscuits were left beside him for his supper.

The sentry, seeing that he ate nothing, came inside and shook him by the shoulder, saying in a kind voice:

"Cheero, laddie, better eat something. You'll feel better. Don't give up hope. You'll be pardoned before morning. I know the way they run these things. They're only trying to scare you, that's all. Come now, that's a good lad, eat something. It'll make the world look different to you."

The good-hearted sentry knew he was lying about the pardon. He knew nothing short of a miracle could save the poor lad.

Lloyd listened eagerly to his sentry's words, and believed them. A look of hope came into his eyes, and he ravenously ate the meal beside him.

In about an hour's time, the chaplain came to see him, but Lloyd would have none of him. He wanted no parson; he was to be pardoned.

The artillery behind the lines suddenly opened up with everything they had. An intense bombardment of the enemy's lines had commenced. The roar of the guns was deafening. Lloyd's fears came back with a rush, and he cowered on the earthen floor with his hands over his face.

The sentry, seeing his position, came in and tried to cheer him by talking to him:

"Never mind them guns, boy, they won't hurt you. They are ours. We are giving the Boches a dose of their own medicine. Our boys are going over the top at dawn of the morning to take their trenches. We'll give 'em a taste of cold steel with their sausages and beer. You just sit tight now until they relieve you. I'll have to go now, lad, as it's nearly time for my relief, and I don't want them to see me a-talkin' with you. So long, laddie, cheero."

With this, the sentry resumed the pacing of his post. In about ten minutes' time he was relieved, and a D company man took his place.

Looking into the guardhouse, the sentry noticed the cowering attitude of Lloyd, and, with a sneer, said to him:

"Instead of whimpering in that corner, you ought to be saying your prayers. It's bally conscripts like you what's spoilin' our record. We've been out here nigh onto eighteen months, and you're the first man to desert his post. The whole battalion is laughin' and pokin' fun at D company, bad luck to you! but you won't get another chance to disgrace us. They'll put your lights out in the mornin'."

After listening to this tirade, Lloyd, in a faltering voice, asked: "They are not going to shoot me, are they? Why, the other sentry said they'd pardon me. For God's sake—don't tell me I'm to be shot!" and his voice died away in a sob.

He Betrayed His Country.

"Of course, they're going to shoot you. The other sentry was jest a-kiddin' you. Jest like old Smith. Always a-tryin' to cheer some one. You ain't got no more chance o' bein' pardoned than I have of gettin' to be colonel of my 'batt.'"

When the fact that all hope was gone finally entered Lloyd's brain, a calm seemed to settle over him, and rising to his knees, with his arms stretched out to heaven, he prayed, and all of his soul entered into the prayer.

"O, good and merciful God, give me strength to die like a man! Deliver me from this coward's death. Give me a chance to die like my mates in the fighting line, to die fighting for my country. I ask this of thee."

A peace, hitherto unknown, came to him, and he crouched and cowered no more, but calmly waited the dawn, ready to go to his death. The shells were bursting all around the guardroom, but he hardly noticed them.

While waiting there, the voice of the sentry, singing in a low tone, came to him. He was singing the chorus of the popular trench ditty:

I want to go home, I want to go home.
I don't want to go to the trenches no more.
Where the "whizzbangs" and "sausages" roar galore.
Take me over the sea, where the Allemand can't get at me.
Oh, my, I don't want to die! I want to go home.

Lloyd listened to the words with a strange interest, and wondered what kind of a home he would go to across the Great Divide. It would be the only home he had ever known.

Suddenly there came a great rushing through the air, a blinding, a deafening report, and the sandbag walls of the guardroom toppled over, and then—blackness.

When Lloyd recovered consciousness, he was lying on his right side, facing what used to be the entrance of the guardroom. Now, it was only a jumble of rent and torn sandbags. His head seemed bursting. He slowly rose on his elbow, and there in the east the dawn was breaking. But what was that mangled shape lying over there among the sandbags? Slowly dragging himself to it, he saw the body of the sentry. One look was enough to know that he was dead. The soldier's head was missing. The sentry had had his wish gratified. He had "gone home." He was safe at last from the "whizzbangs" and the Allemand.

Like a flash it came to Lloyd that he was free. Free to go "over the top" with his company. Free to die like a true Briton fighting for his king and country. A great gladness and warmth came over him. Carefully stepping over the body of the sentry, he started on a mad race down the ruined street of the village, amid the bursting shells, minding them not, dodging through or around hurrying platoons on their way to also go "over the top." Coming to a communication trench he could not get through. It was blocked with laughing, cheering and cursing soldiers. Climbing out of the trench, he ran wildly along the top, never heeding the rain of machine-gun bullets and shells, not even hearing the shouts of the officers, telling him to get back into the trench. He was going to join his company who were in the front line. He was going to fight with them. He, the despised coward, had come into his own.

While he was racing along, jumping over trenches crowded with soldiers, a ringing cheer broke out all along the front line, and his heart sank. He knew he was too late. His company had gone over. But still he ran madly. He would catch them. He would die with them.

Meanwhile his company had gone "over." They, with the other companies had taken the first and second German trenches, and had pushed steadily on to the third line. D company, led by their captain, the one who had sent Lloyd to division headquarters for trial, charged with desertion, had pushed steadily forward until they found themselves far in advance of the rest of the attacking force. "Bombing out" trench after trench, and using their bayonets, they came to a German communication trench, which ended in a blindsap, and then the captain, and what was left of his men, knew they were in a trap. They would not retire. D company never retired, and they were D company. Right in front of them they could see hundreds of Germans preparing to rush them with bomb and bayonet. They would have some chance if ammunition and bombs could reach them from the rear. Their supply was exhausted, and the men realized it would be a case of dying as bravely as possible, or making a run for it. But D company would not run. It was against their traditions and principles.

The Germans would have to advance across an open space of three to four hundred yards before they could get within bombing distance of the trench, and then it would be all their own way.

Turning to his company, the captain said:

"Men, it's a case of going West for us. We are out of ammunition and bombs, and the Boches have us in a trap. They will bomb us out. Our bayonets are useless here. We will have to go over and meet them, and it's a case of thirty to one, so send every thrust home, and die like the men of D company should. When I give the word, follow me, and up and at them. Give them h——! Lord, if we only had a machine gun, we could wipe them out! Here they come, get ready, men."

British prepare for the "Big Push," the forerunner of the battle of the Somme. Read about it in the next installment.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

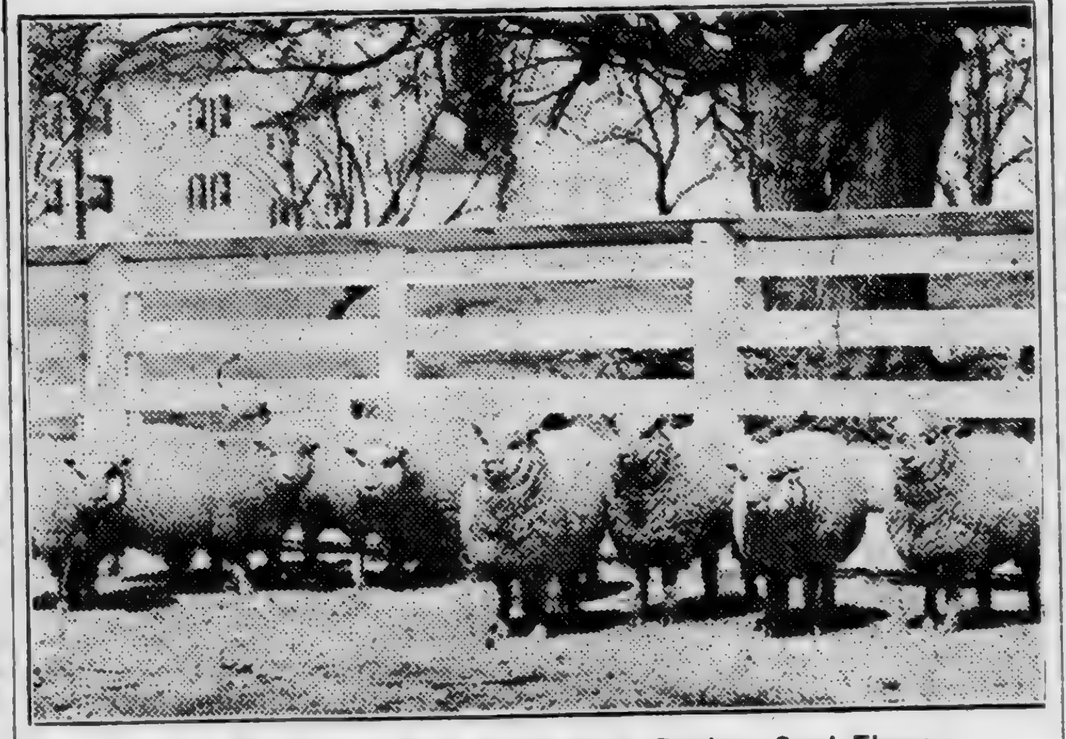
Striving After Strength.

We think that we shall win truth by striving after strength, instead of knowing that we shall gain strength just in the degree that we become true.—Phillips Brooks.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

MORE WOOL FOR UNCLE SAM



These Ewes Have Been Cared for to Produce Good Fleece.

FLOCK OF SHEEP WILL HELP WOOL

Autumn Is Most Favorable Time for Making Start, Says Agricultural Department.

FLEECE NEEDED BY SOLDIER

Good Grade Ewes and Pure-Bred Ram Are Best for Beginners—Consider Class of Pasture and Feeds Available.

Sheep husbandry on farms can do much to relieve the threatened inadequacy of the wool production in the United States. The farmer who will start and care for a new flock this fall will have a patriotic part in meeting the country's need for more wool to equip our soldiers and sailors.

Late summer or early fall is the most favorable time to make a start in sheep raising. Ewes can be procured more readily at this time, and when purchased can be kept on meadows, grain stubble fields, or late-sown forage crops, to get them in good condition for breeding. Experience with the ewes through fall and winter will also render a beginner more capable of attending to them at lambing time. It is seldom possible to buy any considerable number of bred ewes at reasonable prices.

Selection of Stock.

The inexperienced sheep raiser should begin with grade ewes of the best class available and a pure-bred ram. The raising of pure-bred rams can best be undertaken by persons experienced in sheep raising. The selection of the type and breed of sheep should be made by considering the class of pasture and feeds available and the general system of farming to be followed, along with the peculiarities of the breeds and the conditions and kind of feeding and management for which each has been especially developed.

It is highly advantageous for all, or a majority, of the farms in a neighborhood, to keep the same breed of sheep, or at least to continue the use of rams of the same breed. After a decision has been made as to a suitable breed, the aim should be to obtain ewes that are individually good and that have as many crosses as possible of the breed selected. With such a foundation and the continuous use of good pure-bred rams of the same breed, the flock will make continuous improvement. In looking for ewes of desired types and breeding it will often be found impossible to get them near at home at a reasonable price. Ewes from the Western ranges can be obtained directly from a stockyard market. For the most part the range ewes are of Merino breeding. First-class ewe lambs, and less often older stock bred on the range and sired by rams of the down or long-wool breeds, are sometimes obtainable. These, or even the Merino ewes, furnish a foundation for the flock that can be quickly graded up by using rams of the breed preferred. The lambs from Merino ewes and mutton rams grow well and sell well if well cared for, but the yield is less than when ewes with some mutton blood are used. The sheep from the range are less often infested with internal parasites than are farm sheep, and in the large shipments there is opportunity for closer selection.

Young Ewes Preferred.

Yearling or two-year-old ewes are preferable to older stock. Ewes with "broken mouths"—that is those that have lost some of their teeth as a result of age—can be purchased cheaper than younger ones, but are not good property for inexperienced sheep raisers.

In buying ewes, particularly those from the range, it is desirable, when possible, to examine the udders to see that they are free from lumps that would prevent the ewes from being milkers. It is necessary to guard also against buying ewes that are useless as breeders, because of the ends of the teats having been clipped off at shearing.

Size of Flock.

Persons wholly inexperienced with sheep will do well to limit the size of the flock at the start. A beginner can acquire experience quite rapidly with 8 or 10 ewes. It is very doubtful, however, whether anyone should make a start with sheep unless the arrangement of the farm and the plan of its operation allow the keeping of as many as 30 ewes, and in most cases 60 or more will be handled better and more economically than a very small flock.

The economical disadvantage of a very small flock lies in the fact that the hours of labor are practically the same for a dozen or 20 ewes as for the larger flock. The fencing to allow desirable change of pastures or to give protection against dogs is about the same in either case, so that the overhead charges per ewe are much smaller in the case of the larger flock. Furthermore, the small flock on a farm having large numbers of other animals is unlikely to receive the study and attention really needed or that would be given to one of the chief sources of the farm income.

CLOTHE A SOLDIER

Start a new flock now and clothe a soldier boy for Uncle Sam. Twenty sheep, at least, are needed to provide wool for his hat, his shirt and socks, his underwear and blankets. How many boys are you going to keep warm?

Housing the Flock.

Equipment for raising sheep on farms need not be expensive. In mild latitudes little housing is needed, and the main need is for fencing and pastures of sufficient number and size to allow frequent changing of flocks to fresh ground to insure health. Where winters are longer and more severe, buildings and sheds are necessary to furnish protection from storms, though no special provisions are needed for warmth. Dryness, good ventilation, and freedom from drafts are the first requisites of buildings for sheep. Convenience in feeding and shepherding must also be held in mind in locating and planning such buildings or sheds.

Small flocks can be cared for in sections of barns having stabling or feed storage for other stock, but with a flock of, say, 100 ewes separate buildings are desirable. The interior arrangement of these buildings should be such as to require a minimum of labor and the least possible moving of the ewes in doing the feeding and caring for them during the lambing season. A building of this type can also be utilized for fattening purchased lambs to be disposed of before lambing begins in the regular farm flock. A good supply of feed racks, grain troughs, etc., can be provided at small expense and will save labor and prevent waste of feed.

Fall Feeding for Sheep.

Stubble and stalk fields may well form the principal means of sustenance for the breeding flock in the fall if they are used before the rains injure their feeding value. Fence strips in plowed fields may also give good grazing for a few days. Clover and grass pastures may well be left until the stubble and stalk fields have been used. For regions where the winters are open, a heavy stand of well-cured bluegrass will help very much in carrying the flock through the winter in good condition. Green rye pastures in the late fall give considerable succulence and furnish exercise for the flock. In the South velvet beans will be found of great help in carrying the flock into January.

Milk Is Nature's Food.

It is very difficult to compare foods on the basis of mineral matter they contain, but all physiologists agree that milk is very valuable from this standpoint. It is food prepared by nature especially for the growth and development of the young. A quart of milk a day is a good allowance for a growing child.

SET WITS TO WORK

Woman Proved Herself Heroine in Emergency.

With Husband Disabled by Broken Leg She Employed Unique Signal to Bring Help That Might Save Him.

The following would be almost unbelievable if the facts were not the talk of the community and if it were not substantiated by the various participants. In Penobscot bay, three miles from Islesboro, is a little island known as Mark island, owned by Preston Player, a State street broker of Boston, and he there maintains a big summer place. The keeper is Ralph Collamore of Lincolnville, who in the winter, with his wife and two children, makes his home on the island in a little cottage.

On Wednesday, January 23, he took the boat and started for Islesboro. Three hours were taken in making the trip of three miles by water. He came back and upon landing and pulling the boat up onto the shore on Mark island he pulled the boat over onto him, pinning him down and breaking his leg. His wife kept looking for her husband's return and finally, attracted by his groans, found him pinned under the boat. She is a frail woman but with him hanging onto his injured limb, she managed to drag him up to the cottage. There with the aid of a leather wallet and sticks she set the leg the best she could. There they were practically isolated and help was needed badly.

Mrs. Collamore, full of pluck and determination to get help, went to the Player summer home. There she managed to set agoing the electric dynamo by which the place is lighted. She turned on every light in that big house and put on also a red light. The lights were run all day Thursday and not until 5:45 Thursday afternoon was the light noticed at Dark Harbor. Telephone calls were sent to the naval station and the tug Zizania started to Dark Harbor to see what was the trouble. Dark Harbor was reached about 9:30 Thursday night. There no one knew what was the trouble at Mark island. The Zizania cut her way through the ice, in some places 8 and 10 inches thick, for three miles to the island. Captain Sherman and nine men went ashore. They made their way to the lighted house and there found no one. Groping along in the darkness they were frightened by the sudden uprising of a flock of turkeys from a tree. Then they came upon the cottage in total darkness with the door open but no signs of life about. Going in they found the courageous little woman asleep, the injured man half asleep and both children slumbering. The tug went back to Dark Harbor and there found a doctor who was brought back to Mark island. The Zizania remained at Mark island until four o'clock Friday morning when the injured man was attended to.—Bangor Commercial.

Britain's Indians.

The Indians in the British army on the western front, notably the Sikhs, that highly disciplined military force from British India, have little in common with the American red men. They come from the other side of the earth; they are sons of a deeply religious sect, and for 50 years or more have been an important factor in the British dominion of the far East.

They are tall, well-built, handsome men, most of them with beards, and in perfection of drill and military bearing they are not excelled by any troops on the western front.

But while their methods of fighting are quite dissimilar, the Sikh fighting force being a well-trained military machine while the American Indian is a flexible unit, there is one thing in which they are very much alike. As a humorous English writer—Punch and its punsters still live—puts it:

"I have had an opportunity to study both the Indians of the East and the Indians of the West, and while they are very dissimilar in most things, when it comes to courage, I may be excused for saying that it is Sikhs of one and a half dozen of the other!"

Stenographers to Go to France.

A unit of 25 expert women stenographers, who will wear a distinctive uniform, is now being recruited in the United States for overseas service. This group will be assigned to the quartermaster's corps of the American expeditionary forces and to the headquarters of the staff of General Pershing. Each applicant for service must be an experienced stenographer. She will be required to own in her own equipment four uniforms (two for winter and two for summer service). She must pass a physical examination, and will be engaged for the period of the war. The salary now stated is $1,000 a year with the additional allowance of $4 a day for the first month and $2 a day for the remainder of the time.

The Upper Class.

"So you wish to marry my daughter?" said the proud parent.

"Yes, sir," replied the young man.

"How much money are you making?" asked the governor.

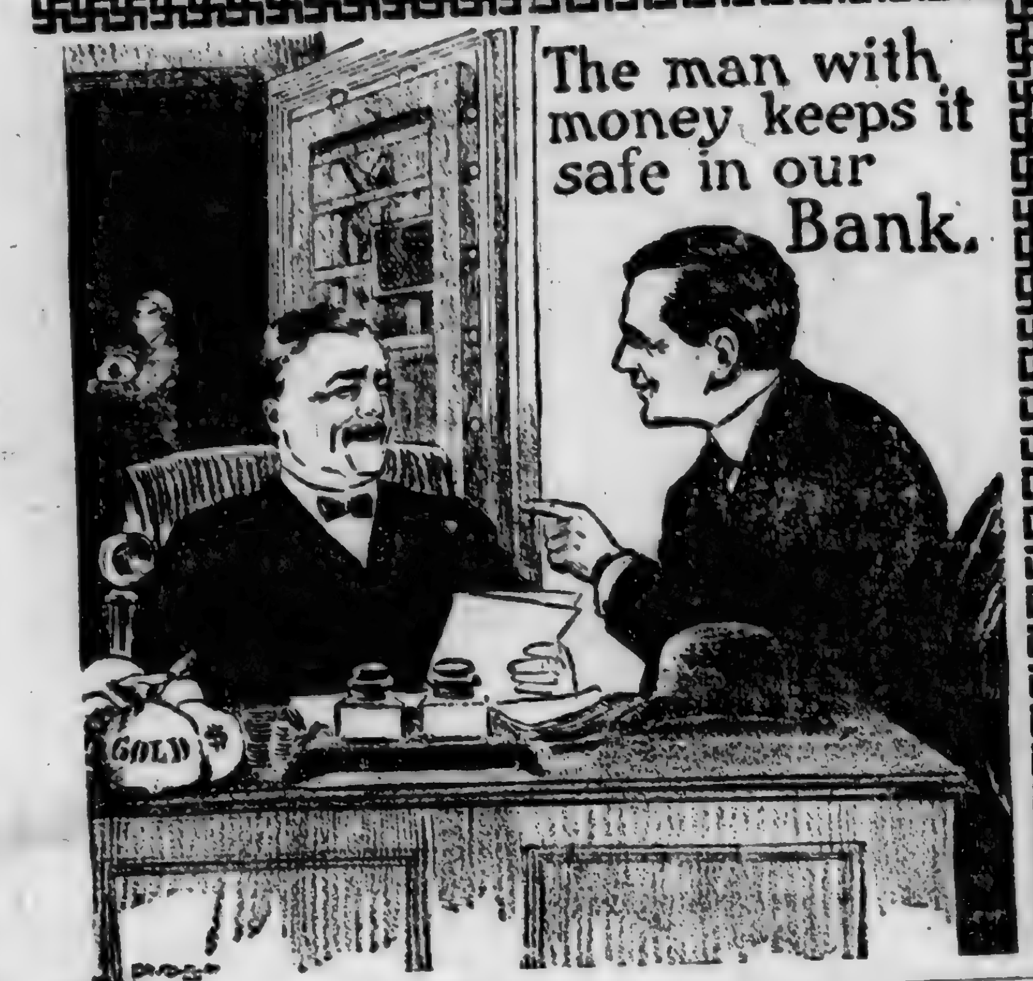
"Forty dollars a week," was the reply.

"Forty dollars a week! Why my daughter can make that in a munitions plant and not work overtime."

AUGUST

L 90

0489



The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

1. An account in this bank is your best recommendation
   - —It is business like.
   - —It shows you are capable of tending your affairs
   - —It shows steady character and will power to get ahead.
   - —It puts you in a class with the influential men of the community.

A Check is a Receipt—GET THAT.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

Hey There! We want those $ $$ that's due us on subscriptions-You know your stand'g

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS

By Dr. Harry E. Barnard,
Federal Food Administrator for Indiana

As a temporary arrangement, the Federal Food Administration has announced a new wheat flour regulation. When the farmer brings to the mill wheat grown by himself, the miller is privileged to deliver to him, on a toll or exchange basis, without any substitutes, eight pounds per month per capita allowance of wheat flour, upon his certifying that the wheat was grown by himself, and that the amount of flour to be delivered to him at that time, with the amount on hand, will not give him a supply more than sufficient to meet the requirements of his household, or establishment, the number thereof being stated, and pledging that he will not sell, loan or deliver any of the flour to anyone else, nor permit its use except for such human consumption as indicated. This exchange basis is extended to elevators and mills.

For selling sugar at 11 cents a pound, which the Federal Food Administration regards as profiteering, Henry Shultz, a grocer of Cooley, Indiana, which is near Gary, has been deprived of the privilege of selling sugar until the end of the war.

A. R. Powell, who operates two groceries at Linton, was found guilty of having misrepresented the amount of sugar on hand July 1, and was deprived of the privilege of selling sugar until October 1. Powell made an affidavit that he had 1,000 pounds of sugar on hand and an investigation disclosed 5,560 pounds.

Any grocer found violating the regulations for Sunday closing, will have his supplies cut off. Grocers can not violate the food regulations and expect to get any of the licensed commodities from the Food Administration. Manifestly, it is unfair to those obeying the regulations to have a certain few disregarding them, and henceforth, we mean to see that this rule is strictly complied with.

No sugar will be permitted for use in the making of vinegar. Throughout the rural districts particularly, various kinds of vinegar are made by householders in which sugar has been one of the ingredients, but from this time no such use of sugar will be permitted.

Threshing and buying of damp wheat is absolutely contrary to the desires and purposes of the Food Administration, and is contrary to the principles of food conservation. Wheat should not be threshed or purchased containing over 14 per cent. moisture. Dealers who purchase damp wheat and permit it to get out of condition will be considered guilty of contributing to the destruction of foodstuffs.

It will be considered an unfair practive for buyers of wheat to place, intentionally, a lower grade on wheat than that to which it is entitled under the federal standard. Protests have been received by the Food Administration and by the State Council of Defense, that buyers in some instances, were endeavoring to buy wheat below its real value through an inferior grading. The U. S. Grain Corporation says it will not be an unfair practice to pay the basic No. 1 price on wheat even if the wheat grades lower. Conviction for unfair practice carries a penalty of forfeiture of license, which means elimination from business, and all such attempts to deprive the wheat grower of the price to which he is honestly entitled under the regulations should be reported at once.

Except that Victory bread may contain 75 pounds of wheat flour, 20 pounds of substitutes and 5 pounds of rye flour, which latter permission is intended to take care of stocks of rye carried over from last year's harvest and where new rye is coming in, the substitute regulations as applied to the baking industry remain unchanged.

Restrictions as to the use of animal fats by bakers, have been eliminated, except that they are to be used economically.

Butter held by any food licensee must be sold without regard to existing market or replacement value at not more than a reasonable advance over cost. The Food Administration prohibits speculation in butter.

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Subscribe for this paper.

Joe Winebrenner and family are now residents of Fort Wayne, moving there on Tuesday from the Erick farm.

Magazines at News office.

Miss Laura Shutt, of Harlan, is making her aunt, Mrs. Katharine Hamilton, an indefinite visit.

Class No. 5 of the Coburntown Sunday school, and teacher, Mrs. Will Hamilton, ate Sunday dinner at Dills grove.

The Girl With Thirteen Daddies.

Story written especially for The News by Local Talent and is worthy of your weekly attention. Back numbers supplied while they last.

CHAPTER X.

A year had passed since the visit of the little lady, and word of her final home coming had been received. The thirteen were gathered about the stove considering the good news, and radiantly happy daddies they were. The preliminaries had been observed in due form, which was attested to by the combination of tobacco and powder smoke that filled the room almost to the point of suffocation and by a noticeable addition to the decorations of the ceiling; and they were listening to words of wisdom from Jedge, who was drawing upon his inexhaustible cerebral supply.

"Pardners, we all knows what to expect when that thar little lady o' ourn'n comes home. Our little pet is gone forever—we all sent away a girl an' she's comin' back a woman. We'll love her as much as we ever did, but we'll love her in another way. She'll love us as much as she ever did, but she'll love us in another way. She'll come back loyal an' true to her daddies, an' I'll back that thar opinion with my last white chip."

"An' no copperin' goes," added Fiddler.

Jedge's speech was short—for him; and had the little lady, who was at the time on her way to Paradise Lost, heard it, she might have turned back, for her daddies were looking forward to a daughter who was to be all their own.

The little lady, however, continued her journey, while her daddies waited. All things earthly have an end, and the journey of the one and the waiting of the others ended when the stage drew up at Paradise Lost one evening. The door opened and Mrs Dal, who had gone to the railroad station over the mountains to meet the little lady, alighted. That looked promising, and the daddies pressed forward. Out stepped—

"THE PARSON!" (Chorus of surprise.)

Choate assisted Margaret from the stage. She looked toward her daddies, and what she saw there caused her the severest agony she ever had been called upon to endure. For the first time, no love light shone from their eyes; and the young preacher was the object of menacing looks. The daddies felt that the little lady had betrayed them and that Choate was implicated in the betrayal.

Margaret struggled forward, scarcely realizing what she did. Into her face came that look of pathetic appeal they remembered so well. There was the same reaching out to them. She uttered but two words: "Oh, daddies!" It was the forsaken child crying out to them through the woman—it was the echo of her first appeal to them: "You'll be good to me—won't you, daddies?"

Margaret did not have to wait long for an answer: Jedge—warmhearted, impulsive Jedge—rushed to her and took her into his arms.

"Pardners, our little lady's done jest what God Almighty created her fer, an' we can't buck His game."

Fish Hook followed.

"Pardners, are them ears o' mine gettin' any longer?' Without waiting for an answer, he continued: "If they ain't, it ait't because I ain't the biggest jackass alive; an' so be you all. We sends the nicest little lady in the world to whar men are an' then bucks like bronchos 'cause one o' 'em falls in love with her. I'm bettin' blue chips agin white ones our little lady played the game right."

"How about the parson?" asked Choate.

"Parson, how can you ask sech a crazy hoss question with our little lady standin' afore you? You shore played the game right; an' if you'd played it any other way, I'd used a gun next time me an' you fit. Pardners," addressing the other daddies, "come an' kiss our little lady an' shake hands with the parson"

They started, and then they stopped. The little lady stopped them. No, that is not quite true. She bore in her arms something that Mrs. Dal had placed there. It might have passed for a bundle of frills and ribbons if within had not appeared a pair of blinking eyes, a snub nose and a puckered up mouth and, above these, a pair of tiny fists that sparred at nothing. This halted the daddies. They did more—they bared their heads before the little lady and the little image of herself she bore. Proudly she came and from her eyes shone a reflection of that light which painters give to the Holy Mother. Straight to Dutch she went and placed her babe into the arms that had first held her.

"Margaret Dalrymple Choate," she said.

"The little lady, j-r.," added Calamity.

"Nein, nein, dot leedle leedle lady," corrected Dutch.

"That's right—the little little lady," shouted Red.

"An' we all's her gran'daddies," roared Deacon.

And then something happened. In the end, the little lady, Mrs. Dal, the parson and the daddies were somewhat mussed up but happy, and the little little lady looked as nearly surprised as it is possible for such a mite of humanity to look.

"Bang!"

Peddler's gun spoke. The little little lady blinked—that's all-western blood told. Gun after gun spoke as the daddies shot their enthusiasm into the air. The noise brought out the residents of Paradise Lost, as shooting always did Jedge felt that an explanation was in order. He mounted a box and began.

"Gents, our little lady's come back an' brought the little little lady with her." Jedge went no further with his explanation, but his speech was not ended. "Them two is used to breathin' pure air, an' we all aims to purify the air o' Paradise Lost fer 'em."

Jedge paused and questioned his partners with his eyes. What he saw there encouraged him to proceed.

"Fustly, Greaser Juan will turn the key on the Adobe. He'd better lose said key fer fear he may be tempted to reopen said place of amoosment, which would shore turn one house down Mexico way into a house o' mournin'. Secondly, thar'll be no rattlin' o' chips at Headley's on Sunday. Thirdly, them as fails to lay in a supply o' red likker will think they're livin' in the middle o' the Sahary all day Sunday. Fourthly, me an' my pardners, as daddy-in-laws of a parson, announces that thar'll be preachin' here every Sunday."

"An' lastly," added Peddler laying a hand impressively on his right hip, "any violation o' them rules incurs my displeasure; an' the delooded individool so doin' had fust better stake out a claim in that thar grave yard up thar in the hills."

(THE END)

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

Cash cream station at J. Beams store. Highest price paid.

Charles Jackson, wife and daughter, Mabel, spent Sunday with John Timmerman and wife, of Spencerville.

The W. C. T. U will meet Friday with Mrs. John Koch. A good attendance is desired, as there will be election of officers.

Joseph Caw and family, of Detroit, came Monday evening to visit at the home of Mrs. Caw's mother, Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

The Martha society will not meet this week.

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

Miss Edna Jackson spent Sunday with her uncle, Hollis Jackson, and wife.

Thayer Northrup and family spent Sunday with Will Hamilton and family.

Stanley Koch, of Fort Wayne, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents.

Cad Woodcox and family, of Garrett, were guests of Mrs. Emma Woodcox on Tuesday.

Mrs. William Booth, of Pierceton, came Monday evening to visit her nephew, H. C. Hathaway.

Mrs. Elma Brown returned home on Tuesday from an over-Sunday visit with Auburn relatives.

Mrs. Lucinda Braybrook, of Allen county, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Frank Scholes.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Mrs. Minnie Sircle and daughter, Frances, of Springfield, Ohio, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Hannah Ulm.

Milton Wolff and son, Robert, of Edon, and Commodore Dewitt and daughter, Lillie, of Arctic, spent Sunday with Sherman Wolff and wife.

Grover Curie and wife on Sunday entertained Harry Henderson and family, of Walkerville, Mich., and C. C. Curie and wife at Sunday dinner.

Mrs. Anna Dilley went to Auburn on Wednesday to attend the Wyatt family reunion. She remained for several days' visit in that vicinity.

Frank Shaffer and family, of Syracuse, and Adolph Fry and wife, of Auburn, were Sunday guests at the J. N. George and Fred B. Leighty homes.

Mesdames Saxe Hadsell, Will Hamilton and Frank Bachtel on Monday visited Mesdames Earl McPherson and Jo. Miller, of Peru, at the home of Mrs. I. S. Hadsell, of Hicksville.

Mrs. Norton Barker, of Michigan City, field inspector for the American Red Cross, was present at the surgical dressing room Tuesday afternoon and gave a most interesting talk to the ladies present, which all enjoyed.

Among those from this place who on Sunday attended the yearly meeting of the Church of Christ at Auburn were Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Spayd, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, A. D. Perry and wife, Rolland Bearss and wife, Clyde Mason and family, George Wilmot and family, Ray Herrick and family, E. R. Kinsey and family, Elder J. Scholes, Mrs. Susie Scholes, Mrs. Emma Abel and Mrs. S. E. Warner.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ST. JOE AND SURROUNDING COMMUNITY.

There being so Drug Store in our Thriving City and understanding how inconvenient it has been for you to obtain the articles you require in that line, and in order to make it more convenient for you to obtain the articles required, I have added to my line of Groceries a small line of the ordinary Drugs and Patent Medicines, which I will increase as soon and as fast as I learn the needs of the people of this and surrounding community. Anything in the line which I do not have in stock, I will be pleased to order same for you at the most convenient place so you will not be required to wait but a few hours for your order.

Any article required by the people in the country, call my store by Phone and I will be glad to send it to you by R. F. D.

All orders will receive our personal attention.

I will appreciate your business in this line, besides our regular line of goods.

ED. LEIGHTY, St. JOE.

—If you want to see a complete line of canned goods—we have it.

COLETOWN

George Brown and wife took dinner Sunday with J. D. Brown.

Howard Martin, wife and baby visited Sunday at the Charles Worden home.

Fred Martin and family spent Sunday afternoon with Lester Pierman and family.

Mrs. Henry Schoolmaster and daughter, Margaret, are visiting at the R. H. Conine home.

Elton Brown, wife and son, Robert, visited Sunday afternoon with Dwight Coolidge and wife.

Alvin Walker and family and Charles Walker and wife spent Sunday at Hamilton lake.

Miles Brown, who had been visiting his brother, J. D. Brown, returned to his home at VanBuren, Ohio, Monday.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale: Jersey cow and two heifer calves. John Knight.

Found: Log chain, east of the Thomas White corners. Call on Geo. Swineford.

For Sale: Two fresh cows with calves, also two to be fresh soon. Inquire of R. U. Bowser, Spencerville, Ind. Phone 36-12

For Sale: Fresh cow and thoroughbred Holstein bull. T. A. Northrup, St. Joe.

For Sale: Team work horses, 8 and 12 years old. B. W. Welch, Spencerville.

For Sale: Five year old Durham cow, and a sow to farrow soon. F. A. Lothamer.

For Sale Very Cheap.--Single buggy, two-seated single carriage and set single harness. J. C. COONS, St. Joe.

Strayed.--Red brood sow; weight, about 250 pounds. Finder phone to Samuel Fellers, No. 9-21, Rt. 2, St. Joe.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 16
ST. JOE, - - - IND

A Sluggish Liver Needs Attention

An Inactive Liver Affects the Kidneys and Deranges the Stomach and Bowels.

Too much stress can not be placed on the necessity of keeping the liver in good condition; upon it the health of the body largely depends. When the liver becomes sluggish, the kidneys are overworked, the digestive fluids are not properly secreted and a languid, bilious, nervous or sick headachy condition results. Poisonous matter accumulates within the body. Constipation, bloating, dizziness, belching, pain or soreness in the right side, impaired vision and, in fact, most diseases have their origin in an inactive liver. An inactive liver is easily corrected if taken in time, but the only way to doctor is to get at the cause. Glando Tonic is a liver remedy that has a splendid record for renewing activity, removing the poisons and building up the system. For bilious attacks, it can not be beaten. Mothers who are nursing a baby should take Glando Tonic to keep the bowels well regulated. This will keep baby's bowels in a good condition. Glando Tonic is a three-in-one treatment that brings results. A trial will convince the most skeptical. Testimonials will be furnished upon request. Glando Tonic is sold by druggists or may be obtained by sending 50c direct to the Grand-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

SEPTEMBER

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0491

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5 1918 NO. 36

Must Pay In Advance!

In order to effect further saving in the consumption of print paper, the government at Washington has issued an order directing publishers of newspapers to discontinue sending papers to all substribers that are three months or more behind on their subscriptions. This order goes into effect on Oct. 1, 1918. Following are the government rules:

No publisher may continue subscriptions longer than three months after the expiration of such subscription unless it is renewed and paid for.

No publisher may give free copies of his paper except for actual service rendered.

No publisher shall send free copies in exchange for other publications, except to such other publications as are printed within the county or within a radius of forty miles from his point of publication.

No publisher shall sell his paper at an exceedingly low or nominal subscription price, but shall sell at the regular subscription price.

No publisher shall offer premiums with his publication unless a price is put upon such premium separately and the combined price is at least 75 per cent. of the sum of the individual prices.

No publisher shall conduct voting or other contests for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions. Subscriptions obtained in this way shall not be considered bona fide.

No publisher may issue holiday, industrial or other special editions.

Any violation of these rules subjects the paper so doing to the loss of his entire paper supply, the mills and dealers not being allowed to sell him any paper.

Concord Teachers

Trustee Hathaway has secured a full corps of teachers for the Concord township schools, which begin Sept. 16. Following are the ones engaged for St. Joe:

Superintendent.—F. L. Smith, Harlan.
Principal.—Miss Marie Brown, Auburn.
Assistant Principal.—Miss Louise Willis, Waterloo.
Manual Training and Music.—C. A. Woodcox. (Mr. Woodcox's services will be divided between the Spencerville and St. Joe schools.)
Seventh and Eighth Grades.—Clyde Hart.
Intermediate.—Miss Ella B. Brown, Hamilton.
Primary.—Miss Gladys Kain.

Following are the teachers engaged for the different country schools:

Hays.—Miss Bessie Miller, Newville.
Saylor.—Miss Norma Gamble.
Cheesetown.—Mrs. Agnes Monroe.

Mail Carrying Bids

Sealed bids will be received at the St. Joe postoffice until Sept. 10, 1918, for carrying mail between said postoffice and the Wabash station.

POSTMASTER.

Highest price paid for cream at J. Beams' store.

Make Your Hogs Laugh

—By Feeding—

PIONEER

Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market, as you may know by the following ingredients:

Wheat middlings, Corn feed meal, Linseed oil meal, Ground and bolted screenings from wheat, barley and kaffir and dried buttermilk

To Contain Not Less Than

3.0 % of Crude fat.
12.0 % crude protein, not more than
12.0 % crude fiber.

PRICE: $3.50 for 100 lbs.

We have Coal For Thrashing.

The teward Lumber & Grain Co.

Spencerville, Indiana

The Liberty Loan quotas are based and calculated almost entirely on bank resources, by reason of which the quota of OUR COUNTY is increased by the accounts of our depositors regardless of where they live.

Subscribers should remember this and should therefore enter their subscriptions through the banks with which they have bank accounts. Solicitors should be firmly instructed not to deflect a subscription or to attemp to divert it into any county. It should be placed with the bank with which the subscriber has his bank account.

Official credit will be properly taknn by the county in which the bank is located through which the subscription is entered. It is where this bank account lives which counts, rather than where the subscriber himself lives.

A flag credit, to be counted in obtaining the Community Honor Flag, may be taken by the county and township in which the subscriber lives. Official credit should not be taken by the County Chairman taking the flag credit unless the bank account and subscriber "LIVE" in the same county.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

Young Forger on Trial.

Drew up a Check for $850.00. Austin Koeppe of near Butler, 18, Tell False Story While on Witness Stand in DeKalb Circuit Court. Judge Link Withold Sentence Until October Term—Counsel Hopes to Present Additional Evidence in Boy's Favor.

AUBURN STAR

Persistency in telling falsehoods when the truth would serve better, proved a mistaken policy for Austin Koeppe of near Butler. In his hearings before Judge Link in the DeKalb circuit court, he was found guilty of swearing to untruths and the court was not very well impressed with his attitude.

After being in the county jail for almost a month following his confession that he had forged a check for $850 on Noragon & Son of Butler, young Koeppe had thrown himself on the mercy of the court. He told what purported to be all the circumstances in the case. He had been warned that he should tell the entire truth, but Judge Link did not think the youth heeded the advice, and he ordered the presentation of the evidence of the witnesses.

How the Check Was Cashed.

Koeppe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Koeppe, were in the court room with him Saturday morning, as well as his counsel, J. E. Pomeroy. Ross Tomlinson, assistant cashier of the Knisely bank of Butler, related the circumstances of the presentation of the forged check to him at the bank on Saturday, August 3, by young Koeppe. He scrutinized the check, asked Koeppe if his father had threshed, and received an affirmative reply.

In response to another question, Koeppe had said that the check had been made out by neither of the Noragons, but by a man working at their elevator. Mr. Tomlinson went to the vault, got a $500 package of currency, counted out $350 more in currency and gave it all to the youth. The latter did not count the money, but placed it in a pocket on the inside of his coat.

Two hours later, Mr. Knisely found out from the Noragons that their firm had not issued such a check. Then Mr. Tomlinson drove out to the Koeppe farm and the youth denied there that he had been at the bank that day. He went back to Butler with Mr. Tomlinson and declared to Mr. Knisely that he had not been at the bank and knew nothing about the check. He made the same kind of statement when taken to Attorney W. P. Endicott's office.

Admitted He Had the Money.

A short time later Mr. Tomlinson went with Sheriff Frank Baltz to the Koeppe place. He at first denied to them that he knew anything about the crime, but finally admitted to the sheriff that he had the money and he declared he had all of it.

Accompanied by his father, Mr. Tomlinson and the sheriff, the youth went upstairs to his room and got a roll of currency from a box where he had hidden it. Mr. Tomlinson at once counted it and then announced that it was $30 short. Koeppe said he did not know what had become of the missing amount, as he had not spent any of the roll.

What became of the $30 is still a mystery to the court. The elder Koeppe thought that possibly a mistake had been made by Mr. Tomlinson in the amount he had given the youth at the bank, but Mr. Tomlinson does not believe a mistake was made.

Had a Bundle of Currency.

Wesley Mutzfeld of Butler, testified that young Koeppe had come into the Mutzfeld store at Butler between 11:30 and 12 o'clock on the day of the commission of the crime and bought articles costing 32 cents. He tendered a $10 bill in payment, but when informed there was not enough change in the drawer, he took back the $10 bill and handed out a $5 bill, which was changed. These bills Koeppe took from an inside coat pocket and Mr. Mutzfeld remarked to him that he had a lot of money to carry around loose, but Koeppe said he "was not afraid."

Roscoe Etchen, a neighborhood friend of young Koeppe, told what he knew about the case. He said that on Friday Austin had driven to his home and they had gone to Newville and then, with Ivan Smith of Newville, they had proceeded to Butler. Austin told his friends he was going to the bank and the others said they would wait for him at the pool room. Koeppe was gone fifteen or twenty minutes and then the three returned to their homes.

On Saturday afternoon Etchen said Austin came to his house again and told him that if anyone asked if they had been at Butler the day before, Etchen should say not—he should say they had been at Newville only. Koeppe did not explain the reason for the request, but Etchen said he thought Austin had had some trouble with his parents.

Was in a "Fix."

Fred Sayler of St. Joe, told the court that he had called on Austin in the county jail since he was arrested and had asked him if he didn't think he was a fool for forging the check. He testified that Austin had answered that if Fred had been in the "same fix that day he would have done the same thing." When Sayler asked him was the trouble was, Austin said he would tell him some time.

Mr. Pomeroy then put his client on the stand to re-tell his story. The youth said he first thought of forging the check on Friday and that he wanted to get the money in order to buy an automobile. He said he had had trouble all summer about driving his father's and his brother's machines and wanted to have one of his own. When he went to Butler with Etchen and Smith he admitted he had told them he was going to the bank, but that instead he went to the Noragon elevator. While no one was in the elevator office he tore one of the blank checks from the firm's check book.

The Unfortunate Trip.

The following morning, at home, he wrote out the check. Then he drove to Butler with his mother and sister, and while they were at a private residence he went to the bank and cashed the check. Then he went to the Mutzfeld store and thence to a fruit stand, getting some candy, ice cream and cigars at the latter place and tendering a $10 bill in payment. He said he used the $10 bill instead of some silver in his pocket in order to get a $5 bill to loan to his brother, George. He said he had received the $5 bill and $10 bill from his brother some time before in payment for labor and declared he used these at the Mutzfeld store and the fruit store and did not spend any of the $850 roll any place.

Exposure of Falsehoods.

The judge pointed out to Koeppe that in his first hearing he had said he did not have any reason for committing the forgery, while now he admitted that he had planned to buy an automobile; that he had said at the first hearing that he had not remarked to Etchen and Smith that he was going to the bank, while now he admitted that Etchen's testimony to this effect was true; that at the first hearing he had declared he did not go to any business places between the time he cashed the check and the time he went home with his mother and sister, while now he admitted he had visited the Mutzfeld store and the fruit store. The judge told him he had apparently attempted to avoid telling the truth until he was caught in a falsehood, and the judge added that he could not place any confidence in his statements.

Koeppe cried on the stand and said he could not tell why he had told lies. He said he had prayed and that if he were given a chance this time he would be good in the future.

Postpones the Case.

When court convened after dinner the judge told Koeppe that his failure to be frank and truthful made it difficult to reach a decision; that there seemed to be no reason for clemency to be shown and that he had believed sentence should be passed at once; but that Mr. Pomeroy had asked that the case be continued until the October term of court in order that if possible additional evidence in the boy's favor could be submitted. The court had complied with the request, and he told Koeppe he hoped he will have a different attitude when he is brought into court the next time.

The judge then remandeded Koeppe into the custody of the sheriff and he was taken back to his cell in the county jail.

J. W. Lounsberry, of Elkhart, a one-time resident of this place, spent several days here the past week meeting old friends.

Notice to Patrons

Having decided to take a vacation for about one year, I must clean up all accounts due me before leaving; and all of said accounts remaining unpaid will be sold at public auction with the rest of my valuables. The mill will be in charge of Don Hindman. Time of leaving, three weeks. Give this notice your attention and greatly oblige.

W. L. WALLACE.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	94	3.87
M. P.	85	4.21
Christian	51	2.10
M. E. Spencer	97	4.80
Lutheran	136	6.50
Concord
Newville U B	72	2.74
Coburntown	68	2.45

PROTECT Your Grain

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

No Hard Coal For St. JOE, IND.

Lay In Your SOFT COAL

NOW!

We are soroy to announce that St. Joe was not included in the list of Indiana towns to receive hard coal this coming season.

We have a great many cars of Soft Coal Coming So Place Your Order NOW. We Cannot Promise That we will receive Shipment of All the Coal we have Bought, SO GET YOURS OFF THE NEXT CAR.

This is a Little Friendly Advise.

Remember Last Winter. Prepare NOW.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Manager

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0492

The KITCHEN CABINET

Some are always finding fault with nature for having put thorns on roses. I always thank her for putting roses on thorns.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

SMALLEST bits of a candle may be used, tied in a cloth for a flat iron smoother.

Use a crochet hook to catch up the threads in a run in a silk stocking; it is much more satisfactory than drawing.

A piece of scouring soap put through the meat grinder will sharpen the knives.

Mend a torn hairnet with a hair from your own head.

When using bacon to season vegetables, like strong beans, cabbage or greens, put the bacon through the meat grinder; it will go further in seasoning and save on the amount of bacon.

Paste a piece of velvet or felt in the bottom of the heel of each shoe, or if the back of the heel wears out first, put a piece of velvet there. It will save wear.

Old stockings make fine braided borders for rag rugs.

Make over the worn tablecloths into smaller lunch cloths, napkins or tray cloths. The thinnest portions should be put into the emergency cupboard to be used in case of wounds.

Keep the heels of the shoes straight; this will save rubbers and backaches. Rubbers worn over turned over shoe heels will wear out often in one walking trip. A heel too high or worn unevenly will throw the body out of balance, causing many ills.

To make two pounds of butter out of one pound soften it and mix with a pint of new milk; add salt, and be sure it is carefully mixed. The butter will be lighter in color, not so solid, but will save on the butter bill.

Paint the inside of the garbage can with two coats of paint before using. It will not rust and lasts much longer.

Alum melted in an iron spoon makes a fine mender for glass or china. Hot water will not dissolve it.

When roasting a chicken, place it in the roasting pan, breast side down, then baste frequently. The juice will run down into the breast and make it of better flavor.

Be careful of your can tops. Do not bend the edges by putting a knife under them to remove the tops. To loosen the tops, turn upside down in hot water.

And since we've thought about it,
We mean to have a care,
And always in our pleasant things,
Let others have a share.

SUMMER SALADS.

DELICIOUS salad is always welcome at any meal, at any time of day.

Raisin and Apple Salad. — Wash and dry one cupful of seeded raisins, add one-fourth cupful of lemon juice, two cupfuls of apples, one cupful of mayonnaise. Line a bowl with lettuce, pile the apples and raisins in the center cover with the mayonnaise. Serve with neufchatel cheese balls and garnish with tart red jelly.

Banana and Apple Salad.—Line a bowl with lettuce. Slice three bananas and four apples, mix and put on lettuce. Mix one-half cupful of peanut butter with one-fourth of a cupful of French dressing and pour over the salad.

Roquefort Dressing.—Mash eight tablespoonfuls of roquefort with one teaspoonful of mustard, salt, pepper and paprika to taste, add one-fourth of a cupful of olive oil, stirring all the time, when smooth add one-fourth of a cupful of chili sauce, a tablespoonful of vinegar or lemon juice, a teaspoonful of table sauce. Serve on head lettuce.

String Bean Salad.—Take one quart of cold, cooked string beans. Add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil to two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, let stand for two hours; add a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and paprika and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Line a bowl with lettuce, put in the beans and onion and pour over the dressing.

Marquise Salad.—Wash and peel two firm tomatoes, cut in halves and place on lettuce. Chop half a cupful each of onion and parsley, add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and let stand two hours. On each piece of tomato heap a tablespoonful of the onion and parsley, then pour over French dressing. Serve very cold.

Potato and Celery Salad.—Take one quart of boiled, diced potatoes, one cupful of finely diced celery, one-half cupful of chopped onion, two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley, a cupful of boiled dressing. Add a hard cooked egg, chopping the white fine and rubbing the yolk through a sieve.

Little green onions sliced in cream with salt, pepper and a dash of vinegar, make a tasty salad to serve with bread and butter.

Prune Salad.—Wash and soak over night twenty large prunes. In morning cook gently and remove the pits. Mix two tablespoonfuls of peanut butter, one cream cheese and if too dry add a little cream, stuff the prunes. Serve on lettuce with French dressing.

To enrich the mind, and purify the heart, to keep the tongue still and the arms active, to eat slowly and sleep quietly, this is true philosophy.

VICTORY MEALS.

IN CORNMEAL mush we have a homely dish; but one that is very wholesome. As a breakfast cereal served with cream, milk or butter, it is a most nourishing dish. Cooked in skimmed milk instead of water it is more highly nutritious, making the mush almost double in food value.

Indian Pudding.—Cook one quart of milk in a double boiler 20 minutes, with one-fourth of a cupful of cornmeal; add three-fourths of a teaspoonful of ginger and one-third of a cupful of molasses. Pour into a buttered pudding dish and bake two hours in a slow oven or four hours in a fireless cooker. Serve with thin cream or top milk.

Cornmeal mush combined with chopped meat, seasonings of various kinds, such as fried onion, a cupful of tomatoes, or chopped green pepper, baked as one does any escalloped dish, makes a most satisfying main dish. Other vegetables, bit of left overs, may be added, changing the flavor and giving variety to the dish.

Spoon Bread.—Take two cupfuls of water, one cupful of milk, one cupful of cornmeal, one tablespoonful of fat, two eggs, and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Cook the cornmeal and water together five minutes. Beat eggs and add with the other ingredients. Beat well and bake in a well-greased dish for 25 minutes in a hot oven. Serve from the baking dish.

Corn Dodgers.—These are fine, served with a roast and gravy, to be eaten with the meat and vegetables. Take two cupfuls of cornmeal, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of fat, one and three-fourths cupfuls of boiling water. Pour the boiling water over the other ingredients, beat thoroughly and cool. Form into cakes and bake in a hot oven 30 minutes. This recipe makes 14 biscuits.

The cornmeal ground at home, using the whole kernel, is as much superior to the ordinary cornmeal as fresh foods are to canned. Housewives are beginning to realize that a hand mill, costing about $3, is a good investment. One may raise her own corn, and with a mill be perfectly independent.

He that tilleth his land shall be satisfied with bread; but he that followeth vain persons is void of understanding. —Prov. 12-11.

DELECTABLE DINNERS.

FRENCH and Italian cooks know how to season; their dishes will be palatable and plentiful, but the cost will be very low.

The musical names given some of our homely dishes surely do make them taste better. Our old fashioned cornmeal mush they call "polenta." Could it possibly taste as common as mush? Then on Friday they serve baccala, which is just our ordinary codfish, but it is so disguised that its friends find it hard to recognize it.

Baccala.—Freshen a pound and a half of codfish, if salty, by soaking over night, cut in four pieces and fry ten minutes in olive oil. For the sauce add a little olive oil to a saucepan, one clove of garlic, one chopped onion, one sliced green pepper, one bay leaf, two cloves; cook five minutes then add a small piece of butter, a half a pint of tomatoes, salt and pepper. Put in the fish and cover closely, let simmer two hours, adding water if the moisture dries out. Serve with hot cornmeal mush.

Roguone.—Few people like kidneys, for they are so often poorly prepared. Split and cut away all the white in veal or beef kidney; cut the kidney in cubes and drop into boiling water one minute. As it turns white, drain and place in a frying pan and cook in olive oil fifteen minutes. Then put into a casserole in which is a sauce like the one used for baccala with the addition of more garlic. Cook slowly for several hours. Serve with rice or polenta.

Braciola. — Take a pound of thin round steak, mash it out flat to a wafer-like thickness, cut into four strips, a few inches wide, and salt and pepper freely. Chop fine one clove of garlic, one small onion, a little parsley, with some savory dressing. Spread the seasoning along the middle of each strip. Roll and tie with thread and brown in a little fat, cook slowly thirty minutes.

Seasoned Veal (Scalopine).—Cook thin slice of veal, pounded thin, in olive oil, season with salt and pepper; when nearly done add a tablespoonful of vinegar. Serve hot.

Nellie Maxwell

IN THE LIMELIGHT

ITALY'S MAN OF THE HOUR

Though the world was ringing recently with the name of Gen. Armando Diaz, creator of the greatest victory his people have celebrated since they were knit together in a modern nation, he is one of the least-known men in Italy. Too short a time in supreme command of the army to have gathered about him the tradition of anecdote woven around most successful generals, his own reticence and modesty have kept him somewhat out of the public eye.

General Diaz comes of a noble family. As the name suggests, it is of Spanish origin and the Italian branch doubtless dates from one of the frequent Spanish invasions of centuries ago when Italy was the battlefield for the world.

Like Generals Foch and Petain, General Diaz began his career as an artillery officer. He was educated at the famous Military Academy of Turin and was graduated as a second lieutenant of artillery, in which branch of the service he remained until he was made a captain. But there is in Italy a still higher education for army officers, known as the school of war, for which 60 pupils are selected every year from the entire army. General Diaz was one of these 60, and year after year was among the few chosen to serve on the general staff.

NO UNION HOURS FOR HER

Canteen workers in the American Red Cross abroad do not observe union hours. Their work-day lasts as long as the opportunity holds to serve. Mrs. Belmont Tiffany of New York, now in France with the Red Cross, and her co-workers have been working 12 and 14 hours a day to make things more cheery and comfortable for our boys "over there."

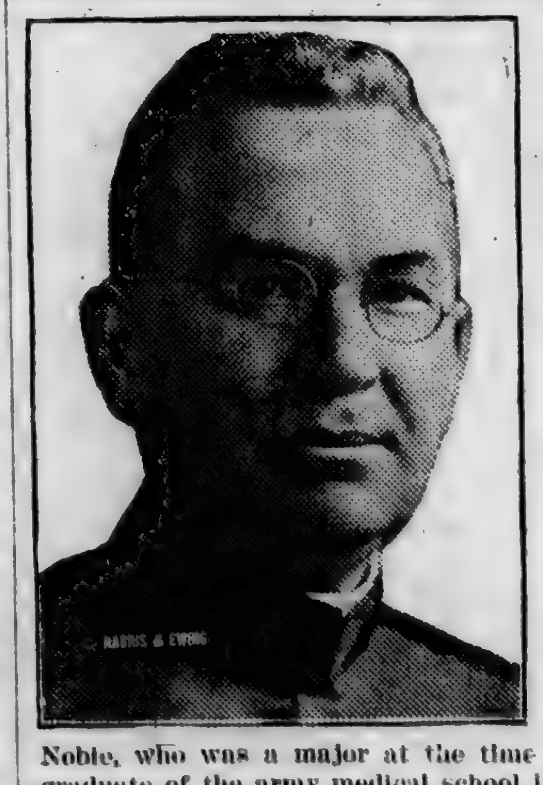
"We feel," Mrs. Tiffany writes, "that the least we should give our men are warmth and cleanliness and color whenever we can. War is such a dirty, ugly, sordid thing. Picture to yourself 50 dirty, tired men falling out of a cattle train where they have been cooped up two or three days with a detachment of mules, eating and sleeping with them! They have a few hours' wait, so they take a hot shower at the Red Cross canteen, and then have a good meal, waited upon by cheerful, kindly American girls. Perhaps they play the piano a bit, or write letters home, before they depart. The first night we opened at D—— we had 680 men come in at one o'clock. They ate us out of house and home."

WIZARD WITH FIGURES

Joseph S. McCoy, statistical expert connected with the treasury department, is by education and training an expert mathematician. But much of the most valuable work he accomplishes for the government is less due to his mathematical knowledge than to his rare ability in utilizing the simple, elemental, commonplace facts that everybody knows.

One of his most important duties is to tell the revenue committees of congress how much money may be derived from any proposed taxation. In this work of forecasting McCoy has done wonderful things. For example, he estimated in 1913 that the income tax from corporations for the year ended June 30, 1915, would be about $39,000,000. He came within about $144,000 of absolute accuracy. Every year he makes an estimate of what the total census of the country will be several years ahead. In 1901 he figured the population of 1910. Nine years later the census bureau made an actual count. Allowing for the inevitable element of error in making such a count, the result showed that McCoy's figures were probably as nearly correct as the bureau's.

HIS ABLE WORK REWARDED



The senate has confirmed the nomination of Col. Robert E. Noble of the United States army medical department to be a brigadier general, and in so doing has recognized the accomplishment of an efficient officer in a position that has required courage and judgment.

As chief of the personnel division of the department he has had to pass upon the qualifications and to assign to duty all the medical officers—more than 16,000 of them—who are now in the service, either in this country or abroad.

Later, in addition to his other duties, he has been called upon to assume the office of director of hospitals on this side of the Atlantic, and has completed arrangements for the care of more than 100,000 sick and wounded who may be returned from Europe or who may need hospital care in the United States. Brigadier General Noble, who was a major at the time the war was declared, was the honor graduate of the army medical school in 1904; the medical school of the Polytechnic institute in Alabama in 1891, and of Columbia university in 1899.

Make Your Sport Coats.

The sport coat which has made for itself so important a place in the summer wardrobe is this season in all sorts of materials, and, as a rule, has dispensed with sleeves. In one case, it is hardly more than two straight lengths of silk, folded under at the bottom to form a deep pocket, and held in by a narrow belt. The material is just wide enough to form the front and back of the coat, and there are neither sides nor sleeves.

Original Velvet Slipons.

One sees many original slipons in black velvet. An exceedingly attractive example was stitched in white. The belt of velvet was almost concealed by the background of white stitching. The accompanying hat was fashioned from white silk, with the top of the crown and brim facing of black velvet.

An English artist sketches submarine scenes by descending with a diver's helmet and using waterproof paper and crayons.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

FOR EACH OTHER'S SAKE.

A grizzled Scotch banker in New York was bidding goodby to his son, a young lieutenant, ordered overseas. "Dad," said the boy, "you could give me something I'd rather have than $25,000." "What's happened to you, my boy, that a big bunch of money like that seems a trifle?" "Nothing, father, but there's a thing you could do that I'd rather have than all kinds of money." "And what might that fine thing be?"

Then the young man with the single silver shoulder bar looked his gruff-tender father straight in the face and said, as if he meant it, "Dad, I wish you'd promise me to cut out the whisky while I'm gone." The father bristled up. "Why, boy, you know I never take too much. You know how little I drink here at home, and I don't booze in business hours. What's got into you, boy?"

But the boy persisted until the man said, "Son, you're going into temptations you never dreamed of over there. You'll need all the stiffening you can get to keep straight. I'll promise you to be prohibition if you'll promise me not to forget your mother and your covenant vows."

And father and son shook hands on it.

When the banker's friends down town see him refuse to join them in a noon-day cocktail or an evening highball, they wonder what has come over him. He is thinking of the lad who is with Pershing, and he will keep faith.

There are many American fathers and mothers in these days who are living nearer to the level of their better selves, for the sake of the knightly sons who have embarked on the great adventure overseas.—The Christian Advocate.

ALCOHOL NOT A STIMULANT.

Fifteen years ago it was believed by competent scientific authorities that alcohol to some extent stimulated respiration because it seemed to cause an increase in the volume of air passing through the lungs, which was thought to increase the absorption of oxygen. In the interval, it has been learned that the mere amount of air that goes into and out of the lungs does not necessarily measure its value to the tissues and the cells where gases are exchanged. The air must not only pass into the lungs, but it must get out into the tissues beyond the "dead space" in the lungs. Some new careful experiments in the nutritional laboratory of the Carnegie institution of Washington, lately reported by Harold L. Higgins, show that after taking into consideration all the factors of respiration, alcohol, when given in a way to exclude other factors such as activity or the digestion of food, in amounts of from one to one and one-half ounces, indirectly acts upon respiration as a depressant, not as a stimulant. There is not much, if anything, left of the old stimulant theory, and it is time that everybody stopped using the term "stimulants" as a synonym for alcohol.—The Union Signal.

BEER CRIMINOLOGY.

A woman physician, Dr. Mary F. Cushman, of Maine, writes as follows:

"If anything has ever demonstrated the evil of beer drinking, it is surely the present war. Years ago, when specializing in mental and nervous diseases, I was taught that alienists had proved the crimes for which distilled liquors were responsible, are crimes of passion unpremeditated, and often a horror to the perpetrator when he recovers from the effects of his drink. The habitual use of malt liquors, however, so affects the moral sense as to lead to deliberate crimes, carefully planned, coolly executed, without compunction or remorse. Germany, the great beer-drinking nation, has simply illustrated this in a war conducted along the above lines of beer criminology. What does our nation want of the drink that makes men capable of the atrocities perpetrated by Germany?"

HOW HE IS HANDICAPPED.

The drinking man is the first man to get sick, and the last man to get well, says Rev. M. A. Lambing in the Pittsburgh Observer.

He is the first man to lose his friends and the last man to appreciate them.

He is the first man on the toboggan to poverty and the last man to get on his feet to find his way out.

He is the first man to get hit by accident and the last man to recover.

He is the last man to get a job and the first man to lose it.

He is the first man to die and the last man to provide for his family.—The Pioneer.

WHY NOT?

"Why don't the saloons put their finished product in their windows? A merchant will put his best goods in his window, but the saloons call a policeman for their finished product, have him carted off to jail out of sight of everyone, and have him returned after he has sobered up to refinish the job."—W. J. Bryan.

God gives us abundant material for food to sustain life. Man turns millions of that material into drink that destroys life. Help stop it.

ASTHMADOR
AVERTS • RELIEVES
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
Begin Treatment NOW
All Druggists Guarantee

One Treatment
with Cuticura
Clears Dandruff
All druggists; Soap 25, Ointment 25 & 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept E, Boston."

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit.
Helps to eradicate dandruff.
For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair.
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Pa Knows.

Willie—Say, pa, what is a rare treat?

Pa—Any kind, nowadays, my boy.—Indianapolis Star.

Get New Kidneys!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, things begin to happen.

One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion; irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

Do not delay a minute. At the first indication of trouble in the kidney, liver, bladder or urinary organs start taking Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules, and save yourself before it is too late. Instant treatment is necessary in kidney and bladder troubles. A delay is often fatal.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles.

It is the pure, original Haarlem Oil your great-grandmother used. About two capsules each day will keep you toned up and feeling fine. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

Why, of Course, Teacher.

Teacher—Now, Tommie, what part of speech is silence?

Tommie—Why, uh, I dunno, unless it's the part after everybuddy gits through talkin'.

Lemon Juice
For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how freckles, sunburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

Analyzing the Kaiser.

In the American Magazine Booth Tarkington admonishes us to use the kaiser as an object lesson—as a horrible example of what not to emulate. In closing he says:

"Finally, we ought not to be uncharitable, even to the kaiser. I believe we ought to say of him: As a kaiser he is the climax and the centrifugal point of the most detestable ambition that the world has known; and as a man he is the most blindly false, the most devoutly cruel and the most religiously selfish of all the false, cruel and selfish men whose traits have been shown forth by spectacular performances in history. And as a man and a kaiser combined he is the most calamitous thing that has ever happened to the earth.

"But, then, lest we be outdone in charitableness by the gentleman-in-the-bar-room, who did not wish to seem to be merely abusive, we should add:

"But, outside of that, he's all right."

Don't Clean 'Em.

There was a certain husky young soldier in a regiment of infantry. This young buck private was tall and extremely wide. Some time ago he sent a uniform to the cleaners. It was returned with a note: "Sorry, sir, but we don't clean tents."

No man really enjoys kissing a girl who has her hair done up in curl papers.

"POST TOASTIES
(MADE OF CORN)
Taste twice as good now 'cause I know they Help Save the Wheat"
Bobby
Post Toasties

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0193

PASSING OF THE CRIPPLE

By MARION COUTHOUY SMITH
Of The Vigilantes

Through the dark clouds which have gathered over the whole world, we see at times a sudden gleam of light, like a passing glimpse of the clear blue beyond. It is a flash of prophecy, a brief vision of the renewed and purified world which should follow upon the tragic days of the great conflict. In the coming time we trust that there will be not only a spiritual uplifting, but a certain spiritualizing of material things—a beneficent use of agencies that have hitherto been selfishly or narrowly applied. From the great stimulus of danger and sacrifice, and the nearness of sorrow and death, we shall gain a keener and clearer understanding. Old things will pass away. To believe this is a part of the intense faith and hope that we need to sustain us through the stress of the dark hour.

Mechanical power takes its character from the spirit that uses it. All machinery is but an immense extension of the hands and of the soul of man. As the power within him is, so is the power with which he reaches out through the universe, for death and destruction, or for life and renewal. The Germans are using mechanical power malevolently and diabolically, according to their natures. But in right human hands, it is, and will be in the future to a still greater extent, a strong agency in the restoration of the world.

No More Useless Cripples.

We have here to consider it as applied by surgeons to the rebuilding of broken bodies, and so directly as a sustaining power to the souls of men. Hitherto in most cases a maimed man has been a broken man. With the conviction that he is practically useless, and with that strange false shame that makes him feel his disability as a disgrace, merely because it is conspicuous, most crippled men have been literally down and out. If poor, they have become beggars; if rich, they have dragged out a weary and sorrowful existence, with the loss of hope that comes from makeshift occupations and from the sense of helplessness. To this condition, of course, there have been shining exceptions—men who have fought their disabilities valiantly, and whose courage and enterprise have won for them high places, even in the industrial world.

But hitherto these men have been regarded as exceptional. The aim now is to have all maimed persons so restored to usefulness as to do away with the stigma of disability. The so-called "cripple" is to pass away. He is to be rendered capable of doing, not a cripple's job, but a man's job; and his ability to do it is to be an every-day commonplace fact. If only people at large will realize that this can be, accept it as a right, and regard it as a duty so to accept it, the miracle will take place as surely as that the green earth will be restored in spring.

The soldier has a better starting-point than the average civilian, because he is not ashamed of his incomplete body. He is proud of it! It has placed him on the roll of honor, as one hurt in the world's defense. We all know with what gentle and noble pride the old G. A. R. man carries his empty sleeve. So now, in a far greater degree, we shall have an army of men whose injuries are their pride and glory, if only they can have at the same time the bodily power to move and to work that sustains the life of the soul.

Employment for All.

They can have it freely. The government will take care of this, if the people will understand, and avail themselves of what is offered them. Already in France hundreds of men are working skillfully in fields, shops and factories with new and better appliances than were ever known before. The skill and toil of surgeons and inventors have been earnestly and tenderly applied to the deep need of this noble army of sacrifice, and with greater results than we could have believed possible.

It is wonderful to see what these Frenchmen, with their high spirits and fine responsive natures, are able to do! Their smiling faces and keen activity show their sane and cheerful outlook upon the future. They are men, not cripples. The amazing contrivances that help them, particularly the mechanical arms and hands, are not beautiful, but they have the attractiveness of adaptability. They are creators. Out of the creative energy of a man's soul they come, bringing creative energy to another man's body, and thence also to his soul. They are truly a mighty extension of his power beyond the limits imposed by nature and by calamity.

From the soldiers this stream of beneficent energy will extend to others, and in time we shall see on the streets no more crippled beggars, and in homes no more helpless wretches, waited on hand and foot by tired relatives and friends. Men and women we shall have, doing the work of men and women all the more bravely for the handicap that roused their energies, and made them lay hold eagerly upon the means of restoration. They will have preserved to them one of the most precious gifts of life—personal independence. Is not this a gleam of light in the darkness?

OF WHAT ARE WE THINKING?

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON
Of The Vigilantes

What is in the mind of the American citizen while "The Star-Spangled Banner" is being played?

Of what are we thinking?

Are we thinking of the flag and all that it stands for, or are our minds otherwise engaged?

Of course, it is reasonably certain that we are thinking of something, but have our thoughts the slightest connection with the message our flag is carrying to the enemy?

We obediently arise with the first sonorous note of the anthem and we remain standing till the end. We have learned, or we are learning, to "face the music" more or less at attention, and we are developing the conviction that it is an offense to chatter while the strains of our war song, perhaps our death song, fill our ears. But are we thinking of "The Star-Spangled Banner"?

Or are we silently urging the musicians to hurry up and be done with it so that we may resume an interrupted occupation? Are we impatiently waiting to take up a broken conversation; a game of bridge; the telling of a story; the reading of a newspaper; the liberal art of criticizing the war department, the navy or the administration; or, what is infinitely more incompatible, exploiting the hateful efficiency of the foe?

"The Star-Spangled Banner."

We sit in public places, and we arise because we are in public places. We suspend for the moment our physical interests and we look about us to see if other people are doing the same? Some of us get up grudgingly and stand as we happen to have been sitting, with our backs to the music; some of us go on knitting; others of us continue to keep our hands in our pockets and our cigars in our mouths; others think that nothing more is required of them than the lowering of the voice to an undertone; others consider a bland expression of resignation to be efficient; and some fall into an attitude of tolerant submissiveness. There is little or no evidence of exaltation, no sign of an inward thrill, no suggestion of a profound emotion. The beautiful, inspiring concentration of thought that attends the "Marseillaise" is lacking; the full-hearted sensation that glorifies "Rule Britannia" is absent; even the fervor of the Teuton as symbolized in guttural acclaim is sadly wanting. We, the most imaginative, the most alert people in the world, are totally devoid of imagination during the rendition of our war song.

Why should we not think, or even pray, as the French, the English and the Germans think and pray while their song of hope is being sounded?

"The Star-Spangled Banner" is our battle-song. It goes into the thick of the fight with our flag and our boys. It emphasizes our hopes, our aims, our longings; and of what are we thinking—we who stay at home—while its strains are falling upon our ears? Are we, so to speak, playing the game?

Should Offer a Prayer.

Why shouldn't we, one and all, great and small, think alike for as long as five minutes in each day? Let there be but one thought, one prayer, while the hymn is ringing. From one end of this great land to the other let this be the beginning of our prayer the instant the band strikes up "The Star-Spangled Banner"!

"God be with our flag and our soldiers and our arms wherever they may me!"

And let this be the end of our devout, intensified prayer as the last note dies away:

"God give us Victory!"

Not perfunctorily, not as a matter of duty, but with our hearts in it, our nerves aquiver, our eyes glowing with the fire of enthusiasm.

One thought, one prayer in a hundred million minds!

Every heart full, every mind intent as we face the enemy! For, after all, this Star-Spangled banner of ours is facing the foe in a far-off land, and there is no other direction in which we may look.

Our men go with the banner to the music of guns; we stand at home and face, not the guns, but a group of fiddlers! Our thoughts, our prayers, nevertheless should be the same as theirs. Our silent prayer, however brief, should be for Victory. Let us always utter it, one and all, while "The Star-Spangled Banner" is being played.

"God give us Victory!"

ON AMERICAN TOLERANCE

By CLINTON SCOLLARD,
of the Vigilantes.

Too long have we been lax and lenient;
We have been patient, though we knew that we Harbored the venomous viper, Treachery,
Ready to strike with foul and fell intent.
But now the day of tolerance is spent;
Let us have done with sleek hypocrisy,
With those who strive to work insidiously!—
Be there at last some stern arbitrament!

Kultur's apostles, you who are arrayed
With the blasphemous Beast who drew the sword,
And slew the innocent the while he prayed,
Should on your heads there fall some just reward,
Yours is the blame who fatuously have made
Your tongue abhorrent and your race abhorred!

In Service Early.

On being informed of the arrival of the first baby brother in a family of three lovely little girls, Eleanor said: "Oh, daddy, now we must buy a service flag!"

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 8

CONQUERING EVIL.

(May be used with temperance application.)

LESSON TEXTS—I Kings 21:1-29; Ephesians 5:6-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.—Ephesians 5:11.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Romans 12:21 to 13:10.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Deuteronomy 9:18; Psalms 94:16; Luke 4:1-13; 19:41-48; Romans 7:14; 8:14; II Timothy 4:2.

The robbery and murder of Naboth is one of the darkest of human deeds. Failure to recognize the righteousness of Naboth's position, and to master his own personal selfish desires, resulted in this dark deed.

I. A Notable Example of the Triumph of Evil (I Kings 21:1-29).

1. Ahab's covetousness (vv. 1-6).

Near the king's palace lay a plot of ground belonging to a simple farmer which Ahab selfishly longer for. Naboth, loyal to the law of God and exercising his personal rights, refused to part with it, though the king offered him what it was worth, or even a better one in exchange. With Naboth it was not a matter of money value, but of loyalty to God and his fathers. It doubtless would have been gain to him to have complied with Ahab's desire, for he offered its worth in money, or a better one in exchange. Naboth put principle before worldly gain, or even a reputation with the king. Ahab instead of conquering his selfishness sulkily refused to eat.

2. Jezebel's wicked plot (vv. 5-16.)

When she found Ahab pouting she took matters into her own hands. (1) She taunted Ahab (v. 7). A weak man cannot stand to be taunted, especially by a woman. (2) A mock trial given (vv. 8-13). The charge made against Naboth was false. They played the hypocrite. His death was secured under the pretense of justice. Jezebel desired Naboth out of the way, so she secured false witnesses against him. (3) He was stoned to death (v. 13). (4) Jezebel informs Ahab of Naboth's death, and instructs him to take possession of the vineyard (vv. 14-16).

3. The doom announced (vv. 17-26).

(1) By whom—Elijah (vv. 17, 18). At the command of the Lord, Elijah, who had fled from Jezebel, goes to meet the king as he entered upon the possession of Naboth's vineyard. He went to take possession but could not. God always finds a man to bring to the sinner the fruit of his wrongdoing. (2) What it was (vv. 19-26). (a) A shameful death (v. 19). The dogs were to lick his blood in the place where they licked the blood of Naboth. There is a retributive justice in the judgments which God metes out to sinners. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7). Jezebel was to share a like fate. The sinner should be assured that his sin will find him out. (b) Obliteration of posterity (vv. 21, 22). It was best that the children of such a man should be cut off so that there might be an end to such a wicked dynasty. It would seem that the world has now come to such a state as this. The dynasty which is responsible for the blood and sorrow of the world at this time would better end and its posterity be obliterated from the earth.

4. Ahab's repentance (vv. 27-29).

Through his humiliation he gained a respite from judgment. God allowed him to go for awhile before he permitted the judgment to fall upon him. A few years later he was slain in the battle of Ramoth-Gilead (chapter 22:37).

II. How to Overcome Evil (Eph. 11:18).

1. By separation from it (v. 11). The only way to overcome evil is to refuse fellowship with it, to withdraw from it. Lot, who had entered into fellowship with the Sodomites, was overtaken with disaster; but Abraham, who was separated from it, was able to deliver him.

2. By reproof (v. 11). It is not enough to merely refrain from practicing evil. No neutral position is possible. There must be victory over it; it must be defeated. Antagonism of the evil is necessary.

3. By watchfulness (v. 14).

Living in the light of Christ is necessary in order to overcome evil. Deception is on every hand.

4. By a circumspect walk (vv. 15, 16).

Pitfalls are all about us. To walk without looking about us is most foolish, because the evil one is on the alert, doing his best to cause us to stumble.

5. By a sober life (v. 18).

6. By being filled with the Holy Spirit (v. 18).

Those who would overcome evil must abstain from intoxicating liquors and all the influences of the world which unduly excite.

The Spirit-filled believer has the wisdom and power to overcome.

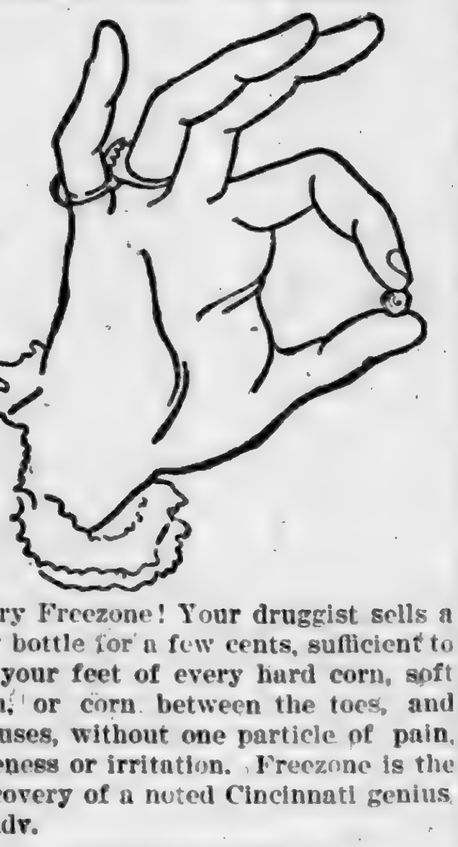
Regenerated Life.

The best personal workers are those who have a zeal for others because of their own changed lives. There may be argument against some forms of reasoning and against various cults and "isms," but there can be no argument against a regenerated life.—"Something Doing."

LIFT OFF CORNS!

With fingers! Corns and calluses lift off. No pain!

Magic! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!



Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.—Adv.

There is a famine in laundry soap in Copenhagen and other Danish cities.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Hard times breed one class of sinners and prosperity breeds another.

Skin Troubles That Itch

Burn and disfigure quickly soothed and healed by hot baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings of Cuticura Ointment. For free samples, address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." Sold by druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Petrograd has Asiatic cholera epidemic.

OLD SORES, ULCERS AND ECZEMA VANISH

Good, Old, Reliable Peterson's Ointment Stops Itching Instantly.

"Had 51 ulcers on my legs. Doctors wanted to cut off leg. Peterson's Ointment cured me."—Wm. J. Nichols, 40 Wilder St., Rochester, N. Y.

Get a large box for 30 cents at any druggist, says Peterson, and money back if it doesn't help you at once. Always keep Peterson's Ointment in the house. Fine for burns, scalds, bruises, and the surest remedy for skin diseases, pimples, itching eczema and piles the world has ever known.

"Peterson's Ointment is the best for bleeding and itching piles I have ever found."—Major Charles E. Whitney, Vineyard Haven, Mass.

"Peterson's Ointment has given great satisfaction for Salt Rheum."—Mrs. J. L. Weiss, Cuylerville, N. Y.

All druggists sell it, recommend it.

Mail orders filled, charges prepaid by Peterson Bros., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

A German Mark.

"Pop?" "Well, Junior?" "What is a German mark?" "There are two kinds." "Oh!" "One is a coin—" "Yes—" "And the other is any poor boob who is obliged to stand for the kaiser's government."—Youngstown Telegram.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County—ss.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

(Seal) A. W. Gleason, Notary Public.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Druggists, 75c. Testimonials free.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Some men would die young if they were compelled to make a living.

Hay Fever—Catarrh
Prompt Relief Guaranteed
SCHIFFMANN'S
CATARRH BALM
ASK YOUR DEALER

Health Was Shattered

South Boston Woman Tells How She Suffered Before Doan's Cured Her.

"I was in awful shape from kidney disease," says Mrs. W. F. Sterritt, 767 Dorchester Ave., South Boston, Mass. "My health was shattered and I would often fall in a heap. Had someone stabbed me in the back with a knife, the pains could not have been worse.

Mrs. Sterritt

"I lost thirty pounds, was terribly nervous and could not do my housework. Fainting spells came on and my feet and limbs swelled so badly I couldn't wear my shoes. Puffy sacs came under my eyes, my skin looked shiny and the impression of a finger left a dent that remained for some time.

"My kidneys were in awful shape and it seemed that I had to pass the secretions every hour. The passages were scant and terribly distressing. I was feverish at night and perspired profusely.

"I was discouraged until told about Doan's Kidney Pills. They brought improvement from the first and about a dozen boxes cured me. My cure has lasted."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Every Woman Wants

Paxtine

ANTISEPTIC POWDER

FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE

Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 36--1918.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

Puts a ... Stop to all Distemper

CURES THE SICK

And prevents others having the disease no matter how exposed 60 cents and $1.15 a bottle. $5.50 and $11.00 a dozen bottles. All good druggists and turf goods houses.

Spohn Medical Co. Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:

"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Every Sick Woman Should Try

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Before Submitting To An Operation

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. LYNN, MASS.

You Are Dying By Acid

When you have Heartburn, Gas, Bloat, and that Full Feeling after eating. TAKE ONE

EATONIC

FOR YOUR STOMACH'S SAKE

Get rid of the Overload and Excess Acid and you will fairly feel the GAS driven out of your body—THE BLOAT GOES WITH IT.

IT GIVES YOU REAL STOMACH COMFORT

Get EATONIC from your Druggist with the DOUBLE GUARANTEE

Send for the "Help" Book. Address Eatonic Remedy Co., 1018-24 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Costs a Cent or Two a Day

Catastrophe.

"There is a little mound of some white substance on the pavement."

"So I see."

"A gentleman is carefully scooping it up, indulging meanwhile in loud lamentations."

"Why shouldn't he lament? He dropped his month's allowance of sugar."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Appropriate Place.

"Where is this shipment of pig iron going?" "I don't know, unless it is to Hog Island."

Old Mates at Odds.

It was something of a shock when at La Cateau British battalions who bear "Gibraltar" on their colors first encountered Hanoverian units with the same distinction, won by their ancestors when hired by George III in his capacity as king of England from himself as elector of Hanover to help in Elliott's famous defense of the rock.—London Spectator.

Friendship is one of the various things that cannot be preserved in alcohol.

Mock Modesty.

"Why are you putting on so much rouge, dear?"

"Oh, Jack is taking me to some revue or other, and I want him to think I'm blushing."

Your Eyes Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggists or by mail 60c per Bottle. For Book of the Eye free write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0494

STOMACH TROUBLES

AN IRRITABLE, fault finding disposition is often due to a disordered stomach. A man with good digestion is nearly always good natured. A great many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by Chamberlain's Tablets after years of suffering. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Try them. They only cost a quarter.

Chamberlain's Tablets

HERE AND THERE

Subscribe for this paper.

C. A. Patterson and wife, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with Mrs. Ella Patterson and daughter, Mrs. Bessie Tustison.

Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Scholes have returned to their home at Johnstown, Pa., after several weeks' visit with St. Joe relatives.

J. P. Buckingham on Saturday began work for the Fort Wayne Beef company. He spent Sunday and Monday at home. He expressed himself as pleased with his new position.

Miss Melba Andress returned home Monday from a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. Harry Hursh, of Garrett. Miss Pauline Andress spent from Saturday until Tuesday at the same place.

Clayton Hathaway, who had been working at Garrett this summer, returned home Sunday to visit his parents a week before leaving for Wittenberg college, where he will take a military course.

Mrs. Mary Barclay, of Pittsburg, and mother, Mrs. Barbara Collier, spent from Wednesday until Sunday with the latter's sister, Mrs. Frank Scholes. Mrs. Lucinda Braybrook, of Hall's Corners, another sister, is also visiting Mrs. Scholes.

Born, to Roscoe and Jennie Walter, of Auburn, a daughter. The little one, who arrived Monday of last week, has been named Margaret Joanna. The mother was formerly Miss Jennie Steward, of Spencerville.

William Auldendaffer and wife and Mark Freece and wife, of Circleville, Ohio, and Mrs. Ida Page, of Grabill, were Thursday dinner guests of Mrs. Ellen Wiers and daughter, Miss Grace. Mrs. Frank VanZile and son, Earl, of Grabill, were afternoon guests.

Patronize the advertisers.

John Geisinger, of Auburn, was a Thursday-night guest of Will Koch and wife.

Joseph Caw on Saturday returned to Detroit, his familg remaining for a longer visit.

Bert Bachtel, wife and daughter, Virginia, were recent guests of Rolla Wiers and wife.

H. L. Dunkle, wife and daughter, of New Haven, spent part of Sunday with St. Joe friends.

Mrs. S. D. Gee went to Antwerp on Thursday to visit until Saturday with her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Nelson.

J. P. Buckingham and wife had former's sister, Mrs. C. E. Rangler, and husband, of Carey, Ohio, as guests from Wednesday until Saturday morning.

Virginia, the 2-year-old daughter of O. K. Shull, ate some powdered lye a week ago Sunday and was badly burned about the mouth and lips. She is doing well.

Mort Milliman and daughters, Mesdames Fanny Beaber and Eva Milliman, his little grand-daughter, Edna, and Isaac Meese attended the reunion of the 44th Indiana regiment held Friday at Auburn.

The mid-summer meeting of the Ladies' Culture club was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Maude Jenkins, south of town. Thirty adults and children were present. The yearly reports of the secretary and the treasurer were read, and the program for the coming year was given. The new study book for the year will be "Face to Face With Kaiserism," by James W. Gerard. The program committee was Mesdames Pluma Hamilton, Alice Copp and Eva Sheffer. The guests were Mrs. Violet Rohan and daughter, of Elkhart; Miss Zella Rush, of Denver, Col. Mrs. Mary Bowman was reinstated, and Cora Price was admitted to membership. A pot luck supper was served.

EVERY THING THAT MEN WEAR

Clothing Furnishings and Shoes.

You Will Find that OUR Merchandise and Prices are RIGHT.

When In BUTLER Make Our Store YOUR Headquarters.

WM. KNISELY & SON.

W. C. T. U. NEWS

Mrs. Frances Konh entertained the W. C. T. U. last Friday afternoon. The topic was "Civics and Parliament." Mrs. Jennie Sechler presided; and Mrs. Chloe Hart had charge of the program, which was as follows:

Opening song, "America."
Prayer.—Mrs. Sechler.
Instrumental solo, "Thine Own." —Mrs. Flossie Widney.
Scripture lesson (Psa. cxlviii).—Mrs. Emma Bishop.
Leaflet, "Curfew and Moral Education."—Mrs Retta Hathaway
Talk, "The History of the Constitution of Indiana," showing a few of the needs why we should have a new one.—Mrs Amanda Spayd.
"The Bible in the Public Schools." —Round table talk.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President.—Jennie Sechler.
Vice President.—Amanda Spayd.
Secretary.—Lora Leighty.
Treasurer.—Ada Bassett.

After the election, Mrs. Leighty sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning," the ladies joining in the chorus. Mrs Spayd dismissed with prayer.

Obituary

When death lays his cold hand upon the aged, it brings sorrow to those who are left, of course; but there is consolation in the thought that it is much like the husbandman garnering the ripened grain. When, however, the home is invaded and the household pet and only child is taken without warning, there is double cause for mourning; but there comes consolation, too, in the truth that the words of the Savior, "Of such is the kinghom of heaven," apply to the little ones of today as well as to those he took in His arms and blessed.

James Hamilton Pervines was born at Riverside farm, a mile east of St. Joe, on Oct. 5, 1906; and died at his home at Duncan, Okl., after an illness of but four days, aged 11 years, 10 months and 26 days. His entire life since 5 months old had been passed in the West.

News of the death of little James brought sorrow and surprise to his friends at St. Joe; for but two weeks before, he had left here for Oklahoma, after a summer's visit with his gaandmother, Mrs. Catherine Hamilton. During his stay here, he attracted those whom he met by his intelligence and manliness.

The remains were brought to St. Joe for interment. Funeral services were held at the Lutheran church at 2 p. m. Tuesday, conducted by Rev. A. K. Mumma, assisted by Rev. L. W. Spayd.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.

Concord–Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10.45 A. M.
St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 8:00 P. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
L. W. Spayd, Pastor.
St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.

The pastor will preach morning and evening at Coburntown Church next Sunday.

Lutheran Church Announcements
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe–Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 8:00 p. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

The Gossip Say-

Mrs. Emma Abel, who has been ill for the past few days, is better.

B. V. Widney is attending the state fair at Indianapolis, this week.

E. R. Kinsey and family were Sunday guests of Elmer Hart and family.

Miss DeVeta Bayman of New Haven is visiting friends here for a few days.

Nelson Thomas and wife were guests of Henry Winslow's at Auburn, over Sunday.

For Sale:— New 6-horse gasoline engine, with coal oil attachment.
W. L. Wallace.

Mrs. Mattie Bowman and daughter, Miss Dorothy, are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Ozro Ritchy, at Hamilton.

A. Copp and wife had as Sunday dinner guests, W. G. Stout and wife of Hamilton and Jesse Copp, wife and little daughter, of New Haven.

We are now prepared to figure with you on your hay. Plenty of Room in barn at the Present. FOUR STORE,
39 Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. Elma Brown and daughter Miss Norma, attended the Johnson reunion held at the home of Henry Krontz, near Butler, Sunday.

Rev. Guy Miller and family of Findlay, O., arrived Wednesday afternoon at the editors home. Several days will be used in calling on friends here. He reports that he has been sent to Ohio City, O., by the Eldership of the Church of God Everyone around St. Joe know Mr. Miller as the hustling Wear-Ever Aluminum Agent.

G. W. Woodcox and wife had for dinner last Friday their grandchildren Lucile and Muriel Woodcox, of Columbus. O., Miss Martha and Master Malcolm Woodcox of Adrain, Mich., and Beatrice Woodcox of St. Joe. Lucile and Muriel returned to their home Monday after spending three weeks with relatives at this place. Miss Martha and Master Malcolm returned to Adrain this week.

Rev. Johnson Here

Rev. C. O. Johnson, who has been assigned to the M. P. charge at this place, was here Saturday. He came with the intention of filling his appointments the next day; but after leaving Dunkirk, his home, he received a telegram recalling him for a funeral. Mr. Johnson made a favorable impression upon those he met.

Just as we were going to press, we learned that Mr. Johnson's household goods had arrived.

COLETOWN

Hazel Evans, of Auburn, was the over-Sunday guest at the James Evans home.

Mercy and Fordyce Gruber and Grace Sauers took dinner Sunday with Clay Hull and wife.

Bea Murphy, of Trenton, N. J., is spending her vacation with her parents, H. H. Murphy and wife.

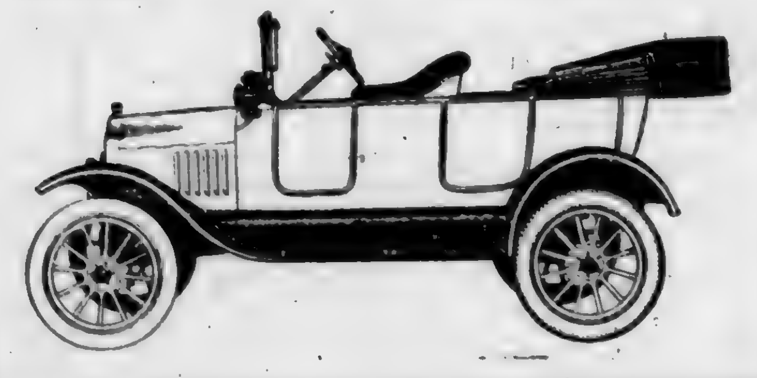
Fred Martin and family spent Saturday night and Sunday with George Mason and family, of Farmer, Ohio.

W. M. Martin, of Continental, Ohio, spent the latter part of the week with his sons, Howard and Fred Martin.

Clinton Anderson and family, of Ney, Ohio, and Henry Kling and family were Sunday dinner guests at the Alvin Walker home.

Patronize

the merchants who advertise in this paper. They will treat you right.



Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain; and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necessities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continuous from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE

The Avenue Celebrates

The residents of Widney avenue enjoyed a picnic supper Friday evening on the lawn of H. C. Hathaway, at which fifty-two were present. After the feast of good things had been taken care of, a short impromptu program was given, which consisted of music on the victrola and two recitations, the first by Mrs. Anna Abel, which showed the wonderful memory of this lady, who is about 86 "years young," and the second by Mrs. C. R. Price. Both were appropriate to the occasion. It was suggested that this be made an annual affair, which all seemed to favor. Following is Mrs. Abel's reading:

The wilderness was our abode some seventy years ago;
And if we wished good meat to eat, we shot a buck or doe.
For fish, we used the hook and line; we pounded corn to make it fine;
On johnny cake our ladies dined—
In this new country.

Our occupation was to make the lofty forests bow;
With axes good we chopped our wood, for well we all knew how;
We cleared our land for rye and wheat, for strangers and ourselves to eat;
From the maple tree we drew our sweet—
In this new country.

Our houses, too, were logs of wood, rolled up in squares and calked with mud.
If the bark was tied, our roofs were good—
In this new country.

Our paths were through the winding wood, where oft the savage trod,
They were not wide nor scarce a guide, but all the ones we had;
But if we wished a visit to pay, in winter's night or winter's day,
Our oxen drew our lady's sleigh—
In this new country.

The Indians sometimes made us fear that there was danger nigh.
The shaggy bear was oftime where he heard our children cry.
The rattle snake our children dread. Oftime the mother said:
"A beast of prey will get my babe"—
In this new country.

We lived in social harmony, we drank the purling stream.
No doctor, priest nor lawyer there was ever to be seen:
Our health it needed no repair, no pious man forgot his prayer
And who would fee a lawyer there?—
In this new country.

The little thorn bore apples on; when mandrakes they were gone;
The sour grape we used to take, when frosty nights came on;
For winter greens, the girls did stray; for butter nuts, boys climbed the tree;
And spice bush was our lady's tea—
In this new country.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Mrs John Driver, of LaGrange, and Miss Glenna Gustin, of Hicksville, spent the last week with Saxe Hadsell and wife.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

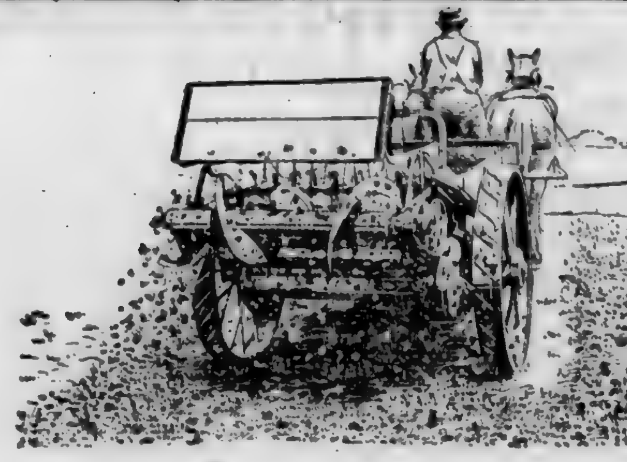
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

NOTICE
TO SCHOOL SCHOLARS!

WE have provided to handle the School Books this year—and have a complete supply of school necessities for all the grades. You needn't worry where to get your supply. All school books and supplies are strictly sold for CASH.

DO NOT ASK FOR CREDIT!

ELZA L. KINSEY.



LOW CORN KING

Do Your Share.

ASSISTANT Secretary of Agriculture Carl Vrooman says that a billion dollars worth of stable manure is wasted annually in the United States. In the face of the urgent needs for bigger crops, such waste as this is a national tragedy. That manure properly used will put us beyond fear of any crop shortage except one that might be made by bad weather. And what is better, the bigger crop could be produced without the addition of another acre, another man, or another horse power, if every farmer would decide to waste no stable manure this year but buy and use a

Low Corn King Manure Spreader.

Three sizes—small, medium and large. All narrow boxes. All steel frames, with working parts of the spreader securely attached to the frame. Turns short. Drive from both rear wheels. Return apron driven by worm gear, which insures even spreading up hill and down. Pull comes straight on steel frame. Solid two-inch rear axle working in roller bearings carries 75 per cent. of the load. All-steel beater can not warp, shrink or rot. Built up to International Harvester standards of quality in every respects. Buy a Corn King spreader and use it. The increased yield from a few acres will pay for your spreader. Place your order now.

Wm. CURIE, St. Joe, Ind.

Ralph Now Lieutenant

"Lieut. RALPH E. SECHLER."

That's the way Ralph is entitled to be addressed at present. The NEWS employs the word "entitled" advisedly, for his new rank is not the result of "pull," as is too often the case, but of merit. A year ago—on Sept. 20, to be exact—he donned Uncle Sam's uniform for the first time, going to Camp Taylor, Louisville, as a private. From there, he was transferred to Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss. Here, in May, he, with a number of other young men, were taken from the ranks and put into the officers' training camp. He went through three months' greweling work, first at Hattiesburg and later at Louisville. A large per cent. failed to pass; but Ralph stood the test, and last Saturday he was commissioned second lieutenant of artillery.

He came home Monday morning under orders to report for duty at Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C., next Saturday. He looks well and soldierly in his officer's uniform, which he wears with pardonable pride.

Ralph was accompanied by his wife, who makes her home with her parents near Greenfield, Ind. If he be stationed permanently at Columbia, she will join him there; if not, she will teach school this winter.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Sechler Reunion

The twenty-eighth reunion of the Sechler family was held at the home of Jacob Sechler and wife last Saturday.

At the noon hour, forty-five members and three guests enjoyed the usual picnic dinner. This was followed by the unveiling of a service flag containing five stars. They represent Verne Monroe, James Gloy and Lloyd Miller, somewhere in France; Argel Sechler, of Fort Worth, Tex.; Lieut. Ralph E. Sechler, of Camp Jackson, S. C. A collection was taken and given to the Women's Red Cross of the county.

The old officers were re-elected, as follows:

President.—Mrs. B. E. Widney.
Vice President.—S. A. Mumaw.
Secretary.—Pauline Moffett.
Treasurer.—Harlow Sechler.

The next reunion will be held at Eckhart park, Auburn.

CREAM

Sherman-White Cream Station at J. Beams' Store

Highest Cash price paid for cream. Tested before customer

J. Beams

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

SPENCERVILLE

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

Golden Benninghoff and wife, William Benninghoff and babe and Arthur Heyman, wife and daughter, Mary Ellen, were Sunday guests of John Benninghoff and family.

Jacob Baltz and wife attended the Sechler reunion at St. Joe on Saturday.

Jess Pervines and wife and Charles Carper, wife and daughter, Cleo, of Garrett, were Sunday dinner guests of Stephen Brown and wife; and the afternoon guests at the same place were Mrs. John Shilling and daughter.

Jarob Baltz and wife and Miss Pauline Moffett were Sunday dinner guests of William Sommers and wife; and Eli Sommer's children, of Grabill, were afternoon guests.

Nearly fifty young people met at the home of Miss Esther White on Friday evening in honor of her fourteenth birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Della Scott is at the home of her parents, M. Ruppert and wife, east of town, assisting in caring for her mother, who is very ill.

The Betz family reunion was held Sunday at the George Horn home, south of town. Fifty members of the family were present to enjoy the occasion. The new officers are: President, John Betz, of St. Joe; vice president, Emmett Armstrong, of Rehobeth; secretary, Fay Reichelderfer, of Fort Wayne; treasurer, Emmett Betz, of Springfield Center.

Theodore Dinius and family and Roy Bowser on Sunday attended the Shatzer family reunion at the home of Mrs. J. H. McMacken, near New Haven. Thirty-six members of the family were present. The afternoon was spent in singing patriotic songs and favorite hymns of the grandfather, William Shatzer.

Ernest Bozeska and family, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday and Monday at the homes of Edward Billman and Frank Wertman.

The Lutheran missionary meeting has been postponed until Thursday of next week.

Howard Pervines, of the Great Lakes training station, is here for a few days' visit with his father, William Pervines, and his sister, Miss Mary Pervines.

E. D. Maurice, of Springfield, Ohio, spent the week end with Levi Mumma.

Frank Butler and wife, Mrs. Audra Wade and children and Mrs. Jane Butler spent Sunday at Lake James.

Frank Markle and family were Sunday guests at the Moses Oberholtzer home.

Mrs. Rebecca Kirst, Marion Keller and wife and Miss Mary Comesky attended the Batdorf-Zern reunion at Eckhart park, Auburn, on Thursday. The Wyatt reunion was held at the same time and place. A large service flag bearing thirty Wyatt stars was unfurled. Those from here who attended were Raymond Rhoades and family and Mrs. Cal Saylor.

Lightning struck a valuable horse belonging to Charles Boston, south of town, during the electrical storm Friday morning; also a large locust tree on the church lawn.

About sixty members of the Walters family were entertained at the home of George Beams and wife, on the county line, on Thursday. The following officers were elected: President, George Walters, who is the oldest member of the family; secretary, Vern Walters; treasurer, Mrs. John Haifley.

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved—why Pay $2 Per Pint For Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine, to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. Manufactured by the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Sherman-White cream station at J. Beams' store.

Miss Beatrice Wasson spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Cleo Bowser.

Miss Florence Beams spent several days the latter part of the week with Jerry Klopfenstein and wife, of Grabill.

Earl McNabb, wife and babe, of Auburn, and Jenning Horn and wife, of Grabill, Sundayed at the George Horn home.

Wesley Wyatt, wife and daughter, Naomi, were week end guests of Mr. Wyatt's sister, Mrs. Cal Saylor.

Vern Wilmot and family, Mrs. John House and Lee Wilmot and family Sundayed at the home of George Baker and family, of Georgetown.

NEWVILLE

Forrest Fusselman and wife moved to Butler on Monday.

Grandma Dean is very low at present and is not expected to recover. She is over 91 years old.

The Red Cross ladies of this place knitted six sweaters and twenty pairs of socks during the month of August.

Weasels killed fourteen nice young chickens for Omo Richmond Sunday night. This seemed to be his unlucky time.

Earl McDonald, of Butler, visited his grandparents at Newville a short time Monday afternoon. Earl is riding a brand new automobile.

Omo Richmond and mother and Mrs. Hazel Richmond went to Hicksville on Saturday to see Arthur Richmond, who shot his foot last week.

Mrs. John Miller and her guests, Mrs. Maude Palmer and son, Gilbert, visited Mrs. Nella McDonald, of Butler, on Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Grace Lome and daughter, Francena, of Butler, and Mrs. Lilly Engle and son, Marcel, of Auburn, were Saturday guests of Mrs. E. E. Traxler and family.

The 2-year-old son of Omo Richmond and wife had his right hand badly scalded Sunday afternoon by pulling over a cup of hot grease. Dr. Brunson was called and dressed the injury.

Mrs. Maude Palmer and son are the guests this week of L. Reed and wife and the Ben Keller and Frank Lyons families; and they will visit Auburn and Garrett relatives before returning to their home in Chicago.

Ernest Traxler, wife and son, Kenneth, of Marengo, Ohio, and Percy Traxler, wife and daughter, of Cleveland, were those from a distance who attended the Traxler reunion at the home of E. E. Traxler, of this place, on Wednesday of last week.

In the chapter reading contest between the ladies' and gentlemen's Bible classes of the U. B. Sunday school, the former won by 2,042 chapters, reading 3,838 chapters of the Bible to the men's 1,796. The men will have to treat the ladies in the near future.

Bid Pastor Farewell

Rev. John C. Coons will leave St. Joe perhaps today (Thursday) for their new home at Marietta. The Condord class made the pastor a farewell visit last Saturday evening, and the St. Joe class on Monday evening. A general good time was had at each gathering. The pulpits of the charge will be filled next Sunday—at Concord in the morning and at St. Joe in the evening.

Golden Wedding

On Aug. 27, 1868, Daniel Oberholtzer and Miss Barbara Bair were united in marriage in Cedar Creek township, Allen county; and on Aug. 27, 1918, they celebrated their golden wedding at their home, 4 miles southeast of St. Joe.

Thirty-five were present, including four generations, as follows:

Children.—William Oberholtzer, residing west of Butler; Mrs. Ben Soule, southeast of town; Mrs. William Maxwell, east of town.

Grandchildren—Mrs. Clyde Ginder, west of Butler; Mrs. Kenneth Miller, east of Spencerville; Roy C. Maxwell, in service (absent); Willard Maxwell, at home; Merritt Maxwell, St. Joe.

Great Grandchildren.—Dolores Ginder; Gordon and Dorotha Maxwell, children of Merritt Maxwell.

As is usual on such occasions, a bountiful dinner, such as Indiana housewives know how to prepare, was served; and this put all in good humor for the social afternoon that followed.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Gee and Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee and daughter Miss Mildred, visited Mr. and Mrs. Gustin Flint at the home of I. S. Hadsell at Hicksville, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Flint are residents of Henrysville, Tenn.

PUBLIC SALE!

The undersigned will sell at public auction at his residence, located 5 miles east of Auburn on the Auburn-Hicksville road, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10th.

Ten Head Horses.—Span good Work Horses, weight about 1,300 each, 4 years old. Bay Mare 5 years old, weight 1,300. Work Mare, weight 1,200. Bay Mare 13 years old, weight 1,600. Sorrel Mare 7 years old, good general purpose mare, weight 1,200. Shetland Pony 6 years old, buggy and harness. Thoroughbred Shire Stallion 8 years old; sorrel, with light mane and tail; weight, over 1,700; papers go with him. Bay Mare, weight 1,200. Bay Mare, weight 1,050.

THREE HEAD CATTLE.—Jersey-Holstein Cow 4 years old; will be fresh Nov. 10. Holstein Cow 5 years old; will be fresh in April. Red Cow, fresh two months ago.

TWO HEAD HOGS.—Two Poland-China Gilts, weight about 175 pounds each.

IMPLEMENTS.—Dane Hay Loader, Manure Spreader, Disc Harrow, Farm Wagon, Two-seated Surrey, set Heavy Work Harness.

7 acres good corn in field.

John Denney

Rhodenbaugh & McNamara, auct's; A. D. Brunson, clerk.

WHITE OXFORDS AND PUMPS!

...ALL...
THE NEW PATTERNS
That are being worn now are here for your selection.

Hot Weather Is Here

And calls for WHITE FOOTWEAR—the most comfortable and cool shoe you can find.

Women's Oxfords or Pumps in high or low heels, $2.00 to $3.50.

Men's White or Palm Beach Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.

Children's Mary Jane Slippers, $1 to $2.

Full line of Rubber Soled Slippers, 80c to $3.00.

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1887

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0496

FINANCE PROBLEM IN EASY TERMS

Government Must Have Twenty-four Billions in a Year.

WILL BE RAISED BY SAVING

Sixteen Cents From Each Dollar Each One Earns, and the Rest by Selling Liberty Bonds to Patriotic Citizens.

By LABERT ST. CLAIR.

The problem of government finances is just as complicated as we choose to make it. Approached from different angles, it can be made as baffling as a Chinese puzzle or as simple as the operation of an old-fashioned dasher churn.

If one attempts to delve into the ramifications of the expansion of currency, and all that sort of thing, he is very likely to develop stiff neck from craning up and down columns of figures and wind up by declaring that figures lie horribly.

On the other hand, if he faces the situation in a broad, concrete way and compares it with the problem of financing his home, or some similar everyday expenditure, he can grasp and master it as he would the handle of the family pump.

Here is the government's immediate financial problem in a nutshell. In the next twelve months $24,000,000,000 probably will be required by the United States government to meet war expenses. The total income of every person in this country is only about $50,000,000,000 a year. Therefore, if the cost of the war for the next year were to be assessed pro rata, every person's share would be forty-eight cents on every dollar that he or she earns.

Needed to Beat Off Murderers.

Now let us bring the proposition a little nearer home. Suppose that a band of murderers, in blood-smeared uniforms of gray, having slaughtered their way through the helpless waves of women and children in nearby cities just as the Hun has done in France and Belgium, established themselves in the woods at the edge of our town with the fixed purpose of waging slaughter in our midst. Then, if it were announced by the authorities that it would cost forty-eight cents of every dollar that every earner in our town made in the next twelve months to conduct a defense against the murderer, that would be clear, wouldn't it? And if the authorities were to go further and say that they would assess sixteen cents of this forty-eight on persons who could afford to pay it and accept the other thirty-two from persons who, out of their zeal to aid in the defense of their homes and their loved ones, would take the promise of the local government to repay it, that would be plain, too.

There isn't a bit of difference between the local case I have described and the present case of United States government. The Hun is in the offing, the government needs an average of 48-one hundredths of everyone's earning in the next year to conduct its defense, and it plans to raise this money on a one-third tax and two-thirds bond or stamp sale plan. Within the next year approximately $8,000,000,000 will be raised by taxes and $16,000,000,000 by the sale of government securities.

Must Be Raised by Economy.

There is the situation, and the question now arises: How in the land of Goshen are we ever going to raise such a sum as $24,000,000,000? The answer is: Save as we never have before.

It will not be pleasant to skimp ourselves, for we have not been used to skimping, but we simply shall have to do it. That old $24,000,000,000 requirement is going to stick to us like a burr to a pair of mittens, and we simply must raise it.

We must practice the same economy to raise the money with the Hun 3,000 miles away that we would if he were in the grove out at the edge of town. He may be 3,000 miles away in person, but at every beat his lustful heart spans that gap between your daughter and mine and his fingers have a virulent 3,000 mile itch for your money and your farms.

The question of what each of us must economize on can be settled only in our individual minds and at our own firesides. If the Hun were in the grove literally, would any of us ask our neighbors what we should sacrifice in order to help raise our respective shares of the forty-eight cents on the dollar? I think not.

My notion is that the question every patriotic American should ask himself is What must I have? The query: What can I get along without? is not searching enough.

Heber Grim's Story Apropos.

Every time the idea of saving occurs to me I think of old Heber Grim, a character out in my western Indiana town who had a perennial habit of joining church. Just as regularly as revival meeting time rolled around, Heber would get himself all het up over his sins and, along in the last days of the meeting, he would come rearing and snorting down the aisle and join up.

Somehow, though, Heber never got around to making any sacrifices in behalf of his new found religion. He always kept right on chewing tobacco, swearing like a mule driver, drinking like a fish, and, worst of all, squandering his money on loud clothes and other luxuries to such an extent that he seldom had a cent to apply to any worthy cause, such as the care of his family or the upkeep of the church.

As a result of Heber's regularity in backsliding, therefore, for a dozen years or more the church folks never baptized him. They just sort of let him slide along, and, when immersion day finally arrived he usually was out behind his trotting horse, at a cock fight, or at some other place scarcely fitted for converts.

Finally, though, the church authorities got tired of Heber's professions of faith and their subsequent flattening out, and when the next revival started, along in the spring, and he began to show signs of interest, they advised him that his confession would be received only with the understanding that immersion should follow immediately. He thought the matter over for three days and then agreed to join that night and be baptized without delay. And, sure enough, he arrived bright and early, and, when the going got good he joined up for the thirteenth time.

Baptized Him in a Flood.

Unfortunately, just as the meeting started, a terrific storm arose and the subsequent cloudburst flooded the country, Coal Creek, where the baptizing was to take place, being particularly swollen. This situation made the baptizing somewhat dangerous, but the authorities agreed that it was their only chance to get Heber, so, after church, with the repentant sinner in tow, and armed with lanterns, they filed down to the creek for the baptizing.

Stories differ as to how Heber, just as he was being immersed, escaped the officiating pastor's hands, some saying he wriggled out and others maintaining that he slipped, but, anyhow, he disappeared in the darkness. Daylight found him perched in a sycamore tree, a mile down the creek, in the center of a whirlpool that was worth a man's life to attempt to invade. Hence, we had to leave him up the tree for three days until the water receded.

Why He Vowed Sacrifices.

When the rescuing party finally arrived at the base of the tree, it was surprised to find Heber raining down plug tobacco, drinking liquor, dice, stickpins, fancy rings and other trinkets on which he had squandered his money, and declaring loudly that there was no sacrifice he would not make in the future for the good of the church and the protection of his soul. Nor did he descend until he had stripped himself of everything that he could reasonably spare and a little bit more.

"Well, Heber," Bill Boggs, the postmaster said, after shaking hands with him, "I certainly was impressed with your spirit of sacrifice. Why was it that you never did that before?"

"Why, thunderation, man!" Heber exploded, "I never was up a tree like that before."

And there you are. When before were we, as patriotic citizens, up a tree as we are this year?

NO WASTE IN ARMY CAMPS

Conservation and Reclamation Division Obtains Maximum Utilization of All Materials.

One of the most insidious pieces of German propaganda which the government has to combat appears in the form of rumors concerning excessive wastes of all foodstuffs and supplies in our army camps and cantonments. A glance at the work of the conservation and reclamation division of the army readily establishes the falsity of these reports.

The aim of the conservation and reclamation division is to obtain the maximum utilization of all materials of service, to reduce the waste of these materials to a minimum, to destroy nothing, and to dispose of all material useless to the army at the greatest profit possible.

No restrictions are placed upon our soldiers' appetites, but the highest care is exerted to prevent the soldier from taking more on his plate than he wants—in other words, much of the food that formerly was lost through carelessness is now saved. The reclamation officer and his assistants in every camp and every cantonment are responsible for the separating and the classifying of kitchen waste, produced in the preparation and serving of every meal at the mess; the object of this careful separation and classification of kitchen waste is to prevent wastage.

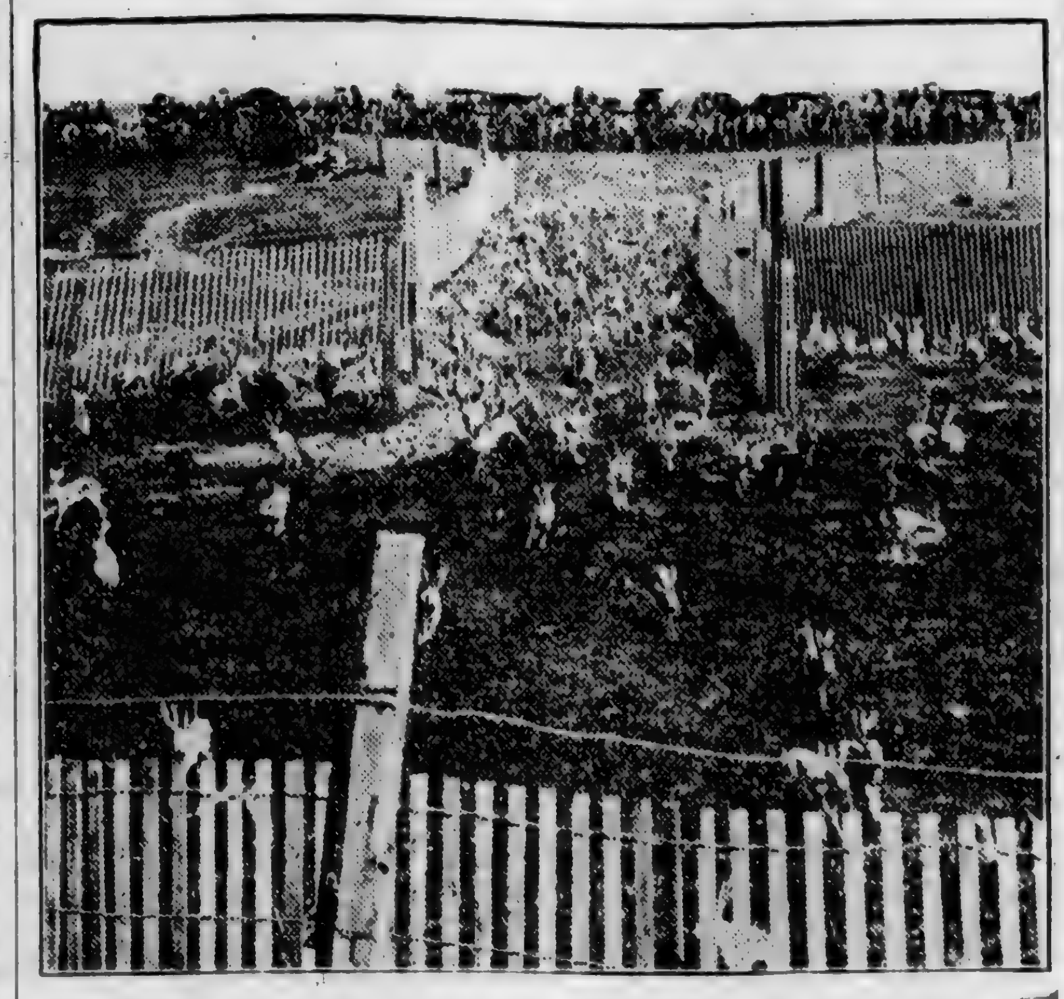
The division also has active charge of farming and garden operations for each camp and cantonment. The produce raised is used in rationing troops and providing animals with forage. No men fit for active duty are required to assist in this agricultural service. The quartermaster general of the army has a much more efficient plan, for he has this work done by interned aliens, enemy prisoners, conscientious objectors and military prisoners. Of our own enlisted men only those physically unsuited for service overseas or partially disabled are assigned to this agricultural work. It is believed that after a few months of outdoor work, many of the men now unfit will so improve physically that they will become fit for transfer to fighting units. Thus the army will reclaim men as well as materials and supplies.

The boys at the front and at camps and cantonments in this country also are setting a standard in conservation and reclamation which is magnificent. They are doing their utmost to see that every penny invested in the cause of democracy, through Liberty Bonds and otherwise, is utilized efficiently.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

WILD RABBITS FOR MEAT AND FUR.



The Organized Rabbit Drive Protects Crops and Conserves Meat.

WILD RABBIT IS VALUABLE ASSET

Each Year Fully 200,000,000 of Little Animals Are Killed in United States.

FUR IS IN STRONG DEMAND

Value of Pelts Will Be Further Increased This Year on Account of Embargo Placed on Importation of All Skins.

The game commission of Pennsylvania estimated that in 1917, during the open season of 45 days, fully 3,500,000 rabbits were killed and utilized for food in that state. Making due allowance for overestimates in only one state, it is safe to say that each year fully 200,000,000 wild rabbits are killed in the United States. Many of them are jack rabbits, the majority of which have been utilized in the past. If all the rabbits killed were consumed, they would represent between 200,000 and 300,000 tons of valuable food, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

The skins of these wild rabbits are a valuable asset, as they can be used for hatters' fur and glue. The war has caused a great shortage of hatters' fur from other countries. Last winter the price of native rabbit skins rose steadily from 20 or 25 cents to 70 and even 90 cents a pound at the close of the season. It takes 6 to 8 dry skins of the cottontail rabbit to make a pound. This makes the present value of the pelt of the smaller rabbit 10 to 12 cents and that of the jack rabbit 18 to 20 cents. These values will be further increased because of the embargo that has been placed on the importation of furs.

Save the Skins.

If proper measures are taken to insure the collection of skins the shortage of hatters' fur can be largely met by the wild supply. If all households that use rabbits for food and every marketman who dresses rabbits can be induced to save and dry the skins the present home production of hatters' fur can be more than doubled next season. The prices pay well for the slight labor needed to prepare them for market. Men can make excellent wages skinning the jack rabbits that are destroyed as pests in our Western states, and that have hitherto been wasted. At only 10 cents each the skins of the 200,000,000 rabbits killed in the United States have a value of $20,000,000.

The organized drive, in which every rabbit caught may be utilized as food, is being encouraged wherever practicable as a means of conserving meat and protecting crops from their depredations.

While the fur of our wild rabbits does not make the finest hats, and the manufacturers of these are dependent on nutria, muskrat, and beaver clippings, the use of these finer hats will probably decline and they will be replaced by those made of rabbit fur. There is a strong demand for all the rabbit skins that can be collected in America.

Kansas Firm's Contribution.

Last winter a firm in Kansas dressed and shipped 157,000 jack rabbits, or 275 tons of meat. The skins were all saved and marketed, making an important item in the profits. A large extension of the business is planned for the coming season, and it is expected that many similar enterprises will be developed in various parts of the West. These activities will insure a much larger saving of jack rabbit skins than in the past.

CAN THE BUNNY

Bunny clubs have been started among women in Oklahoma to can the rabbits caught in the organized drives in sections of the state where great damage is done by the pests. One club in Buffalo puts up Buffalo bunny sausage which carries on the outside of the cans the following:

Can the bunny
Save the money
Help to win the war
With bread and meat
And lots to eat
The end will not be far.

Slice him up
Spice him up
Grind him very fine
Fry him brown
Pack him down
Good for any time.

Tile Trap for Rabbits.

Set a 12 by 6-inch "tee" sewer tile with the long end downward, and bury it so that the six-inch opening at the side is below the surface of the ground. Connect two lengths of six-inch sewer pipe horizontally with the side opening. Second-grade or even broken tile will do. Cover the joints with soil so as to exclude light. Provide a tight removable cover, such as an old harrow disk, for the top of the large tile. The projecting end of the small tile is then surrounded with rocks, brush or wood, so as to make the hole look inviting to rabbits and encourage them to frequent the den. Rabbits, of course, are free to go in or out of these dens, which should be constructed in promising spots on the farm and in the orchard. A trained dog will locate inhabited dens. The outlet is closed with a disk of wood on a stake, or the dog guards the opening. The cover is lifted and the rabbits captured by hand.

These traps are especially suitable for open lands and prairies, where rabbits cannot find natural hiding places. They are permanent and cost nothing for repairs from year to year. If it is desired to poison rabbits, the baits may be placed inside these traps, out of the way of domestic animals or birds. This trap also furnishes an excellent means of obtaining rabbits for the table, or even for market.

Fall Feeding for Sheep.

Stubble and stalk fields may well form the principal means of sustenance for the breeding flock in the fall if they are used before the rains injure their feeding value. Fence strips in plowed fields may also give good grazing for a few days. Clover and grass pastures may well be left until the stubble and stalk fields have been used. For regions where the winters are open, a heavy stand of well-cured bluegrass will help very much in carrying the flock through the winter in good condition. Green rye pastures in the late fall give considerable succulence and furnish exercise for the flock. In the South velvet beans will be found of great help in carrying the flock into January.

Plenty of Muskrats.

A sufficient number of muskrats to meet demands for their fur are trapped from marshes and swamps that are, for the most part, unprotected, millions of skins being taken each year. So long as the natural breeding places remain undisturbed and reasonable closed seasons are maintained there is little likelihood of the numbers of the animals being depleted, according to biologists of the United States department of agriculture. With adequate protection in the breeding season and with the present habitat available, from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 pelts can be taken in North America annually without depletion of the supply.

It is a good plan to wean the lambs gradually; this will eliminate having to milk the ewes and the lambs will do much better.

Hoosier News Briefly Told

John B. Truman, thirty-five, formerly city engineer of Lafayette, died in a hospital in Columbus following an operation in an effort to remove gallstones.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCain, Mrs. Pearl Lentz and Mrs. Guy Taylor and three-year-old child, all of Camden, were killed at Logansport when their automobile was struck by an interurban.

The wheat threshing season is practically over in Kosciusko county, and statistics gathered by County Agent W. R. Zechiel show that 290,083 bushels were raised on 14,393 acres, an average of 20 3-5 bushels to the acre.

Coal miners of the Brazil district received approximately $100,000 in wages on a recent pay day. All mines in this district are operating at capacity and this was the largest amount ever distributed among the mine workers of that locality.

Joseph Thompkinson, Jr., four years old, is dead at Fort Wayne, and his parents and a brother were made seriously ill as the result of eating homemade ice cream. Physicians say something in the cream caused ptomaine poisoning.

With Bedford barbers having raised the price of shaves from 15 to 25 cents and hair cuts to 40 cents, the razor dealers have been doing a heavy business in selling shaving outfits. Many men are shaving themselves, and their wives cut their hair.

Out of 18,000 or more voters in Madison county less than 7,000 have registered for the November election. A new ruling was issued by the county board prohibiting persons other than clerks in the registration office from handling the books or blanks.

Ernest Frise, thirteen years old, an orphan who formerly lived in Terre Haute, picked up a can beside the railroad near Central City, Ky., and hurling it against the rail to open it, was killed when it exploded. Bernard Gish, who was with Frise, was injured seriously.

At the close of the Bartholomew county teachers' institute, which was in session at Columbus, the teachers organized a county teachers' federation, to work in conjunction with the federation of the city teachers. One of the objects of the two organizations is to bring about a general increase in salaries.

When the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Almon Hosteler, near Shipshewana, set fire to a strawstack on her father's farm "just to see it burn," she started the destruction of property valued at $9,000. Mr. and Mrs. Hosteler were at a neighbor's farm assisting in thrashing and only their children were at home.

Fifty garage owners in Huntington county have announced that they will not sell gasoline or automobile supplies to 17 men who have been listed as unpatriotic by the county council of defense. These men have been going to nearby counties to buy groceries, and their supply of sugar and flour has been cut off.

The Culver company of Liberty guards will have their uniforms donated to them by the trustees of the Culver Military academy, according to an announcement made by Capt. J. W. Riggens of the company. This company was organized after the state supply of uniforms was exhausted and the men have been working without equipment.

Approximately 4,000 men are believed to have registered for military service in Indiana, under the selective service law. These were men who had attained the age of twenty-one since the registration of June, 1918. Incomplete returns to Maj. Robert C. Baltzell, state conscription agent, indicated that the registration was approximately 20 per cent of the June 5 registration, and at that time 20,000 Hoosierites registered.

The Tomato Products company, with headquarters at Paoli and subsidiary plants at Marengo, Hardinsburg and Frenrch Lick, is running at full capacity. Large consignments of tomatoes are being hauled and two shifts of hands, working alternately day and night, are necessary in order to consume the supply. The company has made many improvements this season and now has two large dynamos and 12 motors in operation. More than 50 hands are employed at Paoli alone, many of them women and girls.

Protests have been made in Seymour against "profiteering" by small boys who sell cigarettes, sandwiches and melons at trains carrying soldiers through that city. Dealers insist that the boys are doing business on their own capital. Cigarettes which regularly sell at 15 cents a package are sold to the soldiers on the trains for as high as 25 cents. High prices are also charged for sandwiches and melons. Officials have been urged to take the matter in hand and see that the lads sell their wares at regular prices or be prohibited from meeting the trains.

A large barn on the Eldy Sheets farm, northeast of Frankfort, was burned. Hay and oats and a number of farming implements were destroyed. It is believed the fire was of incendiary origin.

The first women rural route carriers of Wayne county were inducted into service when Miss Pearl Thomas and Mrs. Florence Hawk assumed their duties as substitutes while regular carriers are taking their vacations. Postmaster Charles Beck said "the women are getting along fine" and the carriettes said they were enjoying their work immensely.

Near Wakarusa, southwest of Goshen, there is a strip of territory where rain has not fallen in over 11 weeks and crops there are entirely ruined.

Silver Creek township, in Clark county, is suffering from a plague of grasshoppers. In some places corn has been stripped to the stalk by the insects.

Morton Woods of Owensville realized $1,800 from four acres of watermelons. He is one among many farmers in Montgomery township who have become "melonaires" this season.

Miss Rose Steck, nineteen, for more than a year a nurse at St. Joseph's hospital at South Bend, was drowned in Barron lake, near Niles, Mich., where she was spending her vacation with her parents.

Details of the campaign to promote interest in the "New Era Expansion" program of the Presbyterian church will be discussed at the sessions in Indianapolis September 29 and 30 of the Indiana Presbyterian men's convention.

Three prisoners, Earl Rice, eighteen; John Harris, twenty-one, and William Johnson, nineteen, escaped from the county jail at Goshen after they had locked Leb Jones, a turnkey, in a cell. George Wade, seventeen, refused to go.

An investigation is being made by state authorities of a new history text book for high schools of Indiana, which was adopted by the state board of education last spring, to determine whether it is satisfactory as a text book during the war period.

William A. Brooks, aged fifty-four, former city clerk of Goshen, entered the United States army. Passing the physical tests at Indianapolis, he was ordered to Jefferson barracks, St. Louis, Mo. He has two children, one of them a United States soldier in France.

The Newcastle council has passed a war-loafing ordinance, which will apply to men between the ages of eighteen and sixty. The object of the measure is to discourage men from loafing in public places, in the streets and alleys of the city. It will go in effect within 15 days.

Federal permits to deal in intoxicating liquors have been issued to six more applicants by Peter J. Kruyer, collector of internal revenue at Indianapolis. These permits were issued since 281 applicants obtained permits. Three who recently received permits were Indianapolis men.

At a sale of registered hogs owned by Thompson & Sons and H. O. Canary & Sons, in Johnson county, a sow was sold for $1,000. Other sows were sold for $500, $350 and $275. Forty-eight animals sold for a total of $6,233. A pure bred pig given by Mr. Thompson to the Red Cross society brought $364.50.

A grain elevator at Bippus, ten miles north of Huntington, was badly damaged by fire, 700 bushels of wheat and 10,000 bushels of oats being destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $20,000, practically covered by insurance. O. Gaudy of South Whitley, owner of the elevator, announces that work of rebuilding will be begun at once.

Henry Smith of near Muncie fertilized 26 acres of old clay ground supposed to be worn out and worthless and made it produce 26 bushels of wheat to the acre. Then he fertilized ten acres of soil so badly run down that it perhaps would have made 12 bushels to the acre, and caused it to produce 38 bushels of wheat to the acre.

Twelve years ago a marriage license was issued at Rushville at the office of the Rush county clerk to Miss Hazel Danson, formerly of Rush county, and Slement Smith, then of Marion. A few days ago a return came from Wabash showing they had been married by A. W. Watt, a justice of the peace there.

In line with the efforts of the food administration at Washington to encourage canning among the householders, Stanley Wyckoff, Marion county food administrator, announced that there is a supply of sugar ample to allow the public 12½ pounds per capita. Every housewife who has not received her allotment of sugar for canning purposes is urged to apply, but it must be for canning purposes.

Isadore Mulvaney, age seventy, a farmer of near Liggett, who was shot by his son, Charles, in a shotgun battle in a dispute over the possession of a farm, died at a Terre Haute hospital. The son was arrested on a charge of murder. He asserts that his father, accompanied by Marion Mulvaney, a brother of the defendant, fired two shots into his home and that in self-defense he fired the shot which resulted in the death of his parent.

A new tractor company, with $1,500,000 preferred stock and $1,200,000 common stock, with Cecil Gibson as president and some of the most substantial capitalists of the country constituting the board of directors, was formed in Indianapolis. The company will manufacture Bull tractors and is to operate both the distribution and manufacturing ends from Indiana as a base. It is the result of a merger of the Bull Tractor company of Minneapolis with the Madison Motors corporation of Anderson.

In the administrator's sale of the property of David Bottorf, a well-to-do stock broker at Salem, who was accidentally killed June 27, the growing crops were sold separate from the farms, and the corn brought $60 an acre.

While Walter R. Hinton of Sellersburg was on his way to France in the American expeditionary force he was accepted into membership of the Methodist Episcopal church at Sellersburg by proxy, his young wife, Mrs. Verda Jones Hinton, taking in his stead the "right hand of fellowship" held out by the pastor.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0497

"OVER THE TOP"

60

AN AMERICAN SOLDIER WHO WENT

ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

MACHINE GUNNER, SERVING IN FRANCE

©1917 BY ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

CHAPTER XXIV—Continued.

—23—

Just as he finished speaking, the welcome "pup-pup" of a machine gun in their rear rang out, and the front line of the onrushing Germans seemed to melt away. They wavered, but once again came rushing onward. Down went their second line. The machine gun was taking an awful toll of lives. Then again they tried to advance, but the machine gun mowed them down. Dropping their rifles and bombs, they broke and fled in a wild rush back to their trench, amid the cheers of "D" company. They were forming again for another attempt, when in the rear of D company came a mighty cheer. The ammunition had arrived and with it a battalion of Scotch to re-enforce them. They were saved. The unknown machine gunner had come to the rescue in the nick of time.

With the re-enforcements it was an easy task to take the third German line.

After the attack was over, the captain and three of his noncommissioned officers, wended their way back to the position where the machine gun had done its deadly work. He wanted to thank the gunner in the name of D company for his magnificent deed. They arrived at the gun, and an awful sight met their eyes.

Lloyd had reached the front line trench, after his company had left it. A strange company was nimbly crawling up the trench ladders. They were re-enforcements going over. They were Scotties, and they made a magnificent sight in their brightly colored kilts and bare knees.

Jumping over the trench, Lloyd raced across "No Man's Land," unheeding the rain of bullets, leaping over dark forms on the ground, some of which lay still, while others called out to him as he speeded past.

He came to the German front line, but it was deserted, except for heaps of dead and wounded—a grim tribute to the work of his company, good old D company. Leaping trenches, and gasping for breath, Lloyd could see right ahead of him his company in a dead-ended sap of a communication trench, and across the open, away in front of them, a mass of Germans preparing for a charge. Why didn't D company fire on them? Why were they so strangely silent? What were they waiting for? Then he knew—their ammunition was exhausted.

But what was that on his right? A machine gun. Why didn't it open fire and save them? He would make that gun's crew do their duty. Rushing over to the gun he saw why it had not opened fire. Scattered around its base lay six still forms. They had brought their gun to consolidate the captured position, but a German machine gun had decreed they would never fire again.

Lloyd rushed to the gun and, grasping the traversing handles, trained it on the Germans. He pressed the thumb piece, but only a sharp click was the result. The gun was unloaded. Then he realized his helplessness. He did not know how to load the gun. Oh, why hadn't he attended the machine-gun course in England? He'd been offered the chance, but with a blush of shame he remembered that he had been afraid. The nickname of the machine gunners had frightened him. They were called the "Suicide club." Now, because of this fear, his company would be destroyed, the men of D company would have to die, because he, Albert Lloyd, had been afraid of a name. In his shame he cried like a baby. Anyway he could die with them and, rising to his feet, he stumbled over the body of one of the gunners, who emitted a faint moan. A gleam of hope flashed through him. Perhaps this man could tell him how to load the gun. Stooping over the body he gently shook it and the soldier opened his eyes. Seeing Lloyd, he closed them again and, in a faint voice, said:

"Get away, you blighter, leave me alone. I don't want any coward around me."

The words cut Lloyd like a knife, but he was desperate. Taking the revolver out of the holster of the dying man he pressed the cold muzzle to the soldier's head and replied:

"Yes, it is Lloyd, the coward of Company D, but so help me God, if you don't tell me how to load that gun I'll put a bullet through your brain!"

A sunny smile came over the countenance of the dying man and he said in a faint whisper:

"Good old boy! I knew you wouldn't disgrace our company——"

Lloyd interposed: "For God's sake, if you want to save that company you are so proud of, tell me how to load that d——d gun!"

As if reciting a lesson in school, the soldier replied in a weak, singsong voice: "Insert tag end of belt in feed block, with left hand pull belt left front. Pull crank handle back on roller, let go, and repeat motion. Gun is now loaded. To fire, raise automatic safety latch, and press thumbpiece. Gun is now firing. If gun stops, ascertain position of crank handle—"

But Lloyd waited for no more. With wild joy at his heart, he took a belt from one of the ammunition boxes lying beside the gun, and followed the dying man's instructions. Then he pressed the thumbpiece and a burst of fire rewarded his efforts. The gun was working.

Training it on the Germans he shouted for joy as their front rank went down.

Traversing the gun back and forth along the mass of Germans, he saw them break and run back to the cover of their trench, leaving their dead and wounded behind. He had saved his company, he, Lloyd, the coward, had "done his bit." Releasing the thumbpiece, he looked at the watch on his wrist. He was still alive at "3:38."

"Ping!"—a bullet sang through the air, and Lloyd fell forward across the gun. A thin trickle of blood ran down his face from a little, black round hole in his forehead.

* * * * * * *

"The sentence of the court had been "duly carried out."

The captain slowly raised the limp form drooping over the gun and, wiping the blood from the white face, recognized it as Lloyd, the coward of D company. Reverently covering the face with his handkerchief he turned to his "noncoms" and, in a voice husky with emotions, addressed them:

"Boys, it's Lloyd, the deserter. He has redeemed himself, died the death of a hero—died that his mates might live."

That afternoon a solemn procession wended its way toward the cemetery. In the front a stretcher was carried by two sergeants. Across the stretcher the Union Jack was carefully spread. Behind the stretcher came a captain and forty-three men, all that were left of D company.

Arriving at the cemetery, they halted in front of an open grave. All about them wooden crosses were broken and trampled into the ground.

A grizzled old sergeant, noting this destruction, muttered under his breath: "Curse the cowardly blighter who wrecked those crosses! If I could only get these two hands around his neck his trip West would be short."

The corpse on the stretcher seemed to move, or it might have been the wind blowing the folds of the Union Jack.

CHAPTER XXV.

Preparing for the Big Push.

Rejoining Atwell after the execution I had a hard time trying to keep my secret from him. I think I must have lost at least ten pounds worrying over the affair.

Beginning at seven in the evening it was our duty to patrol all communication and front-line trenches, making note of unusual occurrences, and arresting anyone who should, to us, appear to be acting in a suspicious manner. We slept during the day.

Behind the lines there was great activity, supplies and ammunition pouring in, and long columns of troops constantly passing. We were preparing for the big offensive, the forerunner of the battle of the Somme or "Big Push."

The never-ending stream of men, supplies, ammunition and guns pouring into the front lines made a mighty spectacle, one that cannot be described. It has to be witnessed with your own eyes to appreciate its vastness.

At our part of the line the influx of supplies never ended. It looked like a huge snake slowly crawling forward, never a hitch or break, a wonderful tribute to the system and efficiency of Great Britain's "contemptible little army" of five millions of men.

Huge fifteen-inch guns snaked along, foot by foot, by powerful steam tractors. Then a long line of "four point five" batteries, each gun drawn by six horses, then a couple of "nine point two" howitzers pulled by immense caterpillar engines.

When one of these caterpillars would pass me with its mighty monster in tow, a flush of pride would mount to my face, because I could plainly read on the name plate, "Made in U. S. A.," and I would remember that if I wore a name plate it would also read, "From the U. S. A." Then I would stop to think how thin and straggly that mighty stream would be if all the "Made in U. S. A." parts of it were withdrawn.

Then would come hundreds of limbers and "G. S." wagons drawn by sleek, well-fed mules, ridden by sleek, well-fed men, ever smiling, although grimy with sweat and covered with the fine, white dust of the marvelously well-made French roads.

What a discouraging report the German airmen must have taken back to their division commanders, and this stream is slowly but surely getting bigger and bigger every day, and the pace is always the same. No slower, no faster, but ever onward, ever forward.

Three weeks before the big push of July 1—as the battle of the Somme has been called—started, exact duplicates of the German trenches were dug about thirty kilos behind our lines. The layout of the trenches was taken from airplane photographs submitted by the Royal flying corps. The trenches were correct to the foot; they showed dugouts, saps, barbed wire defenses and danger spots.

Buttalions that were to go over in the first waves were sent back for three days to study these trenches, engage in practice attacks and have night maneuvers. Each man was required to make a map of the trenches and familiarize himself with the names and location of the parts his battalion was to attack.

In the American army noncommissioned officers are put through a course of map making or road sketching, and during my six years' service in the United States cavalry I had plenty of practice in this work, therefore mapping these trenches was a comparatively easy task for me. Each man had to submit his map to the company commander to be passed upon, and I was lucky enough to have mine selected as being sufficiently authentic to use in the attack.

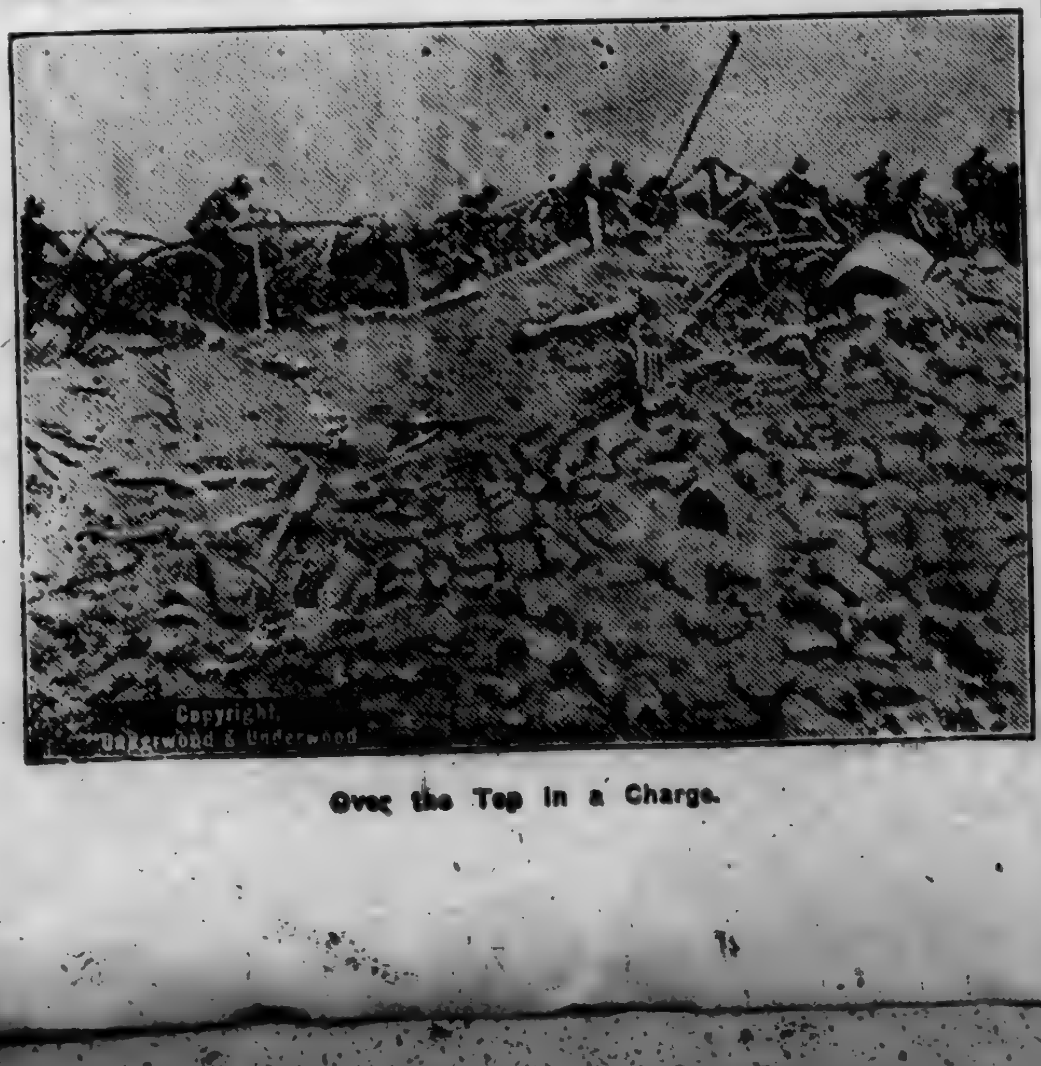
No photographs or maps are allowed to leave France, but in this case it appealed to me as a valuable souvenir of the great war and I managed to smuggle it through. At this time it carries no military importance as the British lines, I am happy to say, have since been advanced beyond this point, so in having it in my possession I am not breaking any regulation or cautions of the British army.

The whole attack was rehearsed and rehearsed until we heartily cursed the one who had conceived the idea.

The trenches were named according to a system which made it very simple for Tommy to find, even in the dark, any point in the German lines.

These imitation trenches, or trench models, were well guarded from observation by numerous allied planes which constantly circled above them. No German airplane could approach within observation distance. A restricted area was maintained and no civilian was allowed within three miles, so we felt sure that we had a great surprise in store for Fritz.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)



Copyright Underwood & Underwood

Over the Top in a Charge.

Isinglass From Fish Sounds.

Isinglass is made from the sounds or swimming bladders of fish. One ton of hake, says the Popular Science Monthly, will yield from 40 to 50 pounds of sounds. These are dried, soaked, cut in pieces, rolled into sheets and cut into ribbons. The ribbons are dried and wound on wooden spools. One ounce of isinglass will clarify from 200 to 500 gallons of wine and one pound will clarify from 100 to 500 barrels of beer. It is used for making cement for mending glass and pottery and for adhesive plaster and enters into the manufacture of many textiles and waterproof fabrics.

Tea Plant Purposely Dwarfed.

In its wild state the tea plant grows to a height of from ten to twenty feet; in cultivating it its size is kept down to about three feet for convenience in picking. The tea of Japan is mostly of the green variety. Considerable black tea is exported, but is grown mainly on the island of Formosa. The seed is usually planted in terraces that extend from the bases of hills to their very crests, like giant steps that conform with the general contour of the hillsides. During picking time one may see large groups of tea-pickers (mostly women) gradually working their way downward from the top of a hill.

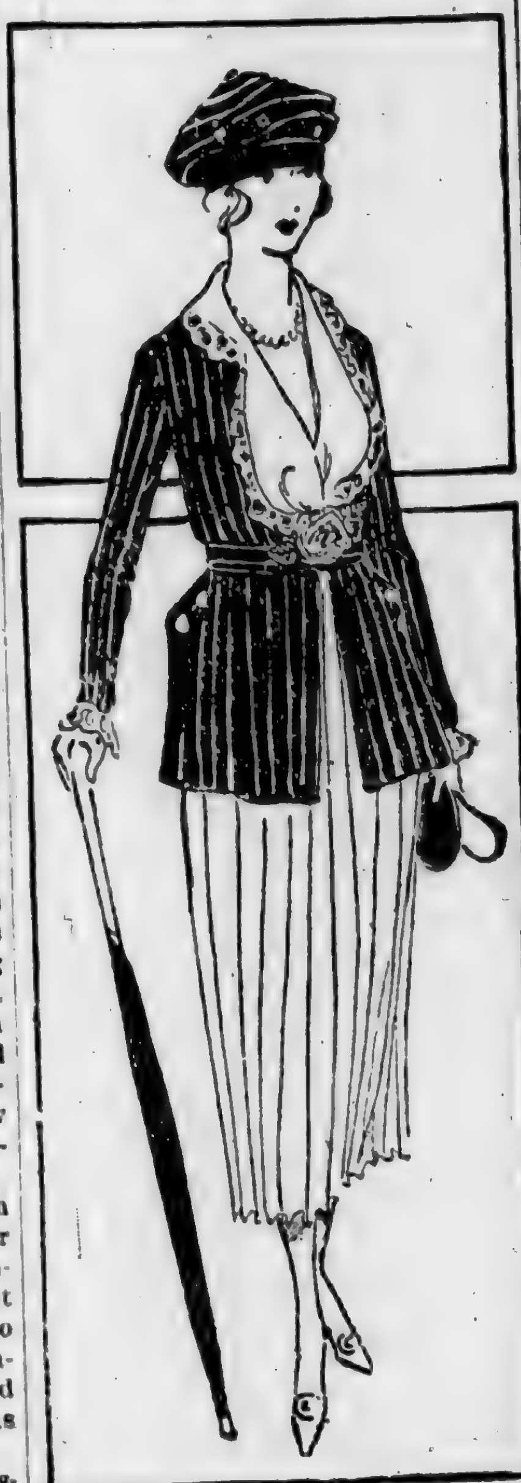
Midsummer Calls For Cool Clothes

American Women Adopt Costumery That Is Best Suited to the Season.

ABANDON WHITE LINEN SKIRT

Adopt French Fashion of Meeting All Emergencies in Costume of Thin Cloth or Any of the Chinese Silks.

New York.—A woman who was looking at some snapshots of fashionable folks in the open on a mid-summer day, remarked on the peculiarly old-fashioned effect of a certain costume. It was a short, white linen skirt buttoned down the front, a white muslin blouse with a wide turn-over collar, a colored sweater opened in front, with pockets and a belt of itself.



The sketch of this gown shows a knife-plaited skirt of white crepe de chine, short and narrow. Above it is an odd little black velvet coat, which is shaped out from the waist at one side and straight on the other. There is a collar of white chiffon and Val lace, and a pink rose caught at the waist.

"Once upon a time," said this woman, "this costume was considered the uniform of the American summer girl. It was adopted without cavil. It was accepted without comparison with the fashions of any other country. And yet, at this moment, it looks entirely out of the picture."

There has been no revolution, declares a prominent fashion writer. Changes in summer apparel have been in cities only. They are Americanized French fashions today. Even this summer has seen a distinct change from what has been.

The linen skirt, gored at the top, slightly flaring at the hem, and buttoned down the front, is a thing of the past to a great majority of women who are well dressed by instinct, or because they follow the movement of the crowds. Any skirt is worn but a linen one.

Sweaters in Evidence.

Certain shops say that the sale of sweaters for the autumn is small, but they add that the spring sale was good. We see sweaters in every shop, despite the conservation of wool decree. We see women knitting sweaters for themselves and their children, and not for the soldiers and sailors. We read that colossal department shops have an unusual quantity of yarn and are willing to sell it at moderate prices.

Yet, if one judges fashion by fashionable folk, the colored, knitted sweater has had its day in silk or wool. It is sometimes worn under jackets, on days in the open that need warmth, when the affair is a picnic, a yachting trip or an automobile tour. Otherwise it hangs in the closets of the homes of fashionable women. However, its lack of fashion has not depreciated its monetary value, for yarn is an expensive thing to buy and a most intricate and difficult thing to obtain.

What We Wear in the Open.

The economical reasons for discarding the white linen skirt, the knitted woolen sweater and the ornamental, white muslin blouse are based on expensive laundry and scarcity of material, plus scarcity of labor.

Those large sectors of American society that considered this three-piece costume the most reliable basis for their summer wardrobes, imagined their taste simple and inexpensive. It was neither. Today the propaganda against non-essentials, and the conversion of them into active service for the country have caused the scales to fall from the eyes of thousands of women as to the expense of the costumery they adopted.

We expect six more weeks of warm weather, and therefore, we have no absorbing interest in new October clothes. We want to know what is to be worn, and we are most interested in what we hear is being shown in Paris, but at this moment we are struggling with the proposition of enlivening our wardrobe in such a manner that it will keep us going until the first frost.

As the nation has gotten into the habit of living in the country until Thanksgiving, there is a growing tendency to keep one's August clothes in active service by means of top coats and woolen stockings. It must be admitted that the present emergency calls women into town nearly every day, and they may not continue to stay in the country as long as November, but the majority will insist on wearing their summer costumery as long as the climate and convention permit.

And right here comes in the excellent good taste of the present mid-summer costumes. Their very departure from the sweater and the separate white skirt permits them to serve at other seasons.

This is the stringent motto that must run the warp and woof of our lives now: to buy that which can be worn on as many days, at as many occasions as economy dictates. In short, we have accepted the European way of dressing for hot weather. It may not appear cool on the surface, but invention, which must go hand in hand with necessity, has shown women how to be cool and clean in dark costumes, or in combinations of dark and light clothes.

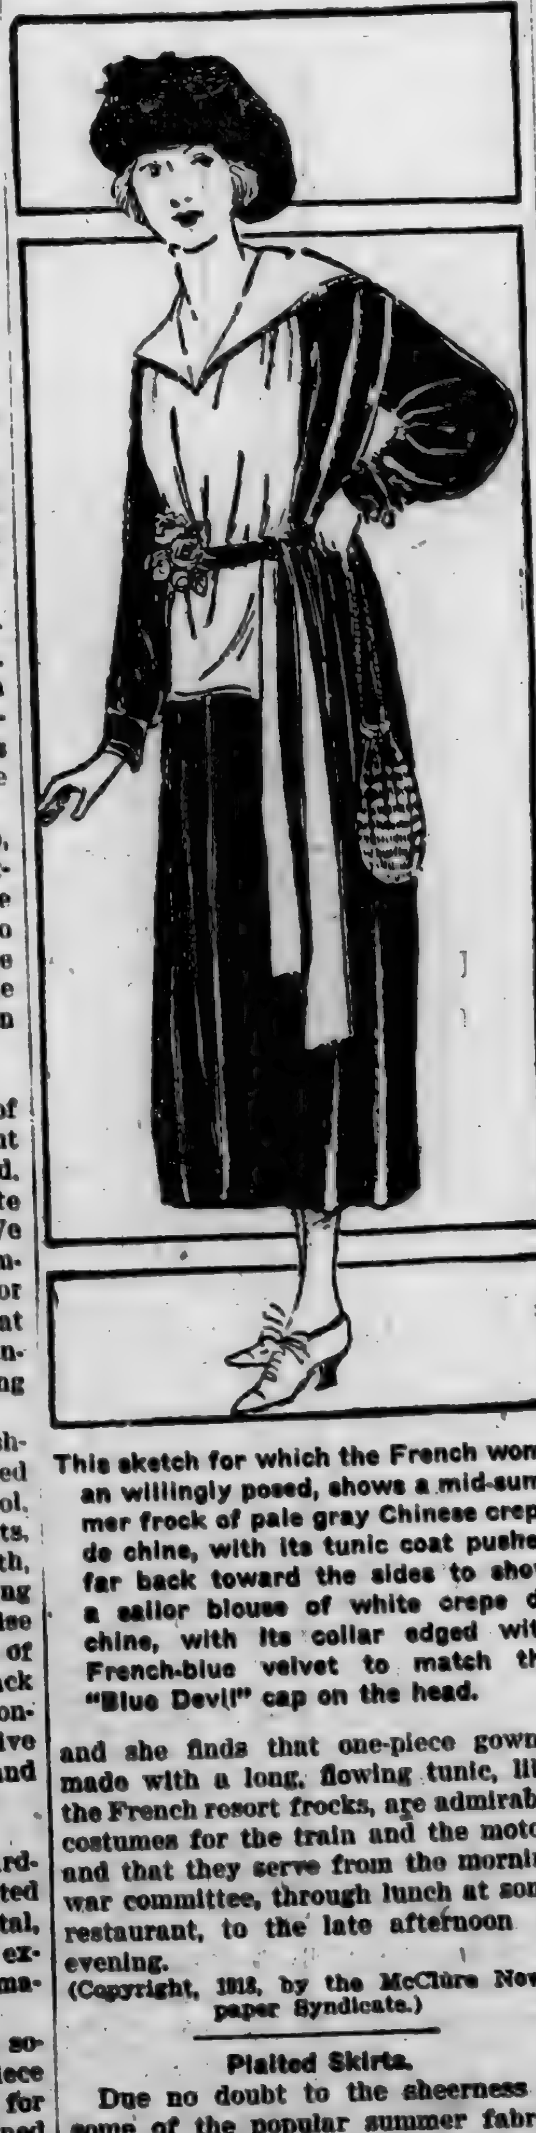
Double-Duty Wardrobe.

There are many women who are able to afford two separate wardrobes; one for the gayeties of the country and one for the daily trips to town; but the average woman, and often she is a multi-millionaire, has arranged her wardrobe so that it will serve for both purposes from now until the first of October.

She has taken up the French idea of wearing gowns or suits of very thin, checked material, and instead of an ornamental blouse, she inserts a waistcoat of pongee or colored crepe de chine.

She has found out the good service, especially for afternoon wear, of knife-plaited skirts of white crepe de chine or thin serge, which she tops with a velvet or satin jacket.

She realizes the comfort of Chinese materials, as well as their durability, and she finds that one-piece gowns, made with a long, flowing tunic, like the French resort frocks, are admirable costumes for the train and the motor, and that they serve from the morning war committee, through lunch at some restaurant, to the late afternoon or evening.



This sketch for which the French woman willingly posed, shows a mid-summer frock of pale gray Chinese crepe de chine, with its tunic coat pushed far back toward the sides to show a sailor blouse of white crepe de chine, with its collar edged with French-blue velvet to match the "Blue Devil" cap on the head.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Plaited Skirts.

Due no doubt to the sheerness of some of the popular summer fabrics plaited skirts are popular again.

JAMES P. GOODRICH SERIOUSLY INJURED

AUTO IN WHICH INDIANA'S GOVERNOR WAS RIDING COLLIDES WITH STREET CAR.

CONDITION IS VERY GRAVE

Suffers Concussion of the Brain, Fracture of Skull, a Broken Collar Bone, a Fracture of the Left Hip and Many Cuts and Bruises.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 30.—James P. Goodrich, governor of Indiana, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident here on the evening of August 28th, was reported as resting easy last night. However, his condition is still serious. An X-ray examination is to be made to determine if his skull was fractured, as was first thought, which was indicated by a constant hemorrhage from his left ear during the night.

His physicians, in their first statement, believed the governor's condition showed much improvement over the night, however, sleep was only obtained by the use of opiates.

His injuries, besides a possible concussion of the brain, include a broken collar bone, left hip injured, serious head injuries, bruised groin and a cut above the left eye.

On account of the governor's weak condition it was impossible to make an examination of his skull when he was first brought to the hospital.

The accident which resulted in his injuries occurred when the governor's machine was struck by a street car. The street car and the automobile reaching the corner at the same time and each slowed down to allow the other to pass. In the confussion, the governor put on speed to cross the track and at the same time the motorman of the street car started his car. The governor's car was struck in the rear, wrecking it, while the governor's body was caught underneath the machine. It is estimated that the machine was thrown at least fifteen feet.

The accident occurred about 9:30 in the evening, shortly after the governor had left his physician, Dr. Amelia Keller's home. He was hastened back to the doctor's home, but was shortly, after an examination by physicians when the seriousness of the case was discovered, removed to the St. Vincent's hospital.

The governor spent the first night in a semi-conscious condition and between his conscious moments asked frequently regarding the accident, as it seemed he did not remember any of the details of the accident.

Mrs. James P. Goodrich, whose home is at Winchester, was immediately notified of the accident and hastened to the bedside of her husband. Captain Pierre Goodrich, who was stationed at the quartermaster's department at Jeffersonville, Ind., was also notified and arrived at the governor's bedside the following day after the accident.

GOVERNOR JAMES P. GOODRICH.

Who was seriously injured on the evening of August 28th, at Indianapolis, when his automobile in which he was riding collided with a street car.

One Killed and Four Injured.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 30.—Martin Huse, 55, of Anderson, was killed and four persons were slightly hurt yesterday when a passenger car of the Union Traction line collided with the rear end of a gravel train near here.

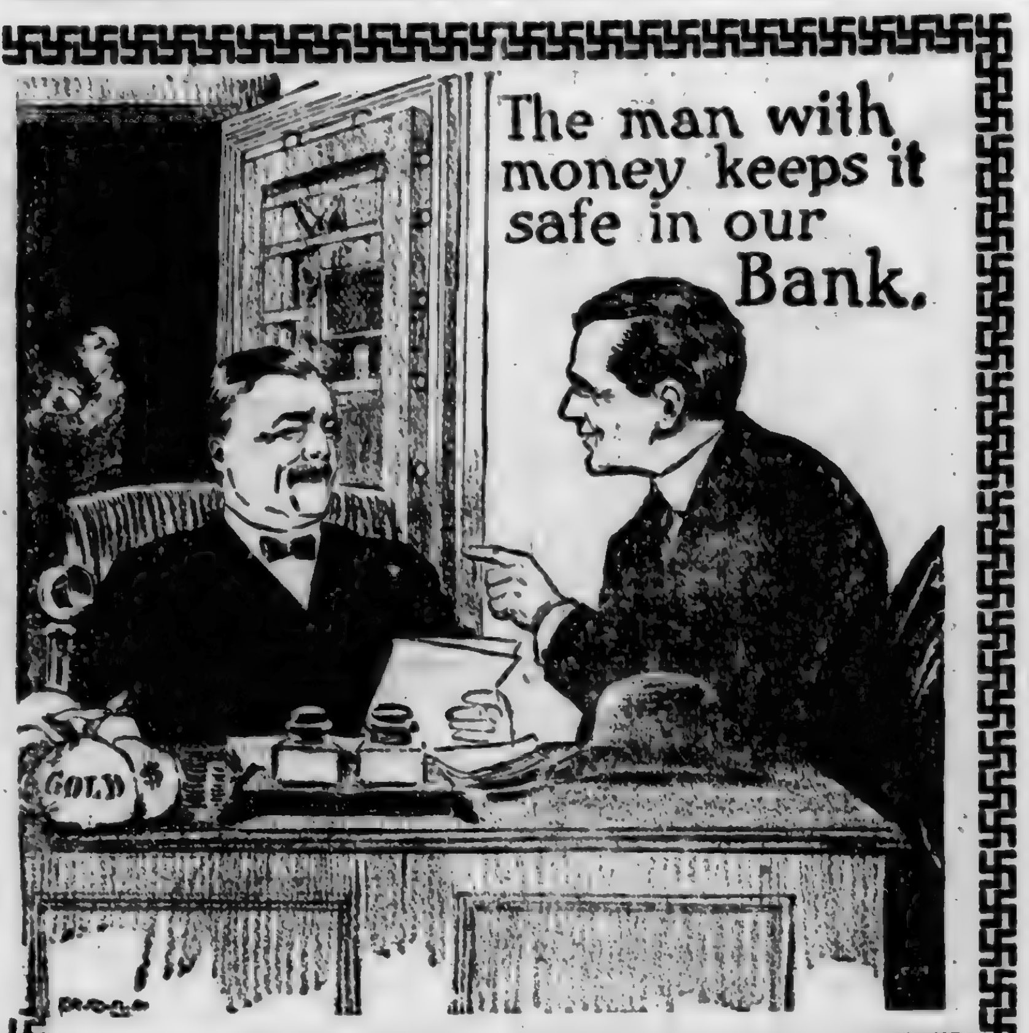
Red Cross Auction Nets $4,000.

Hamilton, Ind., Aug. 30.—At least $4,000 has been realized from the Red Cross auction held here. Treasurers of the auction declare that the sum may swell to well above $4,500 after all accounts are audited.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0498



The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.
GOLD

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

1. An account in this bank is your best recommendation
   - —It is business like.
   - —It shows you are capable of tending your affairs
   - —It shows steady character and will power to get ahead.
   - —It puts you in a class with the influential men of the community.

A Check is a Receipt—GET THAT.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

War Time Sweeteners

AMERICA has several excellent war time sweeteners that will be used largely during the shortage in the sugar supply.

They are maple sugar, syrups, honey and molasses and may be used in preparing desserts and other dishes requiring sweetening.

When a cup of syrup or honey is used to replace a cup of sugar the liquid in the recipes should be decreased one-fourth. One-third of a cupful of sugar is equivalent to one-third of a cup of honey, about one-half cup of syrup and about one-half cup of corn sugar. One-fourth of a cup of sugar is equal to about one-half cup of syrup or one-third cup of corn sugar. One tablespoon of sugar is equal to one tablespoon of honey, about one and one-half tablespoons of syrup and one and one-third tablespoons of corn sugar.

Sugar may be saved by the use of raisins, dates, figs, dried pears and fruit pastes used on the breakfast cereals.

Fruit marmalades, butters and jellies should be used to take the place of the ordinary sweetening at a meal and not as accessories to it. Fruits may be preserved without sugar. It may be added when sugar is more plentiful.

Preserving demands this year a thin syrup instead of a heavy syrup.

If sugar is used one-half of the amount may be replaced by another sweetener.

Drying is a means of preserving (without sugar) apples, cherries, strawberries and black caps.

When ready to use they may have added the needed sugar in the form of a syrup. When sugar is more plentiful fruit juices may be made into jellies or may be used as fruit juices with or without sugar, as beverages, fruit gelatins and frozen desserts.

Fresh fruits supply the place of sugar in the diet. They should be used freely. Desserts where sugar is scarce may be made of gelatins, junkets, custards, puddings and cakes.

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

Hq. 3d F. A., A. E F

Dear Grandmother:—

Suppose that you have already received the card stating that I arrived safely overseas. I thought of all of you people daily on the trip over; but, of course, had no way of sending you any mail before disembarking. I sent you two letters at that time which I wrote on board ship. I surely hope they reached you safely. It is such a long way back over there that it must take quite a considerable length of time for mail to reach its destination.

We had a delightful trip over—sea only rough twice, and showed us how large the waves could pile up when they wanted to do so; but, at that, they did not reach anywhere near their maximum height. I did not get seasick once, strange to say. Roy had it for two days; but, after recovery, enjoyed the trip very much. Place was not with us, having waited for another ship. Don't know where he is now. He will probably be with us again, shortly. I suppose he would like very much to see his brother, Alva, who is already here; but he may spend years here and not see him; and then, again, he might see him within a few weeks. Fate plays funny tricks sometimes. I am going to keep my eyes open for sight of any one whom I may know.

We came to England, landing on the ——— coast, and spent a short time in a rest camp several hundred miles from out landing port; but it was a rest camp in name only; for every one was exceedingly busy from the hour we got there until we left. We got our first idea of an American camp in a foreign country there.

England is a highly beautiful and picturesque country, but every thing is so odd and quaint. The trains are most peculiar things to our eyes. The cars are designated as first, second and third class, and have rnuning boards extending the full length of the cars. The cars are divided into compartments holding eight men each, extending the entire width of the car and having no passage from the one to the other. No accommodation is made for toilet purposes, either. That must all be attended to at stations on the journey. The box and gondola cars are only of 10-ton capacity, and look more like little toys than cars.

But, say, a town is the prettiest sight imaginable. Every house has numerous chimneys, and each chimney is crowned with from three to six etches. Nearly everything is fenced in with huge stone walls, covered in most instances with moss and ivy, denoting old age. All buildings practically are brick and stone, very, very few being made of wood. But there are many small forests scattered throughout the country.

The people all treated us splendidlv. Saw thousands of children along the wayside waving both British and American flags. Never saw saw so many kids in all my life—don't know where in the world they all originated; and all the women and children had a good, rosy expression on their faces, and each had a smile and a cheery word for us as we passed by. But where we got our thrills was when we passed up the street of the city where we landed amid a downpour of rain; but the streets were lined on either side by cheering crowds, who followed us up to the station.

The streets are not wide at that, just about half as wide as our city streets. Street cars are nearly all double decked, but are not so long as are our cars.

Suppose you think this a rough shod description; but "Mum" is our motto, you know. So I must hold all details in reserve until I see you again.

I just finished reeding through the New Testament again last night. I surely enjoy reading the Word of God. It means so much to me, and gives one so much inspiration. The thing that I regret most is that during our movement I have not had an opportunity to attend services, although I always thought about what I was missing at the time. I surely would enjoy attending church back home again. I hope you people go every Sunday that you can.

Oh, yes! I nearly forgot to tell you how we all had lots of fun buying things with English money. It only takes a little while, though, to learn it. Suppose we will have more fun in France learning their language, etc.

Write all the news as often as you can. Love, prayers and best wishes. Willie G. Woodcox.
Headquarters 3d F. A., A. E. F., via New York.

For Your
Fresh and Salt Meats Fish and Canned Goods
SEE
W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET

Ask concerning SPECIALS.

Somewhere in Indiana,
Aug. 28. 1918.

Dear Folks:—

Am headed north for Detroit, I think—destination unknown, but think we will go east. New detachment came into Purdue today from Virginia. They were some enthusiastic bunch. Four of Squad 18 are with me, the rest being held as instructors. They are Mason, Miller and Wilders. They will be made sergeants.

I am feeling fine, but would feel better if I knew for sure where I was going.

Will write more when I get located. With love to all, I am your son. Charles Bassett.

Somewhere in France,
July 14, 1918.

My Dear Friend:—

I suppose you received the card telling you I arrived safely in France and were somewhat surprised to hear it. I did not get a chance to write and tell you we were leaving Camp Lee. When we left there, we didn't know where we were going to be loaded on the boat so soon.

I surely enjoyed my trip across. When I first got on, thought now here is where I get sea sick; but I didn't. My head got to whirling around a few times, but I did not lose any meals overboard. It gives one a funny feeling when he gets out of sight of land and can only see sky and water.

They don't allow us to write much concerning our trip. So will have to wait till I come home to tell you.

France is a very beautiful place, much prettier than I expected. The people most all live in cities and little villages. Their farms are very small, some only a few acres They pile dirt up about 5 feet high around the fields for fences. The shrubs and grasses growing upon it make a beautiful sight. They raise about the same crops as we do in the states—wheat, oats and potatoes. Corn is not grown so much here.

The French men all being to war, the women do all the work. They hitch up their oxen and go out and do as much work as the men. They all look stout and healthy. The houses are all made of stone, even the roofs. The people keep their horses, cows and chickens in the same building they live in.

The streets are very narrow in the little villages. So they hook their horses one ahead of the other so they can pass easily on the streets. They have no side walks. It looks queer to see the people going down the middle of the streets with their wooden shoes on. They make as much noise as a Ford auto.

The French people seem to be very glad we are here. They are very good to the soldiers. I have learned a few French words, but I know I'll never learn to speak the language.

We are having the fiest kind of weather here. It has rained a few times since we've been here, but not hard.

We have a good place to sleep and plenty to eat. So we are enjoying ourselves, considering, and hoping the war will soon end right so we can come home and tell what we have seen and done.

We are not allowed to write much. So I will close, as it is almost supper time, any way. Write often and lots, and I'll do my best. Love to all.

Corp. John P. Shutt.
Co. F, 145th Infantry, A. E. F. A. P. O. 763.

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Ray Sailer was home from Camp Sheridan, Chicago, the fore part of the week. His leave of absenee was short: he left there Monday evening and reported for duty Wednesday eveniug.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ST. JOE AND SURROUNDING COMMUNITY.

There being so Drug Store in our Thriving City and understanding how inconvenient it has been for you to obtain the articles you require in that line, and in order to make it more convenient for you to obtain the articles required, I have added to my line of Groceries a small line of the ordinary Drugs and Patent Medicines, which I will increase as soon and as fast as I learn the needs of the people of this and surrounding community. Anything in the line which I do not have in stock, I will be pleased to order same for you at the most convenient place so you will not be required to wait but a few hours for your order.

Any article required by the people in the country, call my store by Phone and I will be glad to send it to you by R. F. D.

All orders will receive our personal attention.

I will appreciate your business in this line, besides our regular line of goods.

ED. LEIGHTY, St. JOE.

—If you want to see a complete line of canned goods—we have it.

Cash cream station at J. Beams store: Highest price paid.

John Leighty, of Kansas City, came Friday night for a visit with his mother, Mrs Kate A. Leighty.

Mrs. C. R. Brunson and daughter, of Willard, Ohio, came the first of the week for a visit with relatives.

C. A. Woodcox was home from Toledo, where he is employed on government work, Sunday and Monday.

Howard Hull and wife, of Wellington, Kan., were Sunday dinner guests of the former's grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Hull.

Mrs. Mary Andrews, of near Newville, and Mrs Alice Hart, of Coburntown, were week-end guests of Mrs. Ann Abel.

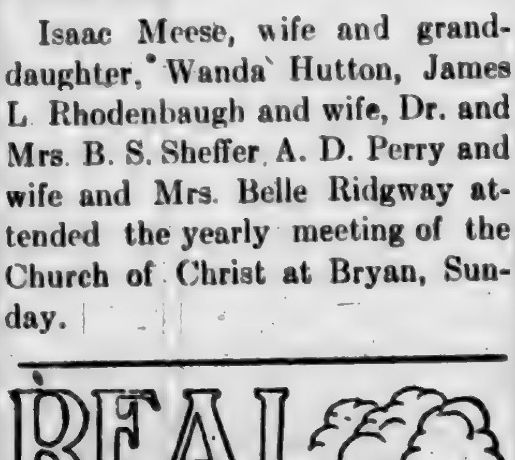
J. C. F. Abel and wife went to Huntington on Saturday afternoon for a couple of days' visit with their son, Glen, and wife.

Mrs. F. A. Patterson and son, George, Mrs. Ira Culler and Mrs. Mary Dills, all of Hicksville, spent Saturday with St. Joe friends.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Lutheran church will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Tustison.

Word has been received from Charles Bassett. He is stationed at Camp Colt, Gettysburg, Pa. He thinks, however, that he will be moved soon.

Isaac Meese, wife and granddaughter, Wanda Hutton, James L Rhodenbaugh and wife, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer A. D. Perry and wife and Mrs. Belle Ridgway attended the yearly meeting of the Church of Christ at Bryan, Sunday.



REAL ESTATE NEWS

TOWN OF ST. JOE

John H. Reinoehl to J. A. Daniels (trustee), 30 feet off south side lot 8, block 5. Consideration, $800.

John and Effie Wineland to St. Joe telephone exchange, part lot 8, block 5. Consideration, $50.

J. A. Daniels to St. Joe telephone exchange, 30 feet off south side lot 8, block 5. Consideration, $800.

Harlow and M. Ulm to S. S. Widney, .25 acre part southwest quarter of section 15. Consideration, $1,600.

CONCORD TOWNSHIP

C. A. and F. Tustison to Joseph N. Scholes, 69.24 undivided part of w ½, se ¼ section 13 and undivided one-sixth w ½, se ¼ section 23. Consideration, $1,600.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway will entertain the Martha society, Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Ed Miser and daughter, Martha, visited friende at Auburn part of last week.

E. R. Kinsey and family and William Pepple and mother, Mrs. Jane Pepple, the last of Auburn, spent Sunday at Lake James.

John Ulm and wife entertained Harvey Etterly and wife, of Williamson, Mich., Saturday night. On Sunday night, they had the following guests: Mort. Larimer, wife and two children and Miss Sylvia Rutter, of Lansing, Mich.; John Cogswell, wife and two children, of Eaton Rapids, Mich. John Nicholls, of Grand Rapids, was the Sunday night guest of Frank Tustison and wife. These people were here attending the Baker reunion.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —Editor News.]

For Sale: Jersey cow and two heifer calves. John Knight.

Found: Log chain, east of the Thomas White corners. Call on Geo. Swineford.

For Sale: Two fresh cows with calves also two to be fresh soon. Inquire of R. U. Bowser, Spencerville, Ind. Phone 36-12

For Sale: Fresh cow and thoroughbred Holstein bull. T. A. Northrup, St. Joe.

For Sale: Team work horses, 8 and 12 years old. B. W. Welch, Spencerville.

For Sale: Five year old Durham cow, and a sow to farrow soon. F. A. Lothamer.

For Sale Very Cheap.--Single buggy, two-seated single carriage and set single harness. J. C. COONS, St. Joe.

Strayed.--Red brood sow: weight, about 250 pounds. Finder phone to Samuel Felters, No. 9-21, Rt. 2, St. Joe.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 14
ST. JOE, - - - IND

A Sluggish Liver Needs Attention

An Inactive Liver Affects the Kidneys and Deranges the Stomach and Bowels.

Too much stress can not be placed on the necessity of keeping the liver in good condition; upon it the health of the body largely depends. When the liver becomes sluggish, the kidneys are overworked, the digestive fluids are not properly secreted and a languid, bilious, nervous or sick headachy condition results. Poisonous matter accumulates within the body. Constipation, bloating, dizziness, belching, pain or soreness in the right side, impaired vision and, in fact, most diseases have their origin in an inactive liver. An inactive liver is easily corrected if taken in time, but the only way to doctor is to get at the cause. Glando Tonic is a liver remedy that has a splendid record for renewing activity, removing the poisons and building up the system. For bilious attacks, it can not be beaten. Mothers who are nursing a baby should take Glando Tonic to keep the bowels well regulated. This will keep baby's bowels in a good condition. Glando Tonic is a three-in-one treatment that brings results. A trial will convince the most skeptical. Testimonials will be furnished upon request. Glando Tonic is sold by druggists or may be obtained by sending 50c direct to the Grand-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0499

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII | ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12 1918 | NO. 37

Must Pay In Advance¡

In order to effect further saving in the consumption of print paper, the government at Washington has issued an order directing publishers of newspapers to discontinue sending papers to all substribers that are three months or more behind on their subscriptions. This order goes into effect on Oct. 1, 1918. Following are the government rules:

No publisher may continue subscriptions longer than three months after the expiration of such subscription unless it is renewed and paid for.

No publisher may give free copies of his paper except for actual service rendered.

No publisher shall send free copies in exchange for other publications, except to such other publications as are printed within the county or within a radius of forty miles from his point of publication.

No publisher shall sell his paper at an exceedingly low or nominal subscription price, but shall sell at the regular subscription price.

No publisher shall offer premiums with his publication unless a price is put upon such premium separately and the combined price is at least 75 per cent. of the sum of the individual prices.

No publisher shall conduct voting or other contests for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions. Subscriptions obtained in this way shall not be considered bona fide.

No publisher may issue holiday, industrial or other special editions.

Any violation of these rules subjects the paper so doing to the loss of his entire paper supply, the mills and dealers not being allowed to sell him any paper.

The Coal Situation

There will be absolutely no hard coal for St. Joe this winter, and soft coal will be harder to get after cold weather begins and the demand for fuel increases. The more ships Uncle Sam builds, the more coal will be needed to run them; and the shortage of cars makes the situation serious. The time to buy coal is now. The price will not be any lower than at present; and, a few months hence, coal may not be obtainable at any price.

Charles Hartman, of Kempton, Pa., visited Jacob and Frank Sechler and other relatives in this vicinity the fore part of the week.

Make Your Hogs Laugh

—By Feeding—

PIONEER

Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market, as you may know by the following ingredients:

{Wheat middlings, Corn feed meal, Linseed oil meal, Ground and bolted screenings from wheat, barley and kaffir and dried buttermilk}

To Contain Not Less Than

{3.0 % of Crude fat.
12.0 % crude protein, not more than 12.0 % crude fiber.}

PRICE: $3.50 for 100 lbs.

—o—

We have Coal For Thrashing.

—o—

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.

Spencerville, Indiana

The Liberty Loan quotas are based and calculated almost entirely on bank resources, by reason of which the quota of OUR COUNTY is increased by the accounts of our depositors regardless of where they live.

Subscribers should remember this and should therefore enter their subscriptions through the banks with which they have bank accounts. Solicitors should be firmly instructed not to deflect a subscription or to attemp to divert it into any county. It should be placed with the bank with which the subscriber has his bank account.

Official credit will be properly taknn by the county in which the bank is located through which the subscription is entered. It is where this bank account lives which counts, rather than where the subscriber himself lives.

A flag credit, to be counted in obtaining the Community Honor Flag, may be taken by the county and township in which the subscriber lives. Official credit should not be taken by the County Chairman taking the flag credit unless the bank account and subscriber "LIVE" in the same county.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

Rev. Hively Leaves

After two years' satisfactory pastorate over the U. B. church of Newville, Rev. E. Hively's work there is done. The annual conference, which closed at Winona on Sunday, transferred him to Monroeville, just east of Fort Wayne. He will be succeeded by L. E. Eaton. Another appointment of interest to Newville people is that of O. P. Givens. He is returned to Erie.

Rev. and Mrs. Hively are a valuable addition to any community, within and without the church.

Patronize the advertisers.

Another Fight With the B. & O. Road

SIX YEARS ago, the people of St. Joe fought a successful fight against the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for better accommodations. All that was asked then was that means be provided whereby citizens of our town could go to the county seat—ten miles west—and get back the same day, a very reasonable request. Officials of the railroad compacompany, however, paid no attention to St. Joe's just demands. A number of progressive citizens of the place, headed by H. M. Widney, took the matter up before the state public service board; and the time for a hearing was set, the same to be held at Fort Wayne. When the railroad officials saw that St. Joe was determined to have her rights, they immediately got good—too good, in fact—so good that they "put one over" the town: they did not wait for the board to hear testimony and make a decision in the case. They knew they would be beaten if they did. They surrendered with a contest and agreed to stop No. 6—due here about 10 p. m.—to let off passengers from Auburn Junction to St. Joe. That was satisfactory to our citizens, and the matter was dropped. There was no trouble for several years, and then the railroad officials went back on their word This necessitated a second appeal to the public service board, as there had been no decision given the first time. The state authorities heard both sides of the question, and ordered that No. 6 be stopped at St. Joe to let off Auburn Junction passengers. The Baltimore & Ohio is a mighty big institution, but not so big as the Hoosier state: the board's mandate was carried ont until a few weeks ago. Officials of the road, aware that governmental control of railways has nullified the state board's order and prompted by the "public be damned" policy that always has characterized them in the service given the small towns, have discontinued stopping No. 6 here.

Here is the situation at St. Joe: We have one train daily each way, except on Sunday. The eastbound train, due here at 7:47 a. m., runs from Garrett to Chicago Junction; the westbound, due at 11:11 a. m., runs from Chicago Junction to Chicago. Any person having business at Auburn can go at 11:11 a m., but he has no way of getting home until the next morning. This works hardship, particularly on the poor man who is summoned to court as a witness; and it applies to every one who has business at the county seat. The eastbound train, too, starts from Garrett; and the result is that St. Joe can not be reached from points west of Garrett without an all-night stop over. Our people do not object to this—they understand the situation: this is a time of sacrifice, and they have done and are willing to continue to do their part; but they do protest against the outrageous, "get-even-with-St. Joe" policy of the Baltimore & Ohio. They are not demanding anything unreasonable—no rearranging of time schedules nor putting on of new trains—only that one train already running stop long enough to let passengers from the county seat to get off. They are asking no more than the state public service board said they ought to have. No. 6's stopping at St. Joe will not affect general traffic over the road in the least. No one will be discommoded thereby nor no public interest will suffer.

The people of St. Joe should not lie down and permit their rights to be disregarded by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad: a fight should be started for the restoration of No. 6. Now is the time to begin it, for every day that it is put off will but make it the harder to win. This matter should be taken up by the town council, aided by citizens. The proper method of procedure is for them to submit the question to the public service board. This board is acquainted with the situation here; and, acting in their official capacity, would have influence at Washington. With all the business there is before the national authorities, an appeal irom an unheard of place like St Joe would receive scant consideration, owing to the much they have to do; and, at the best, action would be delayed until an investigation could be made. Beside this, the railroad officials might—and probably would—prove more powerful than our little town; but if the state of Indiana, through the public service board, takes up our cause, redress is certain within a short time.

We have beaten the Baltimore & Ohio twice on this same proposition before the state authorities. Beat them before the general government—and it can be done easily—and the question is settled forever. It's lie down or get busy.

Sheriff Arrests Tramp

A husky, able bodied tramp, who had infested the Coburntown neighborhood for two days, on Sunday was arrested by Sheriff Balts on complaint of Wilmot Coburn. The fellow was lodged in jail, charged with vagrancy. He gave his name as William Gronkoski; home, Chicago; age, 34. Mr. Gronkoski will probably be sent to the penal farm; and, after a few months there, he will come to the conclusion that begging handouts is a sinful waste of time.

Sherman-White cream station at J. Beams' store.

Mrs. Champ. Bailey is at Jackson, Mich., caring for her daughter, Mrs. Marvin Poper, and little grandson, who was born Aug. 27.

Married at Hillsdale

A charivari, which began about 11 p. m. Monday night and which was fast furious while it lasted, was the first intimation that many St. Joe people had that there was a newly marrfed couple in town. The home of Mrs. Belle Ridgway was the scene of the belling; and the satisfaction of the bellers when that lady's daughter (Olive) and Darwin Fry appeared was proof of the identity of the newly married couple.

The young people were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage, Hillsdale, Mich., Monday afternoon. The groom is the son of Charles Fry, of Coburntown, and is an honest, industrious farmer boy. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Belle Ridgway, of this place. She is a graduate of the high school and is a highly respected young lady, and Darwin is to be congratulated on his good judgment in the selection of a wife.

The young couple are undecided as to the future. For a time, at least, Mrs. Fry will retain her position at the postoffice, where she has been deputy for nearly a year.

Virgil Perry and Miss Pauline Barney accompanied the young couple to Hillsdale and stood up with them during the ceremony that united them for life.

COLETOWN

Subscribe for this paper.

Fred Beft and wife visited from Tuesday until Friday at the Henry Kling home.

Mrs. Bosserman, of Monroeville, spent the past week with her daughters, Mrs. Elton Brown and Mrs. Edwin Guthrie.

Howard Martin and wife visited Sunday at the John Hugh home, near Edgerton.

Notice to Patrons

Having decided to take a vacation for about one year, I must clean up all accounts due me before leaving; and all of said accounts remaining unpaid will be sold at public auction with the rest of my valuables. The mill will be in charge of Don Hindman. Time of leaving, three weeks. Give this notice your attention and greatly oblige.

W. L. WALLACE.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	82	3.14
M. P.	71	4.41
Christian	60	2.43
M. E. Spencer	118	5 24
Lutheran	118	6.50
Concord	68	2 05
Newville U B	79	2.72
Coburntown	92	4.97

PROTECT Your Grain

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Quaker Oats --- Schumacher Feed For Hogs

Carload on the way. Get your orders in now. You know what it will do. It speaks for itself.

GET YOUR COAL NOW

It is beginning to act like a little fire in the stove might help some.

We are ready for your Clover Seed. Highest market prices paid for same at all times. The best market always.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Manager

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0500

THE WOMAN'S PART

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN
Of The Vigilantes

Perhaps because my life has been very much occupied with children and their various needs and interests, the child always looms large in my horizon—the child—that "brings hope with it, and forward looking thoughts."

God knows how many war babies bring fear with them in place of hope, and the "forward-looking thoughts" must often be fraught with misgiving. One thing is certain, however, that though individual mothers here and there must of necessity have hearts laden with doubts of the immediate future, there never was a time when child life ought to be so carefully preserved, nourished, guarded, and guided.

This is pre-eminently woman's "part." Not her only one, for she is proving again and again her ability to take a man's work when needful, and do it with an unexpected strength and skill and staying power. There are few things left indeed, that she cannot do, and her activities might be practically boundless were it not for the fact that in the shuffle of the sexes men cannot perform similar feats of flexibility and become mothers!

What Women Are Doing.

A great many of our tasks are performed as they have always been, rather in the background, though we are more or less dragged into the limelight of responsibility nowadays. (I almost hope that we shall not like it so well that we shall never want to work in the quiet places again!) The bearing and rearing and saving of children, the conservation of this great life force that the dreary, blood-stained world needs for its hope, its comfort and refreshment, the literal staff on which the future is to lean, this is woman's most practical contribution to the service of humanity. Make munitions, drive cars, nurse, and succor the wounded, mother the soldier in the camps and canteens—all this must be done, but the child must be kept in mind at every turn. He has a right to be born, to be welcomed, to be loved and wished for, that homes and hearth fires may not vanish from the earth, and that men and women shall not lack the greatest driving force in the universe, fatherhood and motherhood—the love and care of children.

There may come a time when the service flags are taken down because there are no armies battling on the field, no gold stars needed to mark parental sacrifices, but if a new banner should one day be hung in windows here and there with a star meaning: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given," it would be not a flag of sacrifice but still a flag of service and honor.

Let us save the children, then, even if the task be carried on humbly, patiently, unostentatiously. All we own, and wear, and are, all that is the outer husk of us, all that is the inner kernel, is being tested in these days. It is as if there were a universal "wash" and only the "fast colors" in life and character were coming out clear and true.

In all this the mothers and the fathers, the preachers and the teachers are a great factor. It is the children who are the seed corn of the future; it is the boys and girls of today that will have to endure the terrible reactions of this war and settle the problems that will vex us for years after peace is formally declared. Every man or woman who lends his money to the government in this crisis protects the future of his children; makes it more certain that America will never repudiate its debts, but pay them as it did after the Civil war, with a speed that gained the world's applause.

All Put Shoulders to Wheel.

The children are a definite factor in all our campaigns nowadays. Boy Scouts, Junior Guards, Camp Fire Girls, school children, have all put their shoulders to the wheel and in being an active part of the movement have grown in wisdom and understanding, self-denial and right use of their slender powers. These are our own American children, for the most part sheltered, not always indeed from poverty, but at least from more terrible evils. Whenever I buy bonds or War Saving stamps or subscribe to the dozen and one causes forever knocking at the door, I long to give more and more because of the lives of women and children across the seas, innocent lives sacrificed to the relentless war god!—mothers, potential and actual—the mothers who would have replenished the standing armies of the world—and blameless little children who were the hope of the future.

Then let us work, sacrifice, give, in memory of their sufferings and the unspeakable anguish in which they groped and bled and starved to death. I do not speak of repaying slaughter with slaughter—vengeance is the Lord's part—I speak of giving as if we were laying a "sprig of rosemary for remembrance" on those hundreds of little pitiful, uncoffined bodies, that their more fortunate brothers and sisters may be saved, fed, clothed, sheltered and educated.

Whoever loves a child loves his country; whoever helps a child holds a stake in the future of his country; whoever saves a child sits on the seat with the builders of cities and the prophets of lasting peace.

I. W. W.'s AND "LIBERALS"

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON
Of The Vigilantes

It is a matter of great regret to me, as to many others, that the leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World were not peremptorily court-martialed and the worst of them as peremptorily shot. The only sort of lawyers that could be induced to defend such vermin will use every legal trick to get them off, and it will take juries of very high intelligence to remain cool and detached in the face of appeals for liberty, justice, the abominable capitalistic class that is responsible for this rebellion of the outraged proletariat, and all the rest of it.

No one will deny that the more ignorant and stupid of the working class have been shamelessly exploited by the great employers of this country. They have been enticed from Europe, or from the Atlantic seaboard, under false pretenses, herded like cattle, forced to live in foul conditions, and, instead of finding themselves with the steady job promised them, turned adrift after four months of more or less lucrative work. The capitalist has labored to increase his capital and that of his stockholders, and looked upon the ignorant scum of Europe or the failures among the native-born Americans as he would look upon so much machinery to increase production. Not one of the exploited has ever shown himself capable of rising in the world on his own merits beyond the position of agitator and hater-in-chief of a class to which he would give his eyes to belong.

Human Nature Is Short-Sighted.

Moreover, the manner in which the immigrant has been treated at our ports, even when belonging to the best of his kind, has long been a source of mortification to every thinking American, and enough to make anarchists of every one of these bewildered and miserable creatures.

But this spirit among the powerful and the successful toward the masses is as old as time, and human nature is proverbially short-sighted. In this country where the successful never rest and where success is the goal toward which every able man strives with all the energy of his being, haunted by the brevity of life; where legislation is lenient, and individualism rampant, this state of affairs has come about in the most natural manner in the world. It would be astonishing if it had not, human nature being what it is. Barring the intervention of this war methods would have grown worse instead of better, and the result would have been a social upheaval. But the inevitable result of this war will be a pruning of capitalistic tyranny and a healthy invasion of socialism from the top, to say nothing of the general awakening and desire for the betterment of mankind, which will remove so many of the proletariat grievances that they will not have half a leg to stand on. It is a pity it could not come sooner, but history is history; our war did not come until it was due. Moreover, people, particularly when moderately successful, never rouse themselves to reform until they have received a severe jolt.

That, however, is for the future, and there is only one way to deal with the present problem; exterminate it. When a careless farmer has permitted his fields to be invaded by gophers, rats, rattlesnakes and other vermin, he cannot afford to sit down and reproach himself and invent excuses for the invaders; he makes a clean sweep and kills them off, sweeps away the formidable menace to his prosperity. Then, a wiser man, he takes measures to keep his fields and granaries free of vermin in the future, and watches unceasingly. But he exterminates first.

One Class Without Friends.

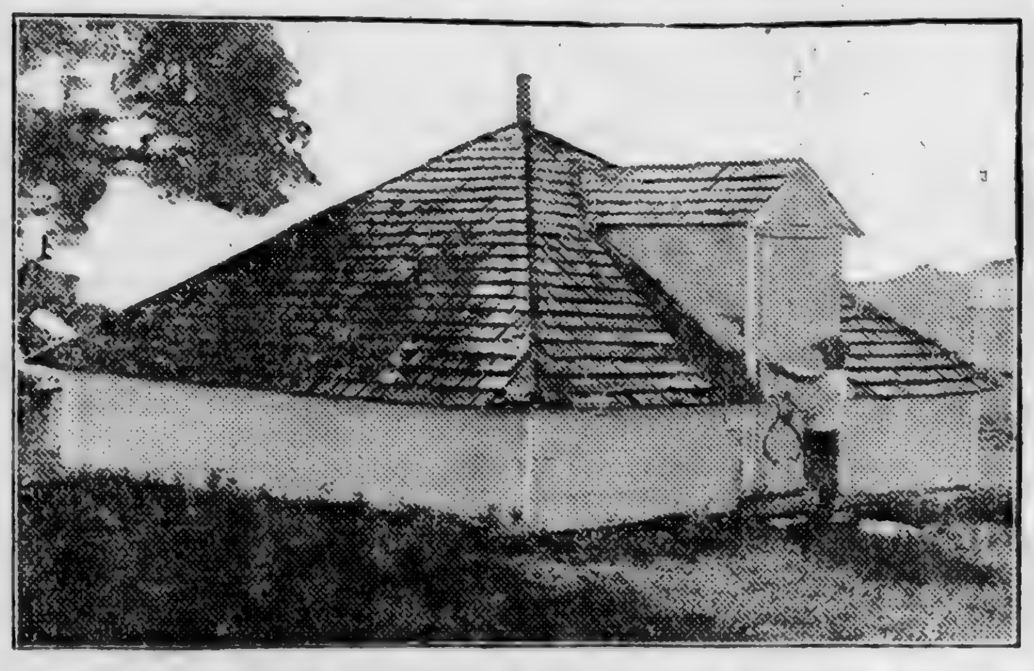
To reason with an I. W. W. would profit as much as to reason with a rattlesnake, charged with poison and waiting its opportunity to strike. In the first place, what brains these outlaws ever had not only have deteriorated with class hatred, but they never would have been I. W. W's, if they had had a shred of natural ability, or were not too lazy to work. They must be got rid of, root and branch. The leaders should either be executed or shut up in asylums for the criminally insane, and the rest either deported or punished.

As for the American Liberals who are trying to raise a fund to defend these outcasts, no censure is too harsh for them. They are either German agents, cowardly pacifists, or little groups of would-be "intellectuals," who long to be thought academic, detached, remote from the vulgar passions that govern mankind in time of war. Well, that is the point. We happen to be at war. An attitude that no one would quarrel with in times of peace, for we are quite willing to let inadequately gifted men and women win a little prominence in whatever way they can, when all are living for themselves; they come under the head of menaces or pests when the entire country should be united in a single purpose. No doubt the government will get round to them in time, but if it does not there is an ever worse punishment in store for them, the contempt of their fellow citizens. They will be outlanders, forced to endure the society of one another to the last of their days. In other words, they will be boycotted. Perhaps they would prefer the word verboten.

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

HOUSING THE WINTER ICE CROP



A Shady Situation With a Northern Exposure Is the Best Place for an Ice House.

ICE SUPPLY FOR FARM IS URGENT

Needed for Protection of Dairy Products, Vegetables and Other Perishables.

PLAN FOR SUMMER SUPPLY

Natural Article May Be Harvested at a Time When Farm Work Is Not Pressing—Expensive House Is Not Necessary.

Every farmer who can put up natural ice should plan to do so this winter as a patriotic duty. Each farm ice house will help relieve the drain on the city supply and on transportation, and will guarantee protection for the dairy products and other perishables from the farm when warm weather comes again.

These war times make heavy demands upon the fuel supply of the country, and, paradoxical as it may seem, it takes fuel to produce artificial ice, while natural ice may be harvested at a time when farm work is not pressing and both man and horse labor are not otherwise profitably employed.

Ice is one of those luxuries which in many sections of the country can be had for the gathering. The cost of harvesting and storing it is not great as compared with the comfort that it brings.

An ample supply of ice is of greater economic importance in the country home than in the city residence. City people can purchase perishable supplies as needed, but the remoteness of country homes from markets often renders it necessary to use canned, corned, or smoked meat products during the season of the year when the table should be supplied with fresh meats. Not only is the use of ice important in the preservation of fresh meats, butter, and other table supplies, but the production of high-grade domestic dairy products is almost impossible without it. Many markets to which milk is now shipped demand that it be cooled before shipment to a degree not attainable without the use of ice.

Type of House to Build.

Generally, the construction of an ice house is a question of economy. The cost of harvesting and storing, interest on the money invested, repairs and depreciation on the building should offset the saving in the melting of ice; beyond this it is not good policy to go.

Since ice at best is a highly perishable product, requiring special equipment for its preservation, such natural advantages as are offered by shade and exposure should be taken advantage of in locating an ice house. A shady situation with a northern exposure has a decided advantage as a location for such a building.

In general design ice houses are of three types: (1) Those built entirely above ground; (2) those built partly above and partly under ground; and (3) those of the cellar type, built entirely below ground. The above-ground structure is by far the most common of these types.

The advantages and disadvantages of these three types may be briefly stated. Above-ground houses can, as a rule, be more economically constructed than either of the other designs. Excavations are expensive to make and difficult to insulate and drain properly.

Insulation and Drainage.

Insulation and drainage are two of the most important factors in the preservation of ice. It is true that the temperature of the earth varies less than that of the air, but the fact that the temperature of the earth at 6 or 8 feet below the surface remains at or about 55 degrees F. the year around makes it quite as important to protect the stored ice against the earth heat as against the heated air. It is more difficult to remove ice as needed during the season from pits than from structures above ground. Slight advantages are apparent at harvest time in favor of the cellar or the half-sunken types of house, and under some circumstances they will be preferred to the other type.

The length of time ice may be kept depends upon the character of insulation provided. This will naturally vary with the location of the ice house and the method of construction. Another important factor will be the cost of construction.

The simplest type of ice preservation consists in stacking the cakes in a compact mass on a well-drained site, as well protected as possible by natural or artificial barriers from sun and wind, and covering the mass with sawdust, shavings, fodder, marsh hay, or any other good insulating material. Such a crude method is not to be recommended except as a temporary makeshift for ice which is to be used early in the season.

FOR LACK OF ICE

One large creamery, which buys about 350,000 gallons of sweet milk and cream per year, returned to farmers last year nearly $2,700 worth of these food products on account of lack of proper care which caused souring, churning, and off flavors.

The records of another plant show that nearly 50,000 gallons of sour milk were received in one year.

Insufficient cooling caused most of these losses, which are duplicated many times all over the country during the heated season.

Save Garden Seed.

Every boy and girl who has had a garden this season should, whenever possible, save seed for next year's planting. In many cases it is possible to gather beans and peas that have become too old for eating, thus assuring a supply of good seed for next year's planting. As a rule, with limited garden areas it will not pay to grow beans, peas, sweet corn and other vegetables for the production of seed, but when a surplus is allowed to become too old for eating it does pay to save this surplus for seed. Sufficient tomato, squash, melon, cucumber, and corn seed may be saved from the product of almost any garden provided a little attention is given the matter.

Seed should be saved only from strong, healthy plants. In the case of beans, peas, and sweet corn, the seed should be allowed to ripen on the plant. In the case of such plants as tomatoes, cucumbers, etc., the fruits from which the seed is to be saved should be well ripened. Remove the seed and spread it out to dry. All seed must be thoroughly dry before being stored. Garden seeds must be kept in a vermin-proof, well-ventilated receptacle. A tin bread box is ideal, as it supplies the proper amount of ventilation and mice cannot destroy the contents. Care should be taken to label every package of seed to avoid confusion at planting time. Keep the seed box in a dry, well-ventilated room, such as a room on the second floor of the dwelling.

Keep Surplus Vegetables.

It should be the aim of every boy and girl to keep the surplus vegetables from the war garden for winter use. Potatoes, beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, salsify and late cabbage may be kept by storing them in the cellar, or in banks or pits. Tomatoes, peas and string beans may be canned. Dry beans may be kept by gathering and storing in a dry place. By storing, canning, or drying all surplus vegetables every boy or girl can help the nation solve the food problem. The U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., has published bulletins on canning, drying, and storing garden products. Write for copies of them. They are free.

Put Your Pond in Storage.

Ask your health officer or dairy inspector for information regarding construction of ice houses, size of building, cost of material and building, and the cost of cutting and storing, and write to the dairy division, U. S. department of agriculture, for further details of ice house construction and the use of ice on the dairy farm.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

SALOONS A LOSING PROPOSITION.

According to Robert W. Kelso, secretary of the Massachusetts state board of charities, the liquor traffic in that state costs more than $2,700,000 a year in clear money, over and above all the revenue received from the traffic. Mr. Kelso presents the following statement:

Policing 354 cities and towns	$3,178,460
Judges and courts	181,045
Jails and houses of correction	[illegible]
State institutions	298,297
Hospitals for insane	566,700
Public charity	314,150
Poor relief	1,200,650
Total	$6,235,898
Liquor license fees received	3,453,321
Estimated net public cost	$2,782,576

In arriving at his figures, Mr. Kelso takes the total cost of policing and shows by figures that 59 per cent of the arrests made were for drunkenness. Therefore he charges up half the cost of the police to liquor.

For the courts he deducts the fines they have collected from their cost and then takes 70 per cent of the total spent on criminal cases as the cost of liquor. He asserts that 65 per cent of those lodged in jail, excepting tramps and vagrants, as in the case of the courts, got there through drink. So he takes one-half of the cost of the jails and the houses of correction. In like manner he goes through the entire list.—Chicago Herald.

IS NATIONAL CONSTITUTIONAL PROHIBITION AN INVASION OF THE PEOPLE'S RIGHTS?

Arguing that a vast majority of the people esteem alcoholic beverages essential to their health and happiness, the liquor interests are saying that the government has no right to stop supplying the demand for them. The weak point in this charge is that it is based upon false premises. Those who advance such argument will, of course, have to admit that the citizens of the fourteen states which have constitutional prohibition favor that policy of dealing with the drink traffic, and that as to the thirteen states dry by statute it is reasonable to suppose that the law would not have been enacted if public sentiment had been against it. In all of the remaining wet states there is so large an element for prohibition that the question is constantly before the people in state, county or local elections.

Be that as it may, the people of the states whose legislatures meet in 1919 will have an opportunity to give expression to their desire for ratification of the federal amendment through their votes for members of those legislatures. Thus a vast army of people whose rights the liquorites insist are being invaded will be amply protected.—Union Signal.

PROHIBITION IN LOS ANGELES NO DETRIMENT TO PROPERTY INTERESTS.

Real estate in Los Angeles experienced an unexpected boom, when on April 1 the city passed under the dry regime. Before the real estate offices closed for the day, more than a score of the liquor shops were rented for other purposes, and there was a heavy demand for choice locations in the downtown section, especially for the corners formerly used for saloons. The manager of the rental department of one large real estate firm said:

"Of the fifteen saloon properties listed with us we had five rented before noon and negotiations were on for the renting of five others before the close of the business day.

"We could have rented a great many of the saloons a month ago had not the owners desired to hold onto them in the hope they would win their fight in the courts.

"There has been very little reduction in the rents. The passing of the saloons will bring a healthy business condition to Los Angeles."—The Examiner (Los Angeles).

A BLESSING TO WORKINGMAN.

As an employer of a thousand or more laboring people in the city of Nashville, A. B. Ranson, the president of John B. Ranson & Company, hardwood lumber, Nashville, states: "I consider prohibition has been one of the greatest blessings for the laboring man, and I believe that it has made good men out of men who were too weak to withstand the temptation that the saloon offered. I have seen men in my employ commit suicide because they could not get drink. Their families, of course, suffered. I have also known men who would have been good providers had it not been for strong drink. I consider prohibition one of the greatest blessings for the workingman, instead of being a menace."

DRY TOWN HAS MONEY.

"City in excellent shape financially. All bills paid and surplus on hand, auditor's report shows." No, these are not headlines from some wet town newspaper telling of booze-bought municipal prosperity. Oh, no. They refer to Freeport's financial condition without any liquor license money.—Illinois Issue.

Doesn't Uncle Sam want his workers at home to be just as efficient as his fighters abroad? Then, close the breweries.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 15

MAKING CHRIST KNOWN TO THE WORLD.

(May be used with missionary application.)

LESSON TEXTS—Matthew 5:13-16; 28:18-20; Acts 16:9-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Philippians 2:5-16.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Numbers 10:29; Psalms 96:2; Isaiah 6:8; Daniel 12:3; Luke 22:32; Romans 1:14; Philippians 2:4-16; James 5:19-20.

I. The Disciple's Relation to the World (Matt. 5:13-16).

Christ saves with a definite purpose. The character of the subjects of the Kingdom is set forth in the Beatitudes. He gives a character which will wield an influence. The whole mass of mankind is shown in the Scriptures to be corrupt, and the whole world in darkness. The disciples are to live such lives as will purify and enlighten. Their responsibilities are set forth under the figures of salt, light, and a city.

1. "Ye are the salt of the earth" (v. 13).

Salt is that which is opposed to corruption. It prevents the progress of corruption. The properties of salt are (1) Penetrating; (2) Purifying; (3) Preserving.

Being salt, the disciples of Christ should penetrate, purify, and preserve society. Seeing on every hand the festering corruption of humanity, our responsibility is clearly set before us. The Christian should not go into seclusion. He should remain in the world, but not be a part of it. Let us be sure that as salt we do not lose our saltness. Christians cannot do good after they cease being good.

2. "Ye are the light of the world" (v. 14).

Light illuminates and warns. Its gift is guidance. This world is cold and dark. Many are the pitfalls and snares set by the devil. Christians should so live, let their light so shine, as to prevent the unwary ones from falling into them. They should guide the lost ones of earth so that they may find the path that leads back home to the Heavenly Father's house.

3. The city set on a hill (v. 14).

By a city is suggested a governmental and social order. Christian character and service should be so as to give the influence of the hill-lifted city. Christianity was not intended to be hidden, but to be made so conspicuous as not to be hidden, the grand objective being to glorify God the Heavenly Father (v. 16).

II. The Disciples' Commission (Matt. 28:18-20).

1. What it is (v. 18). It is to teach, to make disciples. Christ's death on the cross and triumphant resurrection provided salvation for the world. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). This great fact must be proclaimed to the world. The great commission is backed by the urgency of human need and divine love and compassion for this need. The disciples are to administer baptism in the name of the Trinity to those who believe, and teach them to observe all things which Christ commanded.

2. Its scope—all nations (v. 19). It is as wide as the world, and this obligation lasts until all the world is evangelized.

3. Its sustaining power—"all power is given" (v. 18). The divine energy is back of all those who go. Since he is with those who go the enterprise cannot fail. Opposition of the devil, sickness and death cannot thwart, because it is backed by divine energy.

4. The superintending providence—"I am with you" (v. 20).

Though the disciples may be scattered far and wide, the divine Christ is always present to comfort, guide and sustain. This presence is guaranteed to the end of the age.

III. Paul called to Macedonia to Preach (Acts 16:6-15).

1. Circumstances of (vv. 6-8). While pushing on the work of evangelization on his second missionary journey, the Spirit forbade Paul to preach further in Asia. Doors being thus closed, there was nothing to do but to go down to Troas. The guidance of the Spirit is as much by closing doors as opening them.

2. How called (vv. 9-13).

It was by vision of a man from Macedonia saying: "Come over and help us."

3. What called to do (v. 10).

4. First-fruits of Paul's ministry in Europe (vv. 14, 15).

Love of the Father.

God is my father and I am his child. He has a father's heart, and I can count on the tender affections of that heart in the midst of all my feebleness and need. He loves me not because of what I am able to do, but because I am his child.—McIntosh.

Word of God.

The word of God will stand a thousand readings; and he who has gone over it most frequently is the surest of finding new wonders there.—J. Hamilton.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0501

"OVER THE TOP"

By An American Soldier Who Went

Arthur Guy Empey

Machine Gunner, Serving in France

Copyright 1917, by Arthur Guy Empey

CHAPTER XXV—Continued.

—24—

When we took over the front line we received an awful shock. The Germans displayed signboards over the top of their trench showing the names that we had called their trenches. The signs read "Fair," "Fact," "Fate," and "Fancy," and so on, according to the code names on our map. Then to rub it in, they hoisted some more signs which read, "Come on, we are ready, stupid English."

It is still a mystery to me how they obtained this knowledge. There had been no raids or prisoners taken, so it must have been the work of spies in our own lines.

Three or four days before the big push we tried to shatter Fritz's nerves by feint attacks, and partially succeeded as the official reports of July 1 show.

Although we were constantly bombarding their lines day and night, still we fooled the Germans several times. This was accomplished by throwing an intense barrage into his lines—then using smoke shells we would put a curtain of white smoke across No Man's Land, completely obstructing his view of our trenches, and would raise our curtain of fire as if in an actual attack. All down our trenches the men would shout and cheer, and Fritz would turn loose with machine-gun, rifle, and shrapnel fire, thinking we were coming over.

After three or four of these dummy attacks his nerves must have been near the breaking point.

On June 24, 1916, at 9:40 in the morning our guns opened up, and hell was let loose. The din was terrific, a constant boom-boom-boom in your ear.

At night the sky was a red glare. Our bombardment had lasted about two hours when Fritz started replying. Although we were sending over ten shells to his one, our casualties were heavy. There was a constant stream of stretchers coming out of the communication trenches and burial parties were a common sight.

In the dugouts the noise of the guns almost hurt. You had the same sensation as when riding on the subway you enter the tube under the river going to Brooklyn—a sort of pressure on the ear drums, and the ground constantly trembling.

The roads behind the trenches were very dangerous because Boche shrapnel was constantly bursting over them. We avoided these dangerous spots by crossing through open fields.

The destruction in the German lines was awful and I really felt sorry for them because I realized how they must be clicking it.

From our front-line trench, every now and again, we could hear sharp whistle blasts in the German trenches. These blasts were the signals for stretcher bearers, and meant the wounding or killing of some German in the service of his fatherland.

Atwell and I had a tough time of it, patrolling the different trenches at night, but after awhile got used to it.

My old outfit, the machine gun company, was stationed in huge elephant dugouts about four hundred yards behind the front-line trench—they were in reserve. Occasionally I would stop in their dugout and have a confab with my former mates. Although we tried to be jolly, still, there was a lurking feeling of impending disaster. Each man was wondering, if, after the slogan, "Over the top with the best of luck," had been sounded, would he still be alive or would he be lying "somewhere in France." In an old dilapidated house, the walls of which were scarred with machine-gun bullets, No. 3 section of the machine gun company had its quarters. The company's cooks prepared the meals in this billet. On the fifth evening of the bombardment a German eight-inch shell registered a direct hit on the billet and wiped out ten men who were asleep in the supposedly bomb-proof cellar. They were buried the next day and I attended the funeral.

CHAPTER XXVI.

All Quiet (?) on the Western Front.

At brigade headquarters I happened to overhear a conversation between our G. O. C. (general officer commanding) and the divisional commander. From this conversation I learned that we were to bombard the German lines for eight days, and on the first of July the "big push" was to commence.

In a few days orders were issued to that effect, and it was common property all along the line.

On the afternoon of the eighth day of our "strafeing," Atwell and I were sitting in the front-line trench smoking fags and making out our reports of the previous night's tour of the trenches, which we had to turn in to headquarters the following day, when an order was passed down the trench that Old Pepper requested twenty volunteers to go over on a trench raid that night to try and get a few German prisoners for information purposes. I immediately volunteered for this job, and shook hands with Atwell, and went to the rear to give my name to the officers in charge of the raiding party.

I was accepted, worse luck.

At 9:45 that night we reported to the brigade headquarters dugout to receive instructions from Old Pepper.

After reaching this dugout we lined up in a semicircle around him, and he addressed us as follows:

"All I want you boys to do is to go over to the German lines tonight, surprise them, secure a couple of prisoners, and return immediately. Our artillery has bombarded that section of the line for two days and personally I believe that that part of the German trench is unoccupied, so just get a couple of prisoners and return as quickly as possible."

The sergeant on my right, in an undertone, whispered to me:

"Say, Yank, how are we going to get a couple of prisoners if the old fool thinks 'personally that that part of the trench is unoccupied,'—sounds kind of fishy, doesn't it mate?"

I had a funny sinking sensation in my stomach, and my tin hat felt as if it weighed about a ton and my enthusiasm was melting away. Old Pepper must have heard the sergeant speak because he turned in his direction and in a thundering voice asked:

"What did you say?"

The sergeant with a scarlet look on his face and his knees trembling, smartly saluted and answered:

"Nothing, sir."

Old Pepper said:

"Well, don't say it so loudly the next time."

Then Old Pepper continued:

"In this section of the German trenches there are two or three machine guns which our artillery, in the last two or three days, has been unable to tape. These guns command the sector where two of our communication trenches join the front line, and as the brigade is to go over the top tomorrow morning I want to capture two or three men from these guns' crews, and from them I may be able to obtain valuable information as to the exact location of the guns, and our artillery will therefore be able to demolish them before the attack, and thus prevent our losing a lot of men while using these communication trenches to bring up re-enforcements."

© INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Receiving First Aid.

These were the instructions he gave us:

"Take off your identification disks, strip your uniforms of all numerals, insignia, etc., leave your papers with your captains, because I don't want the Boches to know what regiments are against them as this would be valuable information to them in our attack tomorrow and I don't want any of you to be taken alive. What I want is two prisoners and if I get them I have a way which will make them divulge all necessary information as to their guns. You have your choice of two weapons—you may carry your 'persuaders' or your knuckle knives, and each man will arm himself with four Mills bombs, these to be used only in case of emergency."

A persuader is Tommy's nickname for a club carried by the bombers. It is about two feet long, thin at one end and very thick at the other. The thick end is studded with sharp steel spikes, while through the center of the club there is a nine-inch lead bar, to give it weight and balance. When you get a prisoner all you have to do is just stick this club up in front of him, and believe me, the prisoner's patriotism for "Deutschland ueber Alles" fades away and he very willingly obeys the orders of his captor. If, however, the prisoner gets high-toned and refuses to follow you, simply "persuade" him by first removing his tin hat, and then—well, the use of the lead weight in the persuader is demonstrated, and Tommy looks for another prisoner.

The knuckle knife is a dagger affair, the blade of which is about eight inches long with a heavy steel guard over the grip. This guard is studded with steel projections. At night in a trench, which is only about three to four feet wide, it makes a very handy weapon. One punch in the face generally shatters a man's jaw and you can get him with the knife as he goes down.

Then we had what we called our "come-alongs." These are strands of barbed wire about three feet long, made into a noose at one end; at the other end, the barbs are cut off and Tommy slips his wrist through a loop to get a good grip on the wire. If the prisoner wants to argue the point, why just place the large loop around his neck and no matter if Tommy wishes to return to his trenches at the walk, trot, or gallop, Fritz is perfectly agreeable to maintain Tommy's rate of speed.

We were ordered to black our faces and hands. For this reason; At night, the English and Germans use what they call star shells, a sort of rocket affair. They are fired from a large pistol about twenty inches long, which is held over the sandbag parapet of the trench, and discharged into the air. These star shells attain a height of about sixty feet, and a range of from fifty to seventy-five yards. When they hit the ground they explode, throwing out a strong calcium light which lights up the ground in a circle of a radius of between ten to fifteen yards. They also have a parachute star shell which, after reaching a height of about sixty feet, explodes. A parachute unfolds and slowly floats to the ground, lighting up a large circle in No Man's Land. The official name of the star shell is a "Very-light." Very-lights are used to prevent night surprise attacks on the trenches. If a star shell falls in front of you, or between you and the German lines, you are safe from detection, as the enemy cannot see you through the bright curtain of light. But if it falls behind you and, as Tommy says, "you get in the star shell zone," then the fun begins; you have to lie flat on your stomach and remain absolutely motionless until the light of the shell dies out. This takes anywhere from forty to seventy seconds. If you haven't time to fall to the ground you must remain absolutely still in whatever position you were in when the light exploded; it is advisable not to breathe, as Fritz has an eye like an eagle when he thinks you are knocking at his door. When a star shell is burning in Tommy's rear he can hold his breath for a week.

You blacken your face and hands so that the light from the star shells will not reflect on your pale face. In a trench raid there is quite sufficient reason for your face to be pale. If you don't believe me, try it just once.

Then another reason for blackening your face and hands is that, after you have entered the German trench at night, "white face" means Germans, "black face" English. Coming around a traverse you see a white face in front of you. With a prayer and wishing Fritz "the best o' luck," you introduce him to your "persuader" or knuckle knife.

A little later we arrived at the communication trench named Whisky street, which led to the fire trench at the point we were to go over the top and out in front.

In our rear were four stretcher bearers and a corporal of the R. A. M. C. carrying a pouch containing medicines and first-aid appliances. Kind of a grim reminder to us that our expedition was not going to be exactly a picnic. The order of things was reversed. In civilian life the doctors generally come first, with the undertakers tagging in the rear and then the insurance man, but in our case, the undertakers were leading, with the doctors trailing behind, minus the insurance adjuster.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Is Anyone Old in New York?

In Bruce Barton's novel, "The Making of George Groton," the author says: "No one is old in New York. They drain in every year from all parts of the country—millions of men, young and vibrant. They stay and work, and grow into middle age; and then suddenly they vanish. One may walk for blocks on Fifth avenue or Broadway and hardly see anyone over fifty. Where do they go to? No one seems ever to die; no funerals clog the traffic. There are plenty of funerals, of course, but you don't notice them as you do in a little town. I have wandered for hours in the big woods, wondering where the birds go when they die; and never yet have I run across the body of a dead bird. What becomes of old birds? What becomes of old New Yorkers? These are twin mysteries to me. I cannot unravel them."

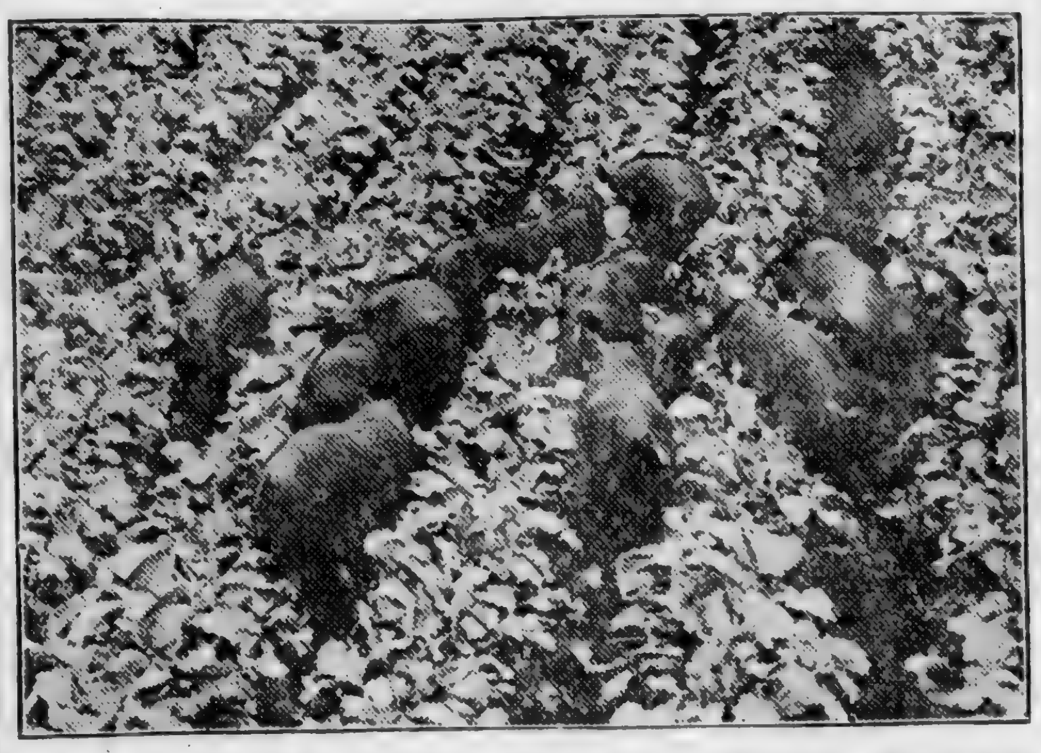
Got Along Without Metals.

The cliff dwellers knew nothing of the use of metals. Their knives were made from the bones of the deer, highly polished and very sharp. Their household utensils consisted of pottery jars and casks made of fiber and covered with a substance resembling modern varnish. Although the earliest cliff dwellers were prehistoric, cave livers have existed in almost every age of the world.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

LET THE HOGS HELP IN THE HARVEST



Pigs Gathering a Forage Crop for Themselves and Reducing the Cost of Feeding.

REDUCE COST OF FEED FOR SWINE

Pork Production Made Most Profitable by Furnishing Good Pasture for Animals.

FORAGE CROPS ARE FAVORED

Hog Raisers Can Save Labor and High-Priced Grain by Allowing Pigs to Harvest Crops This Fall—There Is No Waste.

The hog raiser, whether he has two or 200 pigs, who provides pasture for them whenever possible, is the one who makes the production of pork most profitable. The raising of rapid-growing, heavy-yielding forage crops, such as soy beans, cowpeas, clover, etc., to be fed green to live stock instead of depending upon the ordinary pasture crops has long been advocated by the United States department of agriculture. Hogging down such crops has been practiced most successfully by experienced hog raisers, who find that this method, aside from reducing the cost of producing pork, also reduces the labor materially. When hogs are permitted to harvest these crops for themselves repeated demonstrations have shown that there is no waste, which is an objection that is often raised by those who have not tried the plan.

Let Hogs Harvest Corn.

Hogging off corn has been tested thoroughly at several agricultural experiment stations and by practical hog raisers, and the practice is strongly recommended. Corn alone is not a satisfactory hog ration. Where the crop is to be hogged off, some other crop should be combined with it. Pumpkins seeded at the same time as the corn; soy beans, or cowpeas seeded in the same or in alternate rows with the corn, and rye, rape, or soy beans seeded at the last working of the corn have all been used with satisfactory results. With one of these combinations no other grain ration is needed, but if there is no other forage growing in the cornfield, some concentrate, such as tankage, cowpea meal, or middlings, should be fed. It is advisable to start the hogs gradually, for a few days, with a little green corn before turning them into a field of corn to hog it off. The corn is ready for grazing when the grain is dented or glazed. It will take about one month for 14 to 16 hogs, weighing 150 pounds each, to hog off an acre of corn which would yield 35 bushels. It is not advisable to let the hogs have access at any time to more than they will clean up in ten days.

Alfalfa is perhaps the best of all green forages for hogs. It starts growth early in the spring. If kept moderately grazed or if mowed at intervals it keeps green all summer. Alfalfa will not stand close grazing with hogs. If grazed, sufficient acreage should be allowed so that at least one, and preferably two, cuttings for hay may be made each season. Such light grazing does not seem to injure the stand.

Red clover, crimson clover, soy beans, cowpeas, rape and, in the South, velvet beans and peanuts are also valuable forage crops which the hogs can harvest for themselves.

Cheapest Pork From Pasture.

The cost of pork is reduced materially by the use of pasture and forage crops, but it is desirable to feed some grain in addition. In certain sections of the country, where the pastures are luxuriant, mature hogs are maintained in an apparently satisfactory condition on pasture alone. The practice should not be followed in the case of young, growing pigs, because they will become thin and stunted if compelled to live on pasture alone. Hog raisers differ widely regarding the quantity of grain that should be fed to hogs while on pasture. Some feeders give the hogs all the grain they will consume. Others feed a daily ration equal to about 2 or 3 per cent of the live weight of the hog. Still others allow pigs to run on pasture feeding a 1 per cent grain ration.

A distinction should be made between such forage crops as soy beans cowpeas, peanuts and velvet beans, which are hogged off when the seed is mature or nearly mature, and green forage, such as oats, sweet potatoes, and clover. With the former not so much grain is needed, and what is fed, usually corn, is merely to balance the ration, while with the latter a well-balanced grain ration gives the best results. The self-feeder may be used safely, however, with all crops. Healthy hogs that have as much feed as they will consume give good returns for all they eat. The foregoing statements apply to growing hogs which are to be marketed for pork. Mature brood sows, where no great increase of weights is desired, are often kept on green forage alone, except those with suckling pigs. Gilts and sows with suckling pigs should receive in addition to the forage a grain ration of such quantity as they will clean up readily when fed two or three times a day.

The carrying capacity of the various supplementary forage crops varies widely, according to the growth of the crop. As a rule, it is safe to graze them at the rate of 10 to 15 100-pound shotes to the acre. A greater number will shorten the grazing period, and fewer animals will lengthen it.

Food-Producing Machine

The hog should be considered as a machine for turning feedstuffs into pork. The more quickly this result can be accomplished the more profitable it is for the owner. It is a common belief that if the grain fed to hogs on pasture is limited, more forage will be eaten and cheaper gains produced. This belief is not substantiated by the feeding tests that have been conducted at several agricultural experiment stations. A full feed of grain to hogs on good pasture not only produces the most rapid gains, but usually gives the most profitable results. When account is taken of the saving of labor and the reducing of loss from disease by marketing animals at seven to nine months of age instead of keeping them for a year or more, the advantage is almost always with the more rapid growth. The self-feeder system which permits hogs to eat grain at will either in pastures or dry lots is becoming more and more popular in the corn-belt states, and there seems to be no valid reason why self-feeders should not prove equally successful in all parts of the country.

Fences for Hogs on Pasture.

It is often desirable in hog pasturing to fence off portions of fields temporarily. The present price of fencing may seem high, but hogs are also high, and 100 pounds of pork will buy more fencing now than it was possible to get with the same amount a few years ago. A great many different types of temporary fences have been devised. Most of the board fences of the panel type are too heavy and cumbersome to be practicable. They are also easily broken and soon rot. About the best temporary hog fence is made of 32-inch or 36-inch woven wire. This is easily stretched and tacked to stakes driven in the ground. It may also be used in fencing off parts of a cornfield which are to be hogged off by merely tying the fence to a row of cornstalks. When this is done the tops and ears of the row of corn to which the fencing is tied should be broken off, as then the hogs will not climb up the fence.

Well-fed hogs are easily kept in place, but underfed ones will require more substantial fencing than is here described.

Milk substitutes are not equal to milk in feeding calves, but give fair results when used with care. Now that milk is in demand for human food they are particularly recommended.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Help to Pass the Crisis Safely—Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Can be Relied Upon.

Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life, in addition to its annoying symptoms, I had an attack of grippe which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and your Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman so I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women passing through the Change of Life."—Mrs. FRANK HENSON, 1316 S. Orchade St., Urbana, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches and "the blues" should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Her Face Beams

with the "Wash day smile," instead of the Wash Day Grouch in sheer joy and delight at the dazzling, snowy white purity of her white goods.

Red Cross Ball Blue

will chase "wash-day-blues"—Succeed where others fail, and bring the smile of triumph to every housewife who really cares for pure, white, fresh clothes.

5 CENTS. AT ALL GROCERS.

LOSSES DOWN TO MINIMUM

Warfare Mortality Statistics Should Give Comfort to Those With Loved Ones at the Front.

Great as the danger, and large as the losses in the aggregate, the individual soldier has plenty of chances of coming out of the war unscathed, or at least not badly injured.

Based on the mortality statistics of the allied armies, a soldier's chances are as follows:

Twenty-nine chances of coming home to one chance of being killed.

Forty-nine chances of recovering from wounds to one chance of dying from one.

One chance in 500 of losing a limb.

Will live five years longer because of physical training, is freer from disease in the army than in civil life, and has better medical care at the front than at home.

In other wars from 10 to 15 men died from disease to one from bullets; in this war one man dies from disease to every ten from bullets.

For those of our fighting men who do not escape scathless, the government under the soldier and sailor insurance law gives protection to the wounded and their dependents and to the families and dependents of those who make the supreme sacrifice for their country.

Opening His Eyes.

"There will be a greater percentage of contented men in proportion to the world's population after the war than there was before it started."

"Why do you think so?"

"Well, if living for weeks and months in muddy trenches and being bombed, gassed, shelled and otherwise shot at, not to mention the cooties, won't make a man rate the comforts of home at their true value, I don't know what will."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Contentment is merely a lack of desire.

POST TOASTIES
—Everything a corn food ought to be—and saves the wheat
—says Bobby
Post Toasties

SEPTEMBER

L 90

Indigestion

DO YOU KNOW that indigestion can be cured, permanently cured, so that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? It has been done not only once, but in almost every case when Chamberlain's Tablets are used. An instance: Mr. J. Pominville, Stillwater, Minn., who had spent over $2,000.00 for medicine and treatment was permanently cured by these tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

NEWVILLE

Elmer Wyatt does not improve so fast as his friends would like to see him.

Mrs. Ida Traxler and son, Terry, were Friday supper guests of John Miller and wife.

Curtis Washler and wife attended the Farver reunion at Eckhart park, Auburn, on Thursday.

Bruce Blair and Earl McDonald, of Butler, were Sunday guests of John Miller and wife.

Mrs. Elza Laub, of Orangeville, on Saturday was entertained at supper at the John Miller home.

Blanche Wyatt, of Fort Wayne, spent the first of the week with her parents, Elmer Wyatt and wife.

Dr. Brunson and family were called to Butler on Thursday by the illness of Miss Faith Fetters.

An ice cream social for the benefit of the K. of P. lodge was held at the C. C. Tarney home, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Dale McNabb will teach the primary department of the Newville school. Her husband is in the service.

Rev. and Mrs. E. Hively and Will Smith and wife attended the United Brethren conference at Winona lake last week.

Miss Eausa Schram was an Auburn visitor on Saturday, Miss Edna Harter clerking in her place in the Benner store.

Mrs. George Simanton and children, of St. Joe, were Monday guests of Elmer Wyatt and wife. The larger boys cut corn for their grandfather.

The Newville item stating that Farl McDonald rode a new automobile to the home of his grandparents is a mistake on some body's part—it was only a new bicycle. Perhaps the correspondent was asleep.

Chub Richmond is quite ill with asthma.

Mary Mitchell is recovering from quite a long illness.

Romeo Richards was kicked in the side by a horse, Saturday evening.

John Platter lost a valuable horse last week. It broke a leg and had to be killed.

An item was omitted from the NEWS last week which we very much regretted concerning the death of a granddhild of Samuel Stafford ane wife—the little son of C. O. Berry and wife, near Auburn.

The W. C. T. U. of this place met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hugh Traxler for the purpose of electing officers or retaining the old ones, but so few were present that the meeting was postponed until Wednesday of this week. If there is not more interest and better attendance than there have been, we will have to quit.

Red Cross Department

The American Red Cross has opened a fresh air station at Mt. Aigoual for repatriated and refugee Belgian and French children.

Sixteen orphans' homes, hospitals and farm schools operated by a French organization are receiving financial assistance from the American Red Cross.

Eighty-four nurses and aids from the American Red Cross at Paris have been lent for emergency military work in connection with the present offensive.

The national game (baseball) is following the flag to the war zones of Europe—and the American Red Cross is doing all in its power to supply equipment to keep the game game going.

The piece work department of the American Red Cross at the Hotel Victoria, Naples, Italy, is now providing 500 women who are members of soldiers' families with work to do at home.

Dijon, France.—Here the American Red Cross has erected barracks to serve as a day nursery for the children of the French women who work in the United States army camouflage factory.

Instead of opening large homes, the American Red Cross in the district about Genoa, Italy, is more or less using the cottage system in caring for refugee children. Cottages, each caring for fourteen children, have been opened in the hills.

A telegraphic request for additional Red Cross workers at the Italian front—received at 5 o'clock at Red Cross headquarters! Five American Red Cross men on train at 8 o'clock. With them, as personal baggage, went 2,000 shirts, 20,000 cigarettes and 5,000 packages of chocolates.

In the past nine month, the American Red Cross has aided 382 tuberculosis hospitals and dispensaries, representing a total of 30,147 beds. The second requests of 167 institutions have been granted. The value of the goods requisitioned for this relief work alone is estimated at 1,125,208 francs.

The Complexion Is the Health Barometer

A good complexion can not be obtained when the liver, kidneys or bowels are inactive. Bilious or poisonous matter within the body causes the sallow, muddy or splotchy complexion. Why drag around looking tired, old and dejected when Glando Tonic will put you right? It will remove the poisons and give you new life and strength. Glando Tonic acts directly on the liver, kidneys and small glands of the stomach and bowels. Its great popularity is due to the wonderful cures which have been obtained through its use. Sold by druggists or may be secured by sending direct to the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

BUY
Men's Wear
At the store that makes a Specialty of Men's wear

We spend all our time Getting and Selling the proper kind of Merchandise that the MEN and YOUNG MEN LIKE.

WM. KNISELY & SON.
Butler, Indiana
CLOTHING FURNISHINGS SHOES.

FOOD CLUBS ENDURE THE TEST OF TIME

(By C. V. Stainsby, Assistant to Dr. Harry E. Barnard, Federal Food Administrator for Indiana.)

The U. S. Food Clubs can endure the tests of the time. During the stress of war all our institutions are being judged by their natural relationship to the war program. Those things that definitely hinder our war activities are quickly put out of the way. The list of non-essential industries, that do not help is steadily being enlarged and more clearly defined. These industries are being either reformed or restricted. Public opinion is rapidly shaping itself to oppose any expenditure of energy or material except in the interest of winning the war. Individuals and communities that do not support the government's war program soon feel the disapproval of their neighbors. Some of the questions that we are all being required to answer in justification of our right to citizenship in this democracy are as follows: Are you supporting the selective service law? Are you buying Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps? Are you contributing to the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and similar movements? Are you saving fuel? Are you supporting the U. S. Food Administration to the limit of your ability? It is easier to be a food slacker than any other kind of slacker because food is handled within the privacy of the home. For the same reason the food patriot is the truest type of patriot. One may purchase a Liberty Bond for the sake of appearances. Those who observe the food rules at home do so because they are loyal U. S. citizens.

It is impossible to sum up the whole food situation in one or two sentences. There are many phases to it. To observe the regulations fully we must put ourselves in a position to receive regular information from official sources. The U. S. Food Clubs offer the best opportunity for this enlightenment. They are being organized so that the Food Administration can communicate directly with the homes. They bring the housewives together so that they may discuss their problems and exchange ideas. They render a definite contriubtion to our war program. They are first essentials. They need not apologize for their existence. They place a stamp of loyalty on the individual members and on the communities in which they are maintained. Join a U. S. Food Club in your neighborhood.

The Gossips Say-

Get those big School Talbets at The NEWS Office.

Robert Baily and wife are moving this week to Defiance.

George Kinsey and family and Edna Jackson were Sunday guests of Harry Kinsey and family.

Hilary Shuff and wife spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Milliman, and family.

Miss Helena Fairfield, of Spencerville, has been visiting Zora Garton and Vera Walters the past week.

Frank Dean and family, of Zanesville, Ohio, are visiting his sister, Mrs. Clark Roberts, and other relatives.

Mrs. Archie Erickson and babe, of Garrett, came yesterday to visit Mrs. Frank Scholes and family, and other relatives.

Pencils, Rulers, Tablets, Pens, Ink, Crayons, Pencil Holders, Note Books, Erasers for the school children at The NEWS Office

Azalea lodge, No. 152, Pythian Sisters, of St. Joe, is entertaining the county convention today (Thursday). State workers are present. In the afternoon, initiatory work will be given by Butler temple. A pot-luck dinner will be served.

S. P. Kosht and wife and Don Hindman, wife and little boy have returned from a three-week trip to Clare county, Mich. They were guests of D. R. Krabill. The latter has a beautiful lake on his farm, andoutsiders have built a number of beautiful cottages on the banks. Mr. Kosht reports that they had a good time.

Don't Be Careless About Your Health

When the liver is not acting properly, the system becomes full of poisonous accumulations, the kidneys and intestinal glands become sluggish and a general debilitated and nervous condition exists. The blood becomes impure, the circulation sluggish and the brain clouded.

A neglected liver causes chronic constipation jaundice, gall stones and very often cancer.

Glando Tonic acts upon the whole glandular system, of which the liver is the chief gland. If this glandular system is in good working condition, disease has no chance to fasten itself upon you. The best time to doctor is when you begin to feel tired, achy or languid.

To neglect one's self when that tired, draggy feeling is present may mean weeks of severe illness. Let Glando Tonic remove that feeling and give you life and health.

Mothers who have nursing babies should use Glando Tonic to keep their bowels well regulated and their system in good condition. This will regulate baby's bowels and help it to withstand the heat and germs of summer.

Glando Tonic can be obtained of druggists or direct from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

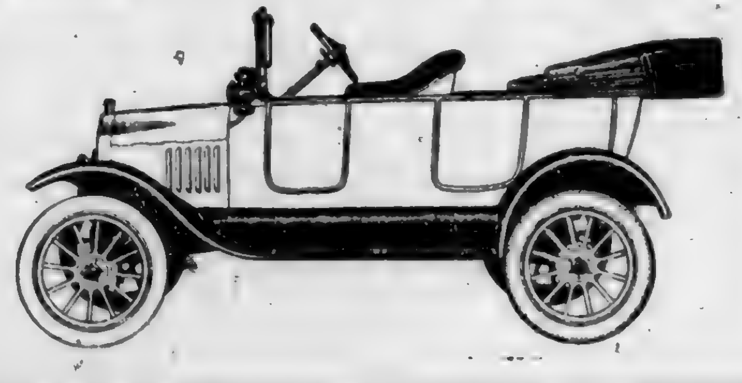
Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.

St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10.45 A. M.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00. Teacher Training.
Concord—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 8:00 P. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
L. W. Spayd, Pastor.
St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.
The pastor will serve with the church n St. Joe, next Sunday.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:-Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 8:00 p. m.
Annual Harvest Home service to which you are invited.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m



Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain; and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necesrities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE

BANK STATEMENT.

Emillus Case, President; H. L. Dunkle, Vice President; F. R. Bowman, Casheir; M. M. Maxwell, Assistant Cashier. Report of the condition of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a State bank, at St. Joe, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Aug. 31, 1918.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$103,339 05
Overdrafts	193 27
U. S Bonds	550 00
Other Bonds & Securit.	5,650 00
Furniture and Fixtures	1,015 00
Other real estate	1,764 39
Due from Banks and Trust Companies	23,551 01
Cash on Hand	3,599 90
Certificates on Banks	235 00
Current Expenses	463 44
Interest Paid	259 11
U S Treas. Certificates	10,000 00
Total Resources	$150,620 17
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	3,000 00
Undivided Profits	295 61
Exchange, discounts and and Interest	731 82
Demand Deposits	47,078 99
Demand Certificates	64,513 75
Bills Payable	10,000 00
Total Liabilities	$150,620 17

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, Frank R. Bowman, cashier of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a state bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

FRANK R BOWMAN, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 11th day of Sept. 1918.
[L.S.] S. S. WIDNEY, J. P.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. 2

Miss Nellie Kelley spent last Sunday with Miss Jessie Cook.

Melvin Betz, wife and son spent last Sunday with Mrs. Betz's mother, Mrs. Mary Cook, and family; and also with Mrs. Nora Norricks and daughter, Mary.

Mrs. Herley Saylor and baby and Mrs. Kell Saylor spent last Sunday with Mrs. Della Smith.

John Koch and family, Will Smith and wife and Ora Glass spent last Sunday with Elmer Smith and family.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

A new supply of Writing Tablets and Envelopes at News Office.

Mrs. Lee O. Tustison and little son, of Defiance, returned home on Saturday.

Will Hamilton and wife had the following Sunday dinner guests: Thayer Northrup and family and Mrs. Frank Bachtol and little daughter.

Mort. and Henry Milliman, Mrs. S. A. Abel and Mrs. G. W. Milliman left Thursday for a two weeks' visit with relatives in various parts of Michigan.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Jeighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Miss Madonna Kinsey spent a few days the fore part of the week with Miss Gladys Roberts, of Newville township.

A. D. Brunson and Mrs. Tom Brunson and little daughter returned home Monday from Camp Taylor, where they had been visiting Mr. Brunson's son and the lady's husband.

The war news sent from the other side to this side is most inspiring. Don't let any item of war news from this side to the other side be a disappointment to the men in uniform.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale: Jersey cow and two heifer calves. John Knight.

Strayed.--Red brood sow: weight, about 250 pounds. Finder phone to Samuel Felters, No. 9-21, Rt. 2, St. Joe.

Found: Log chain, east of the Thomas White corners. Call on Geo. Swineford.

FOR SALE:-First class 6-yr. old horse or mare, and 3-yr. old mare colt. Well broke, sure good ones.
FRANK MILLIMAN.

FOR SALE or TRADE:-A good heavy work horse, 5-yrs. old. CHAS. KOCH.

FOR SALE:-Young Holstein Jersey Cow. CARL JOHNSON.

For Sale:— New 6-horse gasoline engine, with coal oil attachment.
W. L. Wallace.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

SEPTEMBER

L 9

0503

SCHOOL DAYS...

...ARE HERE!

Next Monday, the school children will be called to their school work again; and before they are in shape to start in right, nearly every one needs some supplies. We are prepared to equip the girls with Dresses, Shoes, Stockings, Waists, Tablets, Pencils, Inks.

There is no better School Shoes Made Than "BUSTER BROWN"-All Sizes.

We can fit boy out also with his necessary equipment and it would be well for you to call this week and supply him.

BEAMS & COMPANY

SPENCERVILLE

..Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Miss Pearl Goldsmith has been appointed chairman of the woman's Liberty loan drive to be held the latter part of the month.

Mrs. A. K. Mumma left on Wednesday of last week for Springfield, Ohio, where she attended a board meeting of the Lutheran orphans' home. She is visiting friends there this week.

The Queen Esther missionary society of the M. E. church will give a penny supper at Basket Ball hall, Spencerville, Saturday evening, Sept. 14, 5 to 8 o'clock. You are invited.

Dr. Carey, wife and son, Fletcher, of Fort Wayne, were Friday guests of the lady's sister, Mrs. Jack Beams, and husband. Dr. Carey is recovering from his recent illness.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Harvey Beam and wife visited friends at Hicksville on Monday.

Mrs. Elma House left Monday for a visit with relatives at Auburn.

William Smith, wife and son, Ora, were Saturday guests of the lady's, mother, Mrs. Margaret Koch.

R. U. Bowser and family were over-Sunday guests of the former's brother, Ivan Bowser, of Fort Wayne.

Mr Purdy and wife and Mrs. Hannah Waters, of Antwerp, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Margaret Koch.

Roy and Cleo Bowser spent several days last week at the home of their uncle, Ivan Bowser, of Fort Wayne.

Mrs. J. W. Fletter and children, of Fort Wayne, and Miss Naomi Hensel, of Auburn, were guests last week of J. S. Hallabaugh and family.

C. A. Rhoades and wife returned home yesterday after a ten-day visit with their daughter, Mrs. Walter Neuman and family, of Defiance.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Emme had William Loomis and wife, of Fort Wayne, as guests on Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Loomis is a sister of the doctor.

Misses Florence and Doris Beams, Cleo Bowser and Marjorie Hallabaugh were entertained at dinner in honor of Miss Naomi Hensel at the home of Mrs. Emily Gloyd, Friday.

The following teachers have been engaged for the schools of Spencer township: High school—Superintendent, Miss Bertha Thornburgh, of Anderson; domestic science, Miss Ida Reed, of Hopewell; manual training and music, C. A. Woodcox, of St. Joe; grammar, Miss Zona Horn, of Spencerville; primary, Miss Charlotte Miller, of Spencerville. Coburntown, Miss Kain, of Newville.

CREAM

Sherman-White Cream Station at J. Beams' Store

Highest Cash price paid for cream. Tested before customer

J. Beams

SPENCERVILLE, IND

BANK STATEMENT.

F. E. Rhodes, President; L. B. Fisher, Vice-president; C. G. Rectenwall, Cashier. Report of the condition of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank, a State bank at Spencerville, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Aug. 31th. '18.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	108,349 72
Overdrafts	319 40
U. S. Bonds	8,000 00
Banking House	3,668 39
Furniture and fixtures	2,006 58
Due from Banks and Trust companies	12,189 25
Cash on Hand	1,233 49
Cash Items	104 75
Current Expenses	1,171 25
Taxes Paid	439 39
Interest Paid	2,033 70
Total Resources	139,515 92
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	1300 00
Undivided Profits	415 83
Exchange, discounts and interest	4239 08
Demand deposits	28,326 39
Demand certificates	64,234 62
Bills Payable	16,000 00
Total Liabilities	139,515 92

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, C. G. Rectenwall, cashier, of the Farmer & Merchant State Bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

C. G. RECTENWALL, Cash.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 9th. day of Sept. 1918.

[L. S.] R. G. BEAMS, N. P.

My com. expires April 27, 1922.

William Lucas and wife were Sunday dinner guests at the Harvey Beam home.

James Vallieu and wife attended the funeral of Mr. Vallieu's niece, held at Hicksville on Sunday.

The Methodist missionary society will meet Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dora Green.

Charles Hartman, of Kempton, Pa., and Jacob Sechler, of St. Joe, were Saturday guests of Jacob Baltz and wife.

Mrs. Mary Repp, of New Haven, came Saturday evening to spend a few days with Samuel Cole and wife.

Rolla Moffett and wife, of Auburn, and William Sommers and wife were over-Sunday guests at the Jacob Baltz home.

William Bair, of Flint, Mich., came Saturday evening for an over-Sunday visit with his aunt, Mrs. Hattie Bair, and family.

W. F. Rhoades, wife and daughter, Doris, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Rhoades' parents, Florence Buchanan and wife, of St. Joe.

Mrs. Mary Ruppert, wife of Manassen Ruppert, east of town, died at her home on Tuesday, Sept. 3, aged 73 years, 9 months and 23 days. Death was due to a complication of diseases. She is survived by her husband and eight children, the latter being Mrs. Charles Scott, of this place; Mrs. Daisy Dorsey, of Scipio; Mrs. Rosa Long, of Auburn; Mrs. Minnie Parker, of Ashley, Mich.; Mrs. Ida York, of Ohio; Oscar Ruppert, of Antwerp; Julius Ruppert, of Fort Wayne; John Ruppert, at home. Besides these, there are twenty-six grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and other relatives. Funeral services were held at the Spencerville M. E. church at 2 p. m. Thursday, Rev. A. K. Mumma officiating, assisted by Rev. Glenn Bryan. Interment at North Scipio cemetery.

COBURN'S CORNERS

Ralph Brown and sister, Norma, of St. Joe, Garth Shull and Miss Helen Place were Sunday afternoon guests of Ralph Nelson and wife, of Scipio.

McClellan Hart has purchased Daniel Oberholtzer farm, south of the corners, and will move on the same. Earl Tustison has rented the Hart farm.

F. H. Shull and family on Sunday entertained the following company at dinner: S. P. Hadsell and family, Floyd Coburn and wife, M B. Shull and wife, Fern Walker and Nellie Shull.

Miss Fern Walker left Monday for Logansport, where she will assist in the home of her uncle, Samuel Snyder. The 15-year-old son of Mr. Snyder was accidently shot in the hip by a playmate a couple of weeks ago.

They Go to Wittenberg

Three young men of this vicinity—Clayton Hathaway, Harvey Hull and Will Quance—on Saturday went to Springfield, Ohio, where they enrolled for military training at Wittenberg college; and, next Friday, Levi Mumma, of Spencerville, will join them.

On Oct. 1, Uncle Sam will take over the college; and, on that date, all male students will enter his service. In other words, the school will become a training camp. The students will become enlisted men subject to military discipline. They will receive pay as soldiers and be clothed and cared for by the government. In fact, they are soldiers, liable to be called into active service at any time; but until they are so called, they take a course of study at the college in addition to military training. During the summer vacation of the school, they will give their entire time to the military part of their education

The boys were taken to Springfield by H. C. Hathaway in his automobile. He reports that when he left, the boys had been formed into a soapsuds battalion and were busily engaged at scrubbing and cleaning their rooms.

St. Joe Locals

Cash cream station at J. Beams store. Highest price paid.

See those new Patriotic and Birthday cards at NEWS Office.

Henry Smith and wife, of Logansport, came Tuesday evening to visit the latter's sister, Mrs. Rolland Bearss, and husband.

Some pickel! The NEWS has on exhibition a cucumber weighing 2¾ pounds. This Goliath of the cucumber family was raised by Meade Baker.

Mrs O. E. Ginther and children left Tuesday morning for Chillicothe, Ohio, where she will join her husband, and perhaps remain for the winter. Mrs. Rolla Wiers and two children accompanied Mrs. Ginther as far as Dayton, going thence to Cincinnati for a couple of weeks' stay at the Sharpnack home.

PRINTING

Good Printing Is the Dress of Business. That Is the Kind We Do.

Let Us Show You

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, . . . IND

Rhodes Reunion

The fifth annual reunion of the Rhodes family was held at the F. E. Rhodes home on Saturday, Sept 7, 1918. One hundred and twenty-five were in attendance.

After the usual picnic dinner, Rev. A. K. Mumma read a scripture lesson (I. Cor. xiii) and led in prayer. A program was then rendered, consisting of songs, recitations and talks by different members of the family. A collection was taken, and it was decided to donate $5.25 of the same to the Red Cross chapter of Spencerville. The old officers were re-elected, as follows:

President.—F. E. Rhodes.
Vice President.—John Medenhall.
Secretary-Treasurer.—Mabel Rich.

Those present from a distance were John Rhodes and wife, of California; Mrs. Herman O'Connor, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Samuel Falkinburgh, of Menton, Mich. Fort Wayne, Churubusco, LaOtto, Avilla, Huntertown and Auburn also were represented.

NO WORK AS IMPORTANT AS CONSERVING FOOD

(By C. V. Stainsby, Assistant to Dr. Harry E. Barnard, Federal Food Administrator for Indiana.)

The tendency is apparent in some communities to regard the U. S. Food Clubs as of small importance. Some women say they are too busy doing other kinds of war work to bother with food clubs. This is the wrong idea. There is no other work so important as the food work. Let's consider it for a moment. Suppose the Food Administration should fail to secure the necessary distribution of food. What would happen? Disaster would be the result. The armies of America, Britain, France, Italy and Belgium would collapse. The munition workers in the same countries would be unable to produce the machinery of war. The physicians and nurses would be unable to care for the sick and wounded. The wounded themselves would have less chance of recovery. The tragedy of the Russian collapse might easily happen in any other land if the same conditions were to prevail. Any one of these conditions would be sufficient to lose the war. Any of them or all of them could easily happen if the U. S. Food Administration fell short of its task. Can you see now the relationship between the U. S. Food Clubs and the war?

Look at it from another point of view. You are knitting a sweater for your son, your brother, your husband, your lover. How would that sweater feel over an empty stomach? You are knitting socks for the soldiers. Socks protect only the feet; food strengthens and warms the whole body. You are spending three or four afternoons a week making clothes for the children of France and Belgium. Which would make them happier, those new clothes or three good meals a day? The sewing and knitting are important. Go to it—but don't get such a false sense of proportion that you give all your time and attention to one branch of work and neglect that which is more important.

The U. S. Food Clubs are the approved means through which the Food Administration for Indiana is trying to meet its share of a tremendous responsibility. Join a U. S. Food Club in your neighborhood.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Patronize the merchants who advertise in this paper. They will treat you right.

FALL FOOTWEAR

We have received several new styles of Men's and Women's Fall Shoes, and would advise our customers to get in early. Shoes are going to be hard to get in the styles you want.

DON'T PUT IT OFF!

Women's Fine Kid in brown or grey Goodyear welts $8.00
Same in black, $7 and .. 7.50
Dress Shoes — Martha Washington, $5.50 to 8.00
Men's Fine Kangaroo, Vici Kid or Calfskin Shoes, — Thompson Bros. make, $6 to ... 9.00
Others down to 3.00

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1887

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

SEPTEMBER

0504

L 90

GOT THIRTY HUNS BEFORE HE DIED

SCOTTY, YOUNGEST SOLDIER IN PERSHING'S FORCES, IS MOURNED BY ARMY.

HIS HEROIC DEATH RELATED

Red Cross Establishes Tailor Shop in Berne to Supply Captured American Officers With Uniforms—New Plan for Training Flyers.

(From Committee on Public Information.)

Washington.—Private Albert E. Scott, the youngest soldier in General Pershing's army in France—he was but fifteen years of age and a Brookline, Mass., high school boy when he enlisted—is dead, shot through the head by a German sniper after he had laid thirty foes to rest, and the army mourns its boy hero.

A soldier writer for The Stars and Stripes, the A. E. F. paper, tells this story:

"In the regiment they are talking these days of all the good pals they lost in the fierce, unforgettable chase they gave the Germans in the great retreat from the Marne. But most of all—a little oftener and a bit more fondly—they talk of Scotty.

"He was a good kid, they say, and he died on his gun.

"His great chance came when on that historic July 18 his regiment got the order for which, through many a month of dreams, it had longed—the order to advance. It went 18 kilometers without stopping, chasing the Boche up hill and down dale, fighting its way through patch after patch of inviting woods that would prove treacherous with hidden machine guns.

"In the first days of that battle, the movement was so swift that more than once a small German rear guard and an advance Yank platoon would meet in the forest and fight out then and there a complete and separate battle all their own. So it was with the Indians, as Scotty's regiment was nicknamed, one afternoon, as they were making their way past the bitterly won town of Epieds.

"At the cross road they saw troops approaching them in column of squads. The officer in charge caught them in the focus of his field glasses. They were Boches, coming on. The Yanks waited, itching to open fire, but biding their time. Suddenly the Boches deserted the road and came on them through the forest.

"The lieutenant placed his men along a roadside ditch. He placed Scotty and his sho-sho beside a tree and squarely opposite a narrow woodland path that opened across the way. He could see straight down that path, and the Boches were bound either to come along it or to cross it.

"'See that path, Scotty?' said the lieutenant. 'That's your target. Not one of them must cross it.'

"'Yes, sir,' said Scotty, and dropped beside his gun.

"Then from the high branches of many a tree and from many a shelter the German fire opened, and the Yank fire answered.

"A gray figure darted suddenly into the leafy path. He fell.

"Another appeared. He fell.

"There was perhaps ten minutes of that, and what was left of the German party was withdrawing when a handful of soldiers scampered along the road. They were Germans, but they shouted as they ran, 'Don't shoot, we're Americans.'

"For a moment, just for the space that a breath is held, Scotty thrust his head up to see. From his perch in some tree a sniper shot him in the forehead. Another bullet found his heart. He fell forward, dead, on his gun.

"They had killed him, but the number of their dead that are counted as his was thirty."

Captured American army and navy officers are reaching German prison camps without clothing and shoes. The American Red Cross has established a tailor shop in Berne to supply them with proper uniforms, according to information just reaching the bureau of prisoners' relief.

The officers, it seems, in being hustled back from the front by their captors lose their overcoats, blouses and even trousers. Frequently their leather shoes, which are greatly coveted by the Germans, are taken from them, and they are forced to wear wooden shoes. The clothing of others is so damaged in strenuous fighting as to need replacement.

To outfit the forty commissioned Americans known to be in the German camps and others who may be captured later, the Red Cross purchased a tailor shop in Paris and moved tailors and outfit outright to Switzerland. This shop is now turning out each week 12 uniforms made to measurements supplied by mail by the various prisoners in the various camps. The men are supplied also with underclothing, shoes, toilet articles, towels and food. The food is particularly necessary to supplement the meager prison fare for which the Germans make the captured officers pay in money.

The stripping of prisoners apparently takes place only at the front in the heat and confusion of battle. Camp committees, appointed by the prisoners themselves, see that American prisoners receive supplies sent them.

Experienced flying officers are being returned from abroad to act as special instructors in the more advanced courses of aviation training which is being developed by the air service.

Recent practice in elemental training now gives the candidate more time in the air with his instructor than heretofore. The new plan is known as the Gosport system or "All Thru," as it is popularly called here, and insures closer contact between the cadet and instructor. When the cadets arrive at a flying field from the ground school, where they have learned much of the theory of flight, engine control and repair, radio, signaling and other kindred subjects, several of them are assigned to an instructor who stays with them until they are qualified in elemental flying. They are then sent to the special schools for final work and training in their particular line, as pursuit, reconnaissance, artillery control, or bombing pilots. The old practice of giving a cadet so much time in the air under instruction and then turning him loose for his first solo flight, in a "sink or swim" fashion, is being discontinued, and what is believed to be a more safe and sane system is being adopted.

Organization of forty air squadrons has been authorized. Four will be located at Houston, Tex., and 36, or a training brigade of three wings, on Long Island, N. Y.

The base of this Long Island training brigade, as now planned, will be Hazelhurst field, near Mineola. The squadrons will be quartered in groups of four or nine outlying fields. These squadrons are to serve under field conditions simulating, as nearly as practicable, the conditions behind the lines in France.

Information received by the children's bureau of the department of labor seems to indicate that everywhere in the United States children are receiving less milk than they should have. Such decreases are undoubtedly due in part to the high cost of milk. It is the poorest families that have been forced to make the greatest reduction in the amount of milk purchased. But that reduction would perhaps not be so great, the children's bureau says, if all mothers fully realized the value of food in the diet of their children.

Milk has been called the "perfect food." Authorities agree that it supplies the elements necessary to the growing child in the most digestible form. In spite of its increasing cost, it supplies those elements also in the cheapest form. It is estimated that, on the basis of its nutritive value, milk compared with steak at 40 cents a pound, and eggs at 48 cents a dozen, should be priced at about 27½ cents a quart.

Workers for Children's Year, to whom the weighing and measuring test for children under five years of age has revealed how many children in the United States are undeveloped as a result of improper diet, are engaged in campaigns to bring the importance of milk to the attention of mothers and to make it possible for them to procure enough milk to keep their children strong and well. Many milk stations where mothers may receive pure silk at a nominal cost, or free, if they cannot afford to pay for it, have been established in connection with children's year work, and public measures for ensuring a pure and adequate milk supply have been undertaken in many communities. Among these measures are the establishment of pasturization plants, the inspection of the milk supply, and the passing of regulations controlling distribution.

Roller skates as a part of the speed-up program in force at the Rock Island arsenal, Illinois, have been adopted by women messenger employees.

Women employed in the time division at the arsenal are voluntarily working the first Saturdays and Sundays of each month closing the pay roll sheets so that all arsenal workers may be paid promptly.

According to the "Arsenal Record," published by the employees, Rev. M. E. Krotzer, pastor of the Presbyterian churches at LeClaire and Princeton, Iowa, is putting in his five weeks' vacation as an arsenal worker. The same paper reports the fiftieth anniversary as an arsenal worker at Rock Island of Emil Beck, seventy years old, inspector in the tin shop, who went there when the arsenal consisted of a small group of wooden buildings, relics of Civil war days, and employed from 200 to 400 men only through the summer months.

Cuba has a closing law which shuts all stores, warehouses, shops, etc., in the larger cities at 6 p. m. week days, and all day Sundays. Retail food stores keep open until 8 p. m. week days and 10 p. m. Sundays. Barber shops remain open until 7 p. m. on Mondays and Fridays, 11 p. m. Saturdays, but cannot sell perfumes while general stores are closed.

A company has been formed in Yokohama, Japan, to turn out a substitute for Portland cement. The new material will be made of lava and lime.

The total value of all imports into the United Kingdom during the first six months of 1918 were $3,173,851,129; of exports, $1,201,211,086. For the same period of 1916 the values were: Imports, $2,310,730,038; exports, $1,176,758,033. The submarine has not destroyed the commerce of Great Britain.

Camp Shelby, Miss., will be remodeled and converted from a tent camp into a cantonment with permanent quarters and camp utilities, at a total cost of $5,467,378.

State Happenings

Franklin.—Two army officers will be assigned to the Franklin college unit of the United States students' army training corps, according to assurances received here by C. E. Goodell, president of the institution. A contract for at least 300 student soldiers will be signed by college officials following a meeting of the board of directors which will be held here the last of this week. President Goodell, who has just returned from a conference of college officials at Fort Sheridan, Ill., already has begun arrangements for the local unit. It is expected that the fraternity houses will be taken over, to be used as quarters for the soldiers. The college is also considering using the girls' dormitory as barracks and renting houses in town for the girls.

Indianapolis.—The auditor of state has made the semi-annual distribution to the counties of Indiana of money paid in under the automobile license law for the six months ending June 30. The total to be distributed to the counties, which is to be used under the law for road maintenance and repair, is $3,162,124.91. The apportionment is based on three factors: One-third of the total distributed equally among the 92 counties; one-third distributed on the basis of the total improved mileage in each county and one-third distributed on the basis of the total amount of automobile license money paid in by each county.

Columbus.—Word has been received here that Maj. A. P. Roope of Columbus has been appointed surgical chief og base hospital No. 78, in France. When Doctor Roope entered the United States army medical corps from this city he was commissioned a captain and was sent to Fort Lee, Petersburg, Va. It was while at Fort Lee that Captain Roope was promoted to the rank of major and was later transferred to Fort McHenry, of which he was made surgical chief.

Vincennes.—It will cost approximately $147,000 to operate the affairs of Knox county next year, as indicated by an appropriation ordinance passed by the Knox county council. The council also voted to levy a 23.3-cent general tax on each $100 worth of taxable property. This levy, which is 5 cents less than this year, is made because the county has a big revenue from the sale of products from the farm at the county infirmary and from other sources.

South Bend.—Enough flour to run the average family nearly three years was taken from the home of George L. Aszkler when the police and food administration officials raided the house. Much of the flour was found hidden in a bath tub and under the seat of a davenport. The remainder was distributed about the house in various places. Besides the flour, 130 pounds of granulated sugar was also discovered on the premises. The flour taken totaled 1,050 pounds.

Indianapolis.—Franklin B. Carson, mayor of South Bend, has written Mayor Jewett of this city asking for the use of a suitable place in Indianapolis in which to hold a meeting of mayors, controllers, city attorneys and presidents of common councils of cities of the second class in Indiana. The purpose of the meeting, according to Mayor Carson, is to discuss methods for obtaining more revenue from sources other than taxation.

Logansport.—With an announcement that the German language has been put under ban by the city public schools as well as parochial schools, the German language has practically been abandoned in both churches and educational institutions here. One German school is teaching the language this term to pupils who studied the language before the outbreak of the war and who will graduate this term.

Richmond.—Wayne county's organization for the fourth Liberty loan campaign has been completed. The general officers ore as follows: County chairman, Demas S. Coe; vice chairman, E. H. Harris; chairman of women's section, Mrs. Charles W. Druitt; chairman of county speakers' bureau, Charles W. Jordan, and chairman of the Richmond city committee, E. M. Campfield. Township chairmen also were named.

Jasper.—The Dubois county council directed the sale of all that part of the land of the Dubois county infirmary lying west of the Emma C. N. Anderson drain in Madison township, for not less than $70 an acre. The council announced that the proceeds from the sale will be invested in Liberty bonds.

Laporte.—Rev. Clifford C. Jordan, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here, left Laporte to enter military service as an infantryman at Camp Gordon, Ga. He announced when he resigned his charge here that he would rather fight than enter the army as a chaplain.

Indianapolis.—L. H. Wright, head of the State Grange of Indiana and chairman of the state highway commission, has been appointed one of seven members of the new national advisory committee of the Republican national committee by Will H. Hays, Republican national chairman.

Hanover.—The trustees of Hanover college, which is to be made one of the military training schools in Indiana, have arranged to house the military students in the Point house at the college, and the young women students will be taken care of at the fraternity houses.

Indianapolis.—German alien women living in the 51 principal cities of Indiana number 7,739, a report completed by Mark Storen, United States marshal, who has received registration records from the police of each city, shows. It is expected the number of women living in rural districts required to register as aliens will be about 3,000, making a total registration of about 10,500 women. The total number of German alien men registered in the state was 10,649, of whom 7,231 registered in cities and 3,018 in rural districts. Crawfordsville, the only city in the state in which no alien women registered, was one of the two cities that had no men registrants as aliens.

Crawfordsville.—About 500 men students are expected to attend Wabash college here during the coming school year, which opens September 30. This number of students, if the enrollment comes up to the present indications, will be the largest that ever attended any one year. Camp Wabash will soon take on a truly military air. New barracks to accommodate the men, who will be enlisted in the students' army training corps, will be erected on the campus at once to meet the request of the government authorities. The new gymnasium and armory floor, 190 by 190 feet in size, will prove an admirable place for indoor drill work.

Valparaiso.—Ground has been broken for six new barracks at Valparaiso university here, each 60 feet wide, 200 feet long and two stories high. They are to be used in connection with the training of men for special work in the United States army in connection with the war. Each of the structures can house 1,200 men. Several hundred soldiers already are receiving training at the local institution in motor mechanics. Many more military registrants are expected to be sent there under the provisions of the new man-power bill, which has just been passed by the congress and signed by the president.

Seymour.—Thomas M. Honan of this city, a member of a special commission to register and collect the ballots of Hoosier voters in military training camps, has just returned from Camp Sherman, O. He stated that some of the soldiers showed little interest in the coming election and declared that they are devoting their sole attention to the work of the army. One or two of the men who registered are candidates for minor offices and were interested in the task of the commission. A tour of the other army camps will be made.

Indianapolis.—One of the most important committees which has been named in connection with mobilizing the medical profession of the state on a war basis has been appointed by the executive committee of the state committee of the medical section, council of national defense. It consists of one doctor from each county who will have general supervision of all medical matters and who will be responsible to the state committee which, in turn, will report to the central governing board appointed by the council of national defense approved by the president.

South Bend.—"Unless from 150 to 200 men are available within the next month or two for work on the farms of northern Indiana much of the present crop will go to waste and preparations for next year will be sadly neglected," said John S. Bordner, county agent. "We must have men to cut corn, fill silos, and sow next year's wheat crop if we expect to keep up with our war work." He suggested as a remedy that experienced farm hands engaged in other occupations go back to the farm for a month or two and help with the work.

Columbus.—Samuel Sharp, Bartholomew county school superintendent who has been serving as county director for the War Savings stamp campaign, has resigned because of his duties in connection with educational work, and J. C Phelps of St. Louis Crossing has been selected head of the county organization, with W. W. Mooney as chairman of the city committee. Bartholomew county's quota for the year is $498,720. There remains $200,000 worth of certificates and Thrift stamps to be sold.

Seymour.—As a result of a city ordinance, which requests dry beer dealers to pay an annual license fee of $50 and in the face of the proposed federal tax of 2 cents on each 10-cent drink, proprietors of such places declare that they will be forced out of business. Several of the places closed rather than pay the city license and others expect the ordinance to be held invalid. It is almost certain that the regulations which prescribe closing hours and prohibit Sunday sales will be contested in the courts.

South Bend.—The chamber of commerce here has been asked by the government to ascertain whether a place suitable for the establishment of an army motortruck school can be found in this city. The requirements to be satisfied in order to obtain such a school are lodging and boarding facilities for at least 1,200 men; a machine shop near large plot of ground which would be available for parking purposes; and reasonably good roads in the surrounding country.

Versailles.—The Ripley county council has appropriated $20,000 to the county council of defense, to be used in meeting the quotas assessed against Ripley county for war relief purposes during 1919. The council also appropriated an additional $3,000 for the defense council to use in other war activities.

Frankfort.—The Clinton county council has increased the tax levy of the county 30 cents and the additional sum raised will be placed in the county's war chest fund. The original tax levy was 18.9 cents and is thus increased ot 48.9 cents.

What is a Branch House?

The Branch House is the place in the packing organization where what the packing plant does for you is put where you can use it.

Both are the natural result of growth and development in the living thing they belong to.

Swift & Company Branch Houses are located in distributing centers all over the country. They are fitted out with refrigerating equipment to keep meat cool, sweet and fresh.

Each one is in personal charge of a man who believes in what Swift & Company is doing for people and wants to help do it.

They are directed by men who have spent years learning how to get better meat cheaper to the places where it is needed.

Meat is shipped to the branch houses direct from the packing plants in Swift & Company's refrigerator cars, in such quantities that it can be disposed of while fresh and sweet.

Your meat dealer comes here to buy your meat for you—unless someone else can treat him better then we can.

So you need the branch house in order to live well; and the branch house and the packing plant need each other, in order to be useful to you.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

SWIFT & COMPANY S U.S.A.

Much Over-Rated.

Attila the Hun was a piker—a poor, doddering, inefficient, tender-hearted old fussbudget. We have learned that during the last four years. No pep. No science. No poison gas.

How did Weyler earn the terrific reputation that he had in 1898? He was a quiet, law-abiding, carpet-slippered old Spanish gentleman, and as harmless as a bowl of bread and milk. What did he know of brutality?

Villa, dead or alive, used to pose as some pumpkins in the realm of polite butchery. Where did he get that stuff? He was only a novel crook.

Nero got away with a lot of notoriety in his time as a first-class all-around blackleg, but he was only an amateur.

For further particulars address W. Hohenzollern, 1313 Main Street, Potsdam.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Proper Way.

"I see where photographers are going to form a union in the West."

"I suppose, then, all its proceedings and reports will be heard in camera."

Prime Conservation.

"What melting eyes that girl has!"

"Good gracious! Don't let her go near the icebox."

Pershing Paid for Pig.

The French papers delight in anecdotes of the good relations between the American soldiers and the peasants. One of these stories, with which General Pershing's name is coupled, is printed this week.

"A big American automobile tore through a French village on its way to an American camp," says a Lyons paper. "Unfortunately a pig belonging to an old peasant woman strayed into the path of the car and was killed. The old lady was heartbroken. But a few days later a letter came for her, inclosing a check for 100 francs, and saying how sorry the writer was for the death of her pig.

"The signature was that of General Pershing."

But She Suffered.

"Ah!" she sighed, "for many years I've suffered from dyspepsia."

"And don't you take anything for it?" her friend asked. "You look well enough."

"Oh," she replied, "my husband has it—not I."

Not Attractive.

"I can marry any woman I please."

"Then I conclude you haven't pleased any yet!"—London Answers.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY CLEANSES YOUR KIDNEYS

For centuries GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been a standard household remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and stomach trouble, and all diseases connected with the urinary organs. The kidneys and bladder are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of your blood. If the poisons which enter your system through the blood and stomach are not entirely thrown out by the kidneys and bladder, you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, headache, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, difficulty when urinating, cloudy and bloody urine, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago, all warn you to look after your kidneys and bladder. All these indicate some weakness of the kidneys or other organs or that the enemy microbes which are always present in your system have attacked your weak spots. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are what you need.

They are not a "patent medicine," nor a "new discovery." For 200 years they have been a standard household remedy. They are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil your great-grandmother used, and are perfectly harmless. The healing, soothing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and through the bladder, driving out the poisonous germs. New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue the treatment. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day; they will keep you in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not delay a minute. Delays are especially dangerous in kidney and bladder trouble. All druggists sell GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They will refund the money if not as represented. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They are prepared in correct quantity and convenient form, are easy to take and are positively guaranteed to give prompt relief. In three sizes, sealed packages. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL. Accept no substitutes.—Adv.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0505

WRIGLEY'S

For Victory Buy War Savings Stamps

We will win this war—
Nothing else really matters until we do!

The Flavor Lasts
WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT
JUICY FRUIT
WRIGLEY'S DOUBLEMINT

Hot Stuff.

One negro porter was getting enthusiastic over cigars. "Brother," he said to his companion, "when I die I want a box of cigars tucked under one arm."

"What kind do you prefer?" asked the other.

"Just anything. A 27-cent near-Havana will do."

"Near Havana? Say, when you're dead for two days you'll think Havana used to be as cold as the winds that blow over Greenland's icy mountains."

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County—ss.
Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.
Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. Gleason, Notary Public.
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System.
Druggists, 75c. Testimonials free.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Good Excuse.

She—You don't write me now such nice long love letters every day you don't see me. Is it indifference?

He—No, my darling, it is patriotism. The government wants us to save paper.

California hopes to presently irrigate 5,490,360 acres of land.

Any kind of success worth having never arrives unexpectedly.

ASTHMADOR
AVERTS • RELIEVES
HAY FEVER
ASTHMA
Begin Treatment NOW
All Druggists Guarantee

WORLD HAS CHANGED SOME

Reason Why Feats of Phenomenally Strong Men Are Not Likely to Be Duplicated.

George Hackenschmidt was a pretty strong man and many are the tales told of his wondrous feats of strength. But the Russian lion was a weakling compared to a certain man who lived on the southern coast of Ireland.

It is said of this particular Irishman that when he went fishing for whales he always used a three-inch hawser for a line and a 600-pound anchor for a hook. He'd bait his hook with a couple of sheep, or maybe a calf, whirl it around his head two or three times and send it sailing out into the ocean.

We forgot to mention that he usually used an old cannon or something for a sinker.

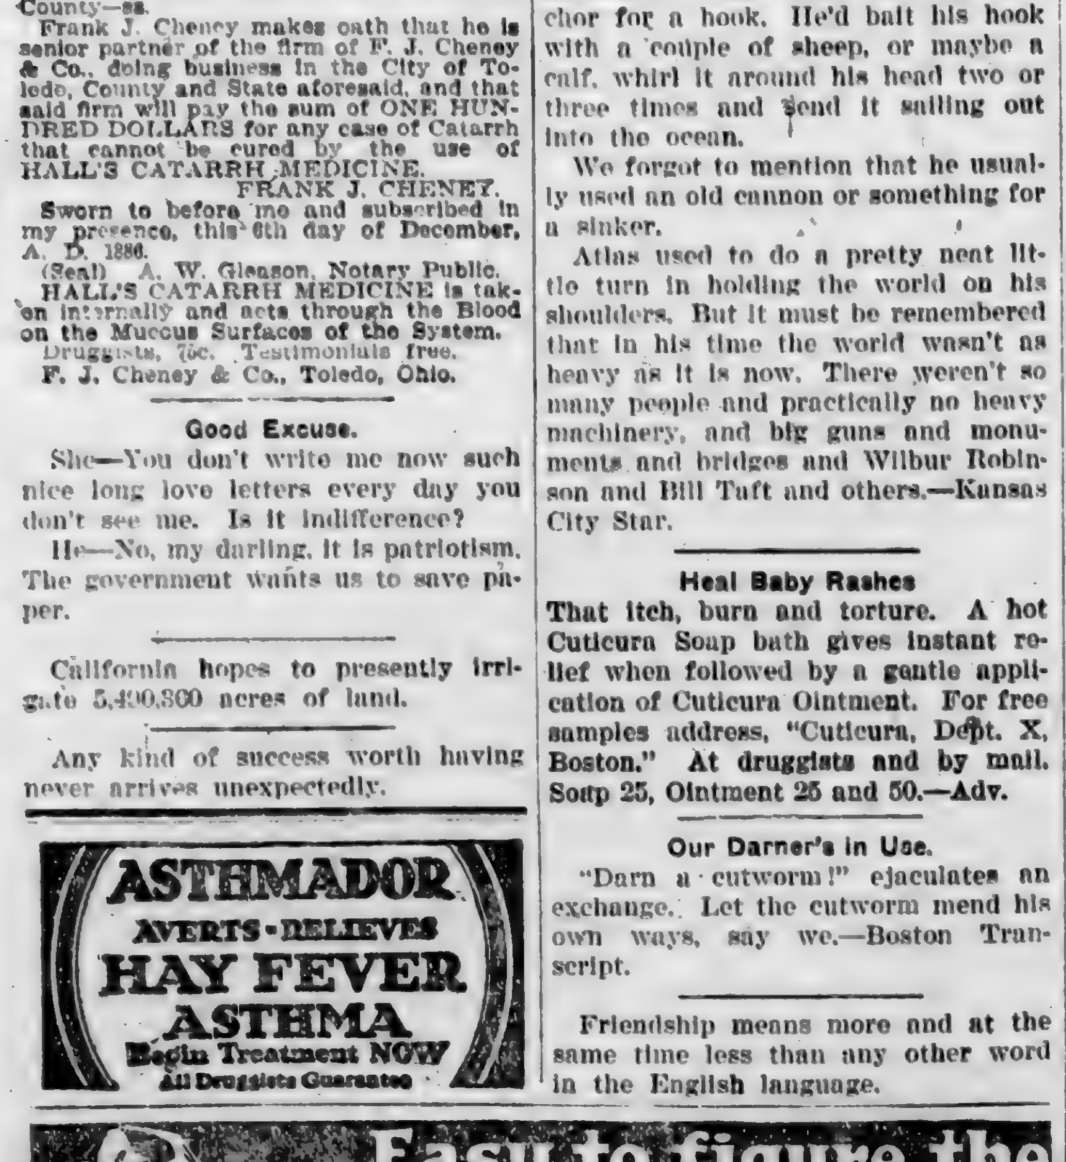
Atlas used to do a pretty neat little turn in holding the world on his shoulders. But it must be remembered that in his time the world wasn't as heavy as it is now. There weren't so many people and practically no heavy machinery, and big guns and monuments and bridges and Wilbur Robinson and Bill Taft and others.—Kansas City Star.

Heal Baby Rashes
That itch, burn and torture. A hot Cuticura Soap bath gives instant relief when followed by a gentle application of Cuticura Ointment. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Our Darner's in Use.

"Darn a cutworm!" ejaculates an exchange. Let the cutworm mend his own ways, say we.—Boston Transcript.

Friendship means more and at the same time less than any other word in the English language.



Easy to figure the Profits

Where in Western Canada you can buy at from $15 to $30 per acre good farm land that will raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre of $2 wheat — its easy to figure the profits. Many Western Canadian farmers (scores of them from the U. S.) have paid for their land from a single crop. Such an opportunity for 100% profit on labor and investment is worth investigation.

Canada extends to you a hearty invitation to settle on her

Free Homestead Lands of 160 Acres Each

or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Think what you can make with wheat at $2 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming and cattle raising.

The climate is healthful and agreeable; railway facilities excellent; good schools and churches convenient. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

IN ANOTHER KEY

Of Little Use to Society.

As a rule trimmers are not productive of progress. They live by what they get out of others. They are so busy thinking up schemes of self-enrichment that they haven't any brains to spare for constructive programs. Their concern is not to put something on the market but to get something off the market. They live on the efforts of other people. They are to humanity what the mistletoe is to the oak. They are drones of the industrial hive and live by feeding on others.—Pennsylvania Grit.

You Have to Soak 'Em.

The "guvnor" was giving his son, with whom being out of a job was fast becoming chronic, a lesson in patriotism.

"Have you bought a Liberty bond?" he asked.

"No; costs too much!"

"Buy a Thrift stamp?"

"Thrift stamps? Huh! Too small."

"But they have one mighty fine habit, my boy—they stick."—Cartoons Magazine.

That's Different.

Casey—Phwat fur are yes makin' such a noise on the pianny? Yer drivin' me dishtracted wid yer racket an' me head achin' loike it wud split in two pieces.

Daughter—Them new neighbors next door has been complainin' of my playin'.

Casey—Begorra, hammer harder.

Its Virtue.

She—What is your idea of the flower that is typical of women? The queenly and radiant rose?

He—No, the morning glory.

She—Why the morning glory?

He—Because it knows when to shut up.

Ever Think of That, Mr. Golfer?

Son (a golf enthusiast)—"You must admit, father, that it requires great skill to drive a ball a hundred yards—" Old Farmer—"Shucks! It don't require half as much skill as it does to drive a pig fifty feet."—Boston Transcript.

Might Have Been Worse.

"Waiter!"

"Yes, sir."

"Take away this butterfish. It is bad."

"But it might be worse, sir."

"I can't see how it could be, waiter."

"It might have been a whale, sir."

A Simple Device.

"Doc, what's on the other end of this tube with which you supply your famous ozone inhalations?"

"It opens into my garden, which contains an unlimited quantity of good fresh air."

Cruel, Cruel Sight!

The Pacifist's Child—I'm not going to throw any more crumbs to the sparrows, daddy."

The Pacifist—Why, my dear?

"It always causes a bread riot among them!"

Point of View.

Flatbush—He's very extravagant.

Bensonhurst—How do you know?

"He sent me a letter and he wrote on both sides of the paper."

"Why, that looks like economy instead of extravagance."

"Not at all. Didn't he have to use twice as much ink?"

Poor Girl.

"Where are your love letters?"

"I haven't any," confessed the heiress. "My lawyers conducted all the correspondence with the duke."

New York Styles.

Church—Well, I see the woman hod-carrier has made her appearance in New York City.

Gotham—Oh, well, you mustn't be surprised at anything you find a New York woman ornamenting her shoulders with.

Lost No Time.

Her Father—When I started out, young man, I didn't have a dollar, and now—

Her Suitor—Have you—er—got one handy about you, sir?—Judge.

Utility and Decoration.

"How did the young man from the East happen to leave Crimson Gulch so suddenly?"

"It was all a case of mistaken identity," replied Broncho Bob. "He mistook a bunch of cowboys for dudes because they wore wrist watches."

Sharp Retort.

He—Did you know the mails are allowed to carry soft soap?

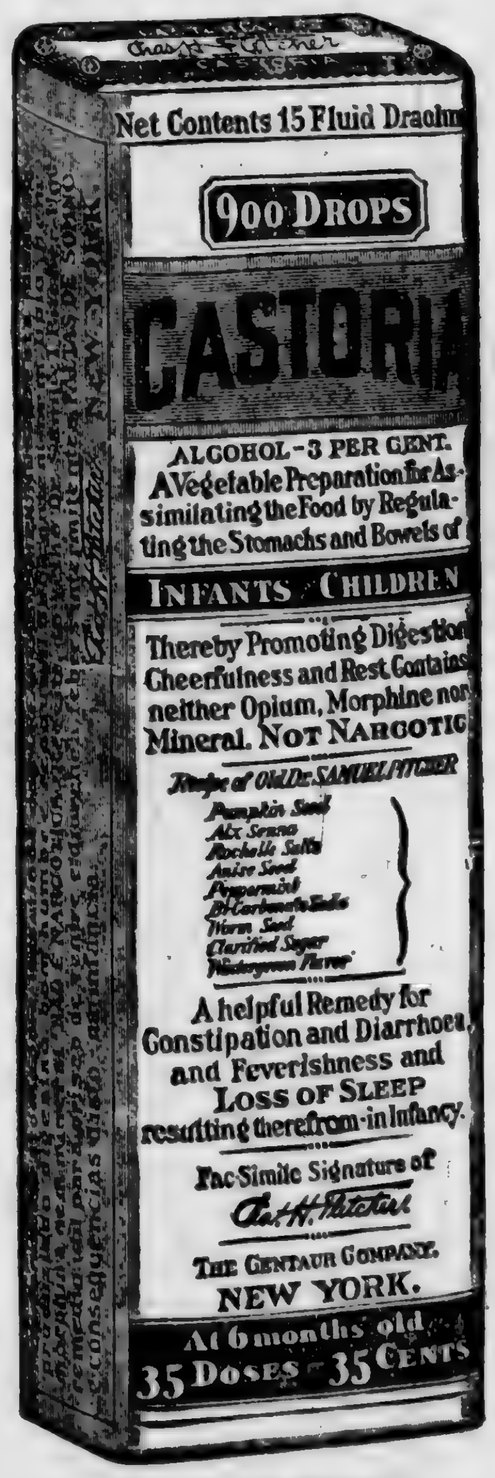
She—I did not know the capacity of males for soft soap had ever been questioned.

Honest Advertising.

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Imitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher Honestly advertised, Honestly placed before the public and from which he Honestly expects to receive his reward.



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY. NEW YORK.
At 6 months old 35 DOSES — 35 CENTS
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Extracts from Letters by Grateful Parents to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Mrs. John W. Derrick, of Lexington, S. C., says: "My children cry for Castoria, I could not do without it."

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gaines, of Ripley, Tenn., say: "We enclose our baby's picture hoping it will induce some poor tired mothers to give your Castoria a trial. We have used it since baby was two weeks old."

Mrs. J. G. Parman, of Nashville, Tenn., says: "The perfect health of my baby is due to your Castoria—the first and only medicine he has taken. He is never satisfied with one dose, he always cries for more."

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Johnson, of Stevens Point, Wis., say: "When our baby was two weeks old he cried so much we did everything for him, then got some Castoria and he is now strong and fat. We would not be without it, and are very thankful to you."

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS BEARS
the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY

He Couldn't Spell It.

In the spelling list for a class in a certain Indianapolis school were the words singing and singeing. The class was asked to write sentences using these words to show that they knew the correct meaning of each. One little fellow, Robert, wrote:

"The Italians are a singing nation."

"The allies will soon be singeing the beard of the kaiser."

With sideward glances he watched his teacher mark his paper and timidly asked:

"Is it all right?"

"Yes," she said, "but the kaiser has no beard; he has a mustache."

I know, I know; but I wanted 100 on my paper, and I couldn't spell mustache."—Indianapolis News.

LEMON JUICE
TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion
if skin is sunburned,
tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

Not a New Experience.

Two recruits were waiting for further instructions at Camp Dodge, Ia. One of the men, striving to be sociable, said: "Well, I suppose this war business will be new work to us."

"O, I don't know," replied the other. "You see, I have been married to the wrong girl for five years."

A la Berlin.

"Say, pop, what is a signal victory?"

"In Berlin the capture of one American with the loss of only twenty Germans is so regarded, my son."

Your Eyes A Wholesome, Cleansing, Refreshing and Healing Lotion—Murine for Redness, Soreness, Granulation, Itching and Burning of the Eyes or Eyelids; "2 Drops" After the Movies, Motoring or Golf will win your confidence. Ask Your Druggist for Murine when your Eyes Need Care. M-13
Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

With a Different Meaning.

Two neighbors were talking about the young man who had lived off his mother all of his married life. He had a nice home, etc., but the neighbors knew he had never made enough money to pay for it. They also knew of his mother's "helping him out."

"That fellow sort o' reminds me of what Abraham Lincoln said one time," remarked the first neighbor.

"How's that?" queried the second.

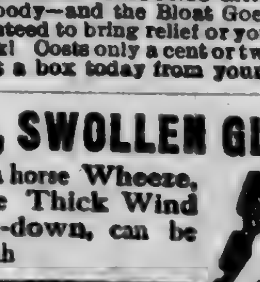
"Lincoln said: 'All I have and all I hope to be I owe to my mother.'"

Don't Shoot Live Pigeons.

Any pigeon in the air may be a carrier pigeon flying from a loft under government supervision. Its destruction may be a serious loss to the American army. All persons, therefore, are urged to refrain from shooting pigeons and to discourage the practice of hunters and of children.

Every young man has a great future ahead of him, but it usually persists in staying there.

Ohio farmers are forming co-operative buying societies.



Keep Yourself Fit

You can't afford to be laid up with sore, aching kidneys in these days of high prices. Some occupations bring kidney troubles; almost any work makes weak kidneys worse. If you feel tired all the time, and suffer with lame back, sharp pains, dizzy spells, headaches and disordered kidney action, use Doan's Kidney Pills. It may save an attack of rheumatism, dropsy, or Bright's disease. Doan's have helped thousands back to health.

An Indiana Case

Theo. S. Payton, 505 W. Main St., New Albany, Ind., says: "I suffered a great deal from irritation, caused by kidney complaint. I had medical treatment and used many remedies, but got no benefit until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. Since using them, my kidneys have been normal and my system has been practically free from kidney complaint. Whenever I feel the least need of a kidney medicine, however, Doan's Kidney Pills being good results."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

410 Acre Farm for Sale Trumbull County; two sets good buildings; lies fine for traction farming; all cleared but fifty acres; timber worth twenty five hundred; water power available on farm for electric power and light plant. One of the best stock and grain farms in Ohio. Could be divided into two or three farms nicely; price fifty dollars acre, long time five per cent. I. N. LOTRIDGE, LOCKWOOD, OHIO

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

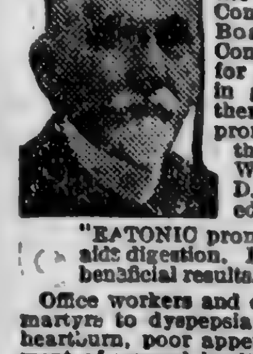
Hardpan.

"Is the soil here good enough to raise anything?"

"I sent a sample to the agricultural expert and he advised me to raise marbles."—Judge.

Hay Fever-Catarrh
Prompt Relief Guaranteed
SCHIFFMANN'S
CATARRH BALM
ASK YOUR DEALER

Heal Itching Skins With Cuticura
All druggists: Soap 25, Ointment 25 & 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."



JUDGE DECIDES STOMACH REMEDY A GREAT SUCCESS

Commissioner of Mediation and Conciliation Board Tries EATONIC, the Wonderful Stomach Remedy, and Endorses It.

Judge William L. Chambers, who uses EATONIC as a remedy for loss of appetite and indigestion, is a Commissioner of the U. S. Board of Mediation and Conciliation. It is natural for him to express himself in guarded language, yet there is no hesitation in his pronouncement regarding the value of EATONIC. Writing from Washington, D. C., to the Eatonic Remedy Co., he says.

"EATONIC promotes appetite and aids digestion. I have used it with beneficial results."

Office workers and others who sit much are martyrs to dyspepsia, belching, bad breath, heartburn, poor appetite, bloat, and impairment of general health. Are you, yourself, a sufferer? EATONIC will relieve you just as surely as it has benefited Judge Chambers and thousands of others.

Here's the secret: EATONIC drives the gas out of the body—and the Bloat Goes With It! It is guaranteed to bring relief or you get your money back! Costs only a cent or two a day to use it. Get a box today from your druggist.

THICK, SWOLLEN GLANDS that make a horse Wheeze, Roar, have Thick Wind or Choke-down, can be reduced with also other Bunches or Swellings. No blister, no hair gone, and horse kept at work. Economical—only a few drops required at an application. $2.50 per bottle delivered. Book 3 R free.
ABSORBINE
ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Cysts, Wens, Painful, Swollen Veins and Ulcers. $1.25 a bottle at dealers or delivered. Book "Evidence" free.
W.F.YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0506

The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.
GOLD

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

2. An account here is a great business convenience.
   - —In making payments.
   - —In collecting drafts and checks.
   - —In sending remittances.
3. We loan money on good security to promote business, and we like to favor those who consistently build accounts with us.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

AMERICANS ASKED TO LIMIT USE OF SUGAR

Must Use No More Than Two Pounds Per Person a Month if the Present Meagre Allied Sugar Ration Is Maintained.

Stocks Will Be Short Until Beginning of New Year—Ration May Be Enlarged Then.

Two pounds of sugar a month—half a pound a week—that is the sugar ration the U. S. Food Administration has asked every American to observe until January 1, 1919, in order to make sure there shall be enough for our Army and Navy, for the Allied armies and for the civilians of those nations.

By New Year's the world sugar situation will be relieved somewhat by the new crop. Cuban sugar of this year's crop will be arriving in this country.

Every available sugar source will be drawn on by the Food Administration during the next winter months to maintain sufficient stocks here to keep up our national sugar supply. During October the first American beet sugar will arrive in the markets. By the middle of November some of our Louisiana cane crop will be available. All of this sugar and more may be needed to keep this nation supplied on a reduced ration and to safeguard the Allied sugar ration from still further reduction. In Europe the present ration is already reduced to a minimum.

Our Situation.

The situation which the United States faces in its efforts to maintain a fair distribution of sugar to the Allied world is as follows:

Sugar supplies throughout the country, in homes, stores, factories and bakeries are at a low ebb. We must make increased sugar shipments to the Allies.

Production of American beet and Louisiana cane crops have been disappointing.

Porto Rico crops have been curtailed.

Immense sugar stocks in Java cannot be reached on account of the shipping shortage; ships are needed for troop movements and munitions.

Army and Navy sugar requirements have increased as well as those from the Allies.

Most industries using sugar have had their allotment reduced by one-half; some will receive no sugar.

Households should make every effort to preserve the fruit crop without sugar, or with small amounts of sugar. Later, when the sugar supply is larger, the canned fruit may be sweetened as it is used.

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE,
Aug. 6, 1918.

DEAR PARENTS:—

It has been some time since I have been able to write to you, because I have been with the battalion driving and could not get stationery.

There is not much to write about except that I am well and having a good time. Only I can't help wishing that Brothe rDewey were here with me. I am a wagoner now, and have two nice big horses to drive.

We can hear the big guns fire every now and then. The boys at the front say the Americans are driving the Boches all they are wanting at present, and I believe it to be the truth.

Well, you will want to know about the weather here. It has rained four nights straight. The first, I rode all night through the rain in an open wagon. The second night, I slept in the water. How's that for a good time?

Well, I don't know anything more to write. You must not worry about me. From your loving son,
BYRON MILLER.

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Highest price paid for cream at J. Beams' store.

—‡—‡—‡—

Clarence Zonker, of Kendallville, was in town on Monday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. B. V. Widney spent Friday with her husband at Albion.

—‡—‡—‡—

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

—‡—‡—‡—

Earl Smith and wife, of North Baltimore, came Thursday for a week's visit with relatives.

—‡—‡—‡—

Laney Gee, wife and daughter, Miss Mildred, and Mrs. Matie Gee are visiting friends in Michigan.

—‡—‡—‡—

J. R. Shilling and wife attended the Rhodes family reunion, held at the home of F. R. Rhodes, south of town, Saturday.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Bessie Tustison will begin her winter class in music next week. Those who wish to join the class will kindly see her about it.

—‡—‡—‡—

W. H. Sanders and wife left Friday for West Salem, Ohio, where they will attend a family reunion and visit relatives.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Maud Mahoney, of S . Louis, Mich., and Mrs. Mary Andrews, of Newville, were guests of Mrs. S. E. Warner, Monday and Tuesday.

—‡—‡—‡—

J. P. Buckingham and wife, Ray Reasoner and wife, Elmer Hart and family, Mrs. Ella Patterson and Mrs. Bessie Tustison and daughter, Margaret, attended the harvest home jubilee held Sunday evening at the Spencerville Lutheran church.

—‡—‡—‡—

Charles Herrick and wife, Mrs. Hazel Post and little son and Will Hatfield, all of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, were over-night guests of Nelson Thomas and wife, Monday, while en route to Coldwater, Mich. Miss Wilma Thomas, of Corunna, was a Saturday evening guest at the Thomas home.

—‡—‡—‡—

Will Hamilton and family, Mrs. Catherine Hamilton and Mrs. Lee O. Tustison accompanied H. G Provines and wife as far as Auburn on their homeward journey; and all spent the afternoon with Mr. Provines' sister, Mrs. O. H. Sherer. Mr. and Mrs. Provines continued their journey to Oklahoma City, where they are engaged in teaching school, via Chicago.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs. Maud C. Mahoney, former secretary to the treasurer of the Wayne knitting mills, Fort Wayne, has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Mary Andrews of Newville. Mrs. Mahoney left Fort Wayne a year ago to assume the duties of stenographic supervisor at the Republic Motor Truck company, of Alma, Mich., which is the largest concern of the kind in the world; and friends will be pleased to learn of her advancement to the position of division office manager.

For Your
Fresh and Salt Meats Fish and Canned Goods
SEE
W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET

Highest Market Prices paid for Hides and Pelts of All Kinds.

Next Week the Big Event

The Defiance County Fair.

—AT—

Hicksville, Ohio, Sept. 17=18=19=20

An Agricultural Display Full of Interest. Fine displays of Live Stock, Poultry, Farm Machinery, Grains, Fruits, and Vegetables of every variety. The Women's department will have an especially attractive display this year.

WEDNESDAY the Big Day: Red Cross and Patriotic Day. All Soldiers and School Children Admitted Free.
DON'T MISS COMING WEDNESDAY.

Racing a High Class Program of Speed Events have been arranged for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.
Band Concert Daily By Hart's Girl Band.

The Special Attractions Booked Are New, Novel and WILL Please EVERYBODY.
Don' Miss a Single Day.

B. P. DORSEY, President. C. M. HART, Secretary.

The Day of Big Things

We used to think that Niagara falls was some splash of water and the Grand canon was some hole in the ground and a national debt of $2,000,000,000 was a lot of money. That was before the days of moving 300,000 soldiers a month or launching 100 ships in one day or spending a billion dollars as if it were a Canadian quarter. We are now thinking in large numbers and huge sums. We are beginning to know our own capabilities and resources. The registration of Sept. 12 is going to be a whale of an undertaking, but it must be accomplisheh without the slip of a cog or one whimper of complaint. After the "18 to 45" job is out of the way, we can get ready for another Liberty Loan drive. The Indiana state council calls for a short campaign and high speed from the start. It doesn't take a simon pure patriot long to make up his mind when his country calls for help Have the wheat money and the oats money all ready to convert into bonds. Have you noticed that the Liberty bonds are in demand at high prices?

Enlistments at an End

Postmaster Curie is in receipt of the following letter, which explains itself, from Maj. Thomas F. Ryan, of Indianapolis, recruiting officer of the state of Indiana:

"You are informed that voluntary enlistments are closed. No more men will be accepted and shipped to this office. This office has been been closed and discontinued, as has every other recruiting office in the United States.

"I desire to take this opportunity to thank you for your good work and co-operation; and sincerely trust that when this war has been brought to a successful conclusion by the United States, it will be my pleasure to work with you once again.

"If there is a newspaper in your town, please publish the fact that the recruiting office is discontinued and that there will be no more voluntary enlistments."

Birthday Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freeburn on Sunday entertained the following guests in honor of the former's 77th birthday: His brother, wife and daughter (Mrs. Flossie Crawford), Glen E. Freeburn, wife and little daughter, Mabel, and Vincent Holtzberg and wife, all of Butler; Carl Lester and wife, Miss Tillie Freeburn and Mrs. Tillie Boyer, of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Jessie Coburn and children, Virgil Freeburn, wife and baby and Glen Freeburn and little daughter, Ethyl Mae. Mr. Freeburn was presented with a rocking chair.

ST. JOE.

C. C. Bassett and wife spent Sunday at the A. D. Brunson home.

Mesdames F. M. and Verne Monroe visited relatives at McCool, Ind., from Thursday until Monday.

Mrs. C. R. Brunson and two daughters, of Willard, Ohio, went home Monday morning, after visiting relatives here for two weeks.

Mrs. Mildred Caw and children, of Detroit, returned home Thursday, after a two weeks' visit with her mother, Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

We are now prepared to figure with you on your hay. Plenty of Room in barn at the Present. FOUR STORE,
39 Hicksville, Ohio.

Be sure that the home paper goes to all the soldier boys in training camps or "over there." The editor can not send free copies. He should not be asked to do so. A quick way to get news to a soldier is to clip out the live items and forward them first class.

School Supplies.

Notice to PARENTS

Do not send your children for School Books without sending the money with them. We would hate to turn your child away without his books, but we have given you 4 weeks notice as to our arrangements and we kindly ask that you do not ask us to break our rule, they are CASH. This order is given by those in authority and we must follow it.

In addition to the Books.- we have a full line of tablets, pencils, and other school supplies for kiddie

ELZA R. KINSEY,
St. Joe, Indiana.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0507

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19 1918 NO. 38

SAY Don't YOU KNOW

In order to effect further saving in the consumption of print paper, the government at Washington has issued an order directing publishers of newspapers to discontinue sending papers to all substribers that are three months or more behind on their subscriptions. This order goes into effect on Oct. 1, 1918 Following are the government rules:

No publisher may continue subscriptions longer than three months after the expiration of such subscription unless it is renewed and paid for.

No publisher may give free copies of his paper except for actual service rendered.

No publisher shall send free copies in exchange for other publications, except to such other publications as are printed within the county or within a radius of forty miles from his point of publication.

No publisher shall sell his paper at an exceedingly low or nominal subscription price, but shall sell at the regular subscription price.

No publisher shall offer premiums with his publication unless a price is put upon such premium separately and the combined price is at least 75 per cent. of the sum of the individual prices.

No publisher shall conduct voting or other contests for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions. Subscriptions obtained in this way shall not be considered bona fide.

No publisher may issue holiday, industrial or other special editions.

Any violation of these rules subjects the paper so doing to the loss of his entire paper supply, the mills and dealers not being allowed to sell him any paper.

COAL:

Are you prepared for that cold weather that will soon be upon us? Just take a peep into our bins—we can fill your bins with either a Wash Nut, Brazil Block or Ind. Lump.

FLOUR:

That is another of the essentials that we always aim to keep in stock for our customers. Two of the best brands on the market are now on hand: Aristos and the Gold Medal If Eventaully- "WHY NOT NOW."

PIONEER

Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market. Prepared feed contains the necessary filling to keep the hogs in good conition while feeding.

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.

Spencerville, Indiana

The 4th. Liberty Loan.

For the fourth time our government asks the public for funds with which to prosecute the war. The amount is larger than any previous loan, because of the growing cost of the war. Our overseas army approximates one million five hundred thousand men. Food, guns, munitions, transportation and the necessary attendant costs mount into the billions. The strain of war is upon us. We now have a realizing sense of the present and impending loss in men and money, the necessity for service and sacrifice, for economy and patriotic devotion. In order that the lives of our armies abroad may be saved, the suffering of the sick and wounded ameliorated, there must be an unbroked flow of guns, munitions, and army equipment, of food, medicine and hospital supplies. To insure this uninterrupted flow in sufficient volume the government needs the funds it asks for.

Taxes, in as great volume as is deemed prudent, are imposed upon all men and all industries wlth uniformity and fairness. By the selective draft the personal military burden is imposed upon all of military age and fitness with uniformity and impartiality. When it comes to the placing of government bonds, the matter of subscription is voluntary. Subscription, however, is a privilege as well as a patriotic duty and involves making a safe investment at a fair rate of interest.

The country is thoroughly aroused. All camouflage as to who brought about the war and their purpose in so doing has been dissipated. The Huns stand convicted before the World. Germany believed the submarine would give her victory, and she deliberately and purposely forced the United States into the war, believing in her blind conceit that from this country she would recoup her losses by receiving a large indemnity. For generations we shall continue to pay taxes "Made—in—Germany" but our only contribution to Germany direct will be delivered in a masterful manner by our army and navy.

It is our duty as citizens to make this loan a success and it is our pleasure to offer you, gratuitously, the facilities of The St. Joe Valley Bank in making subscriptions and to pledge you our very best services in carrying out your instructions.

Yours for "a long pull and a strong pull and a pull all together."

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

NO MAN'S LAND

In No Man's Land, black shadows spread
Across the still forms of the dead,
Who sleep unto eternity;
And shot through with the star shell's light
The dim nigrescence of the night
Lies over all
A sable pall—
The shroud of immortality.
Aye, ghastly is the crimann band
Thate hate has set on No Man's Land.

But in the hush at break o' day
On No Man's Land the poppies sway
And curtsy to the daffodils;
And death gives up his stark domain
Along the hazaraous terrain—
Dew gilds with gold
The greening mould
And, lo! a soaring sky lark trills.
Give us, O God, to understand—
A lark sings hope o'er No Man's Land.

—C. T. Davis.

Registrants Number 104

One hundred and four men registered in Concord township last Thursday, 103 American born and 1 naturalized citizen. H. C. Hathaway was chairman in the east precinct, assisted by Grover C. Curie; and E. R. Kinsey, assisted by Elmer Hart, had charge in the west. Following is the registration by ages:

	East	Wst
18 years	4	4
19 "	4	2
20 "	3	1
21 "		1
28 "	1
32 "	2	1
33 "	6	2
34 "	2	2
35 "	4	4
36 "		3
37 "	2	6
38 "	1	3
39 "	3	7
40 "	2	2
41 "	3	4
42 "	1	5
43 "		7
44 "	2	4
45 "	4	2
Total	44	60

Spencer Township.—Under 21, 14; over 21, 71; total, 85.

Newville Township.—Under 21, 11; over 21, 43; total, 54.

The total registration for the county at the last registration was 2,921; previous registrations, 2,232; grand total, 5,153.

Has Kaiser Abdicated?

LONDON, Sept. 17 (4:28 p. m).—It was learned here this afternoon that rumors are current in border countries that the German kaiser either has abdicated or is about to abdicate.

The rumor was of the vaguest sort, but it was regarding some trouble in the Hohenzollern family.

There is absolutely no confirmation of it here.

One report was that the entire Hohenzollern dynasty had abdicated or would abdicate.

A new supply of Writing Tablets and Envelopes at News Office.

Harvest Jubilee

Harvest Home exercises were held at the Lutheran church last Sunday evening, and the services were in keeping with the occasion—rejoicing over and thanksgiving for the Lord's bounties. There was no special music. The sermon, however, which was delivered by Rev. A. K. Mumma, was appropriate. The church, immediately in front of the rostrum, was tastily decorated with the first fruits of field and garden. These had been arranged by a committee of three ladies—Mesdames J. P. Buckingham, Ray Reasoner and Elmer Hart. At the conclusion of the services, J. P. Buckingham, in a neat address on behalf of the church, presented the agricultural display to Rev. and Mrs. Mumma. This included an old hen which had occasioned considerable apprehension lest she fail to be impressed with what was to go on about her and indulge in a little premature and irreverent cackling. Biddy sowed the seed of silence in church. What will her harvest be?

Schools Begin

The schools of DeKalb county began Monday. Following is the enrollment of those in this vicinity, the teachers of which were published last week:

SPENCERVILLE

High school	59
Grammar	20
Intermediate	30
Primary	31
Total	140

William Lucas is janitor and John Webb and James Goings drive the school hacks.

CONCORD TOWNSHIP

St. Joe:—
High school	70
Grammar	22
Intermediate	44
Primary	42
Total	178
Common schools:—
Cheesetown	8
Saylor	15
Hayes	22
Township total	223

Buys New Ford Truck

Because of business' increasing so rapidly, Jack Beams has purchased a new Ford truck of Frank Silberg, our local agent, to be used as a buckster truck. The road trade increased to such an extent that this change became necessary.

Pencils, Rulers, Tablets, Pens, Ink, Crayons, Pencil Holders, Note Books, Erasers for the school children at The News Office.

Hamilton Case Is Settled

The suit against the James Hamilton estate, pending in the U. S. District Court at Indianapolis has been settled by the estate through their attorney, J. M. Life. $12,000 was at stake in which the Bonebreak Theological Seminary of Dayton, O., were the plaintiffs. One note of $500 dating back a dozen years was not denied by the estate, as the interest had been paid. Another note of $10,000 with accumulations added made $11,200, which the defendants were prepared to fight tne payment, was compromised at $3,500. The estate made a final settlement amounting to $4,000. The case would have been heard next Wednesday had the plaintiffs not compromised.

Dale Widney Co. Agent

The county board of education of Noble county, acting in conjunction with Purdue university and the state board of education, last Thursday appointed B. V. Widney, of this place, county agent. Mr. Widney had been acting as emergency demonstrator in Noble county since last spring, and his election last Thursday is official endorsement of his work. He will have an office in the court house at Albion.

Are Safely Overseas

Elgin Curie, Homer Donley and Mr Laub, all of Concord township, are safely landed overseas, according to word received Monday by relatives. Nearly all of our boys are now across the Atlantic, and some of them are in the front line trenches.

Notice to Patrons

Having decided to take a vacation for about one year, I must clean up all accounts due me before leaving; and all of said accounts remaining unpaid will be sold at public auction with the rest of my valuables. The mill will be in charge of Don Hindman. Time of leaving, Saturday. Give this notice your attention and greatly oblige.

W. L. WALLACE.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	100	3.82
M. P.	90	4.92
Christian	65	3.18
M. E. Spencer	111	5.28
Lutheran	140	7.22
Concord	74	2 02
Newville U B	80	3.13
Coburntown	81	2.72

PROTECT Your Grain

—‡—‡—‡—

Wheat, Rye, Oats, Barley, Corn, and Beans—including sacks and bags, cut or uncut—thrashed or unthrashed—in sacks, shocks, ricks or in dwellings, barns, bins granary or cribs—A special fire policy for a period of one month or more. Would be pleased to quote you rates.

—‡—‡—‡—

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

COAL! COAL! COAL!

We have some high grade lump coal on the way now—Get your order in—First come, first served—We are doing our best to supply St. JOE with coal for the coming winter—Last year was a hard pull but we got by—Just a little patience and co-operation and we will keep you all warm.

Clover Seed: The Best Market Ever. Be sure and bring your seed to us and get top price

FEED: The Best That Is—SCHUMACHER. Make your hogs do better. Just a little of that famous GLUTTEN feed left—get yours while it lasts.

Call on us always glad to see you. If we have not got what you want we will try and get it for you. Highest prices paid for all grains at all times.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Manager

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0508

Love and Uncle Sam

By KATHARINE EGGLESTON
Of The Vigilantes

Dear mothers of soldier boys, wives of soldier men, sweethearts of soldier lovers, with the arms of our love round each other, let us reason together. From some of us, surely, love's supreme sacrifice will be demanded. But it is not giving our best to death; it is seeing the soldier come home crippled or blind or deaf. Every heart among ours aches in the giant grasp of pain at the thought.

In the streets of London before this war began, there were crippled and blinded men, pitifully capitalizing their infirmity as they thrust their bit of green or bunch of lead pencils forward to cover the fact that they were beggars. In every other country where war has laid its devastating weight, there are such men. Even here, where we have pensioned the veterans of the Civil war, we have the tragic evidences consequent on men's knowing that they are not helping in the world's work.

These were the sons of mothers like you, the husbands of wives like you, the lovers of sweethearts. For a month or a year, the glory of their sacrifice burned brightly around them. They were heroes in love's eyes. They were petted and appreciated. Then, the routine of life swept on. The other men went back to business. Their wives and their mothers and their sweethearts went on with life accompanied by the agreeable support of their money-producing efforts. Perhaps the men tried to make places for the maimed companions.

But the dimming thoughts of the war were the mist that began to shut the maimed ones away from participation in the life where they could render no service. The women who loved and clung to them had to find work to support themselves and the heroes. And, even they grew less conscious of the heroism and more conscious of the strain of making ends meet.

Worse, yet, a deterioration set in within the mind and heart of the hero. It was not his fault that he could be of so little use. He had given more for his country than some of the men who were blessed with the favor and comfort resulting from active service and the accumulation of a competency. Bitter or discouraged or else just slipping without much resistance into the position of grocery-store loafer and courthouse lounger, the hero of a time forgotten became a kind of tolerated zero in the life of his community—or an actual nuisance.

Dear mothers, wives, sweethearts, this is not a picture too highly colored. You know of men far-fallen from the heroic days when they came home bearing the signs of their great giving. Then, what would I whisper to the deeps of your heart so sacred to your soldier-men? By the strength of the love you bear them, save their glory untarnished!

How? There is work that a man without a leg can do with his two hands. There is work that a man bereft of sight can do by the sense of touch. There is work that a man whose arms are gone can do with his feet. Our blessed heroes can be taught work that will, in some instances, make them even more able to earn than they were before the war. The government is looking after this.

Then what can we do, mothers, wives and sweethearts? We can—and we must—give our men to the government a bit longer, give them till they are equipped to take men's places in the active world. It means holding our hearts, that yearn so terrifically to have them again, in the strong grip of our common sense.

Duty of Our Women.

When you ache to get them back, to have them right close to you, to make it all up to them, just remember that the mothers and wives and sweethearts of those men whom you now regard as ciphers loved and yearned as you do. Just keep a tight hold on the thought that the shiftless, uncontributing member of society, who decorates a dry goods box or hunches up in a wooden chair at the courthouse, came home to hearts that blazed with fervor as yours is blazing now. And save your men from what your eyes convince you is their certain future.

Six months or more, under the wise hand of the government they have served, and they will be fitted for further service. Six months or more of loving waiting on your part will bring you home a hero whose glory never can be dimmed by the smudgy hand of circumstances. Six months or more of positive encouragement will keep him from falling a victim to the despair that will come when your loved one returns to the life he has left robbed of the arm or leg or eyes which have been so essential. It is really up to us, the women whose love is the great rock of shelter and comfort for our men, to encourage—even to insist upon their taking advantage of the opportunities which the government will provide. Up to the women! We have not failed our men yet! We never will, not though the way we tread is red with our own heart's blood!

OF WHAT ARE WE THINKING?

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON
Of The Vigilantes

What is in the mind of the American citizen while "The Star-Spangled Banner" is being played?

Of what are we thinking?

Are we thinking of the flag and all that it stands for, or are our minds otherwise engaged?

Of course, it is reasonably certain that we are thinking of something, but have our thoughts the slightest connection with the message our flag is carrying to the enemy?

We obediently arise with the first sonorous note of the anthem and we remain standing till the end. We have learned, or we are learning, to "face the music" more or less at attention, and we are developing the conviction that it is an offense to chatter while the strains of our war song, perhaps our death song, fill our ears. But are we thinking of "The Star-Spangled Banner?"

Or are we silently urging the musicians to hurry up and be done with it so that we may resume an interrupted occupation? Are we impatiently waiting to take up a broken conversation; a game of bridge; the telling of a story; the reading of a newspaper; the liberal art of criticizing the war department, the navy or the administration; or, what is infinitely more incompatible, exploiting the hateful efficiency of the foe?

Pay Respect to the Flag.

We sit in public places, and we arise because we are in public places. We suspend for the moment our physical interests, and we look about us to see if other people are doing the same. Some of us get up grudgingly and stand as we happen to have been sitting, with our backs to the music; some of us go on knitting; others of us continue to keep our hands in our pockets and our cigars in our mouths; others think that nothing more is required of them than the lowering of the voice to an undertone; others consider a bland expression of resignation to be efficient; and some fall into an attitude of tolerant submissiveness. There is little or no evidence of exaltation, no sign of an inward thrill, no suggestion of a profound emotion. The beautiful, inspiring concentration of thought that attends the "Marseillaise" is lacking; the full-hearted sensation that glorifies "Rule Britannia" is absent; even the fervor of the Teuton as symbolized in guttural acclaim is sadly wanting. We, the most imaginative, the most alert people in the world, are totally devoid of imagination during the rendition of our war song.

Why should we not think, or even pray, as the French, the English and the Germans think and pray while their song of hope is being sounded?

"The Star-Spangled Banner" is our battle song. It goes into the thick of the fight with our flag and our boys. It emphasizes our hopes, our aims, our longings; and of what are we thinking—we who stay at home—while its strains are falling upon our ears? Are we, so to speak, playing the game?

Beginning of Our Prayer.

Why shouldn't we, one and all, great and small, think alike for as long as five minutes in each day? Let there be but one thought, one prayer, while the hymn is ringing. From one end of this great land to the other let this be the beginning of our prayer the instant the band strikes up "The Star-Spangled Banner:"

"God be with our flag and our soldiers and our arms wherever they may be!"

And let this be the end of our devout, intensified prayer as the last note dies away:

"God give us victory!"

Not perfunctorily, not as a matter of duty, but with our hearts in it, our nerves aquiver, our eyes glowing with the fire of enthusiasm.

One thought, one prayer in a hundred million minds!

Every heart full, every mind intent as we face the enemy! For, after all, this Star-Spangled Banner of ours is facing the foe in a far-off land, and there is no other direction in which we may look.

Our men go with the banner to the music of guns; we stand at home and face, not the guns, but a group of fiddlers! Our thoughts, our prayers, nevertheless should be the same as theirs. Our silent prayer, however, brief, should be for victory. Let us always utter it, one and all, while "The Star-Spangled Banner" is being played.

"God give us victory!"

OVER HERE

By CLYDE B. WILSON,
of the Vigilantes.

What's that? Three thousand miles away?
God, man! Say softly, that, I pray,
For fear our friend who lives just down
The street—yes, right here in our town—
May hear this thoughtless thing you say:
That war's three thousand miles away.
I'd answer not for his reply
If he should hear. He'd pass the lie
To you so quick, hot blood you'd sweat
At words you speak but to regret.
For just a moment, come with me
A few steps only, you shall see
Right at your door this thing you say
Is full three thousand miles away.
The list of "Killed in Battle" gives
Our neighbor's son—yes, he who lives
Just down the street. Come see, I pray,
If war's three thousand miles away.

Their State.

"The Finns appear to have their political state in an appropriate condition."

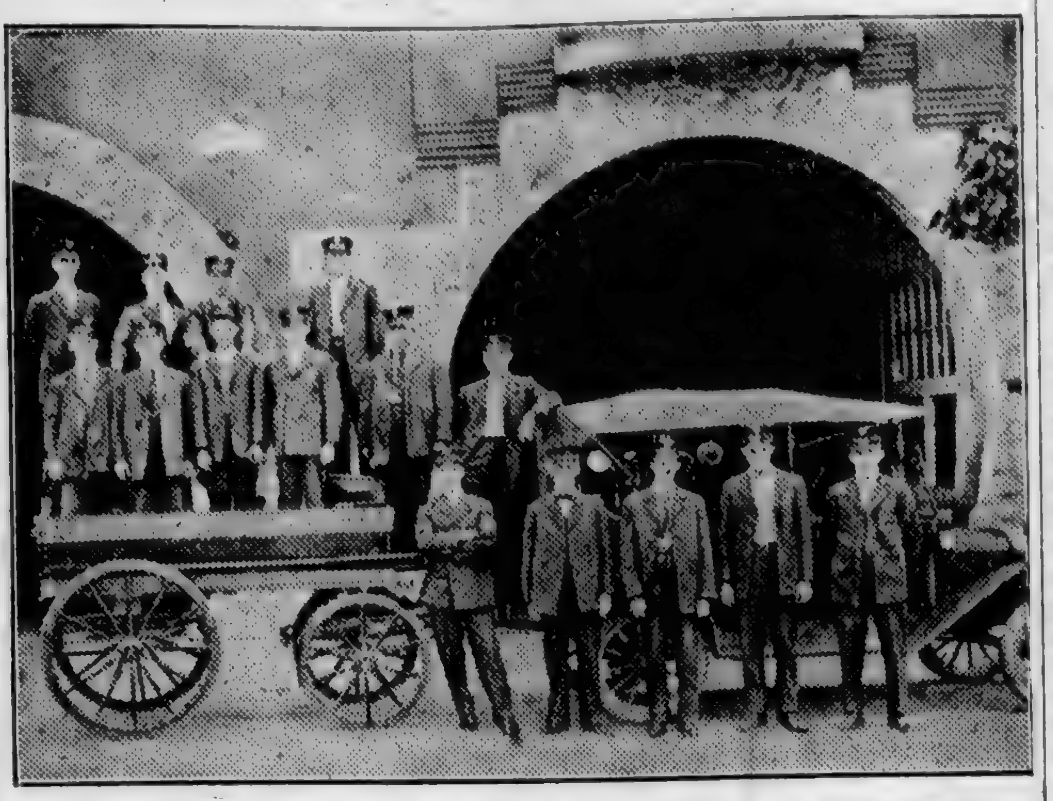
"How so?"

"It is in a pretty kettle of fish."

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

CITY FOLKS HELP HARVEST CROPS.



These Firemen's "Days Off" Were Spent on Farms Helping With the Wheat Harvest.

TO SOLVE FARM LABOR PROBLEM

Men and Women From Towns and Cities Go Into Country to Assist Farmers.

LARGEST ACREAGE OF CROPS

How States Have Enlisted and Organized Labor for Farms to Save Season's Food Harvest—"Shock Troops" Assist.

The co-operation of people of villages, towns and cities in harvesting the farm crops demonstrates in a most forcible way the patriotism of the American people and the active way in which they are supporting the program of the government.

Farmers planted this year the largest acreage of crops in the history of our agriculture. Everywhere the farmers have responded to the call from the government for greater food production and are doing everything within their power to give to the country the large supply that is so greatly needed.

While crop production has been increased, the farmers have been confronted with labor difficulties in many sections of the Union, and have had to cope with the difficulty of cultivating and harvesting an increased acreage of crops with a reduced amount of regular labor to do the work.

In order that this question might be clearly placed before the people of the villages, towns and cities of the various states, arrangements were made by the department of agriculture, in co-operation with state councils of defense, the agricultural colleges and the U. S. department of labor and state departments of labor, to hold meetings with chambers of commerce, business men's associations, rotary clubs, and other organizations of the cities and towns, placing before them the need for agricultural labor and urging action which will give adequate assistance. Everywhere the response has been large and gratifying. The result of this campaign is that many thousands of workers have been enrolled and have done much to meet the emergency. There is reasonable assurance that, in spite of difficulties, all the crops will be normally harvested.

Business Men Save Potatoes.

The potato crop of Houston and Wharton counties, Texas, has been saved through the aid of the business men in local towns. When it was realized that the potato crop would be lost unless the farmers received help, the state extension director, co-operating with the farm help specialist of the department of agriculture, explained the situation and the business men closed their offices, stores and banks, went to the farms and worked with the potato growers in harvesting the crop.

More than nine and one-half million acres of wheat were harvested in Kansas. Hundreds of towns organized their forces and closed their stores, offices, and other places of business during the day, that the workers might go to the fields and help save this food crop.

The mayor and board of public works of one of the large middle western cities closed their offices and worked in the wheat fields. The mayor drove the binder while the other men shocked the grain. On a farm adjoining a Catholic institution in Indiana 145 priests were found assisting in the harvest of the alfalfa and clover hay and the wheat and oats.

"Shock troops" have been organized to assist the farmers in harvesting their wheat. These so-called "shock troops" consist of business men, clerks and laborers who volunteer to assist in this way. These men perform their regular work in town during the day and at 5 o'clock are taken in automobiles to the country, where they assist the farmers. In this way the regular business is carried on and at the same time these men go into the fields during the cool part of the day, when they can render the greatest service. In one evening alone 40 men were able to shock more than 80 acres of wheat.

Women Cook for Hands.

In Indiana 24 towns secured an enrollment of 9,000 workers to assist in the harvest of the wheat and oats crop. Kansas City, as a result of a campaign during the week of June 3 to 8, enlisted 10,000 workers to assist Kansas farmers. These workers not only offered their services, but under the direction of the athletic club and the chamber of commerce took a course of training which fitted them and hardened them for the severe work they would be called upon to do on the farms. In addition to enrolling men, women were enlisted from the towns and cities to go to the country to assist the farmers' wives in cooking and caring for this large army of harvest hands. Forty thousand city people assisted Kansas farmers in handling the wheat.

In the berry district south of Portland, Ore., a large amount of help is needed to harvest the crop. The farm help specialist in Portland enlisted the services of 1,000 women and girls, who were organized into units and taken to the district, where they are now working and aiding in harvesting the crop in a satisfactory way.

Emergency Labor Organization.

The farm labor administration of the Illinois state council of defense, in co-operation with workers furnished by the U. S. department of agriculture, has perfected an emergency farm labor organization in practically every county of the state. Reports from 60 counties show more than 50,000 workers registered to assist in the harvest.

In the sugar-beet districts of southern Michigan, Colorado and Utah many thousands of workers have been secured to cultivate this crop and thus insure a large supply of sugar.

In a similar way the other states have organized and enlisted labor for the farms and thus meet in a most admirable way the emergency needs.

TOWNFOLK MUST HELP

Though townspeople have already done much in aiding farmers to harvest their crops and to do other necessary work, there is still much to be done this fall if all the crops raised by American farmers are to be saved to supply food and clothing to soldiers and war workers. Harvesting of cotton, cane, rice, late sweet potatoes, and other crops in the South, and corn, late Irish potatoes, fruit and other crops in the North, is yet to be done and will require the co-operation of men, women, boys and girls from cities and towns to help in the fields and orchards. Through the active efforts of many city and town organizations in securing necessary help for farmers, the labor problem has been successfully solved in many communities, but there is even greater need for emergency farm hands in the future. With organizations well started, with a better understanding on the part of urban people as to their responsibilities, with public sentiment favoring the "work or fight" idea, with the classification of nonessential industries, with antiloafing laws in many states forcing able-bodied idlers into productive work, with women doing much of the work previously done by men, with boys effectively organized and volunteering in large numbers to help farmers, farm labor problems, according to the U. S. department of agriculture, are being solved in nearly every part of the United States.

For cabbage worms: Mix one part of fresh Persian insect powder with four parts of air-slaked lime, and dust it on the plants at regular intervals.

TO CONSERVE TIME

Read Advertisements Carefully Before Purchasing.

Only In That Way Can Shoppers Properly Determine What They Want, and Incidentally Help to Defeat the Hun.

(By William H. Rankin, President Wm. H. Rankin Company.)

More new, partially informed or misinformed sales clerks are behind the counters than ever before in history. The war has made great inroads upon the ranks of store clerks.

It now takes longer for you to make up your mind about a purchase because so often the clerk "doesn't know." You must rely more upon a minute inspection of the article and, not being an authority on the subject, often you either buy on chance or defer the purchase. Your time is wasted—and right in these days when so many war duties need every minute you can spare. The clerk's time is occupied in "waiting on you"—mostly "waiting" for you to sell yourself. Then, if you postpone buying, the store suffers a loss and the merchant's expenses are increased. That restricts his ability to buy Liberty bonds and contribute to the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. Knights of Columbus, or Salvation Army.

There is a way for you to avoid this wasting of time—a way which quickly enables you to select meritorious articles regardless of uninformed clerks.

It is: Read advertisements.

Advertising offers you a labor-saving buying guide. It furnishes the merchant and the manufacturer with labor-saving salesmanship. Advertisements are written by people who are thoroughly posted about the advertised articles. One good salesman can, by printing his talk, tell many thousands of people what they wish to know, where he could only inform a few if he had to rely on his voice.

Advertisements are, then, in reality well-informed salespeople talking to you in print. Their language is carefully chosen and condensed—to tell you facts in as few words as possible. Very seldom does anyone advertise unless he has an unusually good product to offer. The cost of advertising automatically bars the unsuccessful.

On the other hand, advertising is the cheapest way a successful product can increase its sale—for thousands are told the story in print where the same expense would tell only a few in person.

So read advertisements that describe things you need or tell you of products you should have. Read advertisements everywhere—in newspapers, magazines, etc.

Make up your mind as to what you want—before you enter the store. Then "green" clerks won't interfere with your selection of dependable articles.

Advertisements post you regarding new and better goods, improvements in methods, etc. They keep you abreast of the times with the least trouble on your part.

"Advertising to Victory" is the slogan you read in the government's extensive advertising.

Advertising has loosed the purse strings of the nation, has sold billions of dollars worth of Liberty bonds and War Savings stamps, has filled the coffers of the Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., and Salvation Army, has sent smileage books to thousands of our boys, has knocked the prop from propaganda inspired by spies and enemy aliens.

Advertising has provided ship workers, has helped to equalize the labor situation.

You have been informed what it is your duty to do by these government advertisements. You have been so informed at a cost which is infinitesimal compared with what would have been the expense had the government been compelled to send representatives to tell you in person all these things.

Victory hinges upon conservation. Conservation of human effort ranks foremost. Because advertising is the conservation way to inform and become informed, it is the victory way. That is why the slogan is "Advertising to Victory."

Read advertisements—today more than ever before.

At Last He Understood.

Sandy had not seen his bosom pal, Mac, for some weeks. This was unusual, as Mac was always dropping around to borrow something. One day, however, he came upon him in the street, and Mac was looking pretty bad.

"Ye don't look verra weel, mon," said Sandy. "What's been the matter wi' ye?"

"Ah've been laid up wi' th' influenza," replied Mac.

"Influenza? What's that?"

"Oh, it's a trouble that mak's ye fed up, and it leaves ye no able to worrk."

"Ay, mon, but that's what's been wrong wi' me for the last twenty years, but I couldna get a richt name for it!"

Bomb-proof Theaters.

One of the most enterprising of Parisian theater managers has opened two cellar theaters, one for each of his two houses. The regular performance begins in the upstairs auditoriums. But if the alarm is sounded for an air raid the audience is invited to adjourn to the cellar, where the play goes on. One of the cellars dates from the days of the revolution and is near the Palais Royal.

WHERE CATS ARE POPULAR

Shops and Restaurants Need Pussy's Assistance to Keep the Rats and Mice Away.

"Cats as commercial assets are seldom heard of," said the Sidewalk Tourist, "but tabby is quite an important fixture with some shopkeepers and restaurant proprietors. Roaming around the city, I've often been impressed by the frequency with which cats appeared in fruiterers' windows, and the other day I entered a shop and under cover of buying an apple asked about the three cats I saw perched in the store.

"The salesman told me that cats were indispensable in his line because of rats and mice. He pointed out that, if one of the rodents took so much as a tiny nip at an apple or pear, the value of the fruit was impaired; for no one would buy an apple that appeared to have been nibbled. He declared that rats or mice would not eat fruit if they could get something else, but when their hunger became great enough they would attack his stock in trade.

"Everyone has noticed the cats that wander with faint 'meows' about restaurants and sit patiently at one's feet waiting for a titbit. These animals aren't there simply to give a 'homey' touch; they are working and waiting for the rats that come for blocks to get at the food. Many restaurants have a galvanized iron sheet tacked in at the junction of their kitchen's floor and walls to prevent the animals from gnawing a way into that department. After the dining places close at night and the chairs are stacked on the tables, the mice or rats come out to forage. It is then that the 'watch cats' are alert hunters.

"Many hotels, especially of small, side-street type, maintain a staff of cats to patrol the corridors. Women guests and the feminine fear of mice keep these retainers on the 'pay roll.' The cat battalions start out after midnight, and many times that doleful wail that strikes your ears is not from the rear yard, as you sleepily fancy, but from the hall outside, where one cat mournfully tells another how poor the hunting is that night. While, of course, it is easy enough to keep cats in apartments, the task of training them to consider a shop or restaurant as a permanent home is more difficult."—New York Times.

Esprit de Corps Works Wonders.

Esprit de corps makes every French soldier feel proud to belong to his unit, for he proclaims that his unit is the best of all in the French armies and that all men of this unit are a fine lot. That esprit de corps will make them perform wonderful achievements in order to outdo neighboring units. But the exaltation of the morale is really the work of the officers; they are in close touch with the men and have their confidence. They will point out to them the reasons why they fight; they will tell them why they must be confident of success; they will give them some indications as to how the next battle will be fought and the reasons why a success is expected—namely, the great superiority in guns, in ammunition, in infantry and in morale that we shall have in this particular sector. Then, as the training goes on, the men will feel and realize their superiority over the enemy.

Another sentiment which must be inculcated into every fighter is a strong hate for the Boche, a strong desire to meet him, to fight him and to beat him.

Frederick the Great.

On the seventeenth of August, 1786, died the most remarkable sovereign Prussia has yet produced. Carlyle describes him as a king without the happenings; no crown but an old military hat and not godlike in physiognomy; close-shut mouth with thin lips, prominent jaws, with a head of long form. His face bore the evidence of many sorrows and much hard labor, and seemed to anticipate nothing but much more to come; a snuffy nose rather flung into the air under its old cocked hat—like an old snuffy lion on the watch! and a pair of eyes as no man, lion or lynx of that century bore. He presented himself in Spartan simplicity. This was Frederick II at home; among the common people who loved him, he was Father Fred—a name of familiarity which had not bred contempt in that instance. This portrait strongly reminds one of Kaiser Wilhelm—because it is so diametrically opposite.

Julius Caesar Timid.

To find Julius Caesar applying for and getting exemption from military service, as he has done at Spalding, is something of a shock. But this is one of the names which prove that names are not everything.

The most famous bearer of it—at a long interval from the great Roman—Julius Caesar, the old all-England cricketer, was of an extraordinarily nervous temperament. His colleague, Calbyn, has told how he was always afraid to sleep by himself at a strange hotel for fear somebody might have died there at some time.

"Julie" was also in nightly terror of fire, would never sleep in a room above the first floor, and often roused Calbyn at night with a cry that the fire had come at last.—London Chronicle.

Hospital Base at New York.

A number of large structures in New York city, including the old Greenhut department store in Sixth avenue, which has 23 acres of floor space, have been taken over by the army medical department for the purpose of creating a hospital base of at least 50,000 beds.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0509

"OVER THE TOP"

By An American Soldier Who Went

Arthur Guy Empey

Machine Gunner, Serving in France

Copyright 1917, by Arthur Guy Empey

CHAPTER XXVI—Continued.

—25—

The presence of the R. A. M. C. men did not seem to disturb the raiders, because many a joke made in an undertone, was passed along the winding column, as to who would be first to take a ride on one of the stretchers. This was generally followed by a wish that, if you were to be the one, the wound would be a "cushy Blighty one."

The stretcher bearers, no doubt, hoping that, if they did have to carry anyone to the rear, he would be small and light. Perhaps they looked at me when wishing, because I could feel an uncomfortable, boring sensation between my shoulder blades. They got their wish all right.

Going up this trench, about every sixty yards or so we would pass a lonely sentry, who in a whisper would wish us "the best o' luck, mates." We would blind at him under our breaths; that Jonah phrase to us sounded very ominous.

Without any casualties the minstrel troop arrived at Suicide ditch, the front-line trench. Previously, a wiring party of the Royal Engineers had cut a lane through our barbed wire to enable us to get out into No Man's Land.

Crawling through this lane, our party of twenty took up an extended-order formation about one yard apart. We had a tap code arranged for our movements while in No Man's Land, because for various reasons it is not safe to carry on a heated conversation a few yards in front of Fritz' lines. The officer was on the right of the line, while I was on the extreme left. Two taps from the right would be passed down the line until I received them, then I would send back one tap. The officer, in receiving this one tap, would know that his order had gone down the whole line, had been understood, and that the party was ready to obey the two-tap signal. Two taps meant that we were to crawl forward slowly—and believe me, very slowly—for five yards, and then halt to await further instructions. Three taps meant, when you arrived within striking distance of the German trench, rush it and inflict as many casualties as possible, secure a couple of prisoners, and then back to your own lines with the speed clutch open. Four taps meant, "I have gotten you into a position from which it is impossible for me to extricate you, so you are on your own."

After getting Tommy into a mess on the western front he is generally told that he is "on his own." This means, "Save your skin in any way possible." Tommy loves to be "on his own" behind the lines, but not during a trench raid.

The star shells from the German lines were falling in front of us, therefore we were safe. After about twenty minutes we entered the star shell zone. A star shell from the German lines fell about five yards in the rear and to the right of me; we hugged the ground and held our breath until it burned out. The smoke from the star shell traveled along the ground and crossed over the middle of our line. Some Tommy sneezed. The smoke had gotten up his nose. We crouched on the ground, cursing the offender under our breath, and waited the volley that generally ensues when the Germans have heard a noise in No Man's Land. Nothing happened. We received two taps and crawled forward slowly for five yards; no doubt the officer believed what Old Pepper had said, "Personally I believe that that part of the German trench is unoccupied." By being careful and remaining motionless when the star shells fell behind us, we reached the German barbed wire without mishap. Then the fun began. I was scared stiff as it is ticklish work cutting your way through wire when about thirty feet in front of you there is a line of Boches looking out into No Man's Land with their rifles lying across the parapet, straining every sense to see or hear what is going on in No Man's Land; because at night, Fritz never knows when a bomb with his name and number on it will come hurtling through the air aimed in the direction of Berlin. The man on the right, one man in the center and myself on the extreme left were equipped with wire cutters. These are insulated with soft rubber not because the German wires are charged with electricity, but to prevent the cutters rubbing against the barbed wire stakes, which are of iron, and making a noise which may warn the inmates of the trench that someone is getting fresh in their front yard. There is only one way to cut a barbed wire without noise and through costly experience Tommy has become an expert in doing this. You must grasp the wire about two inches from the stake in your right hand and cut between the stake and your hand.

If you cut a wire improperly, a loud twang will ring out on the night air like the snapping of a banjo string. Perhaps this noise can be heard only for fifty or seventy-five yards, but in Tommy's mind it makes a loud noise in Berlin.

We had cut a lane about halfway through the wire when, down the center of our line, twang! went an improperly cut wire. We crouched down, cursing under our breath, trembling all over, our knees lacerated from the strands of the cut barbed wire on the ground, waiting for a challenge and the inevitable volley of rifle fire. Nothing happened. I suppose the fellow who cut the barbed wire improperly was the one who had sneezed about half an hour previously. What we wished him would never make his new year a happy one.

The officer, in my opinion, at the noise of the wire should have given the four-tap signal, which meant, "On your own, get back to your trenches as quickly as possible," but again he must have relied on the spiel that Old Pepper had given us in the dugout, "Personally I believe that that part of the German trench is unoccupied." Anyway, we got careless, but not so careless that we sang patriotic songs or made any unnecessary noise.

During the intervals of falling star shells we carried on with our wire cutting until at last we succeeded in getting through the German barbed wire. At this point we were only ten feet from the German trenches. If we were discovered, we were like rats in a trap. Our way was cut off unless we ran along the wire to the narrow lane we had cut through. With our hearts in our mouths we waited for the three-tap signal to rush the German trench. Three taps had gotten about halfway down the line when suddenly about ten to twenty German star shells were fired all along the trench and landed in the barbed wire in rear of us, turning night into day and silhouetting us against the wall of light made by the flares. In the glaring light we were confronted by the following unpleasant scene.

All along the German trench, at about three-foot intervals, stood a big Prussian guardsman with his rifle at the aim, and then we found out why we had not been challenged when the man sneezed and the barbed wire had been improperly cut. About three feet in front of the trench they had constructed a single fence of barbed wire and we knew our chances were one thousand to one of returning alive. We could not rush their trench on account of this second defense. Then in front of me the challenge, "Halt," given in English rang out, and one of the finest things I have ever heard on the western front took place.

In "Blighty."

From the middle of our line some Tommy answered the challenge with, "Aw, go to h—l." It must have been the man who had sneezed or who had improperly cut the barbed wire; he wanted to show Fritz that he could die game. Then came the volley. Machine guns were turned loose and several bombs were thrown in our rear. The Boche in front of me was looking down his sight. This fellow might have, under ordinary circumstances, been handsome, but when I viewed him from the front of his rifle he had the goblins of childhood imagination relegated to the shade.

Then came a flash in front of me, the flare of his rifle—and my head seemed to burst. A bullet had hit me on the left side of my face about half an inch from my eye, smashing the cheek bones. I put my hand to my face and fell forward, biting the ground and kicking my feet. I thought I was dying, but, do you know, my past life did not unfold before me the way it does in novels.

The blood was streaming down my tunic, and the pain was awful. When I came to I said to myself, "Emp, old boy, you belong in Jersey City, and you'd better get back there as quickly as possible."

The bullets were cracking overhead. I crawled a few feet back to the German barbed wire, and in a stooping position, guiding myself by the wire, I went down the line looking for the lane we had cut through. Before reaching this lane I came to a limp form which seemed like a bag of oats hanging over the wire. In the dim light I could see that its hands were blackened, and knew it was the body of one of my mates. I put my hand on his head, the top of which had been blown off by a bomb. My fingers sank into the hole. I pulled my hand back full of blood and brains, then I went crazy with fear and horror and rushed along the wire until I came to our lane. I had just turned down this lane when something inside of me seemed to say, "Look around." I did so; a bullet caught me on the left shoulder. It did not hurt much, just felt as if someone had punched me in the back, and then my left side went numb. My arm was dangling like a rag. I fell forward in a sitting position. But all the fear had left me and I was consumed with rage and cursed the German trenches. With my right hand I felt in my tunic for my first-aid or shell dressing. In feeling over my tunic my hand came in contact with one of the bombs which I carried. Gripping it, I pulled the pin out with my teeth and blindly threw it towards the German trench. I must have been out of my head, because I was only ten feet from the trench and took a chance of being mangled. If the bomb had failed to go into the trench I would have been blown to bits by the explosion of my own bomb.

By the flare of the explosion of the bomb, which luckily landed in their trench, I saw one big Boche throw up his arms and fall backwards, while his rifle flew into the air. Another one wilted and fell forward across the sandbags—then blackness.

Realizing what a foolhardy and risky thing I had done, I was again seized with a horrible fear. I dragged myself to my feet and ran madly down the lane through the barbed wire, stumbling over cut wires, tearing my uniform, and lacerating my hands and legs. Just as I was about to reach No Man's Land again, that same voice seemed to say, "Turn around." I did so, when, "crack," another bullet caught me, this time in the left shoulder about one-half inch away from the other wound. Then it was taps for me. The lights went out.

When I came to I was crouching in a hole in No Man's Land. This shell hole was about three feet deep, so that it brought my head a few inches below the level of the ground. How I reached this hole I will never know. German "typewriters" were traversing back and forth in No Man's Land, the bullets biting the edge of my shell hole and throwing dirt all over me.

Overhead shrapnel was bursting. I could hear the fragments slap the ground. Then I went out once more. When I came to everything was silence and darkness in No Man's Land. I was soaked with blood and a big flap from the wound in my cheek was hanging over my mouth. The blood running from this flap choked me. Out of the corner of my mouth I would try and blow it back, but it would not move. I reached for my shell dressing and tried, with one hand, to bandage my face to prevent the flow. I had an awful horror of bleeding to death and was getting very faint. You would have laughed if you had seen my ludicrous attempts at bandaging with one hand. The pains in my wounded shoulder were awful and I was getting sick at the stomach. I gave up the bandaging stunt as a bad job, and then fainted.

When I came to, hell was let loose. An intense bombardment was on, and on the whole my position was decidedly unpleasant. Then, suddenly, our barrage ceased. The silence almost hurt, but not for long, because Fritz turned loose with shrapnel, machine guns, and rifle fire. Then all along our line came a cheer and our boys came over the top in a charge. The first wave was composed of "Jocks." They were a magnificent sight, kilts, flapping in the wind, bare knees showing, and their bayonets glistening. In the first wave that passed my shell hole, one of the "Jocks," an immense fellow, about six feet two inches in height jumped right over me. On the right and left of me several soldiers in colored kilts were huddled on the ground, then over came the second wave, also "Jocks." One young Scottie, when he came abreast of my shell hole, leaped into the air, his rifle shooting out of his hands, landing about six feet in front of him, bayonet first, and stuck in the ground, the butt trembling. This impressed me greatly.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

U-Boats Have Murdered Thousands.

There is a danger lest familiarity, even with such a monstrous crime as unrestricted U-boat warfare, should breed indifference to its enormity, says an exchange. Therefore, it is well to bear in mind that, except when the attack is made on fighting ships or transports carrying fighting men, the torpedoing of ships and sending men to their death far out at sea, is simply murder, unredeemed by any extenuating circumstances whatsoever. Just how great a bill of indictment is being drawn up by the German admiralty against itself is seen in the statement given by the government leader in the house of commons, that up to February, 1918, the German U-boats had killed 14,120 noncombatant British men, women and children. This, be it noted, is exclusive of the murders done upon peoples of other nationalities.

The Drawback.

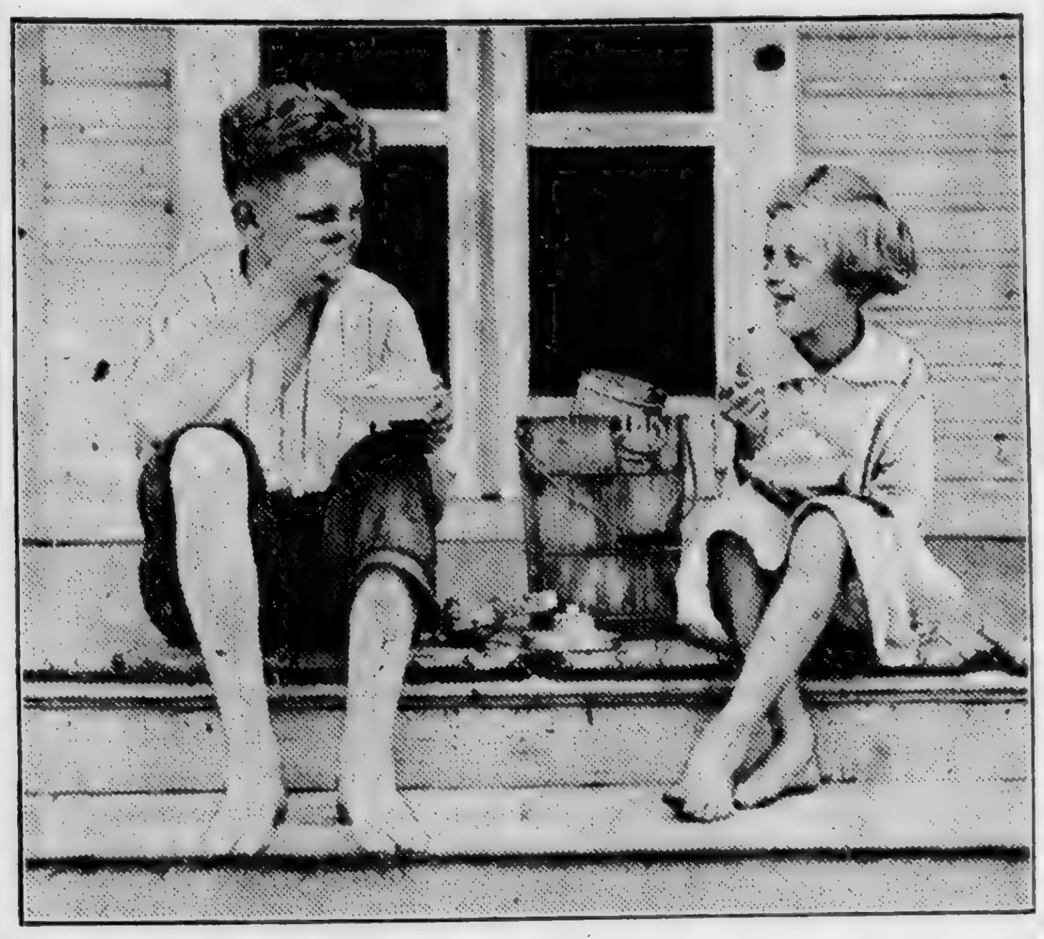
She—His wife made a man of him.

He—Yes, but anybody that looks at him can tell it is a home-made job.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

DO THEY LIKE ICE CREAM? WHY ASK?



This Frozen Dairy Product Is One Way of Using Nature's Chosen Food.

DAIRY PRODUCTS ARE OVERLOOKED

Dairymen May Help to Increase Production by Insuring Higher Quality.

KNOWLEDGE OF MILK VALUE

Average Quantity of Milk Used Each Day Is Hardly More Than Mouthful—Start Well-Organized Campaign of Education.

Take a big tablespoon. Place in it about three-fourths of an ounce of butter and about one-sixth of an ounce of cheese, together with slightly less than half an ounce of ice cream. Swallow the contents of the spoon, and wash them down with milk of a quantity just under a pint. When you have done this you will have partaken of the daily average portion of dairy products to the inhabitants of the United States, based on the production records of 1917.

"It would be laughable were it not so pitiful," writes a dairy specialist of the U. S. department of agriculture. "Something like a dose of medicine to be gulped down in one dose!

"American people do not begin to eat enough dairy products for their own good. Let's get together, produce the very best goods possible and then start such a well-organized campaign of education that all may have the correct knowledge of milk value. Remember, it took the farmers to fire 'the shot heard round the world.'"

Nature's Chosen Food.

Mother Nature gave milk and milk products to the world. She supplies milk to the helpless infant, struggling for strength, and as well to the octogenarian, trying to retain or regain it. The value of milk as a producer of health and strength is recognized everywhere, but despite this the quantity of milk and milk products available daily for the average inhabitant of this country would be far less than enough to meet the specifications for a good square meal with round corners.

Granted that some people drink a quart or two of milk every day, use far more than three-fourths of an ounce of butter on their hot biscuits or toast or sweet potatoes or whatnot, eat twenty or more times as much cheese as is coming to them on the basis of averages, and are regular patrons of the ice cream man. They are hardly to be blamed for that. They like milk and its products, and doubtless they never stop to think that they are eating the shares of other people. And they are to be blamed not at all when it is known that the demand for dairy products in this country has never been so continuously great that there has been a lasting shortage in production.

The department of agriculture is engaged not only in encouraging the production of milk and milk products, but their use. It hopes, through this double-barreled campaign, to save more of the meat needed for shipment overseas, and also to make it sure that at the end of the war dairy production and use of dairy products will be greater in this country than ever before.

Much Skim Milk Saved.

As an instance, take cottage cheese, which provides a valuable use for the millions of gallons of skim milk that in past years have been thrown away or fed to animals. In a few months 41,499 persons have been encouraged to take up the manufacture of cottage cheese, and hundreds of thousands have been convinced that they should eat it, not only because it will save meat, but because their palates, their stomachs and their bodies in general will like it.

Not only increased production, but a large part of the task of increasing consumption, rests with the dairymen themselves, says the department of agriculture. Dairymen are advised to maintain their products at the highest standard of quality, so that first buyers will come again and again and never leave the ranks of milk consumers because of dissatisfaction or distrust; to sell their products at neither less nor more than a fair price, but at prices as low as are consistent with quality and reasonable profits; and to advertise, not only the individual business, but the value of milk and milk products to every person, why dairy products are desirable, why the balanced diet demands the growth-promoting elements in milk, why milk cannot be displaced by substitutes, why milk and its products are worth all they cost.

MILK FOR CHILDREN

Don't skim the milk for children. Clean, rich, fresh milk and plenty of it makes them grow. It gives them rosy cheeks, bright eyes, strong bodies, and good brains. Each child can readily use a quart a day. Refuse the children tea and coffee but always give them milk. Encourage them to drink it. Put it on their cereals. Pour it on the toast. Make it into puddings. Mix it into custards. And stir it into soups. Yes, use milk and use it freely. Economize on other foods, but don't economize on milk.

Pasturing Improves Land.

Growing forage crops and grazing them with hogs are very efficient and economical methods of improving rundown land. This statement is based on the opinions and results of a large number of hog raisers and experiment station workers. Practically all the fertilizing elements of the vegetation produced on the land, except that stored in animal bodies, goes back into the soil in the manure and litter. The loss is more than offset where extra grain is fed to the hogs. The only danger of injury to the soil is in the trampling by the animals on heavy clays when they are wet. Such injury is easily avoided where a permanent sod pasture is available.

As one of the great needs of most soils is more vegetable matter, hog grazing offers an opportunity of restoring the exhausted humus without the expense of growing and using green-manuring crops. Another benefit which is usually overlooked comes from the hogs eating the weeds in the pasture fields. There are many common plants, usually classed as weeds, which hogs relish. They frequently clean these up first when turned into a new field. This not only makes good use of a number of waste plants, but also tends to lessen the trouble from these weeds in other crops.

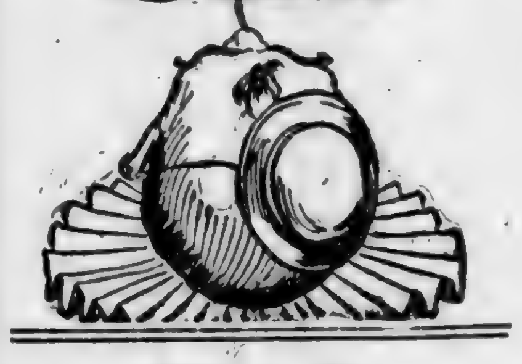
Why Pork Is Important.

Pork finds a ready sale because packers know many ways of placing it on the market in attractive and highly palatable form combined with excellent keeping qualities. There is no other meat from which so many products are manufactured. Nearly 50 per cent of the total value of the meat and meat products slaughtered in the packing houses of the United States is derived from the hog.

Our country leads all others in the production of meat and meat products. Three-fourths of the world's international trade in pork and pork products originates in the United States in normal times, and the war greatly has increased this proportion.

If we expect to continue to provide meat to foreign peoples as well as our own, every farmer must put forth his best effort to produce more hogs. They can be kept profitably upon many farms where they are not found today.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE



Beauty in Play.

Lovely human play is like the play of the sun. There's a worker for you; steady to his time, is set as a strong man to run his course, but also he rejoiceth as a strong man to run his course. See how he plays in the morning, with the mists below, and the clouds above, with a ray here and a flash there, and a shower of jewels everywhere—that's the sun's play; and great human play is like him—all various—all full of light and life, and tender, as the dew of the morning.—Ruskin.

Quick Results.

"How was the bazaar?"

"A great success in one way."

"Yes?"

"The ladies got so disgusted with the poor business done that they went straight home and touched their husbands for the amount they wanted to raise."

Not His Last.

Mrs. Penman—Do you know mother said she cried over your last book.

Mr. Penman—But that isn't going to be my last book.

"Well, I won't tell her."

"Why not?"

"Because probably she'd be sorry she cried."

His Protest.

Flatbush—I hear you have some new neighbors next door.

Bensonhurst—Yes, that's right.

"Spoken to them yet?"

"Well, I just guess I have! They were banging a tin-pan of a piano night and day. You just bet I had to speak to them."

A Successful Dowser.

"I have often heard that water can be located by a stick. Do you believe it?"

"Sure! If the stick is smartly applied to a boy it will make the tears flow."

Celebrities Meet.

"Who are you?"

"I'm the man who said the telephone was a toy. Who are you?"

"I'm the man who said the moving picture craze would die out in six months."

Benefits of Education.

Green—Tell me, honestly, now, have you ever found any practical use for what you learned at college?

Grey—I should say I have. One night when burglars got into my house I scared them off with our college yell.

Magic Required.

Betty—Papa says I shall marry the man I wish to.

Alice (who has had experience)—What will he do—hypnotize the man?

Very Properly.

"How would you manage the march of righteousness?"

"I'd perform it on an upright piano."

Can Afford Economy.

First Waiter—When I first saw that man he couldn't have been making more than $1,000 a year. I'll bet it's $10,000 now.

Second Waiter—Why, he used to give a 50-cent tip, but now he only gives me a dime.—The Lamb.

Should Be Grateful.

Reggie—I've got a beastly cold in my head.

Miss Keen—Never mind, Reggie. Don't grumble. Even if it is only a cold, it's something.

Tell by the Smell.

"Have you any onion note-paper?" asked the sweet young thing in the stationery store.

"Well, we have some that's scented, if that's what you mean, miss," was the clerk's suggestive reply.

Pie for the Judges.

"Now congress wants to pass a law forbidding federal judges to declare laws passed by congress unconstitutional."

"You can see what that law has ahead of it."

Unfavorably.

"What were those lady jurors whispering about?" asked the judge somewhat peevishly of the court bailiff.

"Nothing, sir."

"But they were. What was it?"

"Well, your honor, they were commenting on the hang of your gown."

Food for Thought.

Mr. Matter—You ought to see the play I was telling you about. It certainly made me think.

Miss Mind—One of those miracle plays, I suppose?

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0510

Headache

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN suffer miserably from periodic attacks of headache, never dreaming that a permanent cure may be had. Headache nearly always results from some disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will correct these disorders and there will be no more headache. Many have been permanently cured by Chamberlain's Tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

HERE AND THERE

See those new Patriotic and Birthday cards at NEWS Office.

Mrs. J. P. Buckingham spent Thursday with her husband at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway spent Tuesday at Auburn, as did Mrs. Jesse Loftus.

Mrs. Ella Patterson and Miss Margaret Turtison spent Friday at Hicksville.

Mesdames H. C. Hathaway and M. Barney were Auburn visitors, Thursday.

C. A. Patterson and wife, of Fort Wayne, were over-Sunday guests of St. Joe friends.

Mrs. S. D. Gee spent from Thursday morning until Friday morning visiting relatives at Auburn.

W. H. Randall and wife and Ed. Miser and family attended the Red Cross sale at Waterloo, Saturday.

William Randall and wife were called to Wolf Lake on Wednesday by the illness of the latter's mother, Mrs. Mary Pinchon.

C. R. Brunson, wife and two daughters were called here on Saturday from their home at Willard, Ohio, by the death of Mrs. Brunson's grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Dean. They returned home Monday. Frank Dean, wife and daughter accompanied them.

As we go to press word was received that Mrs. Cordelia Yarnelle is lying at the point of death at the home of her daugater, Mrs. Erick, at Ft. Wayne. Dr. Shook was summoned and several of her neighbors accompanied him.

About twenty-five ladies of the Christian church spent Wednesday evening with Mrs. W. L. Wallace, the gathering being in the nature of farewell visit, as the Wallace family leaves Saturday for the West. They will spend a year visiting relatives in Kansas, Wyoming, Nevada and Washington.

Hero's Day Sunday

In accordance with the proclamation of James P. Goodrich, Governor of the State of Indiana, I am calling upon the people of DeKalb County to observe September 22, as 'Hero's Day.' The proclamation is as follows: "Let the day be given over to solemn song and services and I urge that our citizens, irrespective of religious creed, join in doing homage to our men who sleep in the fields of France and Flanders."

The churches of the county are urged to hold these solemn services upon this day. There will be a county-wide meeting held at Auburn, Court Theatre, 2 P. M., on September 22. The people generally are invited to attend these memorial services. Prominent speakers are already engaged.

As County Fuel Administrator, I hereby lift the gasoleneless day for all those that desire to attend these services.

J. Y. W. McClellan, Ch'm.

Red Cross Department

The following knitted garments were shipped on Tuesday from the St. Joe branch of the Red Cross: Fifteen sweaters, three helmets and fifty-three pairs of socks. These articles were knitted by ladies of Newville and St. Joe since July 12.

For the benefit of those who are inquiring about work, it should be said that there is no material in the county for distribution; but it is expected very soon. So watch for announcement of the opening of the work room.

BUY
Men's Wear
At the store that makes a Specialty of Men's wear

We spend all our time Getting and Selling the proper kind of Merchandise that the MEN and YOUNG MEN LIKE.

WM. KNISELY & SON.
Butler, Indiana
CLOTHING FURNISHINGS SHOES.

Sane American Protests

A protesting voice has been raised right here in old St. Joe and is echoed in the "Private Opinions Publicly Expressed" column of the Fort Wayne News, wherein a hypercritical, over sensitive fellow citizen, writing under the pseudonym of "A Sane American" in an article headed "A Protest," fires a charge of verbal nonsense at the mock patriotism of the nation.

The protest in question was called forth by a previous article in the News, in which it was stated that "the person who refused to stand during the rendering of 'The Star Spangled Banner' could easily be handled by placing him in a detention camp, which should be done.' The indignation of "A Sane American" is aroused at the thought of compelling a man to do homage to the flag.

He says: "There is no law to compel a person to arise or in any other way to assume a worshipful attitude toward our country's emblem; if there were such a law, it would be tyrannical and representative of the very antithesis of all the flag stands for, viz: freedom of thought and action as long as the same does not interfere with the rights of another." These two assertions read nicely, but both are lacking in one essential detail: they are not true, and an argument can not be based on a false hypothesie and have any weight. In the first place, no one assumes a worshipful attitude toward the flag. The attitude is a reverential one, and there is a vast difference between the two terms. In the second place, such a law as "A Sane American" refers to would not be tyrannical. Uncle Sam steps into the home and says to the mother, "I want your son," and she must bow her head in submission. Uncle Sam taps the man on the shoulder and says, "Come, my son, you must go down into the very Valley of the Shadow of Death for your country's sake," and there is no alternative but for the individual to don the khaki and march away under the folds of "Old Glory." Uncle Sam lays his hand on the pocket book of the citizen and says, "Come across—I want your money," and there is no denying the command. Ordinarily, such acts would be regarded as tyranny and would be resisted, but today they are not: for, in a time of great national stress, the government is given enlarged power. The life, the liberty and the wealth of the citizen—yes, all he possesses or holds dear—can be commandered by Uncle Sam and is given as a patriotic duty; but, in the opinion of "A Sane American," the possessor of all this power can not commander simple respect for the councry's flag or her patriotic airs without becoming a tyrant.

The flag takes on an added significance today: it symbolizes not only all that our country is, but all that she is doing. It has not become a fetich before which men fall down and worship, but it has become something for them to look up to and reverence. Especially is this true just now: the country is making every sacrifice and bending every energy to do her part in the greatest crisis in human history. In a time like this, when the land is united in a stupendous, purposeful, patriotic effort, every head should be uncovered before the flag; and when national airs, which are but patriotism set to music, are played, everyone should rise. How a true American can do otherwise is past comprehension. The people have adopted this means of attesting to their loyalty. The person who does not do likewise puts himself under suspicion of being disloyal—rightly, too. This is not time to quibble over methods of showing loyalty.

"A Sane American" further says: "This war has brought forth a horde of narrow-minded, tyrannical bigots who seem obsessed with the idea that patriotism began with their entrance into the world, and will be forever snuffed out with their departure from it. * * Too many persons seem to think patriotism can be measured only by noise, vulgar, ostentations display of yards of bunting, lapels loaded with divers buttons, windows displaying posters announcing this family is 100 per cent. efficient. Phariseeism run mad!"

True, in part; but mostly wrong. Every country has men that are intolerant and those that abuse official power; but they are a negligible minority, and the ones that are doing their duty, either in civil or official life, are not to be criticized because of the shortcomings of others. "A Sane American" seeks, by inference, to discredit all who have the war in charge. If such were not his purpose, his assertions about a "horde of narrow-minded, tyrannical bigots who have been placed in semi-official positions" is without force. This is not the time for specious pleas of that character. They can do no good and they may do harm, for there is a class of persons who are too prone to believe the worst about others; and nothing should be said or written that may create dissention. Assail the individual wrong doer, but be chary about imputing wrong doing to any class, particularly officials, is a safe rule.

That there are persons who seem "obsessed with the idea that patriotism began with their entrance into the world and will be forever snuffed out with their departure from it" is most true. There are Chauvins—loud-mouthed, boasting patriots—in every community; but they succeed only in making themselves ridiculous. There is nothing Pharisaical about them, however. The Pharisee thanked God he was not like other men; and were he alive today, he might be a sane American and not uncover before the flag nor rise when national airs are sung just to continue in his role of being unlike other men.

The most unwarranted part of "Sane American's" protest is that wherein he charges that "too many people seem to think patriotism can be measured only by noise, vulgar, ostentious display of yards of bunting, lapels loaded with divers buttons, windows displaying posters announcing this family is 100 per cent. efficient." "Sane American" is hereby reminded that what he terms "vulgar, ostentatious display" is practiced by at least four-fifths of the people and that an overwhelming majority of the other one-fifth do not condemn it. Hence, the protesting gentleman, in his efforts to prove himself sane, sets himself up upon a lofty pedestal and from the heights of superior wisdom to which he has elevated himself (in his mind) sarcastically criticizes the vulgar herd beneath him. This assumption of superiority on the part of "Sane American" makes him appear ridiculous and leads to the supposition that his mental pendulum is not swinging rhythmically.

There is no denying that a few vain persons make a foolish display of their part in the war; but that is no proof that to be a sane American one must not employ these evidences of patriotism. Service flags, Red Cross badges, etc., play a weighty part in this war. They tell of sacrifices made and of duty done, and act as a stimulus to further effort. They tell how unitedly the American nation stands behind the government. They silently but eloquently preach patriotism and shame the contemptible slacker. They tell of the country's indomitable will and unconquerable courage. One feels impressed by these emblems of loyalty upon going through the country and feels like taking off his hat to the American people.

Say, "Sane American," when Paul Perry comes home, will you consider the Croix de Guerre on his breast "vulgar, ostentatious display?"

We say: whoop 'er up when there is good news from the front; multiply service flags, lapel buttons and Red Cross badges and lengthen the yards of bunting; uncover before "Old Glory" and stand when national airs are played. Be an American!

Don't Be Careless About Your Health

When the liver is not acting properly, the system becomes full of poisonous accumulations, the kidneys and intestinal glands become sluggish and a general debilitated and nervous condition exists. The blood becomes impure, the circulation sluggish and the brain clouded.

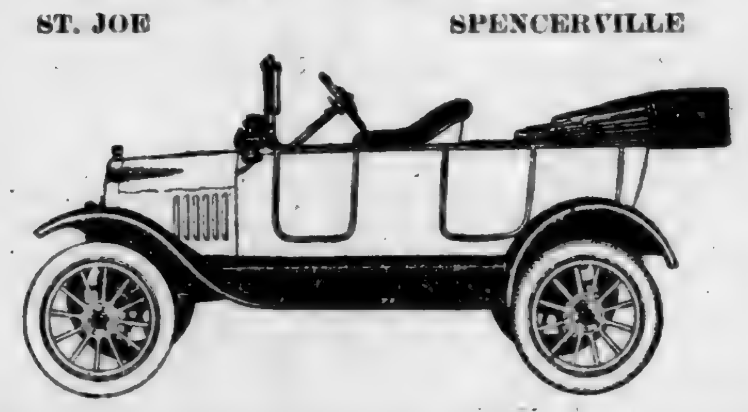
A neglected liver causes chronic constipation, jaundice, gall stones and very often cancer.

Glando Tonic acts upon the whole glandular system, of which the liver is the chief gland. If this glandular system is in good working condition, disease has no chance to fasten itself upon you. The best time to doctor is when you begin to feel tired, achy or languid.

To neglect one's self when that tired, draggy feeling is present may mean weeks of severe illness. Let Glando Tonic remove that feeling and give you life and health.

Mothers who have nursing babies should use Glando Tonic to keep their bowels well regulated and their system in good condition. This will regulate baby's bowels and help it to withstand the heat and germs of summer.

Glando Tonic can be obtained of druggists or direct from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.



Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain; and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necesrities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE

Germany Tired

Twenty Divisions Disbanded; Women and Boys Called Into Auxiliary Service.

With the American Army on the Lorraine Front, Monday, Sept. 16. —(By the Associated Press.)—One hundred and eight German infantry battalions, equivalent to twenty divisions have been disbanded, it is learned in order to fill the gap made by the past year's fighting. Women and boys are being called to the auxiliary service to replace men. Five thousand women have already been mobilized for this purpose and boys of fourteen are being utilized. Captured officers say that Germany is very tired of the war and no longer hopes to do more than keep what is its own.

Pythian Sisters Meet

The DeKalb County Pythian Sisters association was entertained last Thursday by the St. Joe lodge. In spite of the rainy weather, about 100 were present.

At the noon hour, a bountiful pot luck dinner was served; and, at 1:30 p. m., the temple opened in ritualistic form, with Mrs. Schultless, of Garrett, county president, presiding and Azalea temple, No. 152, of St. Joe, occupying the various chairs.

Welcome Address.—Mrs. Flossie Widney.
Response.—Mrs. Fay Tyson, of Butler, grand outer guard.
Butler temple exemplified the degree work on Mrs. Esther Bowman; and also gave their installation drill, by request.
Reading.—Mrs. McNabb, of Newville.

The day proved a pleasant and profitable one for all attendants. The next meeting will be held at Waterloo in December.

The Complexion Is the Health Barometer

A good complexion can not be obtained when the liver, kidneys or bowels are inactive. Bilious or poisonous matter within the body causes the sallow, muddy or splotchy complexion. Why drag around looking tired, old and dejected when Glando Tonic will put you right? It will remove the poisons and give you new life and strength. Glando Tonic acts directly on the liver, kidneys and small glands of the stomach and bowels. Its great popularity is due to the wonderful cures which have been obtained through its use. Sold by druggists or may be secured by sending direct to the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Jeighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale: Jersey cow and two heifer calves. John Knight.

Strayed.--Red brood sow; weight, about 250 pounds. Finder phone to Samuel Fellers, No. 9-21, Rt. 2, St. Joe.

Found: Log chain, east of the Thomas White corners. Call on Geo. Swineford.

FOR SALE:-First class 6-yr. old horse or mare, and 3-yr. old mare colt. Well broke, sure good ones. FRANK MILLIMAN.

FOR SALE or TRADE:-A good heavy work horse, 5-yrs. old. CHAS. KOCH.

FOR SALE:-Young Holstein Jersey Cow. CARL JOHNSON.

For Sale;— New 6-horse gasoline engine, with coal oil attachment. W. L. Wallace.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0511

SATURDAY SPECIALS

We are inaugurating a new advertising stunt, that, if taken advantage of by the people who read this ad, they will make a saving of Real Money each week. We give you special One-Day prices on good stock that you find on our shelves at all times—Not old goods at all. If you are not satisfied with your bargains, you know we are here to back them up.

For Next Saturdar Only:

Search Light and Saginaw Tip Matches 500 in a box—Limit 2 boxes, each	5c.
Superior Mustard Dressing	9c.
Red Cut Maccaroni	14c.
Our Pride Coffee, 25c. value at	20c.
Berdan Coffee	22c
Mascot Soap—6 bars	25c
$1.25 Waists	89c

BEAMS & COMPANY

SPENCERVILLE

Clarence Connor and wife, west of town, are the parents of a brand new son.

Walter and Glenn Lake, of Fort Wayne, were guests on Sunday of John Benninghoff and wife.

C. N. Saylor and wife have returned from Liberty Center, where they were called by the death of the latter's sister, Mrs. A. J. Minich.

William Allen and sons, Jack and Vaughn, spent several days last week at Fort Wayne, the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Jason Kees, and husband.

Mrs. John Hobaugh has received a card from her nephew, Owen Steward, youngest son of the late John Steward, stating that he has safely arrived in France.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to

Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Levi Mumma left Friday for Springfield, Ohio, where he will enroll among the army students of Wittenberg college.

Mrs. Pernetta Steward returned home on Tuesday, after spending several weeks at the home of Roscoe Walters and wife, of Auburn.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the M. E church was entertained Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dora Green.

Joel Bets and wife entertained at dinner on Sunday the latter's brother, Charles Boston, of near Grabill; and, on Monday, Walter Perkins, wife and son, Lloyd, of near Harlan, and Edward Billman and wife were guests at the same place.

The chairman of Spencer township, Mrs. Claude Hafner, has announced that there will be a meeting of the U. S. Food club at the Lutheran church Saturday evening. At the meeting, it will be explained why food clubs are necessary.

Miss Beatrice Wasson very pleasantly entertained the Pansy club in honor of her twelfth birthday anniversary. Misses Anna and Venus Beerbower, Mary Smith, Nellie Berry and Florence Gratz were present as visitors of the club.

Miss Mabel Trimble planned a pleasant surprise for her classmates when the Sunshine class of the M. E. church met at her home on Saturday afternoon. After the program, she invited all to the woods, where they enjoyed a wiener, marsh mallow and apple roast.

The Queen Esther Missionary society of the M. E. church, under the direction of Mrs. James Vallieu, served a penny social at basketball hall from 5 till 9 p. m. Saturday. The sum of $21.00 was cleared, which will be used to help pay for a scholarship for some poor child.

POST CARDS

are now on dispay at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratuation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent folders.

St JOE NEWS
FRED R LEIGHTY PUB.
St. Joe Ind

PUBLIC SALE

The undersigned will sell at public auction at his residence, located 2½ miles east of Spencerville and 1 mile south and half-mile west of Coburntown, beginning at 10 a. m. on

Wed'y. Sept. 25

HORSES.—Queen, gray mare, 9 years old; weight, 1,500. Goldie, gray mare, 8 years old; weight, 1,500. This pair of mares match and they are extra good ones. Belle, gray mare, 3 years old; weight, 1,200. Gray colt 2 years old.

CATTLE.—Black Jersey 5 years old; will be fresh Dec. 1. Black half blood Jersey 3 years old; will be fresh Oct. 20. Red Durham cow 5 years old; will be fresh Jan. 15. Jersey cow 3 years old; will be fresh Nov. 15. Durham cow 2 years old; will be fresh Nov. 15. Red Durham cow 2 years old; will be fresh Nov. 20. Two Durham heifers 16 months old, 2 Holstein heifers 16 months old, Durham steer 10 months old.

HOGS.—Duroc sow, will farrow Oct. 4. Spotted Poland sow, will farrow Nov. 20. Thoroughbred Spotted Poland boar. Fourteen head shotes; weight, 80 pounds each.

POULTRY.—Three geese, 2 turkey hens.

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.—McCormick binder, McCormick mower, Keystone hay loader, Osborne side delivery rake, International corn planter, Black Hawk corn planter, Tiger corn cultivator, Ohio corn cultivator, Superior phosphate drill, Oliver riding plow, Oliver walking plow, spring-tooth harrow, spike-tooth drag, Bryan disc harrow, double shovel plow, Turnbull wagon, Tiffin 3½-inch wagon, 2 wagon boxes, 2 hay ladders, hog rack, pair bob-sleds, single buggy, pipe roller, set dump boards, corn sheller, grindstone, set log bunks, hand sled, 4 log chains, buggy pole, 2 bee hives, 3 3-horse eveners, cream separator, small tools and hundreds of other articles. These tools are in good condition.

HARNESS.—Set nearly new double harness, set double harness, set single harness, 4 collars, pair fly nets, pair oil blankets, set sleigh bells.

Eighteen tons good mixed hay.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS.—Sanitary couch, stand, 20 yards rag carpet, clothes rack, 4 chairs and many other articles.

McClellan Hart

Get those big School Talbets at The News Office.

Miss Arminta Steward is at Auburn visiting her sister, Mrs. Jennie Walters, and family.

Walter Silberg, of Garrett, was an over-Sunday guest of his mother, Mrs. Mary J. Silberg.

Abe Furnish and wife, of Fort Wayne, were over-Sunday visitors at the Frank House home.

Vern Wilmot and family were Saturday and Sunday guests of Douglas Jackson and wife, of Peru.

Miss Fern Walter will not be able at present to take charge of her school at LaPorte on account of the illness of her parents, Henry Walter and wife.

The Lutheran Christian Endeavorers will meet Saturday afternoon at the church basement with the potatoes they raised this summer for the support of a missionary in India.

Mrs. John McGilvary, of Missouri, is visiting her sisters, Mrs. John Hobaugh and Miss Lina Rummel; and, on Sunday, all spent the day at the home of their nephew, John Steward, and family.

Rolla Moffet and wife, of Auburn, and Mrs. Rena (Nelson) Bell, of Florida, were Monday dinner guests at the Jacob Baltz home; on Sunday, they entertained at dinner William Sommers and wife, of Coburntown.

United in Marriage

Fred High, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles High, and Miss Golden Murray, youngest daughter of Mrs. Pauline Murray, were united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage by Rev. Glenn Bryan at 7 p. m. Sunday. The young people are both members of the M. E. church. The bride has been postmistress at this place for several years, and the groom has charge of the High restaurant. They will make their home with the bride's mother for a time.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
C. O. JOHNSON, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 8:00 P. M.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00. Christian Church.
Concord–Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10.45 A. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:–Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching 10:30 A. M.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

PRINTING

Good Printing Is the Dress of Business. That Is the Kind We Do.

Let Us Show You

COBURN'S CORNERS

Mrs. Vernie Wilmot and daughter, Minnie, and son, George, of Spencerville, spent Thursday at the W. P. Coburn home.

Mrs. William Maxwell and son, Willard, visited at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Ben Soule, near Spencerville, Sunday.

Claud Laub and family were Sunday guests at the Fred Hart home.

Arthur Pinkerton and family, of Bryan, Ohio, visited Clyde Hart and wife, Sunday. Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Pinkerton are sisters.

C. R. Headley and family will move to Spencerville in the near future. Mr. Beams has employment with J. Beams at that place.

Laney Gee and wife are entertaining guests from Virginia. J. L. Rhodenbaugh and wife, of St. Joe, were Sunday visitors.

L. A. Mercer, wife and baby spent Saturday night and Sunday with T. H. Shull.

Misses Rose and Elva Wilmot, of Springfield Center, visited a few days with their grandparents, Ella Wilmot and wife.

M. B. Shull and wife were Sunday afternoon guests of the latter's parents, E. F. Hurni and wife, of the state line.

Miss Gladys Place ate Sunday dinner with her sister, Mrs. O. L. Dermott.

Obituary

Rebecca (Thornburg) Dean was born in Holmes county, Ohio, on March 26, 1827; and passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Whitehurst, of Newville township, Sept. 13, 1918, aged 91 years, 6 months and 7 days.

In 1844, she was united in marriage to Walker Dean. This union was blessed with eight children, of whom four survive, as follows: Mrs. Jennie Bohles, of Garrett; Naaman Dean, of Butler; Mrs. Mary Whitehurst, of Newville; Clyde Dean, of Three Rivers, Mich. Marvin, Thomas, John and Ida, with the husband, preceded her to the realms of eternity.

At the age of 18, she gave her heart to God and became a member of the Methodist church. Later, she united with the Church of Christ under the ministry of L. L. Carpenter and lived a consistent Christian life.

"Grandma Dean," as she was familiarly called, was loved, honored and respected by kindred and neighbors. She was always cheerful and every ready to give a kind word or extend a helping hand. Her life was beautiful and her life like the garnering of a sheaf of ripened grain at harvest time. Deceased spent the greater part of her life at Newville, the last five years with her daughter, Mrs. Whitehurst.

Funeral services were held at the Christian church, Newville, at 2 p. m. Sunday, conducted by Rev. Dunnoms. Interment was at the Newville cemetery.

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

FALL FOOTWEAR

We have received several new styles of Men's and Women's Fall Shoes, and would advise our customers to get in early. Shoes are going to be hard to get in the styles you want.

DON'T PUT IT OFF!

Women's Fine Kid in brown or grey Goodyear welts	$8.00
Same in black, $7 and	7.50
Dress Shoes—Martha Washington, $5.50 to	8.00
Men's Fine Kangaroo, Vici Kid or Calfskin Shoes, — Thompson Bros. make, $6 to	9.00
Others down to	3.00

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.
BEN LEHMAN PROP

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0512

The KITCHEN CABINET

Stoppage of waste and taking up of slack will yield a large part of our requirements and tone up both the individual and the business machine for the strain of the post-war period.—G. H. Lorimer.

SHORT-CUTS FOR HOUSEWIFE.

National War Garden Commission

IN THESE times that are trying the souls of the mothers of our men, we need to consider the value of woman-power in regard to the boys overseas. When they come back, as we trust most of them will, they want to find their mothers, wives and sweethearts as well and happy as they used to be. The old saying that "worry will kill a cat" should have special force for us now, when it seems next to impossible not to worry. So since we realize its power to destroy life, even the nine lives of a cat, let us have done with worry. A life full of work will have no room for worry. The best short-cut to efficiency and accomplishment is the elimination of worry.

We are asked not to waste, so let us conserve our woman power in every possible way.

We are leaving undone in our homes today many things which we have been trained never to slight. This need not mean that our homes are less comfortable, that our families are not well-fed and cared for, but that we are learning out of this war of fearful cost, the true value of things. Housekeeping is a science, business and a profession and in the management of a home the greatest efficiency is the result of scientific work. The manufacturer is constantly on the watch to see where time, material and labor may be saved. Heretofore the first two have been regarded by the housewife as worth noticing, but the last, never.

Watch yourself when working. Do you make three motions when one will do? Saving steps, soiling dishes, clothes and floors will go a long way in the saving of labor.

The arrangement of the utensils used in cooking within the easiest possible reach, the saving of steps by careful placing of sink, table and range, are all important. With a little thought and planning many short-cuts will be found.

A good-sized market basket is a helpful servant in the home. Take it upstairs, down cellar or to the garden to save many trips. The use of a tray in setting the table and removing the food is a great saving of time as well as labor.

A skilled worker can and does accomplish more in a given time than one who puts no thought into her work.

Every atom gives resistance not the universe can break;
Each rose petal holds perfection angel artists could not make.
Under every power and passion stirs the element divine,
If I grasp the moment's meaning, all eternity is mine.
—Theodore C. Williams.

FOR THE FRUIT CELLAR.

National War Garden Commission

PEARS are so much more delicious canned in the following manner than in the usual way: Pare and cut in halves or quarters as desired, put them with half their weight in sugar in a stone crock and let stand over night. In the morning cook slowly on the back part of the stove until perfectly done, then can as usual. The fruit has a much superior flavor canned this way, than when canned quickly.

Quinces come late in the season when more attention can be given to them. Grate and cook with equal parts of sugar, letting the mixture stand in the sugar over night before cooking. This is quince honey, nice as a garnish for ice creams and puddings.

Make a list of all canned fruit and vegetables as well as pickles, preserves and relishes that are put into the store room and cellar. A glance at the list will tell you what there is to choose and each is checked off as used. Have everything labeled, as it saves disappointment, for even good eyes are sometimes deceived in canned goods.

If one makes his own sausage at home, roll it in corn husks and smoke it. You will find it a most delicious and unusual flavor. Save nice perfect husks for this purpose and make the sausage roll the size of the ear that came out of the husk. Tie the ends with strips of husk and when smoked, pack in layers in a box. Keep cool and the sausage will keep well.

English Chutney Sauce.—This sauce requires no cooking but should be kept where it can be stirred daily for ten days before putting away. Chop one pound of apples, three-fourths of a pound of raisins, one dozen ripe tomatoes, two red peppers, six small onions and one-fourth of a cupful of mint leaves. Add an ounce of white mustard seed, four ounces of salt, one pound of sugar and one and a half quarts of vinegar, boiled and cooled. Mix and put into a crock.

In everything you do, aim to excel; for what is worth doing, is worth doing well.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR BUSY HOUSEWIVES.

National War Garden Commission

REMEMBER to wipe the top of milk bottle before opening it; hands far from clean may have handled it.

Lace curtains may be quickly mended by dipping a piece of lace to match in cold starch and ironing the piece over the hole; trim, and the place will never be noticed.

When making pastry handle with as little moisture as possible; the more crumbly it is the more flaky it will be.

When whole wheat right from the granary can be bought for a few cents a pound, why buy cereals that are no better and cost five or six times as much? If cooked until soft after soaking, the grains crack, making an ideal food for growing children. It as all other breakfast foods is best served with little or no sugar. Wheat needs long, slow cooking; the fireless cooker is the finest place to cook whole wheat.

A most wholesome dish to be served either for supper or luncheon is potatoes and bacon. Put a layer of thinly sliced potatoes in a buttered baking dish and pour over a thin white sauce or simply seasoned milk, with a few bits of butter. Lay over the top a few slices of bacon, set into the oven and bake until the potatoes are tender.

A most delicious tapioca pudding is made with canned pears. A few prunes or cherries are also good.

After preparing celery for the table save the tops and small bits for soup.

A severe cold on the chest may be relieved by a good greasing with lard and turpentine; one part of turpentine to two parts lard.

A glass of hot milk is a good sleep producer. Take it just before retiring.

When making French dressing a small piece of ice in the salad bowl will blend and thicken the dressing quickly.

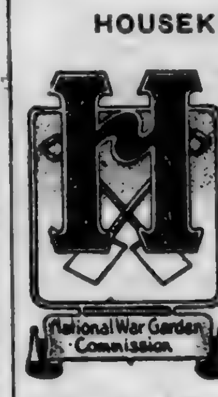
Do not leave meat in its wrapping paper; the meat is not only flavored by the paper but the juices are absorbed by it.

While carrots are young and tender make some marmalade. Take 1½ pounds of well-washed carrots, the same amount of sugar and two lemons cut fine, excluding the seeds. Chop the carrots and simmer until tender, then add the sugar and cook until thick. Seal in jelly glasses.

How much there is in this world that I do not want.—Socrates.

The great difficulty is always to open people's eyes; to touch their feelings and break their hearts is easy; the difficult thing is to break their heads.—Ruskin.

HOUSEKEEPING HELPS.



National War Garden Commission

HAVE plain woodwork free from creases and places where dust will find a place to lodge, if you have the choosing.

Woodwork finished with a good varnish may be easily cleaned with a dump cloth. Varnish the cupboard shelves and they will clean as easily as tiling.

Have the work table covered with zinc and save scrubbing tables.

Keep plenty of soft paper to wipe out greasy dishes, pots and pans, thus saving dish washing.

Keep a bundle of newspapers handy on which to set soiled or smoky pans.

Plan the meals a week ahead and save food and friction.

Rubber heels are a great saving of both floors and nerves. Yours and others.

Learn to close doors, screens and drawers quietly. The nervous system pays toll alike for jarring sounds and sights.

A dust mop or two will take the place of a broom and remove dust without stirring it up.

Small rugs are best for sleeping rooms, as they may be taken outside to clean.

Rocking chairs take up much room, mar the woodwork and are found in too great numbers in most homes.

Dust gathers in tufted furniture, it is hard to keep clean and in consequence is not as popular as formerly.

A window shade fastened to a row of open shelves make a fine curtain to keep out the dust.

Aside from ventilation, windows are made to look out of and for light to come in. Why load them with heavy dust catching hangings?

Much of the so-called decorative china on plate rails catching dust would look better and save work if kept in a closed closet.

The wall decorations in the dining room are usually considered sufficient.

Fold a heavy rug for a mat to stand on when ironing, it is a great relief to tired feet.

Nellie Maxwell

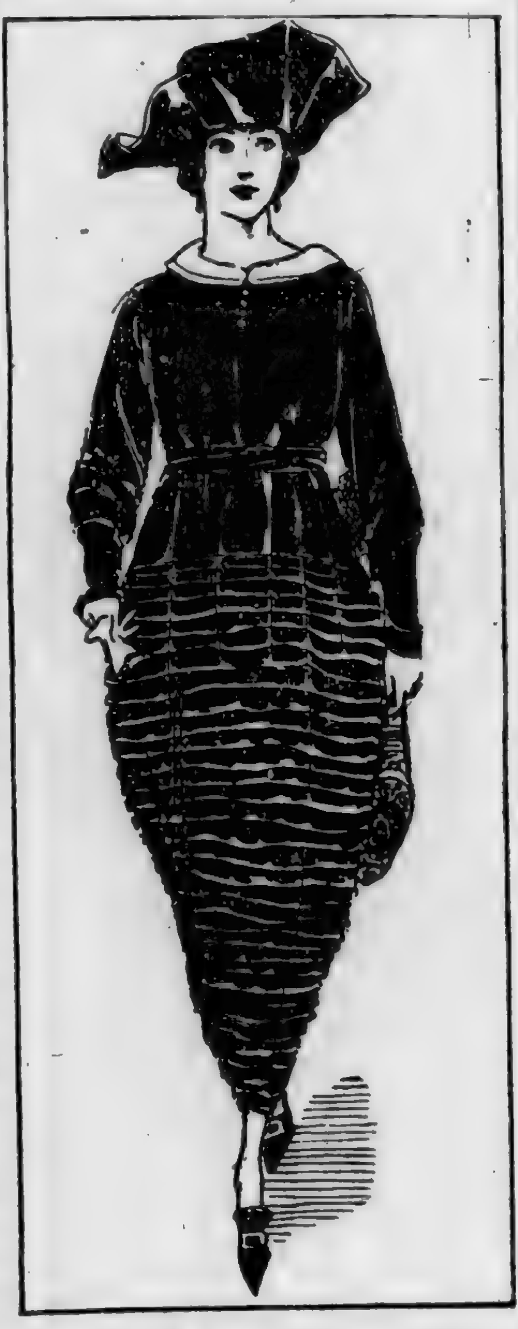
LONG SKIRT IS IN LIMELIGHT

New York.—War necessity everywhere! Ingenuity expressed, therefore, in a thousand ways. Turning and twisting to find out how good results can be obtained through uncharted channels is the effort of each individual, the mass of shops, and the host of designers.

This is the summing up, writes a fashion authority, of the entire spirit as expressed in women's apparel. It is not a continental spirit; it is a world spirit. It pervades lands where fighting is unknown; it rules in homes from which no fighters have gone and in which there has always been a serene confidence in the ability to arrive at a comfortable conclusion.

The old, easy method of dressing has vanished. Perhaps it is gone forever. It is a temptation to dip back into the past and recount the episodic adventures and experiences through which women have gone when great wars devastated a country and used up its raw materials.

It is not only the constitution that follows the flag; it is women's apparel that follows it for years after the flag has ceased to be a symbol of battle and remains only a symbol of patriotism. All the great wars have definitely changed the course of women's clothes, although they may not have left upon them the lasting impressions that wars have left upon men's clothes. The male portion of the world rarely thinks of this fact—that every garment he wears is almost directly responsible to some explosion of mankind.



The sketch shows a gown of heavy black satin, with a barrel effect obtained in the skirt through width at the hips and narrowness at the hem, and the whole surface laid with flat tucks. The tight bodice finishes at the normal waistline with a narrow cravat belt. There is a fence collar of white organdie. The fluted hat is of black satin with a crown of ermine.

Reverting to Pioneer Days.

It is no simple thing to saunter down Main street today, drop into a shop and buy any kind of galloon, braid, embroidery or other ornamentation for gowns. One finds that manufactured articles are becoming more and more limited.

Once upon a time this world, which dearly loves a phrase, twisted and turned the words "irreducible minimum" in fantastic ways to suit a variety of meanings. This phrase was a sister in popularity to President Cleveland's famous "innocuous desuetude." Today the expression that has superseded all others is "the elimination of nonessentials," and there are thousands of women who will tell you that that means both "irreducible minimum" and "innocuous desuetude." It is well for an extravagant continent that the irreducible minimum can be arrived at through compulsion.

Trimmed With Bits of Themselves.

A report of what women have done in devising ornamentation for their clothes would read as an interesting bit of war history. Out from the depths have come some of the ornamentations. The designers, however, have found that the best way to trim a gown is with itself. There is very little danger then of its becoming a patchwork quilt.

Tucks have returned, therefore. They have been launched on the new auutmn gowns as something of a novelty. They are not permitted in woolen clothes, because the government asks us to omit every inch of superfluous worsted material, but we are omitting it by the yardage instead of the inch, and are finding ourselves quite content with composition gowns that have only a dash of wool in them, and often none at all. A woman depends on furs, capes and top coats for warmth.

As for the materials which are available today, they may last through the winter. There is much talk of wearing satin, taffeta, pongee and various heavy Chinese silks throughout the cold weather, making them comfortable for the open or for heatless houses by the addition of warm underwear and top coverings.

The designers have banked heavily on the usage of thin materials for next winter and therefore they have brought about this resurrected fashion of trimming a gown with itself, which is quite easily done when the material is soft and pliable.

When tucks are used they are arranged horizontally. They do not confuse themselves with pleats, which are vertical. A few of the new skirts are tucked from the bone of the hips to the hem, the tucks touching each other and made from an inch to two inches wide. Sometimes this constitutes the entire trimming of a gown. But when the skirt is extra narrow at the hem the barrel effect is more striking than it has been for two years.

Affecting the Waistline.

There is no possibility of reducing our waists to a small measurement. The planked-shad type which has prevailed for eight years can wear its sashes where it pleases, but what about the thousands of other women, thin and stout, who have allowed their waists to broaden out into sculptural measurements? These waists have muscles that are strong and unpliable, and they will not be squeezed in by corsets. Therefore, only the willow type—the slim, little, boneless youngster—can pull in her waist and tie a sash around it with impunity.

One thing is practically certain: If the tight, draped skirt brings back the normal waist, women will allow the straight line of their figures to continue, and they will merely drape the waist in its new, large measurements, without an attempt to make themselves uncomfortable.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

STYLES IN OUR HEADGEAR

Both Large and Small Hats, Loaded or Unloaded With Trimming, Fashionable This Season.

This is a season of wide diversity of ideas in millinery. As a very successful and well-known milliner remarked the other day, "Any style that is becoming is fashionable this season." You may wear big hats or little hats or hats of medium size, and they may be of any fabric practical for millinery; and as for trimming there are models rather elaborately trimmed, simply trimmed models and hats almost entirely devoid of trimming.

This is indeed welcome news, and woe to the woman who does not have a becoming hat. She cannot blame it on the modes of the moment, but upon her own lack of judgment or care in the selection of this most important detail of her wardrobe.

Use Furniture Fringe.

They are trimming hats with furniture fringe.

SKIRTS SHORT AND TIGHTER

Latest Mandate From Goddess of Styles, According to Report Reaching New York.

Skirts are to be at least three inches shorter and much tighter this winter, writes a New York correspondent.

This is the latest mandate of the goddess of style, and the news was brought to American women here by Miss Margaret Dreaker, foreign buyer for a prominent American firm, who arrived from France.

"You can tell American women that styles for fall and winter call for skirts at least three inches shorter and much tighter," said Miss Dreaker. "Jackets are to be shorter, and tighter, too. All designs look toward the conservation of cloth. Prevailing colors will be brown, green, navy blue and taupe."

Effective Neckwear.

There are some very smart new waistcoats of pongee embroidered with black or dark brown floss in coin dots—big polka dots. These new bits of neckwear are very effective.

A Voice From the Wastes.

A correspondent calls attention to the remoteness of a little-heard-of island: "It is just 12 years since we had a mail," wrote a woman in Tristan da Cunha in November, 1916, to an English lady, who received the letter more than a year after it was written. Tristan da Cunha is in the middle of the south Atlantic, more than a thousand miles from any other inhabited land. The odd thing about the letter is that it does not mention the war or anything that is going on upon the island or anywhere else. The writer wishes her English friend to send her some cups and saucers, as there are less than a dozen in the island.—From Outlook.

Mend the Leaky Pen.

If one is troubled with a leaky fountain pen, the application of a little soap to the threads of the screw will work magic. If the pen is emptied, thoroughly cleaned, filled, and the soap applied, I am sure there will be no more trouble until the pen needs refilling.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 22

FRUITS OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

LESSON TEXTS—Matthew 25:14-30; 5:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—All things are yours; . . . and ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's.—I Corinthians 3:21-23.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Galatians 6: 16-25.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Psalms 17:15; Isaiah 51:11; Acts 16:25; Romans 2:10; 5:1-3.

I. The Parable of the Talents.

This parable, like that of the Ten Virgins, is associated with the second coming of Christ. In both instances there is evident an unpreparedness on the part of the people. In the first case there is failure of the inward life; in the second, there is failure to use the gifts which have been entrusted to them. The first was failure to watch; the second was failure to work. By talents is meant, the gifts which God has entrusted to his servants. It may be natural endowments, special enduements of the Spirit, or it may be the gospel of Jesus Christ. With reference to these talents note:

1. Their distribution (vv. 14, 15).

(1) A sovereign one. The servants belong to the Lord as well as the money. (2) An intelligent one. The distribution was made on the basis of the ability of each servant. The reason one man received one talent was because the Lord knew that he would be incapable of using two or five. (3) A purposeful one. The talents were given to be traded with. They were not given for the servant's own use, but stock-in-trade for the enrichment of the master.

2. Employment of the talents (vv. 16-18).

In this employment all the servants recognized that the talents did not belong to them. The two-talented man and the five-talented man put their talents to use, which resulted in a large increase. It is always true that the right use of talents increases them. The one-talented man hid his in the earth. The unmistakable sign of the one-talented man is that he is hiding his talent. The two-talented and five-talented men are always busy.

3. The accounting for the talents (vv. 19-30).

(1) Its certainty. There is a day coming when the Lord's servants shall give an account to him for the use they have made of their talents. (2) The time of. This is at the coming of the Lord. Those who are using their talents will rejoice when the Lord comes that they may present unto him their talents with increase. But the one-talented man will have fear and dread against that day. (3) The judgments announced. To the faithful there was reward. This reward consisted of praise: "Well done;" promotion: "ruler over many things" and entrance "upon the joy of the Lord." For the faithless one there was awful punishment which consisted of reproach—"slothful;" being stripped and cast into outer darkness.

II. Characteristics of the Subjects of the Kingdom (Matt. 5:1-12).

These beatitudes are connected with each other with the strictest order of logical sequence. They set forth the characteristics of those who are subjects of the kingdom. They fall into three groups: four in the first, three in the second, and two in the third.

1. Poverty of spirit (v. 3). To be poor in spirit does not mean to be without money, but to come to the end of self, to be in a state of absolute spiritual beggary, having no power to alter his condition or make himself better.

2. A profound grief because of this spiritual bankruptcy (v. 4). The mourning here is not because of external cares, but a keen consciousness of guilt before a holy God.

3. A humble submission to God's will and obedience to his commands without asking the reason why (v. 5). This is the outgrowth of mourning for spiritual insolvency.

4. An intense longing to conform to the laws of the kingdom (v. 6). Having received the righteousness of Christ as a free gift, every desire of his soul is to be filled with righteousness.

5. Merciful (v. 7). At this stage the subjects of the kingdom take on the character of the King. Christ was merciful; his followers will be likewise.

6. Purity of heart (v. 8). This heart purity begins by having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience with the blood of Christ, and is maintained by living in fellowship with him. Those who have pure hearts can see God everywhere.

7. Peacemakers (v. 9). Those who have been reconciled to God by Christ not only live in peace, but diffuse peace.

8. Suffering for Christ's sake (v. 10). The world hated Christ and crucified him. Those who live for him shall suffer persecution (II Timothy 3:12).

9. Suffer reproach (v. 11). It means suffering under false charges. In such case we shall glory in it because it brings great reward in heaven.

Quote the Bible.

Scholars may quote Plato in their studies, but the hearts of millions will quote the Bible at their daily toil, and draw strength from its inspiration as the meadows draw it from the brook.—Conway.

Suffered For Years
Back and Kidneys Were in Bad Shape, But Doan's Removed all the Trouble.

MRS. ROSS

"My kidneys were so weak that the least cold I caught would affect them and start my back aching until I could hardly endure the misery," says Mrs. D. C. Ross, 673 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. "In the morning when I first got up, my back was so lame, I could hardly bend over and any move sent darts of pain through my kidneys. It was hard for me to walk up stairs or stoop, and to move while lying down sent darts of pain through me.

"The kidney secretions were scanty and distressing and the water remained in my system, making my feet and hands swell. There were dark circles under my eyes and I became so dizzy I could hardly see. I had rheumatic pains in my knees and it was all I could do to get around. For years I was in that shape and I wore plasters and used all kinds of medicine to no avail until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. They rid me of the trouble and strengthened my back and kidneys. When I have taken Doan's since, they have always benefited me."

Sworn to before me.
L. N. VAUGHAN, Notary Public.

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Skin Tortured Babies Sleep After Cuticura
All druggists: Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff.
For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair.
50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 38--1918.

Success is the one crime that some folks refuse to forgive in their friends.

Sore Eyes, Blood-Shot Eyes, Watery Eyes, Sticky Eyes, all healed promptly with nightly applications of Roman Eye Balsam. Adv.

Wasted Brain Work.

"Isn't it a grand and glorious feeling to write a long-winded editorial on the town's needs and then have half the business men tell you they didn't read it?" demands the Billiam Globe.

This question moves the Arrow Rock Statesman to philosophize a bit: "My dear brother, it is astonishing and you will be surprised, after you have been in the business a little longer, to find how few of the people really do read.

"Many, even in these war times, never look at a paper. A few sketch the city dailies and read a piece here and there, a few others glance at the headlines on the first page, over some neighbor's shoulder, and many others merely sit around and catch the drift of the news from the conversation of others and are then fully posted and ready to argue with a Kentucky lawyer."—St. Louis Republic.

Bobby Guessed Right.

Bobby wanted to go fishing for minnows one day with his little playmate, so without asking his mother, off he went. Pretty soon his mother saw him coming up the street all wet and soiled and asked him where he had been.

"Down, by the brook, catching minnows."

"Bobby, why didn't you ask me if you could go?"

"Why, would you have let me?"

"No, of course not."

"That's what I thought."

Yes, Constance, you can make an apple tree bare by picking the leaves off.

I'LL TAKE POSTUM!

—you hear it more and more when one is asked what he'll have for his morning drink.

Delightful aroma and taste, and freedom from the discomforts that go with coffee.

Nourishing healthful, economical.

NO WASTE at all—an important item these days. Give INSTANT POSTUM a trial.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0513

IN THE LIMELIGHT

REDFIELD'S PRIVATE SECRETARY

© G.V. BUCK

Mrs. Agathe Olsen Stewart, the first woman to serve as private secretary to a cabinet officer, was born in Norway, July 13, 1888. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Olsen of 205 Treadwell avenue, Port Richmond, S. I., came to this country when she was nine years old, settling on Staten island, where they have since made their home.

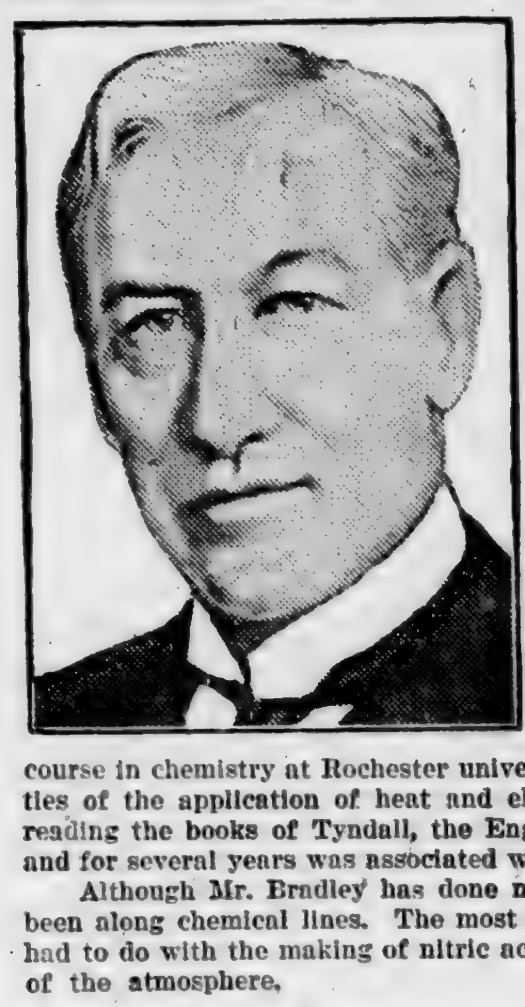
Mrs. Stewart was graduated from public school No. 20, Port Richmond, and, after attending Curtis high school at New Brighton for one year, completed the commercial course at the evening school of public school No. 20, following it with three months' study of typewriting.

Eight years ago she took a position as stenographer with the American Blower company, of which William C. Redfield was vice president. When Mr. Redfield was elected to congress she went to Washington as his confidential clerk, continuing in that capacity after he was appointed to President Wilson's cabinet.

In 1916 she met and married Thomas E. Stewart, an inspector in the department of labor and commerce. Mr. Stewart hails from Ohio and is a Spanish-American war veteran. Several months ago he was transferred to New York and Mrs. Stewart expressed a desire to resign and return to Staten island to take up her duties as a home maker.

So valuable had she become to Secretary Redfield that she was prevailed upon to accept the position of private secretary and continue at her post in Washington. Mrs. Stewart has five sisters and four brothers. Her father, who is a ship carpenter, speaks no English.

NITRATE WIZARD



At Musselshell shoals, on the Tennessee river, near Sheffield, Ala., the United States government is erecting an immense nitrate and cyanide plant. That nitrogen may here be drawn from the air for use in war and peace is due largely to the work of Charles S. Bradley, the nitrate wizard.

Bradley is a scientific symphony in gray. His hair is gray, so are his keen eyes, but there is nothing gray or somber in them, for they are eyes of youth which sixty-five years have not dulled nor dimmed. If someone were seeking a portrait of a typical American inventor he would not have to go further afield than the desk of the nitrate wizard. Born at Victor, Ontario county, N. Y., Mr. Bradley is a descendant of six generations of Yankee forbears, and he inherited the ingenuity which is as indigenous to New England as stone fences and clock factories. After taking a special course in chemistry at Rochester university he was inspired with the possibilities of the application of heat and electricity to the work of the world by reading the books of Tyndall, the English physicist. He went to New York and for several years was associated with Thomas A. Edison.

Although Mr. Bradley has done much as a physicist his chief labor has been along chemical lines. The most far reaching of the Bradley researches had to do with the making of nitric acid through the fixation of the nitrogren of the atmosphere.

CALLS ON SYRIANS TO FIGHT

"Every ablebodied Syrian who will not don the military costume must be either a coward or a traitor, for every one of us knows that the participation of the United States in the world war means the salvation of the whole oppressed world."

These were the sentiments expressed in Detroit by the venerable Archbishop Germanos, metropolitan of the Selephkias at Baalbek, Syria, and acting bishop of the Syrian antiochan orthodox church in North America, who officiated at the laying of the corner stone of St. George's Syrian orthodox church.

Archbishop Germanos left Turkey just a few days prior to the declaration of war. He came to the United States and has since been elevated to the head of his denomination here.

"The civilized nations of the world have looked upon our country with pity and remorse. The United States has championed our cause, as well as the cause of the smaller nations.

"Since we have come to this country we have acquired wealth, knowledge and democratic principles and now it is time to be grateful to our adopted country; now is the time to sacrifice and be brave, lest we be branded as cowards and ungrateful."

WOMAN SEEKS A TOGA

© Western Newspaper Union

Reno, Nev., is famous for two things. The other one is Miss Anne Martin, commonly known throughout the state as "Governor Anne." And it looks now as though the voters of Nevada might change her title to "United States Senator Anne" when the fall elections come around, so that they may boast of sending the first woman to the United States senate.

Anne Martin's race for the senate is not a wild goose chase. She has been carefully prepared to meet and discuss the problems which confront the nation, and she knows the constituency which may send her to Washington. She was born in Nevada and grew up there, and scarcely a person exists in the state who doesn't know "little Anne Martin."

After she was graduated from the University of Nevada she took a higher degree at Stanford, and later studied government and politics at Columbia and at Cambridge, England. In the meantime she held the tennis championship of her state for three years, had a mountain pass in Nevada named for her in honor of her having climbed the peak in the dead of winter, and was professor of constitutional history in the University of Nevada for three years.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BRAVE BEAUTY.

"There was a little dog named Beauty," said Daddy, "and this dog was a fox terrier."

"I've always loved fox terriers," said Nancy, "they are my favorites."

"They are usually so brave and loyal, too," added Nick. "Are you going to tell us a story about one who was brave, Daddy?"

"Yes," chimed in Nancy, "was Beauty a very brave dog, and did he do something very fine?"

"He did indeed," said Daddy.

"You'll tell us about him, won't you?" asked Nick.

"Oh, yes, we must hear about Beauty, now that we know he was a brave Beauty. Oh, most certainly we must hear about him now, eh, Daddy?" asked Nancy.

"To be sure you must both hear the story of Beauty's bravery and that is the story I had planned to tell you this very evening."

"Goodie!" exclaimed Nick and Nancy, and Daddy commenced: "Beauty was black and white. He was more white than he was black, though, for his little body was white and the black was to be found in spots which the children who owned Beauty thought were very beautiful. One ear was black, the other ear was partly so, and in the center of the forehead was another black spot.

"They thought he was such a beautiful little puppy when he first came to them that at once they named him Beauty.

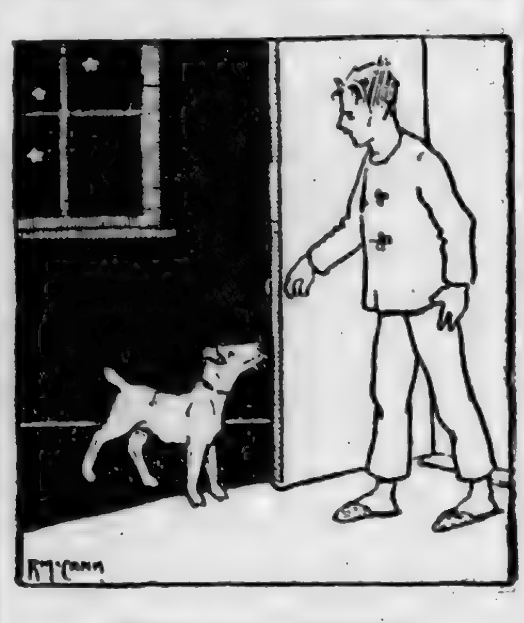
"Now, this family with the three children and Beauty lived on a house boat in a big river. The house boat had two stories, one upstairs where the bedroom was and downstairs where the kitchen and dining room and living room were.

"At night the two boys and their little sister would go upstairs to bed, and they had two little rooms adjoining. Then later on the mother and daddy would go upstairs and last of all Beauty would settle down in a corner of the sofa which was fixed for him the last thing at night. This corner was well covered with a comfortable old shawl, so that Beauty would be happy and cozy all night.

"Of course he would take naps during the evening as the family chatted and talked and played games. But his real evening's sleep would begin when all the rest of the household was peacefully dreaming and he would have a long, long night of rest and wonderful dog dreams.

"And then in the morning he would wait outside the doors of the children's rooms and hope every minute that he would hear them getting up and calling him, and opening the door.

"For on many of these wonderful summer mornings they had had swims near the shore, and how they all enjoyed them!



"What is it, Beauty?"

"But it was night, and everyone was in bed. It was all so still. But Beauty couldn't sleep. There was a strange smell which made his head feel so queer and as if he almost couldn't breathe.

"'Sniff-sniff,' went his little nose in the air, and still he couldn't understand it. But he knew there was something quite wrong about it. And it reminded him of the stove, yes, that was it, the gas stove when it was being lighted to cook the dinner. But that strange smell had never been so strong and had never kept up for such a time.

"There was danger in that smell. He knew it. And he sat up straight in the darkness and wondered what could be done.

"He ran into the kitchen. And there the smell of gas almost knocked him over. For one awful moment he felt as though he would just lie down and die, but forgetting about the queer feeling in his head by thinking of those upstairs he ran to the room first of the two boys, and then of their little sister, and then to the door where their mother and daddy slept.

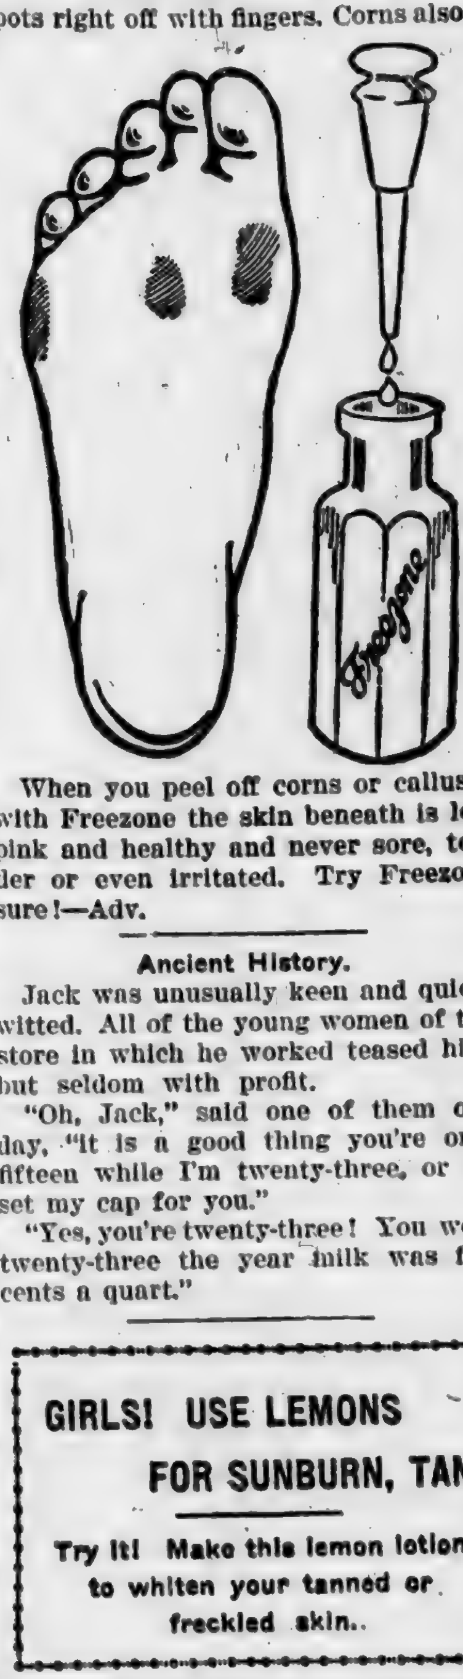
"'S-c-r-a-t-c-h,' went his nails on the door. And then more and more furiously he scratched. He whined and he cried, and at last the daddy got up, feeling very sleepy.

"'What is it, Beauty?' he asked. 'Do you want to come in this room? Were you lonely downstairs. It's not morning yet, you know.' And then the daddy got a terrific whiff of gas. 'The gas is escaping in the kitchen,' he said, 'and we would never have known it but for you, brave Beauty.' And as the daddy turned off the gas which had all been left on by some dreadful mistake, they all said: 'It was brave Beauty who saved our lives!'"

"HARD SKIN" AND FOOT CALLUSES

Magic! Peel them off without pain or soreness

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the toughened calluses or "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift those painful spots right off with fingers. Corns also!



When you peel off corns or calluses with Freezone the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or even irritated. Try Freezone sure!—Adv.

Ancient History.

Jack was unusually keen and quick-witted. All of the young women of the store in which he worked teased him, but seldom with profit.

"Oh, Jack," said one of them one day, "it is a good thing you're only fifteen while I'm twenty-three, or I'd set my cap for you."

"Yes, you're twenty-three! You were twenty-three the year milk was five cents a quart."

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

To the Purpose.

"What is the last thing that girl's got her finger into?" "I think it is a diamond engagement ring."

Important to Mothers
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
In Use for Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Which One?

Gertrude—Has Alice been engaged long?"

Marguerite—To whom?

Soft, Clear Skins.
Night and morning bathe the face with Cuticura Soap and hot water. If there are pimples first smear them with Cuticura Ointment. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." Sold by druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Vagabonds have no coupons attached and are irredeemable.

WHY WOMEN DREAD OLD AGE

Don't worry about old age. Don't worry about being in other people's way when you are getting on in years. Keep your body in good condition and you can be as hale and hearty in your old days as you were when a kid, and every one will be glad to see you.

The kidneys and bladder are the causes of senile afflictions. Keep them clean and in proper working condition. Drive the poisonous wastes from the system and avoid uric acid accumulations. Take GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules periodically and you will find that the system will always be in perfect working order. Your spirits will be enlivened, your muscles made strong and your face have once more the look of youth and health.

New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue this treatment. When your first vigor has been restored continue for awhile taking a capsule or two each day. They will keep you in condition and prevent a return of your troubles.

There is only one guaranteed brand of Haarlem Oil Capsules, GOLD MEDAL. There are many fakes on the market. Be sure you get the Original GOLD MEDAL Imported Haarlem Oil Capsules. They are the only reliable. For sale by all first-class druggists.—Adv.

Milling Corn Flour.

It has been found possible to use much of the wheat-milling machinery of the United States for milling corn. In this way the output of cornmeal was almost doubled within five months. Instead of using 8,000,000 barrels of wheat flour each month, America can now depend upon corn products for all breadstuff demands.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.
ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.
All Druggists 75c. Circulars free.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

United States mint coined 500,000,000 pennies in 1917.

NOW RAISES 600 CHICKENS

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me.

"I saw the Compound advertised in our paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALTERS, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Alters.

Women everywhere in Mrs. Alters' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

Every Woman Wants
Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC POWDER
FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE
Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical.
Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

You're Foolish To Suffer With Kidney Trouble

No one need be subject to constant pain and sickness from this cause.

Dodd's Kidney Pills
A REMEDY
Save yourself from constant aches and pains, from long-continued debility, from eventual Bright's Disease and possible death. Don't despair. Don't neglect the warnings found in backache, pain in loins, stiffness, swollen joints, dizziness, sediment in secretion. They indicate surely the ATTACKS OF DISEASE.
Get immediately the great Kidney and Bladder Remedy, DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. Start now to check the ravages of the enemies to health. Be one of the thousands who rejoice in regained strength, vigor and happiness. But be sure to get the genuine—the box with DODD'S on the cover—the name with three D's.
Every Druggist Sells Them Under a Satisfaction-or-Money-Back GUARANTEE.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND
Fall Run of Distemper
MAY BE WHOLLY AVOIDED BY USING
"SPOHN'S" A small outlay of money brings very great results. It is a sure cure and a preventive if you use it as per directions. Simple, safe and sure. The large size is twice the quantity and an ounce more than the small size. Get your horses in best condition for late fall and winter. All druggists, harness dealers or manufacturers.
Spohn Medical Co. Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION
IS A CRIME AGAINST NATURE
Stop it or you never can keep well. If you wake with a bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, perhaps headache, your liver is torpid. A torpid liver deranges the whole system, produces dyspepsia, costiveness and piles. There is no better remedy for these disorders than DR. TUTT'S LIVER PILLS. Try them just once and be eternally convinced. For sale by all druggists.
Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills

Are You Bloated After Eating
With that gassy, puffy feeling, and hurting near your heart? For Quick Relief—Take ONE
EATONIC
FOR YOUR STOMACH'S SAKE
You can fairly feel it work. It drives the GAS out of your body and the Bloat goes with it.
Removes Quickly—Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, etc.
Get EATONIC from your Druggist with the DOUBLE GUARANTEE
Send for the "Help" Book. Address Eatonic Remedy Co., 1018-24 So. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Costs a Cent or Two a Day

Too Dear for Him.

'21—"Isn't that little girl just too dear for anything?" '20—"She is for my allowance, anyway."—Record.

His State.

"Your friend is in a grave reverie." "That comes from his being buried in thought."

When Your Eyes Need Care
Try Murine Eye Remedy
No Smarting — Just Eye Comfort. 60 cents at Druggists or mail. Write for Free Eye Book.
MURINE EYE REMEDY CO., CHICAGO

An Undersea Episode.

Mr. Fish—"You say your son is indisposed?" Mrs. Fish—"Yes, he was bitten by a mad dogfish!"

Constipation generally indicates disordered stomach, liver and bowels. Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills restore regularity without griping. Adv.

America's 1918 corn crop is estimated at 3,000,000 bushels.

True art does not imitate nature. It represents her.

Costly Capitulation.

"War is mighty expensive business."

"Yes, the presents I have to make my wife after we quarrel almost bankrupt me."—Boston Transcript.

ASTHMA
INSTANTLY RELIEVED WITH
ASTHMADOR
OR MONEY REFUNDED ASK ANY DRUGGIST

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0514

The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.
GOLD

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

2. An account there is a great business convenience.
   —In making payments.
   —In collecting drafts and checks.
   —In sending remittances.
3. We loan money on good security to promote business, and we like to favor those who consistently build accounts with us.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS

By Dr. Harry E. Barnard,
Federal Food Administrator for Indiana

Retailers, distributors or consumers who may have on hand a flour containing 20 per cent. or more of substitutes for wheat flour, may distribute the same without the addition of the additional 20 per cent. of substitute flours. Where any mixed flour contains less than 20 per cent. of cereals other than wheat it is the order of the Food Administration that one pound of substitutes be sold and used with each four pounds of wheat flour. Pancake and self-rising flours containing substitutes may be manufactured after September 1 only upon special permit from the food administration, at Washington, and after a permit has been obtained such pancake flour may be sold without substitutes provided it contains 20 per cent. or more of substitutes other than rye. Manufacturers of Victory mixed flours must take out internal revenue licenses as heretofore. The milling section of the Food Administration will continue to inspect mills to see that the proper percentage of substitutes is maintained in the new flour.

Outstanding sugar certificates expire September 30, and to make sure of a proper, prompt and equitable distribution for the succeeding quarter new statements must be filed by all users in classes C, D and E, which includes hotels, restaurants and public eating houses, bakeries and retail stores.

Changes in corn milling grades, affecting grits, cream meal, corn flour, pearl meal and common corn meals, are effective at once. The housewife may thus be sure, when purchasing, that she will always get the same grade under the same designation. The new grades will permit grits, cream meal and corn flour to have a moisture content of from 12½ per cent. to 13½ per cent. Fat content may range from 1½ per cent. to 2½ per cent., instead of being limited rigidly to 1½ per cent. In any case, the sum total of the two must not exceed 15 per cent. Standard, bolted and plain or water-ground common corn meal, when shipped in interstate traffic, must not contain more than 12 per cent. of moisture. It is to be unrestricted as to moisture or fat content if for local distribution. Pearl meal standards for moisture and fat, respectively, are now 12 and 3 per cent., whether domestic or export. The figures were formerly 11 per cent. for moisture and 3 per cent. for fat.

No extra allowances of sugar for the purpose of wine making, even for sacramental purposes will be permitted by the sugar division of the United States Food Administration for Indiana. Neither will individuals be privileged to buy extra amounts, as for canning, in order to make wine. Edward H. Stein, federal food administrator for Greene county, was advised that in all cases where it is desired to make wine for sacramental or religious purposes, the pastors are to be instructed to solicit contributions of sugar from members of their congregations, to be taken from their own home tables.

THE FOOD YOU WASTE TODAY IS GONE FOREVER

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

Somewhere in France.

Dear Parents:—

Will write you just a few lines to let you know that we have all arrived safely. Everybody's fine and happy and glad to get here.

Our trip from Texas was very interesting, and the scenery along the way was fine. Would like to tell you more, but stationery is scarce. Must write accordingly.

Our mail is censored. So from now on do not expect to hear from me as often as when I was in the states.

Fay is well. Our companies are still together.

Would like to send you photos of this place, etc. Not allowed to have cameras.

The weather is fine.

There is evidence on every hand that makes me pleased to know that I am from a land of liberty and a land of plenty. Here the people are burdened with endles debts, but their powers of endurance are wonderful.

I'll write as often as circumstances permit. Please do not worry, because I'll be home when it's over over here. Love to all.

Merritt A. Hull.
Co. F, 5th Reg.
Eng., A. E. F.

NEWVILLE

Elmer Wyatt is still feeling quite poorly.

School began here last Monday. Ross Abel is teacher and Mrs. Dale Menable is assistant.

Mr. Bash and wife have their daughter and grandchildren visiting with them at the present time

Harry Kinsey last week moved his family to Garrett, where be will teach in the schools of that city.

The W. C. U. U. met Wednesday afternoon, but the rain made it very inconvenient for some to attend; therefore, not many were present.

Mrs. Joseph Bice died Saturday at the home of her parents at Scipio. She had been ill with tuberculosis for over a year. She is survived by her husband and a large family of children.

After visiting relatives at Angola, Auburn and Garrett, Mrs. Palmer and little son returned the first of the week to the home of John Miller and wife, where they were joined Thursday evening by Mr. Palmer. The family returned to their home in Chicago Sunday evening.

Postoffice Will Close

Notice is hereby given that the St. Joe postoffice will close at 7 p. m., beginning Oct. 1.

Postmaster.

NEWS OF THE TOWN

For Sale.—25 crates assorted onions. Mrs. Frank Scholes.

Foster Gee and family and Mrs. S. D. Gee spent Saturday at Fort Wayne.

Miss Inez Hart is home this week on the sick list. She works at Hicksville in the Mapes & Co. drug store.

Charles, son of Ed. Miser, fell from his bicycle on Tuesday, breaking his left arm, which will detain him from school for several weeks

Little Miss Florence Hart presented Mrs. Fred B. Leighty with a beautiful bouquet last week; and, among the flowers, was the early spring lilac. It was an unusual bouquet for this time of year.

Indiana's sugar allotment for the month of October, as announced in a telegram received from Washington, is 8,798,000 pounds. This is a very small margain over the individual ration limit; and provision is made for additional sugar for additional sugar for canning purposes, based upon applications made in the regular manner.

For Your
Fresh and
Salt Meats
Fish and Canned Goods
SEE
W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET

Highest Market Prices paid for Hides and Pelts of All Kinds.

ANGOLA FAIR

October 1-2-3-4, 1918

Good Races--Free Attractions
Splendid stock exhibits in Cattle, Hogs & Sheep Departm'nts
Bands, Merry-go-Ronnds, Ferris Wheel--Everything to Help Every Have a Good Time

Same Old Price---Admission

25c

Remember the Dates--October 1-2-3-4, 1918

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the News office.

C. C. Bassect spent Sunday with Martin Merrifield and family, near Hicksville.

Abner Copp and wife were over-Sunday guests at the Jesse Copp home, New Haven.

The Martha society will meet to quilt at the home of Mrs. Amanda Shafer, Thursday afternoon

Ernest Steward, wife and son, of Spencerville, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Elma Brown and family.

Henry Smith returned home on Friday morning, after a few days' visit at the Rolland Bearss home.

Seven girl friends of Miss Lela Wallace gave her a pleasant surprise, in the nature of a farewell, Friday evening.

Jud Miller and wife, of Auburn, are here at the Ray Reasoner home and will assist in the harvesting of apples at the Leighty orchard.

John and Mmmet Gruber and wives of Harlan, and the Goldsmith sisters were Sunday dinner guests at the B. F. Garton home

A 9-pound boy was a welcome addition to the Fred Thornton home, Wednesday morning. He has been named Charles Herman.

Nelson Thomas and wife and Mrs. Mel Herrick and son spent from Friday afternoon until Monday with relatives at Reading and Coldwater, Mich.

We are now prepared to figure with you on your hay. Plenty of Room in barn at the Present. FOUR STORE,
38 Hicksville, Ohio.

The remains of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Poper, of Jackson, Mich., were brought here for burial on Monday and taken to the home of the grandfather, David Poper, north of town, where services were conducted by Rev. Spayd. Interment was at Riverside.

Go at the fourth Liberty loan as if the Germans were trying to hold you back from your objective. Remember, it is to be a short campaign; and the volunteer who goes the limit and does it early is the man who won't be ashamed to wake up at night and find himself in his own company. Don't wait until the last day. Don't compel the committee to come around and see you. Don't subscribe in the hundreds if you can count your holdings in the thousands.

W. C. T. U. Program

The W. C. T. U. will be entertained on the afternoon of Friday, Sept. 27, at the home of Mrs. Adam Shilling, west of St. Joe. The following program has been arranged:

Song.
Scripture reading (Prov. iii, 1-8).—Mrs. E. Mumma.
Solo.—Mrs. Hattie Widney.
Recitation.—Mrs. Cora Price.
"Reasons Why Patent Medicines Should Not Be Advertised or Sold," Mrs. Amanda Spayd (leaflet)
Instrumental music.—Mrs. Bessie Tustison.
"What Is in Soft Drinks," Mrs Eva Sheffer.

Frank Kinsey and wife attended the funeral of Mrs. Rebecca Dean at Newville, Sunday afternoon.

To Save Shells

The War Department has called upon the State Council of Defense to urge upon the people through the County Council of Defense and the Red Cross to secure all nut shells such as hickory nuts, walnuts, butternuts, peach seeds, cocoanut shells, etc. These should be collected by the children of the schools and turned over to the nearest Red Cross Chapter. The Red Cross Chapters have been instructed to forward these seeds to the War Department. I am calling upon the people of the county and urging upon them that it is their patriotic duty to assist in securing all of these nut shells that can possibly be had in the county and help the children to collect these and forward them to the Red Cross Chapter. J. Y. W. McClellan, Ch'm.

School Supplies.

Notice to PARENTS

Do not send your children for School Books without sending the money with them. We would hate to turn your child away without his books, but we have given you 4 weeks notice as to our arrangements and we kindly ask that you do not ask us to break our rule, they are CASH. This order is given by those in authority and we must follow it.

In addition to the Books.-we have a full line of tablets, pencils, and other school supplies for kiddie

ELZA R. KINSEY,
St. Joe, Indiana.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0515

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26 1918 NO. 39

Art. Smith at St. Joe

"Here be comes!"

Such was the word that passed about St. Joe shortly before 5 o'clock Sunday evening and caused the people of the place quickly to gather outside their homes. The "he" referred to was Art. Smith, of Fort Wayne, the bird man, who was distributing Liberty loan literature from the air throughout part of northeastern Indiana. Smith came from the southwest. He sailed in a circuitous route over the town several times, flying quite low; and then went south in the direction of Spencerville. Just before going, he pulled off a number of aerial stunts, such as looping the loop in his aeroplane, flying up-side-down, etc., which were novelties to a majority of our people. The exhibition of fancy flying was of but short duration, but it was thrilling while it lasted. To do it, Smith rose to a higher altitude than when circling over the town.

All afternoon, St. Joe waited for the coming of Smith. It had been announced that he would reach here between 12:30 and 1:00 p. m.; and, in accordance with previous instructions, a white cross 40 feet long had been made on the ground to mark the spot over which the bird man was to do his fancy flying. This cross was in the lower part of the cemetery; and hither the people of St. Joe flocked at the appointed hour, many going without dinner. They stood around in the raw wind until they became tired and then went home—disappointed and disgusted. Smith's coming, several hours later, took them completely by surprise, for they had given up seeing him. This hitch in the program was the bad feature of the day.

Credit for getting Smith to come to St. Joe belongs principally to Will, Grover and Frank Curie.

COAL:

Are you prepared for that cold weather that will soon be upon us? Just take a peep into our bins—we can fill your bins with either a Wash Nut, Brazil Block or Ind. Lump.

FLOUR:

That is another of the essentials that we always aim to keep in stock for our customers. Two of the best brands on the market are now on hand: Aristos and the Gold Medal If Eventaully- "WHY NOT NOW."

PIONEER

Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market. Prepared feed contains the necessary filling to keep the hogs in good conition while feeding.

—o—

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.

Spencerville, Indiana

The 4th. Liberty Loan.

For the fourth time our government asks the public for funds with which to prosecute the war. The amount is larger than any previous loan, because of the growing cost of the war. Our overseas army approximates one million five hundred thousand men. Food, guns, munitions, transportation and the necessary attendant costs mount into the billions. The strain of war is upon us. We now have a realizing sense of the present and impending loss in men and money, the necessity for service and sacrifice, for economy and patriotic devotion. In order that the lives of our armies abroad may be saved, the suffering of the sick and wounded ameliorated, there must be an unbroked flow of guns, munitions, and army equipment, of food, medicine and hospital supplies. To insure this uninterrupted flow in sufficient volume the government needs the funds it asks for.

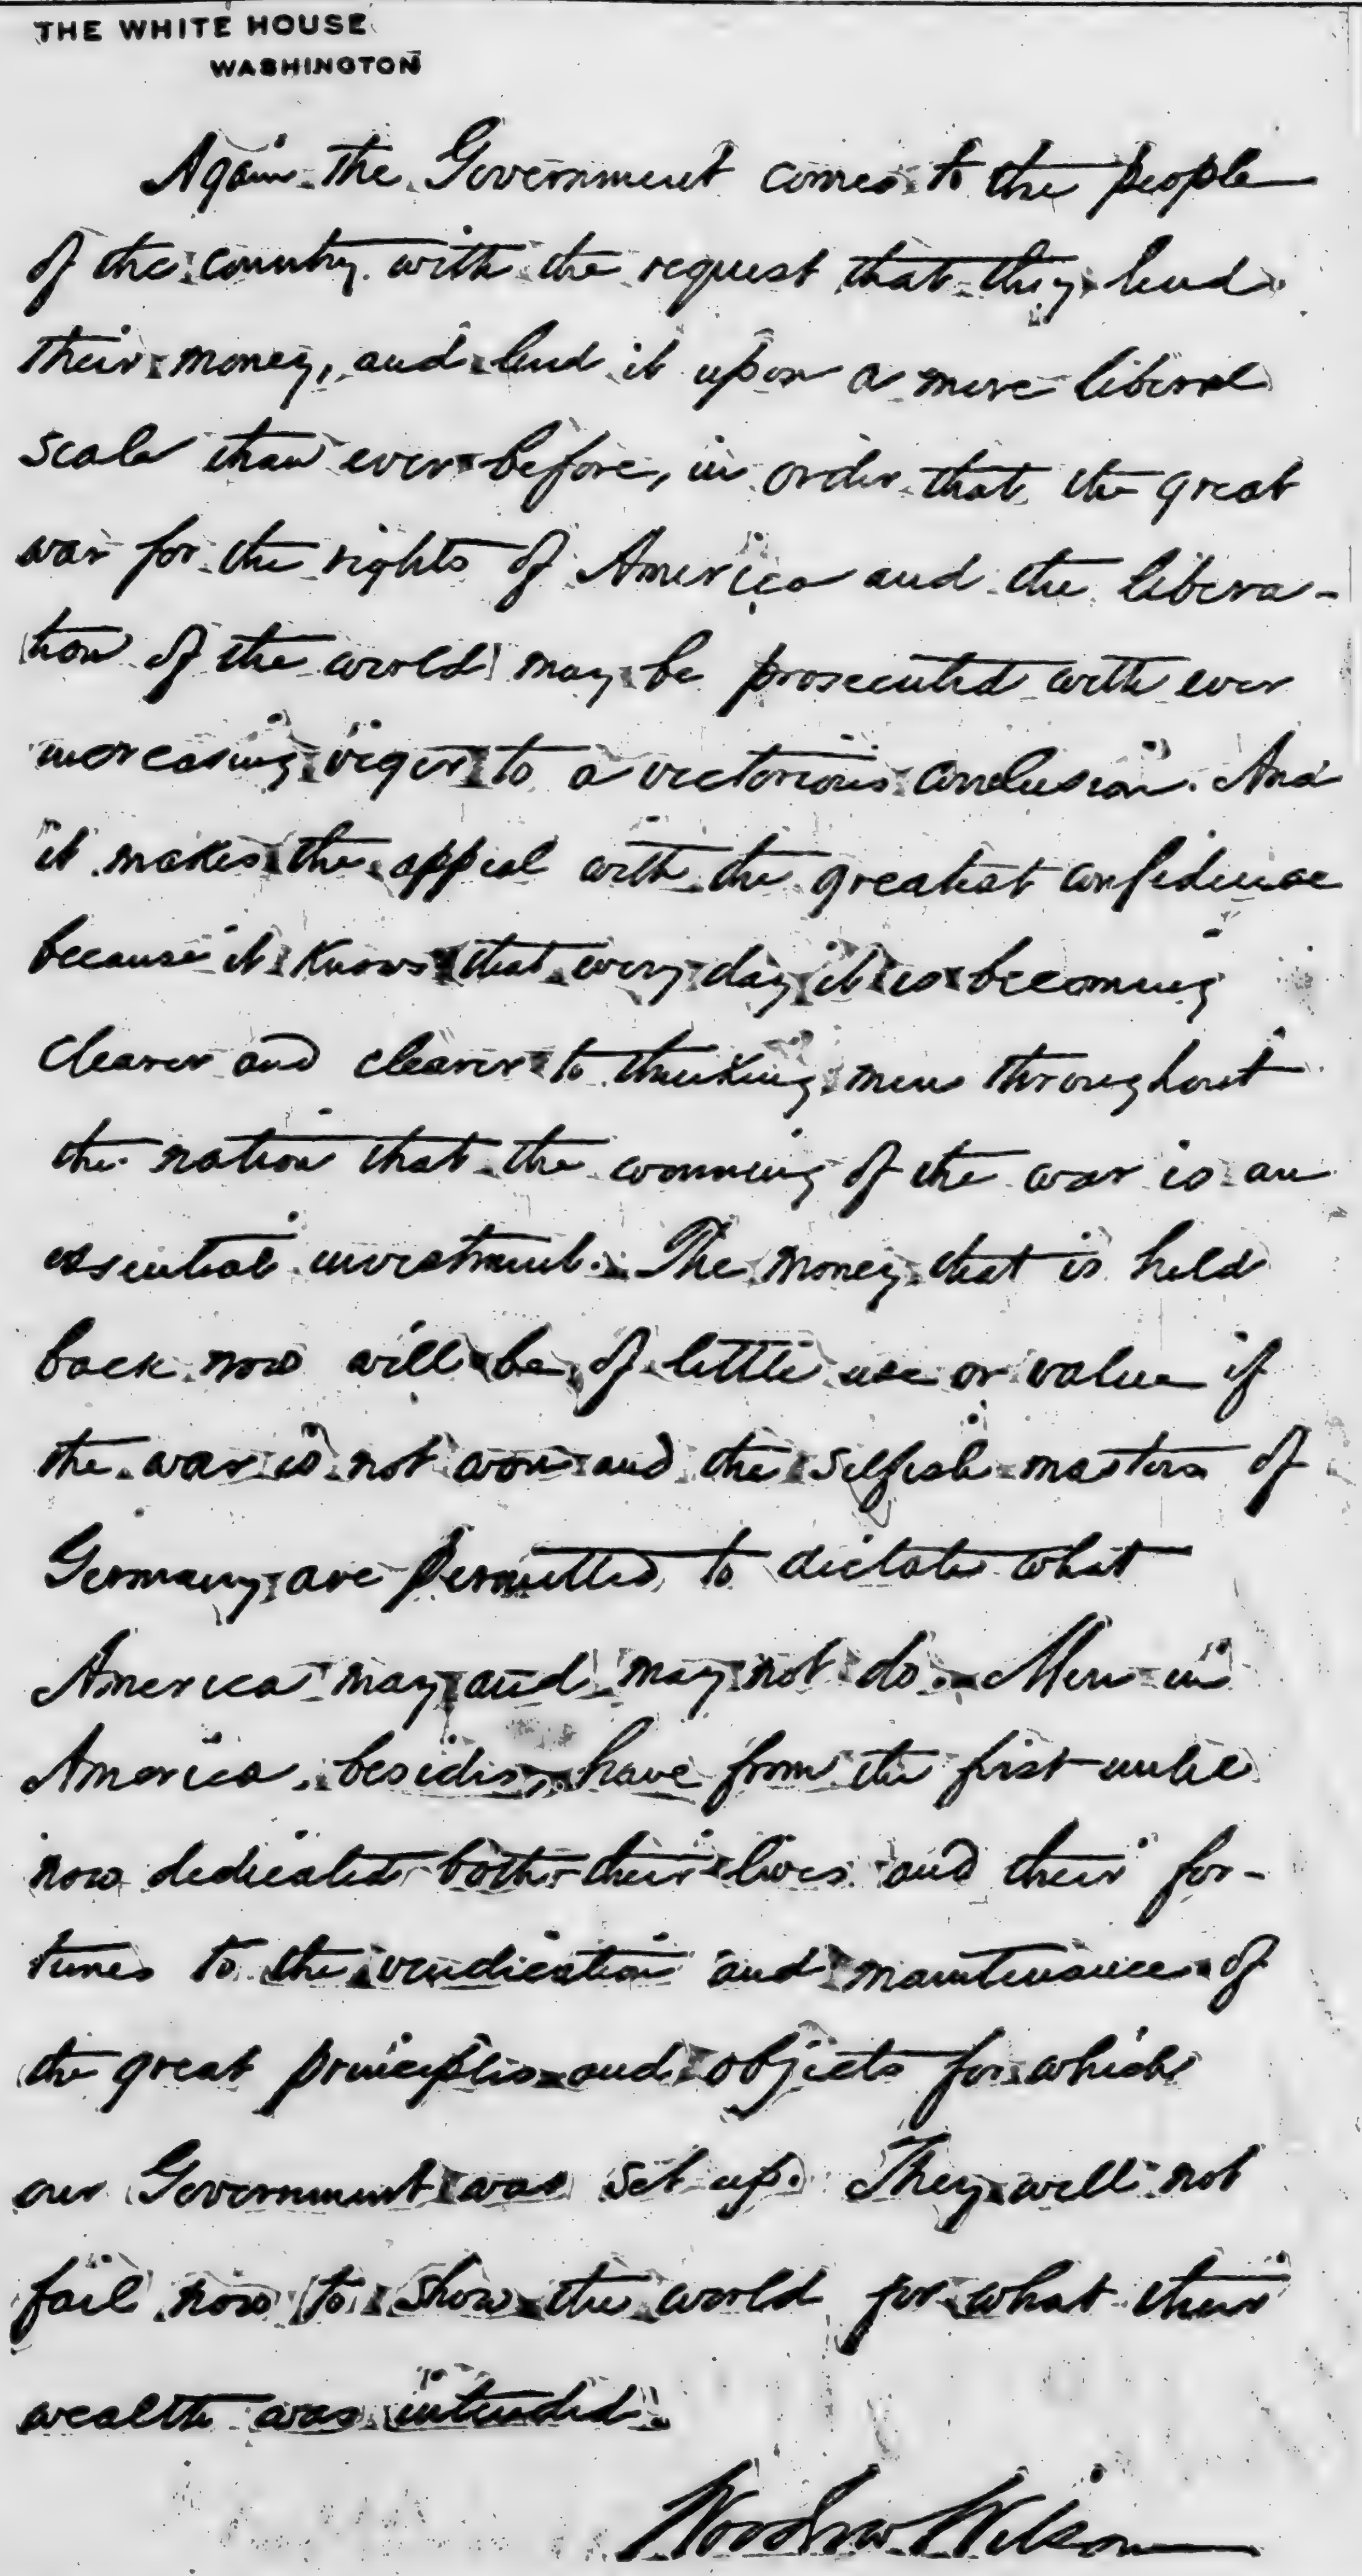
Taxes, in as great volume as is deemed prudent, are imposed upon all men and all industries with uniformity and fairness. By the selective draft the personal military burden is imposed upon all of military age and fitness with uniformity and impartiality. When it comes to the placing of government bonds, the matter of subscription is voluntary. Subscription, however, is a privilege as well as a patriotic duty and involves making a safe investment at a fair rate of interest.

The country is thoroughly aroused. All camouflage as to who brought about the war and their purpose in so doing has been dissipated. The Huns stand convicted before the World. Germany believed the submarine would give her victory, and she deliberately and purposely forced the United States into the war, believing in her blind conceit that from this country she would recoup her losses by receiving a large indemnity. For generations we shall continue to pay taxes "Made—in—Germany" but our only contribution to Germany direct will be delivered in a masterful manner by our army and navy.

It is our duty as citizens to make this loan a success and it is our pleasure to offer you, gratuitously, the facilities of The St. Joe Valley Bank in making subscriptions and to pledge you our very best services in carrying out your instructions.

Yours for "a long pull and a strong pull and a pull all together."

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank



THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Again the Government comes to the people of the country with the request that they lend their money, and lend it upon a more liberal scale than ever before, in order that the great war for the rights of America and the liberation of the world may be prosecuted with ever increasing vigor to a victorious conclusion. And it makes the appeal with the greatest confidence because it knows that every day it is becoming clearer and clearer to thinking men throughout the nation that the winning of the war is an essential investment. The money that is held back now will be of little use or value if the war is not won and the selfish masters of Germany are permitted to dictate what America may and may not do. Men in America, besides, have from the first until now dedicated both their lives and their fortunes to the vindication and maintenance of the great principles and objects for which our Government was set up. They will not fail now to show the world for what their wealth was intended.

Woodrow Wilson

W. L. Wallace Goes West

W. L. Wallace, wife and daughter, Lela, left Saturday morning for Seattle, Wash., where he has employment. Mr. Wallace is undecided as to how long they will remain in the West, but does not think they will return to St. Joe until after the war. They visited en route, stopping first at Claypool, Ind., where they spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Wallace's sister. From there they went to Clay Center, Kan., going thence to a point in Wyoming, where Mr. and Mrs. Wallace have a son. The party will stop at Elko, Nev., the home of a daughter, Ethel, whom St. Joe people remember favorably. The last part of the journey—from Elko to Seattle—will be made via San Francisco.

Mr. Wallace came to St. Joe in 1913, when the new school house was built, he having charge of the work. He liked the place so well that he soon after moved his family here, and they remained residents of St. Joe until last Saturday.

The best wishes of St. Joe people accompany Mr. Wallace and family.

Must Pay in Advance

By order of the United States government, newspapers are not allowed to send papers through the mail at second class postage rates after Sept. 30 to subscribers who are not paid in advance. If you are in arrears for the NEWS on Oct. 1, your name will have to be taken off our mailing list, no matter how good your credit is. We shall have to do this in compliance with the commands of Uncle Sam. Don't blame us if we are obliged to stop your paper, though we may know you are "as good as wheat."

We have sent out statements to all subscribers who will be in arrears on Oct. 1. These are not duns, but friendly reminders of the new postal regulations; and we hope that no one will be offended thereby. If you do not understand it, come in and we will explain; and if there is a mistake, we will cheerfully rectify it. Above all, don't get MAD.

Beginning July 1, the NEWS is $1.25 per annum.

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	117	4.91
M. P.	56	4.36
Christian	66	2.55
M. E. Spencer	112	5.57
Lutheran	140	9.47
Concord	67	1 86
Newville U B	79	3.12
Coburntown	76	3.91

$2.85

PER 100 POUNDS- Our price on Schumacher Feed.

Get Yours NOW.

Coal HERE and on the way—Best Ind. Lump-Get busy

Call on us always glad to see you. If we have not got what you want we will try and get it for you. Highest prices paid for all grains at all times.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Manager

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0516

What Can I Do?

By CHARLES J. ROSEBAULT
of The Vigilantes

Here are a few answers to this question, which has been worrying the members of the home army ever since Uncle Sam decided to make a stand for human decency. They are answers dictated by Uncle Sam himself through his chosen agents in the various activities he has felt it necessary to take on for the period of the war. Study them carefully, all you good soldiers over here. Commit to memory, each of you, those which fit your particular case and cherish them as special gifts from the great god Opportunity. They will tell you how you can make good in your sphere. Even as the man "over there" is expected to be (and will be) alert for the opportunity to do his part with efficiency and dispatch, so you have the chance to do yours. Prompt response to commands from headquarters by the soldiers of the home army are as important as similar response by the boys in France.

Uncle Sam's Call:

Wife, Mother, Sister—

Let all your messages "over there" be of good cheer only; men who worry can't fight at their best.

If the fortunes of war make a cripple of your loved one, repress your emotions. Don't ask him to come home and be cuddled—to your and his everlasting regret later on. Remember that he might have been killed. Determine that his remaining years shall be useful and happy—Uncle Sam stands ready to make them so. He has brought together all kinds of experts to train your boy so that he may return to civil life not a useless idler but prepared to meet any competition for the job he is best fitted to do.

Have you a baby? Then get in touch with the children's bureau, department of labor. This arm of the government is thinking of the future as well as the present. It wants to cut down the mortality among infants, which is shockingly large. It has assembled a vast amount of valuable information which it is anxious to impart to the mothers of the country. Ask for the circulars telling about the care of babies.

Employer of Labor—

Don't compete with Uncle Sam. He needs all the workers he can get. Likewise all the materials which enter into the service of war. Don't advertise for a hundred men when you only require 30. At least 70 will waste their time answering your call, and time is no more to be wasted than materials these days. Get in touch with the war industries board or the United States employment bureau (branches everywhere) and find out just what the government expects of you.

Employee—

Stick to your job. Shifting at this time dislocates industry, wastes time and money and does you harm in the long run. Only when Uncle Sam calls have you the moral right to throw over the task in hand. Don't slack and don't get extravagant because you are earning more than formerly. Remember the man "over there." Uncle Sam can't keep him supplied as he should be with food, ammunition and equipment if you are not more economical than ever (see the appeal not to waste further on).

The Alien—

If you want this country to be the best ever—best governed and best to live in for yourself and your children—become a citizen, inform yourself about our laws and our ideals. Then you can exert an intelligent influence toward improving conditions. Your vote will be as important and far-reaching as that of the man or woman whose great-great-great-grandfather arrived in the Mayflower.

Manufacturer—

Convert your business as speedily as possible into one of the many industries needed for the war. There is no limit to the demand for the abilities of the successful maker of things. It would be a crime to devote these to nonessentials when the need is so great in the one real job of the whole American people.

Everybody—

Don't waste—time, money, food or anything. Remember that every dollar spent unnecessarily takes somebody's time, somebody's labor, somebody's materials which Uncle Sam can use. It makes no difference how much money you have in your pockets. It's not the price that counts. There is just so much of everything useful—food, cloth, leather and metals, just to mention a few items—and Uncle Sam needs it all.

Put your spare money into Liberty bonds and War Savings stamps. You will be helping the government to help the boys at the front—and you'll be better off later on.

The Contortionist of Berlin

By H. P. HOLT
of The Vigilantes

Baron Von Wurst lighted a large cigar with an expression of satisfaction, stroked his paunch, now, alas, somewhat thinner than of yore, and swung round in his chair to the heap of freshly deciphered messages that lay on his desk—reports from trusty agents in various enemy countries. His little pig-like eyes glinted with joy.

Baron Von Wurst was the Hun arch-press-agent, and he was just about to compose the weekly summary of "facts" to be scattered broadcast among the press of Germany. There was something in his nature which always made it a peculiar pleasure to perform this task, for it needed much imagination, and imagination was at a low ebb in the Fatherland. Moreover, it had won for him the coveted iron cross. He took up the first typewritten slip, and read:

> American troops numbering 200,000 are sailing in the next three weeks. Their strength in France will surely reach two million before winter. Countless more training.

"Schmidt," said the baron, to a red-faced secretary in uniform. "Take this down." Then he dictated:

> The alarm in France increases daily as the promised hordes from America fail to appear. Half the Yankees opposed to us have already been wiped off the map, their casualties far exceeding the number of fresh arrivals.

Deceiving Their People.

Baron Von Wurst took the next slip. It was from a most excellent spy in France. The master press-agent scowled as he read:

> Meat is much more plentiful here. The populace are wildly elated over recent allied victories. The troops all seem supremely confident of ultimate success.

"Ready, Schmidt?" The baron puckered his brows, and continued to scowl for a moment. Then, with inspiration, came a grim smile. He dictated:

> Once more history shows the pleasure-loving Parisians to be subsisting largely on rats and offal. The shining sword of Germany has brought them almost to their knees, through starvation. Mutinies in the French army are now a daily recurrence, for those soldiers know, in spite of the lies thrust upon them, that everywhere along the line German might is triumphant.

The baron, who had lunched with a friend off a substitute sausage, grimaced as he read another message from America:

> The 1918 harvest in the United States will exceed anything ever known. Ships are being launched with such amazing rapidity that there will soon be quite enough to carry grain across the Atlantic.

The baron's wry face flushed with anger. Was not he one of the many who had ben deceived by Von Tirpitz? He puffed out his cheeks.

Fortunate It Is Not True.

> A mysterious grain disease (he dictated) has spread with lightning rapidity throughout the wheat-growing areas of America, and in spite of assurances to the contrary, we know that the Yankees will not have enough grain for their own wants. American prisons are full of men and women who have dared to break the regulations which allow each person four ounces of bread a day. The ship builders, who became too weak to work on this allowance, have been given one ounce extra. The new ships launched, hastily built for submarine fodder, are now pronounced hopelessly defective, and cannot be used.

The real message fluttered from the table to the floor, and Schmidt stooped to pick it up. He had never been allowed to see such things, and glanced at the slip curiously.

"It is verboten!" declared the baron, snatching the paper.

"Herr baron," said Schmidt, "surely these American swine must see now that we have complete mastery."

Baron Von Wurst coughed.

"Ah! If they all had as much sense as you," he said, gazing at the crown-prince-like skull of Schmidt. "But we will teach them with our shining sword. Didn't some one once say, though, that the pen is mightier than the sword, Schmidt? I—I think there must be some truth in that. Yes, yes, Schmidt, get busy. The newspapers of Germany are waiting for my summary of the news."

CALL FROM OVER THERE

By JAMES W. WISE,
of the Vigilantes.

You've sent us here across the waves,
To make the whole world free,
To keep our nation's honor bright,
To fight for Liberty.

We went and we were glad to go,
To fight—perhaps to die—
To pay our debt to noble France.
Democracy, our cry.

We ask no praise nor honor,
No riches and no fame,
Our hearts are in the fight for truth,
But—back us in the game.

You've sent us here to fight your fight,
Though it be ours, too,
We'll do our bit out at the front—
The rest is up to you.

His Circumambulatory Endeavor.

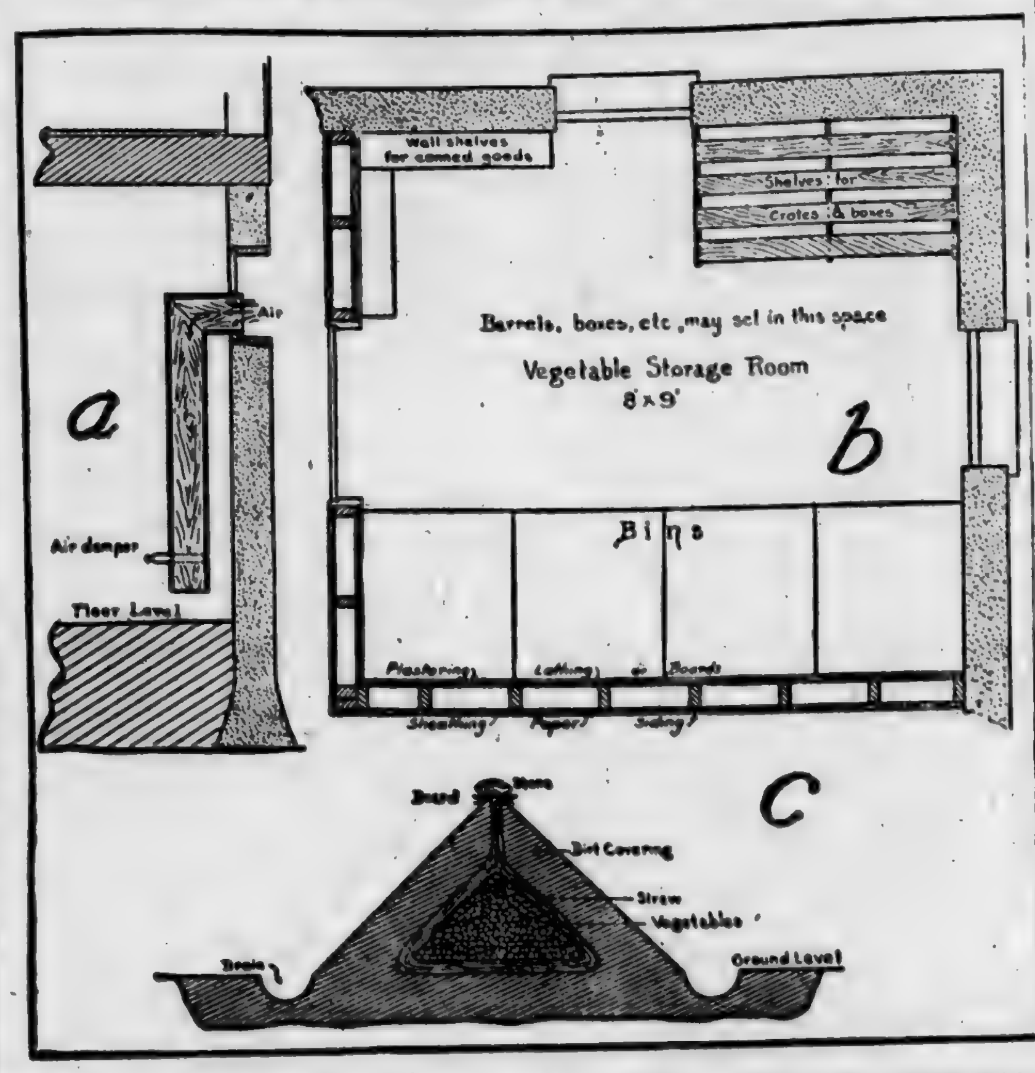
"Professor Pate is somewhat absent minded, isn't he?"

"Oh, yes. The other day I saw him attempting to enter a bank building by way of a revolving door. He was cogitating over some weighty matter in his mind, and walked into the door and around and through and out again where he had started, six times before discovering that he was not making any particular advancement in the way he wished to go."—Kansas City Star.

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

GET FULL BENEFIT FROM YOUR HOME GARDEN



The Illustrations Show (B) a Suggested Plan of Arrangement for a Vegetable Storage Room in the Corner of a Basement; (A) Construction of an Air Duct for Ventilation; and (C) Cross Section of a Storage Pit Containing Irish Potatoes.

FACILITIES FOR PROPER STORAGE

Many Cellars Are Suitable, but Care Must Be Given to Light and Heat.

AVOID FROST AND MOISTURE

Attention Must Be Given in Fall to Storing Surplus Vegetables So That Grocery Bills May Be Materially Reduced.

In the fall the wise home gardener, whether in city or country, plans and works for his garden next year, and stores the surplus products of his summer work. He plows hard or stiff clay soils, as the action of the frost during the winter will break the soil into fine particles and render it suitable for planting. He clears away the weeds and rubbish and gets ready for an early start in the spring. Plowed ground dries out more quickly than unplowed and by plowing in the fall it is possible to get such crops as peas, beets and early potatoes planted much earlier than otherwise would be the case.

If the gardener has planned his crop so that fall finds him with a large surplus of storable vegetables, much of his attention will be given to placing them away, safe from moisture and heat, so that through the winter they will help to reduce grocery bills and vary the diet without regard to market conditions or winter temperature.

Home storage of vegetables, important at times, is especially valuable if canning or drying containers are high in price. Furthermore, crops of suitable sorts that mature at a season when they can be preserved by storing should be kept in their natural condition instead of being canned or dried.

Beets, late cabbage, carrots, celery, onions, parsnips, potatoes, sweet potatoes, salsify and turnips may be stored in their natural condition. Beans of various kinds, including the limas, may be stored dry. Successful storage is not at all difficult. In fact, good facilities already exist in many homes, it being necessary only to make use of the cellar, the attic, a large closet, or other parts of the dwelling, depending upon the character of the product to be stored.

Storing in House Cellars.

A cool, well-ventilated cellar offers good conditions for vegetable storage, but many cellars are not well suited because of poor insulation or lack of ventilation. Cellars containing furnaces are usually too warm or too dry for storage of root crops. Often it is possible, however, to partition off a room, either in one corner or at one end of the cellar, where the temperature may be controlled by means of outside windows. At least one window is necessary, and two or more are desirable for light and ventilation.

Natural earth makes a better floor than concrete or brick, as a certain amount of moisture is desirable. Walls of the storage room should be parallel to the walls of the cellar. Ventilation may be secured by opening windows, but an air duct, made of wood, metal or terra cotta, and permitting cool air to enter near the floor level, is desirable. A piece of board with a hole the size of the air pipe is fitted in the window in place of one of the panes of glass. Another pane of glass may be removed from the sash and a small hinged door fitted in its place, which when open allows the heated air to escape. In cold weather both the hinged door and the damper in the air pipe must be closed. The windows in the storage room should be darkened in order to protect the vegetables from too much light.

Barrels, crates, boxes or bins may be used as containers for the various vegetables, but movable containers are preferable to built-in bins, as it is possible to remove them for cleaning.

Using Outside Cellars.

Outdoor storage cellars or caves are particularly good for the storage of many vegetables. They are especially desirable on the farm, as they afford convenient and inexpensive storage facilities for surplus vegetables that otherwise might be lost. They possess all the advantages of the basement storage room and are superior in many respects. It is possible to keep the cellar cool and to reduce temperature quickly by opening the door during the night, and closing it in the morning before the air becomes warm.

As the root cellar must be proof against frost and moisture, its types and construction vary with the geographical location. In the southern portion of this country the structure usually is entirely above ground and protected by only a few inches of sod and straw or leaves. In northern sections outdoor cellars are made almost entirely below ground and are covered with a foot or two of earth.

Full directions for the construction of storage rooms and cellars and for the storage of vegetables are contained in Farmers' Bulletin 879, "Home Storage of Vegetables," which will be sent free on request to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

HOME STORAGE IS BEST

The storing of late vegetables is an economy for those who grow them in sufficient quantity for the needs of the family.

To care for the surplus vegetables nothing more, in many cases, is required than the use of facilities existing in or near the home.

Often the late vegetables from a small garden can be stored with no expense.

When considerable quantities of vegetables are grown it is frequently advisable to construct permanent storage facilities in the form of a storage room in the basement of the dwelling or under an outbuilding or to build an outdoor cellar of wood or masonry.

If permanent facilities are not available late vegetables can be kept in outdoor pits or banks, requiring no cash outlay except for labor.

Pastures Save Grain Feeds.

From the results of many feeding trials with hogs ten pounds of gain for each bushel of corn fed, or one pound of gain for every 5.6 pounds of corn, is all that should be expected from feeding corn alone in a dry lot. A mixture of one part tankage and nine parts corn gives much better results, usually producing one pound of gain for every 4.5 pounds of the mixture fed.

The quantity of grain needed to produce a pound of gain is considerably lessened if the hogs have access to green forage. Corn fed to growing shotes on rape should produce one pound of gain for every 3.67 pounds of grain fed. The addition of some highly concentrated feed, such as tankage, meat meal, shorts or linseed meal should reduce by one-half to three-fourths of a pound the quantity of grain necessary to produce a pound of gain.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FORTY FINE DOGS.

"Have you joined us?" asked Rowdy

"Bow-wow, sure I have," said Tag. Now both of these were dogs and they were most important dogs, too.

"I suppose you would like to have everything explained to you," said Rowdy, and Tag wagged his tail.

"If you are the captain in chief, or dog in chief, I would like to have you tell me. Then, when the masters are teaching us, I won't seem to be too stupid."

"It's this way," said Rowdy. "We are dogs supposed to be bright and clever. We belong to the famous Airedale family, and we are living up to our family name.

"I've heard of some cats who did some sort of similar work and were quite fine, but they said they were nothing compared to us, and so you can see what a high reputation we have to live up to."

"I hope it isn't too high for me," said Tag.

"Oh, no," said Rowdy. "Do your best; try to learn all you can, be brave, fearless and loyal, and you'll be all right. It's as much as any dog can do. But every dog should do it."

"When are you going to begin explaining everything to me?" asked Tag.

"Whenever you wish," said Rowdy, who was eager to begin at once, for he loved his work and was very proud of it.

"I'd like to hear about it right away," said Tag.

"Our work," commenced Rowdy, "is to guard the water line all along these parts, for people in the big cities nearby and in the towns draw their water from here. We want to see that the water is kept in excellent condition. And there have been some foolish and wicked people who have tried to put things in the water to make folks sick."

"We Belong to the Famous Airedale Family."

"Whatever would they do that for?" asked Tag.

"It's beyond me to understand it," said Rowdy. "But still there have been such people, and until they can be found out, we have to be careful and guard the water for the many, many fine people. A few bad people shouldn't hurt lots of splendid people, you know."

"What would they do to the water?" asked Tag.

"They might put something in it which would make folks sick—not seriously sick, but annoyingly sick."

"What are we to do about it?" asked Tag.

"When we see strange-looking people who are throwing things in the water, when they know this water is for drinking purposes, we are to bark as loudly as we can, and if the people seem to be doing any harm, we must catch hold of their coat-tails and give them a good dose of fright.

"But when we bark, the guards, who are supposed to look after the drinking water, come out and see what the people are up to. But we save the time of the men who have many other things to do.

"They've said we made fine guards, or patrols, and a patrol dog is equal to a patrol guard or a policeman or anyone who looks after the safety of others."

"What an honor, to belong to the Dogs' Patrol Guard!" said Tag.

"I knew you'd feel that way about it," said Rowdy. "It's nice to be able to help a lot in the world. And we don't have to work all the time. We take turns. Just as though we worked in offices and were through at five or six o'clock at night. We have our working hours, our eating hours, our sleeping hours and our playing hours."

"Fine," said Tag, "and I'm glad indeed, they brought me here."

"You looked like a nice dog when I saw you," said Rowdy.

So both dogs became very friendly, and all of the forty dogs who guarded this body of drinking water, known as an aqueduct, were as intelligent as any people could be about their work.

They saved time for others who needed it for other purposes, and they kept the water safe for the people, until all the danger of foolish people who had thought it was smart to make others sick, was past. And every dog received a medal in payment for his splendid work!

His Definition.

"Chimmie, wot's a island?"

"Why, it's a place you can't git away from without a boat."—People's Home Journal.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

Good Turns.

Patience—In older Japanese theaters the scene was changed by revolving the whole stage on a turntable, bringing into view the scene the stagehands had been working on during the playing of the previous act.

Patrice—And in case of an encore the whole stage had to be turned again, I suppose?

"Oh, yes; then, as now, one good 'turn' deserved another."

Cold Comfort.

"Why did she break off the engagement?"

"It was this way. When he was leaving for France she said, 'If you are wounded, Henry, promise me that you won't fall in love with your nurse.'"

"And of course he swore he would resist the most beauteous maiden who ever graced a hospital?"

"No. He merely said he would do his best."

Not Impressed.

"I was out motoring with Scribson, the poet, the other day and we passed a farmhouse that had fallen into ruins. It was such a sad travesty of a home that Scribson was on the verge of tears at beholding it."

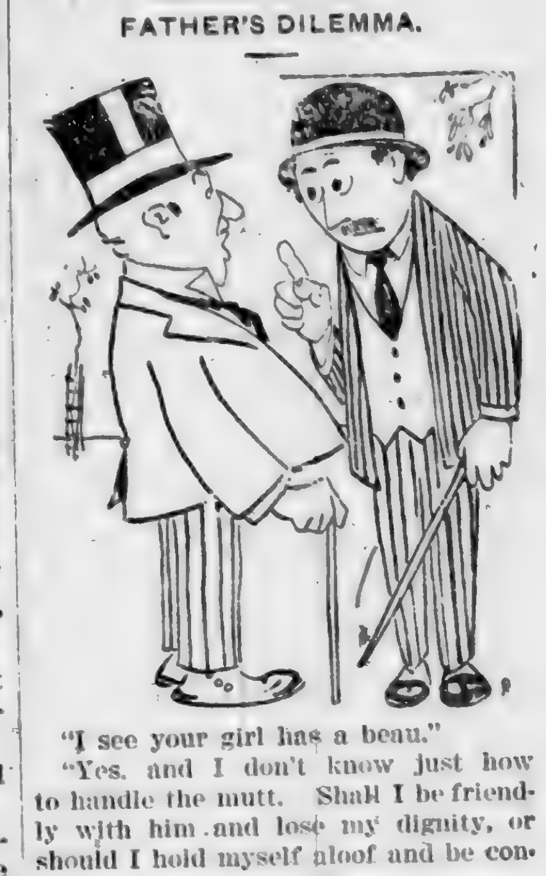
"Well! Well!" said the man who has no sentiment in his soul. "Did Scribson own the place?"

Paternal Modesty.

"Are you advising your son in regard to his future?"

"No," replied the up-to-date father. "My boy is so confident that he's going to be a Napoleon of finance some day I don't feel that a man in my position who has merely accumulated a few hundred thousands could offer any advice worth taking."

FATHER'S DILEMMA.



"I see your girl has a beau."

"Yes, and I don't know just how to handle the mutt. Shall I be friendly with him and lose my dignity, or should I hold myself aloof and be considered an old grouch?"

The Joy Rider.

He burns up gasoline with glee,
His time and purse bestowing,
And no spot ever seems to be
The place where he was going.

An Oft-Told Tale.

"What's going on here?"

"Some of Dubwaite's facetious friends are hold a little celebration."

"A birthday party?"

"In a way. They are commemorating the anniversary of Dubwaite's favorite anecdote."

One Way.

"So this is Sagebrush? I don't see how a man makes a living in such a desolate place."

"Well, there's politics everywhere, my friend."

The Better Way.

"Some men take life hard, like Atlas with the world on his shoulders."

"Well?"

"Others remind me of the debonair performer who stands on a globe and trundles it in any direction he likes."

Caught the Wrong Fish.

Mrs. Woodby-Young—You wouldn't suppose that I had a son at high school, would you?

Mr. Blunt—No, indeed. I had an idea that all your children must be through college by this time.

Too Serious.

In a case of assault by a husband on his wife, the injured woman was reluctant to prosecute.

"I'll lave him to God, yer honor," she said.

"Oh, dear, no," said the judge. "It's far too serious a matter for that."

No Need to Listen.

"I suppose it is a great deprivation to your deaf friend not to be able to go to the theater."

"Oh, she can go to moving pictures and grand opera."

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0517

"OVER THE TOP"

By

AN AMERICAN SOLDIER WHO WENT

ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

MACHINE GUNNER, SERVING IN FRANCE

©1917 BY ARTHUR GUY EMPEY

CHAPTER XXVI—Continued.

—26—

Right now I can see the butt of that gun trembling. The Scottie made a complete turn in the air, hit the ground, rolling over twice, each time clawing at the earth, and then remained still, about four feet from me, in a sort of sitting position. I called to him, "Are you hurt badly, Jock?" but no answer. He was dead. A dark red smudge was coming through his tunic right under the heart. The blood ran down his bare knees, making a horrible sight. On his right side he carried his water bottle. I was crazy for a drink and tried to reach this, but for the life of me could not negotiate that four feet. Then I became unconscious. When I woke up I was in an advanced first-aid post. I asked the doctor if we had taken the trench. "We took the trench and the wood beyond, all right," he said, "and you fellows did your bit; but, my lad, that was thirty-six hours ago. You were lying in No Man's Land in that bally hole for a day and a half. It's a wonder you are alive." He also told me that out of the twenty that were in the raiding party, seventeen were killed. The officer died of wounds in crawling back to our trench and I was severely wounded, but one fellow returned without a scratch, without any prisoners. No doubt this chap was the one who had sneezed and improperly cut the barbed wire.

In the official communique our trench raid was described as follows:

"All quiet on the western front, excepting in the neighborhood of Gommecourt wood, where one of our raiding parties penetrated into the German lines."

It is needless to say that we had no use for our persuaders or come-alongs, as we brought back no prisoners, and until I die Old Pepper's words, "Personally I don't believe that that part of the German trench is occupied," will always come to me when I hear some fellow trying to get away with a fishy statement. I will judge it accordingly.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Blighty.

From this first-aid post, after inoculating me with antitetanus serum to prevent lockjaw, I was put into an ambulance and sent to a temporary hospital behind the lines. To reach this hospital we had to go along a road about five miles in length. This road was under shell fire, for now and then a flare would light up the sky—a tremendous explosion—and then the road seemed to tremble. We did not mind, though no doubt some of us wished that a shell would hit us and end our misery. Personally, I was not particular. It was nothing but bump, jolt, rattle, and bang.

Several times the driver would turn around and give us a "Cheero, mates, we'll soon be there—" fine fellows, those ambulance drivers, a lot of them go West, too.

We gradually drew out of the fire zone and pulled up in front of an immense dugout. Stretcher-bearers carried me down a number of steps and placed me on a white table in a brightly lighted room.

A sergeant of the Royal Army Medical corps removed my bandages and cut off my tunic. Then the doctor, with his sleeves rolled up, took charge. He winked at me and I winked back, and then he asked, "How do you feel, smashed up a bit?"

I answered: "I'm all right, but I'd give a quid for a drink of Bass."

He nodded to the sergeant, who disappeared, and I'll be darned if he didn't return with a glass of ale. I could only open my mouth about a quarter of an inch, but I got away with every drop of that ale. It tasted just like Blighty, and that is heaven to Tommy.

The doctor said something to an orderly, the only word I could catch was "chloroform," then they put some kind of an arrangement over my nose and mouth and it was me for dreamland.

When I opened my eyes I was lying on a stretcher, in a low wooden building. Everywhere I looked I saw rows of Tommies on stretchers, some dead to the world, and the rest with fags in their mouths.

The main topic of their conversation was Blighty. Nearly all had a grin on their faces, except those who didn't have enough face left to grin with. I grinned with my right eye, the other was bandaged.

Stretcher-bearers came in and began to carry the Tommies outside. You could hear the chug of the engines in the waiting ambulances.

I was put into an ambulance with three others and away we went for an eighteen-mile ride.

I was on a bottom stretcher. The lad right across from me was smashed up something horrible.

Right above me was a man from the Royal Irish rifles, while across from him was a Scotchman.

We had gone about three miles when I heard the death-rattle in the throat of the man opposite. He had gone to rest across the Great Divide. I think at the time I envied him.

The man of the Royal Irish rifles had had his left foot blown off, the jolting of the ambulance over the rough road had loosened up the bandages on his foot, and had started it bleeding again. This blood ran down the side of the stretcher and started dripping. I was lying on my back, too weak to move, and the dripping of this blood got me in my unbandaged right eye. I closed my eye and pretty soon could not open the lid; the blood had congealed and closed it, as if it were glued down.

An English girl dressed in khaki was driving the ambulance, while beside her on the seat was a corporal of the R. A. M. C., They kept up a running conversation about Blighty which almost wrecked my nerves; pretty soon from the stretcher above me, the Irishman became aware of the fact that the bandage from his foot had become loose; it must have pained him horribly, because he yelled in a loud voice:

"If you don't stop this bloody death wagon and fix this d—— bandage on my foot, I will get out and walk."

The girl on the seat turned around and in a sympathetic voice asked, "Poor fellow, are you very badly wounded?"

The Irishman, at this question, let out a howl of indignation and answered, "Am I very badly wounded, what bloody cheek; no, I'm not wounded, I've only been kicked by a canary bird."

The ambulance immediately stopped, and the corporal came to the rear and fixed him up, and also washed out my right eye. I was too weak to thank him, but it was a great relief. Then I must have become unconscious, because when I regained my senses, the ambulance was at a standstill, and my stretcher was being removed from it.

It was night, lanterns were flashing here and there, and I could see stretcher-bearers hurrying to and fro. Then I was carried into a hospital train.

The inside of this train looked like heaven to me, just pure white, and we met our first Red Cross nurses; we thought they were angels. And they were.

Nice little soft bunks and clean, white sheets.

A Red Cross nurse sat beside me during the whole ride which lasted three hours. She was holding my wrist; I thought I had made a hit, and tried to tell her how I got wounded, but she would put her finger to her lips and say, "Yes, I know, but you mustn't talk now, try to go to sleep, it'll do you good, doctor's orders." Later on I learned that she was taking my pulse every few minutes, as I was very weak from the loss of blood and they expected me to snuff it, but I didn't.

From the train we went into ambulances for a short ride to the hospital ship Panama. Another palace and more angels. I don't remember the trip across the channel.

I opened my eyes; I was being carried on a stretcher through lanes of people, some cheering, some waving flags, and others crying. The flags were Union Jacks, I was in Southampton. Blighty at last. My stretcher was strewn with flowers, cigarettes, and chocolates. Tears started to run down my cheek from my good eye. I like a booby was crying. Can you beat it?—

Then into another hospital train, a five-hour ride to Paignton, another ambulance ride, and then I was carried into Munsey ward of the American Women's War hospital and put into a real bed.

This real bed was too much for my unstrung nerves and I fainted.

When I came to, a pretty Red Cross nurse was bending over me, bathing my forehead with cold water, then she left and the ward orderly placed a screen around my bed, and gave me a much-needed bath and clean pajamas. Then the screen was removed and a bowl of steaming soup was given me. It tasted delicious.

Before finishing my soup the nurse came back to ask me my name and number. She put this information down in a little book and then asked:

"Where do you come from?" I answered:

"From the big town behind the Statue of Liberty;" upon hearing this she started jumping up and down, clapping her hands, and calling out to three nurses across the ward:

"Come here, girls—at last we have got a real live Yankee with us."

They came over and besieged me with questions, until the doctor arrived. Upon learning that I was an American he almost crushed my hand in his grip of welcome. They also were Americans, and were glad to see me.

The doctor very tenderly removed my bandages and told me, after viewing my wounds, that he would have to take me to the operating theater immediately. Personally I didn't care what was done with me.

In a few minutes, four orderlies who looked like undertakers dressed in white, brought a stretcher to my bed and placing me on it carried me out of the ward, across a courtyard to the operating room or "pictures," as Tommy calls it.

I don't remember having the anesthetic applied.

When I came to I was again lying in a bed in Munsey ward. One of the nurses had draped a large American flag over the head of the bed, and clasped in my hand was a smaller flag, and it made me feel good all over to again see the "Stars and Stripes."

At that time I wondered when the boys in the trenches would see the emblem of the "land of the free and the home of the brave" beside them, doing its bit in this great war of civilization.

My wounds were very painful, and several times at night I would dream that myriads of khaki-clothed figures would pass my bed and each would stop, bend over me, and whisper, "The best of luck, mate."

Soaked with perspiration I would awake with a cry, and the night nurse would come over and hold my hand. This awakening got to be a habit with me until that particular nurse was transferred to another ward.

In three weeks' time, owing to the careful treatment received, I was able to sit up and get my bearings. Our ward contained seventy-five patients, 90 per cent of which were surgical cases. At the head of each bed hung a temperature chart and diagnosis sheet. Across this sheet would be written "G. S. W." or "S. W.," the former meaning gun shot wound and the latter shell wound. The "S. W." predominated, especially among the Royal Field artillery and Royal engineers.

About forty different regiments were represented, and many arguments ensued as to the respective fighting ability of each regiment. The rivalry was wonderful. A Jock arguing with an Irishman, then a strong Cockney accent would butt in in favor of a London regiment. Before long a Welshman, followed by a member of a Yorkshire regiment, and, perhaps, a Canadian intrude themselves and the argument waxes loud and furious. The patients in the beds start howling for them to settle their dispute outside and the ward is in an uproar. The head sister comes along and with a wave of the hand completely routs the doughty warriors and again silence reigns supreme.

Wednesday and Sunday of each week were visiting days and were looked forward to by the men, because they meant parcels containing fruit, sweets or fags. When a patient had a regular visitor, he was generally kept well supplied with these delicacies. Great jealousy is shown among the men as to their visitors and many word wars ensue after the visitors leave.

When a man is sent to a convalescent home, he generally turns over his steady visitor to the man in the next bed.

Most visitors have autograph albums and bore Tommy to death by asking him to write the particulars of his wounding in same. Several Tommies try to duck this unpleasant job by telling the visitors that they cannot write, but this never phases the owner of the album; he or she, generally she, offers to write it for them and Tommy is stung into telling his experiences.

The questions asked Tommy by visitors would make a clever joke book to a military man.

Some kindly looking old lady will stop at your bed and in a sympathetic voice address you: "You poor boy, wounded by those terrible Germans. You must be suffering frightful pain. A bullet, did you say? Well, tell me, I have always wanted to know, did it hurt worse going in or coming out?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

VELOCITY OF BIG SHELLS

Geometer Uses Problem of How Long Time Is Required for Stone to Fall to Center of Earth.

Studying the velocity of shells and bullets fired in the war led Maurice Sauger, a French geometer, to turn to the old question of the time it would take a stone to fall to the center of the earth. His conclusion was that it would take about 20 minutes 34 seconds.

Gassenddi, who gave the subject much thought in the last century, made the time 20 minutes even. Mersenne on the other hand contended that six hours would be required.

Sauger says that as the stone approached the center of the earth it would be drawn downward by the core of the earth and upward by the shell which it had already penetrated. The rate at which the density of the earth varies or increases as we penetrate to greater depths is unknown. Sauger's formula is based upon considerations of the moment of inertia of the earth, as calculated from the precession of the equinoxes, which agree with observations on the density of the earth conducted in mine shafts.

If a shaft were driven right through the earth the stone would appear at the Antipodes after 38 minutes 30 seconds and then return to its starting point, at which it would make its reappearance at the end of 1 hour 17 minutes.

Her Limit.

Bank Cashier—This check, madam, isn't filled in.

Madam—Isn't what?

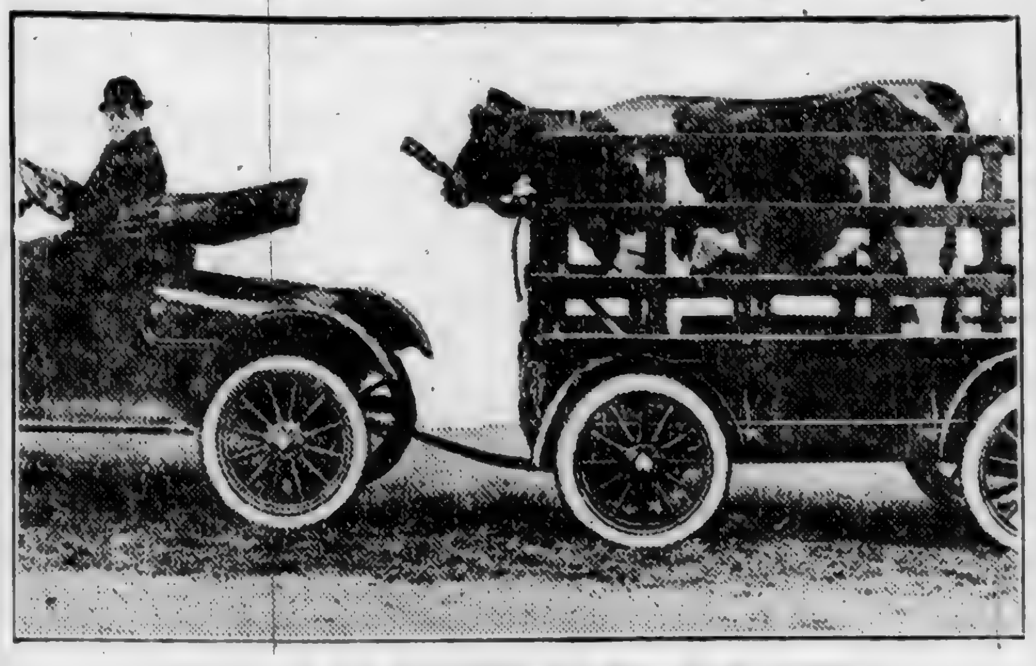
Bank Cashier—It has your husband's name signed to it, but it does not state how much money you want.

Madam—Oh, is that all? Well, I'll take all there is.—Pearson's Weekly.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

COMFORT FOR THE TRAVELING COW



A Queen of the Dairy Rides in State to the Station.

PROPER CARE OF DAIRY ANIMALS

Stockmen Must Make Special Efforts to Move Them With a Minimum of Loss.

SHOULD BE FED REGULARLY

Every Effort Should Be Made to Expedite Railroad Movement of Cows During Their Time in Transit—Keep Comfortable.

Each fall an influx of springer or fresh cows enters dairying sections that seek more milch animals. Every effort should be exercised to expedite the railroad movement of the dairy cows during their time in transit and to provide all possible comfort for the animals en route, advise the dairy experts of the U. S. department of agriculture. Such care and attention will reduce mortality and will increase the production of the individual during her lactation period over the flow which generally obtains from the average cow that is carelessly "railroaded."

Valuable purebred cows should be moved as rapidly as possible by express service or by freight under the special system of loading described below, from origin to destination. Although the expense of expressage is four or five times as great as that of handling the animals by freight, the saving in animal comfort, shorter time in transit and better conveniences for feeding and watering the animals make the added expenditure advisable. As far as possible the animals should be shipped one or two months before they are due to freshen, as repeatedly fresh cows have been ruined so far as the subsequent lactation period has been concerned as a result of being shipped shortly after freshening or so as to calve in transit.

Care in Shipping.

Milch cows of grade breeding usually are shipped by freight. The experienced stockman selects only dry cows and far-springers for long shipments. Heifers which are not due to freshen until three or four weeks after arrival at destination make good "buys," as they are of a size and condition which permits of loading the car to capacity. Furthermore, immature animals are less susceptible to injury in transit and to damage as a result of a marked change of environment. If possible, only animals without horns should be shipped and in case any horned animals have to be moved they should be tied securely or penned apart in one end of the car to preclude the possibility of their injuring other animals during the journey. Similarly, where bulls are shipped in mixed loads these sires should be confined apart from the other cattle. Other conditions being equal, it is advisable to load about fourteen mature cows in a 38 or 40 foot car. A practical arrangement is to tie four cows in each end of the car facing the end walls, and then rough partitions can be installed so that two other rows of three cows each face a center alleyway between the car doors where the attendant can stay and extra feed and water be carried. This arrangement is more comfortable for the cows, as they ride and absorb the shock and jar better, while it is also simpler for the caretaker to feed the cows and clean out the car en route.

Ship in Cold Weather.

As far as possible the stock should be shipped during cold weather, advise the authorities of the U. S. department of agriculture, as cows handled during hot weather are liable to shrink appreciably in milk flow during the successive lactation period. Special precaution must be exercised in shipping cows during cold weather, to avoid exposure which will favor the contraction of pneumonia, usually a fatal disease among mature cowstuff. At best it takes an animal about a year to become thoroughly acclimated to a warmer or colder climate than that to which it has been accustomed, and on this account the movement should take place at a time of year when the temperature of the two points is as nearly equable as possible.

Dairy cows should be handled under normal conditions before and during the trip. They should be fed and watered at regular intervals, and if any of the animals are in milk they should be milked on schedule. It pays to feed grain and hay during a long shipment where the cows are accustomed to these materials. Simple provisions for the feeding of hay can be made by stretching small mesh hog wire along the side walls and ceiling of the car so as to form a wedge-shaped feeding bunk, which can be filled with hay in correspondence with the appetites of the cattle. Grain is a difficult material to feed in transit in a freight car where no special provisions are made to prevent wastage as a result of the tendency of the animals to move about where they are not haltered in place. On long trips grain can be carried in the car and fed at points where the stock is unloaded. A competent attendant should always accompany the dairy cows. He should ride in the car with the stock, as often he can avert injury to the animals by prompt action in the car in case one of the cows gets down.

Water and Feed.

Several large barrels of water, as well as plenty of feed should be carried in the car as protection against delay or accident which may detain the train to the extent that without this feed the animals would go hungry or thirsty far beyond the 36-hour limit. Sand or cinders constitute the best bedding materials and during long trips fresh supplies of these materials should be placed in the car at unloading points whenever they are needed. In view of the high price of dairy cows at the present time, it is imperative that every stockman exert all effort to make for cow comfort in transit and to move the animals with a minimum of loss as a result of carelessness, lack of attention and inexperience in the cow shipping business.

PROFITS FROM SURPLUS

Two sources of income from dairy cattle are worthy of consideration. One is represented by the sale of products, either milk or butterfat; and the other comes from the sale of surplus stock. Often the latter may amount to a considerable sum, even though the herd is composed of grade animals. The predominance of a certain breed in a community offers many advantages. A market is established which, because of the availability of large numbers of animals, attracts buyers from a distance, especially those who buy large consignments. Under such circumstances all surplus stock may be disposed of to better advantage and co-operative advertising also may be used effectively.

Raise Rabbits for Meat.

Rabbits, which have proved a valuable food source in Europe during the present war, may well be raised more extensively in America to reduce the drain on the the ordinary meat supply, according to biologists of the U. S. department of agriculture. The animals may be raised in back yards of cities and towns as well as on farms.

The Belgian and Flemish giant rabbits are recommended for meat production, as the ordinary tame rabbit is smaller and develops more slowly. Rabbits are easily kept. They eat hay, grass, lawn cuttings and green vegetation of many kinds.

The department has published a bulletin on raising rabbits, which will be helpful to persons who wish to engage in this pursuit.

More Care Necessary.

The greater the number of birds kept upon any farm or plot of ground, and the more they are crowded together, the greater is the danger from contagion and parasites, and the more important are the measures for excluding, eradicating, and preventing the development of these causes of disease.

Why Dread Old Age?

It doesn't matter how old you are, if you keep well and active. Lots of folks are younger at 70 than others are at 60. Lame, bent backs; stiff, achy, rheumatic joints; bad eyesight and deafness are too often due to neglected kidney trouble and not to advancing years. Don't let weak kidneys age you. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have made life more comfortable for thousands of elderly folks.

An Indiana Case

Mrs. John Knox, 520 Polk St., Gary, Ind., says: "I was in such bad shape with my back and kidneys and could hardly move in bed. Sometimes I was so bad I had to be lifted around. My kidneys were acting irregularly and whenever I tried to move sharp pains shot all through my body, almost driving me frantic. Doan's Kidney Pills brought back my health and cured me of every symptom of kidney complaint."

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Make The Laundress Happy

by making it possible for her to turn out beautiful, snowy white, clothes like new.

Red Cross Ball Blue

will enable the laundress to produce fine, fresh-looking pure white clothes instead of the greenish yellow usually obtained. RED CROSS BALL BLUE always pleases.

5 cents.

At all up-to-date grocers.

YOU CAN'T CUT OUT A BOG SPAVIN OR THOROUGHPIN

but you can clean them off promptly with

ABSORBINE TRADE MARK REG.U.S.PAT.OFF.

and you work the horse same time. Does not blister or remove the hair. $2.50 per bottle, delivered. Will tell you more if you write. Book 4 R free. ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Varicose Veins, Ruptured Muscles or Ligaments, Enlarged Glands, Wens, Cysts. Allays pain quickly. Price $1.25 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Made in the U. S. A. by

W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

Fine 80 Acres Stock, crops, tools all $2,600. Part cash; worth $4,500. Must go west. House goods free. Box 56, Fordsville, Ky.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 39--1918.

Jerusalem to Gaza by Rail.

The modern Ethiopian travels from Jerusalem to Gaza on the way to his home country far up the Nile by railroad train. Reports from Palestine indicate that since the British occupation of the country Gaza, the chief city of the Philistines in Old Testament days, and the scene of Samson's exploits, has become an important railroad center, the broad-guage railway having been extended from Gaza to a point 50 miles to the northward, and the old Turkish line from Ludd to Jerusalem, as well as the recently constructed branch line from Gaza to Surar Junction, has been restored and is now in operation.—Rochester Post Express.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

All Druggists 75c. Circulars free.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Wet and Muddy.

One day while the soldiers were hiking on a country road which was water in some places and mud in other places one of the officers said, "I'll be darned if I'm not getting tired of being a duck one minute and a mud turtle the next."

Murderous.

Bell—How did she cut him dead?

Stell—Looked daggers at him.—Chicago Daily News.

A torpid liver prevents proper food assimilation. Tone up your liver with Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills. They act gently. Adv.

Philadelphia convicts want to be sent to France to fight.

Your Eyes Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At Your Druggists or by mail 60c per Bottle. For Book of the Eye free write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0518

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.

Chamberlain's Tablets

HERE AND THERE

Henry D. Carey took a day off last Thursday and attended the Hicksville fair.

The Lutheran missionary society will meet Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Huldah Reasoner.

Mrs. E. R. Kinsey went to Auburn on Thursday to visit relatives, returning the first of the week.

Mrs. Ida Walker and J. C. Hull and wife were pleasantly entertained at the home of Will Smith last Friday.

Harry Hursh and wife, Howard Northrup and wife and Mrs. Marsh Andress spent Sunday at the Will Hamilton home.

Frank Bachtel spent the greater part of last week at home with his family, returning Saturday to his work at Toledo.

Jacob Sechler and wife went to Hicksville on Wednesday to visit their daughter, Mrs. Everett Mavis, and attend the fair.

Mrs. Ida Walker and granddaughter, Mabel, are here visiting the former's sister, Mrs. J. C. Hull, and other relatives.

Miss Inez Hart returned to her work at Hicksville on Monday morning, after an enforced absence of a week on account of illness.

Darwin Frye and wife, Miss Pauline Barney and Virgil Perry were Sunday dinner guests of Charles Frye and wife, near Coburntown.

Hubert Shook came home on Thursday to visit his parents, Dr. and Mrs B. O. Shook, until the last of this week, when he will return to school at Cincinnati.

Mrs. Verne Monroe entertained a number of guests over night in honor of Miss Lela Wallace. Besides the hostess and guest of honor, there were present Misses Geraldine Hull, Pauline Barney, Wilma Magers and Norma Gamble and Mrs. Darwin Frye.

R. H. Abel and wife and Mrs. Ann Abel spent Sunday with Mrs. Ella Patterson.

Mrs. Ernest Steward and baby, of Spencerville, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Elma Brown.

Hollis Jackson and wife and Bert Jackson spent Sunday with their brother, Charles Jackson, and family.

Lester Grate and wife, of Waterloo, came Saturday night and visited until Sunday night at the Mel. Herrick home.

Harry Shook and wife, of Toledo, and John Hannah and wife, of Defiance, spent Friday night and Saturday with Mel. Herrick and wife.

Charles Herrick and family and Mr. Hatfeld and wife, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, visited a few days last week with relatives in this vicinity.

Leon Sechler and wife, of Garrett, visited relatives at this place from Friday night until Sunday night. A breakdown on the interurban, where he is employed, left him without work for several days. He returned to duty Monday morning.

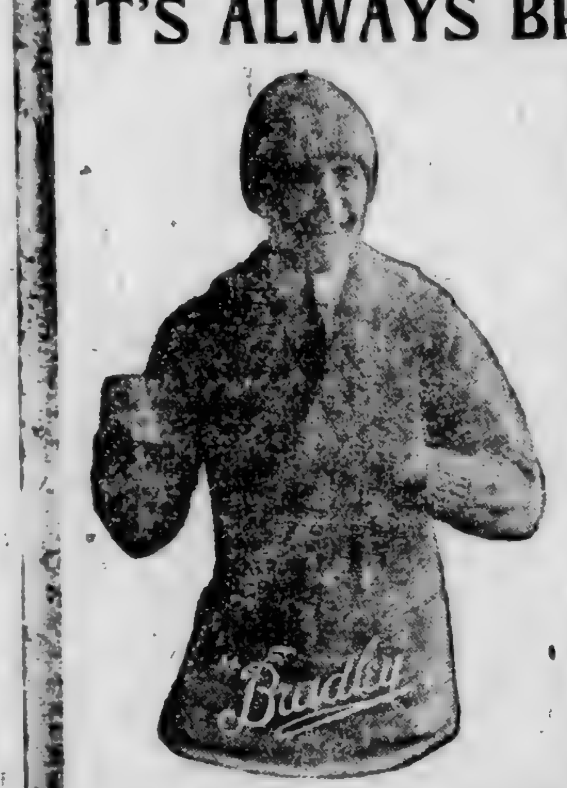
One deed from Concord township was recorded last week: James B. Draggoo to L. J. and M. H. Draggoo, 16 acres out the north side of the south half of the southeast quarter of section 18. Consideration, $800.

Mrs. George Milliman, Mrs. S. A. Abel and Mort. and Henry Milliman returned home Tuesday morning from Hesperia, Mich., where they were called several weeks ago by the serious illness of Mrs. Libbie Tibbets, sister of the last three. Mrs. Tibbets died last Thursday.

The W. C. T. U county convention will be held at the public library building, Auburn, on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, Sept. 26. Election of officers in the afternoon—program in the evening. For those going by train, a means of return will be provided after the evening session.

Hooray!

IT'S ALWAYS BRADLEY TIME



No moth ball vacations for your Bradley Sweater—you want it all year. Straight through one season into another you wear it and it looks like new. That's because Bradleys are built for both service and style—to withstand the test of hard wear and critical eyes. Warmth without weight or restraint, thoroughbred style and quality make the Bradley Sweater ideal for outdoor sports. They are handy for fun of all sorts—tramping, camping, conoeing, skating or in the house.

SWEATERS AT FROM $1.50 to $12.50

WM. KNISELY & SON.
Butler, Indiana
CLOTHING FURNISHINGS SHOES.

ANCESTRAL PRIDE

Green married the Widder Brown one day
When the checker players was all away
And he didn't have nothin' else to do
But marry her, as he'd promised to.
And he says to her: "Widder, you'll share my joys
And sorrers, I reckon; but them three boys
Is your'n, by gracious—I make no claim
To them, I tell ye! They got your name.
I'm marryin' you, jist you, I be:
I ain't a-weddin' no family."

Well, Green he married the Widder Brown,
And she had a farm right clost to town.
When his health was good, he'd work a spell;
But he wasn't often a-feelin' well.
So she ran it mostly, with Tom and Joe
And Bill—they handled the rake and hoe
And plow and harrer and milked the cows;
While Green, he traveled between the house
And the grocery store, where he played and spent
Consid'able unearned increment.

Well, them Brown boys grew and grew and grew,
Nineteen and twenty and twenty-two;
But all of 'em Browns, not Greens, you know,
'Cuz Green, he took pains to tell 'em so.
Then the war come on and they went, all three,
Right outen the Widder's family:
They wasn't backward or slow or skeered,
Jist kissed the Widder and volunteered;
And Green come back from checkers and town,
And nobody home but the Widder Brown.

Well, we had a meetin' the follerin' day,
With a speaker to speak and a band to play,
And flags a-flyin' and buntin', too,
And everybody a feller knew
Was right on deck, and we built a stand
For the speaker and parents and choir and band;
And Green druv in with the Widder Brown—
Now Green, of course—druv in to town
And hitched his hosses and arched his neck
And marched right up on the stand, by heck!

And he shuck the speaker right by the hand,
And nodded acrost at the cornet band,
And smiled at the choir with his chest a-swell
And a three star button in his lapel.
"Our boys is gone," he says—"our three Tuck right blame outen our family!"
And all of us fellers gasped a spell;
And old Jed Hawkins, he says: "Oh, hell!"
But there was Green, with his chest a-swell
And them three stars in his coat lapel!

—James W. Foley, in Saturday Evening Post

BRAINSTORM

The News does not mean to imitate the pup that got hold of a root and held on and growled without having sense enough to let go, and it does not purpose to continue its criticism of "Sane American" to senseless lengths; but it will correct him in one particular. He says: "There is no law to compel a person to arise or in any other way to assume a worshipful attitude toward our country's emblem." True as to the "worshipful attitude," but wrong as to the "arising." There is at present a law to compel all to stand before the flag and to force men to uncover—public sentiment. Under a republican form of government, public sentiment rules, by statute or (in emergencies) by the will of the majority alone. The latter does not mean mob rule; but applies to those rare instances where, in the absence of written law, people right wrongs or promote the public good. We will illustrate: a town is threatened with inundation and the building of levees is urgent, every able bodied man would be forced to shovel for common protection and shirkers would not be tolerated. Law or no law, in such a crisis, all would be forced to work. Public sentiment sometimes becomes more powerful than the law: no jury would think of or dare to convict the person that trounced a notorious bully. The other day, a pro-German told an Indiana lady that he thought she was no better than the kaiser. She resented being put in the same class with Hun Bill and emphasized her resentment (hoo-ray!) by knocking the fellow down. He retaliated by striking her. Both were arrested. Both had violated the law. The judge, however, fined the man the limit and sent him to jail, but complimented the woman; and the onlookers, representing public sentiment, applauded the verdict. Now, it hath been ordained by the highest power in the land, the will of an overwhelming majority of the people, that certain evidences of loyalty are necessary; and when "Old Glory"—the symbol of a free country and of a mighty purpose—is carried past, every man must uncover; and when national airs are sung or played, all must arise. "Sane American" says that such a law is tyrannical. Not so: tyranny works injury to person or property. The law is born of patriotism, not despotism; appeals to the best, not the worst.

Hicksville has organized to fight the liquor traffic, but among the names of those who have charge of the campaign we fail to see that of an apostle of temperance who edits a paper at that place and is also an enthusiastic Sunday school worker, who is an Atlas at moral uplift and wielded that weapon that is mightier than the sword in the joint cause of reform, Smudge & Punk's cigarettes and near beer. Poor fellow! he confessed his sin in the columns of his paper, did penance by discontinuing cigarette ads (after his contract expired) and yet he fails to hear the "Arise and go in peace" and is not invited to a place among the elect.

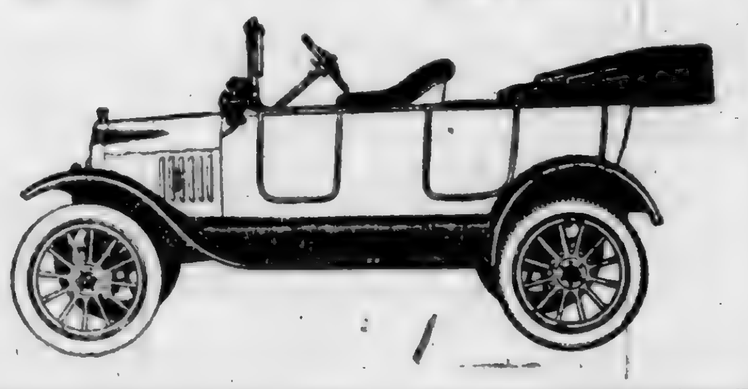
Germam papers that have reached France state that submarines have bombarded Wilmington, N. C., and Charleston, S. C, and that all the Atlantic seaports are terrorized lest they meet the same fate. By such dope as this does the war party keep alive the military spirit in Germany. This will succeed until that misguided people learn the truth, and then the day of reckoning will come for the rulers.

Because the allies are winning is no reason why the American people should abate their efforts. On the contrary, it should inspire them with renewed energy. The war is not won, but victory is assured if our people do their duty. Buy Liberty bonds. Help Uncle Sam help the boys in France.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

While there's no telling what conditions may face the country before the war is over, one thing is certain; and that is that Ford cars will grow more and more into being actual necesrities, both in city and country. Prospective buyers will do well do well to place orders NOW, when a reasonably quick delivery is possible. Don't put it off till spring, for the demand is continueus from all parts of the country: Ford cars are wanted in the North, South, East and West, every day of the year. Let us have your order today, and we will hustle our best that you may not be kept waiting.

FRANK W. SILBERG, Agent,
ST. JOE SPENCERVILLE



LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Rolla Wiers returned the latter part of the week from a visit in Cincinnati.

H. F. Garton, wife and daughter, Zora, were over-Sunday guests of his sister, Mrs. Emma Yocum, of Fort Wayne, called there by the illness of a little niece.

NEWVILLE

Sunday, Oct. 6, will be "Rally" day at the U. B. church. Everybody is welcome.

Chub Richmond is seriously ill with asthma. Dr. Brunson is the attending physician.

Many were sorry to have Rev. Hively leave. We hope we may get as good a minister to fill his place.

Little Levon Richmond was quite ill with indigestion the latter part of last week. The little fellow is very much better at this writing.

Arthur Richmond and wife, of Hicksville, were guests last week of Chub Richmond and family. Arthur is minus a couple of toes, but his foot is about well.

Mrs. Effie Burrows, of Cleveland, came last week on account of the serious illness of her father, Elmer Wyatt. Mas. Leona Mills and two children accompanied Mrs. Burrows.

Mrs. John Gillingham was operated upon soon after reaching Hope hospital, Fort Wayne, Tuesday of last week. The nature of her illness has not been made public.

John Gillingham on Sunday came home from Fort Wayne, where he had been with his wife. His daughter, Mrs. Lewis Lyons, of Hesperia, Mich., who arrived at Fort Wayne on Saturday to see her mother, accompanied her father home. They returned to Ft. Wayne on Monday.

Mrs. Hazel Harrington is caring for her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Mitchell, who is bedfast again. Mrs. Harrington will accept a position in the Benner store in a short time. Mrs. Laura Schramm, who has been clerking there, has resigned and expects to fit herself for a government nurse.

Chub Richmond and Wal. Warner have the contract for hauling the pupils of the Newville school.

Little Mona Traxler is suffering with a felon on her finger. Dr. Farnham prescribed for her relief.

Mrs. George Simanton, of St. Joe, and Mrs. Blanche Wyatt were guests of Elmer Wyatt and wife on Saturday and Sunday.

Don Washler took Mrs. E. E. Traxler and Hugh Traxler and wife to Fort Wayne on Saturday. The ladies called on Mrs. Gillingham. They report her cheerful, but very week.

We are sorry for reporting the death of Mrs. Joseph Bice last week. Word to that effect was received in Newville, but it proved to be false. However, Mrs. Bice died on Friday, Sept. 20, after a lingering illness at the hospital at Hicksville.

The Complexion Is the Health Barometer

A good complexion can not be obtained when the liver, kidneys or bowels are inactive. Bilious or poisonous matter within the body causes the sallow, muddy or splotchy complexion. Why drag around looking tired, old and dejected when Glando Tonic will put you right? It will remove the poisons and give you new life and strength. Glando Tonic acts directly on the liver, kidneys and small glands of the stomach and bowels. Its great popularity is due to the wonderful cures which have been obtained through its use. Sold by druggists or may be secured by sending direct to the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Jeighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —Editor News.]

FOR SALE:-Young Holstein Jersey Cow. CARL JOHNSON.

For Sale.--Good round Jewel heating stove. Burns coal or wood. Inquire of Mrs. Benjamin Hamilton.

For Sale.--Good Laurel range. Inquire of Mrs. Bessie Tustison.

For Sale.--Soft coal burner. Inquire of Charles Koch.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0519

AD NO. 2.

SATURDAY SPECIALS

Our "Saturday Special" ads are new to the people but we were well pleased with the results. Just keep your eyes on our ads and you will have some wonderful bargains to take advantage of—LOOK AT THESE ARTICLES!

For Next Saturdar Only:

STOCKINGS!

From 25 to 40 cents per pair is the nominal price now for Children's Hosiery—but you can make a big here—SATURDAY we place our assortment of Odds and Ends on sale at your liking for only, per pair... 10c. You will look a long time for better bargain in hosiery and besides it's a necessary.

Ladies-Ready-Made-Dresses	$1.00 to $4.00
Superior Mustard Dressing	9c.
Red Cut Maccaroni	14c.
Our Pride Coffee, 25c. value at	20c.
Mascot Soap—6 bars	25c

BEAMS & COMPANY

SPENCERVILLE

Bert Wasson and family and Mrs. George Watson and niece returned home on Thursday from Louisville, Ky., where they visited the former's son, Ray Wasson, who is in the training camp near that city. The young man's wife is with him and will remain until he is ordered to the coast.

Rev. Glenn Bryan and family left Monday morning for Geneva, where they will begin the basement of a new bungalow they are building on their farm near that place.

Charles Freese visited his daughter, Mrs. Jennie Brown, and family, of Auburn, Monday.

Mrs. Jennie Walter and babe are visiting her mother, Mrs. Cora Steward. Miss Minta Steward, who has been visiting, has returned home.

The report came Sunday that Art. Smith would fly over this place between 12 and 1 o'clock in the interest of the fourth Liberty loan, and would land in the Zener field, near the school building. He flew over the town between 4 and 5 o'clock, passing over several times.

About fifty ladies gathered at the Lutheran church Saturday evening, when the U. S. Food club gave a program. There are four clubs here, with fifteen ladies in each and with the following chairmen: Mesdames Beulah Vallieu, Maude Henderson, Flossie Rhoades and Gaylan Markle. They will meet and organize in the near future.

Gale Bowser, youngest son of R. U. Bowser, met with an accident Friday evening while milking. The cow started to walk away and stepped on the lad's leg, cracking the bone just above the ankle.

Isidore Badica and family, near Fort Wayne, spent several days last week at the home of Mrs. Badica's mother, Mrs. Emily Gloyd.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Silberg and Charles Scott and wife visited Auburn relatives, Monday.

Milton Chaney and wife were Friday guests of the former's brother, Wal. Chaney.

Frank House and wife, of Auburn, Charles Boston, of near Grabill, and Joel Betz and wife were Sunday guests of Vern Wilmot and family.

Harvey Beam and wife entertained Rev. Emmons and wife and Miss Mary Comesky at dinner Sunday.

The ladies' guild of the M. E. church will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Ida Gibbons, east of town, Thursday afternoon.

Paul Wasson, who had been for several months at the Lutheran hospital, Fort Wayne, was able to spend Sunday with his parents, Bert Wasson and wife.

Elmer Chaney and wife, of Ann Arbor, spent several days last week with the former's brothers, Milton and Reason Chaney.

Mrs Hattie Bair and daughter, Mamie, J. C. Vallieu, wife and son, James, and Ross Bair were Sunday afternoon guests at the home of Adrian Miller, near Scipio.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Beams & Co , of Spencerville. They are offering some special bargains on Saturday.

Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma on Tuesday were called to Decatur to attend a funeral.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to

Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

POST CARDS

are now on dispay at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratuation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent folders.

StJOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY, PUB.
St. Joe Ind

Obituary

MARY (TEMPLETON) PHEBUS, the daughter of John and Jane Templeton, was born near Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 10, 1831; and died at the home of her daughter. Mrs. Mary Douglass, of Concord, Ind., Sept. 20, 1918, aged 87 years, 7 months and 10 days.

She, with her parents and others of the family, came to Indiana in 1850 or 1851, settling in the vicinity of what is now known as the town of Templeton, in Benton county.

Soon after coming to Indiana, she was united in marriage to A. B. Phebus. To this union were born eight children, four of whom, with the father, preceded the mother to the great beyond. The surviving children are John Phebus, of Monon, Ind.; Silas Phebus, of Indianapolis; Mrs. Addie Bloomer, of Indianapolis; Mrs. Mary Douglass, of Concord. Besides these, there are thirty grandchildren, eighteen great-grandchildren and three great great-grandchildren and one aged brother, Hamilton Templeton, of Reynolds, Ind.

Mrs. Phebus had been an invalid for four years; but, through it all, there was the calm peacefulness of the old-time southern gentlewoman; and while her life was never a demonstrative one in any relation, whether of family or religion, her trust was in Him who "doeth all things well."

The mother of four generations has passed away. The body that endured the storms and sunshine of nearly a century has at last found rest from its suffering and pain.

Mrs. Phebus was a member of the Church of Christ at Palestine, White county, Ind.

Take All the Premiums

When people of that part of the Buckeye state immediately east of here want anything done—done right and according to Hoyle, mind you—they send forth the Macedonian cry, "Come and help us," over into Indiana. F'rinstance, the Hicksville fair needed agricultural exhibits to complete its showing; and that part of Indiana designated on the map as DeKalb county—particularly the eastern part thereof—went to help of the same fair. Indeed, had it not been for the Hoosiers, the agricultural exhibits would have looked like a "figger nuthin'" with a minus sign before it. There were five premiums offered; and these same Hoosiers carried away five of them, leaving the others for the Buckeyes. The premiums aggregated $200. Following are the exhibitors:

First.—Mrs. Carl Johnson	$65
Second.—Clyde Hart	50
Third.—Fred Hart	40
Fourth.—Claude Laub	30
Fifth.—Dan Burley	15

ST. JOE.

Miss Alberta Hart is very ill.

Mrs. John Betz spent last week with Auburn and Avilla relatives, returning home Saturday.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, . . . IND

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
C. O. JOHNSON, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10.45 A. M.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 8:00.

Concord—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 8:00 P. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 8:00 p. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

Public Sale!

The undersigned will offer the following articles at public sale at the Miller farm, Newville, beginning at 10 a. m. on Wednesday. Oct. 2, 1918

HORSES.—Bay gelding coming 4 years; weight, 1,500. Sorrel gelding coming 5 years; weight, 1,500. Bay mare coming 7 years; weight, 1,250. Bay mare coming 12 years; weight, 1,200. Colt coming 2 years.

HOGS.—Seven shotes weghing 80 pounds each; brood sow 2 years old.

CATTLE.—Three good cows giving milk; fresh late this fall.

PRODUCE.—Two acres of good corn in shock, 150 bushels potatoes.

IMPLEMENTS.—Two-horse cultivator, 5-tooth cultivator, 2 Bryan steel breaking plows, McCormick mower, 2 sets work harness and other articles.

Lunch on ground.

W. K. Miller
R. W. McNabb

A. E. LYBARGER, Auc'r
A. D. BRUNSON, Clerk

COBURN'S CORNERS

Mesdames Ella Wilmot and Fred Donley and the latter's baby, were Sunday guests of W. P. Coburn and wife.

P. A. Walker and wife spent Sunday with the latter's parents, George Snyder and wife, of Springfield Center.

C. R. Headley and wife on Sunday entertained R. F. Place, wife and son, Glenn, and Misses Doris and Nellie Shull and Bernice Hart at dinner, Sunday.

PRINTING

Good Printing Is the Dress of Business. That Is the Kind We Do.

Let Us Show You

Subscribe for this paper,
Patronize the advertisers.

Claude Laub and wife were Sunday visitors at the home of Fred Blaker's, near Butler.

Mrs. L. A. Mercer and baby, of near Antwerp, spent Sunday and Monday with T. H. Shull and family.

H. F. Garton left Tuesday morning for Hog Island, near Philadelphia, where he will work in the ship yards.

Earl Tustison, wife and daughter, Irma, called on Mrs. Whitehurst, of Newville, Sunday afternoon.

Forest Hart, wife and baby, of Elkhart, visited in the families of Fred and Clyde Hart from Tuesday until Thursday of last week.

Jesse Klopfenstein, wife and baby, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Klopfenstine's parents, McClellan Hart and wife.

Daniel Oberholtzer and wife entertained the following company at dinner Sunday: Mrs. William Maxwell and son, Willard, Ben Soule and wife and Kenneth Miller and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Oberholtzer will move to St. Joe the last of the week.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

YOUR Life Insurance!

Our Policy Provides for Waiver of Premium—

10 % Income of face amount of Policy each year for total dissability.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY and ANNUAL DIVIDEND

Let me show you the MUTUAL LIFE POLICY.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Don't Be Careless About Your Health

When the liver is not acting properly, the system becomes full of poisonous accumulations, the kidneys and intestinal glands become sluggish and a general debilitated and nervous condition exists. The blood becomes impure, the circulation sluggish and the brain clouded.

A neglected liver causes chronic constipation, jaundice, gall stones and very often cancer.

Glando Tonic acts upon the whole glandular system, of which the liver is the chief gland. If this glandular system is in good working condition, disease has no chance to fasten itself upon you. The best time to doctor is when you begin to feel tired, achy or languid.

To neglect one's self when that tired, draggy feeling is present may mean weeks of severe illness. Let Glando Tonic remove that feeling and give you life and health.

Mothers who have nursing babies should use Glando Tonic to keep their bowels well regulated and their system in good condition. This will regulate baby's bowels and help it to withstand the heat and germs of summer.

Glando Tonic can be obtained of druggists or direct from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

FALL FOOTWEAR

We have received several new styles of Men's and Women's Fall Shoes, and would advise our customers to get in early. Shoes are going to be hard to get in the styles you want.

DON'T PUT IT OFF!

Women's Fine Kid in brown or grey Goodyear welts	$8.00
Same in black, $7 and	7.50
Dress Shoes—Martha Washington, $5.50 to	8.00
Men's Fine Kangaroo, Vici Kid or Calfskin Shoes. — Thompson Bros. make, $6 to	9.00
Others down to	3.00

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK, M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.
BEN LEHMAN PROP

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0520

SKILLED FARMERS IN DEFERRED CLASS

THEY ARE TO BE LISTED WITH THOSE NECESSARY IN OTHER OCCUPATIONS.

BUILDING WORK IS CHECKED

Government Acts to Stop All Needless Construction at Once—Naval Lieutenant Shirk Is Commended for a Daring Rescue.

(From Committee on Public Information.)

Washington.—Agreement has been reached by the war labor policies board, Provost Marshal General Crowder, the secretary of war, the secretary of agriculture and the secretary of labor on a plan to put into deferred classification such persons in the new draft as are necessary in agriculture, industry and other occupations.

Three advisers are to be associated with each district draft board to present facts respecting the supply of necessary workers in these three occupational groups. The agriculture advisers will be nominated by the secretary of agriculture. They will gather accurate facts concerning the requirements of agriculture for the various classes of workers in their own districts. They should have information also as to the needs of such classes in other districts that workers not sufficiently necessary in one district to entitle them to deferred classification may have opportunity to go to other districts in which they are needed.

The department of agriculture has sent a questionnaire to each county agent asking him to furnish reliable information regarding the farm labor needs in his county. The facts are required to assist the district draft boards in keeping in agriculture the (a) "necessary skilled farm laborer in necessary agricultural enterprise" (deferred class 2); (b) "necessary assistant, associate, or hired manager of necessary agricultural enterprise" (deferred class 3); (c) "necessary sole managing, controlling or directing head of necessary agricultural enterprise" (deferred class 4).

What the draft boards desire are facts as to necessary skilled workers. The unskilled workers apparently are not to be considered for deferred classification; they are regarded as more important for the army than for agricultural enterprises and general industry. The department of agriculture points out that necessary skilled farm labor should not be confused with inexperienced help that, with a little training, can do very well some kinds of farm work.

The commander of the United States naval aviation forces, foreign service, reports the heroic action of Lieut. Elbert Walker Shirk, United States naval reserve force, in rescuing a Belgian soldier who had fallen overboard from the U. S. S. Lorraine on June 23, 1918.

On hearing the cry, "man overboard," Lieutenant Shirk dived from the promenade deck of the vessel, 80 feet, and supported the soldier, who had been stunned by his fall into the water. A swift tide carried both men a third of a mile from the Lorraine by the time a lifeboat reached them. During this time the soldier twice released his hold upon the life preserver and sank, but Lieutenant Shirk dived and brought the man back to the surface.

Secretary Daniels has officially commended Lieutenant Shirk for his daring action, and has recommended to the secretary of the treasury that a gold life-saving medal be awarded him.

The recent creation of motor transport corps to take over from all other corps complete control of all motor vehicles in the army will entail the execution of plans of great magnitude and scope.

The personnel and equipment of this corps with each American army will comprise almost as many men and officers as were engaged on both sides in the battle of Waterloo, enough motortrucks to stretch in an unbroken line across the state of Ohio, if they were parked end to end with five-foot spaces between them, and enough motorcycles and other vehicles to stagger by their numbers the great masters of warfare in other times than these.

The actual number of men and officers provided by the motor transport corps to each American army is to be 154,747. The army motortrucks with this unit will number 40,803. There will be 24,250 motorcycles, 7,905 passenger carrying motorcars and 6,598 ambulances, with a total of approximately 100,000 drivers and riders. The officers will number 4,298 and the noncommissioned officers 30,090.

Following a call issued by the national council of defense, applications for enrollment in the volunteer medical service corps are growing rapidly in number. A total of 19,225 letters were received in less than a week.

Information received from nearly 20,000 physicians who responded to the appeal and that which, it is expected, will continue to be received, will be at the disposal of the government authorities for their consideration and use, especially so far as the doctors under forty-six years are concerned.

In addition to barring a long list of industries from the use of various materials, the war industries board has asked 48 state councils of national defense and the 5,000 county councils throughout the country to act for the board in order that all building and construction which is not absolutely necessary may be stopped at once.

In future permits will be required for all building, except in certain government work. In cases where permits are requisite, the local contractor may first obtain the approval of his county council of defense before the permit may be issued.

The United States employment service has also appealed to the bankers of the country to refuse loans which would result in the employment of labor for unnecessary construction, and has requested all states and cities to scrutinize their pay rolls in order to release unnecessary employees in parks, public buildings and elsewhere, so that they may engage in war work.

The procedure approved by the national council of defense and the war industries board contemplates that any person interested in a construction project must apply, with a full statement of the facts under oath, to the appropriate local representatives of the state council of defense having jurisdiction. The state council will investigate and transmit its recommendations to the non-war construction section of the priorities division of the war industries board. The non-war construction section will grant or withold the permit and so notify the state council of defense and the individual concerned.

Pigeon training has become an interesting as well as valuable activity in the new army of the United States. Pigeon lofts are maintained at many of the army camps and aviation fields throughout the country. Each loft is numbered just as every air squadron and every regiment of infantry, cavalry and artillery is numbered. The birds are taken over by the government before they are old enough for raw recruits; are fed and conditioned to make them strong, and then are given a course of training just as are human recruits in the regular establishment.

When the training of these young pigeons is completed they go overseas, the same as the soldiers. The birds play their part on the battle line, are killed and wounded, and some are taken prisoner, but like the horses and dogs with which they serve in the great war, they are never decorated, never cited for bravery in action and never appear in the reports of casualties.

Two of the flying centers where pigeons are specially trained are Kelly and Carruthers fields in Texas. Not fewer than 75 pigeons are sent overseas from Kelly field every six weeks. They come to Kelly lofts when about three months old and are trained by experts over a period of six to eight weeks before they are considered fit for duty. The lofts are mobile, corresponding to those in use in France, and when the training of the birds is finished at Kelly field they are ready to go directly to the trenches.

The first period of advanced training of these pigeons comes with flock tossing, after they have learned to return to their lofts when liberated at distances of from two to twenty miles from the field. That is, they are set free in groups to prevent their being confused and consequently separated and lost. As soon as they have been liberated several times in this manner and have found their way home again they are taken out and tossed individually. Each pigeon has a number, and by bell devices at the entrance of the coop, their arrivals and the time of their flights are kept on record. As soon as a bird shows unfailing ability to return home quickly he is ready for service overseas.

A white flag is the signal most commonly used for training these messenger birds. They soon learn that when this white flag is raised over their lofts they are to stay away for exercise, and when the flag comes down they may return for their food. On some fields, when the birds stray a considerable distance from their loft, they are called back by the rattling of a tin pan.

To help the pigeons recognize their cotes the latter are painted in yellow and white stripes. No matter where a pigeon from Carruthers field is taken thereafter or in what direction, it will not alight on any building except its own loft, which means, of course, that wherever the pigeons go, the loft from which they were trained goes with them. It is only recently that the use of pigeons as messengers has been attempted from airplanes. The birds when used for this purpose are carried in baskets in the fuselage and great care must be exercised in releasing them to prevent the propeller blades from striking them. The aviators or balloonists who handle them also have to be instructed in the manner in which they release the birds for flight. Dropping the birds at high altitudes also requires special forms of training for the birds and instruction for the aviator.

The war trade board has authorized the importation of fresh tomatoes from the Bahamas to New York when they are moved as deck cargo on Cuba-New York mail steamers. Fruits and vegetables are on the restricted import list, but in this, as in other similar cases, it is explained, the war trade board has found it possible to aid vital West Indian industries by permitting tomatoes to be carried as deck load without excluding other more essential cargo and without imposing any further demands upon tonnage.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

CHIEF SEA SCOUT

James Austin Wilders, chief sea scout of the Boy Scouts of America, took his first degree in scouting from General Byng, the hero of Cambrai. Later he visited Baden-Powell, and became so enthusiastic for the movement that he wrote to his home in Hawaii that he intended to inaugurate it there just as soon as he returned. When he arrived in Hawaii he was met by a boy scout troop. As soon as the boys in Hawaii heard what he was going to do they became so impatient that they couldn't wait for him.

The sea scouts, of whom Mr. Wilder is now chief, is a new organization designed to meet a new development in American life. We now have the second greatest navy and we shall soon have the greatest merchant marine in the world. Where are the Americans who will man this fleet? It now costs Uncle Sam $2,000 to turn a landsman into a full-fledged jackie. But most of the training necessary can be done ashore. Lashing is a boy scout specialty. The swinging of lifeboats can be learned at any pier. It doesn't require a cruiser to teach oarsmanship and swimming, first aid to the injured or the fundamentals of discipline.

To be a sea scout one must be a thoroughly qualified scout first, and the natural sailors of the organization are clamoring to be admitted to the new degree. That Uncle Sam will need those natural sailors soon is being more and more appreciated, and equipment for a full course in sea scouting is rapidly being loaned or donated.

JAPAN'S FOREIGN MINISTER

With the resignation of Viscount Ichiro Motono as minister of foreign affairs, the Downing street of Japan received as his successor a statesman totally different in type from those who had successfully held that portfolio.

Baron Shimpei Goto, the present foreign minister of Japan, unlike his predecessors in the foreign office, is not a diplomat by training. He had never occupied any position, important or insignificant, in the consular or diplomatic service. In his school days he never studied international law or political theories. On the contrary, he was educated and trained to become a physician.

Baron Goto was born in 1857. Graduating from a local medical school, he was attached to a public hospital of which he eventually became the director. In 1883 he became assistant director of the bureau of sanitation in the department of home affairs. Then he went to Germany, where he won the degree of doctor of medicine from the University of Berlin.

Returning home in 1892 he was promoted to the directorship of the sanitation bureau. With his appointment in 1897 to the post of civil administrator of Formosa his opportunity for demonstrating his real abilities arrived. In 1906 he was made a baron and was given a seat in the house of peers. In the same year he resigned his post as civil administrator of Formosa and assumed his duties as the first president of the then newly organized South Manchuria Railway company.

In Manchuria he proved as successful as in Formosa. In the Katsura cabinet, organized in 1908, Goto was minister of communications.

HE LISTS ENEMY ALIENS

Rufus W. Sprague, Jr., is the man who made the plans and organized the machinery for the registration of more than 300,000 German males, enemy aliens, who live within the jurisdiction of Uncle Sam. By these same plans about the same number of German women were card indexed later.

Mr. Sprague is now the head of the New York port enemy alien bureau. All the alien enemies within this district come under the jurisdiction of Mr. Sprague. If, after registering, they do not behave, or if they fail to register and are caught, it is his duty to see that they join kindred souls in one of the internment camps.

Mr. Sprague was born in Boston in 1875 and after a preparatory course in the Boston Latin school went to Harvard. In 1896 he received his A. B. and four years later was graduated from the Harvard Law school.

Then he went to New York and began practice in 1900 as junior counsel for the Equitable Life Assurance society. Three years of this, and he formed a law partnership with Walter E. Coe. A few years later the present law firm of Russel, Coe & Sprague was formed.

CHAMPION NAVY RECRUITER

The United States navy is to have its first petticoated junior lieutenant in the person of Mrs. George Alexander Wheelock, chief yeoman and champion recruiter of the world. The bestowal of this rank is Mrs. Wheelock's reward for the 17,000 young men she has brought into the service in the past 18 months through her oratory.

She has made recruiting speeches all over New York city, in Buffalo, Syracuse, Binghamton, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Columbus, Allentown and many other large places. She has given up her luxurious home for days at a time to "go on the road" in behalf of the navy. Her attractive auburn-topped figure has become an important feature of recruiting rallies.

The champion recruiter was not always accompanied by an escort of bluejackets and a band when she went recruiting. She began the work humbly and alone, speaking from the precarious perch afforded by a soap box or an orange crate. Later, as some of these failed her from time to time, she was sufficiently courageous to enter the nearest saloon and there seek recruits through her patriotic talks.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 29

REVIEW.

SUBJECT—What It Means to Be a Christian.

SELECTION FOR READING—I John 3:1-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and truth.—I John 3:18.

Perhaps the best way to review the lessons of this quarter will be to take the several lessons and note their bearing on the subject chosen for review; namely: What it means to be a Christian. In order to get the best results, assignment should be made of the several lessons to different parties to come prepared to give the teaching of the particular lesson on the subject. The following is suggested as a possible way of presenting the matter.

Lesson I. It means that each individual must exercise faith in Jesus Christ as a personal Savior. One may have his heart opened by the Lord while listening to the Word of God at a stated meeting, like Lydia, or be convinced through the manifestation of the mighty power of God, as the Philippian jailer. In all cases it is the one Savior and the one faith.

Lesson II. It means that those who have really exercised faith in the Lord Jesus Christ will attentively read God's Word. Even a great statesman like the Ethiopian Eunuch will be blessed in its reading, for the Word of God converts the soul, makes wise the simple, puts gladness into the heart, enlightens the eyes, satisfies the longing soul, warns against dangers, and brings reward to those who obey its precepts.

Lesson III. It means a life of personal prayer and communion with God. The one who has become a child of God has the glorious privilege of coming to him with his needs with the assurance that God will supply them. God is more willing to give to his children than any earthly father is to his children.

Lesson IV. It means a life of obedience to the Word and will of God. Prompt and definite obedience will be rendered, even to the separation from business, and the ties of nature, when such stand in the way. Peter, Andrew, James and John obeyed, and it meant to them great spiritual blessings. From fishing for fish, they were promoted to fishing for men. Obedience to God pays. The disciple of Christ will treasure up his words.

Lesson V. It means growth in grace. Jesus himself grew in wisdom and in stature, and in favor with God and man. Merely accepting Christ is not enough; there must be growth.

Lesson VI. It means a life of helpfulness to others. One who has been made a partaker of the Divine nature will, like his master, give himself in helpful service to others. He will be a neighbor to the needy and unfortunate, even as the Good Samaritan. Being good in himself, he will be doing good to others. He will use every opportunity to do good.

Lesson VII. It means attendance at the place of worship, receiving the teaching of the Word of God, partaking of the communion, and rendering service in some capacity in the church.

Lesson VIII. It means confessing Christ before men, and waiting with expectant hope for the coming of Jesus Christ from Heaven. The grand incentive for faithfulness in witnessing for Christ is the assurance that he will come again.

Lesson IX. It means that we will give of our possessions to the poor and needy, love our enemies, and refrain from censorious judgment. God estimates our gifts, not by their size but by what we have left.

Lesson X. It means that we will strive to conquer the evil propensities, not allow covetousness to master him as did Ahab, and separate himself from those who walk in darkness. He will exercise great caution lest he become overcome by the devil.

Lesson XI. It means being holy and true, in order that we may preserve from corruption the great mass of men and enlighten those in darkness, preaching the Gospel to every creature, conscious that the presence and power of Christ will abide.

Lesson XII. It means that every talent entrusted to us will be put to use, so that when the Lord comes we can make an account to him which will secure his commendation and reward.

The Greatest Teachings.

There are no songs comparable to the songs of Zion; no orations equal to those of the prophets; and no politics like those which the Scriptures teach. —Milton.

Favors Bible for Every Soldier.

In a letter to the American Bible society Major General Wood says: 'Godspeed and all success in the work you are undertaking. I earnestly hope that you will be successful in placing a Bible in the hands of every soldier.'

Promises in the Bible.

If there is one fact, or doctrine, or command, or promise in the Bible which has produced no practical effect on your temper, or heart, or conduct, be assured that you do not truly believe it.—Pay

IN MISERY FOR YEARS

Mrs. Courtney Tells How She Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—"For years I was simply in misery from a weakness and awful pains—and nothing seemed to do me any good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 103 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. Every woman who suffers from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, nervousness, or who is passing through the Change of Life should give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

Cuticura
SOAP AND OINTMENT

LEFT NAME THAT WILL LIVE

Boston Was the Home of the Famous Mother Goose, Possibly World's Most Noted Woman.

Perhaps the most famous woman that ever lived was Mother Goose. Other women, particularly a few bad ones, have enjoyed celebrity, but she achieved immortality.

She is called Mother Goose because that was her name. For she was a real person, and dwelt in the city of Boston. She lived in a little one-story house with a roof that sloped almost down to the ground—just such a house as one might expect Mother Goose to occupy—not far from the Common.

The house vanished long ago, but the church in which she was accustomed regularly to worship still stands. It is the famous old South church.

Her maiden name was Elizabeth Foster. In fact, she was an old maid, twenty-eight years of age—quite elderly for an unmarried woman in those days—when she met and became the wife of Isaac Goose.

She had children and grandchildren, and it was for the latter that she wrote her rhymes, which were first published by Thomas Fleet, her son-in-law, in Boston, in 1719.

Mother Goose died in 1757, aged ninety-two.

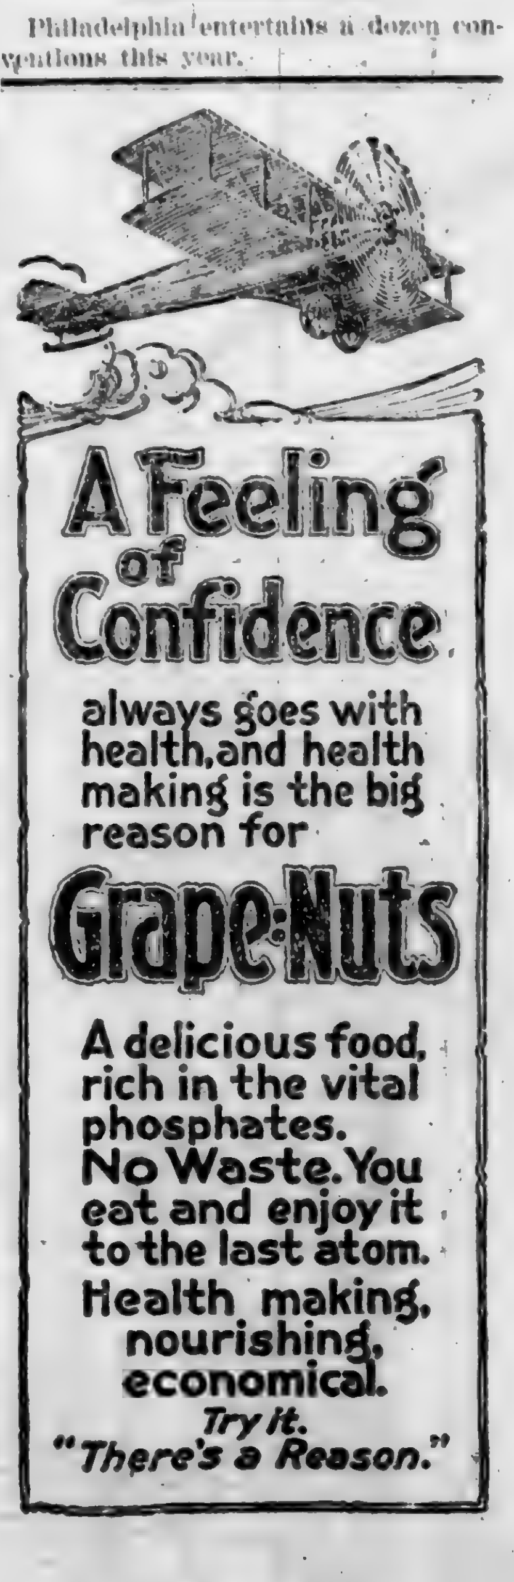
Briton Conquers Bees.

There is at least one man in England whose nerves have not been budged by the war.

He was bicycling from Newton Pagnell recently when a swarm of bees settled on his hat. He alighted calmly and impersonated a lamp post until a beeman came and hived the bees. The stolid hero was not stung.

Every Chinese junk has an eye carved on the bow in order to "see" where it is going.

Philadelphia entertains a dozen conventions this year.



A Feeling of Confidence always goes with health, and health making is the big reason for Grape-Nuts

A delicious food, rich in the vital phosphates. No Waste. You eat and enjoy it to the last atom. Health making, nourishing, economical. Try it. "There's a Reason."

SEPTEMBER

L 90

0521

Unusual Candor.

The following marriage notice, clipped from an English newspaper, is delightfully frank in its climax:

Married—On the 15th inst., at Stoke-upon-Trent, Mr. Joseph Farmer to Eliz. Walklate, both of Cobridge, in the Pottery, after a tedious courtship of about twelve years.

A New Way to Shave

Tender skins twice a day without irritation by using Cuticura Soap the "Cuticura Way." No slimy mug, germs, waste of time or money. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Pliers have been patented by an Illinois inventor to split insulation and remove it from wires neatly.

New Gospel Hymn.

At a New Jersey camp meeting a new song is becoming popular as the old gospel tunes. It is "Telephone to Heaven." Many of the old hymn writers never heard of such a thing as a telephone, but a 1918 audience sits in the grove and makes it ring with the strains of "Central's never busy, always on the line; you may hear from heaven almost any time."—Utica (N. Y.) Press.

Quite True.

"Why is it that wisdom teeth give people such trouble?"

"I suppose it is because they are wise-achers."

A. H. Wasgatt, seventy-two, has retired after 44 years as keeper of Prospect Harbor, Me., lighthouse.

What is Castoria

CASTORIA is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhœa; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-Good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

As Age Advances the Liver Requires occasional slight stimulation.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price But Great in its Good Work

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS correct CONSTIPATION

Genuine bears signature Brent Good

Colorless or Pale Faces usually indicate the absence of Iron in the blood, a condition which will be greatly helped by Carter's Iron Pills

125,000 People Commit Suicide Every Year
A great food scientist says: "The cause of the most of them started in a bad stomach"

Don't Get Hung Up With an Acid Stomach

It's Just Acidity That Makes Millions Sick and Suffer

It's true. There are millions of people all over the land who are weak, nervous, all tired and dragged out, who are trying to build up their jaded nerves and weakened bodies with drugs and stimulants; and many of them also EAT and EAT—but fail to get anywhere near the full amount of strength and nourishment out of their food. Why? Simply because of too much acid in the stomach—superacidity.

Get rid of the excess acid. Your stomach is all right—just give it a chance to work easily and naturally. Then see how good you will feel—your pep comes back, and your blood warms up!

A new method—truly a wonderful discovery called

EATONIC

(FOR YOUR STOMACH'S SAKE)

is positively guaranteed to clear the excess acid out of your stomach and bowels.

It is made in the form of pleasant-tasting tablets—handy to carry around with you.

Get a big box of EATONIC at any drug store and see how quickly it banishes the immediate effects of acid-stomach. Away with heartburn, belching, food repeating, indigestion, etc.—and then see how your general health improves.

So again we tell you—insist upon it—if you are ailing get a big box EATONIC from your druggist today. The cost is a trifle—only 50c. You have faith in your druggist. We authorize him to absolutely guarantee EATONIC to you and you can trust your own druggist to make this guarantee good. If EATONIC fails in any way, take it back—he will refund your money. If your druggist does not keep EATONIC, drop us a postal card and we will send it to you at once; you can send us the 50c after you get it. Address: H. L. Kramer, Pres., Eatonic Remedy Company, 1018 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Man Is No Stronger Than His Stomach

How Strong Are You?

Eczema

or the worst type of any other skin troubles easily healed with Oak Tree remedy. Results are seen over night. 50c a bottle. MONEY CHEERFULLY REFUNDED IF NOT SATISFACTORY. You can get a full 50c bottle for trial by receipt of 25c mailed direct from The Oak Tree Laboratory, Cleveland, O. WRITE AT ONCE!

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Scenes of Prosperity

Are Common in Western Canada

The thousands of U. S. farmers who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops of wheat and other grains.

Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $30 per acre—get $2 a bushel for wheat and raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre you are bound to make money—that's what you can do in Western Canada.

In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta you can get a

HOMESTEAD OF 160 ACRES FREE

and other land at very low prices.

During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley, and Flax. Mixed Farming is as profitable an industry as grain raising. Good schools, churches; markets convenient, climate excellent. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Canadian Government Agents

NEW SILHOUETTE MAY BE ADOPTED

New York.—One approaches the subject of a new silhouette these days with timidity, notes a fashion writer. One feels the shadow of the storm that is about to burst when fashion writers and designers say to the public that the lines of women's clothes have changed, which means that women's wardrobes must change if they remain in the picture of the hour.

When we are in the throes of conservation and economy, the idea of a new silhouette is not altogether pleasing. It is snatched up with avidity by those who sell apparel, for they know it is a lure to the purse. But it is also snatched up by orators, the reformers, and thousands who ask women not to change the style of their clothes during the war. These do not snatch it up with avidity, but jump upon it and try to crush it by argument and vituperation.

The French say, however, that to face a fact and not theorize on a fancy is a far better way to meet life. Therefore, if the new silhouette is here, and if women will accept it by the thousands, it is far better to face it than to ignore it; it is wiser to realize that it must be managed on a basis of economy and conservation.

Argument has never had the slightest effect on fashions. The persuasive tones of the administration, asking that our material be spared by civilians because it is needed for the fighters, has had its result; but this is only in keeping with the uncomplaining attitude of America toward all restrictions during the war. The majority of women feel, and it seems that that feeling is right, that if they do not encroach upon the fabrics and workers needed by the government they can have as many new costumes as they wish, on whatever lines they please.

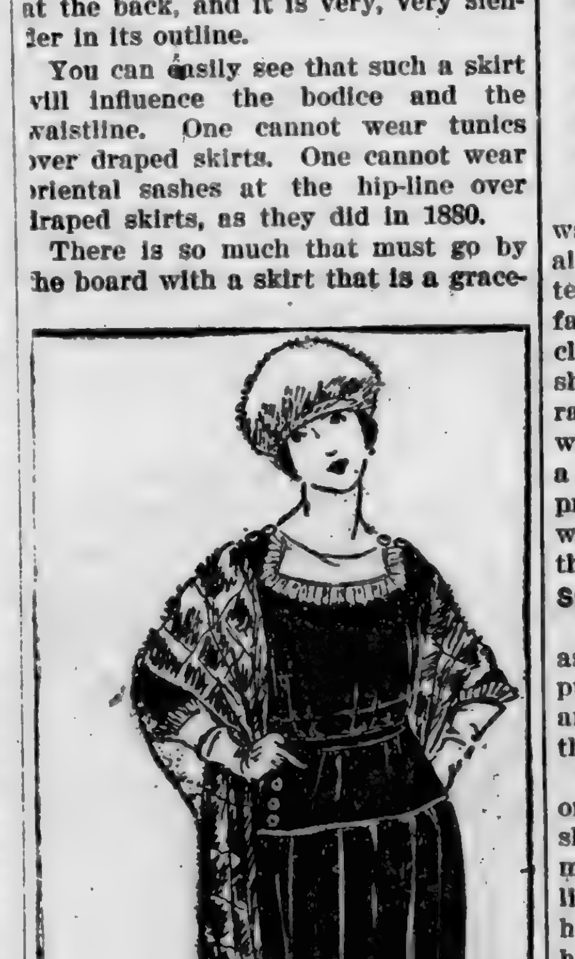
Long Skirts Replace Short Ones.

The fundamental fact in the silhouette is that skirts sweep the ankles and heels. To many women this is the fundamental fact, but to the designers and the reporters there is far more in the change than this.

If women were to continue to wear plaited skirts on straight lines, sweeping the ankles, and straight skirts that reached the toe-tips and were made to look less scanty by rippling tunics that extended to the knee, one would still find that the old clothes would do. But the new long skirt is draped; it is draped upward at the back, and it is very, very slender in its outline.

You can easily see that such a skirt will influence the bodice and the waistline. One cannot wear tunics over draped skirts. One cannot wear oriental sashes at the hip-line over draped skirts, as they did in 1880.

There is so much that must go by the board with a skirt that is a graceful revival of the old "pull-back," which was held in place by short, strong elastics placed in the back widths of the skirt to pull it tight across the front of the figure.



New turban of white angora worn well down over the head. The frock is of dark blue velveteen, with plaited white collar and cuffs and a row of white pearly buttons on each hip. The shoes and stockings are black and white.

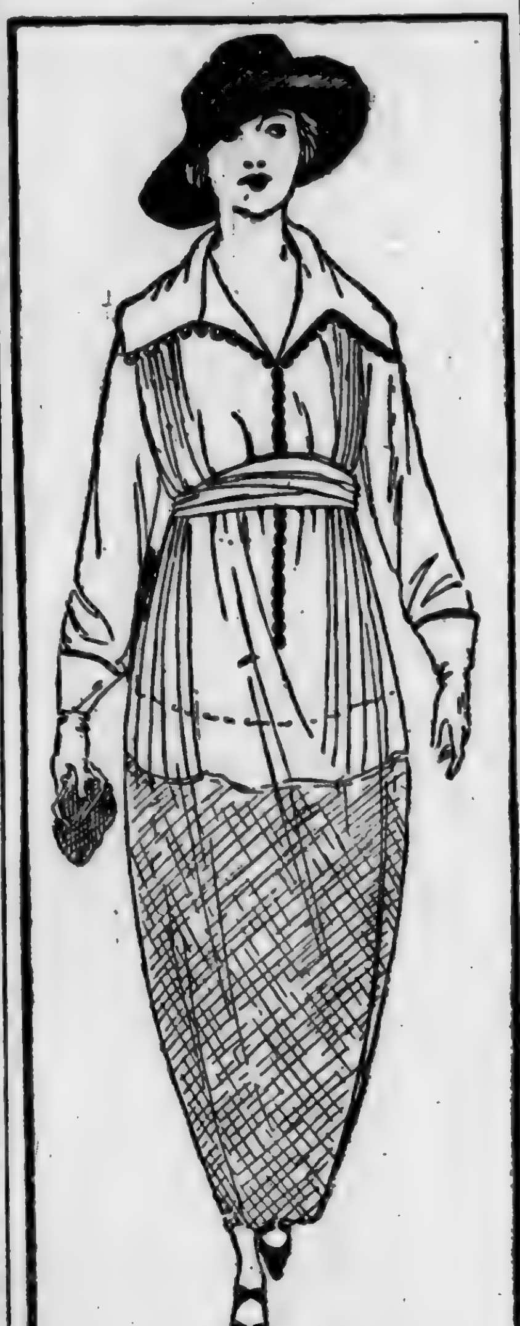
The normal waistline will undoubtedly come in with the draped skirt; or the basque, with its pointed front fastened in a straight line up to the collar-bone, may be revived. The corselet bodice is another garment that is possible, as it needs a straight line beneath it to keep the silhouette in harmony. It is said that wide dolman sleeves will be revived with these long draped skirts, as well as flat lace collars resting securely against the tight-fitting neckline.

All in the Future.

All this, mind you, is in the future, as far as fashions for the mass are concerned. But it would be unfair to the women who are buying clothes today not to warn them of this approaching change, and the belief by all those in authority that this silhouette will rule women's clothes as the winter comes on.

One thing, however, is quite certain in the minds of those who have authority: All skirts will be lengthened as the season advances under the influence of this new skirt. Women are already ripping out hems or adding new hems of other material to skirts they are renovating.

This is a wise thing for a woman to remember if she is in the throes of altering frocks that will maintain her wardrobe in good style until the actual cold weather demands warmer materials. Don't let her be misled by the fact that the majority of women's clothes worn and sold today have short skirts. All the betting on the racetrack of fashion is against their winning. It is far wiser to renovate a skirt for the future than for the present, if one considers the gown worth the price of money and vitality that clever renovation requires.



Anzac hat of pale-gray felt. The crown is trimmed with a miniature cartridge belt made of gray faille ribbon. The ornament is a tiny red, white and blue jeweled flag. The frock is of pale-gray satin and silk voile, and is trimmed with tiny gray silk buttons. There is a string sash tied in the back.

Speaking of Skirts, What About Hats?

The first question that a woman asks when she is told that the long, pull-back skirt and the tight basque are arriving, concerns the best hat that will go with such a silhouette.

The answer to her question depends on the nature of the place where she shops. It is probable that the information will be given her that the milliners have amassed a vast variety of head coverings, and that she can take her choice; but if she definitely insists upon what is new, she will be told by those who know that the striking novelty is the revival of a man's hat that has won a picturesque place for itself through several centuries of usage.

Once it was called the Musketeer, because of its upturned brim and its long feather; today it is called the Anzac. Between the two classes of fighters there is no difference, except the progress of time. They fight with much the same principle to guide them, and both fight for the honor and safety of France.

Today the Anzac hat comes into high fashion, and at the hour of the Australian fighters' distinction.

It is made of white, gray, black and mauve felt. Sometimes it has an insignia of no importance as a method of fastening up the brim to the crown, and again it has a thick, curling ostrich feather. It is the latter trimming that is added to the felt hat when the costume is a slim, draped frock that reaches from collar-bone to tips of toes.

There is a recrudescence of ostrich feathers over the land, and as all the milliners are insisting that hats shall be trimmed, there is every reason to believe that the African plume will be restored to fashion.

So, throughout the warp and woof of the new fashions there runs a thread of economy, for the reason that much is revived which has been shelved and may have been kept.

Quite a little summary, don't you think, of the dead brought back to life?

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Square Jet Buttons.

Square jet buttons are used from the top of the collar to the waistline in one of the new frocks. The collar, which is high and flaring, is held up by wires, for otherwise the heavy square jet buttons would pull it down.

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how freckles, sunburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

Australia's manufacture of motorcar bodies has received enormous impetus from the war.

New Orleans is closing many saloons for military reasons.

ASTHMA

INSTANTLY RELIEVED WITH

ASTHMADOR

OR MONEY REFUNDED ASK ANY DRUGGIST

Odds Too Much Against Her.

My little daughter Margery plays all day long in the open air. She is careful for a youngster and a few days ago I noticed that she played nearly all day long in the house with her dollies. Presuming that she had a reason for staying in the house, and just to try out a suspicion I entertained that she had been in a childish scrap, I asked her why she did not go out to play. Her reply was slow, but finally she said, "Well, I can't fight two kids bigger than me."

Of New York's regular police force 3,000 are fighting in France.

Dr. Peery's "Dead Shot" not only expels Worms or Tapeworm but cleans out the mucus in which they breed and tones up the digestion. One dose sufficient. Adv.

Milwaukee is demanding home rule by legislative enactment.

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN A WEAK BODY

When you're fifty, your body begins to creak a little at the hinges. Motion is more slow and deliberate. "Not so young as I used to be" is a frequent and unwelcome thought. Certain bodily functions upon which good health and good spirits so much depend, are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Unpleasant symptoms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated.

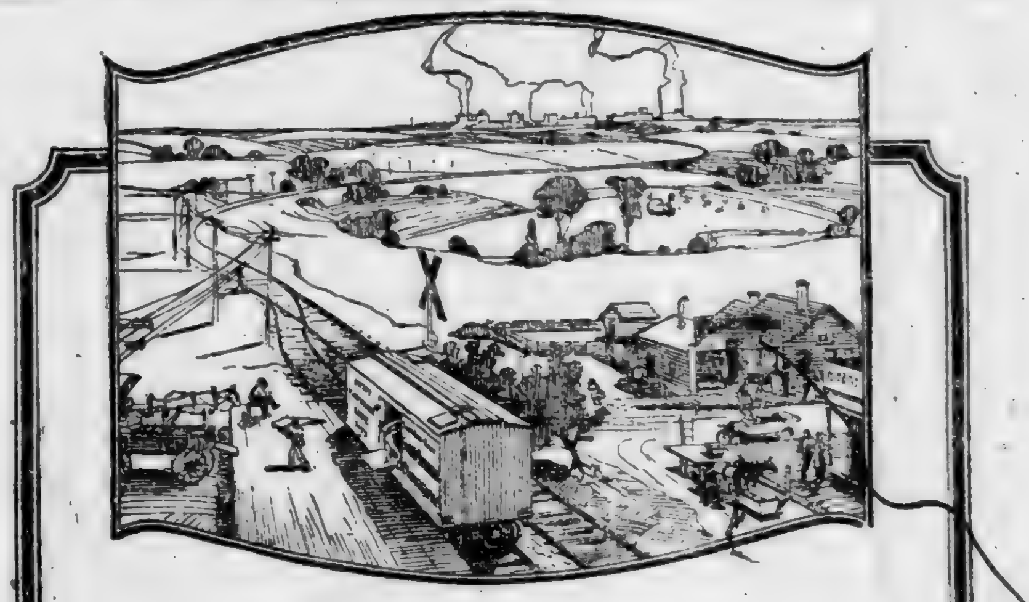
For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the inconvenience and pain due to advancing years. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put up in odorless, tasteless capsules. These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles.

Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill, with a small swallow of water. They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules cleanse the kidneys and purify the blood. They frequently ward off attacks of the dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys. They have a beneficial effect, and often completely cure the diseases of the bodily organs, allied with the bladder and kidneys.

If you are troubled with soreness across the loins or with "simple" aches and pains in the back take warning, it may be the preliminary indications of some dreadful malady which can be warded off or cured if taken in time.

Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. GOLD MEDAL are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil Capsules. Accept No Substitutes.—Adv.



You Can't Eat Meat 100 Miles Away

Preparing meat is only a part of Swift & Company's usefulness.

The finest meat in the world wouldn't do you any good one hundred miles away from your table.

Swift & Company efficiency has made it possible to place complete lines of products in the smallest and most remote communities.

To be sure the work is done well Swift & Company, through its branch houses and car routes, brings the meat to the retail dealer for you.

Swift & Company lays out car routes covering towns—big, little, medium size—which are not served by a Swift branch house.

Salesmen find out in advance what is wanted by the dealers in every town.

They are followed by refrigerator cars loaded with retailers' orders, which are delivered at each town—fresh, clean, and sweet—once or twice each week.

Swift & Company operates a large number of car routes like this, from fourteen distributing plants.

This is a necessary and natural part of the packers' usefulness. It fits into the industry in an orderly, effective way. It makes better meat cheaper from one end of the land to the other.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.
GOLD

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

2. An account here is a great business convenience.
   - —In making payments.
   - —In collecting drafts and checks.
   - —In sending remittances.
3. We loan money on good security to promote business, and we like to favor those who consistently build accounts with us.

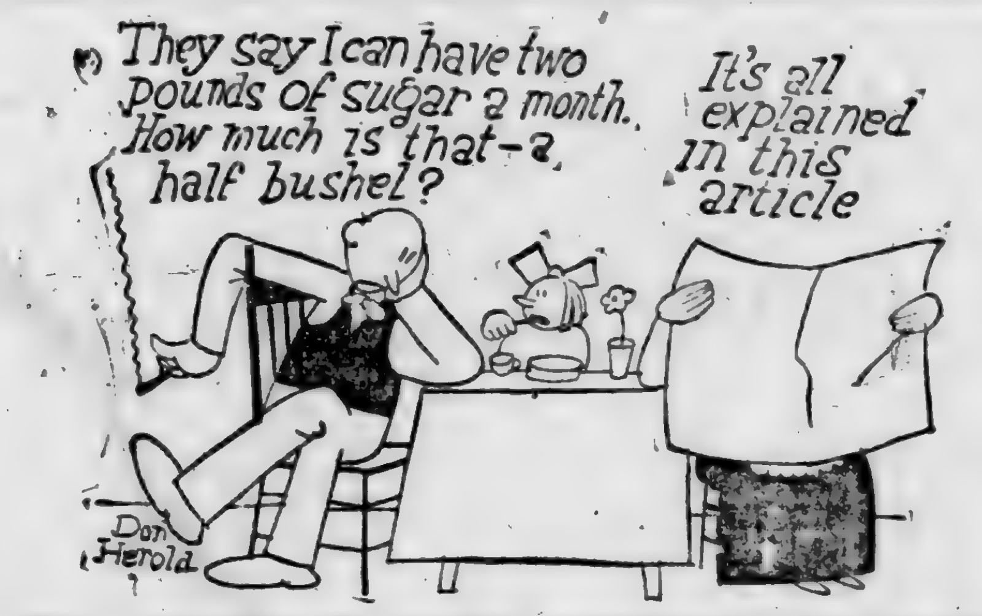
Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

ONE-MINUTE FOOD TALKS

By Don Herold



They say I can have two pounds of sugar a month. How much is that—a half bushel?
It's all explained in this article
Don Herold

WOULD YOU KNOW TWO POUNDS OF SUGAR IF YOU MET IT IN THE ROAD?

When they tell you to get along on two pounds of sugar a month, maybe you say: "Two pounds of sugar a month? That's Greek to me!"

You wouldn't know how to go about stretching two pounds of sugar over a month, even if they put a pair of postal scales at the side of your plate every meal. You are not in the habit of eating your sugar off of scales, are you? How are you in the habit of eating sugar?

With a spoon.

The two-pound-per-month allowance may be put in terms of teaspoonfuls. It means six and two-fifths teaspoonfuls, level, per day. That's just a bit more than two teaspoonfuls, level, per meal. THAT is how much sugar you have coming to you, if you want to play the sugar game square. But wait—that includes sugar used in cooking. So you don't get two teaspoonfuls in your coffee, or on your breakfast food.

Now if everybody in the United States takes a half a teaspoonful more than his share at each meal, it means a total of 1,700,000 pounds of "stolen" sugar a day.

Canning sugar is extra. At present, you can get ten pounds of sugar at a time for canning. You are entitled to twelve and one-half pounds of canning sugar for each member of your family—for the whole canning season; that is, from strawberry time in May or June to apple butter time in October. A family of four, then, is entitled to a total of fifty pounds for all its canning. If there are four in your family and you have had fifty pounds of sugar for canning—you're done! Until the rules change, at least.

Still, the food administration wants you to can—to can lots—to can hard. They say that with a little study you can learn how to can without sugar, or with little sugar, or with other sweeteners such as syrups, maple products and honey. They say you can can fruit now, and add the sugar THIS WINTER when it will be plentiful. General Foch has some hard problems to figure out, but so has the American housewife.

And they'll both make good.

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE,
Sept 3, 1918.

EDITOR ST. JOE NEWS.—

Dear Friend: Well, Fred, I am here at last across the pond doing my bit with the boys over here. I am well and feeling fine, and hope you and your family are the same.

It has been several weeks since we left the States. I enjoyed the trip and escaped being seasick, but there were a lot of sick birds on the boat.

We are n a fine locatian, and are about twenty minutes' walk from a large town near the camp I have been up town several times, and it is a very interesting place to go. I can not talk much French yet, but can say "Oui, oui" (pronounced we, we), which means "Yes, yes." We are treated fine by the French people, and they certainly welcome the American soldier.

We have a large Y. M. C. A., which furnishes us with all sorts of amusements, such as moving pictures, lectures, boxing and band concerts.

I received a letter from Calvin Kain last week, stating he was well and on the job.

Mark Tyndall and I are still bunking together and are pretty good pals.

As it is nearing the hour of my bed time, I will close by sending you my best regards.

PVT. HARRY FRIEND.
Base Hospital 53, A. E. F.,
American Postoffice No. 714.

P. S.—Tell John Betz I said hello and to make me a hamburg sandwich. H. F.

Sale of Savings Stamps

The people of DeKalb county are to be congratulated heartily upon their loyalty to the war savings work. Our county has distinguished itself among the other ninety-two of our state by taking the eighth rank of those that have paid in the most per capita as apportioned. Our quota was $501,000, and about $450,000 has been paid in to date. It is to be noted that of these first eight counties DeKalb has the largest quota according to population It must encourage all our solaier boys at the front to know that the people back here are behind them and doing their part in all the demands made upon them. Our boys need all our united support as they go forward toward Metz and Berlin. All the pledge cards are, of course, to be redeemed by true, patriotic citizens. All cards have been turned over to the postoffices, banks or places where the stamps are to be purchased.

Surely, no patriot will needlessly cash a stamp. Here is a ringing word sent out by the government that every person should read:

"The man who converts his war savings stamps into cash when he can afford to carry them during the five-year period is the worst kind of a slacker. He should be in Germany fighting for the kaiser. Postoffice statistics are showing that it is not the widows who have sons in France or persons who have suffered illness or financial misfortunes who are cashing in their war savings stamps, but men who purchased war savings stamps merely for show or to gain patriotic publicity. Such men think they can secretly sneak around to the postoffice, get the money which they have invested in stamps and use it for some other purpose or pleasure without the public's knowing it. In reality, such a person is worse than an open enemy. He is willing to stab Uncle Sam in the back in the dark, while he supports him openly in the light. It has been suggested that postoffices keep a record of all persons cashing in their war savings certificates that the public may know who are and who are not patriotic American citicens."

We must appeal to all to continue to do their buying faithfully. Four counties have already paid in more than their quota and are still buying. DeKalb will do likewise.

A. P. BOURNE, Publicity Ch'm.
L. G. WHITTEN, County Ch'm.

Postoffice Will Close

Notice is hereby given that the St. Joe postoffice will close at 7 p. m., beginning Oct. 1.

POSTMASTER.

A new supply of Writing Tablets and Envelopes at News Office.

For Your
Fresh and
Salt Meats
Fish and Canned Goods
SEE
W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET

Highest Market Prices paid for Hides and Pelts of All Kinds.

ANGOLA FAIR

October 1-2-3-4, 1918

Good Races--Free Attractions
Splendid stock exhibits in Cattle, Hogs & Sheep Departm'nts
Bands, Merry-go-Rounds, Ferris Wheel--Everything to Help Every one Have a Good Time

Same Old Price---Admission
25c

Remember the Dates--October 1-2-3-4, 1918

Card of Thanks

John David Poper, infant son of Marvin A. and Winnie Poper, was born at Jackson, Mich., Aug. 29, 1918; and died Sept. 14, 1918, aged but 16 days. He was brought to St. Joe, Ind., for interment. Funeral services were conducted by L W. Spayd and were held at the home of the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. David Poper, 1½ miles north of town. Remains were interred at Riverside cemetery. To the singers and to all who so kindly and sympathetically favored them in this hour of their bereavement the parents hereby extend their heartfelt thanks. It greatly heartened them to be thus tenderly remembered by their dear old neighbors.

L. W. SPAYD.

Paul Curie at Home

Paul Curie is at home. He arrived Monday morning for a three-day stay, while en route from Des Moines, Iowa, to New York city. He looks every inch a soldier, and is pleased with army life. Paul is stationed at Ellis Island hospital, near the metropolis, where there are accommodations for 2,200 patients. Here are received those who are totally disabled by the war. From Ellis Island, they are taken to various hospitals throughout the land; and as soon as they are sufficiently recovered, they are discharged and sent home. Paul's duty is to have charge of details of wounded that are sent out from Ellis Island; and, as a result, he is on the road nearly all the time. Uncle Sam does the right thing by his unfortunate defenders: they ride in special Pullman cars and on the best trains.

P. S.—Paul and the Ford came togeth like a pair of old pals.

The Bank Building

The St. Joe Valley bank building, which is being erected on the site of the one destroyed by fire last March, is nearly completed as far as the outside walls are concerned. When done, it will present a fine appearance. It will be 20x50 feet in size, with a 12-foot ceiling. There will be a 4-foot fire wall and a 20-foot front. The front and east walls are of shale rock brick.

The work is under the supervision of Will Curie, and he is seeing that it is done right. He thinks the building will be completed by the first of November.

St. Joe Locals

Paul Hadsel was pleasantly surprised Sunday, when a number of boys came to help him celebrate his twelfth birthday anniversary.

M. E. Olds and wife, of Clinton, Mich., are visiting St. Joe friends.

Pencils, Rulers, Tablets, Pens, Ink, Crayons, Pencil Holders, Note Books, Erasers for the school children at The NEWS Office

C. C. Bassett and wife spent Saturday night and Sunday with the latter's brother, S. N Brunson, and family, near Butler. Sol Shank and family also were Sunday guests.

We are now prepared to figure with you on your hay. Plenty of Room in barn at the Present. FOUR STORE,
39 Hicksville, Ohio.

Leighty Orchard

We have sold apples up to the estimated amount we will pick. There may be more. If your order is in, you will be notified when to come for them.

The price will be $1.75

If you are too late for apples this year, order now for delivery next fall, and you will not be disappointed again.

Leighty Orchard

Widney's Third Apple Sale Begins Monday, Oct. 7, and Continues Until the Crop Is All Sold.

Varieties:

Winter Bananas	2,500 crates
Grimes' Golden	2,000 "
Starks	1,000 "
Wolf Rivers, Tulpehockins, Baldwins Greenings, Yorks and Ramboos	2,000 "

PRICE, - - $2.00 per crate

MEASURE: We will use the Standard Bushel Crate, well filled; but in no case will we guarantee weights. Not more than twenty-five crates to any one party. No containers furnished by us.

Registration to begin at 5:00 o'clock each morning—sharp. The first here, the first served.

St. Joe, Indiana - One mile north

L 9

OCTOBER

OCTOBER

L 90

0524

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3 1918 NO. 40

DEATH AT B. & O. CROSSING

John Mason Killed and Wife Seriously Injured Saturday Evening when Auto was Struck by B. & O. Engine at the Engle Crossing in St. Joe. Bells were Giving Warning at Time.

The B. & O. crossing at the west side of St. Joe has claimed another victim. This time, the victim is John Mason, of Auburn, formerly of Spencerville; and Mrs. Mason, who was with him, lies at her home at the county seat painfully, but not seriously, injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason were en route to Grabill to visit her mother, Mrs. George Emerick, who is quite ill. As they approached the railroad crossing, they could hear the electric bell ringing, giving warning of an approaching train. Mr. Mason slowed down the car in which they were riding and got it under control. When but a few yards from the railroad, he and his wife saw a switch engine backing toward the crossing from the east on the westbound track. He at once attempted to put on the brake; but, in his haste and excitement, pressed the accelerator lever, this mistake being due to the fact that he was driving a Chevrolet automobile, purchased only a few days before, and had not fully learned to govern it, having previously driven a Ford. The machine shot forward under the impetus thus given it. The locomotive hit it just back of the fore wheels, hurling it and the two occupants 20 feet along the north side of the track. Mr. Mason was killed almost instantly, his injuries being confined principally to the head. The skull was fractured and the bones of the lower part of the face were broken in a number of places. His face was badly bruised about the forehead and nose. He bled profusely from the right ear, indicating interior cranial injuries.

The full force of the impact of the locomotive was born by Mr. Mason, he acting as a buffer for his wife, who sat at his right hand and on the opposite side from the engine. She was carried along the track with her husband, but escaped with a few bad bruises and cuts. There were no internal injuries, as at first was feared, nor no broken bones. She never lost consciousness; and the first person to reach her after the accident, a man from the ditching car on the railroad, found her sitting beside the railroad with her husband's head in her lap. She was picked up by Dr. Sheffer and Charles Koch and rushed to the latter's office, where her injuries were dressed. Her cries led many to think she was more seriousiy injured than was really the case. They were caused by grief over her husband's death and by the nervous shock she had sustained. She was taken to the home of Dr. and Mrs. B. O. Shook, old-time friends, and from there, in the ambulance of Undertaker Loy, of Auburn, to her home, leaving here about midnight.

Mr. Mason's remains were taken to the Kinsey undertaking rooms, where they were prepared for burial. They were afterward taken to the home of deceased at Auburn by Mr. Kinsey, who left with them at the same time Mr. Loy did with the injured lady

The accident occurred about 5 o'clock Saturday evening. The crossing where it took place is a fatal spot, Mr. Mason being the third person to lose his life there by being hit by a train. The approach from the north, the way the Masons came, is up a steep hill and no view of the track can be obtained until the top is reached, which is but a few feet from the railroad. The car in which the unfortunate people were riding was badly wrecked, and one step at the rear of the switch engine was evidence of the force of the collision. The locomotive was in charge of Engineer Fred Baerlin and was being backed from Defiance to Garrett. It was going between 20 and 30 miles an hour at the time of the accident. No blame attaches to the engine crew: they had whistled for the crossing and the bell was ringing and, as stated before, the electric alarm was sounding a warning. Westbound fast line No 5, which passed shortly afterward, stopped to see if could render any aid; but Mr. Mason was past human assistance and his wife was being cared for.

Coroner Hinklin, of Garrett, was informed of the accident; but he was unble to come, being sick abed. He gave permission for the removal of the remains to Kinsey's and for their subsequent taking to Auburn. An inquest was held at the county seat on Monday, when a verdict of accidental death in accordance with the foregoing facts was rendered.

Mr. Mason was well known at this place, as he once ran a milk route here. At that time, he resided on a farm which he owned near Spencerville. A few years ago, he sold out and moved to Auburn, where he resided up to his death. Of late, however, he had been on the lookout for another farm.

Deceased is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mason, of Auburn. Besides these, there are two sisters and three brothers, as follows: Mrs. Ollie Treesh, of LaOtto; Mrs. Stella Platter, of Auburn; Hiram Mason, of Auburn; Henry Mason, of Hopewell; Abe Mason, of Auburn Junction.

Funeral services were held at the home, Auburn, at 2 p m. Tuesday. Deceased was 45 years old in July.

Dr. Shook, who saw Mrs. Mason on Tuesday morning, reports that she is improving nicely and no serious results are apprehended; but, at that time, it was not expected that she would be able to go to the cemetery in the afternoon.

Home From Wittenberg

Clayton Hathaway, Harvey Hull and Will Quance, who are members of the army students training corps at Wittenberg college, were home over Sunday. They went back to report to Uncle Sam on Monday; and next day, they donned the khaki and were sworn into his service. Merritt Milliman and Arden Morr accompanied them, and will try to enter the service

W. C. T. U. NEWS

The September W. C. T. U. meeting was held at the home of Mrs Malinda Shilling, 3 miles west of town, on Friday afternoon, most of the ladies going from here in the Charles Koch hack. Sixteen members and three guests—Mesdames Brown, Means and Will Lucas—were present. Mrs. Lucas became a new member. The afternoon lesson was along the line of medical temperance and heredity and many helpful things were said. Mrs. El-Ella Patterson read an interesting article from the Literary Digest about the fourth Liberty loan. A splendid letter from Miss Pearl Shurts, who is now in New York city, was also read. Jennie Sechler and Amanda Spayd were appointed delegates to the state convention to be held at Richmond, Oct. 4-8. Ida Herrick and Eva Sheffer were appointed alternates.

Mesdames Belle Barney, Bessie Tustison, Ella Patterson, Lillian Buckingham and Winnifred Shook attended the county W. C. T. U. convention at Auburn on Thursday afternoon. They report the following officers elected:

President.—Ada Lane, Auburn.
Vice President.—Malvina Nelson, Auburn.
Treasurer.—Alice Lewis, Auburn.
Recording Secretary.—Bessie Tustison, St. Joe.
Corresponding Secretary.—Minnie Rupp (Newville union), St. Joe.

The following department superintendents were appointed:

L. T. L.—Chloe Hart, St. Joe.
Anti-Narcotic.—Phila Wolf, Waterloo.
Franchise.—Lora Leighty, St. Joe.
Christian Citizenship, Minnie Husselman, Butler.
Flower Mission.—Dora Weaner (Newville union), St. Joe.
Medal Contest.—Della Cogswell.
Medical Temperance.—Olive Showalter, Waterloo.
Mothers' Meeting.—Mary Kain (Newville union), St. Joe.
Press.—Laura Dirrim, Auburn.
Scientific Temperance.—Retta Hathaway, St. Joe.
Jails and Prisons.—Minnie Kagey, Auburn.
Soldiers and Sailors.—Belle Barney, St. Joe.

Some Time

You will be in need of printing of some kind. Whether it be letterheads, statements wedding invitations or public sale bills, remember we can turn out the work at the lowest cost consistent with good work.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	108	4.42
M. P.	60	4.06
Christian	64	2.16
M. E. Spencer.	104	5.84
Lutheran	136	11.26
Concord	64	1.85
Newville U B	97	4.18
Coburntown	82	3 27

COAL:

Are you prepared for that cold weather that will soon be upon us? Just take a peep into our bins—we can fill your bins with either a Wash Nut, Brazil Block or Ind. Lump.

FLOUR:

That is another of the essentials that we always aim to keep in stock for our customers. Two of the best brands on the market are now on hand: Aristos and the Gold Medal If Eventaully- "WHY NOT NOW."

PIONEER

Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market. Prepared feed contains the necessary filling to keep the hogs in good conition while feeding.

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.
Spencerville, Indiana

The 4th. Liberty Loan.

For the fourth time our government asks the public for funds with which to prosecute the war. The amount is larger than any previous loan, because of the growing cost of the war. Our overseas army approximates one million five hundred thousand men. Food, guns, munitions, transportation and the necessary attendant costs mount into the billions. The strain of war is upon us. We now have a realizing sense of the present and impending loss in men and money, the necessity for service and sacrifice, for economy and patriotic devotion. In order that the lives of our armies abroad may be saved, the suffering of the sick and wounded ameliorated, there must be an unbroked flow of guns, munitions, and army equipment, of food, medicine and hospital supplies. To insure this uninterrupted flow in sufficient volume the government needs the funds it asks for.

Taxes, in as great volume as is deemed prudent, are imposed upon all men and all industries with uniformity and fairness. By the selective draft the personal military burden is imposed upon all of military age and fitness with uniformity and impartiality. When it comes to the placing of government bonds, the matter of subscription is voluntary. Subscription, however, is a privilege as well as a patriotic duty and involves making a safe investment at a fair rate of interest.

The country is thoroughly aroused. All camouflage as to who brought about the war and their purpose in so doing has been dissipated. The Huns stand convicted before the World. Germany believed the submarine would give her victory, and she deliberately and purposely forced the United States into the war, believing in her blind conceit that from this country she would recoup her losses by receiving a large indemnity. For generations we shall continue to pay taxes "Made—in—Germany" but our only contribution to Germany direct will be delivered in a masterful manner by our army and navy.

It is our duty as citizens to make this loan a success and it is our pleasure to offer you, gratuitously, the facilities of The St. Joe Valley Bank in making subscriptions and to pledge you our very best services in carrying out your instructions.

Yours for "a long pull and a strong pull and a pull all together."

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

AT ST. JOE-SPENCERVILLE.

The Rambling Ford Party to Visit Spencerville Saturday Afternoon and then to St. Joe for a 2:30 o'clock Street Meeting.

The Prohibitionists have sheduled their opening rally for street corner on Saturday, Oct. 5, at 2:30 P. M. Local leaders consider themselves fortunate in having arranged for the Prohibition State Committee's official automobile,—the Bone-Dry Ford,—to stop here for the above meeting. The Ford party will consist of Isaac N. Grisso, of Indianapolis, candidate for secretary of state; J. Raymond Schmidt, Prohibition State Chairman; and John W. Huddleston, 'Giant Bass Singer.'

The object of the meeting will be to arouse interest in the rentention and the enforcement of the state prohibition law; the ratification of the federal Prohibition Amendment by the legislature to be elected this fall and the enfranchisement of the women by amending the state constitution.

The leading oratorical role will be taken by Mr. Grisso, ably supported by State Chairman Schmidt. Mr. Grisso will discuss the principles of the prohibition platform and the need of a friendl administration to give them proper expression in our republican form of government. He will discuss the war from the standpoint of every citizen's duty toward helping win it even to the extent of casting a bone-dry vote. Not the smallest feature of this meeting will be the solos and witticisms by 'Big' John Wesley Huddleston, who exhibits 323 pounds of advoirdupois as proof that he is a 'Strapping Yankee' hot on the trail of John Barley Corn.

$2.85

PER 100 POUNDS- Our price on Schumacher Feed.

Get Yours NOW.

Coal HERE and on the way—*B*est Ind. *L*ump-Get busy

Call on us always glad to see you. If we have not got what you want we will try and get it for you. Highest prices paid for all grains at all times.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

OCTOBER

0525

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Crawfordsville.—Miss Flora Anderson, thirty years old, returned to Indiana university at Bloomington to resume studying for her doctor's degree, after tending a crop on her parents' eight-acre farm during the summer vacation. She realized more than $300 for her war work. Miss Anderson is assistant instructor in botany at Indiana university, a graduate of I. U., 1914, and did two years post-graduate work at Wellesley college. Two of her brothers, Jacob and Webster, are in army service, the former in France. Her father was unable to tend the crop, so she donned overalls and did all the farm work. She raised corn, tomatoes, broomcorn and a garden. She sold 15 tons of tomatoes from three acres for $15 a ton. Miss Anderson picked the tomatoes and hauled them to the cannery. She said she would return at Thanksgiving vacation to harvest her corn crop.

Indianapolis.—Draft boards in the state have been instructed by Maj. Robert C. Baltzell, state conscription agent, to state general classification of registrants of September 12. They shall not classify at this time cases of draft board members, draft officers and employees, firemen and policemen, government employees, recent marriage cases, registrants with noncitizen dependents residing abroad, aliens, legislative, judicial and executive officers and registrants who on induction in service would receive incomes from their state or municipalities. These registrants are to be classified later, when the rules governing their cases will be established.

Shelbyville.—Automobile dealers, garage proprietors and repair men will be permitted to heat their places with other than steam steam and hot water, under an order issued by William H. Friedleg, state fire marshal, after a conference with Will H. Briggs chief of the Shelbyville fire department. Recently orders were issued from the office of the fire marshal that there should be no heat in garages, auto display rooms and repair stations other than hot water or steam. The order put a number of places here in condition that meant closing.

Muncie.—Charles M. Martz, a federal food inspector from the subsistence branch of the quartermaster's department, after an inspection of the tomato vines in this part of the state, says that tomatoes were not injured by frost, and that with warm weather the tomatoes will ripen so rapidly it will be difficult for canning companies to handle the supply properly. The tomato crop of eastern Indiana is the largest in history, and the tomato pack will be the largest ever known, despite the difficulty in obtaining labor [illegible] for it.

Petersburg.—Twenty-five thousand dollars was paid by William H. Howe to Mrs. Lydia Ingle for 175 acres of land just north of this city. Howe is the father-in-law of C. N. McClevy, superintendent of the Pike County Coal company, and it is the intention of the new owner to improve the property and sell town lots. The Pike County Coal company mine is just south of the land, and the ten-foot vein of coal now being mined by the company is said to extend beneath the Ingle land.

Indianapolis.—Maj. Robert C. Baltzell, state draft agent in a personal letter to all local board members in Indiana calls on them to do their utmost for their state and country in disposing of the work occasioned by the recent registration. He points out that Indiana will be called on to supply 5,000 to 10,000 men a month for military service, and wishes that the state record be upheld as befits Hoosier traditions.

Indianapolis.—Governor Goodrich is recovering rapidly from injuries received in an automobile accident August 27 and is expected to be back in his office in about one month. State business is transacted at his home. His left leg is still in a plaster cast. His left hip is fractured, necessitating the cast. He expects to be able to remove the cast in two weeks.

Jeffersonville.—There is a large apple crop in this part of the state. The famous Dean orchards in Owen township have 47,000 trees, which are bearing well. There has been difficulty in obtaining pickers. It is possible to buy apples at the orchards at $1 a bushel. Boy scouts from Indianapolis helped in picking the crop.

Greenfield.—Beekeepers in this county met in this city with M. S. Cromer, county agricultural agent, and organized by electing A. H. Rottman of this city president and O. E. McConnell, secretary and treasurer. The organization will be known as the Hancock County Beekeepers' association.

Aurora.—Tobacco growers are busy in harvesting their crops. Tobacco was improved by the recent rains but now needs a few days of warm sunshine to ripen it. Tobacco brokers are offering 40 to 42 cents a pound.

Gary.—Circulation of bolshevik literature in the steel mills among foreign subjects is under investigation by federal authorities. The inquiry was started when an employee of one of the plants was approached by a man who handed him a bolshevik pamphlet and at the same time denounced the part the United States is taking in war.

Salem.—Reports received from various parts of the county indicate that a large proportion of the corn is far enough matured that frosts will not injure it. It is estimated that there are nearly 60,000 acres in the county planted in corn.

Indianapolis.—The names of nine owners of herds of pure-bred cattle in Indiana have gained the distinction of having their herds placed on the federal accredited list, showing their cattle to be free from tuberculosis. Twenty-three others in the state have been placed on the list of those whose herds have passed one government test and been found without the tuberculosis germs. All stock raisers in the state are to have the opportunity to have their pure-bred herds named on the accredited list as the result of steps taken by the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture in a nation-wide campaign to eradicate tuberculosis from herds of cattle. Dr. J. E. Gibson has been assigned to manage the campaign in Indiana, and already the results of his efforts can be seen.

Indianapolis.—Lines of sect, denomination, creed and organization were obliterated when 700 leaders of Indiana communities met here and approved the national and state agreements for the united war work campaign to raise $5,000,000 in Indiana November 11-18. Speaker after speaker emphasized powerful utterances that Jew, Gentile, Protestant and Catholic had merged hearts in the work of raising a national fund of $170,500,000 for the welfare and morale of American soldiers and sailors. From the moment Thomas E. Davidson of Greensburg, state campaign chairman, called the meeting to order until adjournment there was but one thought, one purpose expressed, to merge the energy and resources of seven activities in the one big campaign.

Marion.—"The Boys in Blue," the expression applied to Union soldiers of the Civil war, will have to be modified if the European war lasts much longer, for the veterans will be unable to obtain the blue uniforms, according to an announcement made by the board of managers of the national military homes in the United States. One of the homes is located here. The order says that the present blue uniforms worn by the veterans in the homes cannot be replaced. The clothes are to be worn as long as serviceable, but when it is necessary to discard the blue cloth olive drab is to be worn.

Indianapolis.—School children will take a census of the live stock in the state October 15. The work will be done as a conservation measure, under the direction of Harry E. Barnard, federal food administrator for Indiana. It is the purpose of the United States food administration, Mr. Barnard says, to take a similar census every six months. The federal food administration's request says the census "is to enable a direct comparison between the two dates (1917 and 1918) to determine the increase or decrease in the year, as well as the actual live stock assets."

Vincennes.—Judging from the interest shown by John W. McCardle, a member of the Indiana public service commission at a hearing conducted at the Knox county council of defense, the 1,500 miners living there and the same number living at Bicknell, all of whom are employed in the Knox county coal fields, will receive adequate transportation from now on to the various mines. The miners, both here and at Bicknell, have been registering complaints because of poor train accommodations.

Indianapolis.—Definite recommendations for limiting the use of the German language in Indiana were approved by the Indiana state council of defense after hearing a report on the subject by Arthur W. Brady, chairman of the special committee appointed for the purpose. The report specified that: "The free use of the German language as the preferred medium of expression in any community or church building or place of public assemblage is not to be approved."

Oxford, O. — Announcement was made here at the regional headquarters of the college student army training corps for Ohio and West Virginia that the war department has added Indiana to this territory. It previously had been placed in a district with Michigan and Wisconsin. Indiana has fifteen training units, and Ohio and West Virginia 31, making 46 in the three states which will be within the jurisdiction of the regional directors.

Terre Haute.—Scarcity of coal miners, which has been caused by the military draft, is emphasized by W. J. Freeman of this city, production manager for Indiana, in a statement issued to all mine operators, who are urged to make every effort to obtain deferred classification for all miners. Steps have been taken, which will result in the miners individually and collectively, asking for deferred classification so they can remain in the mines.

Petersburg.—Pike county has a large surplus of pumpkins. Farmers planted a large acreage and so far there has been little demand for the vegetables on the part of the canners of the community. The apple crop is short and prices of $1.75 to $2.75 a bushel are received. Farmers are breaking ground for wheat. The acreage has been increased by about 30 per cent. Less ground is being planted in rye.

Indianapolis.—Mennonites in Indiana are not exempt from patriotic services on account of their religion is the ruling announced by Horace Ellis, state superintendent of public instruction. Children of Mennonites in the public schools must sell Thrift stamps and do other patriotic work such as school children are called upon to do. Dr. R. S. Thornton, minister of education for the province of Manitoba, Can., recently addressed an inquiry to Mr. Ellis regarding the attitude of the education authorities toward the Mennonites on the subject of their pacifist sympathies.

"NO COMPROMISE WITH GERMANY," ASSERTS WILSON

President in Speech at New York Says Enemy Must Pay the Price.

DEMANDS JUSTICE FOR ALL

Declares Enemies Have Made It Impossible to Come to Peace Terms —Huns Are Without Honor and Do Not Intend to Do Justice.

New York, Sept. 30.—The price of peace will be impartial justice to all nations, the instrumentality indispensable to secure it is a league of nations formed, not before or after, but at the peace conference, and Germany, as a member, "will have to redeem her character not by what happens at the peace table but by what follows."

This was President Wilson's answer, given Friday night before an audience of fourth Liberty loan workers here, to the recent peace talk from the central powers.

The President's Address.

The president spoke in part as follows:

"My Fellow Citizens: I am not here to promote the loan. That will be done—ably and enthusiastically done—by the hundreds of thousands of loyal and tireless men and women who have undertaken to present it to you and to our fellow citizens throughout the country, and I have not the least doubt of their complete success, for I know their spirit and the spirit of the country.

"No man or woman who has really taken in what this war means can hesitate to give to the very limit of what they have.

"And it is my mission here to try to make clear once more what the war really means. You will need no other stimulation.

"We accepted the issues of the war as facts, not as any group of men either here or elsewhere had defined them, and we can accept no outcome which does not squarely meet and settle them.

The War's Issues.

"Those issues are these:

"Shall the military power of any nation or group of nations be suffered to determine the fortunes of peoples over whom they have no right to rule except the right of force?

"Shall strong nations be free to wrong weak nations and make them subject to their purpose and interest?

"Shall people be ruled and dominated, even in their own internal affairs, by arbitrary and irresponsible force, or by their own will and choice?

"Shall there be a common standard of right and privilege for all peoples and nations or shall the strong do as they will and the weak suffer without redress?

"Shall the assertion of right be haphazard and by casual alliance or shall there be a common concert to oblige the observance of common rights?

"No man, no group of men, chose these to be the issues of the struggle. They are the issues of it, and they must be settled by no arrangemen or compromise or adjustment of interests, but definitely and once for all and with a full and unequivocal acceptance of the principle that the interest of the weakest is as sacred as the interest of the strongest.

"This is what we mean when we speak of a permanent peace, if we speak sincerely, intelligently, and with a real knowledge and comprehension of the matter we deal with.

"We are all agreed that there can be no peace obtained by any kind of bargain or compromise with the governments of the central empires, because we have dealt with them already and have seen them deal with other governments that were party to this struggle, at Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest.

"They have convinced us that they are without honor and do not intend justice. They observe no covenants, accept no principle but force and their own interests.

"We cannot 'come to terms' with them. They have made it impossible.

"The German people must by this time be fully aware that we cannot accept the word of those who forced this war upon us. We do not think the same thoughts or speak the same language of agreement.

"It is of capital importance that we should be explicitly agreed that no peace shall be obtained by any kind of compromise or abatement of the principles we have avowed as the principles for which we are fighting. There should exist no doubt about that. I am, therefore, going to take the liberty of speaking with the utmost frankness about the practical implications that are involved in it.

Foe Must Pay Price.

"If it be in deed and in truth the common object of the governments associated against Germany and of the nations whom they govern, as I believe it to be, to achieve by the coming settlements a secure and lasting peace it will be necessary that all who sit down at the peace table shall come ready and willing to pay the price, the only price that will procure it; and ready and willing also to create in some virile fashion the only instrumentality by which it can be made certain that the agreements of the peace will be honored and fulfilled.

"That price is impartial justice in every item of settlement, no matter whose interest is crossed; not only impartial justice, but also the satisfaction of the several peoples whose fortunes are dealt with. That indispensable instrumentality is a league of nations formed under covenants that will be efficacious.

"Without such instrumentality, by which the peace of the world can be guaranteed, peace will rest in part upon the word of outlaws and only upon that word. For Germany will have to redeem her character, not only by what happens at the peace table but what follows.

"And, as I see it, the constitution of that league of nations and the clear definition of its objects must be a part, is in a sense the most essential part, of the peace settlement itself. It cannot be formed now. If formed now, it would be merely a new alliance confined to the nations associated against a common enemy. It is not likely that it could be formed after that settlement.

"It is necessary to guarantee the peace, and the peace cannot be guaranteed as an afterthought. The reason, to speak in plain terms again, why it must be guaranteed, is that there will be parties to the peace whose promises have proved untrustworthy, and means must be found in connection with the peace settlement itself to remove that source of insecurity.

"It would be folly to leave the guarantee to the subsequent voluntary action of the government we have seen destroy Russia and deceive Roumania.

Particulars of Terms.

"These, then, are some of the particulars, and I state them with the greater confidence because I can state them authoritatively as representing this government's interpretation of its own duty with regard to peace:

"FIRST—The impartial justice meted out must involve no discrimination between those to whom we wish to be just and those to whom we do not wish to be just. It must be a justice that plays no favorites and knows no standard but the equal rights of the several peoples.

"SECOND—No special or separate interest of any single nation or any group of nations can be made the basis of any part of the settlement which is not consistent with the common interest of all.

"THIRD—There can be no leagues or alliances or special covenants and understandings within the general and common family of the league of nations.

"FOURTH—And more specifically, there can be no special, selfish, economic combinations within the league and no employment of any force of economic boycott for exclusion except as the power of economic penalty by exclusion from the markets of the world may be vested in the league of nations itself as a means of discipline and control.

"FIFTH—All international agreements and treaties of every kind must be made known in their entirety to the rest of the world.

"Special alliances and economic rivalries and hostilities have been the prolific sources in the modern world of the plans and passions that produce war. It would be an insincere as well as insecure peace that did not exclude them in definite and binding terms.

"Plain workaday people have demanded almost every time they came together, and are still demanding, that the leaders of their governments declare to them plainly what it is—exactly what it is—that they were seeking in this war and what they think the items of the final settlement should be.

"They are not yet satisfied with what they have been told. They still seem to fear that they are getting what they ask for only in statesmen's terms —only in the terms of territorial arrangements and the divisions of power and not in terms of broad vision, justice and mercy and peace and the satisfaction of those deep-seated longings of oppressed and distracted men and women and enslaved peoples that seem to them the only things worth fighting a war for that engulfs the world.

"Germany is constantly intimating the 'terms' she will accept; and always finds that the world does not want terms. It wishes the final triumph of justice and fair dealing."

Destroying Hun Airplanes.

Maj. W. A. Bishop, British air service, tells this: "The British do not officially announce a hostile machine destroyed without strict verification. When you are fighting a formation of 20 or more Huns in general melee, and one begins a downward spin, there is seldom time to disengage yourself and watch the machine complete its fatal plunge. You may be morally certain the Hun was entirely out of control and nothing could save him; but unless someone saw the crash, credit is given only for a machine driven down. The royal flying corps is absolutely unperturbed when its losses on any one day exceed those of the enemy, for we philosophically regard this as the penalty necessarily entailed by our acting always on the offensive in the air."

His Excuse.

"John, I want you to meet me today at my dressmaker's—"

"Can't, my dear; this is one of my meetless days."

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

Every day the great principles for which we are fighting take fresh hold upon our thought and purpose and make it clearer what the end must be and what we must do to achieve it. We now know more certainly than we ever knew before why free men brought the great nation and government we love into existence, because it grows clearer and clearer what supreme service it is to be America's privilege to render to the world. The anniversary of the discovery of America must therefore have for us in this fateful year a peculiar and thrilling significance. We should make it a day of ardent rededication to the ideals upon which our government is founded and by which our present heroic tasks are inspired.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do appoint Saturday, the 12th day of October, 1918, as Liberty day. On that day I request the citizens of every community of the United States, city, town and countryside, to celebrate the discovery of our country in order to stimulate a generous response to the Fourth Liberty Loan. Commemorative addresses, pageants, harvest home festivals, or other demonstrations should be arranged for in every neighborhood under the general direction of the secretary of the treasury and the immediate direction of the Liberty Loan committee, in co-operation with the United States bureau of education and the public school authorities. Let the people's response to the Fourth Liberty Loan express the measure of their devotion to the ideals which have guided the country from its discovery until now, and of their determined purpose to defend them and guarantee their triumph.

For the purpose of participating in Liberty day celebrations all employees of the federal government throughout the country whose services can be spared may be excused on Saturday, the 12th day of October, for the entire day.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the District of Columbia this 19th day of September in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Eighteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the One Hundred and Forty-third.

WOODROW WILSON.

By the President:
ROBERT LANSING.
Secretary of State.

HOW GERMANS ARE DELUDED

Ridiculous Statements Made by Kaiser's Government Prove How Real Is Fear of America.

A poster recently issued by the imperial German government in an effort to belittle the participation of America in the war and thus strengthen the morale of her people form the text of one of the most striking pieces of literature that the bureau of publicity of the war loan organization has prepared for use in the forthcoming Fourth Liberty loan.

The title of the poster is "Can America's Entry Make a decision of the War?" Integral sections of it attempt to convince the reader that America's army cannot take the place of Russia's withdrawn forces; that the United States cannot build enough ships to have any effect on the result of the war, and that the U-boats will destroy virtually all the ships that America can build when those ships attempt to cross the ocean. A French poster also is reproduced in the German poster and the meaning so twisted as to make it appear that France is very badly in need of food.

Two millions of the booklets have been printed and will be distributed in various parts of the country, particularly in theaters where Liberty Loan speakers take the book as their text.

The enormous figure of a Russian soldier is the first object on the poster to strike the eye. He stands with hands in his overcoat pockets, indicative of the fact that he is through fighting. Beside him stands Uncle Sam holding a small figure, designed to represent the United States army, in his right hand. In his left hand Uncle Sam carries a banner which bears the inscription, "America threatens to send transport of one-half million men. But it cannot ship them!" Below Uncle Sam are these words: "It is impossible for America to train and fit out in time for the European war a suitable and sufficiently large army and provide it with the necessary reenforcements." The catchline of this section of the poster is "Russia's army of millions could not down Germany," and on the skirt of the Russian soldier's overcoat are printed these words: "Russia used up altogether fifteen million men in vain!"

On the opposite side of the poster is this catchline: "England's sea power and England's merchant marine have not decided the war!" Below this line appears a huge figure intended to represent the English shipping facilities at the outbreak of the war, which bears these words: "England went into the war with twenty million gross registered tons of freight space."

Alongside this figure of a ship is a drawing designed to show Uncle Sam carrying the United States tonnage under his left arm. The caption above Uncle Sam reads: "Can America replace England on sea?" On the ship which Uncle Sam carries is printed this inscription: "Three million gross registry tons," and below that is another inscription which says: "At the beginning of the war America had only a tonnage of three million gross registered tons." Commenting on these statements, the poster further declares "America cannot increase her gross registered tons for 1918 by more than two to two and a half million tons. Our U-boats sink twice as quickly as England and America can build!"

The answer of the publicity bureau to the two sections of the poster referring to the transportation of men and the building of ships follows: "At the moment the bulletin boards of Germany scoffed the possibility of America sending a force to France, there were already more than a million fighting men overseas, and transports, walled about by the American navy defying the cowardly submarines, were bearing every month hundreds of thousands more. The gauge is set and the summer of 1919 will see 4,000,000 fighting American men in France. Nor will there be a lack of ships to transport and sustain them. The Liberty Bond buyer is fast giving to America a merchant marine that will be the peer of any in the world. America launched in July alone 635,011 tons. Losses to allied and neutral shipping combined, from every cause, for the last six months, amounted to 2,089,393 tons.

"The distance from New York to England, the Boche points out," comments the bureau of publicity publication, "is two hundred times greater than that from England to France, from which he spells 'Opportunity for the German U-boats.' Pitiful is this boast in face of the facts. Instead of the U-boat being an unconquerable engine of war, as the Hun confidently expected, it has become the slinking foe of fishing smacks and other isolated craft. The vast army of Liberty Bond buyers, thirty millions strong, has built an unbroken bridge over the Atlantic ocean into the heart of the enemy's strongholds. Across this bridge there are streaming our millions of fighting men, as good as the world has ever known, munitions and equipment that have been wrought by those back home, whose determination is that the American fighting man shall lack nothing that he needs."

As a back-handed slap at the French, the German propagandists have reproduced a French poster which pleads with French people to eat less in order that the United States may send over more man power. The French poster pointed out that if every person in France would save a hundred grams of food a day that the American reinforcements could be increased a division a month. The French catchline on this poster was "Does France want wheat or men?" and the German poster remarks "Also the allies are now beginning to have their doubts!"

In a further effort to convince the German people that it will be impossible for the United States to transport troops to France, the German section of the poster says that ten tons of freight space are required for every soldier in crossing the water. The truth is that a soldier requires less than one-half this amount of space.

Summing up all the falsehoods which the German poster contains, the booklet says: "The War Lord of Germany may have the futile hope that his people will devour in the place of food, such statements as the foregoing. Falsehoods, however, are poor substitutes and are likely to aggravate rather than appease when the deluded people of Germany learn that every requirement of the American soldier will be met by his patriotic and unqualified support back home. If a single soldier required ten tons of freight space, it would be given him. But the truth is he requires less than one-half of that.

"As for Germany's statement that even if the United States built from two and a half million gross registered tons in 1918, it would not mean deliverance for the allies, no further comment is needed than that by July of this year the 2,000,000-ton mark has been passed. If further refutation of the Hun boast of his U-boat prowess were needed, it might be stated that less than 500 American soldiers have lost their lives in the present war as a result of U-boat attacks."

Closing the booklet is this striking quotation from Secretary McAdoo: "The Fourth Liberty loan is the barrage which will precede the victorious thrust of our army."

HOW LOAN IS APPORTIONED

Minimum Amount of Money Which Each Federal Reserve District Is Asked to Raise.

Six billion dollars is the minimum amount which the people of the United States are asked to subscribe for the Fourth Liberty loan, according to an announcement by William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury.

Following are the quotas and percentages of the total by federal reserve districts:

District.	Percentage.	Amount.
New York	30	$1,800,000,000
Chicago	14½	870,000,000
Cleveland	10	[illegible]
Boston	8 1-3	500,000,000
Philadelphia	8 1-3	500,000,000
San Francisco	6 7-10	402,000,000
Richmond	4-2-3	280,000,000
St. Louis.	4 1-3	260,000,000
Kansas City	4 1-3	260,000,000
Minneapolis	3½	210,000,000
Atlanta	3 1-5	192,000,000
Dallas	3 1-10	126,000,000

OCTOBER

L 90

0526

"OVER THE TOP"

By An American Soldier Who Went

Arthur Guy Empey

Machine Gunner, Serving in France

Copyright 1917, by Arthur Guy Empey

CHAPTER XXVII—Continued.

—27—

Tommy generally replies that he did not stop to figure it out when he was hit.

One very nice-looking, overenthusiastic young thing, stopped at my bed and asked, "What wounded you in the face?"

In a polite but bored tone I answered, "A rifle bullet."

With a look of disdain she passed to the next bed, first ejaculating, "Oh! Only a bullet? I thought it was a shell." Why she should think a shell wound was more of a distinction beats me. I don't see a whole lot of difference myself.

The American Women's War hospital was a heaven for wounded men. They were allowed every privilege possible conducive with the rules and military discipline. The only fault was that the men's passes were restricted. To get a pass required an act of parliament. Tommy tried many tricks to get out, but the commandant, an old Boer war officer, was wise to them all, and it took a new and clever ruse to make him affix his signature to the coveted slip of paper.

As soon as it would get dark many a patient climbed over the wall and went "on his own," regardless of many signs staring him in the face, "Out of bounds for patients." Generally the nurses were looking the other way when one of these night raids started. I hope this information will get none of them into trouble, but I cannot resist the temptation to let the commandant know that occasionally we put it over on him.

One afternoon I received a note, through our underground channel, from my female visitor, asking me to attend a party at her house that night. I answered that she could expect me and to meet me at a certain place on the road well known by all patients, and some visitors, as "over the wall." I told her I would be on hand at seven-thirty.

About seven-fifteen I sneaked my overcoat and cap out of the ward and hid it in the bushes. Then I told the nurse, a particular friend of mine, that I was going for a walk in the rose garden. She winked and I knew that everything was all right on her end.

Going out of the ward, I slipped into the bushes and made for the wall. It was dark as pitch and I was groping through the underbrush, when suddenly I stepped into space and felt myself rushing downward, a horrible bump, and blackness. When I came to my wounded shoulder was hurting horribly. I was lying against a circular wall of bricks, dripping with moisture, and far away I could hear the trickling of water. I had in the darkness fallen into an old disused well. But why wasn't I wet? According to all rules I should have been drowned. Perhaps I was and didn't know it.

As the shock of my sudden stop gradually wore off it came to me that I was lying on a ledge and that the least movement on my part would precipitate me to the bottom of the well.

I struck a match. In its faint glare I saw that I was lying in a circular hole about twelve feet deep—the well had been filled in! The dripping I had heard came from a water pipe over on my right.

With my wounded shoulder it was impossible to shinny up the pipe. I could not yell for help, because the rescuer would want to know how the accident happened, and I would be haled before the commandant on charges. I just had to grin and bear it, with the forlorn hope that one of the returning night raiders would pass and I could give him our usual signal of "siss-s-s-s," which would bring him to the rescue.

Every half-hour I could hear the clock in the village strike, each stroke bringing forth a muffled volley of curses on the man who had dug the well.

After two hours I heard two men talking in low voices. I recognized Corporal Cook, an ardent "night raider." He heard my "siss-s-s-s" and came to the edge of the hole. I explained my predicament and amid a lot of impertinent remarks, which at the time I did not resent, I was soon fished out.

Taking off our boots, we sneaked into the ward. I was sitting on my bed in the dark, just starting to undress, when the man next to me, "Ginger" Phillips, whispered, "'Op it, Yank, 'ere comes the matron."

I immediately got under the covers and feigned sleep. The matron stood talking in low tones to the night nurse and I fell asleep.

When I awoke in the morning the night sister, an American, was bending over me. An awful sight met my eyes. The coverlet on the bed and the sheets were a mass of mud and green slime. She was a good sport all right, and hustled to get clean clothes and sheets so that no one would get wise, but "on her own" she gave me a good tongue lashing but did not report me. One of the Canadians in the ward described her as being "a Jake of a good fellow."

Next visiting day I had an awful time explaining to my visitor why I had not met her at the appointed time and place.

And for a week every time I passed a patient he would call, "Well, well, here's the Yank. Hope you are feeling well, old top."

The surgeon in our ward was an American, a Harvard unit man, named Frost. We nicknamed him "Jack Frost." He was loved by all. If a Tommy was to be cut up he had no objection to undergoing the operation if "Jack Frost" was to wield the knife. Their confidence in him was pathetic. He was the best sport I have ever met.

One Saturday morning the commandant and some "high up" officers were inspecting the ward, when one of the patients who had been wounded in the head by a bit of shrapnel, fell on the floor in a fit. They brought him round, and then looked for the ward orderly to carry the patient back to his bed at the other end of the ward. The orderly was nowhere to be found—like our policemen, they never are when needed. The officers were at a loss how to get Palmer into his bed. Doctor Frost was fidgeting around in a nervous manner, when suddenly with a muffled "d——n" and a few other qualifying adjectives, he stooped down and took the man in his arms like a baby—he was no feather, either—and staggered down the ward with him, put him in bed and undressed him. A low murmur of approval came from the patients. Doctor Frost got very red, and as soon as he had finished undressing Palmer, hurriedly left the ward.

The Author Just Before Leaving for Home.

The wound in my face had almost healed and I was a horrible-looking sight—the left cheek twisted into a knot, the eye pulled down, and my mouth pointing in a north by northwest direction. I was very downhearted and could imagine myself during the rest of my life being shunned by all on account of the repulsive scar.

Doctor Frost arranged for me to go to the Cambridge Military hospital at Aldershot for a special operation to try and make the scar presentable.

I arrived at the hospital and got an awful shock. The food was poor and the discipline abnormally strict. No patient was allowed to sit on his bed, and smoking was permitted only at certain designated hours. The face specialist did nothing for me except to look at the wound. I made application for a transfer back to Paignton, offering to pay my transportation. This offer was accepted, and after two weeks' absence, once again I arrived in Munsey ward, all hope gone.

The next day after my return Doctor Frost stopped at my bed and said: "Well, Empey, if you want me to try and see what I can do with that scar I'll do it, but you are taking an awful chance."

I answered: "Well, doctor, Steve Brodie took a chance; he hails from New York and so do I."

Two days after the undertaker squad carried me to the operating room or "pictures," as we called them because of the funny films we see under ether, and the operation was performed. It was a wonderful piece of surgery and a marvelous success. From now on that doctor can have my shirt.

More than once some poor soldier has been brought into the ward in a dying condition, resulting from loss of blood and exhaustion caused by his long journey from the trenches. After an examination the doctor announces that the only thing that will save him is a transfusion of blood. Where is the blood to come from? He does not have to wait long for an answer—several Tommies immediately volunteer their blood for their mate. Three or four are accepted; a blood test is made, and next day the transfusion takes place and there is another pale face in the ward.

Whenever bone is needed for some special operation, there are always men willing to give some—a leg if necessary to save some mangled mate from being crippled for life. More than one man will go through life with another man's blood running through his veins, or a piece of his rib or his shinbone in his own anatomy. Sometimes he never even knows the name of his benefactor.

The spirit of sacrifice is wonderful. For all the suffering caused this war is a blessing to England—it has made new men of her sons; has welded all classes into one glorious whole.

And I can't help saying that the doctors, sisters, and nurses in the English hospitals, are angels on earth. I love them all and can never repay the care and kindness shown to me. For the rest of my life the Red Cross will be to me the symbol of Faith, Hope and Charity.

After four months in the hospital, I went before an examining board and was discharged from the service of his Britannic majesty as "physically unfit for further war service."

After my discharge I engaged passage on the American liner New York, and after a stormy trip across the Atlantic one momentous day, in the haze of early dawn, I saw the statue of liberty looming over the port rail, and I wondered if ever again I would go "over the top with the best of luck and give them hell."

And even then, though it may seem strange, I was really sorry not to be back in the trenches with my mates. War is not a pink tea, but in a worthwhile cause like ours, mud, rats, cooties, shells, wounds, or death itself, are far outweighed by the deep sense of satisfaction felt by the man who does his bit.

There is one thing which my experience taught me that might help the boy who may have to go. It is this—anticipation is far worse than realization. In civil life a man stands in awe of the man above him, wonders how he could ever fill his job. When the time comes he rises to the occasion, is up and at it, and is surprised to find how much more easily than he anticipated he fills his responsibilities. It is really so "out there."

He has nerve for the hardships; the interest of the work grips him; he finds relief in the fun and comradeship of the trenches and wins that best sort of happiness that comes with duty well done.

THE END.

ROMEO WAS CLAD IN KHAKI

Played the Popular Game, Choosing the Dinner Table to Work on Affections of Waitress.

It is natural that we should be eager to do whatever we can for the boys in khaki; but sometimes, when the patriotic zeal is not accompanied by a sympathetic imagination, the beneficiary may pray to be delivered from our friends, writes "An American Woman" in the Outlook.

A homesick lad is likely to want either an atmosphere like that of his own home or else the exotic flavor the expectation of which has helped him to undertake the great adventure so cheerily.

In one family among my neighbors the son of the house was scandalized when one of their guests at Sunday dinner made the perfectly simple and natural request that he be permitted after the meal to repair to the kitchen where the pretty waitress was. Permission was denied, but young Romeo was not discouraged, and this letter came "To the Girl That Waits for Mrs. So-and-So: You are the best ever. Are you keeping company with anybody?" He added his name and a few personal details, and this delicious bit of identification: "If you don't know which soldier wrote this, it is the one that touched your hand under the dish when you passed the potatoes."

YIELDS "APPLE OF SODOM"

Curious Plant Which Grows on the Borders of the Dead Sea Produces This Fruit.

The Dead sea is situated in the southeast part of Palestine, and is called by the Arabs Bahr Loot, or Sea of Lot. It is about 47 miles long, with an average breadth of nine miles. Its depth varies considerably. It is fed by the Jordan from the north, and by many other streams, but has no apparent outlet, its superfluous water being supposed to be entirely carried off by the evaporation. The north shores of the sea are marked by the blackened trunks and branches of trees which are incrusted with salt, as is everything that is exposed to the spray of this sea.

On the southern shore is the remarkable mass of rock called Udsum (Sodom). It is a narrow, rugged ridge of hill extending five miles northwest, and consisting of rock salt. To the north of Udsum, and at no great distance, is the supposed site of the ancient Sodom.

On the borders of the Dead sea a curious plant grows which yields fruit called the "Apple of Sodom," beautiful on the outside but bitter to the taste, and, when mature, filled with fiber and dust.

The mean level of the Dead sea is 1,292 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. The water contains from 24 to 26 per cent of salts, of which 7 per cent is common salt. A salt-water fish put into the Dead sea perishes at once. Owing to its density due to salt the water of the sea is very buoyant.

Making the Dandelion Beautiful.

The original chrysanthemum, from which all the superb varieties we know today are descended, was, in its wild state, no bigger or handsomer than a dandelion. It is found that the latter grows with astonishing rapidity and luxuriance of bloom under cheesecloth shade.

New Book Mark.

Carried on the ribbon of a new book mark is a celluloid panel through openings in which appear various references that can be altered by moving pointers, with which the device is equipped.

And Spain, Too!

Although neutral Spain may not be in the war, the Spaniards are certainly in it. The French have been perfectly well aware that hundreds of Spaniards joined the Foreign Legion, at the beginning of the war; so that Paris was not taken the least by surprise when 300 Spanish soldiers paraded in French uniform to receive decorations for valor. The Spanish colony patriotically welcomed them with fiery speeches, while the French loaded them with medals. Three received the reward of the Legion of Honor, and scores the Croix Militaire and the Croix de Guerre. Since, from a strictly legal point of view, the Spanish legionaries have imperiled their nation's neutrality, it will be interesting to know what Berlin will have to say about it; or rather about the 56 sinkings of Spanish ships and the 56 protests made by Spain, which "friendly" Germany has consistently ignored.—Christian Science Monitor.

Siam Studies Philippine Health.

The Philippine model sanitary house which has aroused so much interest not only among Filipinos but also among residents of neighboring countries, has been adopted by Siam, and contractors located at Bangkok, having secured instructions from the Philippine health service, have begun the construction of a number there. The Siamese are keenly alive to the importance of promoting public health, and inasmuch as the health problems of Siam are very similar to those of the Philippines owing to climate and products, delegations of Siamese have arrived from time to time in Manila for the purpose of studying Philippine methods, one of them last year, being headed by his Royal Highness Prince Rangsit, brother of the king of Siam.

Casadepaga Head.

This remarkable looking rock is known as a schist which is weathered and crumbled into a human expression which is startling. Not only is there a distinct resemblance to a man's profile but the head is apparently dressed in a periwig of the style of the last century such as the soldiers of Cornwallis wore. The rock is located on the top of a 2,000-foot hill on Seward peninsula, Alaska, and is called by the natives the Big Head, or the Casadepaga Head. The face is about eight feet high.

A Question.

"Doctor, you told my husband to get the fresh air."

"Yes, he should remain out a good part of the day."

"He does that. But kin he get the fresh air with a pipe in his mouth all the time?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Oh, Very Different.

Sometimes when a man fails, his wife tells the public that he was too conscientious to succeed. What she tells him in private is a different matter.—Boston Transcript.

MORE PLANES TO USE BOMBS

Allies Believe Plan Will Increase Efficiency of the Machine in Warfare.

With the American Army in England.—Almost every airplane used by the allies soon will carry bombs. Experts in aerial warfare are convinced that the general efficiency of the corps will be increased if a bombing device is added to every plane sent out, even though it be of the type once intended only for reconnoissance work, and Americans now training in England are being carefully drilled in bombing. The device now being used is one with which the aviator may with much practice become almost as proficient in marksmanship as an artilleryman is with his gun.

Cat Eats Olives.

East Cleveland, O.—Cats in this town are educated and have all the mannerisms of polite society.

Take, for instance, the one owned by Mrs. A. McLeod. Its best meal is made off of olives, and it is the only one of its race that has been known to take to that delicacy.

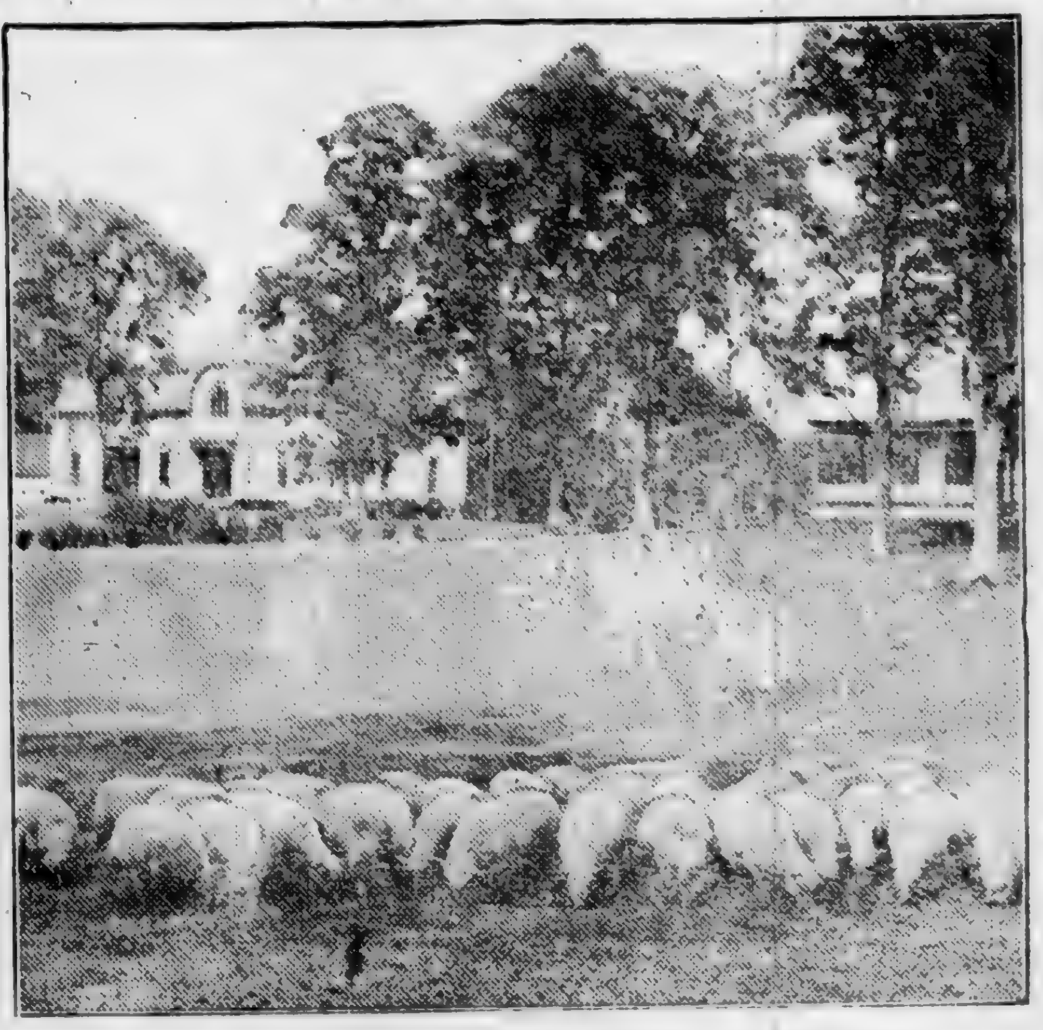
Dog Catchers Busy.

Indianapolis.—The dog catchers of the Hoosier capital are on their annual roundup of hound owners who have failed to make their deposit with the city treasurer. W. C. Weeks was their first victim and it cost him $11 for not paying his dollar earlier in the year.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

PLAN FOR MORE LAMBS.



Sheep Should Have Access to Fresh Pasture at This Season.

PLAN FOR LARGE YIELD OF LAMBS

Cull Ewes Closely and Keep Them Gaining on Good Pasture and Other Feed.

CULL UNPROFITABLE ANIMALS

Special Effort Should Be Made to Secure Strong, Vigorous, Pure-Bred Ram of Desirable Type and Individuality.

The best time to begin preparation for a large crop of lambs is early in the fall, several weeks before the mating season begins. At that time the ewe flock should be culled closely with the idea of eliminating ewes that have proved themselves to be unprofitable breeders, due to barenness or having produced small and weak lambs at birth, or having failed to produce milk enough for the rapid development of their offspring. At the same time special attention should be given to the securing of a strong, vigorous, pure-bred ram of desirable type and individuality a year or more old, preferably a proved sire.

Flushing.

After the final make-up of the flock is determined, the ewes should have access to fresh pasture. Some kind of forage crop especially grown for the purpose is desirable, and a little grain may be provided at this time. The idea is to have the ewes gain slightly in flesh a few weeks previous to and during the mating season. This practice is known among sheepmen as "flushing," and will insure an increased per cent of twin lambs.

Experiments conducted by the animal husbandry division of the United States department of agriculture have shown that the extra trouble and feed required in flushing the ewes is repaid several times by the added number of lambs obtained. With ewes already in good condition the effect is less marked than with thinner stock. Young or dry ewes that are in high condition will not be benefited by flushing. With ewes gaining in condition at breeding time the lambs arrive more nearly together in spring. This lessens the labor of lambing season and gives more nearly uniform ages and weights in lambs to be marketed.

The Ram.

The number of twin lambs is apparently governed more largely by the ewe than by the ram. It is important, however, to keep the ram in strong, vigorous condition, for if he is overtaxed in low condition some ewes may fail to get in lamb. At the beginning of breeding the ram should be in good flush, but should not have been overfed or kept too active. It is best if he can have grain feed and be separated from the flock for at least a few hours each day.

Flock Management.

The breeding season over, the flock should be carried through the winter under such system of management as will insure health and a gradual increase in weight of from 10 to 15 pounds a head until lambing time. The increase in weight is desired to counteract the loss of weight at parturition time, and will leave the ewe in a stronger condition after lambing, thereby insuring greater ability on her part to provide the necessary quantity of milk for the rapid development of her lamb. This management produces lambs that are larger and stronger at birth, are better able to gain rapidly, and are ready for early marketing. To do this suitable quarters must be provided to protect the flock against storms, wet floors, drafts, and lack of sanitary conditions, and at the same time provide plenty of ventilation, sunlight and exercise.

Very little grain, if any, is necessary in the ration, provided a sufficient supply of good clover hay and sweet silage free from mold is available. In case silage or other succulent feed is not available, the hay should be supplemented with not more than a half pound of grain per head per day.

MANAGEMENT OF EWES

The experiences of successful flockmasters in the past and the limited amount of experimental data available on the subject indicate that the per cent of lambs to ewes bred that may be produced, as well as the size and vitality of the lambs at birth and their subsequent development, depends as much, if not more, on the feed and management of the ewes during the breeding season and the period of pregnancy than upon the care and feeding they receive after lambing.

Equipment for Sheep Breeding.

Equipment for raising sheep on farms need not be expensive. In mild latitudes little housing is needed, and the main need is for fencing and pastures of sufficient number and size to allow frequent changing of flocks to fresh ground to insure health. Where winters are longer and more severe, buildings and sheds are necessary to furnish protection from storms, though no special provisions are needed for warmth. Dryness, good ventilation, and freedom from drafts are the first requisites of buildings for sheep. Convenience in feeding and shepherding must also be held in mind in locating and planning such buildings or sheds.

Small flocks can be cared for in sections of barns having stabling or feed storage for other stock, but with a flock of, say, 100 ewes, separate buildings are desirable. The interior arrangement of these buildings should be such as to require a minimum of labor and the least possible moving of the ewes in doing the feeding and caring for them during the lambing season. A building of this type can also be utilized for fattening purchased lambs to be disposed of before lambing begins in the regular farm flock. A good supply of feed racks, grain troughs, etc., can be provided at small expense and will save labor and prevent waste of feed.

"Watering the Milk."

The aged joke about the milkman who was wont to increase the product of his cows by frequent manipulations of the pump handle has served its day, and it is hoped that no basis for it exists. But it is still true, and always will be true, that the milking cow requires plenty of water. The water, however, is given to the cow, and is not administered directly to the milk.

Stale or impure water is distasteful to the cow, and she will not drink enough for maximum milk production. Such water may carry disease germs, and make the milk unsafe for human use or be dangerous to the cow.

In cold weather, when cows are stabled most of the time, they should be watered two or three times a day unless arrangements have been made to keep water before them constantly. If possible, the water should be 15 or 20 degrees above the freezing point, and should be supplied at practically the same temperature every day.

Care in Fattening Calves.

More care is necessary in fattening calves than in feeding grown cattle, but whenever possible, it is best to raise and finish beef cattle on the same farm.

Keep Needed Feed.

Keep all the feed you'll need.

OCTOBER

0527

MUDDY COMPLEXION

YOUR COMPLEXION is muddy. You look haggard and yellow. Your eyes are losing their lustre. The trouble is with your liver. Take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will correct that. Then avoid meats, hot bread and hot cakes, take frequent baths and a long walk every day, and you will soon be as well and as beautiful as ever. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Tablets

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

EAR JOE:—

I sure was surprised to hear from u. Weil, Joe, I am having a fine me here in the army. It is sure me life to live. We have all we n eat, and you know that just its me. I tell you, Joe, when they ed me all I can eat and give me plenty of good clothes and a good bed, I am sure right at home. We get the very best of grub here. We are living in tents now—eight in a tent. There are only about 1,500 tents at this place. There are tents as far as you can see. It is surely some sight.

It has been raining here for four or five days, but today it is clear nd very cool.

When they want to do anything ere, they detail about 300 or 400 men and go and do it. We sure do ave some time. A job two of us would do in a day up home, they detail about ten men to do it. If a man wants to work here, they won't let him. You ought to have this bunch up there when you clean out that old ditch. There would be only about two shovelsful of dirt to each man and it would be done. They have so many working on a job, they are in each other's way. If they want a building moved, like your granary, the men get against each other clear around it and stoop over and catch under it and start off with it as though it was feathers.

This is some life all right. You fellows up home will have to work harder than us fellows, but we will make up for lost time when we march through old Berlin twenty million strong. You want to have some good old grape wine made when we boys come home, because we sure will need a tonic. I also want you to have the old Concord band to play for us. Talk about bands. We sure have them here. They are playing all the time. There is so much noise here it is just like a fair.

When we go to dinner, we march in a row past a long table, where they have the grub in big pans, with a man at each. He gives each one a big spoonful of potatoes or of whatever it happens to be; and when you get past, you have your market full. If you are hungry when you get that eaten, you go back and get some more until you get enough. On Sundays, we sure do get a swell dinner—ice cream, pine apples, oranges and bananas cut up together, musk melon, all kinds of meat, potatoes, rice pudding and everything you can think of. We sure do have good white bread. The meat comes in fresh every day. They carry in half a cow and it is soon on cooking. They do things here on a big scale.

Well, Joe, I am glad you thought of your old friend, Tom, who is fighting for those at home. Your letter was surely welcome. Well, Joe, I will have to close and go to work. So take care of yourself and I will do the same; and remember, you still have a friend in the army at Camp Taylor, Ky.

Would be glad to hear from you again.

Excuse mistakes, because I wrote this in a hurry.

Pvt. TOM BRUNSON.

This letter was written to Joe Shull.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 16
ST. JOE, . . . IND

Hooray!
IT'S ALWAYS BRADLEY TIME

No moth ball vacations for your Bradley Sweater—you want it all year. Straight through one season into another you wear it and it looks like new. That's because Bradleys are built for both service and style—to withstand the test of hard wear and critical eyes. Warmth without weight or restraint, thoroughbred style and quality make the Bradley Sweater ideal for outdoor sports. They are handy for fun of all sorts—tramping, camping, conoeing, skating or in the house.

SWEATERS AT FROM $1.50 to $12.50

WM. KNISELY & SON.
Butler, Indiana
CLOTHING FURNISHINGS SHOES.

CONSECRATION

Who'll win the war? It's the man who'll go
Over the top to crush the foe,
Giving himself and his love of life
That parents, children, sweetheart, wife
And the sane, good peoples of all the world
May live with a decent flag unfurled,
Nor dreading a foul land-lusting Thor
Who would beat them down. He will win the war.

Who'll win the war? It's the woman who
In her fond, warm, God-sworn heart is true
To the soldier who's fighting over there—
The man who knows that her every prayer,
Her every hope is of him; and when,
With the world made right, he will come again
To all that a life's worth living for—
"Home, sweet home!" She will win the war.

Who'll win the war? It's the one who sows
And tends and reaps: the one who grows
In field and garden, by vale and plain,
The sun-wrought treasure of golden grain
That must feed the soldier behind the gun
Whose steel-writ message shall lash the Hun
And his crimes all decent men abhor.
The one in the furrow will win the war.

Who'll win the war? It's the one who knows
He is giving his noblest hammer blows
To clinch the rivet and drive the nail,
Who is helping to fashion the ships that sail
The foe-infested seas with men
To set this mad world right again;
Who thinks not of his own ease or
Of his selfish gains. He will win the war.

Who will win the war? Grandmother Gray,
As she goes on knitting day by day,
While with every stitch, as the tasks advance,
Is a prayer for a boy somewhere in France.
And she thinks of a soldier, long ago—
And a grave where old-time roses grow—
Who fought, as his grandson's fighting, for
The world's good peace. She will win the war.

Who'll win the war? It's every man—
And woman—who does the best he can,
Working and giving; who scouts his ease
And the sophistry of selfish pleas
Till he feels the thrill of the fearful strife
Of men who are giving limb and life
For a flag that stands for a free world, nor Deems the price too great. He will win the war.

Who'll win the war? I, I alone!
It is I who must make this fight my own!
I must strive—head, heart and hand—as though
My own clenched fist is to crush the foe!
All that I have of strength and youth
I must lay on the altar of God and Truth
And the decent world we are fighting for.
Yes, I myself—I will win the war!

—NIXON WATERMAN in Saturday Evening Post.

BRAINSTORM

"And he gathered them together in a place called in the Hebrew Armageddon" (Rev. xvi, 16). This gathering is explained in the fourteenth verse of the same chapter, which reads as follows: "For they are the spirits of devils working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty." It has been predicted, partly upon the authority of Biblical students and partly upon legendary authority, that a great, decisive world battle is to be fought at Armageddon between the powers of good and evil; and the scripture quoted in the foregoing is said to foretell the same. The apocalyptic vision of St. John and the prophecies of Daniel have been given many interpretions: the end of the world has been frequently predicted, even to the very day; but the predictions all came to naught by the earth's failure to be a party thereto, by her moving along in her old accustomed way when she should have been going up in smoke. Since the beginning of the war, the date of the overthrow of the kaiser has been set a number of times—proven from the prophecies by an array of figures and symbols that should have convinced Kaiser Bill himself that he was a goner; but in the face of absolute Biblical proof that the day of his defeat had come, he kept on fighting, probably relying upon his "pull" as the senior partner of "Me und Gott."

Now, the NEWS is going to try to untagble the knotted threads of prophecy; and if it fail, and it probably will, it can not do any worse than all the others that have attempted to do the same thing. Before doing so, however, attention is called to the fact that St. John prophesied three things: First, a great, decisive battle is to be fought at Armageddon; second, it is to be fought between the powers of good and evil; third, all the kings of the earth are to be gathered there. The NEWS thinks that the prophesy has been fulfilled in the recent defeat of the Turks by General Allenby for the following reasons:

The battle was fought on the plain of Esdralaon (or Jezreel), which was the Armageddon of the Hebrew. Hence, geographically the prophecy is fulfilled. True, the number of men engaged was small, compared with the great armies in Europe; but results, not armaments, determine the importance and decisiveness of a battle. If the Moslems were annihilated, which seems probable, it means the beginning of the elimination of the Turk from the war and is of such a decisive nature as to presage the beginning of the end of the struggle.

Secondly. Does the kaiser, with his record for frightfulnees, cruelty and wantonness unparalled in the history of the world, when the civilization of today is contrasted with that of the dark ages, represent the powers of darkness? If he do not, the world is wrong in its conception of the Beast of Berlin and a worse than he is yet to come. God, forbid such a calamity's befalling the earth!

According to St. John, the whole world is to be gathered at the battle of Armageddon. Were they there? is the question. Of course not, says one: Allenby had under him only British troops, a Jewish contingent and several Arab tribes. Yes, that is true; but, do not forget that this is a world war and every nation—combatant and non-combatant—will be affected by the outcome. The decisive battle of this war will be in reality a gathering of kings (nations).

Now, having proven (briefly but conclusively) that Armageddon has been fought, the NEWS will vacate the chair of prophecy in favor of those who confine their efforts to the minor question of predicting the end of the world; but it asks them not to be too hasty—wait until the kaiser gets what's coming to him.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
C. O. JOHNSON, Pastor.

St. Joe—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 8:00 P. M.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30.
Concord—Sunday School 9:30 A. M.
Preaching 10.45 A. M.

Christian Church Announcements;
St. Joe—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m;
Communion, 10:45 a. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:30 a. m.
Rally day services.
Preaching 10:30 A. M.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.

Of St. Joe News, published weekly at St. Joe, Indiana, for October 1st, 1918.
State of Indiana, County of DeKalb, ss:

Before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Fred B. Leighty, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Editor and Publisher of the St. Joe News, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager are:

Publisher, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

Editor, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

Managing Editor, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

Business Manager, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

2. That the owners are:

Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are:

None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the boods of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stick and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

FRED B. LEIGHTY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st day of October, 1918.

S. S. WIDNEY, J. P.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

FOR SALE:-Young Holstein Jersey Cow. CARL JOHNSON.

For Sale.--Good round Jewel heating stove. Burns coal or wood. Inquire of Mrs. Benjamin Hamilton.

For Sale.--Good Laurel range. Inquire of Mrs. Bessie Tustison.

For Sale.--Soft coal burner. Inquire of Charles Koch.

Do You
Use Good Paper When You Write?
We Can Print Anything and Do It Right.

The Complexion Is the Health Barometer

A good complexion can not be obtained when the liver, kidneys or bowels are inactive. Bilions or poisonous matter within the body causes the sallow, muddy or splotchy complexion. Why drag around looking tired, old and dejected when Glando Tonic will put you right? It will remove the poisons and give you new life and strength. Glando Tonic acts directly on the liver, kidneys and small glands of the stomach and bowels. Its great popularity is due to the wonderful cures which have been obtained through its use. Sold by druggists or may be secured by sending direct to the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. Price. 50 cents.

The St. Joe News
Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Concerning Surgical Dressings

TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC:—

There is a misapprehension in our town and vicinity that is being magnified until it approaches slander. To those interested, I desire to state that I did not withhold instructor's cards from the St. Joe class; that I was in no way compelled to give this course at any time; that I had no disposition to withhold instructor's cards; and if I had so desired, the power is not mine to do so, for so stringent are the Red Cross laws that I could easily be detected in unjust work of this sort. It would be a pleasure to me to have this investigated. I hold correspondence from the chairman of surgicol dressings for the Lake division, Cleveland, that anyone may see who is so disposed and which makes clear this situation and is proof that this work has been carried on strictly in accordance with Red Cross rules.

The two persons who originated this report are known; and anyone repeating this falsehood after the publication of this statement will be dealt with in strict accordance with the law and also under Red Cross laws.

Before we commenced to take this course, the following letter was read to the workers in surgical dressings in the work room, then in the Buckingham residence. The letter is self-explanatory, and all the workers understood that the issuing of instructor's cards was uncertain.

CLEVELAND, April 6, 1918.

INSTRUCTORS IN SURGICAL DRESSINGS:—

Classes in surgical dressings already formed will complete the course, for which the usual fee will be charged and cards issued to such persons who qualify as instructors. After the completion of the above mentioned courses, no more instructor's cards will be issued.

All chapters are urged to organize volunteer classes for the purpose of making their workers more proficient in the making of surgical dressings in chapter, branch and auxiliary work rooms. The instruction in these courses must be volunteer and no fee shall be charged for the course.

ADELAIDE B. MCKEE, Sup't
Surgical Dressings.
Approved: JAS. R. GARFIELD.
MRS. C. R. PRICE.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

DO IT NOW

Send us the price of a year's subscription if you are in arrears.

We Need the Money

OCTOBER

L 90

0528

SPENCERVILLE

Born, to Dayton Webb and wife on Monday, a daughter.

Members of the Lutheran church met on Thursday and cleaned the church yard.

Miss Madonna Kelley is visiting at the home of her grandparents, Vol Hay and wife.

Mrs. Homer, of Warsaw, visited several days last week at the home of her brother, Vol Hay.

Robert Beams, wife and son, Glenn, were Sunday dinner guests of Ernest Steward and wife.

Sheriff Frank Baltz, of Auburn, on Thursday ate dinner with his parents, Jacob Baltz and wife.

Ett Walker and wife, of Hicksville, on Friday visited the latter's sister, Mrs. Lucy Fairfield, who is quite ill.

Mrs. John McGillvary, of Ulysses, Kan., and Mrs. John Hobaugh were Friday dinner guests at the Henry Beams home.

Mrs. J. S. Nelson, of Fort Wayne, who had been visiting Joel Betz and wife and other relatives, returned home on Monday.

Glenn Betz, of Woodburn, came Friday to help his father, Joel Betz, re-roof his house. William and Jerry Markle also assisted.

Rally day will be observed next Sunday at the Methodist church. An interesting program has been arranged. Everyboby invited.

Word has been received here of the marriage of Roy Snyder and Miss Ruth Thomas, of Grabill. The bride was a former resident of this place.

Louis Zent and family and James Zent, all of near Fort Wayne, were over-Sunday guests of Mrs. Zent's parents, Theodore Dinius and family.

The ladies' guild of the M. E. church was entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs Ida Gibbons, east of town. Three guests were present: Mrs. Homer, of Warsaw; and Mesdames Ray Means and Della Brown.

Miss Olive Gratz, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gratz west of town, was united in marriage on Wednesday to Harrison Carpenter, of Auburn. The bride will remain at the home of her parents for a time. The groom is a mail clerk.

Mrs. Merritt Butler is suffering with the hay fever.

Mrs. Margaret Koch left Monday to spend a few days visiting at Hicksville with Mrs. Lucy Koch.

The Lutheran Missionary Society will meet next Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Jessie Sommers, of Coburntown.

Nan Phillips and wife, Minerva Wise and Mrs. Nellie Wise, of Auburn, were guests of Baltzer Koontz and wife and Mrs. J. C. Vallieu, last Saturday.

Delmer Markle and son, of Fort Wayne, visited the former's parents, Jerry Markle and wife.

Little Dale Bowser is slowly recovering from the broken leg sustained a week ago.

Charles Scott and wife and Mrs. Milton Chaney on Monday left for Angola, where they will attend the fair and visit at the home of Hugh Cope and wife.

Reason Chaney and wife are spending several weeks at the home of the former's brother, Elmer Chanear, near Ann Arbor.

The J. A. G. club and their husbands surprised Mrs. Golden High on Monday evening, giving her an old-fashioned belling. Mrs. High invited them in and all passed a pleasant evening.

The high school boys have organised an athletic club for the coming winter with the following officers: President, Harold Miller; secretary-treasurer, Vernie Reed. They have rented the basketball hall and expect to play some good games this winter.

Miss Hazel, only daughter of Mrs. Permetta Steward, was married on Sunday at Detroit to George A. Roberts, of that city. The bride is an admirable young lady and will be greatly missed, particularly in church and Sunday school circles, where she was very active. The groom is engaged on government work at Detroit, where the newly-married couple will make their home. Mrs. Steward accompanied her daughter to Detroit, and will remain with the young people for a few weeks.

HERE AND THERE

Fine box stationery at 15c, 20c, 25c and 30c at the NEWS office.

Frank Filley, of Huntington, is here visiting his mother, Mrs. Addie Filley.

The October meeting of the W. H. and F. M. Society of the Lutheran Church was held in the home of Mrs. Huldah Reasoner, Saturday afternoon, with a good attendance. The bible lesson, "The Zeal of the Lord of Hosts" was conducted by Mrs. Grace Dilley. An interesting lesson on "Inner Missions' was ably conducted by Mrs. Mumma. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Ella Patterson; Vice-Pres., Mrs Jennie Sechler; Recording Secy., Mrs. Huldah Reasoner; Corresponding Secy., Mrs. Mabel Thornton; Treas., Miss Bessie Tustison; Mission Band Supts., Mrs. Retta Hathaway, Agnes Monroe and Bessie Tustison. The president was elected delegate to the Synodical Convention which meets in Logansport, Oct. 18—19.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to

Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

THE BLUE TRIANGLE ON BABEL'S TOWER

Lucia pulled her shawl farther across her face and shrank down on the station platform bench as the solid blue figure suddenly bent down over her. Excitedly she shook her head in answer to the question that she could not understand. She searched through her red plaid waist for the paper that Tony had folded into a little square and given to her. The writing on it, in the English that Tony knew and she did not, told the house where she lived. Tony had explained it all to her that morning. He had told it to her again at the station. Then, waving his hat, he had disappeared into the train with the rest of the men, and Lucia had been left standing oueside the gate. There were crowds of women pushing all about her. They were weeping. So Lucia wept, too.

Lucia had been betrothed to Tony in the old country. Five years before, with a long ticket for New York pinned into his inside pocket, her lover had left her. He wrote in every letter that he had made her a home in the new country. Her dowry money had finally provided her own transportation, and for two months Tony and she had been married. Then he had drawn a ticket with a number on it, and this morning he had gone off to war.

To the policeman Lucia told all these things in rapid Italian. But the policeman only talked back to her as rapidly in a language that was not Italian. She followed him dumbly to headquarters. An hour later a woman wearing American clothes gently began talking to her in beautiful Italian.

Italian Lucia was only one of thousands of foreign-born women, Syrians, Italians, Armenians, Russians, Lithuanians, Polish, who, when the draft called their men folk to the American colors, asked in helpless confusion what it was all about. When would their men be back? What did people mean when they told them they would receive money through the mail? Where could they find work that they knew how to do? Was there no one who could explain it all to them in their own language?

The Y. W. C. A. was ready to offer assistance, but it would be of no value to offer it in English. Consequently it had to supply a corps of women who could talk to the foreign-born woman at her own door in the language that she was used to hearing in the homeland. To teach her English was as essential a factor in her Americanization as to find her a job. Therefore the war council of the Y. W. C. A. set out to find her English.

A year before the war began in Europe, the leaders of the Young Woman's Christian association foresaw just such a situation, and made ready to meet it. They studied the needs of the immigrant. They trained skilled American social workers to become familiar with the home habits and to speak the language of the Lett and the Hungarian and the Greek and the other foreign mothers who brought babies and bundles over from Ellis island to Battery park.

The organization into which this experiment has developed was named by the Y. W. C. A. national board, "The International Institute for Young Women." In terms which these women can understand, it is teaching the foreign-born how to sew and cook and care for the baby.

To girls like Italian Lucia, who confusedly lingered on the station platforms when the draft trains pulled out, the W. Y. C. A. is giving direct assistance. Educated European women, appointed to the regular staff of workers at the camp Y. W. C. A. Hostess Houses are able to talk to the drafted men in their own language, assist them in writing letters home, and in arranging furloughs and little visits to the camp.

"The Home Information Service for Foreign Families of Enlisted Men" is doing practical relief work for the wives and mothers. The purpose of the board is to help the women folk left behind to understand where their boys are and how they are being treated; how they need home support and cheer, how to send them comforts, and to keep pace themselves by learning English and other things, so that when the boys come home they will not find their women still very un-American and out of sympathy with them.

Food conservation bulletins have been translated into 18 or 19 languages. At the factories and munition plants interpreters are available for the non-English speaking women by whom the real war industries of the country are being largely carried on. In 25 important cities International Institute Bureaus are training American and foreign women for full time social service work with foreigners. Twenty-four trained women are employed on the national and district field staff of the Y. W. C. A. On June 15 there were 105 trained women working at Americanization.

When more than 75,000 Chicago men filled out their blue cards for the September 12 draft, Gang Luo Wong appeared at one precinct bringing with him Mrs. Gang Wong and the three children. All five wished to register. The enrolling clerk explained, but the Gang Luo Wongs make many broken Chinese remonstrances before the master of the family was induced to sign a card without his wife. Mrs. Wong could not speak English. What would his family do in a strange country if Gang Luo went to war? All over the United States Chinese and Poles and Serbs were asking the same question. It is to just such needs that the War Council of the Y. M. C. A. is organized to give assistance.

YOUR Life Insurance!

Our Policy Provides for Waiver of Premium--

10 % Income of face amount of Policy each year for total dissability.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY and ANNUAL DIVIDEND

Let me show you the MUTUAL LIFE POLICY.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Whithurst has moved from her farm to her home in town again.

Naaman Dean and family, of Butler, were guests of Mrs. Whithurst and family, Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Brink, of Butler, was a Thursday guest of Mrs. Ollie Smith and family.

Miss Fern Tarney goes to Indianapolis, to represent the Newville Chapter of the Pythian Sisters this week; she will be accompanied by her mother, Mrs Minnie Farney.

Mrs. Ina Traxler and little daughter Mona, were guests of her sister, Mrs. Minnie Welker, of Melbern, Ohio, last week.

Adrain Washler and wife are the proud and happy parents of an 8 lb., daughter, born Tuesday, Sept. 24th.

Two veterans of the Civil War died last week, close together in regard to time. Mr. A C Huffman, of Butler, died Wednesday evening, and Mr. Wyatt Thursday morning.

Miss Ruth King and friend, Mr. Earl Wolf, of Auburn, were Sunday guests of Wall Warner and family.

Elmer Wyatt died Thursday morning, Sept. 26, at 8:30 o'clock after a long illness following an operation for the removal of gall stones in July. The funeral which was held Sunday afternoon from the U. B. Church was one of the largest ever held at this place. Elder Lilly, of Hicksville, officiated, assisted by Rev. E. Hively, former pastor of this place. A great many relatives and friends from a distance were in attendance at the funeral.

Don't Be Careless About Your Health

When the liver is not acting properly, the system becomes full of poisonous accumulations, the kidneys and intestinal glands become sluggish and a general debilitated and nervous condition exists. The blood becomes impure, the circulation sluggish and the brain clouded.

A neglected liver causes chronic constipation, jaundice, gall stones and very often cancer.

Glando Tonic acts upon the whole glandular system, of which the liver is the chief gland. If this glandular system is in good working condition, disease has no chance to fasten itself upon you. The best time to doctor is when you begin to feel tired, achy or languid.

To neglect one's self when that tired, draggy feeling is present may mean weeks of severe illness. Let Glando Tonic remove that feeling and give you life and health.

Mothers who have nursing babies should use Glando Tonic to keep their bowels well regulated and their system in good condition. This will regulate baby's bowels and help it to withstand the heat and germs of summer.

Glando Tonic can be obtained of druggists or direct from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

Dewey Miller is now on his way to France, the land of war and blood shed.

Mrs Gillingham is expected to come home, this week, her condition is serious.

The nation will be dry, in the sweet by-and-by, in 1919 on the first of July, why not now? There is an old saying, "What is worth doing should be done now."

COLETOWN

Rev. Glenn Denning will preach a Patriotic sermon at Wesley Chapel, Friday evening, Oct. 4th.

Mrs. Anna Hursey, of Concord, spent Friday with her sister, Mrs. Jay Hart.

Henro Kling, wife and daughter Lillian, took dinner Sunday with Fred Spindler and wife, of Jerico.

Rev. Bryan and wife were Sunday guests in the Edwin Guthrie home.

Mrs. John Nugen, of Battle Creek, Mich., spent the past week with her parents, W. M. Sauers and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hart are proud parents of a baby boy born Thursday, Sept. 26.

BACK THE BOYS WITH BONDS

Our Hearts and Souls and Money Must Help Win This War.

BY GERALDINE FARRAR,
Famous Operatic Star.

At a theater the other day a box party was given in honor of half a dozen heroes disabled while fighting for that victory at the battle of Chateau Thierry. Some were without arms and others without legs; others so badly injured by the deadly poisons of the Germans they probably will not live more than a year. But from every one of them came a strange spirit of spiritual gladness. They held their heads erect and smiled as though to say, "It was fine to have done what we did."

And the rest of us in the audience—we who were safe and whole and well—something tugged at our hearts and brought stinging tears to our eyes. What have the most actively patriotic of us done to compare with them?

We are past the time of mere logical calculations. Our hearts and souls, as well as our minds and bodies are in the struggle. And we are winning, winning, winning! Every day brings tiding of new victories. But remember, we have yet to strike the final decisive blow. And without money we cannot do it.

PUT A BIGGER SERVICE STAR
4th
LIBERTY LOAN
ON YOUR POCKET BOOK

SAFEGUARD THE HOME.

FALL FOOTWEAR

We have received several new styles of Men's and Women's Fall Shoes, and would advise our customers to get in early. Shoes are going to be hard to get in the styles you want.

DON'T PUT IT OFF!

Women's Fine Kid in brown or grey Goodyear welts	$8.00
Same in black, $7 and	7.50
Dress Shoes — Martha Washington, $5.50 to	8.00
Men's Fine Kangaroo, Vici Kid or Calfskin Shoes, — Thompson Bros. make, $6 to	9.00
Others down to	5.00

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

POST CARDS

are now on dispay at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratuation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent fo ders.

St JOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY PUB.
St. Joe Ind.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1867

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP

Fort Wayne, Ind.

OCTOBER

L 90

0529

In the PUBLIC EYE

FINDS TUBERCULOSIS CURE

Prof. Domenico Lo Monaco, who is director of the Institute of Biological Chemistry connected with the Academy of the Lincei, at Rome, lately announced in an official communication that he had been able to make a great advance in the cure of tuberculosis. This result is obtained by a method which is much simpler than all the serum methods experimented with during recent years, namely injections of sugar to modify the bronchial secretions.

Instead of attacking the bacillus itself, whose conditions of life, reproduction and resistance to outside influences are even now only imperfectly understood, the author proposes to modify the surroundings in which the microbe lives and thus to make its existence impossible. His paper is entitled "Action of Sugars on the Bronchial Secretion," and is the result of careful researches made since 1907.

The professor says: "At present I limit myself to the conclusion that injections of sugar diminish bronchial secretion even in the most advanced stages of tuberculosis. Simultaneously it has been observed that the cough and night sweats also diminish."

He has made a number of cures which were recognized as final by skilled persons.

ALLIED CHIEF IN SIBERIA

General Kikuzo Otani, who is commander in chief of the allied forces in Siberia, was born in Fukui, on the west coast of Japan, in 1856. He studied under an American teacher until he reached military age and then entered the army.

From the ranks he was made sublieutenant in 1879, lieutenant in 1883, captain in 1886 and major in 1887. When the war with China broke out in 1894 he was put in charge of transporting the troops to Korea and the road to Peking. In 1897 he was colonel of a regiment. It was just before the war with Russia—when the shadow of the great bear loomed large over little Japan—that in June, 1902, he received his commission as major general. In Manchuria he commanded a division in the Fourth army. He fought in the long and fierce campaign in the spring of 1905 that led to the capture of Mukden and the final defeat of the Russians. August 19, 1909, he was gazetted lieutenant general. When Germany defied civilization in 1914, Japan's fleet and army, airplanes and submarines promptly took Tsing-Tao, the German colony and fortress in China. In this enterprise Otani was General Kamio's right-hand man.

Tall, slender, of long, oval face—sure token of the ancient Aryan strain in the Japanese composite—with high forehead and close-cropped mustache, Otani looks very much like a man of the world in any army. A strict disciplinarian—which means fair play to all—he is trusted and beloved by his fighting comrades.

ESCAPED FROM THE HUNS

International Film Service

Lieut. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., of Westbury, N. Y., the youthful member of the Lafayette flying corps, who was captured by the Germans some time ago but escaped and reached Switzerland August 28, had some remarkable experiences in his flight to neutral territory.

While being transported with two other Americans from Lachfeld to Rastadt, "Tommy" jumped from the train when his guard was asleep. He was forced to walk more than 100 miles. This he did in eight consecutive nights, hiding during the daytime. He lived on the food he had saved from his meager rations in the prison camp.

On the eighth day of his tramp he found himself in a village. He inquired of a small girl whether he was in Switzerland, and, being told he was, he made his way direct to Berne, where he arrived August 30.

Hitchcock was captured March 6 when he was forced to land after an aerial combat with three German machines. He was wounded in the thigh and his machine became disabled at an altitude of 1,000 meters, but he managed to land safely inside the German line.

DECORATED BY JOFFRE

Mme. Cecile Gillot of New York, who is back in the United States while the estate of her husband who was killed by the Boches is being settled, tells how the Germans held her prisoner and beat her with the butts of rifles because she would not divulge military information. Mme. Gillot wears the Croix de Guerre, won for bravery in the field while under fire, and pinned upon her breast by Marshal Joffre himself.

"The Huns have killed my husband and six of my brothers and they have maimed a seventh brother for life," said Mme. Gillot. "They shot off both legs of my seventh brother. Still, with all this I would risk my life to save a wounded enemy on the field of battle. That is the spirit of all the Red Cross nurses with the allied armies."

Mme. Gillot explained that at the start of the war she volunteered her services as a nurse and was accepted. She, with a corps of other nurses, while searching the field to rescue wounded after a battle, was captured by the Germans.

During her three years at the front this French heroine was gassed once and suffered blood poisoning, which developed from scratches received while crawling through barbed wire entanglements.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

PHYSICALLY COMPETENT, MORALLY FIT.

Under this title Daniel A. Poling tells in the Outlook of his investigations at the front and his conclusions. We quote:

"I believe that I not only know what the American soldier does in France, but that I begin to know what he is.

"He is a representative American. And he is living on a moral plane which is above the moral plane of civilian life at home. Our leaders in France have not conquered the vices society has battled against from the first organized beginnings of civilization; but if the American expeditionary force is not setting an example in moral idealism to American civilian life, then I have walked through France with my eyes closed and my ears stopped.

"When you see one soldier under the influence of liquor, do not conclude that the army is drunk. It is at least suggestive that in three months spent in England and France, associated with tens of thousands of soldiers, I did not see a single soldier, officer or private, under the influence of liquor in the streets.

* * *

"I found the American in uniform building up about himself a wall of protection in the very attitude he is assuming toward the moral excesses practiced by the few. He is resenting the indulgence that causes his country's civilization to be misjudged; he is discipling his comrade who by taking improper and forbidden liberties endangers the freedom of others; he shows a distinct pride in the fact that American physical and moral standards are high. I believe that for every man in the army that is morally destroyed, at least five men are morally born again. We have spent much time in discussing the vast task of keeping our men fit to return to us when the war is over, and it is time well spent. But there is another matter quite as important—America must be made and kept fit for these men to return to.

* * *

"The American soldier has no rum ration.

"In war areas under the absolute control of American authorities liquor for beverage purposes—light wines included—is not available.

"Pure or purified water is being supplied the American soldier everywhere and in abundant quantities. I drew fresh, cool water out of great canvas bags at the very front. At General Pershing's headquarters I saw being completed a water main that local authorities said could not be laid until the frost was out of the ground. The main was finished before the argument was terminated.

"Less than three hours after a recent raid hot coffee was served to the men, even to the last observation post. The genius of the American army in furnishing itself nonalcoholic drinks has astonished the French and elicited their praise.

"General Pershing and those who are in authority with him in France deserve, not a resolution of inquiry or censure, but a vote of confidence with the assurance of our co-operation and support."

LUKEWARM NO LONGER.

"When I note the results I am ashamed that I ever was lukewarm in the matter of prohibition of booze," says Chief of Police James Malone of Lincoln, Neb. "If ever a thing was detrimental to a community it was booze. It brought on starvation and strife, filled the penitentiary and insane asylums, brought hunger to the little children and the wife in the home, caused murder and every crime in the list.

"The saloon was a loafing place for men, where time and money were spent, where energy was dissipated and the moral fiber broken down. In the days of the open saloon pay days were busy days. On Christmas day after the dry law went into effect, the matron and I policed the city while the patrolmen enjoyed a day off."

RAILROAD MEN NOT WITH MR. GOMPERS.

The resolution in favor of nationwide prohibition adopted recently by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was the unanimous vote of the 857 delegates present. W. S. Stone, chief of the order, takes Mr. Gompers to task for his efforts to lineup organized labor for the brewers. He declares that intoxicating beverages have no place in the industrial life of America, certainly none in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

ARE YOU A DEFECTIVE?

God never made a normal brain that needed alcohol to stimulate it to action. And if you examine your brain and decide that it needs alcohol, just set yourself down as a defective by birth, or by habit. For if by nature your brain needs alcohol to stimulate it, you are inferior to your fellow men, and if it is not a matter of birth but of habit, and your brain needs alcohol to stimulate it because you have accustomed it to a crutch; then you have made yourself inferior.—William Jennings Bryan.

Lives 200 Years!

For more than 200 years, Haarlem Oil, the famous national remedy of Holland, has been recognized as an infallible relief from all forms of kidney and bladder disorders. Its very age is proof that it must have unusual merit.

If you are troubled with pains or aches in the back, feel tired in the morning, headaches, indigestion, insomnia, painful or too frequent passage of urine, irritation or stone in the bladder, you will almost certainly find relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This is the good old remedy that has stood the test for hundreds of years, prepared in the proper quantity and convenient form to take. It is imported direct from Holland laboratories, and you can get it at any drug store. It is a standard, old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. Each capsule contains one dose of five drops and is pleasant and easy to take. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. Your money promptly refunded if they do not relieve you. But be sure to get the genuine GOLD MEDAL brand. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

Advising the Chaplain.

A British officer decided to hand some advice to a rather ineffective chaplain. So he said:

"Padre, if you'll excuse my saying so, you're a d——d rotten chaplain; the men will never follow you to heaven."

"I rather felt that, sir," stammered the flummoxed padre.

"But I tell you what," continued the officer, "you'd make a fine company officer, and the men would follow you to hell."

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

All Druggists 75c. Circulars free.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

It Wouldn't Do.

Novelist Robert W. Chambers said at the Country club in New York:

"This war has changed all things. We older writers are quite disoriented. We don't know how to write any more.

"Imagine describing a girl's ear today," he said, "as shell-like!"

Pimply Rashy Skins

Quickly soothed and healed by Cuticura often when all else fails. The Soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

It sometimes happens that a married man has a great deal to say, but his wife won't let him say it.

Granulated Eyelids, Sties, Inflamed Eyes relieved over night by Roman Eye Balsam. One trial proves its merit. Adv.

It is easier to find fault than to lose it.

WRIGLEY'S

For Victory Buy Liberty Bonds

We will win this war—

Nothing else really matters until we do!

WRIGLEY'S
JUICY FRUIT
DOUBLEMINT

The Flavor Lasts

Everywhere.

"I see the French are on the qui vive."

"Where is that located?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No man blows hot air and cold sense out of the same mouth.

Don't worry; it won't last—nothing does.

WHAT CONSTIPATION MEANS

It means a miserable condition of ill health that leads to all sorts of special ailments such as headache, backache, dyspepsia, dizziness, indigestion, pains of various kinds, piles and numerous other disorders—CONSTIPATION is a crime against nature. Take DR. TUTT'S LIVER PILLS and have your liver and bowels resume their health-giving natural functions. At all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills

ATTENTION!
Sick Women

To do your duty during these trying times your health should be your first consideration. These two women tell how they found health.

Hellam, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and a displacement. I felt all run down and was very weak. I had been treated by a physician without results, so decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and felt better right away. I am keeping house since last April and doing all my housework, where before I was unable to do any work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly the best medicine a woman can take when in this condition. I give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. E. R. Crumling, R. No. 1, Hellam, Pa.

Lowell, Mich.—"I suffered from cramps and dragging down pains, was irregular and had female weakness and displacement. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which gave me relief at once and restored my health. I should like to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies to all suffering women who are troubled in a similar way."—Mrs. Elise Heim, R. No. 6, Box 83, Lowell, Mich.

Why Not Try

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. LYNN, MASS.

Fervent Wish.

In Camp Custer recently a young newly-fledged private soldier with a considerably discolored eye and blood dripping from his nose looked up at a compassionate friend and expressed the fervent wish that those who were promoting boxing would never get it up to the general status.

Your Eyes

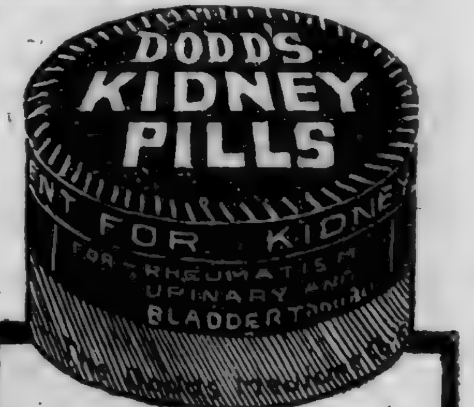
A Wholesome, Cleansing, Refreshing and Healing Lotion—Murine for Redness, Soreness, Granulation, Itching and Burning of the Eyes or Eyelids; "2 Drops" After the Movies, Motoring or Golf will win your confidence. Ask Your Druggist for Murine when your Eyes Need Care. M-11
Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

His Peculiar Apology.

Our son, Lincoln, five, was sent to throw papers in the waste basket. The landlord asked him to take his papers, too. John told him to empty his own papers. I told John to apologize. John said: "I get mischievous sometimes and say things I don't mean. I told you to empty your own papers, but you don't need to if you don't want to."—Chicago Examiner.

There are two kinds of family jars. Into one you put preserves and into the other you put your foot.

The little act of kindness is never time wasted.



Headache, tired or dizzy? It's your kidneys. Ask druggist for box shown here—Dodd's—speedy relief or money back.

WIT and HUMOR

A Shirker.

"How long have you been sitting on the bank of this river?"

"About four hours."

"Caught anything?"

"Nope."

"Had any bites?"

"Not a nibble."

"And you call that sport?"

"No—strategy. If I were not sitting here, ostensibly to catch some fish for dinner, my wife would have me beating carpets."

Forgot Early Training.

"How did Bill happen to be arrested?"

"Left his car in the street all night without complying with the biblical injunction."

"Didn't know the Bible made any ruling on the subject."

"Oh, yes. It says, 'Let your light shine.'"

Painful Suggestion.

"My life is insured for $30,000," said old Crustiboy, proudly.

"Have you ever discussed with young Mrs. Crustiboy the possibility of your dying some day?"

"Oh, yes. Quite often."

"Ahem! And while you were discussing that subject did you ever notice a wistful look on her face?"

Any King Would Do.

"I can trace my descent in a direct line from one of the early kings of England," she said.

"Which one?" he asked.

"I don't recall the name. What kings did England have?"

The Horse.

"Has the automobile put the horse out of business?"

"You wouldn't think so," replied Farmer Corntossel, "if you'd notice how much a load of hay is worth."

JUST THAT.

Maude—Mrs. Newone never gets asked to any bridge parties.

Evelyn—Does she play too well or not well enough.

Wow!

Little grains of powder,
Little dabs of paint
Make the girly-girlies
Look like what they ain't.

Fortunate Condition.

"This man," said the keeper softly, "imagines he has millions."

"Isn't that nice?" answered the visitor. "Whenever he needs money all he has to do to draw on his imagination."

Absurd Idea.

"My husband has the queerest ideas of economy."

"Indeed?"

"Why, he actually seems to think I could save money by staying away from bargain sales."

Unappreciated.

Client—After you've let the case drag along for three years, you've lost it for me.

Lawyer—That's all the thanks I get—I might have let it drag along for three years more.

Her Plan.

"Things have got so we shall have to economize," said Mr. Bighouse.

"Well," replied his wife, "we'll make the chef call himself cook and reduce his wages."

A Hot One.

"My mind to me a kingdom is," launched out the chap who would rather quote than eat.

"Oh, well," soothed the other, "I shouldn't let that worry me. It's not in danger of invasion for conquest, at any rate."

Time Limited.

Bix—What did your wife say to you when you got home at four o'clock this morning?

Dix (wearily)—Say, old man, I've got some work to do today."

No Room for Despair

⚜

By ABBIE FARWELL BROWN
of The Vigilantes

When our nation went into this fearful war—with high hearts and wide-open eyes—we knew that many gallant boys must die; still others must be hurt, dreadfully hurt. With dread we anticipated the day when many would be coming home—not the able-bodied lads we knew, but crippled and maimed, perhaps; seeming helpless and discouraged. That last must not be!

No one must be discouraged, however much he may have suffered. No one, if human ingenuity can prevent, must be left helpless. You have only to read the splendid things which are being done in this line. For this is one great task which marvelous modern surgery and science are taking in hand. Nowadays there is no room for despair, because of physical hurts. The grace of God and human devotion have brought about what seems like a new age of miracle!

As an offset to this worst of wars goes such co-operation and intelligent reconstructive thinking as the world has never seen. The first aids at the front, the convalescent hospitals, the skill and resources of surgeons and nurses have developed such favorable conditions that a wounded soldier has a better chance of complete recovery, even from terrible wounds, than ever in the world's history. Moreover, after his physical healing is completed, there is more effort being put into equipping him to face peace again, than was ever dreamed of.

Rectifying Disfigurement.

The most famous sculptors are giving their time to contriving means to hide his disfigurement. The cleverest inventors are studying to fit him with substitutes for lost limb or muscles put out of commission. The wisest teachers are ready to teach him a new occupation, if his old one has become impracticable. The most sympathetic agencies are preparing to find what he can do to be most useful to his grateful country. Uncle Sam is on the job to look after him. Could he have better hope?

We must co-operate with Uncle Sam.

First of all, we must ourselves keep cheerful and hopeful, even if it is our own boy who is coming back, altered and discouraged. He will depend much upon our hope and cheer. The attitude of his own home toward a boy's apparent misfortune will be one of the greatest factors in his future career, of usefulness or of despair. Perhaps it will turn out not to be such a misfortune, after all! Already many a soldier has found his true self in the hospital. Many a one who had an unimportant job before he was crippled, has studied and practiced and perfected some speciality which has given him a more satisfactory position than ever.

Many a man who has lost his right hand is doing better work than ever with his left, or with the marvelous mechanical fingers which have been made for him.

The government has worked out a great scheme, in which it needs the help of us all. Don't throw sand in the machinery, if you happen to have a crippled lad at the front! Don't be so selfish, so impatient to see and comfort him that you prejudice his future. Miracles take time! He is being looked after, remember. We must not demand that he be sent home as soon as his misfortune is known.

Lend Your Assistance.

Yes; your Husky may have done his brave bit, and may think he is not a Husky any more, and may demand just home, sympathy, help for his helplessness—and his pension. He may intend to give up active life, because of his "misfortune." He may feel too hurt by fate to try any more. Don't let him feel so! Maybe his real happiness, his true usefulness is just beginning! You must be brave for him now, as he has been brave for us all. You want the best for him? You don't want him to miss the chance of building anew a dignified future, do you?

"Well, then! Don't you be discouraged! Don't let him despair! Brace yourself to brace him, and read of the splendid things that are being done to give hope for such as he—reconstruction, re-education, re-equipment, replacement in affairs. Americans are so versatile and adaptable, thank God!

Uncle Sam will do the best possible for the boy who made the fine sacrifice. He will have his well-earned pension. But that is not all! He will have, if humanly possible, a good job, too. Ten chances to one he will have it, if we all co-operate. It is not like the old days. You must read the wonderful things that are happening to the boys whose splendid spirit mere metal could not crush.

There is no room for despair!

Patrioteering

⚜

By BOOTH TARKINGTON
Of The Vigilantes

"When the German-Americans, as we call them, found that our country was in the war, they erased the hyphen. The hyphen is gone forever. . . . In our country there are only American citizens." I quote the above from a recent article issued by the "Vigilantes," and I believe the facts to be virtually as stated. But if they were not, and if the hyphen did actually here and there remain alive, would not the most sensible policy treat it as dead, and at least assume it to be dead, wherever it showed no virulent signs of life? In other words, men cannot be goaded into loyalty; they only accumulate a sense of injury under the goad. And it was never more important than at this present time that we should avoid injustice to any citizen. Suspicion, rumor and coincidence of circumstance should influence neither our judgments nor our actions; much less should we vent our passion against Germany upon the person of him whom we called the German-American.

I speak from the standpoint of one who bitterly opposed the German-American position on the war prior to the American entrance, April, 1917. But the sympathy of the German-American with the German cause, prior to that date, if rightly comprehended, does not imply a sympathy continuing beyond that date, though to many minds this is either an impossible paradox or a symptom of credulity imposed upon by almost barefaced hyprocrisy. It is neither. The German-American, beholding a war between Germany and the allies, sided with Germany. He had not been alienated from Germany, as the rest of us had been alienated (by the Revolutionary War) from England. He saw merely a contest between foreign powers and sided with that from which he sprang. But when his own country came to actual war with Germany the German-American found himself to be an American. Nevertheless, it is hard for him to show his patriotism when we say to him: "Now, you dirty German-American, drop your tricks and speak up! Repeat these words in a loud shout, 'I am an American and I love the flag,' and if you don't shout loud enough we'll kick you, and maybe we'll kick you anyhow!" Such instruction does not seem quite statesmanlike, or over-Christianlike, either.

Germans to Germans.

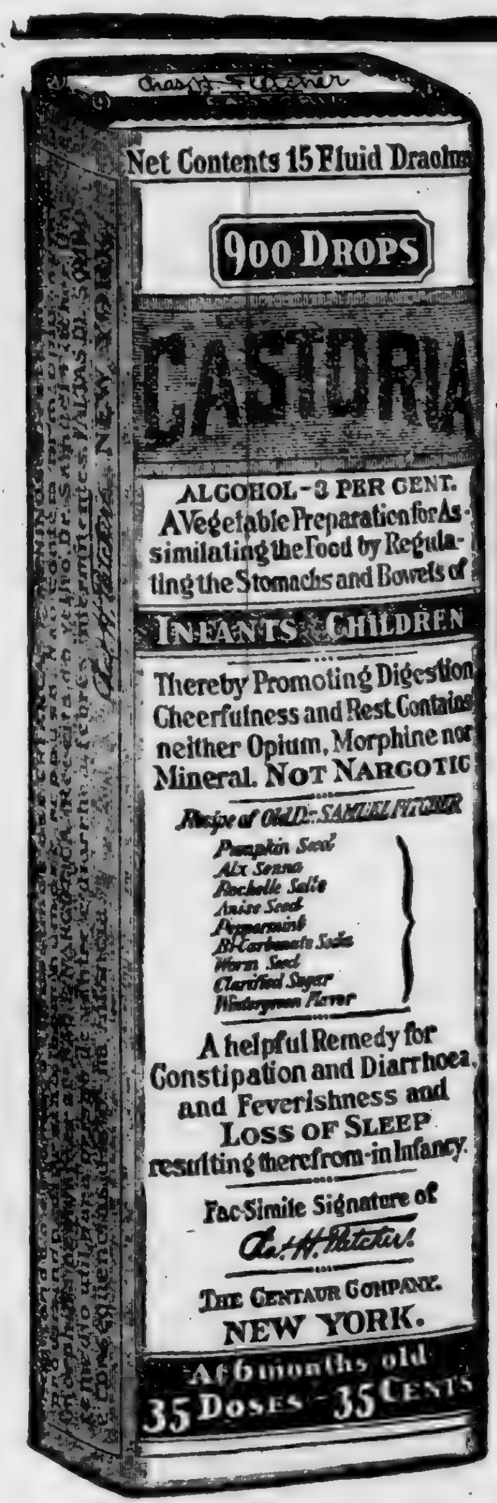
Margaret Deland, lately returned from France, says that over there, not long ago, a company of German prisoners, just captured, were being sent back from the front, when they encountered an American regiment, largely from Wisconsin, moving up to the trenches. Many of the Wisconsin troops were of German origin; some among them, indeed, could hardly speak English, and the prisoners were astonished to be greeted noisily and garrulously in their own tongue. They were even more astonished at the nature of the comments which these strange Germans from America made upon them. In fact, the episode was unamiable. Oaths in the German tongue were frequent and intensive. The German-speaking men of the Wisconsin regiment cursed the captured German soldiers with an inhospitable frankness very shocking to the prisoners, who had been passed in silence by other American regiments, and had received cigarettes from a battalion of English. Words like "dummkopf" and "schweinhund" were employed, with prophetic expletives; and the general sense of what the Wisconsin men said to their German cousins was as follows: "You dash-blanked jackasses and dots, we and our father left your old fatherland and went four thousand miles to live in a better place. Now we have to come all the way back, four thousand miles again yet, to slaughter you, because you haven't got any more sense than to believe and obey that old pig-dog of a kaiser! We'll send your kaiser and princes to sheol, where they can't do any more harm; and as for you, dunderheads, you ought to be hanged for making us all this trouble of coming over here to teach you some sense with our bayonets!"

May Work Out Own Salvation.

The citizens once called German-Americans will work out their own salvation if we do not make it too hard for them. What man can show enthusiasm for anything, when he is threatened with punishment if he is not enthusiastic? Loyalty is a feeling; it is not a spoken word. You cannot possibly produce a beautiful feeling in any man by threatening him or prosecuting him. Let us not threaten at all, and let us prosecute only when we have evidence. Is it certain evidence that a man is loyal if he have a son in the American army? No. There were rebels in '63 who had sons in the Northern armies. Is it certain evidence that a man is disloyal if he have a son in the German army? No. There were loyal Union men in '64 who had sons fighting for the South. So it may be now. There are American citizens who have relatives in the German army and other relatives in the American army. Here and there is an American citizen who has one son in the American army and another son in the German army.

The Greatest Mistake.

It has been said that the only one who never makes a mistake is the one who never does anything. But to do nothing is the greatest mistake possible. A life without endeavor, action and purpose, is a failure. Mistakes are not as serious as inaction, remember. Do something, and do your best. Never be disheartened by the consciousness that you have blundered.—Girls' Companion.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

An Irish Courtship.

An Irish sheriff got a writ to serve on a young widow and, on coming into her presence said: "Madam, I have an attachment for you."

"My dear sir," she said blushing, "your attachment is reciprocated."

"You don't understand me, you must proceed to court," said the sheriff.

"Well, I know 'tis leap year, but I prefer to let you do the courting yourself. Men are much better at that than women."

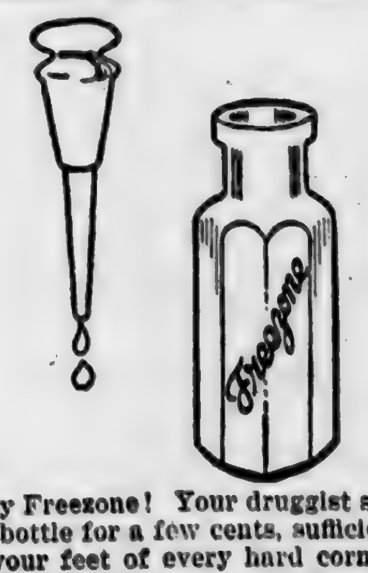
"Madam, this is no time for fooling. The justice is waiting."

"The justice waiting? Well, I suppose I must go, but the thing is so sudden, and besides I'd prefer a priest to do it!"—Exchange.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Doesn't hurt at all and costs only a few cents

Magic! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!



Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

Egotists are men who are unable to disguise the fact that they are pleased with themselves.

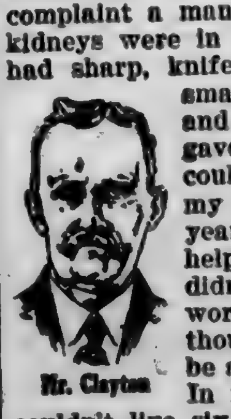
Economy is simply the art of getting the worth of your money.

Was Told He Couldn't Live Six Months

But Doan's Brought Mr. Clayton Health and Strength.

C. T. Clayton, 78 N. Broad St., Woodbury, N. J., says: "I had about the worst case of kidney complaint a man could have. My kidneys were in terrible shape. I had sharp, knifelike pains in the small of my back, and my back often gave out entirely. I couldn't stoop to lace my shoes. For two years I was in this helpless condition and didn't do a tap of work and no one thought I would ever be able to work again. In fact, I was told I couldn't live six months. But fortunately I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me feel better from the first and after taking several boxes, I had better strength and health than ever before. I think Doan's are worth their weight in gold, and I recommend them whenever I hear anyone complaining of their kidneys."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.



Mr. Clayton

COLT DISTEMPER

You can prevent this loathsome disease from running through your stable and cure all the colts suffering with it when you begin the treatment. No matter how young, SPOHN'S is safe to use on any colt. It is wonderful how it prevents all distempers, no matter how colts or horses at any age are "exposed." All good druggists and turf goods houses and manufacturers sell SPOHN'S at 60 cents and $1.15 a bottle, $5.50 and $11.00 a dozen.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

It's Acid-Stomach That Makes Millions Sick and Suffer

Life is dark—not worth much to the man or woman with an acid-stomach.

Acid-stomach kills Hope, Ambition, Energy Courage. It saps the strength of the strongest body—impoverishes the blood—causes untold suffering — makes millions weak, unfit and brings on premature old age.

Millions of people are weak and unfit, suffering all the time, in one way or another, from superacidity or acid-stomach.

They don't seem dangerously sick. Just ailing. Going through life weak, listless, dragging one foot after another. They're nervous and irritable; lack power and punch, frequently have severe attacks of blinding, splitting headaches; subject to fits of melancholia and mental depression. And nearly always their stomachs are out of order, even though many experience no actual stomach pains—digestion poor—never getting anywhere near the full strength from their food.

So, you see, it's just this—acid-stomach—that is holding so many people back — sapping up the strength they should get from their food—taking away their vigor and vitality—leaving them weak and inefficient.

Get rid of the excess acid. That's the secret of good health and is the only way to obtain good digestion and assimilation. It is the right way to be well and keep strong. Ordinary medicine won't do any lasting good. The best they can do is to spur up your appetite for awhile.

A modern remedy makes it possible to remove excess acid without the slightest discomfort. It is called EATONIC, in the form of pleasant tasting tablets. Their action in the stomach is a good deal like a piece of blotting paper taking up a drop of ink—they literally absorb the injurious excess acid and carry it away through the intestines.

Begin using EATONIC right now—today—and get on the road to bounding, vigorous, vibrant health. Thousands upon thousands of people who have used EATONIC are enthusiastic in its praise. They say they never dreamed that anything could bring them such quick relief.

EATONIC is fully guaranteed. Your druggist will give you a big box for only 50 cents with the distinct understanding that if you are not pleased in every way, you get your 50 cents back. If you can't get EATONIC where you live—send us your name and address; we will send you a fifty cent box and you can send us the 50c when you get it. Address Eatonic Remedy Co., Gunther Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

POOR MATERIAL FOR WARMTH

Mother Evidently Did Not Entirely Approve of Apparel Which Adorned Her Daughter.

They were crossing Washington street at Meridian, after the theater, a few nights ago, and it seemed that mother and daughter were not perfectly agreed on the nature of daughter's apparel. At theater time the weather was balmy, but when they came out, it had been raining and though there was no shower at the moment there was much wind, and daughter's filmy white silk skirt was blowing about in dangerous fashion as she stepped off the curb. She stopped repeatedly and pulled the skirt down, then fairly ran to the shelter of the Merchants' Bank building, leaving mother, who was a bit plump, to roll along as best she could.

"Why didn't you wait for me?" demanded mother, on reaching the girl.

"Well!" was the retort, "my ears are not cold. I wasn't going to poke along there and let my skirt get up around my ears, was I?"

"If my ears were cold," said mother, surveying the filmy skirts, "I'd hate to try to get them warm with all you have on."—Indianapolis News.

Water, Mind You.

Squabbs—They say that three-fourths of the earth's surface is covered with water.

Squibbs—Well, that's a fine record compared with those of our bathing-beach girls.

Dr. Peery's "Dead Shot" is not a "lozenge" or "syrup," but a real old-fashioned dose of medicine which cleans out Worms or Tapeworm with a single dose. Adv.

One man in every sixty is wholly or partialyl color blind.

New York Greeks have organized to aid United States in present war.

STOP LOSING CALVES

You can Stamp Abortion Out of your herd and Keep It Out

Write for FREE BOOKLET, "Questions and Answers pertaining to ABORTION in COWS"

Answers every question. Treat your own cattle at small expense. Send for booklet now. State number of cattle in your herd.

Dr. David Roberts' Vet. Co., 100 Grand Ave., Waukesha, Wis.

Every Woman Wants
Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC POWDER
FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE
Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co, for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

BOYS Clear Your Skin With Cuticura

All druggists: Soap 25, Ointment 25 & 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Original Home of the Holsteins in Michigan
The W. K. Sexton farm, 240 acres. Will also sell beautiful suburban home. Mrs. W. K. Sexton, Howell, Mich.

OCTOBER

L 90

0531

The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.
GOLD

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

2. An account here is a great business convenience.
   —In making payments.
   —In collecting drafts and checks.
   —In sending remittances.
3. We loan money on good security to promote business, and we like to favor those who consistently build accounts with us.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

Widney's Third Apple Sale Begins Monday, Oct. 7, and Continues Until the Crop Is All Sold.

Varieties:

Winter Bananas	2,500 crates
Grimes' Golden	2,000 "
Starks	1,000 "
Wolf Rivers, Tulpebockins, Baldwins Greenings, Yorks and Ramboos	2,000 "

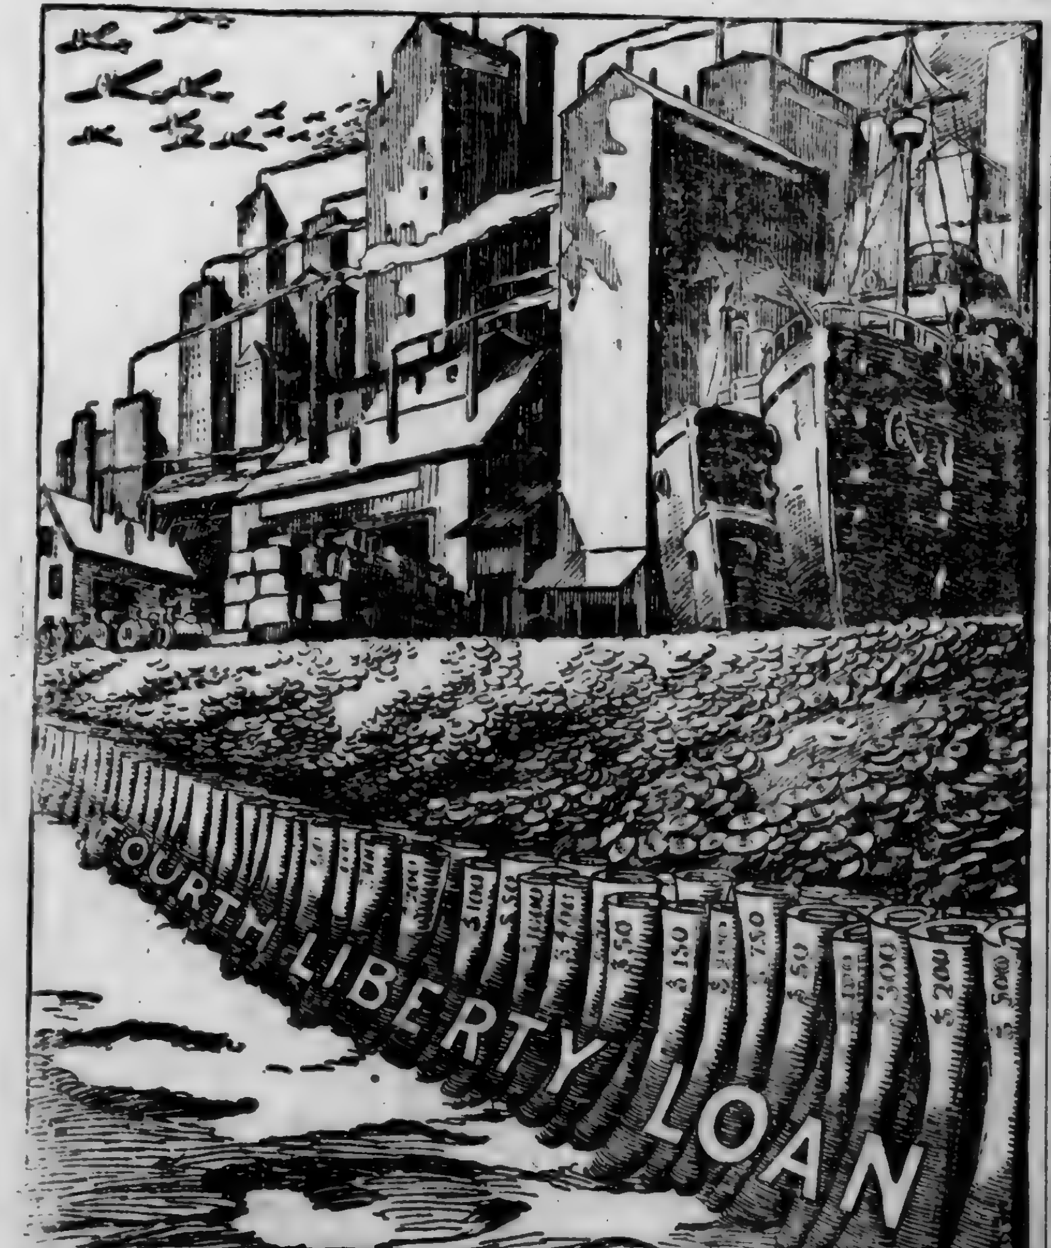
PRICE, - - $2.00 per crate

MEASURE: We will use the Standard Bushel Crate, well filled; but in no case will we guarantee weights. Not more than twenty-five crates to any one party. No containers furnished by us.

Registration to begin at 5:00 o'clock each morning—sharp. The first here, the first served.

St. Joe, Indiana - One mile north

HERE ARE THE BREASTWORKS THEY CAN'T CLIMB OVER



ST. JOE.

Howard Shilling and wife are moving to Hicksville.

Byron Widney and wife were Sunday guests of Ott Widney and family, at Hicksville.

The Jurors are Drawn.

The jurors for the October term of the circuit court, which will be opened by Judge Dan M. Link next Monday morning, were drawn Monday by Jury Commissioners W. W. Mountz, A. N. Thrush and Herman L. Brown. The list follows:

GRAND JURY.

A. B. Countryman, Stafford.
Barthol Lehman, Fairfield.
Frank Rosenberry, Troy.
John Williams, Butler.
John Shipe, Fairfield.
Edward Kelham, Keyser.

PETIT JURY.

Levi Hewitt, Richland.
Charles Helmuth, Keyser.
C. O. Metcalf, Wilmington.
Jasper Ridge, Franklin.
William Oberholtzer, Concord.
Henry W. Magginis, Newville.
Saxe Hadsell, Spencer.
M. H. Howey, Spencer.
Stanley Devitt, Wilmington.
E. D. Mullett, Wilmington.
Henry Ober, Richland.
J. R. Doll, Spencer.

TALESMEN.

David Till, Garrett.
Sam Davis, Newville.
Jacob Zehender, Jackson.
Charles Newcomer, Franklin.
William H. Myers, Grant.
Henry Fulks, Union.
Milan Smurr, Wilmington.
John P. Conkle, Stafford.
Jesse Coil, Butler.
Geo. B. Duncan, Smithfield.
Fred Hart, Spencer.
John Hess, Smithfield.

St. Joe Locals

A new supply of Writing Tablets and Envelopes at News Office.

Leon Sechler and family, of Garrett, are here for a few days.

Mrs. Eva Milliman and daughter Edna, visited relatives in Kendallville, Wednesday.

Pencils, Rulers, Tablets, Pens, Ink, Crayons, Pencil Holders, Note Books, Erasers for the school children at The NEWS Office.

Mrs. Blanche Leighty, Mrs. Marie Draggoo and baby were over Sunday guests in the Sam Openlander home at Sherwood.

Grover Curie and wife, Mrs. C. C. Curie and Mrs. Belle Ridgway attended the funeral of John Mason at Auburn, Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Curie entertained last Wednesday at dinner in honor of their son Paul, home on a furlough: Miss Jean Grimm, of Waterloo; C. C. Curie and wife and Mrs. Margaret Swineford. Paul left Thursday, his parents accompanying him as far as Wayne.

In order to simplify the retail distribution of wheat flour and substitutes on the 80-20 basis, an official order has been issued by Dr. Harry E. Barnard, federal food administrator for Indiana, based upon directions from Washington which state that the arrangement is nation-wide in its scope, that six pounds of substitutes may be sold with each one-eighth of a barrel of wheat flour, which sacked weighs 24½ pounds. This avoids the complication of fractional pounds necessitated by an exact compliance with the four to one proposition, required in all other cases in the distribution of wheat flour and substitutes, in the official food regulations.

For Your

Fresh and Salt Meats Fish and Canned Goods

SEE

W. A. G SMITH,

MEAT MARKET

Highest Market Prices paid for Hides and Pelts of All Kinds.

Mrs. Rolland Bearss spent Friday in Ft. Wayne.

Mrs. Ada Bassett spent Tuesday forenoon at Hicksville.

C. C. Curie and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Grover Curie and family.

Gene White, wife and four children spent Sunday with Sherman Wolffs'.

Mrs. Ada Bishop spent from Saturday until Tuesday with her sister, at Hicksville.

The Martha Society will meet this afternoon (Thursday) with Mrs. Arminta Northrup.

Wanted.—A second hand Perfection two-burner oil stove with oven. Call NEWS office.

Chas. Koch, son Stanley, and Merritt Milliman made a business rip to Angola, Friday morning.

John Betz and wife had as Saturday night and Sunday guests, Fay Reichelderfer and wife, of Wayne.

Amos Gamble, wife and daughter Iris, and Clint Lucas and wife were Ft. Wayne visitors, one day last week.

Gustin Flint and wife, of Henrysville, Tenn., came Saturday for a few days visit with St. Joe relatives.

John Shenberger, of Ashland, Ohio, came Monday to spend the week with his sister, Mrs. Charles Reasoner.

Mrs. Sadie Reeder and three children, of Auburn, spent over Sunday with her parents, George Bleeks and wife.

Mrs. Hollis Dilley, of Wayne, came Friday morning for a few days visit with her parents, Frank Sechler and wife.

Mrs. Howard Gee and little daughter Lucile, of Ft. Wayne, came Monday evening to visit with Mrs. S. D. Gee.

Dr. and Mrs. B. O. Shook and two sons visited the former's brother, David Shook and family, south of Auburn, Sunday.

Roscoe Winn and two daughters, of Chicago, spent part of last week with the former's sister, Mrs. H. C. Borthwick and family.

Ross St. Clair and wife and Charles Smith and wife, of Auburn, were last Wednesday evening supper guests of E. R. Kinsey and wife.

Mrs. Foster Gee and children went to Butler, Monday morning, for a few days visit with her sister, Mrs. George Packer, Jr., and family.

Mrs. H. S. Bowman and daughter Dorotha, spent from Friday night until Monday morning with John Benninghoff, Jr., and wife, at Ft. Wayne.

Wm. Randall, wife and son Harry, spent Thursday and Friday at Ligonier, where they went to visit Mrs. Randall's mother, Mrs. Mary Pincheon, who is ill.

Carl Bassett went to LaFayette, Friday, to take the examination for the Marine Corps but found he could not be examined until Tuesday so he remained returning home Wednesday.

Mel Herrick and wife, and Miss Dorotha Bowman attended the funeral of Mrs. Frank Steffin, at Butler Center, Monday. Mrs. Steffin will be remembered as Miss Ella Friend, daughter of Amos Friend and wife, of Rehobeth.

Amos Gamble, wife, daughter Iris, and son Dorn, attended the Hillsdale (Mich.) fair, Saturday, and visited the former's sister in Hudson until Monday. Miss Marguerite Milliman was a guest in the Gamble home, Saturday night and Sunday.

The Spencerville and St. Joe congregations of the Lutheran Church very pleasantly surprised their pastor, Rev. A. K. Mumma, Monday evening, at the parsonage, it being his birthday anniversary. There were about 68 present. The evening was spent in a social way after the impromptu program was given. In the speeches made by several, the appreciation of both Rev. and Mrs. Mumma's work done with the churches here was shown; their friends showered them with many practible gifts such as both could enjoy.

FORT WAYNE

SUB-DISTRICT MEETING

INDIANA CONFERENCE

...OF THE...

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

...AT...

ST. JOE, INDIANA

OCTOBER 15-17, 1918

OFFICERS:

S. HEININGER, Dist. Chairman D. F. MYERS, Sec'y-Treasurer
W. L. HEITZ, Chorister

Program

TUESDAY EVENING

7 30	Song Service
	Welcome Address	C. O. Johnson
	Response	District Chairman
8 15	Patriotic Address	President Indiana Conference W. W. Lineberry

WEDNESDAY MORNING—CHURCH PROGRAM

8 30	Devotional Exercises	W. R. Kuhn
9 00	The Survey or Census	D. F. Myers
9 30	Evangelistic Methods	George W. Carnes
10 00	How Can We Most Successfully Lead Our Converts to Become Strong Christians?	Milton Kidd
10 30	The Social Life of the Church	B. M. Petty
11 00	The Church as the Economic and Community Betterment Center	C. O. Johnson
11 30	Suspension

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON—PATRIOTIC MEETING

1 30	Devotional Exercise	John Elston
2 00	What Should Be Our Attitude Toward the Great War?	S. Heininger
2 30	What Should Be the Attitude of the Pastor to the Repeated Calls That Come to Us From the Government For Sunday Services on Topics Dealing With the War?	W. W. Lineberry
3 00	Great Essential For Winning the War	W. H Carnes
3 30	What Shall be the Position of the Methodist Protestant Church in the Period of Reconstruction Following the War?	S. S. Stanton
4 00	General Discussion of War Time Conditions
5 00	Suspension

—o—

WEDNESDAY EVENING—EVANGELISTIC SERVICES

7 30	Song Service
8 00	Sermon	Fred Clarke

—o—

THURSDAY MORNING—FINANCIAL PROGRAM

8 30	Devotional Exercise	G. A. Maggert
9 00	Business Session
9 15	The Necessity of Developing the Missionary Spirit	Mary Sliger
9 30	The Preacher's Aid Society	A. Edrington
10 00	The Church Extension Drive	W. L. Heitz
10 30	The General Conference Drive For $1,050,000	W. W. Lineberry
11 00	General Discussion
11 30	Suspension

—o—

THURSDAY AFTERNOON

1 30	Devotional Exercise	C. H. Simons
2 00	Some Essentials to Be a Good Pastor	C. C. Farmer
2 30	Some Essentials to Be a Good Preacher	John Elston
3 00	The Layman's Federation	A. T. Merriman
3 30	Is the Democracy of Our Church Worth Our Effort and Sacrifice?	Joseph Endicott
4 00	General Discussion
5 00	Suspension

—o—

THURSDAY EVENING—EVANGELISTIC SERVICE

7 30	Song Service
8 00	Sermon	Fred Clarke

—o—

PROGRAM COMMITTEE

W. W. LINEBERRY S. HEININGER
D. F. MYERS C. O. JOHNSON

Mesdames Ross Abel, Jud Davis and Will Hamilton spent Monday in Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Katherine Hamilton, Kate A. Leighty, Miss Laura Shutt, and Howard Northrup and wife were all Sunday dinner guests of Will Hamilton and family.

Hillary Shuff and wife spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. F. Milliman and family.

We are now prepared to figure with you on your hay. Plenty of Room in barn at the Present. FOUR STORE, 38 Hicksville, Ohio.

OCTOBER

0532

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII | ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10 1918 | NO. 41

Hit by an Automobile

Josephus Shilling is quite sore and unable to work as the result of an accident that occurred Thursday evening. That he was not more seriously injured was extremely fortunate and was due, in a great measure, to his presence of mind

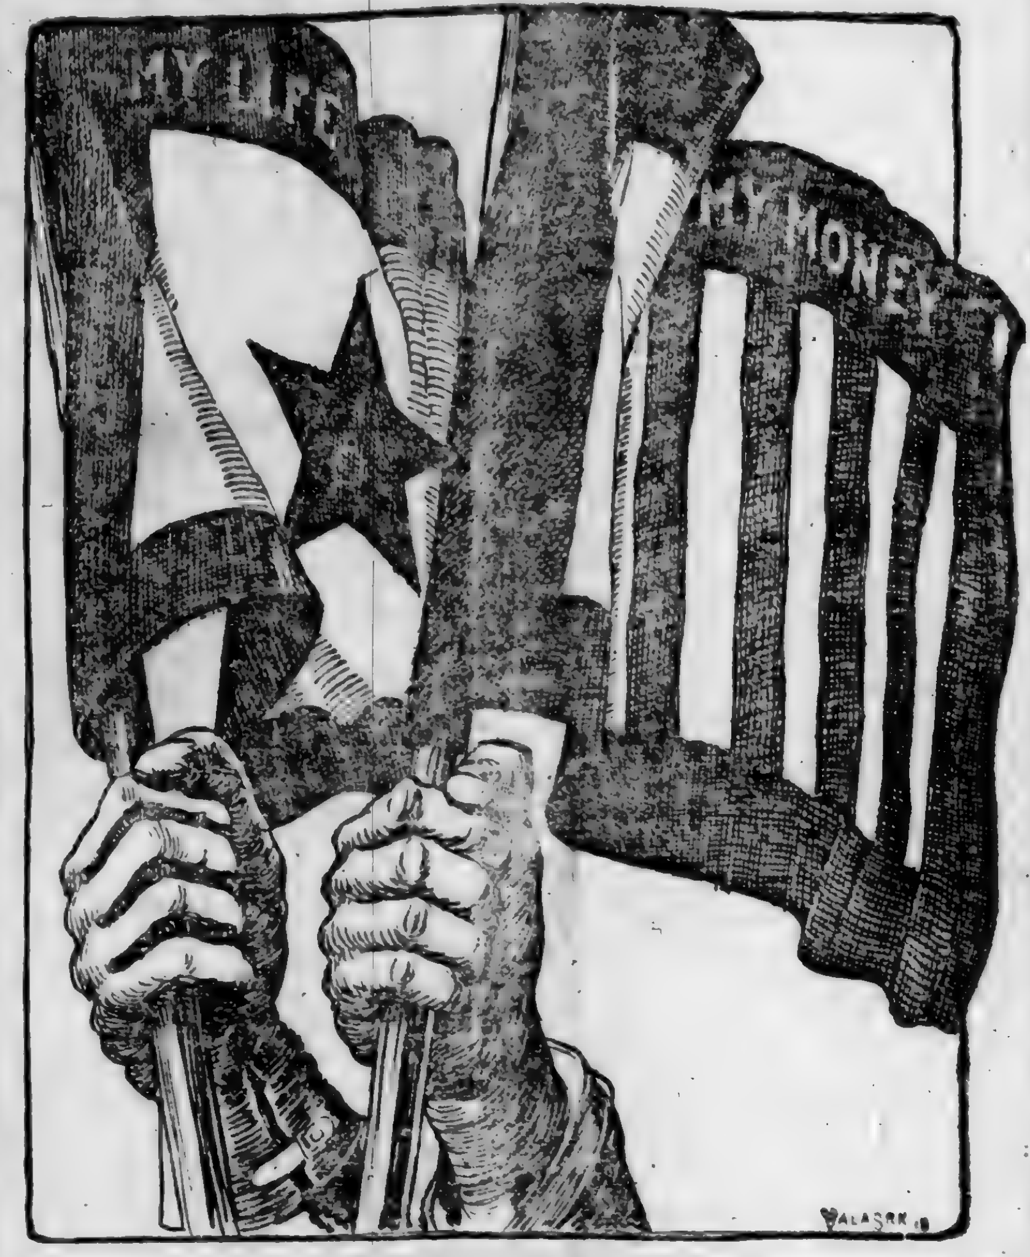
The accident happened almost immediately in front of the Lutheran church. Mr. Shilling had been working at the Widney orchard; and, at evening, rode home on the Widney automobile, driven by Mrs. Widney. The car was full and he made the trip standing on the running board. The machine was stopped and he stepped off backward Frank Terman, in his auto, was right behind that driven by Mrs Widney. He, too, was bringing in apple pickers. When the forward car stopped, Mr. Terman turned out to go around it. He did not see Mr. Shilling until he was right upon him, and the latter did not see the approaching danger.

Mr. Shilling was hit and thrown to the ground, falling in such a way that the front wheels passed on either side of him. By some means, one of his feet caught in the forward part of the car; and he would have been dragged along the road and perhaps badly injured if he had not reached up with one hand and caught hold of a rod under the car, by which he lifted himself clear of the ground.

The machine ran about 30 feet before Mr. Terman could stop it, due, in part, to his being unable to reach the brake in the crowded condition of the car (four persons in a runabout) and, in part, to his being excited. Mr. Shilling extricated the foot that had been caught and crawled out from under the auto. Clothes torn and dusty and several scratches on the right side of the face and above the right temple were the only evidences of the accident that he bore. He walked home without assistance. The next morning, however, he was quite stiff and sore; and, since then, his right shoulder and back have pained him.

The NEWS wishes to repeat what it says in another column of this issue: the accident was not due to carelessness upon the part of Mr. Terman. He was not driving recklessly, and Mr. Shilling does not blame him in the least.

THE STANDARDS OF TRUE AMERICANISM



Obituary

ELMER Y., son of Samuel and Matilda (Watson) Wyatt, was born in Ashland county, Ohio, on June 30, 1842; and died at his home in Newville, Ind., on Sept. 26, 1918. aged 76 years, 2 months and 27 days.

With his parents, he came to Indiana when an infant. When 20 years of age, he answered to the call of his country. He enlisted at Indianapolis on Aug. 29, 1862, in Company H, 88th Indiana volunteer infantry. In 1863, he was taken to the hospital at Murfreesboro, Tenn.; then to Nashville hospital; and from there to Louisville, Ky., where he remained until August, 1864—eighteen months in all. He participated in the battles of Perrysville, Tullahoma and Stony Ridge; and was also in a number of smaller engagements. It is worthy of mention that the father of Mr Wyatt was a soldier in the Revolutionary war under General Washington.

He was united in marriage to Miss Julie Crocker on April 10, 1864. To them were born seven children, two dying in infancy. Mr. Wyatt was one of the highly respected and exemplary citizens of DeKalb county. Even and exemplary in his daily life and in his intercourse with his fellow men. When a young man, he became a member of the M. E. church; and about thirty-three years ago, by letter he was received into membership by the Church of the United Brethren in Christ here in Newville, and remained a faithful, useful and honored member until his death. He held several positions in the church, which he filled efficiently and with general satisfaction. He was a trustee for a number of years and one of the main factors in remodeling the church edifice. As a steward, he was very successful; and many pastors were indebted to his faithfulness for receiving their salary promptly. For a number of years, he was the acceptable teacher of the young married peoples' class in the Sunday school. His interest in this class was emphasized from the fact that among the last things mentioned before his passing away were expressions of anxiety for the welfare of its members. The church has lost a worthy member, the community a noble citizen and the family a devoted and indulgent husband and father.

He is survived by his wife and five children, the latter being Mrs. Manford Smith, of Hicksville; Mrs. Effie Burrows, of Cleveland; Samuel, who resides on part of the old home farm; Mrs. George Simanton, of St. Joe; Miss Blanche Wyatt, of Fort Wayne.

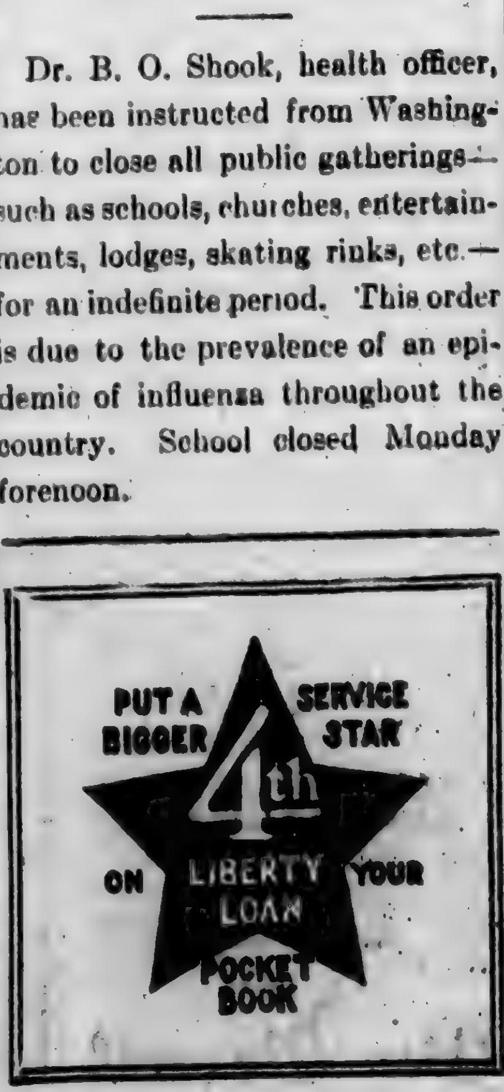
To Prevent Influenza

The following precautionary rules for the avoidance and lessening of the epidemic of influenza have been prepared by Dr. William F. Lincoln, advisor of the Lake division, American Red Cross:

1. All colds, however slight, should be treated as possible attacks of influenza. Patients affected by colds should stay at home and sterilize discharge from the nose and the throat.
2. Avoid feeling or spreading of the disease.
3. Avoid crowds.
4. Regulate bodily functions and keep them so.
5. Aboid the breath or expelled secretions from people suffering from colds.
6. Wash out the nose and throat two or three times daily by a nasal spray or douche and gargle with a "normal salt solution" (one-half teaspoonful salt to one glass clean water).
7. All those in attendance upon patients with innuenza should wear marks.
8. Clothing should be warm and dry; food simple and easily digested. Drink water freely.

No Public Gatherings

Dr. B. O. Shook, health officer, has been instructed from Washington to close all public gatherings—such as schools, churches, entertainments, lodges, skating rinks, etc.—for an indefinite period. This order is due to the prevalence of an epidemic of influenza throughout the country. School closed Monday forenoon.



PUT A BIGGER SERVICE STAR ON YOUR POCKET BOOK
4th LIBERTY LOAN

The Rambling Ford

The rambling Ford, bearing I. N. Grisso, Prohibition candidate for secretary of state, and John W. Huddleston, the big bass singer, hit St Joe in its travels last Saturday afternoon, arriving at 2:30 and leaving an hour later. The weather was threatening, and but a small audience turned out to hear them. These gathered under the awning before the Kinsey store. Mr. Huddleston opened the meeting with song and witty remarks, and then introduced Mr Grisso.

The speaker said: "The kaiser knows that our American soldiers will not be satisfied until they march over the Rhine, on to Berlin and into Potsdam palace and place Columbia's hand on the crown of Emperor William and throw it the feet of Uncle Sam.

"Under the all-compelling passion of our patriotism, we have no choice but to banish the Hun from Russia Belgium, France and Italy To help render this service for the freedom of the world, the kaiser's chief ally—the liquor traffic—must be banished from America.

"The un-American beer saloon must die. It is Prussian in character. By its beastly, inhuman fiendish savagery, the standards of our fathers, the ideals of our seers and the safeguards of our liberties are being assaulted. The advocates of democracy must defend historic and fundamental ideals anew from any threatening danger.

"The health of our economic life, the efficiency of our industrial life, as well as the winning of the war, depend upon a united, efficient, awakened and sober America."

Mr. Grisso also placed special emphasis upon the election of legislators who are publicly pledged to strengthen the present prohibition law, ratify the federal prohibition amendment and submit a suffrage amendment to the constitution for the voters to approve or disapprove at the 1920 election. He made it doubly clear that patriotic Christian, home loving, dry voters should support only those candidates standing upon the above platform.

Transfer paper at NEWS office 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	118	4.29
M. P.	60	2.96
Christian	60	2.51
M. E. Spencer	99	4.90
Lutheran	128	18.68
Concord	74	1.64
Newville U B	127	18.11

COAL:

Are you prepared for that cold weather that will soon be upon us? Just take a peep into our bins—we can fill your bins with either a Wash Nut, Brazil Block or Ind. Lump.

FLOUR:

That is another of the essentials that we always aim to keep in stock for our customers. Two of the best brands on the market are now on hand: Aristos and the Gold Medal If Eventaully- "WHY NOT NOW."

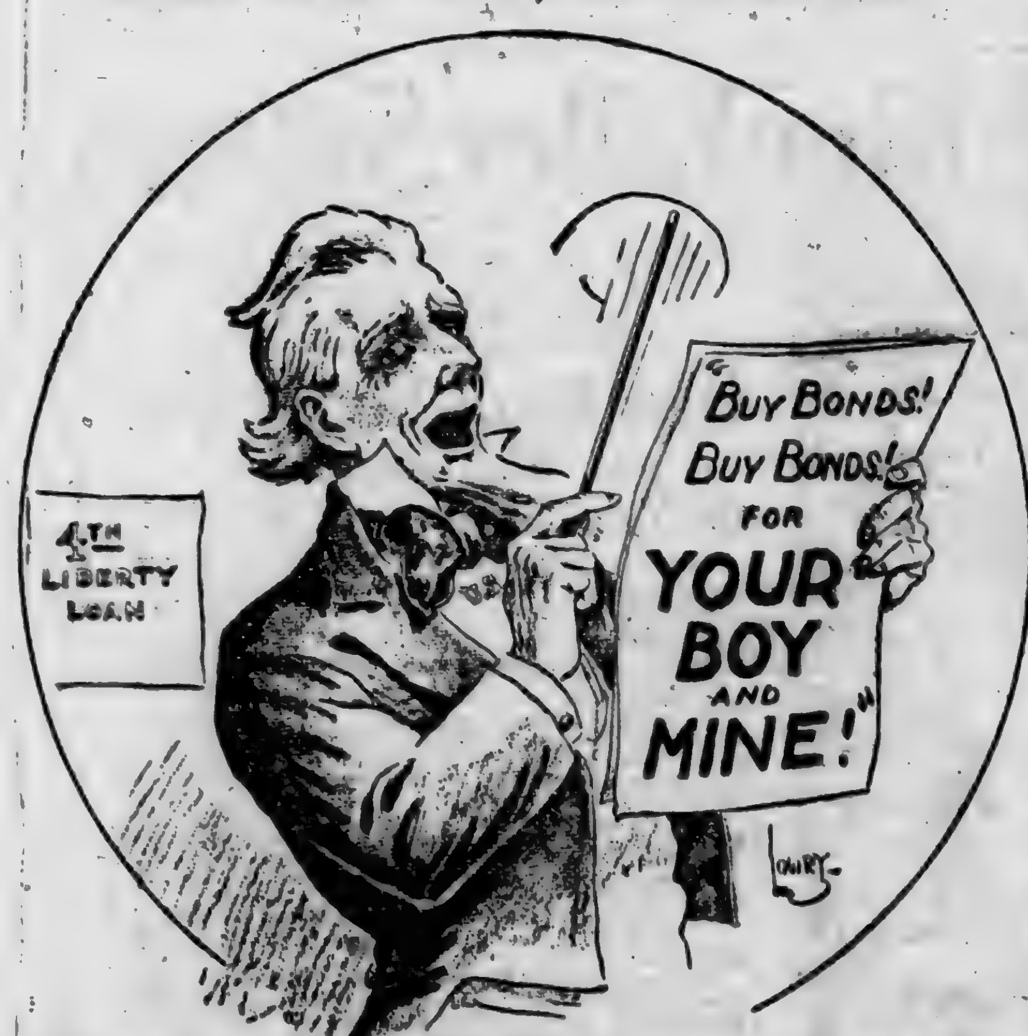
PIONEER

Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market. Prepared feed contains the necessary filling to keep the hogs in good conition while feeding.

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.

Spencerville, Indiana

UNCLE SAM: "NOW, ALL TOGETHER!"

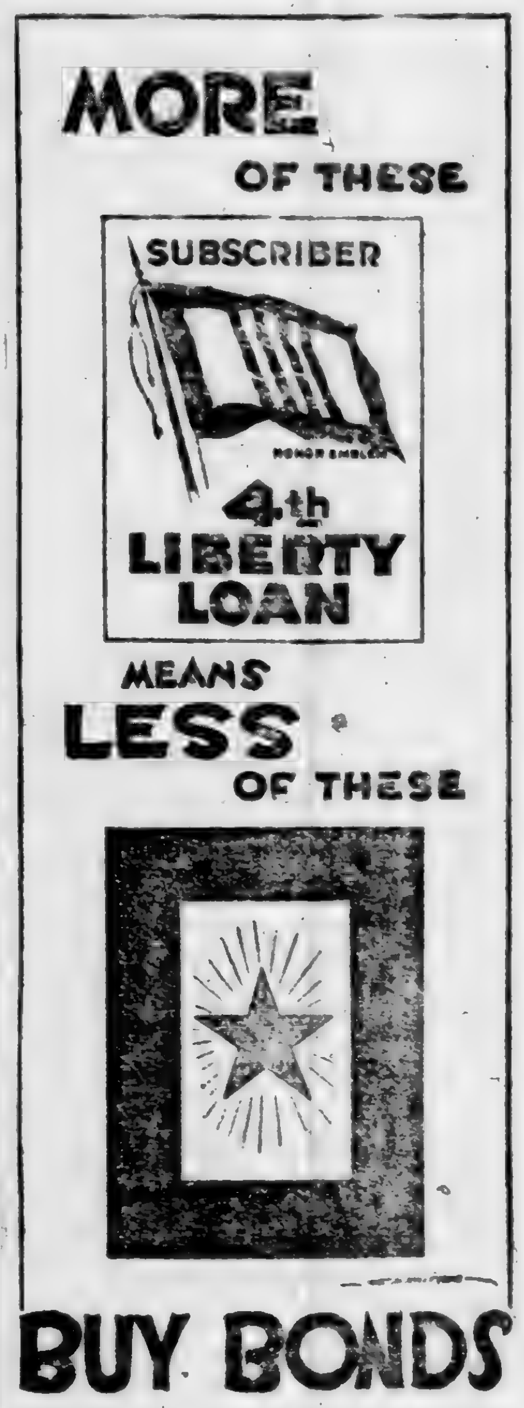


4TH LIBERTY LOAN
BUY BONDS! BUY BONDS! FOR YOUR BOY AND MINE!
LOWRY

It is our duty as citizens to make this loan a success and it is our pleasure to offer you, gratuitously, the facilities of The St. Joe Valley Bank in making subscriptions and to pledge you our very best services in carrying out your instructions.

Yours for "a long pull and a strong pull and a pull all together."

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank



For Your

Fresh and Salt Meats Fish and Canned Goods

SEE

W. A. G SMITH,

MEAT MARKET

Highest Market Prices paid for Hides and Pelts of All Kinds.

YOUR Life Insurance!

Our Policy Provides for Waiver of Premium--

10 % Income of face amount of Policy each year for total dissability.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY and ANNUAL DIVIDEND

Let me show you the MUTUAL LIFE POLICY.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

$2.85

PER 100 POUNDS- Our price on Schumacher Feed.

Get Yours NOW.

Coal HERE and on the way—*B*est Ind. *L*ump-Get busy

Call on us always glad to see you. If we have not got what you want we will try and get it for you. Highest prices paid for all grains at all times.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Manager

OCTOBER

WOMAN WORKS 15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

Women who suffer from any such ailments should not fail to try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

His Question.

"Will anyone ask me a question relative to any matter of life and death?" asked the thought reader.

"Well, mine refers to murder."

"Ah, I see blood!" exclaimed the thought reader, tragically. "You wish to know who did the deed?"

"Yes, please."

"It was a relative."

"That's quite right. Father or mother's side?" ventured the inquirer.

"Father's."

"Wonderful. That, too, is correct. But what was the object?"

"Gain."

"How marvelous! Go on."

"Alas! I can see no more. Now, please read out your question, sir, for the benefit of the audience."

"Who killed Cock Robin?"

Cuticura Kills Dandruff.

Anoint spots of dandruff with Cuticura Ointment. Follow at once by a hot shampoo with Cuticura Soap, if a man; next morning if a woman. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

The Same Number.

Tommy (writing)—Oh, Bill! 'Ow many h'ells in "Oenzoilern?"

Bill—Two h'ells, same as in 'ell.—Camouflage.

No matter how well you do a thing, you are sure to hear more complaints than compliments.

If your eyes smart or feel scalded, Roman Eye Balsam applied upon going to bed is just the thing to relieve them. Adv.

The moth exhibits much taste in dress.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Small Pill
Small Dose
Small Price

FOR CONSTIPATION

have stood the test of time. Purely vegetable. Wonderfully quick to banish biliousness, headache, indigestion and to clear up a bad complexion.

Genuine bears signature

Brent Good

PALE FACES
Generally indicate a lack of Iron in the Blood
Carter's Iron Pills
Will help this condition

Do YOU want Clothes that Dazzle?

It's SO easy!

A single trial package of

Red Cross Ball Blue

will convince you that never before have you known true happiness at the end of the day.

White?—why it gives your clothes a whiteness that even the fleeciest clouds cannot rival.

Don't Wait, Don't Doubt—
Get It—Use It—and KNOW

5 Cents. At GOOD Grocery Stores

The KITCHEN CABINET

The poor man rejoiceth in his toil, and his daily bread is sweet to him;
The rich man languisheth with sloth,
and findeth pleasure in nothing.—Tupper.

EMERGENCY DISHES.

DISHES that may be prepared for a hurry-up meal or for a sudden emergency; they take little time to prepare and are not difficult.

Lima Beans and Bacon.—Bacon is a standby which we all feel is necessary to have in small or large quantities as circumstances permit. Various canned vegetables will be found in plenty on our shelves this winter, canned from our own war gardens.

Drain a can of lima beans, put into a shallow earthen dish, cover the top with strips of bacon and put into a hot oven. Bake until the bacon is crisp and brown. Serve piping hot from the dish.

Pimento Salad.—Take one small can of red peppers, three cupfuls of finely shredded cabbage, a teaspoonful each of salt and grated onion, a half cupful of finely minced celery and a cupful of mayonnaise dressing. Serve in nests of shredded lettuce.

Junket With Pineapple.—Dissolve a junket tablet in a tablespoonful of water—one-half a tablet is sufficient for a pint of milk. Heat the milk until lukewarm, then sweeten, flavor and add the dissolved tablet. Pour into sherbet cups and when firm put on ice. Serve with a teaspoonful of shredded pineapple and a tablespoonful of whipped cream on top of each glass. Even those who do not care for milk in other forms will eat this dainty dessert.

Crab Salad.—Add a cupful of crab meat to a cupful of shredded cabbage and the same amount of tart, well-flavored apple cut in dice. Mix and season well and serve with any good boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Pineapple With Marshmallows.—Arrange slices of canned pineapple with a marshmallow in the center and small cubes of jelly around it or a maraschino cherry pressed into the center of the marshmallow.

A can of home-prepared soup which has been canned is a most satisfying beginning for a meal.

Canned chicken with white sauce and covered with baking powder biscuit, makes a nice chicken pie in a hurry.

Corn Fritters.—Take a can of corn three-fourths of a cupful of corn flour, three eggs, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, salt and pepper to season. Fry in deep fat or in a hot frying pan with a little corn oil.

Every housewife who practices strict economy in food conservation puts herself in the ranks of those who serve the nation.—Woodrow Wilson.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE FAMILY.

GIVE heed to the meal that begins the day, let it be happy and sufficiently sustaining to last until noon.

Potato Cakes.—Mold two cupfuls of seasoned mashed potato with a beaten egg and flour to mix well. Wrap round each cake a thin slice of bacon and fasten with a toothpick. Set in a hot oven or under the gas flame till the bacon is crisp and brown.

Ham Baked au Gratin.—Take a two-inch slice of smoked ham, freshen by soaking in cold water one hour, then drain and wipe dry. Cover with a fourth-cupful of molasses, rubbing it in, let stand 15 minutes, then bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven, adding a little water occasionally. When the meat is cooked, pile seasoned cooked rice over it; sprinkle with cheese and set in the oven long enough to melt the cheese.

Orange Marshmallow.—Dissolve all but six of a half-pound of marshmallows over boiling water. Mix four teaspoonfuls of cornstarch with two well-beaten eggs and a cupful of honey, a cupful of boiling water, one and a fourth cupfuls of orange juice, one-fourth of a cupful of lemon juice, both strained; cook, stirring constantly. Pour over the melted marshmallows; beat for five minutes. Garnish with cut marshmallows and serve cold.

Rice Surprise.—Soak a tablespoonful of gelatine in three tablespoonfuls of water until soft, then add to one cupful of hot cooked rice with two tablespoonfuls of sugar, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of vanilla; beat well until it begins to congeal, then fold in the whipped cream. Pour into a mold to harden and serve on a platter with an orange marmalade sauce poured over it.

Nut Loaf.—Cook one cupful of rice in boiling salted water, drain and add a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one and a half cupfuls of peanuts ground fine, a tablespoonful of sweet fat, one egg well beaten, and enough milk to moisten. Mold in a loaf, sprinkle with paprika and bake twenty minutes. Serve with a tomato or cheese sauce.

Our grand business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand.—Carlyle.

FAVORITE DISHES OF OUR ALLIES.

SOME of the good things well liked by our friends over the sea and across the border:

Salmon Tidnish (Canadian).—Rub well scraped and washed salmon with a tablespoonful of salt; place the fish in a baking pan and score it across four or five times. Mix one cupful of fine bread crumbs, a dessert spoonful of minced parsley, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of ground black pepper, two dessert spoonfuls of salt, milk to moisten well. Put good-sized lumps of sweet fat in the gashes. Cover the bottom of the pan with milk and put into a hot oven. When well-cooked, lift from the pan to the platter and garnish with hard-cooked egg and lemon. Serve with the gravy in the pan.

Codfish With Green Peppers (Italian)—Soak a half-pound of salt codfish, remove the skin and bones and cut in small squares. Roast two good-sized green peppers on the top of the stove, remove the skins and seeds and cut in narrow strips. Put three tablespoonfuls of olive oil into a saucepan with one small onion chopped, cook until the onion is yellow, then add two large tomatoes, salt, pepper and then the peppers. When nearly done add codfish and a spoonful of chopped parsley. Cover and simmer until the fish is well seasoned.

Black Bean Soup.—Soak one cupful of black beans in cold water several hours. Pour off the water, add fresh water and simmer until the beans are tender, then rub through a sieve. There should be a pint of water. Add a tablespoonful of cornstarch in a little cold water and cook eight minutes. Season with salt, pepper, a little mustard, juice of a lemon. Serve with squares of fried bread.

Leg of Mutton Pie (Canadian).—Grease a deep baking dish and lay in the bottom a few slices of fried salt pork and then slices of mutton cut from the leg; on top of this lay sliced cooked potatoes, salt, pepper, fried onions and parsley. Pour over a clear gravy. Moisten the edge of the dish and cover with a good rich pastry. Bake an hour and twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

It is no exaggeration to say that health is a large ingredient in what the world calls talent.

TIMELY HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

IF YOUR kitchen table is too low buy four door stops and screw them to the bottom of the table legs.

Those who know tell us that we do not grind our coffee fine enough for use in the common coffee pot, throwing away much good flavor that is not used. Tea may also be ground, getting double the flavor.

Do not throw away the bacon rind; it adds a delicious flavor to vegetables, taking the place of butter. A piece of bacon rind added to the dish of string beans or cabbage makes a most appetizing vegetable.

If fruit ferments or sours do not throw it into the garbage; cover with cold water, simmer until all the juice is extracted and pour it into the vinegar jug that is making your vinegar. All the rinsings from fruit jars, jelly glasses and preserving kettles should be saved for the homemade vinegar.

Vinegar may be made from various fruits, but the apple is considered the best flavor for general use. Cider allowed to stand with a small piece of mother until it is sour makes the best vinegar, but a very good kind may be made by using apple peelings and cores, as well as all windfalls, cutting out any decayed or wormy portions. Cover this cut-up apple with cold water, scald to extract all the juice, then strain into the vinegar cask, adding a few tablespoonfuls of any good sirup, which hastens the souring. Let the cask stand in the sun and in a few weeks the vinegar will be ready to use.

A little vinegar added to tough meat while cooking will make a tender, palatable dish when cooked.

Instead of throwing away the cores and peeling of pineapple or peaches put them in a kettle with water and let them simmer until all the flavor is extracted. This juice may be bottled for beverages or may be added to apple juice, making a jelly of rare flavor.

When baking potatoes, to save gas parboil them for five or ten minutes, then place in the oven to bake.

Discarded talking machine needles make fine brads for various uses about the home. One way to use them is in picture framing.

Nellie Maxwell

A FEW LITTLE SMILES

A Mean Remark.

"We pride ourselves on being a progressive community," said the resident of a dead town.

"In what respect?" asked the curious stranger.

"Our streets are always kept clean."

"But what does it profit a town to have clean streets, if they are not in use?"

Studious Character.

"There goes Professor Diggs. He's a very learned man."

"He looks the part."

"Yes. I dare say the professor could find his way around in ancient Babylon, if the city still existed, more easily than he can right here in this town, where he has lived thirty or forty years."

The Real Thing.

Younger Sister—What is stoicism?

Elder Sister—Stoicism is the ability to congratulate the fiancee of the man you wanted to marry without showing any disappointment.

The Reason.

She—Why are you all so down on poor Reginald because he waxes his mustache?

He—Because a waxed mustache is a cereous matter.

Perfectly Nice Trees.

"Those are pretty looking trees over there. Are they deciduous?"

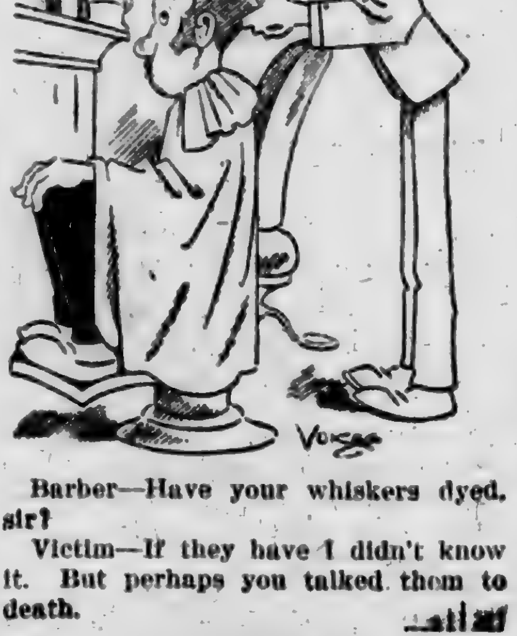
"Indeed, they're not. They're the healthiest sort we've got on the place."

Might Satisfy Her.

Foreman—That machine can do the work of a dozen men.

Visitor—Gee whiz! My wife ought to have married it.

IT WAS NEWS TO HIM.



Barber—Have your whiskers dyed, sir?

Victim—If they have I didn't know it. But perhaps you talked them to death.

Otherwise Engaged.

Though opportunity may knock
And greet you with a bow profound,
If you do naught but watch the clock
You'll miss him when he comes around.

She Explains.

"Madam, while I make that as bona fide offer, you are the first customer who has ever smoked one of my cigarettes and returned the rest. So I have called in person for an explanation."

"Well, you see, I thought I'd learn to smoke cigarettes, but I don't believe I can ever manage it."

Sweet Innocence.

Author—I have books in my library that can be found in no other library in the world.

Girl—Of course, your own works are all there.

Always Belong Elsewhere.

"There's one good thing about spoiled children."

"What's that?"

"One never has them in one's own house."—Boston Transcript.

Absent-Minded.

Wifey (just back from visit)—Did you have many callers while I was away?

Hub—Every time I tried to bluff—er—I mean no, my dear, not many.

Incompatibility.

"So you think a true musician never makes a good motorist."

"That's my opinion," replied Mr. Chuggins. "No man who puts music above other considerations could be content with the kind of a tone produced by any automobile horn now on the market."

No Other Reason.

"I'm going to Zizzville tomorrow."

"It's a dull place. Why on earth do you want to go there?"

"I've got a pass."

GOOD-BYE BACKACHE, KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

For centuries all over the world GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has afforded relief in thousands upon thousands of cases of lame back, lumbago, sciatica, rheumatism, gallstones, gravel and all other affections of the kidneys, liver, stomach, bladder and allied organs. It acts quickly. It does the work. It cleanses your kidneys and purifies the blood. It makes a new man, a new woman, of you. It frequently wards off attacks of the dread and fatal diseases of the kidneys. It often completely cures the distressing diseases of the organs of the body allied with the bladder and kidneys. Bloody or cloudy urine, sediment, or "brickdust" indicate an unhealthy condition.

Do not delay a minute if your back aches or you are sore across the loins or have difficulty when urinating. Go to your druggist at once and get a box of imported GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They are pleasant and easy to take. Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill. Take a small swallow of water if you want to. They dissolve in the stomach, and the kidneys soak up the oil like a sponge does water. They thoroughly cleanse and wash out the bladder and kidneys and throw off the inflammation which is the cause of the trouble. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gallstones, gravel, "brickdust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs. Your druggist will cheerfully refund your money if you are not satisfied after a few days' use. Accept only the pure, original GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. None other genuine.—Adv.

Caused By ACID-STOMACH

Heartburn, Belching, Indigestion, Food Repeating and Nearly All Kinds of Bodily Miseries

The first sign of stomach misery usually comes after over-eating. The doctors call it "superacidity". The people say—"sour stomach".

Millions of people who have lost their ambition, energy, courage, vitality and strength—who are weak, pale and listless—who go through life just dragging one foot after another—tired and worn out nearly all the time—nervous, irritable, subject to severe headache, insomnia, and a long train of physical ills—would be surprised, yes, dumbfounded, to learn that it is just an acid-stomach that is causing them all their misery. Yet in nearly nine cases out of ten that is just where the trouble starts.

Now a sour, acid-stomach, or "superacidity", of course, simply means too much acid in the stomach. You can now quickly rid your stomach of its excess acid. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC literally wipes it out. It does the work easily, quickly and thoroughly. It makes the stomach pure, sweet, cool and comfortable. It helps you to get full strength out of every mouthful of food you eat; and unless you do get full strength from your food you cannot enjoy robust, vigorous health.

EATONIC is in tablet form. They are pleasant tasting—just like a bit of candy—and are absolutely harmless. Take EATONIC and find out for yourself how wonderfully different you will feel. See how quickly EATONIC banishes the immediate effects of acid-stomach—bloat, heartburn, belching, food repeating, indigestion, etc. See, too, how quickly your general health improves—how much you relish your food—how much more easily your food is digested—how soundly you sleep—how nervousness and irritability disappear. And all simply because, by taking EATONIC, you have rid your stomach of a lot of excess acid that has been holding back and making your life miserable.

So get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist today. He is authorized to guarantee EATONIC to please you and you can trust him to make this guarantee good. If EATONIC fails in any way, take it back—he will refund your money. If your druggist does not keep EATONIC write to us direct and we will send you a big 50c box and you can send us the 50c after you receive it. Address: H. L. Kramer, Prest, Eatonic Remedy Co. 1018 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

HAD NOT BROKEN PROMISE

Surely Small Boy Was Not to Blame Because Others Thought the Poker Was Hot.

A farmer, hearing a commotion at the back of his house, hurried out to find his little boy, armed with a red-hot poker, enjoying himself immensely by chasing some frightened farm laborers round the yard.

After a severe lecture from his father the youngster promised that he would never do it again.

A day or two later the same commotion was heard and the same youth was found causing havoc with the selfsame poker.

"How dare you?" said the irate parent.

"But father—" interrupted the young culprit.

"Don't 'but father me,' sir!"

The youngster, however, convinced of the satisfactory nature of his explanation, would not be silenced.

"But, father," he said, "it's only painted this time."—London Tit-Bits.

If a man wants to get a line on his popularity as a speaker let him hire a hall and charge 50 cents admission.

The kaiser is the world's greatest example of a man who didn't know when he was well off.

Would Have Huns Warned.

A negro in a precinct of the Fifth ward added a little humor to the stern feelings of those who were filling out their cards.

"My name's Elisha Smith," he said to the registrar.

"Any middle name?" the officer asked.

"Yes, N.," replied the negro.

But he didn't know what the "N" stood for, so he said:

"Make it 'Nick.' When I was little my mother used to call me Nick because I was so mean and always had blood in my eye. You can send a message to those Hun devils that Nick is coming after their scalps."—Kansas City Star.

All Geraldine's Fault.

The children had quarreled frequently all day. In the evening we talked it over and the little tot said, "I would have stopped quarreling this morning if Geraldine would have came gently at me."

Indigestion produces disagreeable and sometimes alarming symptoms. Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills stimulate the digestive processes to function naturally. Adv.

What this world needs isn't altogether better leaders. Better followers would help a lot.

The skeleton measures an inch less than the height of a living man.

The Blue Valley System

It Makes Better Butter
It Sells for a Higher Price
It Pays More for Cream

How Much Money Did You Lose On Your Cream Last Month?

The time has come for the dairy farmer to check up on the returns of his dairy cows, his separator, and his labor.

It requires more money now to feed his herd, to pay taxes, grocery and meat bills, to send his children to school. And every penny counts.

Therefore, it is imperative that every farmer get the highest possible price for his butter-fat. Even a cent more per pound amounts to a big sum—figured by the month or year. Very often this amount serves to add another cow to the herd, to buy a new separator, to pay the taxes.

So, don't take less money for your cream than we pay. We guarantee to pay higher prices for butter-fat than paid by the local cream stations—and it is just as important to get this higher price as it is to get the extra cent on a bushel of grain, on a pound of beef or pork, or any other farm product.

150,000 farmers in the Middle Western States sell us their cream—and make the extra profits we pay. Those who don't, lose this money.

How much did you lose last month? Write us and we'll give you facts that will prove you can make dairying more profitable by doing business direct with the Blue Valley Creamery Co. instead of with a local cream buyer. Under our system we eliminate middlemen, cream wagon haulers, rental expense, cost of horses, wagons, testing equipment, etc. No such commissions or expenses come out of your cream check. You get it all.

INVESTIGATE!

Don't postpone a profitable action. Write us at once. Ask for Bulletin No. 118 Address our nearest creamery.

BLUE VALLEY CREAMERY CO.

(Originators of the Truly Co-operative Creamery System—Est. 18 Years)

Chicago, Ill. Indianapolis, Ind. Columbus, Ohio Hastings, Neb.
Clinton, Ill. Detroit, Mich. Sioux City, Ia. Parsons, Kan.
Springfield, Ill. Grand Rapids, Mich. Cedar Rapids, Ia. St. Joseph, Mo.

WE GUARANTEE

That our check in payment for each and every can of cream you send us will satisfy you.
We guarantee the safe return of your empty cans.
If, for any reason whatever, you are not satisfied, we expect to hear from you.
We guarantee to satisfy you perfectly.
BLUE VALLEY CREAMERY CO.

INVESTIGATE: It means dollars and cents to you. More profits from your cows. Write for Blue Valley Bulletin, Dr. E. E. Favill's book on dairying and stock farming, also further facts about the BLUE VALLEY SYSTEM— FREE

OCTOBER

L 90

0534

Don't Go From Bad to Worse!

Are you always weak, miserable and half-sick? Then it's time you found out what is wrong. Kidney weakness causes much suffering from backache, lameness, stiffness and rheumatic pains, and if neglected, brings danger of serious trouble—dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. Don't delay. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands and should help you.

An Ohio Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Mrs. J. W. Mook, 130 E. Maple St., Clyde, Ohio, says: "Several years ago I had an awful attack of kidney trouble. For eighteen months I was in bed, unable to help myself. My kidneys were weak and the suffering was all I could bear. My nerves were in a terrible condition. A friend advised Doan's Kidney Pills. Two boxes of Doan's gave me relief and after I had used six boxes, I was up and enjoying good health."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Reduces Strained, Puffy Ankles, Lymphangitis, Poll Evil, Fistula, Boils, Swellings; Stops Lameness and allays pain. Heals Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Boot Chafes. It is a SAFE ANTISEPTIC AND GERMICIDE

Does not blister or remove the hair and horse can be worked. Pleasant to use. $2.50 a bottle, delivered. Describe your case for special instructions and Book 5 R free. ABSORBINE, JR., antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Strains, Painful, Knotted, Swollen Veins. Concentrated—only a few drops required at an application. Price $1.25 per bottle at dealers or delivered.
W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Cuticura Soap
IS IDEAL
For the Hands
Soap 25c., Ointment 25 & 50c., Talcum 25c. Sample each mailed free by "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

START THE BILE
Carlsted's Liver Powder
OVER 25 YEARS
For habitual constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, dizziness and kidney and bladder troubles. Hundreds of testimonials from those whom we have helped. Two sizes, 25c and $1.00. If your dealer hasn't it, order direct from us. Mfd. by AMERICAN PHARMACAL COMPANY, Inc., NASHVILLE, TENN.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 41--1918.

RIGHT THERE WITH PEDIGREE

With That Documentary Evidence, Who Could Doubt That Pigeon Was of Blue Blood?

Bushrod was establishing a pigeon coop of his own, emulating his neighbor, Bill Hite. In arranging the financial promotion of this venture he went to his mother.

"Mother," he said, "I want a dollar to buy a pigeon."

Mother thought a dollar a rather high price for a pigeon, with common birds averaging about 50 cents.

"But, mother," Bushrod said, earnestly, "you don't understand. This is a pedigree pigeon. With its pedigree it's cheap at a dollar."

Bushrod finally wheedled his mother out of the dollar, and left to buy his blooded bird. He returned with the pigeon and a scrap of crumpled paper in his pocket.

"Mother," he said, "this is the pedigree."

On the crumpled scrap of paper was written:

"Grandfather, unknown. Grandmother, unknown. Father, unknown. Mother, Bill Hite's pigeon."

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

All Druggists 75c. Circulars free.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Ask the Waves.

The following is part of the diary of a U. S. A. soldier who had promised to give daily accounts of his experiences on board ship:

"Tuesday, 17th, 8 o'colck a. m. Feeling fine. Full of good cheer and porridge.

"Tuesday, 9 o'clock a. m. Still full of good cheer. Minus the porridge!"

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the
Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
In Use for Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

A Poor Memory.

Monk—Now what did my wife tie that knot in my tail for to make me remember?

If fame came only after death no man would kill himself striving for it.

When Your Eyes Need Care
Try Murine Eye Remedy
No Smarting — Just Eye Comfort. 60 cents at Druggists or mail. Write for Free Eye Book.
MURINE EYE REMEDY CO., CHICAGO

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 20

ABRAHAM GIVING ISAAC TO GOD.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 22:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life.—I Samuel 1:11.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Luke 14:25-33.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Genesis 15:1-6; 18:9-15; 21-1-12.

I. Abraham Tested (vv. 1, 2).

God does not tempt men to sin (James 1:13), but he subjects them to rigid tests to prove them. In the treatment of Abraham we have a supreme example. God tested Abraham, not Lot. Sodom tested Lot. God tests the man who is proof against the tests of Sodom. God had promised Abraham an heir through whom blessings were to come to the world. For many years his faith was sorely tried in waiting for its fulfillment. At length, his heart rejoiced in the realization of that hope. In the lad in the patriarch's tent were wrapped Abraham's hopes of the future when his seed should be as the stars for multitude. His was no ordinary expectation. The human affections and hopes were, no doubt, included; but a new nation was to spring from him, and Isaac was the sole link making the connection. Then, too, he saw the coming Redeemer, for "Abraham saw my day and was glad" (John 8:56). It is only as we thus see all that Isaac meant to his father and God's purpose for the future of the world, that we really can appreciate the crucial test that came to Abraham. A test in some sense similar comes to many Christian fathers and mothers. God is calling for sons and daughters to be offered on the altar of his service. The test is something terrific, as some who have given up sons and daughters for the mission field can testify. It is only as God is known to be almighty (Genesis 17:1) shall ability be given to give them up.

II. Abraham Standing the Test (vv. 2-10).

1. On the way (vv. 3, 4). Abraham promptly obeyed. There was neither hesitancy nor arguing. God had issued the command. At his call Abraham said: "Here am I" (v. 1). He could not say "No" to God. In the ordinary affairs of life we call a man weak who cannot say "No," who has no will of his own; but the man who could not say "No" to God, we count strong. Early in the morning he was on the way to the place of which God had told him. All who really believe in God will yield themselves to him without question, reserve, or shrinking. Anything short of this is not consecration. We should not stop to ask how or why. It is enough to know that God has spoken.

2. "Abide ye here" (v. 5). This testing experience was too sacred for human eyes to gaze upon. How like this the words of Jesus in Gethsemane: "Tarry ye here." Human sympathy is sweet, and is to be prized, but we need to be alone in times of great testing. There are times when human sympathy hinders us from doing our duty. When Abraham said: "We will come down again to you," he spoke sincerely, for he believed that God would give him Isaac back from the dead (Heb. 11:19).

3. Isaac bearing the wood upon which he is to be offered (vv. 6, 7). This reminds us of Christ bearing the cross on the way to Calvary. Isaac must have been now a young man. He did not resist or cry out, but graciously submitted, showing that he is making a willing sacrifice.

4. The angel of the Lord calls (vv. 8-12). At the critical moment when Abraham's hand had lifted the gleaming blade to make real the offering, God interfered. God did not want human sacrifice as a burnt offering, but he wanted Abraham to give up to him his best, the surrender of his will to him. God is always pleased with submissive obedience. "To obey is better than sacrifice." Many times we are face to face with the test of giving up our fondest hopes and purposes, but when we have met the test as Abraham did, we get back our offering or greater things instead.

III. God Will Provide Himself a Lamb (vv. 13, 14).

Just behind Abraham was a ram caught in a thicket by his horns. Him Abraham offered instead of his son. In the words "God will provide himself a lamb (v. 8) we have the whole plan of redemption outlined. God has provided the costly sacrifice of his Son to satisfy himself.

He who has no taste for order will be often wrong in his judgment and seldom considerate or conscientious in his actions.—Lavater.

Value of the Bible.

The Bible is to us what the star was to the wise men; but if we spend all our time in gazing upon it, observing its motions, and admiring its splendor and are not led to Christ by it, the use of it will be lost to us.—T. Adams.

Truths From on High.

All human discoveries seem to be made only for the purpose of confirming more and more strongly the truths that come from on high and are contained in the sacred writings.—Herschel.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

COMMANDS OUR TROOPS IN ENGLAND

© Western Newspaper Union

Maj. Gen. John Biddle, commander of all American troops in England, is one of the most modest and unpretentious persons imaginable, and one of the most popular officers in the army. He is not only a loyal friend, a polished gentleman and a good fellow in the best sense of that term, but he is noted for his tact.

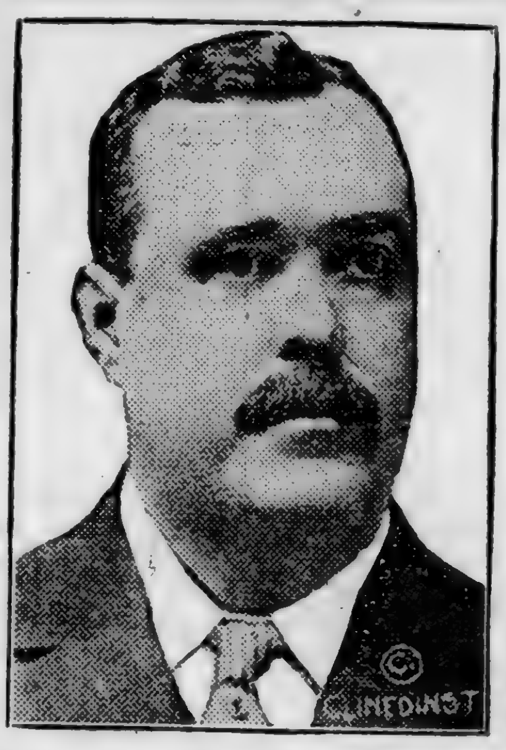
General Biddle when a boy spent three years at the school in Geneva (where French was everybody's language) and then was sent to the University of Heidelberg. From Heidelberg, at eighteen, he was brought back to this country, and in 1877 entered the West Point Military Academy.

He was graduated second in his class, and was appointed a second lieutenant in 1881 and assigned to the engineers.

A few years ago he was appointed an instructor in practical military engineering at West Point. In the Spanish war he served in Cuba. In November, 1899, he was sent to Manila, and not long afterward to Guam to survey that island. He was made engineer commissioner of the District of Columbia in 1901, and held that job six years. Then he was put in charge of important work in California, to be later attached to the general staff at Washington, and sent (in November, 1914) to Austria as a "war observer."

So virulent was the feeling against Americans in the German and Austrian camps that our military observers assigned to the armies of the central empires were at length withdrawn. Colonel Biddle, on his return, was made superintendent of the West Point academy.

CHIEF RAILROAD DETECTIVE



© CLINEDINST

William J. Flynn, for more than 20 years in the United States secret service until his retirement as its chief at the beginning of this year, has been appointed by William G. McAdoo to be head of the railroad administration detective force, having jurisdiction over all the railroads in the nation.

Except for six months in 1910-1911, when Mr. Flynn reorganized the detective bureau of the New York police department with the rank of second deputy police commissioner, his connection with the secret service had been continuous from 1897 until last January. He was appointed chief of the service in 1912, which position he resigned because of friction between his department and the department of justice.

Mr. Flynn has a reputation as a detector of crime which is more spectacular and involves more important work than that of any other detective living, and his appointment as head of the merged railway detective agencies assures competent protection of transportation at a time when all precious transportation records in this country are being dwarfed.

Mr. Flynn's knowledge of Italian criminals and their methods brought unusual protection to the reputable citizens of the Italian quarters and his activities in that branch of the service led to the only instance in the annals of the New York department in which a kidnaped child was actually caught in the possession of kidnapers. The case was that of the Longe and Rizzio boys, who were stolen from Brooklyn in 1910.

WOMAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

The arrival in this country not long ago of Mrs. Adolphus Busch, the multimillionaire widow of St. Louis who had been living in Germany for several years, brought to light an interesting situation which, so far as there is any record, has never before actually existed in history. Although Mrs. Busch, whose husband was the famous brewer, Adolphus Busch, and who is herself the "Anheuser" of the widely known "Anheuser-Busch," is really the richest widow in the world, with more than $60,000,000 in money and properties, yet her return to the United States has revealed her as literally a "woman without a country."

Technically, Mrs. Busch is a citizen of the United States. But part of her vast estate, though, is in Germany. She owns castles, villas, stocks and bonds and even part of a great ammunition plant in Prussia. So, when the United States declared war upon Germany the Prussian government promptly declared Mrs. Busch, who was living in the great Villa Lilly, near Berlin, an estate named after her and presented her by her husband as a golden wedding gift, to be an alien enemy of her husband's fatherland. All her fortune in Germany was seized by the German government, which classed her as an American citizen.

RISING STATESMAN OF URUGUAY

Dr. Baltasar Brum, the Uruguayan minister of foreign affairs, who headed the Uruguayan special commercial mission to this country—thus sufficiently demonstrating his importance in the public life of his own nation—was thirty-five years old on June 18. He is at the present time a candidate for the Uruguayan presidency. Few statesmen of his age have gone as far.

He was born in the department of Artigas, Uruguay, on the frontier of Brazil. His father, a wealthy planter, still occupies the homestead. The boy received his education in the Polytechnic institute of Salto and the University of Montevideo, where he took the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1908. While an undergraduate he was secretary of the committee which organised the first congress of American students.

Upon his graduation he made an extensive tour of Europe, and returning hung out his shingle in Salto, where he at once became active and conspicuous in local politics. In 1913 Doctor Brum, barely thirty, received a cabinet portfolio, though he had to wait a little until his birthday was passed in order to qualify. He became minister of public instruction and justice and continued in that post until February, 1915. Since then he has been minister of the interior, acting minister of finance and minister of foreign affairs.

Forward!

With no thought of bursting shrapnel and poisonous gases into which they plunge—with every muscle tense, with every faculty of mind alert, with one thought only—TO FIGHT AND WIN.

That is the way our men are going into battle. When the shrill whistle sounds the advance, out they go—their whole heart in the task before them. No power on earth can hold them back.

Forward!

The same sharp challenge to battle is sounding for us. We must answer in the same proud way—the way of our fighting men—the American way. We must lend the way they fight.

We must show the war-maddened Hun a united American people moving forward shoulder to shoulder, irresistibly, to Victory.

Our task is to supply the money, the ships, the guns, the shells that we must have to win. It is a tremendous task. We must do it as our fighting men do theirs—with the indomitable spirit of Victory.

We must work, and save, and lend with one thought only—TO FIGHT AND WIN.

Get into the fight—with your whole heart. Buy Bonds—to the utmost!

This Space Contributed by Swift & Company

Resigned in Favor of Horse.

A prosperous grocer had occasion to engage a new errand boy. Trade was very brisk, and the lad had a great deal of work to do in delivering parcels in different parts of the town.

"Well, Johnnie, how did you get on on Saturday?" asked the grocer on Monday morning.

"Oh, fine," replied Johnnie, "but I'll be leavin' at the end of the week."

"Why, Johnnie, what's up now?" queried his master. "Are the wages not high enough?"

"I'm not findin' any fault with the pay," replied the boy, "but the fact is, I'm doin' a good horse out of a job here."

Poor Foresight—Good Hindsight.

He—I spent my honeymoon here at this resort.

She—That is the happiest time of one's life, I suppose?

He—Oh, yes, one is so ignorant of the future.

This is a wide world, but a lot of people in it live on a narrow margin.

Toasts and Roasts.

At a little luncheon recently held by a mutual admiration club, the following toasts were proposed:

"His highness, the hetman of Ukrain! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!"—Kaiser Bill.

"His majesty, the German kaiser! Hoch, hoch, hoch!"—General Skoropadski of Ukraine.

Such outbursts of impassioned eloquence and expressions of undying fealty will probably go thundering down the ages and cause even President Wilson to shake in his shoes—with laughter.

Inconsistency.

"Did you ever notice," queried the almost philosopher, "that a man will stick his hand out to see if it's raining and then become peeved if he catches a drop on it?"

Some foolish people play with fire just to see whether it will burn them.

Poverty is no disgrace, and sometimes neither is wealth.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Get under the Shower of Gold

coming to farmers from the rich wheat fields of Western Canada. Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $30 per acre and raise from 20 to 45 bushels of $2 wheat to the acre it's easy to make money. Canada offers in her provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta

160 Acre Homesteads Free to Settlers

and other land at very low prices. Thousands of farmers from the U. S. or their sons are yearly taking advantage of this great opportunity. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed Farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. Good schools; markets convenient; climate excellent. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

OCTOBER

L 90

0535

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS

THIS is just what you need, madam. Many women who were troubled with indigestion, a sallow, muddy skin, indicating biliousness and habitual constipation, have been permanently cured by the use of Chamberlain's Tablets. Before using these tablets they felt miserable and despondent. Now they are cheerful and happy and relish their meals. Try them. They only cost a quarter.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Red Cross Department

The destitute of Belgium and northern France need your spare clothing. Herbert Hoover, chairman of the commission for relief of Belgium, has asked the American Red Cross, through H. P. Davidson, to collect 5,000 tons of clothing for the Belgians. The American Red Cross welcomes the opportunity to render such a needed service.

Back of the German wall that hems in Belgium and northern France, ten million human beings look to us for clothing as well as food. We who are well clothed can hardly realize in what dire need these people are for the lack of necessities. Stocks of clothing and raw material are long since exhausted. There are no imports other than those the relief commission has been permitted to make, and these never have been sufficient The world is now short of clothing and raw material. So the commission can no longer purchase what is needed.

But you can give it. Every household in the land has some spare clothing, worn or outgrown, of little use here, but desperately needed by the destitute there. Every kind of garment—for all ages and both sexes—is urgently needed. Since these clothes will be subjected to the hardest kind of wear, only garments made of strong and durable materials should be sent. Garments need not be in perfect condition. A hundred thousand destitute women in the occupied regions are eager to earn a scanty livelihood by repairing gift clothing and making over garments adapted to needs with which they are familiar.

St. Joe Red Cross wants to assist in meeting this demand. So, when the solicitors call on Thursday and Friday of this week, have your contributions ready. By so doing, much time will be saved.

The Newville auxiliary recently donated $34 55 to the St. Joe branch, which gift is duly appreciated and accepted with thanks.

Quite soon, the ware house will release material and work will be resumed at all sewing rooms. Owing to a general invoice, little work is being done at present.

The local Red Cross takes this means of thanking Earl Wyatt, of Concord, for a contribution of $2 00

Public Sale!

The undersigned will sell at public sale at his residence, 3 miles south of Spencerville, 4 miles north of Maysville and 5 miles northeast of Grabill, beginning at 10 a. m. on Saturday, Oct. 12

Farming Machinery.—McCormick 6-foot cut binder, McCormick 6-foot cut mower, wheel Champion self rake, new Deere hay loader, Emerson side rake and tedder, No. 11 feed cutter, Hoosier grain drill, Bryan disc harrow, spike-tooth harrow, riding corn cultivator, land roller, Oliver riding breaking plow, J. I. Case breaking plow, Shunk breaking plow, shovel plow, corn planter, bobsleds, corn sheller, Monarch fanning mill, 600-pound Atlas scales, half-horse gas engine, pump jack, blacksmith forge, anvil and vise, 3-inch tire wagon, platform spring wagon, top buggy, single harness, double brass-trimmed harness, pair fly nets, pair stable blankets, pair horse blankets, etc.

Stock.—Horse, fresh Galloway cow, 7 head breeding ewes.

Household Goods.—Cupboard, tables, chairs, oil stove, heating stove and other household goods.

RUNA GRATE.

Rhodenbaugh & McNamara, auc'rs; Jerry Klopfenstein, cl'k.

Our Advice Is To Buy Clothes NOW!

All wool fabrics have not only become very high in price, but will not be available for civilian clothes. In fact, the Chief of Staff of the American Army has already declared that the entire civilian population will be clothed in "shoddy" next year, all wool being commandeered for uniforms. Wise buyers know what that means---higher prices than ever before known for men's clothing, and for inferior quality at that. It will pay you well to look carefully into your clothing needs and make ample provisions for your future requirements, especially when you can come here now and buy dependable clothes at our prices.

Men's and Young Men's Suits and Overcoats, $13.50 to $40.00.

WM. KNISELY & SON.
Butler, Indiana
CLOTHING FURNISHINGS SHOES.

THE PENITENT

I had a little Sorrow,
Born of a little Sin.
I found a room all damp with gloom
That shut us all within;
And, "Little Sorrow, weep," said I,
And, "Little Sin, pray God to die,
And I upon the floor will lie
And think now bad I've been!"

Alas for pious planning—
It mattered not a whit!
As far as gloom went in that room,
The lamp might have been lit!
My little Sorrow would not weep,
My little Sin would go to sleep—
To save my soul I could not keep
My graceless mind upon it!

So up I got in anger
And took a book I had,
And put a ribbon on my hair
To please a passing lad.
And, "One thing there's no getting by:
I've been a wicked girl," said I;
But if I can't be sorry, why,
I might as well be glad!"

BRAINSTORM

FREN's an' Feller Cit'zens, cheer up! the worst isn't yet to come. The government has taken over the telephones, including even the St Joe whoopephone line. It can't, by any possibility, become any worse than it was. Say, that was a man-sized gold brick that the gentleman from Edgerton handed Uncle Sam.

KAISER BILL has reached a point where he can be believed: he has insisted all along and still insists that Germany is fighting a defensive war. No one doubts him now; and his utterances on the subject, previous to last July, may be regarded in the light of prophecy. There is no balm to the kaiser, however, in the fact that his word now can be taken. He is fighting a defensive war all right.

WHEN addressing mail to soldier boys in France, people should spell out the words, "American Expeditionary Force," or, at least, the first one. The initials, "A. E. F.," never should be used, as the Australians also have an expeditionary force in the war. Their initials are the same as ours, and the employment of "A E F" may lead to confusion. This may account for some of the delay in receiving mail over there.

THE partnership heretofore existing between "Me und Gott" is rapidly being dissolved: the senior partner stands arraigned before the highest tribunal in the world—outraged humanity—charged with being a moral bankrupt. Plaintiff's attorneys—Foch, Pershing, Haig & Co.—have the case well in hand. Their arguments of powder and steel are becoming unanswerable. Cut loose from the "God of Germany," the kaiser might find a business associate more to the liking of both parties in a "German Devil."

NO ONE thought when the war began, four years ago, that it would last a year, the Germans least of all. They planned a short, decisive campaign, depending on their mammoth and thoroughly equipped army speedily to crush all opposition. As they swept through Belgium—battering down fortresses, annihilating opposition, outraging civilians regardless of age or sex, devastating the land, robbing and pillaging, scrupling at no cruelty, disdaining the laws of man and of high heaven—they never thought that the time would ever come when they would be studying the map for the safest and surest road back to Germany. That time may not have come, but it is not far distant. Through their war madness and arrogance, they have earned the hostility of the entire civilized world. There can be but one end to such a war—the comple overthrow of Germany. There is still much to do to bring about this end. First of all, each person should go down in his pocket and buy bonds.

THE Red Cross is supplying the soldiers with cigarettes. There is no objection to that: give the boys anything they want but booze. By the way, come to think of it, who is better fitted for a Red Cross worker than a certain editor just over the Ohio border—that is, as far as knowledge of the best brand of cigarettes is concerned; and this knowledge, in connection with his experience as the teacher of a boys' class in Sunday school, would make him of incalculable value as an army worker: he could hand out Smudge & Punk's best to the boys and, at the same time, admonish them on the sinfulness of their ways, particularly cigarette smoking. At the same time, he might reinforce his admonitions by producing at the psychical moment a bottle of "That's It," carried in his hip pocket as a secondary emergency kit. If the Red Cross be so unfortunate as not to be able to secure the invaluable services of this righteous (and eke wobbly) journalistic reformer, the latter might furnish copies of back numbers of his paper for gratuitous distribution among the boys.

THE NEWS does not wish to scold; but it does wish to call attention to a condition here in St. Joe that has become intolerable—a condition that is such a menace that it should be abated before some old person or child is injured or killed. We refer to the manner in which some autoists scorch through town, endangering life and limb and exhibiting a total disregard for the law. These offenders should be taught a lesson—arrested and fined. This is the only way to stop the nuisance, for any amount of editorial comment or warning will not affect an empty head at the steering wheel of an automobile. A peace officer's duty is to arrest any person whom he sees violating the law and take him before a justice of the peace. He does not have to wait for instructions from a higher authority (a town board, for instance): it is obligatory upon him so to do under his official oath; and failure to fulfill that oath renders him liable on his bond, should any one push the case. Nothing in this article is meant as a reference to the running down of Mr. Shilling last Thursday evening. That was purely accidental. Mr. Terman, who was driving the machine, was going at a moderate rate of speed and the injured man exonerates him from all blame in the matter.

LIBERTY CHORUSES BIG AID

Americanization of the Foreign-Born Helps Boost the Fourth Loan.

There is a marked difference in the third and fourth Liberty loans in the amalgamation of foreign-born citizens with those of native birth.

"Since the third loan we have come to know each other better and to appreciate the contributions each makes toward the new democracy which is the outgrowth of the war," said Mrs. Constantine Howard of the Foreign Language division.

The Liberty chorus of more than 100 voices—representing 32 nationalities—organized under her leadership, is one of the great features of the present campaign.

"In the previous campaigns the foreign-born workers limited their efforts largely to awakening an interest in bond investment among their own nationalities. Now," continued Mrs. Howard, "they are selling the bonds to us, but owing to a difference in organization the amounts subscribed to the fourth loan by the various nationalities will not average so much in reality as they have done heretofore.

"Their enthusiasm has awakened an understanding of the real purpose of the war both among their own peoples and among native-born Americans. Those who came here seeking freedom from oppression have taught us by their enthusiasm to value ever more highly that liberty of which we once sung perhaps more with our lips than our hearts.

"The ever increasing demands for the appearance of the Liberty chorus in Chicago and throughout the district at patriotic events is the best proof of the responsive chord which our foreign-born peoples have evoked in American consciousness.

"Through the Liberty loan and the need for universal sacrifice for a common cause has come a wealth of civic betterment, as well as the necessary funds to carry on the fight for world-wide liberty. We are being welded into a united peoples through sacrifice. The gold stars which dot the service flags all over the nation—the lending of every available dollar has united us.

"What is your community doing to stimulate this social consciousness into active patriotic expression? If you are allowing a line to remain between foreign-born and native Americans the true message of the Liberty loan is not reaching the inner consciousness of your community.

"This work of Americanization will go on when the immediate need for raising funds to fight the war to a finish has passed. Nothing can be more inspiring or hopeful for a correlated community life than the entire obliteration of racial differences which had its beginning during the third loan.

BUDGET YOUR BOND BUYING

By MISS GRACE DIXON,
Federal Reserve Director for Women Seventh District.

Budget your bonds. Include payments on Fourth Liberty Loan bonds with the meat and groceries—as essentials of every-day life. Surely Government insurance is as necessary an investment as fire or life insurance, which are included in the regular expenses of the household.

If you have never tried a budget, start NOW. Sit down and figure what must be set aside for actual necessities, for recreation, charity, or as a sinking fund. Ask yourself whether the amount is adequate.

Then inventory the amount of bonds you are now carrying. Ask yourself whether that amount is adequate in comparison with your table or the sum you spend for amusement.

See if you cannot increase your subscription before the close of the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign. A first payment now—even if made at a sacrifice—will give you courage to meet future payments.

Place your bond payments at the beginning—not the end—of your budget. They are the greatest investment in the world for you, yourself, for your future success and your peace of mind when "the boys come home."

"YOU LEND AS THEY FIGHT."

"MR. BUSINESS MAN, YOU'VE NOT BEEN HIT UNTIL YOU'VE LOST AN ARM OR A LEG—BUY ALL THE BONDS YOU CAN."

"THAT'S YOUR SHARE IN LIBERTY BONDS? ALL YOU HAVE IN THE BANK AND ALL YOU CAN SAVE."

"WHAT KIND OF A FIGHTER ARE YOU? ANSWER, 'HOW MANY BONDS HAVE YOU BOUGHT?'"

Public Drains

The construction committee of the state council of defense advises me, as chaiaman of the county council of defense, that the construction of public drains does not come within the exceptions set out in bulletin formerly issued; that the recommendation of the county council and state council will be necessary before public drains will be permitted.

J. Y. W. McCLELLAN, Ch'm
County Council of Defense.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

The Apple Harvest

Payne, Ohio, at night time isn't in it with St. Joe in day time, either in number of automiles on the streets or in the quality of goods sold.

This is apple harvest time, and the Widney and Leighty orchards are certainly busy places. Before daylight Monday morning, autos were passing through town towards the orchards; and soon thereafter, a counter stream of vehicles, each laden with luscious fruit, had begun. This was kept up without interruption.

The number of bushels of marketable apples (No. 1's) at both orchards will probably exceed 12,000 bushels, and the quality is excellent.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale.--Good round Jewel heating stove. Burns coal or wood. Inquire of Mrs. Benjamin Hamilton.

FOR SALE: Shropshire Buck Lamb. Inquire of D. D. Burley, St. Joe.

BRICK: 1,000 good brick for sale right if I can find a buyer quick. Inquire of J. N. George, at ONCE.

The Complexion Is the Health Barometer

A good complexion can not be obtained when the liver, kidneys or bowels are inactive. Bilious or poisonous matter within the body causes the sallow, muddy or splotchy complexion. Why drag around looking tired, old and dejected when Glando Tonic will put you right? It will remove the poisons and give you new life and strength. Glando Tonic acts directly on the liver, kidneys and small glands of the stomach and bowels. Its great popularity is due to the wonderful cures which have been obtained through its use. Sold by druggists or may be secured by sending direct to the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

DO IT NOW

Send us the price of a year's subscription if you are in arrears.

We Need the Money

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 30
ST. JOE, IND

OCTOBER

L 90

0536

SPENCERVILLE

Born, on Friday, to Ross Bishop and wife, west of town, twin girls.

Mrs. Delphia Coburn-Sheaffer, of Marion, was a Monday guest of her cousins, Vern Wilmot and family.

A missionary drive was held here Friday in an all-day meeting at the M. E. church. The attendance was good.

Jacob Baltz and wife, William Sommers and wife and Mrs. J. B Sommers spent Thursday at Fort Wayne.

Orders were received on Monday morning to close the schools, churches and all otner meetings until further notice.

Theodore Bowser, of Huntertown, and Mrs. George Gloyd and sons, Gerry and Ralph, were Sunday dinner guests of Fred Osborne and family.

On Sunday evening, Oct 6, at 7 o'clock, Ezra Horn and Mrs. Rose Beams were united in marriage at the Lutheran parsonage by Rev. A. K. Mumma.

Dr. Emme has moved his drug store to the Erick building and will put in more goods. The Rummel building will be used as a cream station by Samuel Markle.

Miss Anna Harrod, of the Leo High school faculty, spent the week end with Rev. A K. Mumma and family. She expects to sail for India as a missionary as soon as war conditions will permit.

The following societies will not meet this month, by order of their respective presidents: Lutheran aid, Womens' Missionary society of the M. E church, C. C. C. club and the Cheerful Workers' class of the M. E. church.

On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Jessie Sommers, of Coburntown, royally entertained the Lutheran Missionary society at her country home. The program was in charge of Mesdames Henry Beams and Mary Renn. Miss Jessie Moffett, of Aub rn, rendered several solos that were much enjoyed. Other visitors were Mrs. Rolla Moffett and Miss Anna Harrod. The society unanimously voted to accept the invitation of the Fort Wayne Lutheran Missionary society to meet with them next Friday at their new church.

Samuel Cole is numbered among the sick.

Henry Emme and wife, of Auburn, are visiting their son, Dr. Emme, and family.

Mrs. Hannah Waters, of Antwerp, is spending a few days with Mrs. Margaret Koch.

Anson Dunton and wife, of Huntertown, were Sunday dinner guests of the latter's sister, Mrs Emily Gloyd, and family.

Mrs. Bert Wasson on Saturday left for Camp Taylor to visit her son, Ray Wasson, who expects soon to leave for France.

Word was received here Sunday that Fred Steward was very ill with Spanish influenza. He is located at Camp Taylor.

Charles Scott and wife and Mrs. Milton Chaney returned home Friday, after visiting several days with Mrs. Chaney's sister, Mrs. Belle Cope and family, of Angola.

Frank Hallabaugh was suddenly taken ill while visiting at the home of his parents, George Hallabaugh and wife, Sunday evening. He suffered from severe heart trouble.

Rev. A. K. Mumma installed Rev. Louis Nordsick as pastor of the Hoagland Lutheran charge on Sunday. Jean and David Mumma and Misses Charlotte Miller and Anna Harrod accompanied him.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than n e w blades Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to

Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

How's This?

We offer ne Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

COLETOWN

Virgil Brown was an over-Sunday guest at the Elton Brown home.

Mrs. Barker and son, Ora, visited the past week with John Varner and family.

G. W. Hart and wife and Miss Gladys Sauers visited Sunday with R. H. Conine and family.

Tom Elvey and wife, of Fort Wayne, visited over Sunday with Edwin Guthrie and wife.

Elton Brown and wife and Mrs. Edwin Guthrie attended the funeral of a relative at Monroeville, Thursday.

Mrs. Bertha Maciturf, of Avilla, visited from Thursday until Saturday with her sister, Mrs. George Brown.

"PUSHING ON"

Lieut. John Philip Sousa has composed a fourth Liberty loan song. The words were written by Guy F. Lee, a Chicago newspaper man. The title is "Pushing On." The words of the last verse and the chorus are:

They scrap with pep and ginger, our men and their allies.
On land, in air,
And everywhere,
They've got the Boche's size.
It's up to us to back 'em, until the war is won,
So lend as they fight every day, while
Pershing's pushing on.

Chorus—
For Pershing's pushing, Pershing's
pushing on.
For Pershing's pushing, Pershing's
pushing on.
The Hun is on the run.
Dig up, we need the "mon."
Shell out, shell out, the Yanks are pushing on.

Every Bond you tuck away
Boosts a bit your yearly pay.

Want Something?

Advertise
for it in these columns

POST CARDS

are now on dispay at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratuation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent foders.

ST JOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY PUB.
ST JOE IND.

THE BLUE TRIANGLE AT RUSSIA'S FRONT

The Blue Triangle clubrooms in Petrograd were in half shadow. A few scattered candles flung gleams as persistent and as vague as Russia's hope of liberty. A hundred Russian girls and six young men were guests of the first Young Women's Christian association in all Russia. It was a gala afternoon tea but it was dark because the winter days end at three o'clock and there is a restriction on the use of candles and kerosene as well as of electricity.

The girls were making merry even in the gloom of winter, the twilight and the tragedy of war. One slender white-faced girl with purple-shadowed eyes was merrier than all the rest. Her wit and ringing laugh were contagious.

"Sonya is wonderful tonight," one girl whispered to another as she stirred gently into her tea the one lump of sugar doled out carefully for the party. The Y. W. C. A. secretaries had been saving the sugar for months—putting aside at each meal one of the two lumps served with the coffee in the restaurant, that there might be a bit of sweet for this first party. There was no bread.

"Sonya is not drinking her tea," her pale little admirer went on, "yet she fainted this morning at the factory and the forewoman said she was hungry."

"We're all hungry," was the monotonous reply. "It wasn't that."

Something stopped the laughter and talk suddenly but the hush that fell in the dimly lit room was as joyous as the gaiety. One of Russia's greatest singers stood by the piano and lifted up her glorious voice filled with the tears and heartbreak that people at peace call thrills.

They went away early when the music was done—these sad-eyed, half-starved little guests of the Blue Triangle—for danger lurks in the dark of Petrograd streets, robberies and murders—sharp little by-products of a nation's chaos and a world at war.

Sonya lingered after the others were gone. She was standing close by the secretary-hostess' chair when she turned from saying good-night to the last one of the other girls. The laughter had died out of the girl's eyes and the gaiety from her voice.

"Will you give me a note to the factory superintendent," she asked, "telling him I'm attending classes here at night?" She spoke in French, for she knew no English, and the secretary, no Russian.

"Yes, if it will help you." The secretary was glad to give her such a note but she was curious. "Tell me why."

"If he knows the girls are going to night classes he won't put us on the night shift. He will let us work days so we can come. Yesterday I asked for the night shift. Today I have changed my mind."

The secretary wondered. Sonya had not been in any of the classes. Had the bright little party given her an interest in the work of the association? Had the friendliness of the American secretaries reached her? Was it the music that had given her an impetus to study toward something beyond a factory?

"What is it that interests you?" the secretary asked her. "You are not in any of the classes now, are you? What is it you want to take up?"

"This morning I looked out the factory window," and Sonya's voice reminded the secretary of the call of a night bird before a storm. "Down in the courtyard was a crowd and three men were killed. Killed by the police—the bolshevik police, while I stood there and watched. They said they were anarchists. One was my brother. Another was my sweetheart. I came here tonight to forget. But I cannot forget. Always I will remember. I want nothing now but to carry on their work, and to do that I must study and learn—I must learn English and many other things. I want to go in all the classes. If the foreman at the factory knows I do that, he will help. He will let me work days."

In the dark, the hunger, the cold, and the terror of Petrograd, the Blue Triangle is sending out its shining invitation to the bewildered women and young girls of Russia. It is offering a little oasis in the midst of the chaos where they may come and rest and relax, play games, listen to music, study English, French, stenography, bookkeeping, or music, and as one tired girl expressed it, forget for the moment that they are in Petrograd. Most of the girls who gather at the sign of the Blue Triangle are bookkeepers and stenographers, but scattered among them are factory girls, domestics, and girls who never have worked.

"In Petrograd and elsewhere in Russia," says Miss Clarissa Spencer, world secretary of the Y. W. C. A. who started the work in Russia, "girls formerly employed in government offices come to us who have struck against the bolshevists. They're out of jobs. They're hungry. One girl told me she couldn't take gymnasium work. It gave her such an appetite. But they refuse to return to work for the bolshevists."

Miss Helen Ogden, one of the Y. W. C. A. secretaries who was forced to leave Petrograd on account of the German advance, writes home that: "It's like living on the screen of a melodrama to be in Russia. Bullets and shooting are almost as familiar street sounds here as the clang of the street car and the honk of the automobile at home. Here we learn to live and work under frequent shooting and street battles and to flee only when we are told by the authorities that we must."

NEWVILLE

A new supply of Writing Tablets and Envelopes at News Office.

Mrs. Hazel Harrington is the new clerk at the Benner store.

Twenty teachers attended the institute at Newville, Saturcay.

Rev. Dixon, the new U. B. pastor, moved here last week.

Mrs. E. J. Grill, of Auburn, was the guest of Mrs. Olive Smith and family on Monday of last week.

Pencils, Rulers, Tablets, Pens, Ink, Crayons, Pencil Holders, Note Books, Erasers for the school children at The News Office

Mesdames Mary Kain, Byrd Nicholls and Stella McNabb were delegates to the W. C. T. U. convention, Saturday and Sunday.

Relatives from Concord visited at the Gillingham home, Sunday. Mrs. Gillingham does not improve as rapidly as her friends would like to have her.

Mrs. Dellie Lyons, of Hesperia, Mich., and Arthur Gillingham, of Oelwein, Iowa, remained here last week to care for their mother. Arthur left for home on Saturday

John Miller transacted business at Auburn on Saturday. On the same day, Mrs. Miller visited her daughter, Mrs. Elmer McDonald, and family.

Mrs. Julia Wyatt and daughter, Blanche, were Hicksville visitors on Thursday. The latter returned to Fort Wayne on Saturday, after spending a week with her mother.

Guy Smith, son of Alfred Smith and wife, on Sunday left for Indianapolis in answer to his country's call. Guy enlisted as a mechanic. He had been employed at Fort Wayne for several years.

A telegram was received on Sunday by Mrs. McKinley Beree, stating that her husband is seriously ill with pneumonia at Camp Taylor. Only a few days ago, Mrs. Beree returned from a long visit with her husband.

Omo Richmond and Romeo Fusselman left last Tuesday for Peoria, Ill., to visit Ivan Richmond, who is employed there. Mr. Fusselman will drive Ivan's team back, as the owner has no use for it out there. Omo will return in the auto.

BUYING BONDS IS THRIFT

Famous French Statesman Says Thrift Is Virtue of the People.

Deputy Justin Godart, in a recent speech on "The American Crusade," said: "Thrift, that virtue so characteristically French, so domestic, so modest, so sterling—thrift is the virtue which, during the terrible trials of the war, has not failed to yield us, according to our ever-increasing necessities, unsuspected means and resources.

We must place it in the first rank of our elements of resistance. It has been the part of the lowly in the economic outlay. Thrift! It is the virtue of the people, just as the Poilu is the people's soldier, and like the Poilu it enabled France to withstand the assaults of the barbarians."

Out of the hardships of the war America is recovering the ancestral virtue of thrift. That alone will abundantly repay us as a people for all the sacrifices we are compelled to undergo.

At the actual minute there is no duty for Americans that can compare with the buying of Fourth Liberty bonds. Thrift is good for the country; but first we must make sure that we have a country. We must beat the German feudalism. Never mind what you did on the early loans. That money is spent—for war preparation. The Fourth Loan Is for Fighting.

Read the Free column It may interest you and save yo umoney.

REGISTRATION OF WAR BONDS IS URGED BY LOAN OFFICIALS

Important Information on Liberty Bonds Given Out by Government Officials.

Important information concerning the registration of Liberty Loan bonds, as given out by the bond department of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago contains the following quotation from a letter from the treasury department:

"With reference to accepting subscriptions for bonds to be registered in the names of persons giving only initials rather than the full name, I have to say that it is the intent of the department, not for its own sake, but for the sake of the holders of registered bonds, to have them registered in such manner as to enable the said holders, or their legal representatives, to dispose of them in the simplest and readiest manner. Bonds issued to women under their initials, or under the initials of their husbands, are not readily transferable in case of the death of the holder.

"Though letters of administration would be issued in the legal name of the deceased, and the bonds would be inscribed in her name, under her initials, or those of her husband, as the case might be, the letters of administration and the bonds would not agree as to the name, and therefore the administrator of Mrs. Sarah A. Smith, say, would have to prove that she and Mrs. Thomas W. Smith (or Mrs. S. Smith) were one and the same person. It is to avoid troubles of this character that the department has insisted on receiving the legal name of persons subscribing for registered bonds.

"Of course, the department cannot refuse to issue bonds under initials if the parties interested insist upon it, but it is requested that you, in all cases where it is possible, insist on receiving the full names of persons subscribing for registered bonds."

"We'll All Go Broke If We Have To—But There's No One Busted Yet."

By WILLIAM HERSCHELL.

When I hear some folks complainin'
'Bout the burdens they must bear
Just to keep our soldiers fightin'
In the trenches "over there,"
Then I want to show a picture,
One I saw th' other day,
Of a little Belgian youn'un
An' her granny, old an' gray.
In each face was tears and terror,
Born of Teuton greed and lust,
An' I pledged my all to Freedom,
If to give my all I must.
Then a new song woke within me,
A refrain I can't forget;
"We'll all go broke if we haf t'—
But there's no one busted yet!"

None of us is facin' hunger.
None need fear to seek his bed
Lest a demon in a Gotha
Hurl a bomb from overhead.
Here we go along a-singin'
Only now and then we sigh,
An' we never see a soldier
'Cept our own a-marching by.
Folks, we'd ought to be so grateful
To each fightin' Yankee boy
That th' sacrifice of givin'
Should be measured as a joy.
So let's do our part—full-hearted—
Smile and say without regret:
"We'll all go broke if we haf t'—
But there's no one busted yet!"

Don't Be Careless About Your Health

When the liver is not acting properly, the system becomes full of poisonous accumulations, the kidneys and intestinal glands become sluggish and a general debilitated and nervous condition exists. The blood becomes impure, the circulation sluggish and the brain clouded.

A neglected liver causes chronic constipation, jaundice, gall stones and very often cancer.

Glando Tonic acts upon the whole glandular system, of which the liver is the chief gland. If this glandular system is in good working condition, disease has no chance to fasten itself upon you. The best time to doctor is when you begin to feel tired, achy or languid.

To neglect one's self when that tired, draggy feeling is present may mean weeks of severe illness. Let Glando Tonic remove that feeling and give you life and health.

Mothers who have nursing babies should use Glando Tonic to keep their bowels well regulated and their system in good condition. This will regulate baby's bowels and help it to withstand the heat and germs of summer.

Glando Tonic can be obtained of druggists or direct from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

FALL FOOTWEAR

We have received several new styles of Men's and Women's Fall Shoes, and would advise our customers to get in early. Shoes are going to be hard to get in the styles you want.

DON'T PUT IT OFF!

Women's Fine Kid, in brown or grey Goodyear welts $8.00
Same in black, $7 and .. 7.50
Dress Shoes—Martha Washington, $5 50 to 8.00
Men's Fine Kangaroo, Vici Kid or Calfskin Shoes, — Thompson Bros. make, $6 to ... 9.00
Others down to 3.00

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1867
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP.
Fort Wayne, Ind.

OCTOBER

L 90

0537

STATE NEWS

Muncie.—The Central Indiana Gas company, in a petition that has been prepared for the Indiana public service commission asks to be permitted to discontinue supplying natural gas for domestic purposes to Muncie, Riverside City, Normal City, Fairmount and Hartford City, where it charges at the rate of 40 cents for 1,000 cubic feet for fuel, and to supply those towns with artificial gas at a net rate of $1.25 for 1,000 cubic feet for the first 1,000 feet, $1 for the next 99,000, and 75 cents for each additional 100,000 cubic feet. It now supplies, with manufactured gas, the cities of Anderson, Elwood, Alexandria and Marion, where the following net rates prevail: First 1,000 feet, 90 cents; next 4,000 feet, 75 cents; next 95,000 feet, 50 cents, and all more than 100,000 feet, 40 cents. It is proposed in these four cities to increase these rates to those now proposed for Muncie, Riverside City, Normal city, Fairmount and Harfford City.

Indianapolis.—The Socialist party in Indiana filed a copy of its state ticket in the governor's office. It was filed over the signature of William T. Jackman, chairman of the party in Indiana, and William H. Henry, secretary. The ticket follows: John W. Kelly, Marion, secretary of state; Bernice Marlow, Coalmont, auditor; Francis M. Wampler, Worthington, treasurer; Philip H. Doty, Fort Wayne, attorney general; Frank S. Lamonte, Evansville, clerk of the supreme court; Andrew J. Hart, Richmond, superintendent of public instruction; Stephen C. Garrison, Montpelier, Geologist; William V. Simms, Jasonville, judge of the supreme court, First District; Hiram Cousins, Marion, judge of the supreme court, Fourth district; Herbert C. Miller, Evansville, and William Sheffler, Lyons, judges of the appellate court, First district; Peter G. Keely, Garrett, and Forrest Wallace, Veedersburg, judges of the appellate court, Second district.

Indianapolis.—Charles F. Kennedy, recording secretary of the state board of agriculture, announced that the state fair grounds will be turned over for the use of the motor convoy service of the United States army. No soldiers will be housed on the fair ground, but the use of the Coliseum, horse and cattle barns, and some of the other suitable buildings was offered for housing motortrucks and other army vehicles. It is expected that probably 175 machines will be kept at the fair ground for the training of soldiers housed in the State School of the Deaf. The contribution was made by the board, without expectation of remuneration, as its contribution to war work. The arrangements will not interfere with the 1919 state fair. The army is to have the use of the property until June 30, 1919.

Brazil.—The Liberty Guards, an organization of 30 men at Coalmont, is helping enforce the request of the government that automobiles not be used for pleasure purposes on Sunday in order that gasoline may be conserved. The guards recently stationed themselves at cross roads in the vicinity and stopped all automobiles and inquired the missions of the drivers. In case the drivers refused to stop the guards drew revolvers and fired at the tires. The guards failed to accept a "reasonable" excuse. A young man from Brazil, who leaves in the next contingent for an army camp, drove to Coalmont to tell his sweetheart good-by. He was accosted by the guards and the gasoline was drained from his tank and given to a machine used in Liberty loan work.

Greensburg.—Farmers in the Springhill vicinity are alarmed at the spread of a cattle disease which has baffled local veterinarians. Ten head on the L. L. Donnell farm have died as a result of the disease and three more are sick. The state veterinarian has been called to investigate the situation. The cattle are at first affected with an itch. One theory advanced is that the cattle have been feeding in a lot where hogs have been fed, thus obtaining unsuitable feed.

Lafayette.—Ten deaths from pneumonia in Lafayette were reported during 24 hours. Five deaths occurred in the city and Tippecanoe county in the previous 24 hours. Both hospitals here are crowded with patients, and can receive no more. Physicians are working night and day without rest. The outlook is believed a little brighter than it has been.

Goshen.—Frost prevailed throughout this territory, killing all tomatoes and cucumbers that had not perished September 22. Farmers estimate the loss as very heavy. Demand for fuel is unusually heavy. Goshen dealers are without anthracite coal.

Brookville.—Tobacco is about all cut and in the sheds in Franklin county. The corn is large and of good quality. Some of the tobacco is selling for 40 cents a pound.

Indianapolis.—C. S. Myers, motor mail route representative, and Wallace Buchanan, assistant superintendent of mails of the Indianapolis post office, inspected the proposed motor mail route between Indianapolis and Lafayette. If the routes as planned by the local postal authorities are approved by Mr. Myers, motortrucks will be sent here soon and the routes will be put in operation. The route to Lafayette, it is planned, will connect with a similar route between Lafayette and Chicago, while the Marion route will join a route extending to Detroit and Toledo.

Indianapolis.—Two contests in the [illegible]tion of officers and the dedication [illegible] two service flags marked the fiftieth annual meeting of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias of Indiana at sessions held in this city. William A. Morris of Shield lodge No. 71, Frankfort, was re-elected grand master of exchequer for the twenty-fifth consecutive time, defeating Evert S. Pancake of Clifford. Elmer Bassett of Chillon lodge No. 120, Shelbyville, defeated Nathan J. Lane of Bloomington for grand outer guard. Other officers all moved up automatically. They are: Grand chancellor, Judge Charles L. Pulliam, Terre Haute; grand vice chancellor, John W. Craig, Greensburg; grand prelate, Thomas L. Neal, Lebanon (post office address South Bend); grand keeper of records and seal, Robert A. Brown, Franklin; grand master of arms, Harvey M. Thompson; grand inner guard, Ralph W. Gaylor, Mishawaka; grand trustee, H. U. Grabt, Bloomington.

Indianapolis.—Political and election organization leaders met here and agreed on the substitution of an earlier date for the ones provided by law for the closing of the state and county party tickets. The agreement to take the place of the provisions of the law was arrived at to facilitate the voting of absent soldiers. The law provides that state tickets shall be closed 20 days prior to the election and that the county tickets shall be closed 15 days prior to the election. Because this is not sufficient time in which to have ballots printed and distributed to soldiers and returned to the proper authorities, it was agreed to waive the law's time provision and close the tickets sooner. The state tickets will be closed four days sooner and the county nine days sooner. This will close both tickets on the same day, October 12.

Hammond. — Rudolph Weymuller, eighteen years old, is the sole survivor today of a party of half a dozen Hammond youths who passed Sunday riding about on freight trains. The other five, including one who was to have entered the navy, were crushed to death in a box car wreck. The dead are: Robert Colgrove, fifteen years old; Albert D. Jarchow, seventeen; Edward Smith, nineteen; Roy C. Rhodes, sixteen, and Adolph Weyhmuller, sixteen years. While they were on top of a boxcar of a north-bound freight at the crossing of the Chicago, Indiana and Southern railway and the Lincoln highway, sixteen miles south of Hammond, an arch bar broke, derailing six cars, which rolled down an embankment. All the boys except Rudolph were mangled in the debris. Smith was the one due at the naval training station.

Indianapolis.—An immediate call for nurses and nurses' aids has been issued by Miss Eliza G. Browning, chairman of the Red Cross committee, to whom a request has come for several hundred nurses in Indianapolis and other military camps where the Spanish influenza is raging. Every trained nurse, experienced nurse, married woman who has had nursing experience and all women who have taken courses in first aid or home care of the sick are asked to register immediately at the war camp community booths in Indianapolis. The lives of hundreds of men in service are at stake.

Lawrenceburg.—The growers of southeastern Indiana are busy drilling for wheat, and the acreage will be about 25 per cent larger than last year. The largest corn crop in the history of Dearborn county is ripening and nearly out of danger from frost. An extra large crop of pumpkins has been raised for canners. Clarence C. Madison, county farm agent, has completed arrangements for the holding of township meetings in order to induce the corn growers to better protect their seed corn and to increase the acreage.

Indianapolis.—The state board of health has completed arrangements for the acceptance of $20,366 which the government has allotted to Indiana for the prosecution of the federal program against venereal disease clinics and other measures to prevent the spread of such diseases. The state may only receive a like federal allotment next year on the appropriation by the next legislature of a similar sum. The year within which the appropriation is available ends July 30, 1919.

Indianapolis.—Mark Storen, United States marshal, and the five deputies in his office have been busy issuing permits for German alien women to live within restricted areas in Indianapolis. At one time 50 women stood in line at the marshal's office awaiting their permits.

Crown Point.—The potato crop in Lake county is the largest in the history of the vicinity. The tubers are large, sound and of good quality, and are selling at $1.50 a bushel. The corn crop is also a record one, notwithstanding the light frost in the early part of the summer.

Brookville.—Farmers in Franklin county are experiencing difficulty in getting help to turn their corn in order to sow wheat. They are offering as much as $5 a day for boys to turn corn.

Crawfordsville.—"The solemn oath you men have just taken marks an epoch in the history of Wabash college and in the lives of each of you. This day will stand out in the splendid history of this constitution as one of greater and greater significance as time goes on." With these words Caleb Denny, former mayor of Indianapolis, addressed 50 students soon after they had taken the oath of allegiance to the American flag on the college campus. Commandant Knoll in an impressive speech said each student would be expected to do his full duty in helping win the world war.

FURS PROMISE TO BE IN EVIDENCE

New York.—Once upon a time the Roman warriors pulled over their heads the shaggy hides of animals as they advanced on the enemy. They had the primitive, childlike belief that the sight of the animals would frighten the opposing side. Such is the history of the grenadier caps worn by the British army, and such is probably the inspiration of the new warlike clothes invented in these times of war.

These are worn in Paris, or rather they were worn at the Paris openings, says a fashion writer. They have arrived in this country, and their acceptance is debatable.

There are women who will wear anything new, regardless of its effect on their appearance, and these women may make the new fabrics fashionable. At first glance, they are rather terrifying. One has a slight creeping of feeling for the opposing side" to the legions of Caesar. Even a stout-hearted warrior would hate to face a great rush of animal skins moving toward him with rapidity.

That will be the situation that must be faced by every stout-hearted man this winter, if these shaggy materials take first place in fashion. To the observer they are the leading phase of the season's output. They are purely a French invention, and even if they are not accepted in their entirety of shagginess, they will undoubtedly pave the way for an immediate output of silky materials with rough surfaces.

The first of these materials was called "Lionceau," and was invented late last winter, I think, and then used as a substitute for fur.

Magnificent as Well as Shaggy.

The majority of those who dip deeply into the sources of fashions and fabrics insist that the entire output of these animalistic materials is due to the recrudescence of monkey fur. That, however, would not explain the other fabrics which are used in the new French gowns that are arriving in this country, and which have hunting scenes, magnificently ornamental, on a dark background. Jenny uses this material for panels and for large pieces of evening frocks.

Then there are other fabrics which show birds and birds' plumage as the ornamental design, but these are of minor brilliancy as against the animal fabrics, which not only toss about the red and burnt-orange hair of monkeys and orang-outangs, but also the manes of animals such as never existed on land or sea; these are made from five- and six-inch strands of curled silky floss interwoven with metal.

The bird fabrics are called "Oisella" and the burnt-orange hides are called "Orang-outang." In other gowns, especially one from Bullos, there is used a new material called "Toison d'Or," which means "The Golden Fleece."

Still another material—and the loveliest of all because it is the most practical for American usage—is the imitation of a medieval coat of mail. This fabric, alongside the shaggy ones, seems to be cultured and modern.

I am dwelling in detail on all these fabrics of the hour because I believe that the great masses of women over this continent are going into the shops very soon to buy materials for their new clothes. Every woman does not have an expensive dressmaker or a great department store to furnish her costumes for the season. Such tricks of fortune favor only the few. The war has brought about an immense amount of home dressmaking, for all the seamstresses in the world cannot go into munition factories and earn large wages. Some of them must stick to their trade, and those who do can reap a harvest.

Questions That Women Ask.

It is to the fabrics, therefore, that the great majority of women will turn. Is it serge, they ask, or jersey? Smooth fabrics or rough ones? Does midnight-blue hold its own? Is Oxford gray again in fashion? Are evening gowns light, brilliant or somber in coloring? Does taffeta continue? Will satin be good?

These are quotations, not imaginations. They are asked by the swirling tide of women who are trying to make every dollar realize its full value today. They have taken to heart the twin doctrines of conservation and economy. "Non-essential" is over the doorway of every home and in the heart of every worker. We must buy, for we must be clothed, and we wish to keep in service those who have served us; but we must not buy idly, nor foolishly, nor with an eye to our selfish comforts, rather than the good of the majority.

To buy the material that is out of fashion is wasting money. There are those who will cry aloud in protest against such a statement, but it is quite true. We gain nothing by giving ourselves a new cause for discontent. When it is as easy to be in the fashion as out of it, it shows efficiency, good judgment and a level head to walk in the right path.

The Right Path.

To those who inquire as to what is the right path, therefore, it is wise to say that there is an undoubted tendency toward the imitation of animal hides in fabrics, but that one should go warily among such novelties. The main truth is that very smooth materials have lost their savor and that increasing roughness is prophesied.

It is quite possible that these new fashions in fabrics will keep serge out of first place. One finds it offered by the best tailors and dressmakers, but already women look a bit askance at it when they see piled up against it the new fabrics that represent a different epoch in weaving.

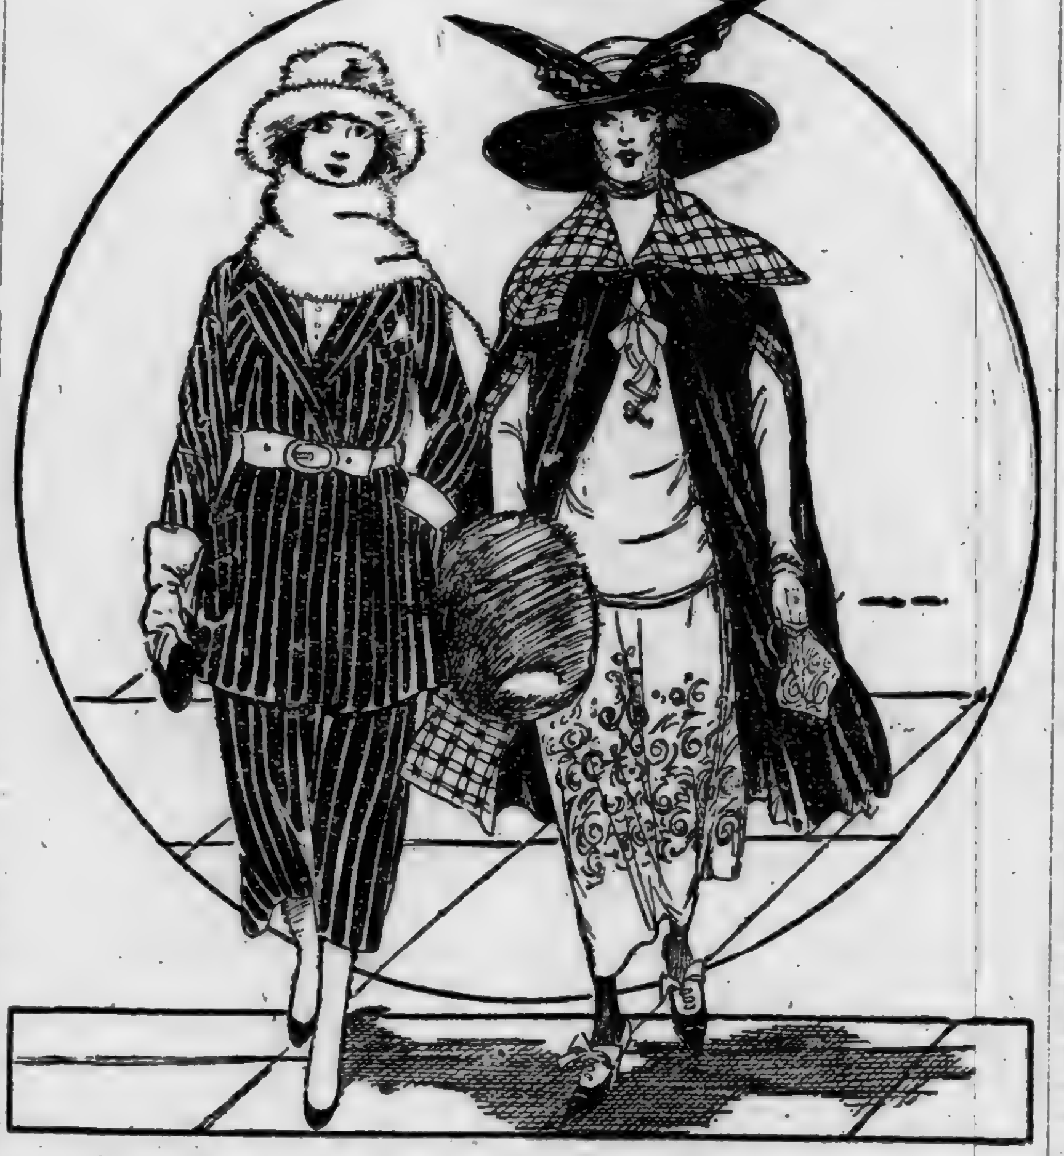
As for taffeta, it seems to be left in the cold. It is used by such artists as Mme. Paquin of Paris and her followers in this country for young girls, but not for women; and for evening, not for the day hours. It is in rich light blue that it is most frequently employed, and it is then trimmed with silver flowers and white monkey fur.

There is a dearth of satin. It is too early to say whether it will be entirely abandoned in this country, but at the moment it is not represented in the new French frocks in the generous manner of other days.

All the designers are lavish with velvet, as in the medieval days, and it is used in the picturesque Italian fashion, ornamented with superb embroideries of metal and silk.

So far, these richly decorated velvets, as well as the plain weave, are kept for the evening, but there are many tobacco brown and leather shades, and dark blue ones, used for the afternoon. There are also leather shades, by the way, in a heavy quality of satin, which looks like cloth and is trimmed with wool embroidery. These leather tones are harkening back to medieval days, and to those centuries when Spain led the world in dress, as France does today. It was then that Spain made her Cordova and Morocco leather famous.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)



On the left is a severe coat suit for autumn street usage, made of black and gray oxford cloth. The coat is the accepted length, has pockets on the hips, shows a surplice vest of white linen, and has a belt of itself run through an enamel harness buckle. On the right is a cape coat for rough weather, of midnight blue velours with black and white shepherd's plaid velours. There is a deep border of the checks at the hem, a wide collar of it, and bindings at the armholes.

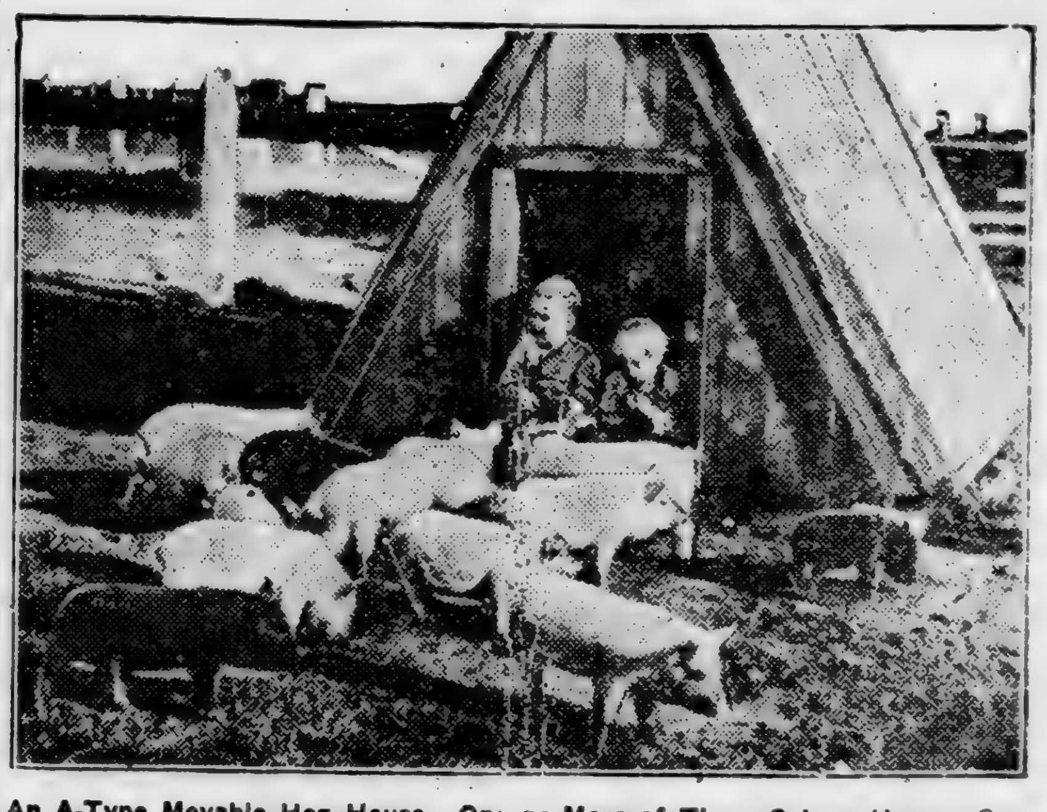
Irregular Around the Bottom.

Skirts continue to be irregular around the bottom.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

PROTECT HOGS THIS WINTER



An A-Type Movable Hog House. One or More of These Colony Houses Can Be Put to Profitable Use on Nearly Every Hog-Producing Farm.

PROPER HOUSING DURING WINTER

Increase Pork Production by Making Pigs Comfortable in Cold Weather.

HOG RAISING IS PROFITABLE

Little Pig to Thrive Must Be Kept Dry, Warm, Away From Drafts and Provided With Fresh Air —Sunshine Also Needed.

The corn belt hogs furnish one of the most important means of marketing the corn crop. With the exception of chickens, they are the most numerous of all farm animals, and are grown for market on more farms than any other stock. Hog raising has probably made more clear money for the corn-belt farmers than any other enterprise. In view of this one might expect to find hogs the best housed of any animals on the farm, but the opposite is the case. It is still hard for many farmers to get rid of the notion that anything is good enough for a hog. Yet there is no animal on the farm which requires better protection from cold than the hog; none for which a good bed is more necessary, and none so much in need of sunshine as the little pig. The horse and the cow have good coats of hair—even a calf or a colt when left in the cold is provided with a good fur coat; the hen's feathers are the best of protection against cold; but the hog has almost nothing between his skin and the weather.

One of the first requisites for success with hogs is a shelter where young pigs can be kept warm and well supplied with sunshine and fresh air. A little pig takes cold very easily and recovers slowly if at all. To prevent taking cold he must be kept dry, warm, away from drafts, and provided with fresh air.

Most good hog raisers who have warm buildings try to have their sows commence farrowing about March 1, but without good houses this is impracticable. Breeders find it necessary to have their pigs come about this time in order to have them large enough for the fall demand, and producers of market hogs find the practice profitable. Early pigs have several marked advantages. Without a good house two litters a year cannot be raised to advantage, because the spring pigs must be put off until so late that the fall litters do not get well started before cold weather, but with a good house two litters can well be raised. Most farmers do not feel that they can keep an old sow for one litter, but with two litters it becomes a different proposition. It is universally conceded that old sows raise better pigs than young ones, and the keeping of old sows enables one to select and keep only the best producers.

Types of Large Houses.

The variety of hog houses is almost as great as the variety of individuals using them. It is rare, indeed, to find even a semblance of uniformity prevailing in a community. There are, however, only two or three general types which commend themselves to the careful hog man. Of the two styles of large houses, the larger has two rows of pens, an alley through the middle, and a jog in the roof for windows to light the north pens, while the smaller has but one row of pens, with an alley and a row of windows on the south side. The double house is much cheaper per pen, and for that reason is to be preferred. Less work is also required to care for the hogs than where a single row of pens is used.

Probably the cheapest house possible is a low building with a single row of pens and no alley, but such a house is much less convenient, especially in stormy weather.

In the majority of large hog houses the upper windows are not so placed that sunshine will strike the floor when it is most needed there. Indeed, a hog house with the windows in the proper position is rarely seen. Direct sunshine should strike the floor in every pen for as many hours in day as possible at the time when the pigs are farrowed. Nearly everyone realizes this is a matter of the greatest importance, but too often the builder does not take the trouble to find out whether he is getting it or not. Ordinarily the farmer has no means of ascertaining where to put the windows so as to get the maximum amount of sunshine at the time he wants it unless he happens to be building just at that time, which is very unusual. The country is dotted with hog houses in which the owner thought he was putting the windows where he wanted them, but found later they were in the wrong place.

In double houses the windows for lighting the south pens must be as tight as possible in order to get them away from the hogs.

Advantages of Colony House.

Whether the large house with individual pens is better than the individual cot or colony house is an open question, perhaps largely a matter of individual preference. Each has its distinct advantages which cannot be secured in the other. Many of the best hog raisers are now providing themselves with both types of houses, and this seems to be the most satisfactory method. It is no more expensive in the long run, for all the buildings can be kept in use the year round. In such cases the large houses are used for farrowing quarters, and as soon as the pigs are a week or two old, or as soon as the weather permits, the sows and litters are removed to the individual cots. During the remainder of the year the large houses are utilized for sleeping quarters.

The movable or colony hog houses are especially suited to the needs of the farmer just starting in the hog business, and also for pig-club members. These houses can be moved from field to field as the pigs are changed from one grazing crop to another. Their use makes it easier to keep the hogs healthy, as the house may be moved as soon as one place becomes insanitary or unclean.

There are two common types of colony houses—the box shaped and A-type house. The box-shaped house is the most desirable of the two, especially for those who have a sow and litter to care for. This house has an advantage over the A-type house in that it is cooler in summer, for the roof is not so near the floor, thus giving more air space. It is easier to clean, easier to work in, gives better ventilation and admits more sunlight. The box house is usually built eight feet square by six feet high. The front of the house is in two sections, each containing a window, and both of which are hinged at the top and may be lifted in warm weather. The back way is also provided with hinges at the top, and when raised serves as a shed. The A-type house usually has a floor space of eight feet by six feet, and the boards used for the side walls are eight feet long. Under favorable weather conditions the front of the house may be removed to admit sunlight and air. Both of these types of houses are built on runners, so that they can be moved about easily.

DEMAND FOR MORE PORK

The serious decrease in hog marketings during 1917 has brought forth a demand that farmers and pig-club members materially increase their swine production to meet the needs of our soldiers and our allies for pork and pork products. Proper housing will be an important factor in such increased production, as it will reduce the amount of feed consumed and will prevent losses from exposure during winter, especially. In some sections of the country the farmers build larger and more expensive houses than are necessary, but in a great many places too little attention is given to proper houses for swine.

OCTOBER

L 90

0538

Carolyn of the Corners

BY RUTH BELMORE ENDICOTT

Copyright, 1918, by Dodd, Mead & Company, Inc.

LOOK UP!

You will feel better for having known Carolyn of the Corners. She is a lovable little girl, who not only preaches but practices the gospel of "looking up" and always making things "a wee bit better." To become acquainted with her is like letting in the sunshine and looking up at the blue sky. You will want to follow Carolyn through this story after you have read the opening chapter.

CHAPTER I.

—1—

The Ray of Sunlight.

Just as the rays of the afternoon sun hesitated to enter the open door of Joseph Stagg's hardware store in Sunrise Cove and lingered on the sill, so the little girl in the black frock and hat, with twin braids of sunshiny hair on her shoulders, hovered at the entrance of the dim and dusty place.

She carried a satchel in one hand, while the fingers of the other were hooked into the rivet-studded collar of a mottled, homely mongrel dog.

"Oh, dear me, Prince!" sighed the little girl, "this must be the place. We'll just have to go in. Of course I know he must be a nice man; but he's such a stranger."

Her feet faltered over the door sill and paced slowly down the shop between long counters. She saw no clerk.

At the back of the shop was a small office closed in with grimy windows. The uncertain visitor and her canine companion saw the shadowy figure of a man inside the office, sitting on a high stool and bent above a big ledger.

The dog, however, scented something else.

In the half darkness of the shop he and his little mistress came unexpectedly upon what Prince considered his arch-enemy. There rose up on the end of the counter nearest the open office door a big, black tomcat whose arched back, swollen tail and yellow eyes blazed defiance.

"Ps-s-st—ye-ow!"

The rising yowl broke the silence of the shop like a trumpet call. The little girl dropped her bag and seized the dog's collar with both hands.

"Prince!" she cried, "don't you speak to that cat—don't you dare speak to it!"

"Bless me!" croaked a voice from the office.

The tomcat uttered a second "ps-s-st—ye-ow!" and shot up a ladder to the top shelf.

"Bless me!" repeated Joseph Stagg, taking off his eyeglasses and leaving them in the ledger to mark his place. "What have you brought that dog in here for?"

He came to the office door.

"I—I didn't have any place to leave him," was the hesitating reply.

"Hum! Did your mother send you for something?"

"No-o, sir," sighed the little visitor.

At that moment a more daring ray of sunlight found its way through the transom over the store door and lit up the dusky place. It fell upon the slight, black-frocked figure and for an instant touched the pretty head as with an aureole.

"Bless me, child!" exclaimed Mr. Stagg. "Who are you?"

The flowerlike face of the little girl quivered, the blue eyes spilled big drops over her cheeks. She approached Mr. Stagg, stooping and squinting in the office doorway, and placed a timid hand upon the broad band of black crepe he wore on his coatsleeve.

"You're not Hannah's Car'lyn?" questioned the hardware dealer huskily.

"I'm Car'lyn May Cameron," she confessed. "You're my Uncle Joe. I'm very glad to see you, Uncle Joe, and—and I hope—you're glad to see me—and Prince," she finished rather falteringly.

"Bless me!" murmured the man again.

Nothing so startling as this had entered Sunrise Cove's chief "hardware emporium" for many and many a year.

Hannah Stagg, the hardware merchant's only sister, had gone away from home quite fifteen years previously. Mr. Stagg had never seen Hannah again; but this slight, blue-eyed, sunny-haired girl was a replica of his sister, and in some dusty corner of Mr. Stagg's heart there dwelt a very faithful memory of Hannah.

Nothing had served to estrange the brother save time and distance.

"Hannah's Car'lyn," muttered Mr. Stagg again. "Bless me, child! how did you get here from New York?"

"On the cars, uncle. You see, Mr. Price thought I'd better come. He says you are my guardian—it's in papa's will and would have been so in mamma's will, if she'd made one. Mr. Price put me on the train and the conductor took care of me.

"Who is Mr. Price?" the storekeeper asked.

"He's a lawyer. He's written you a long letter about it. It's in my bag. Didn't you get the telegram he sent you last evening, Uncle Joe? A 'night letter,' he called it."

"Never got it," replied Mr. Stagg shortly.

"Well, you see, when papa and mamma had to go away so suddenly they left me with the Prices. I go to school with Edna Price and she slept with me at night in our flat—after the Dunraven sailed."

"But—what did this lawyer send you up here for?" asked Mr. Stagg.

The question was a poser and Carolyn May stammered: "I—I— Don't guardians always take their little girls home and look out for them?"

"Hum—I don't know." The hardware merchant mused grimly. "I—I guess we'd better go up to The Corners and see what Aunty Rose has to say about it. You understand, I couldn't really keep you if she says 'No!'"

"Oh, Uncle Joe, couldn't you?"

"No," he declared, wagging his head decidedly. "And what she'll say to that dog—"

"Oh!" Carolyn May cried again, and put both arms suddenly about the neck of her canine friend. "Prince is just the best dog, Uncle Joe."

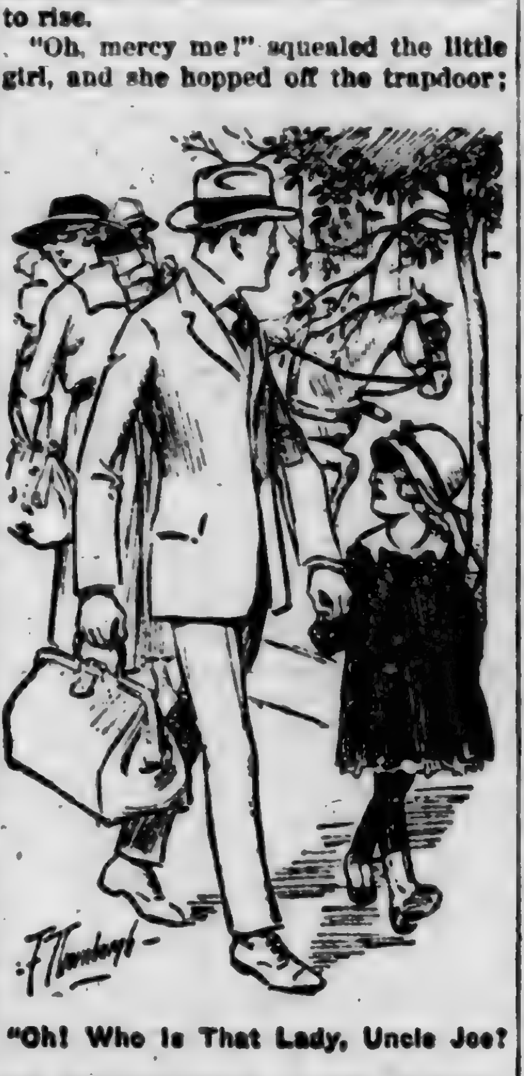
Mr. Stagg shook his head doubtfully. Then he went into the office and shut the big ledger into the safe. After locking the safe door, he slipped the key into his trousers pocket and glanced around the store.

"I'd like to know where that useless Gormley boy is now," muttered Mr. Stagg.

"Chet! Hey! you Chet!"

To Carolyn May's amazement and to the utter mystification of Prince, a section of the floor under their feet began to rise.

"Oh, mercy me!" squealed the little girl, and she hopped off the trapdoor; but the dog uttered a quick, threatening growl and put his muzzle to the widening aperture.



"Oh! Who Is That Lady, Uncle Joe?

"Hey! call off that dog!" begged a muffled voice from under the trapdoor. "He'll eat me up, Mr. Stagg."

"Lie down, Prince!" commanded Carolyn May hastily. "It's only a boy. You know you like boys, Prince," she urged.

"Come on up out o' that cellar, Chet. I'm going up to The Corners with my little niece—Hannah's Car'lyn. This is Chetwood Gormley. If he ever stops growin' longitudinally mebbe he'll be a man some day and not a giant. You stay right here and tend store while I'm gone, Chet."

Carolyn May could not help feeling some surprise at the finally revealed proportions of Chetwood Gormley. He was lathlike and gawky, with very prominent upper front teeth, which gave a sort of bow-window appearance to his wide mouth. But there was a good-humored twinkle in the overgrown boy's shallow eyes; and, if uncouth, he was kind.

"I'm proud to know ye, Car'lyn," he said. He stepped quickly out of the way of Prince when the latter started for the front of the store.

Once out of the shop in the sunlit street, the little girl breathed a sigh of relief. Mr. Stagg, peering down at her sharply, asked:

"What's the matter?"

"I—I— Your shop is awful dark, Uncle Joe," she confessed. "I can't seem to look up in there."

"'Look up?'" repeated the hardware dealer, puzzled.

"Yes, sir. My papa says never to get in any place where you can't look up and see something brighter and better ahead," said Carolyn May softly. "He says that's what makes life worth living."

"Oh, he does, does he?" grunted Mr. Stagg.

He noticed the heavy bag in her hand and took it from her. Instantly her released fingers stole into his free hand. Mr. Stagg looked down at the little hand in his palm, somewhat startled and not a little dismayed.

The main street of Sunrise Cove on this warm afternoon was not thronged with shoppers. Not many people noticed the tall, shambling, round-shouldered man in rusty black, with the petite figure of the child and the mongrel dog passing that way, though a few idle shopkeepers looked after the trio in surprise. But when Mr. Stagg and his companions turned into the pleasantly shaded street that led out of town towards The Corners—where was the Stagg homestead—Carolyn May noticed her uncle become suddenly flustered. She saw the blood flood into his face and neck, and she felt his hand loosen as though to release her own. The little girl looked ahead curiously at the woman who was approaching.

She was not a young woman—that is, not what the child would call young. Carolyn May thought she was very nice looking—tall and robust. Her brown eyes flashed an inquiring glance upon Carolyn May, but she did not look at Mr. Stagg, nor did Mr. Stagg look at her.

"Oh! who is that lady, Uncle Joe?" asked the little girl when they were out of earshot.

"Hum!" Her uncle's throat seemed to need clearing. "That—that is Mandy Parlow—Miss Amanda Parlow," he corrected himself with dignity.

The flush did not soon fade out of his face as they went on in silence.

It was half a mile from Main street to The Corners. There was tall timber all about Sunrise Cove, which was built along the shore of a deep inlet cutting in from the great lake, whose blue waters sparkled as far as one might see towards the south and west.

Uncle Joe assured Carolyn May when she asked him, that from the highest hill in sight one could see only the lake and the forest—clothed hills and valleys.

"There's lumber camps all about. Mebbe they'll interest you. Lots of building going on all the time, too."

He told her, as they went along, of the long trains of cars and of the strings of barges going out of the Cove, all laden with timber and sawed boards, millstuffs, ties and telegraph poles.

They came to the last house in the row of dwellings on this street, on the very edge of the town. Carolyn May saw that attached to the house was a smaller building, facing the roadway, with a wide-open door, through which she glimpsed benches and sawed lumber, while to her nostrils was wafted a most delicious smell of shavings.

"Oh, there's a carpenter shop!" exclaimed Carolyn May. "And is that the carpenter, Uncle Joe?"

A tall old man, lean-faced and closely shaven, with a hawk's-beak nose straddled by a huge pair of silver-bowed spectacles, came out of the shop at that moment, a jackknife in his hand. He saw Mr. Stagg and, turning sharply on his heel, went indoors again.

"Who is he, Uncle Joe?" repeated the little girl. "And, if I asked him, do you s'pose he'd give me some of those nice, long, curly shavings?"

"That's Jed Parlow—and he wouldn't give you any shavings; especially after having seen you with me," said the hardware merchant brusquely.

The pretty lady whose name was Parlow and the queer-looking old carpenter, whose name was likewise Parlow, would neither look at Uncle Joe! Even such a little girl as Carolyn May could see that her uncle and the Parlows were not friendly.

By and by they came in sight of The Corners—a place where another road crossed this one at right angles.

In one corner was a white church with a square tower and green blinds. In another of the four corners was set a big store, with a covered porch all across the front, on which were sheltered certain agricultural tools.

There was no sound of life at The Corners save a rhythmic "clank, clank, clank" from the blacksmith shop on the third corner.

On the fourth corner of the crossroads stood the Stagg homestead—a wide, low-roofed house of ancient appearance, yet in good repair. Neatness was the keynote of all about the place.

"Is this where you live, Uncle Joe?" asked Carolyn May breathlessly. "Oh, what a beautiful big place! It seems awful big for me to live in!"

Mr. Stagg had halted at the gate and now looked down upon Carolyn May with perplexed brow. "Well, we've got to see about that first," he muttered. "There's Aunty Rose—"

Carolyn and Prince make the acquaintance of Aunty Rose, and the latter's attitude is not very reassuring to the lonely little girl. Carolyn's first experiences in her new home are told in the next installment.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

It is difficult to judge a woman by the things she doesn't say.

Sabotage and the Dog

By ISOBEL FIELD
Of The Vigilantes

Has it occurred to anyone that the numerous tirades against dogs that have been appearing in the newspapers all over the country in the shape of "letters from the people" may be of alien enemy origin? Why should the same arguments against man's best friend appear in New York dailies at the same time they are coming out in the newspapers of California, Texas, Oregon and elsewhere?

What attracted my attention was finding the identical letter in my home town paper (Morning Press, Santa Barbara, Cal.) that I had read in the New York Globe. It was signed by different initials but the wording and arguments were the same. "Dogs eat sheep. We need mutton. Therefore, all dogs should be exterminated."

All over the West last summer there were unusually destructive forest fires; crops were destroyed, cattle poisoned, and a mysterious horse disease appeared in many localities. Though the evidence has not been made public, it is common knowledge that these depredations were the work of enemy aliens. The work was done with a system that suggested German efficiency, and was no doubt paid for by German money. That being so, the elimination of watch dogs would be of immense importance, and the only conclusion is that the whole propaganda is the work of our enemies. They would influence us to kill our own dogs for the convenience of German agents, who, without these guardians, would have a freer hand in sabotage.

No Trouble in Scotland.

The argument that dogs cannot be kept in a sheep-growing country is refuted by Scotland, where there are more dogs to the square mile than any country in the world. One cannot "draw near" a Scottish home without hearing "the watchdog's honest bark." In many families each member has his own dog and no child's life is considered livable without one. But the best evidence of all is the shepherd himself, who would be lost without the help and companionship of his dogs.

Be on Watch for Enemies.

Scotland is a great sheep-growing country, yet it loves the dog; gives him his due in life and reveres him in death. At the castle in Edinburgh there is a little plot of ground where the dogs of the Scottish soldiers are buried; it is a charming spot, and on many little tombstones there are tender tributes to departed friends. In front of St. Giles cathedral in the same noble city there is a monument with a little Skye terrier, and upon it, carved in stone, an inscription to "Robbie," who refused to leave the church-yard where his master was buried and died upon his grave.

We want more dogs in America—not fewer. They would be of great service guarding ammunition plants; in helping soldiers on guard at aqueducts and bridges in ferreting out suspicious characters, the forest rangers all over the West would find them invaluable in densely wooded country. Farmers, shepherds, cattlemen and ranchers need them; and the sneaking incendiaries, poisoners and devastators would find their work much harder if there were more watchdogs on guard.

We must not part with our dogs. One has only to read what dogs have done and are doing in this war to realize the extent to which they can be trained. It is said that the Red Cross dogs can detect life in a wounded soldier lying out in No Man's Land when the doctors themselves are in doubt. They carry messages through shot and shell; they bring up food and water to the first line trenches, and many a brave man owes his life to the intelligence and fidelity of a dog.

In future when we read any of these "letters from the people" advocating the destruction of the dogs—it would be well to find out the names and addresses of the writers and send them to the secret service department to be investigated. We have many scores to settle against the Germans, and not the least of them is their insidious, treacherous propaganda against the best friend God has given to man.

Precedence

By RALPH HENRY BARBOUR
of The Vigilantes

It was quite the grandest affair held in Berlin since the signing of the treaty of peace that had brought the great war to an end, and everybody that was anybody was there. Invitations, indeed, had been almost frantically sought for a month, for it had early become known that the host, his excellency Grossmorden Schmidt, had obtained, at an enormous expense, a quantity of genuine blutwurst, which was to form the piece de resistance of the magnificent banquet of real food that was to crown the occasion. After years of substitutes the prospect of once again tasting viands guiltless of sawdust, acorns, clay, bone dust and the unsatisfying, if clever, triumphs of synthetic chemistry, had thrown Berlin's new aristocracy into a state of joyous excitement scarcely approached in fervor since the now-long-since-and-to-be-remembered-always sinking of the Lusitania. So great was the press about the entrance of Herr Schmidt's magnificent residence that fully an hour before the time specified in the much-sought invitations it became necessary to request extra policewomen to restore order and to, sometimes forcibly, dispossess the fortunate guests of the baskets they had brought with them.

Saves the Blutwurst.

An attempt to break into the kitchen and make away with the precious blutwurst was foiled early in the evening by Herrin Schmidt herself, whose cries of alarm brought prompt assistance from Herr Muhlstein, his excellency's secretary, and a number of the servants. Several captures were effected, but as the marauders proved to be well-known members of society no arrests were made. The ball with which the gayeties opened was a great success, the grand march being led by Herrin Grossmorden Schmidt and Privy Councillor von Verletzung. All went well, indeed, until it came time to throw open the doors of the hall in which the banquet, closely guarded by a force of policewomen disguised as guests, was spread. Thereupon a most embarrassing question arose. Following the host and hostess, in what order should the members of the new aristocracy be admitted? Herr Muhlstein, in despair, sought his patron.

"I had it all so completely arranged," he explained. "Herr Sinnlich and his lady first, followed by Herr Windig and—"

"Sinnlich!" expostulated the host. "But he is a mere upstart—a nobody! What claim has he to precedence?"

"You forget that it was Herr Sinnlich who personally poisoned the wells in the enemy country during our glorious retreat in the third year of the war, excellency. Official reports credit him with nearly seven hundred deaths. To be sure—"

"Gott, what is that, I ask you? A mere poisoner! Was it not Oberste Fleischig who himself heroically put to the sword in one day forty-eight Belgian women and nearly twice as many children? Bah! You are a fool!"

"But, excellency," faltered the unhappy secretary, "in point of numbers—"

Numbers Matter Little.

"Numbers are not all. If they were, have we not with us the world-famous hero who sank the Lusitania? Himmel! Numbers! What is? And this Windig you talk of! Another nonentity, I tell you! Why, if you had your way you would give precedence to every poisoner and ravisher here. Use, I beg of you, Herr Muhlstein, your brain! To all who gloriously aided the fatherland to maintain her reputation for cruelty and beastliness much honor is due, but we must use discretion, my good fellow. The more so as the new German aristocracy is still in a chaotic and formative stage. Mistakes made tonight might be difficult to later correct. We must be careful. Precedence must be awarded to one of truly great and unquestionable merit, and for that reason it is that I speak of Oberste Fleischig who—"

But at that instant the question was conclusively decided by the advent of a tardy guest.

"Admiral von Schmutzig!" announced the head footman impressively. With a grunt of delight the host hurried forward with outstretched hands to welcome the distinguished guest, leaving Herr Muhlstein to sigh with a vast relief. For now the problem of precedence was providentially solved. What, indeed, were mere murderers of women and mutilators of babies, poisoners and violators, in the august presence of one who had sunk three hospital ships?

After that the affair went merry as a wedding bell and a pleasant time was had by all.

SPEED UP

By SARA EARL,
of the Vigilantes.

It's all very well to dally
  When the world has a leisure hour,
But the man who can speed
When his country has need
  Is the man with the balance of power.
The laws of our land are many,
  Quick action they often restrain,
But the loss of one day
Means some one must pay,
  While our dear ones are dying in vain—
  BRAVE MARTYRS OF FATAL DELAY.

Then speed up your action, wise rulers,
  From bandage to ultimate cost,
For the man with a will
Who can speed up a bill
  Is the man who is doing the most.
If some one has offered assistance
  No matter if poem or gun,
Don't leave it to fate
Nor stop to debate,
  But Speed Up! and extinguish the Hun—
  BEFORE IT'S FOREVER TOO LATE.

Will Not Fall Again.

"We shall all return to Eden," says a western minister. Yes, and if we may add the observation, we men will know a lot more about snakes and things. You don't get us to fall for those things again, not if Eve is the most persuasive creature on earth.—Buffalo News.

Wait Too Long to Shape Course.

Most men make the voyage of life as if they carried sealed orders which they were not to open till they were fairly in mid-ocean.—Lowell.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION IS AGAINST ALCOHOL.

The following are excerpts from the inaugural address of Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, president of the American Medical association, at the annual meeting of that body:

"Each member of the medical profession, each county medical society, each state medical society, should take an active part in the propaganda against drink and secure national prohibition not years from now, but now, when it is so badly needed and will accomplish so much good not only for our boys in khaki and in blue but for the nation in arms.

"There can be no doubt of the injurious effects of alcoholic drinks on both the physical and mental well-being of our population. There can be no doubt that the greatest single factor we can control in the interests of the public health of the nation would be the elimination of alcoholic drink.

"I want to plead for the united action of the organized medical profession of this country to secure protection by law against the injury that drink is doing to our people, not as a political measure, but as the most important health measure that could be secured. In this crisis, when we and our allies are fighting not only for ourselves but also for humanity and civilization, we must organize the entire nation in the most efficient way possible, and this cannot be done without eliminating drink."

The address of Doctor Bevan was so enthusiastically applauded as to leave no doubt of the approval of the three or four thousands of physicians and their friends in the audience.

THINK IT OVER.

The story is told of an Austrian school teacher who, being unable under the laws of the land to give special antialcoholic instruction, injected into his pupils' arithmetic lessons truths relating to the drink evil. One day he gave to them for solution the following problem: "A father spends thirty kreutzer a day for intoxicants. How much does that amount to in so many months, years, etc. In the course of how long a time could he, with his money, make himself independent?" It was eight days, the teacher said, before the answers were handed to him. The effect on the children was so pronounced that they could hardly be restrained from throwing stones into the saloon opposite the schoolhouse. Yet the teacher had not spoken one word against alcohol.

After the war is over there will be imperative need for many reconstruction hospitals, homes for disabled soldiers and schools for vocational training of the maimed and crippled. Let patriots ponder carefully how many of these institutions could be maintained and equipped for the amount—$2,000,000,000—estimated to be spent each year for strong drink.

WHAT TWO NOTED WAR LEADERS THINK.

Banish the entire liquor industry from the United States; close every saloon, every brewery; suppress drinking by severe punishment to the drinker, and if necessary, death to the seller, or maker, or both, as traitors, and the nation will suddenly find itself amazed at its efficiency, and startled at the increase in its labor supply. I shall not go slow on prohibition, for I know what is the greatest foe to my men, greater even than the bullets of the enemy.—General Pershing.

Drink during the war has used up as much tonnage as the Germans have sunk with all their submarines. Drink during the war has killed more men than have been killed by the German submarines. Drink during the war has destroyed more food than all the German submarines put together.—Lloyd George.

WARNING TO NURSING MOTHERS.

I have never seen a case in which beer had been used regularly for any considerable period of time where it did not result in more or less indigestion and an early failure in the secretion of milk.—Dr. N. S. Davis, Chicago.

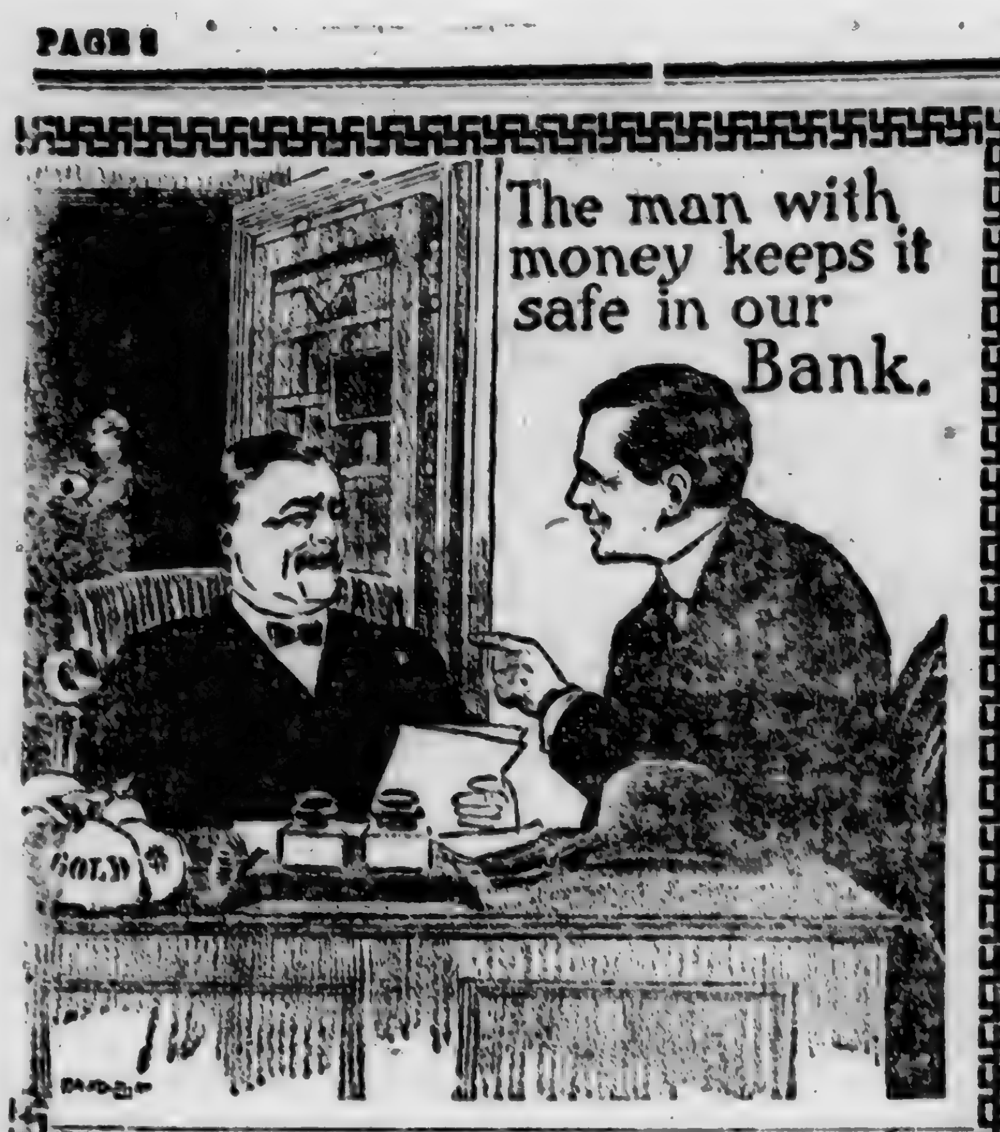
Infants, nursed by mothers who drink much beer, are more likely to die of convulsions and diarrhea while cutting their teeth than are the children of total abstinence mothers. . . . Bear in mind that when you take wine, beer or brandy, you are distilling that wine, beer or brandy into your child's body. Probably nothing could be worse than to have the very fabric of the child's tissues laid down from alcoholized blood.—Dr. Edmunds of the Lying-in Hospital, London, England.

PLENTY OF JOBS FOR FORMER BREWERY WORKERS.

"Not a job has been lost to a workingman through the shutting down of our five breweries," says H. M. Christie, president Omaha real estate board. "Three are being operated as soft drink manufacturing plants, one with an ice plant annex, and these three are employing more men than they did making beer. Another has been converted into a 2,500-barrel a day flour mill, which the manager informs me is employing many more men than had been employed there when a brewery.

OCTOBER

0539



The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

2. An account here is a great business convenience.
   —In making payments.
   —In collecting drafts and checks.
   —In sending remittances.
3. We loan money on good security to promote business, and we like to favor those who consistently build accounts with us.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

The Gossips Say-

Owen, son of Romeo Headley, is safely oversea.

Sam Keesler has moved into the Koch house, in the west part of town.

Webster Stout and wife, of Hamilton, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Abner Copp and wife.

Sidney Brunson and Mrs. Tom Brunson and children were Friday dinner guests of C. C. Bassett and wife.

Martin Engle wishes to announce that he is no slacker: he has this fall cut 600 shocks of corn and cut 104 shocks.

Mrs. Anna Baker returned home recently from a few months' visit with her daughter, Mrs. John Draggoo, and family, of Beulah, Mich.

Among those from this place who attended the Angola fair were William Randall and wife, Mrs. Sherman Wolff, William Randall and J. L. Rhodenbaugh.

Mrs. C. C. Bassett has received a card from her brother, Tom Brunson, informing her that he is at West Point, Ky., with Battery A, 69th field artillery.

Mrs. J. F. Walker, of Moline, Ill, who had been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. C. Hull, and other relatives here, started homeward Thursday morning. She will visit at Mishawaka on the way.

On Friday, M. D. Engle and Roy Wade and family expect to go to Mount Vernon, Ohio, traveling via the automobile route. They will visit there over Sunday, and come home Monday.

Merritt Milliman passed the examination and has been enrolled in the students army training corps at Wittenberg college. Arden Morr, who went at the same time, failed to pass the physical examination.

Mrs. Ella Patterson and family on Thursday entertained the following guests at dinner: Gustin Flint and wife, of Henrysville, Tenn.; Mrs. Arvilla Derck, of Montpelier; Mrs. Rebecca Henley, of Hicksville.

J. P. Buckingham was home from Fort Wayne on Monday and Tuesday.

A. D. Perry is taking a vacation. His substitute, Ray Herrick, is carrying mail for him.

Mrs. Alice Zimmerman, of Auburn, is visiting at the home of M. T. Bishop for a few days.

A new Jewel furnace is being installed at the M. P. church by the local agent, Frank Kinsey.

H. C. Willis, of the Waterloo Press, was in town on Tuesday and paid the News a pleasant visit.

Mrs. A. F. King, of Peru, was the guest of Mrs. Rolland Bearss from Wednesday until Saturday.

Will Moudy and wife, of Churubusco, on Monday were entertained at supper at the Charles Koch home.

Pass the word along that the Red Cross is still in urgent need of nurses-graduate nurses and student nurses.

James Harter now has the mail route between St. Joe and the Wabash station. He took charge on Tuesday.

Failing to stir up the sugar in the bottom of the cup is just like sending a loving post card to the Kaiser.

Martin Tustison is staying with his sister, Mrs. Flora Simanton, for a few months. He has not deserted St. Joe, expecting to return here.

Mrs. Jennie Sechler left Friday morning for Richmond to attend the state W. C. T. U. convention at that place, Oct. 4-8. She represents St. Joe union.

Daniel Oberholtzer and wife on Sunday entertained Ben Soule and wife, Kenneth Miller and wife, Moses Oberholtzer and three children and Willard Maxwell.

Howard Gee, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, S. D. Gee and wife. Mrs. Gee and little daughter, who had been visiting here for a week, returned home with him.

The registration of voters ended Monday. The total for the county is 7,097, the largest registration in her history. The large number of registrants is due to the efforts of the county committees and the candidates, who made a house-to-house canvass.

B. V. Widney and wife left Monday for their new home at Albion.

Word has been received here of the safe arrival of Lester Coburn overseas.

Frank Kincaid, of Detroit, spent Wednesday with his mother, Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

Miss Norma Brown, of Butler, visited over Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Elma Brown.

Harry Randall and Allen Coburn left Saturday morning for Lima, Ohio, where they will do government work.

William Monroe, wife and children, of Hicksville, spent Saturday night and Sunday with W. E. Henley and wife.

Mrs. Rebecca Henley, of Hicksville, visited her son, W. E. Henley, and family from Wednesday until Saturday.

Lester Curie spent from Thursday until Monday with his parents, Will Curie and wife, leaving here for Tulsa, Okl.

Ed. Miser, the Standard Oil man has purchased a new International truck for use in his business. He can now carry the full capacity of his gasoline tank, 500 gallons.

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. Dennis Poorman, Friday night. The Poorman family formerly resided at Concord moving several years ago to Waterloo.

Leon Kees Is All O. K.

Wrong reports concerning Leon Kees have been circulated at St. Joe for some time past. One had him in an army hospital on this side and another in a hospital in France, but both agreed that he had been so badly gassed as to be unfit for further military service. The News is pleased to be able to state, on the authority of Harry Kees, the boy's father, that both stories, with one minor exception, are untrue. In May, Leon was slightly gassed, just enough to lay him up for a few weeks; and from this grew the story of his being completely knocked out.

Mr. Kees says that his son took part in the American offensive in July. One of Leon's lieutenants, who left France on Sept. 16, reports that at that time he was well and hearty.

No Sunday Funerals.

We are asking people to refrain from holding funerals on Sundays unless absolutely necessary. We have taken this up with the undertakers of the county also and asked them to discourage Sunday funerals. By so doing a great amount of gasoline can be saved. Doctors Undertakers, and Florists are asked to card their machines when using them on Sunday.

I have been instructed by the State Council of Defense and the Federal Fuel Administration to warn people not to interfere with those that have a right upon the road on Sunday. There are times when necessity calls these out, and on the other hand we appreciate very much the loyalty that the people have shown by its almost 100 per cent observance of the governments request to make Sunday gasolineless.

J. Y. W. McClellan, Fuel Adm.

We Are Always Ready

to serve you with good printing. No matter what the nature of the job may be we are ready to do it at a price that will be

Satisfactory

FIGURES SHOW WHAT YOUR DOLLARS WILL DO

What a Liberty Bond Will Buy for My Boy "Over There."

Suppose you have a son with the American expeditionary forces, and suppose you are a steady buyer of Liberty Loan bonds. Did you ever ask yourself what 'Your boy' gets out of it, when you lay down a new $100 bill and say: "I want another hundred-dollar Liberty Bond?" Here are some facts and figures officially made up by the war department:

Your one hundred dollar Liberty Bond will buy your boy one outfit of clothing and sleeping gear, amounting to $91.63. The change is $8.37 and that is just enough to give him his "eats" for 10¼ days.

This war is now in its fifth year—has been running on about 1,500 days. The nineteen and a half days' board left for the boy out of your hundred-dollar Liberty Bond wouldn't amount to much if the fighting should go on a few years more! That $91.63 outfit would be pretty well used up at the end of a few months of campaigning.

Your hundred dollar war bond shows the best possible disposition on your part, but unless you buy more than one, somebody else has to put up money to keep your boy's hungry stomach lined with bacon and fighting food.

That illustrates in a simple way the urgent necessity for liberality in buying Fourth Liberty Bonds. What you gave the government on the first, second and third loans has been used up long ago. Your boy is "over there" risking his life and all that he has every minute of the day. Surely it is "up to you" to do absolutely all you can to keep that boy fed and clothed and cared for.

But one point was overlooked in figuring the proceeds of the hundred dollar war bond. It bought the boy an outfit of clothes and 19 days' board, but it didn't buy him a gun nor a trench knife—not even a revolver, or a hand grenade. Worse than all that, the hundred dollars didn't cover knife, fork or spoon; nor did it give the boy a pick and shovel for intrenching when the Boche fire gets too hot. Somebody else had to buy another bond to supply those things and give your boy the ammunition he needs for offense and defense.

Look at a few more figures:

When your boy goes over the top there must be a nice barrage laid down to protect him. Each 75-millimeter shell that is fired costs $18. Each 6-inch shell costs $20. The 12-inch high explosive shell loaded costs about $270. The 16-inch shell loaded with TNT costs about $1,000, and the smokeless powder to fire it costs $325 more. The gun it is fired from sets the government back $175,000. That is not all; the wear and tear on big caliber guns is terrible, so that the life of the tube is very brief.

All these things point clearly to the mistake people make when they say: "Oh, I have bought several war bonds. I think I have done my share."

That is miles from the truth. You have not done your share as long as there is a dollar of your capital or income that you don't absolutely have to have to keep life in your body. All the rest ought to be spent for Fourth Liberty Bonds.

PLEA BY GOLD STAR MOTHER

Tells Chicago Women Why Everyone Should Buy Bonds to Back Boys.

By MRS. JAMES C. ELY of Chicago Gold Star Mother.

It would be hard for me to express more earnestly an appeal for the fourth Liberty loan than the message sent to us from our son shortly before his death when he said: "It is an investment—not a loss—when a man dies for his country."

Our boys are dying for their country—can there be too great an investment for those of us who have only money to give?

WHAT YOUR LIBERTY BOND BUYS

What is to be done with all the money that is being asked for on the Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan? Pay for battleships, submarines, and a thousand other things to be used by our boys on the land, on the sea, in the air and under the sea. To complete a single battleship now under construction requires $23,075,000, and a battle cruiser takes $24,900,000. A scout cruiser takes $7,220,000, and a destroyer $1,590,000. A coast submarine costs $850,000 and a seagoing submarine $1,430,000.

For artillery, automatic rifles, and small arms, and for ammunition for them, we have spent $3,700,000,000. Every Liberty Loan subscriber helps to arm our soldiers.

More than 120,000,000 has been spent just for staple supplies for our army, such as flour, bacon, rice, etc. Every subscriber to the Liberty Loan helps feed our soldiers.

Buy, the day the sale begins;
Early buyers score the "wins."
Decide Today:
"Germany?" or "U. S. A!"
Buy your Bonds
First thing Today.

Buy Bonds today—
The thing's to do:
Go the Limit—
Have it through!

Every Bond you buy Today
Cheers a Yank upon his way.

HERE'S THE COST OF JUST A LITTLE BATTLE

Liberty Bonds Furnish Munitions and Supplies That Win Battles and Save Lives of Fighters.

French naval statisticians have carefully figured out the cost of a modest little naval battle. The sea fight at Jutland in 1916, when the Germans thought to prove the inferiority of the British war fleet, supplies plenty of material for such computations.

The battle in the Skagerak lasted 45 minutes.

It cost England and Germany combined $300,000,000.

Each minute of fighting cost $6,666,666.

We have some new war financing in the fourth Liberty loan. The United States wants to borrow enough money to carry on the fighting. All our preparations up to the present time have been cared for by the first, second and third loans. The fourth is the "Fighting loan."

The fourth loan may seem large when stated in terms of billions. The amount is not large when considered in terms of fighting. Just to illustrate: At the rate of expenditure shown during the naval battle of Jutland the United States wants to borrow on the fourth Liberty bonds enough to support only 16 hours and 40 minutes of fighting.

The question is, will you be one of 25,000,000 loyal Americans to "put up" your ratable share of fighting the Germans for 16 hours and 40 minutes? Will you lend the government your trivial pro rata?

It is a small thing to ask. Let's look into the arithmetic of it.

Your personal share of the national wealth	$2,140.00
Your personal share in the national annual income	740.00

That is to say, you get a "dividend" of about 35 per cent on your "pro rata" of the national wealth.

You are asked to be one of 25,000,000 loyal Americans who will consent to lend about a third of that "dividend" to help fight the German for 16 hours and 40 minutes.

The United States isn't "passing the hat." The United States isn't asking anybody for a "hand-out." No more is the government asking you to "stand for a touch." Just the reverse of that.

The government asks to borrow one-third of the "velvet" that comes in to your bank account annually as your "dividend" from the business operations that are possible only because the United States protects your life and property on land and sea. And in evidence of its borrowing the government merely takes the kind of money you have in your pocket and gives you another kind of money as security for the loan.

To make it clearer: The United States issues "promises-to-pay-on-demand"—without interest—and that's the kind of money you have in your purse. When you lend that kind of money to the government you receive as security Liberty bonds, which are United States "promises-to-pay-at-maturity"—with interest. In other words, you only swap one kind of money for another kind that is better —$4.25 better on each $100.

However, the upshot of the matter is this:

We are fighting a war—and it is a real, bona fide war, without any "stage business" or imitation. It is known (on the authority of President Wilson) that the war is to a finish—no "draw," "stalemate" or "lie down." It may run into a cost as heavy as $6,666,000 a minute if it gets to the scale of the little battle of Jutland. The United States must be ready for anything and everything.

Therefore you and everybody else must lend the government every free dollar that has been saved or can be saved as we go along. We must take all the fourth Liberty bonds that we possibly can pay for.

CAPT. KIDD WAS A HOARDER

Hoarding Money and Hiding It Does Nobody Any Good—Buy Bonds.

It takes very little ingenuity to "cache" money where the goverument can't find it. Captain Kidd buried a lot of his pirate "swag" somewhere along the Spanish main, where no one ever did find it—where it never did a living soul any good—never built a hospital—never alleviated human suffering—never helped along the works of civilization and humanity—just dead money: absolutely dead, like the soul of the pirate who hid it.

The brave thing now isn't hiding money.

The only thing that counts in this terrible time is service.

Service with the colors, or service backing up the fighters who have offered their lives for the righteous cause.

Hiding and hoarding money is not service. It is the opposite; it is taking money out of service. It is a species of desertion.

A deserter in the army stands up before a firing squad and pays the proper penalty.

A hoarder is a money deserter who is entitled to the same penalty.

Sometimes he is merely thoughtless.

Sometimes he is just selfish.

But anyway he is doing a great wrong to the United States and a deadly wrong to the world and civilization.

The world does not need Captain Kidds. Nor does America.

But America does need 20,000,000 more Liberty Bond buyers.

If you have any money stowed away out of sight bring it out and have it changed into the most useful of all forms—fourth Liberty bonds.

AMERICANS FROM ALL LANDS HELP LOAN

Folk Songs, Dances and Sports in Gala Effort of Foreign Division of Four Liberty Loan.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" sung in English by a chorus of more than thirty persons, none of whom are of the same nationality and most of whom are foreign-born; the "roll call of nations," directed by the only simon-pure American, an Indian; nationalistic demonstrations of the history, sports, art and industries of the peoples of every corner of the world; unique displays of the quaint customs and habits of many races differing widely in almost every way; these and many other striking features have been taken unto themselves by the woman's council of the fourth Liberty loan organization as part of their share in raising the billions for the fourth loan. To handle this work committees of foreign-speaking women have been formed in every state, county and other subdivision. The loan opens September 28 and continues until October 19.

According to Felix J. Streyckmans, federal reserve director of the foreign language division, and Mrs. Constantine Howard, executive secretary of the woman's council, some idea of the stupendous task which the women of the foreign division have set out for themselves can be gained from the fact that virtually all that the members of their choruses and other participants in the pageants which are to be given have in common is that they are all Americans now.

In placing before the public the "roll call of nations," every nationality in each district, state, county, city and town will be asked to designate one person to represent that nation in the dress of his or her native land. They will also be asked to sing their native airs or relate some of the folk lore of the country which they or their ancestors left. Native dances, sports and games will also be on the program.

The food question being one of the most important before the world today, the women of the foreign-language division believe that there is much to be learned from a conservation and economic standpoint from the foods used and methods of preparation employed in the kitchens of the foreign-speaking woman. To this end every nationality represented in a community is to prepare a food exhibit to show English-speaking Americans how they can save to help win the war.

That the all-American choruses, roll calls, pageants and exhibits shall have proper artistic setting, the woman's council has secured the services of Pierre Nuyttens, celebrated Chicago artist, as consulting director of the council. Nuyttens will also be chairman of the council's committee on production of spectacles.

"There is no greater force toward the final welding of the American soul than by bringing together for patriotic purposes the foreign-speaking persons of the country," says Mrs. Howard.

WHAT LIBERTY BONDS DO

How They Keep Our "Watch Dogs" of the Navy on Guard.

The following list shows to the purchasers of Liberty bonds the cost of various kinds of supplies and equipment in the navy department. This list has been supplied by Paymaster General McGowan.

Approximate Cost of Vessels Completed Prior to June 30, 1917.

Battleship	$13,000,000
Armored cruiser	5,500,000
Fuel ship	1,000,000
Destroyer	1,000,000
Submarine	600,000

Estimated Cost of Various Types of Vessels Now Under Construction.

Battleships	$23,075,000
Battle cruiser	24,900,000
Scout cruiser	7,220,000
Destroyer	1,590,000
Coast submarine	850,000
Sea-going submarine	1,430,000

Cost of Various Guns, Based Upon Late Contracts.

	Gun	Mount	Gun and Mount Complete
3-in. (23 caliber)	......	......	$ 4,000
3-in	$6,000	$ 9,000	15,000
4-in.	10,000	12,000	22,000
5-in.	15,000	18,000	33,000
6-in	......	......	40,000
3-in. Howitzer	10,000	12,000	22,000
14-in. (50 caliber)	......	......	168,000
16-in. (45 caliber)	......	......	215,000
16-in. (50 caliber)	......	......	258,000
Airplane machine gun	......	......	600

Cost of Various Kinds of Ammunition.

1 pounder cartridge	$0.73
6 pounder cartridge	1.70
3-in. shell	3.00
4-in. shell	8.00
5-in. shell	13.00
6-in. shell	18.00

14-in. shell from $30 for common shell to $580 for armor piercing.

Torpedoes, $5,000 to $10,000 each

Issuing Price of Various Items of Clothing.

Rubber boots, pair	$2.45
Blankets, each	6.50
Jerseys, each	2.75
Jumpers (blue) each	4.00
Jumpers (dungaree) each	1.00
Jumpers (dress) each	1.70
Jumpers (undress) each	1.00
Leggins, pair	1.00
Neckerchiefs, each	1.20
Overshirts, each	5.50
Overcoats, each	16.00
Shirts (blue P. O.), each	4.50
Shoes (high), pair	5.00
Shoes (low), pair	4.00
Trousers (blue) pair	6.00
Trousers (dungaree), pair	1.10
Trousers (white), pair	1.10
Undershirts (heavy), each	1.50
Undershirts (cotton), each	.40

The cost of the navy per man per day during the first six months of the fiscal year 1918 varied from $0.49 on the larger types of vessels to $0.52 on the smaller types.

OCTOBER
L 90
0540

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17 1918 NO. 42

Bert Woodcox Died Sun.

At His Home in Columbus, Ohio, After a Weeks Illness With the Spanish Influenza—Leaves a Wife and Three Children—Burial Took Place On Tuesday at 1 O'clock

Bert Woodcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Woodcox, was born in St. Joe, where his parents still reside, on April 20, 1885; and passed away at his home at Columbus, Ohio, on Oct. 13, 1918, aged 33 years, 5 months and 23 days. The end came early Sunday morning and was due to influenza. He was sick not quite four days.

Deceased's entire life up to 1913 was passed in St. Joe; and here he so lived as to raise up for himself a host of friends. Everyone has a good word for him; everyone regrets his early death. He graduated from the local high school; and, under the ministry of Rev. Dunlap, united with the Lutheran church

In 1913, with his family, Mr. Woodcox moved to Lima, Ohio; and several years later, moved to Columbus, which city remained his home until the time of his death.

Deceased is survived by his wife (nee Miss Maude Morris), three children (Lucile, Keith and Muriel), his parents and eight brothers and two sisters. The last are: Clyde, of Columbus; Ward and Iona, of St. Joe; Clarence, of Adrian, Mich.; Arthur, of Auburn; Charley, of Woodburn; Edward, of Logansport; Elgin, of Nebraska; Miss Musa Woodcox, at home; Mrs. Laura Burley, of Brooks, Ind.

In response to word that Bert was seriously ill, his father and Mr. and Mrs. Iona Woodcox left Sunday morning for Columbus; but they arrived there too late to see their dear one alive.

Funeral services were held at Columbus at 1 p/m. Tuesday. Interment was at the same city.

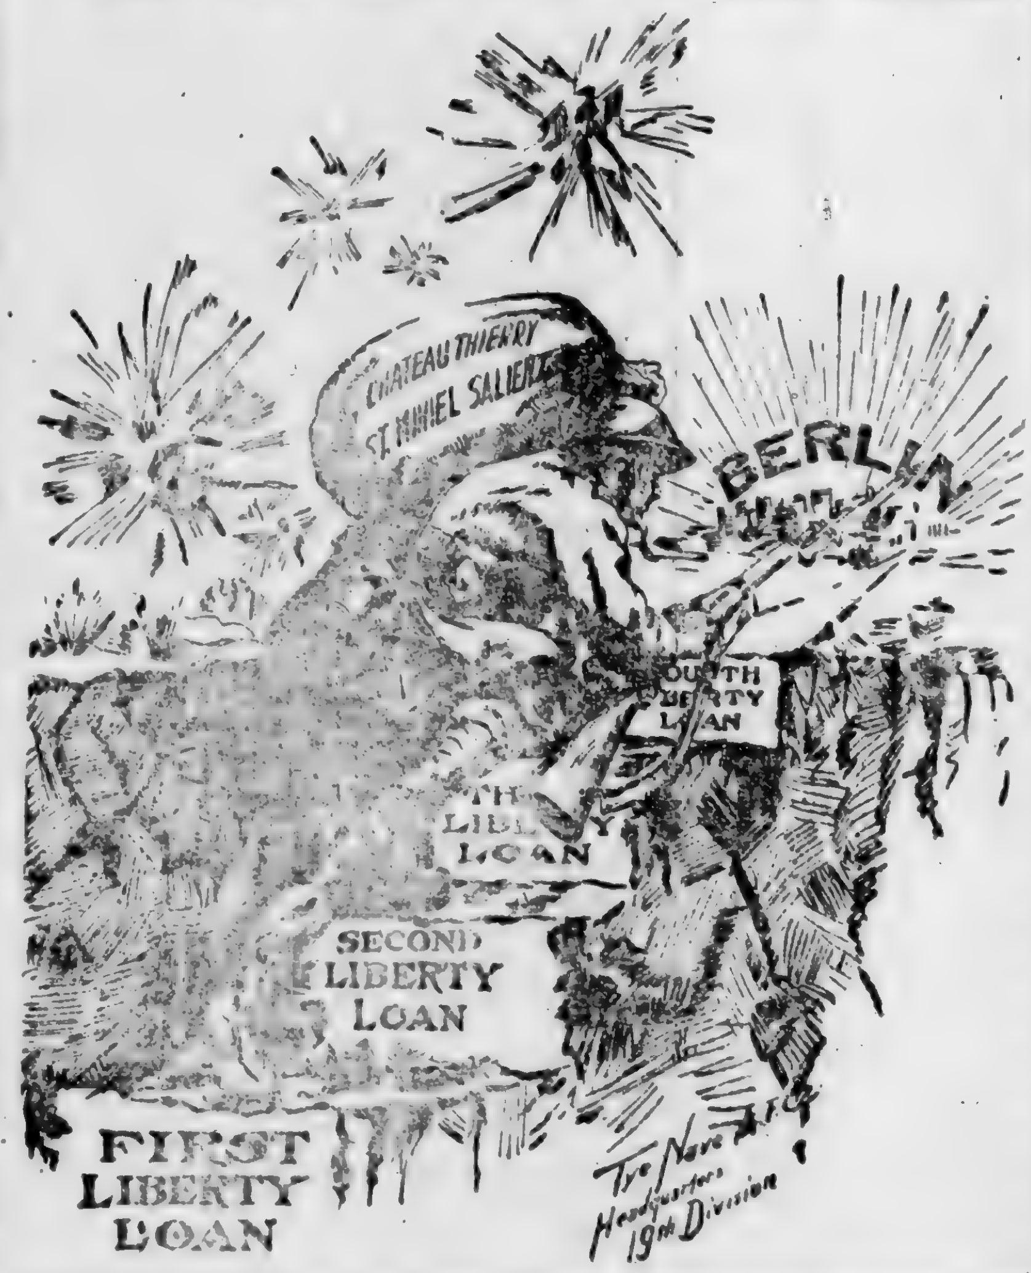
They Visit Wittenberg

H. C. Hathaway and wife motored to Wittenberg college, Springfield, Ohio, to visit their son, Clayton, a member of the army students' training corps, who had influenza. They were accompanied by the young man's grandfather, M. T. Bishop.

They found Clayton convalescing from the disease and able to sit up, and were pleased to learn that the doctors considered him out of danger. They other St. Joe boys—Harvey Hull, Merritt Milliman—also had had the disease, although not in so acute a form, and young Hull the lightest of all. Milliman and Quance were out of all danger, being permitted to be up and about the hospital.

The party went to Wittenberg on Saturday and returned home Monday. Mr. Bishop came by railway and Mr. Hathaway and wife the way they went.

HELP HIM CARRY ON—BUY MORE BONDS



Seditious Statements Traced Up.

At its meeting last Tuesday night, the County Council of Defense went over reports made to it concerning seditious statements of a few persons during the Liberty Loan Drive. It also received reports of the refusal of certain persons in the county to subscribe to the Liberty Loan. All such persons will be summoned so appear before the County Council of Defense and be given an opportunity to explain their attitude toward their country. A few of the cases are so flagrant that it is expected that the evidence will be submitted to the Federal Government so that prosecutions may be had. Under the new Espoinage Act passed by Congress it is decidedly unsafe for persons to make statements tending to discourage the carrying on of the War or subscribing to Liberty Loans or taking part in any War activities. Many such persons have been prosecuted and given long terms in the Federal prison. Some persons who have been freely expressing themselves by making seditious statements will now have an opportunity to face the Council of Defense and explain if they can why they should not be prosecuted by the Federal Government for disloyalty.

J. Y. W. McClellan, Ch'm.

State Meeting.

Mrs. Jacob Sechler reports a fine state W. C. T. U. convention as far as it went; but it closed abruptly Monday forenoon on account of the state quarantine. There were 504 voting delegates present. The old officers were re-elected, as follows: President, Mrs. Culla J. Veyhinger; vice president, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley; corresponding secretary, Miss Mary E. Woodard; recording secretary, Mrs. Rose Pearce; treasurer, Mrs. Clara M. Sears.

Pointers For Seed Corn

The following pointers for the selection and storing of seed corn have been sent out by County Agent Arehart:

FOR SELECTING

1. The earliest maturing ears from standing stalk
2. From medium sized stalks, with drooping short shanked ears.
3. Sufficient good ears for two two years' seed. Our surplus is gone and next year's crop may fail. One bushel should plant 6 acres. One good ear should produce 5 bushels of corn.
4. Ears not more than 3½ to 4 feet from ground.
5. Ears approximately 8½ inches long. (Indiana Corn Growers' standard for extreme northern part of state. Longer ears are much less likely to mature.)
6. Corn suited to your soil and DeKalb county's climate.
7. Corn that will not produce a crop of defeat.

FOR STORING

1. Where there is a good air circulation.
2. Where it is safe from freezing until thoroughly dried.
3. Where there is plenty of empty space, or the air can not be kept dry.
4. So that natural drying can be used, if possible. Artificial overheating is risky.
5. So that ears are not piled upon one another.

A perfect ear of corn should be cylindrical, or nearly so, in shape The circumference of the ear should be about three-fourths its length. The rows should be straight and not fewer than sixteen nor more than twenty-two in number.

The kernels should be well formed (about five-sixteenths of an inch wide by five-eighths of an inch long), uniform in size and shape and six to the inch in the row.

Do Your Bit With a Pit

Uncle Sam is in need of peach stones, prune pits, plum pits, apricot pits, olive pits, cherry pits, date seeds and brazil, hickory, walnut and butternut shells. These will be used in the making of gas masks for our soldiers, are indispensable for that purpose. Save them and bring them to the News office, and thereby help save the lives of our boys over there. Two bushels contributed the first day, Wednesday.

Here's a chance for the man "that's full of prunes" to distinguish himself.

Do your bit with a pit.

* * *

A new supply of Writing Tablets and Envelopes at News Office.

Influenza Claims Another

Fred Steward, Prominent Young Man of Spencerville Dies At Camp Taylor, Louisville, Kentucky, After Weeks Illness—Private Funeral Held Tuesday at 4 O'clock, From the Home of His Mother, Mrs. Cora Steward—A Wife and Infant Son Survive Him.

Fred Steward, one of the best known, most promising and most highly respected young men of Spencerville, died Friday at Camp Taylor, near Louisville, death being due to influenza. But a few short months ago (June 28), he answered his country's call; and, on Monday, his remains, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Roscoe Walters, of Auburn, who was with him when the end came, were brought back to his sorrowing family—one more of the first fruits of American manhood sacrificed to appease the ambition of the would-be world conqueror. Deceased was 25 years of age, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. L W. Steward, the latter of whom preceded his son in death His entire life was passed in Spencerville and vicinity; and since reaching manhood, he had been associated with his brother in the management of the Steward Lumber & Grain company, and his pleasing manner and sterling integrity had much to do with the success of that institution.

When Mr. Steward entered the army, he was assigned to the mechanical branch of the service and sent to Purdue. Thence he was transferred to Indianapolis, and from there to Camp Taylor. Here he remained until he was stricken by the fatal malady.

The distressing feature of the death of Fred Steward is his leaving a young wife and an infant son The latter was born since his father entered the service. and is robbed forever of the care of a parent he will never know. The bereaved widow was formerly Miss Lenna Wearley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Greeley Wearley. Deceased is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Cora Steward; one brother, W. P. Steward; two sisters, Mrs. Roscoe Walters, of Auburn, and Miss Arminta Steward, at home.

Funeral services were held at the home of deceased at 4 p. m. Tuesday, conducted by his pastor, Rev. Glenn Bryan. Only members of the family were present. Interment was at the White City cemetery, Spencerville.

Forty Registrants to Go

Forty men will be sent from DeKalb county to the training camp at Spartanburg, S. C., on Wednesday, Oct. 23. Those from this vicinity are:

Arthur E. Richmond, Newville.
Darrell W. Carpenter, St. Joe.
Paul J. Martin, St Joe.
Arthur E. Ayres, Newville.

Two young men were assigned to the students' training corps: Walter M. Silberg, of Spencerville, who goes to Huntington college; Fred B. Huet, of Fairfield township, to Benson Technical school, Portland, Ore.

On Tuesday, Lawrence E. Moore, of Newville, was sent to the Interlaken school at Warsaw for motor truck transportation training.

Ed Leighty Buys Eggs

I am again buying eggs at my grocery, for which I will pay 48c per dozen and the rise of the market. Ed Leighty, St. Joe.

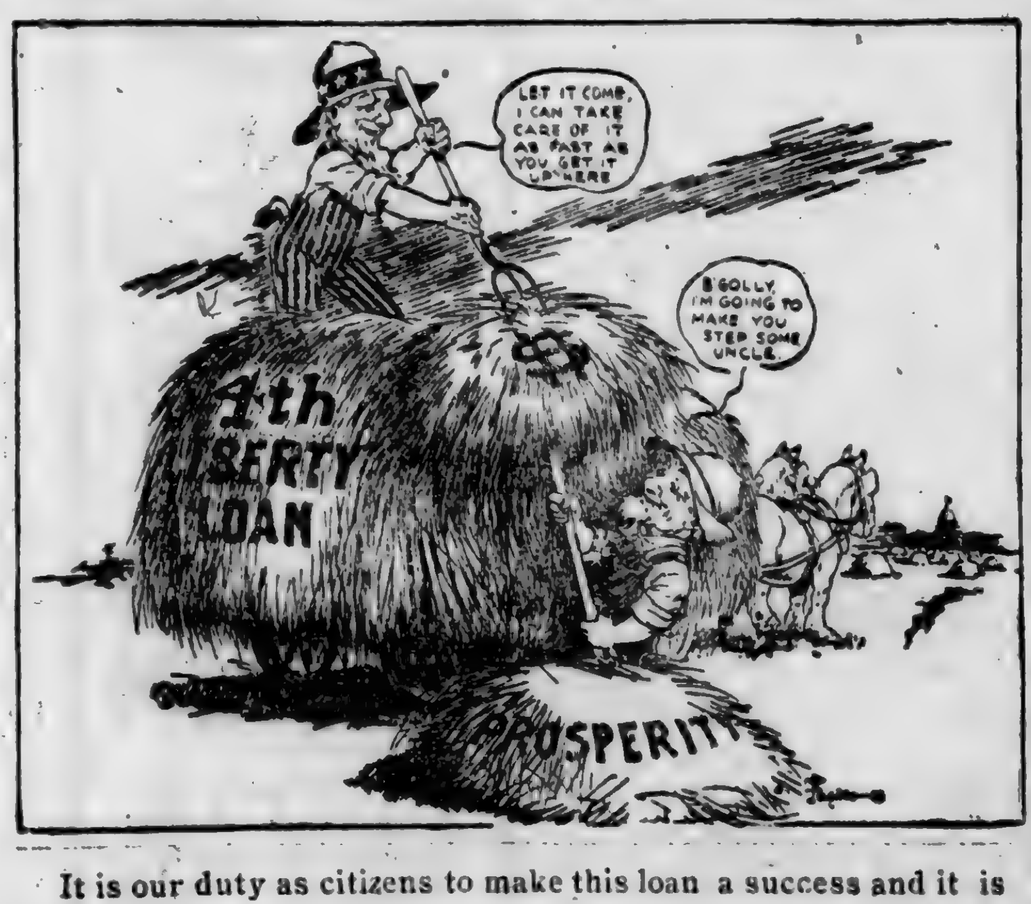
COAL:
Are you prepared for that cold weather that will soon be upon us? Just take a peep into our bins—we can fill your bins with either a Wash Nut, Brazil Block or Ind. Lump.

FLOUR:
That is another of the essentials that we always aim to keep in stock for our customers. Two of the best brands on the market are now on hand: Aristos and the Gold Medal If Eventaully- "WHY NOT NOW."

PIONEER
Hog Feed With Dried Buttermilk. This is practically one of the best feeds on the market. Prepared feed contains the necessary filling to keep the hogs in good conition while feeding.

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.
Spencerville, Indiana

"COME ON! YOU CAN'T SWAMP ME!"



LET IT COME, I CAN TAKE CARE OF IT AS FAST AS YOU GET IT UP HERE
B'GOLLY, I'M GOING TO MAKE YOU STEP SOME UNCLE.
4th LIBERTY LOAN
$
PROSPERITY

It is our duty as citizens to make this loan a success and it is our pleasure to offer you, gratuitously, the facilities of The St. Joe Valley Bank in making subscriptions and to pledge you our very best services in carrying out your instructions.

Yours for "a long pull and a strong pull and a pull all together."

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

For Your
Fresh and Salt Meats Fish and Canned Goods
SEE
W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET
Highest Market Prices paid for Hides and Pelts of All Kinds.

YOUR Life Insurance!
Our Policy Provides for Waiver of Premium--
10 % Income of face amount of Policy each year for total dissability.
DOUBLE INDEMNITY and ANNUAL DIVIDEND
Let me show you the MUTUAL LIFE POLICY.
J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

COAL!
in our bins more on the way. Best Indiana Lump that money will buy. Get yours before the COLD weather sets in.
Best market for all your grains and seeds. Don't forget to take a sack or two of Schumacher home with you, best Hog Food Ever.
Call on us always glad to see you. If we have not got what you want we will try and get it for you. Highest prices paid for all grains at all times.
The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

OCTOBER

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELINE B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

DON'T KILL YOUR CATTLE
BY DRENCHING

Salts and oil are DANGEROUS. Few cattle die of constipation; many of PARALYSIS of the bowels. Give dry on the tongue. Positively prevents and overcomes both. Excellent for loss of appetite.

LAXOTONIC

AT OUR DEALERS or Postpaid 50 Cents.

Send for price list of medicines. Consult DR. DAVID ROBERTS about all animal ailments. Information free. Get a FREE copy of "The Cattle Specialist" with full information on Abortion in Cows. DR. DAVID ROBERTS VET. CO., 100 Grand Ave., Waukesha, Wis.

DEMANDS SKILL AND DARING

"Ground Flying" the Most Dangerous Feat Which Air Fighters Are Called Upon to Perform.

"Ground flying" is perhaps the most exciting of all the aerial tactics in which the British airmen are instructing their American pupils in northern France. It demands a high combination of skill and daring, but it is a game in which the British have during the past year won a marked superiority over the Germans.

The training of "ground flying" pilots is particularly thorough, and includes much necessary practice in leaping hills, trees and telegraph poles, etc., in a manner which promptly leads the uninformed spectator to condemn the airman as a reckless fool.

But failing this practice the pilot would never acquire the skill and confidence necessary for this highly specialized type of work. The machines used are fast and difficult to fly, and operating so close to the ground the pilot knows that he has literally no more margin for indecision or hesitating than he has in actual aerial combat.

TOO WEAK TO FIGHT

The "Come-back" man was really never down-and-out. His weakened condition because of overwork, lack of exercise, improper eating and living demands stimulation to satisfy the cry for a health-giving appetite and the refreshing sleep essential to strength. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules, the National Remedy of Holland will do the work. They are wonderful. Three of these capsules each day will put a man on his feet before he knows it whether his trouble comes from uric acid poisoning, the kidneys, gravel or stone in the bladder, stomach derangement or other ailments that befall the over-zealous American. The best known, most reliable remedy for these troubles is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This remedy has stood the test for more than 200 years since its discovery in the ancient laboratories in Holland. It acts directly and gives relief at once. Don't wait until you are entirely down-and-out, but take them today. Your druggist will gladly refund your money if they do not help you. Accept no substitutes. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on every box, three sizes. They are the pure, original, imported Haarlem Oil Capsules.—Adv.

Railroad Counter Variety.

A particularly dapper but very small officer was walking down a street one day between two fashionably attired ladies, and happened to pass by two street arabs, who looked at them with a broad grin, and, much to the discomfort of the officer, one of them said:

"Ain't much 'am in that sandwich, is there, Bill?"

Cuticura Beauty Doctor

For cleansing and beautifying the skin, hands and hair, Cuticura Soap and Ointment afford the most effective preparations. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Brooklyn (N. Y.) surgeon reports discovery of a solution curing most cases of gas gangrene.

Your Eyes Granulated Eyelids, Eyes inflamed by exposure to Sun, Dust and Wind quickly relieved by Murine Eye Remedy. No Smarting, just Eye Comfort. At our Druggists or by mail 60c per Bottle. Book of the Eye free write rine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

ONE YEAR COURSE FOR WEST POINT

MILITARY ACADEMY IS TO BE UTILIZED TO THE FULL LIMIT DURING THE WAR PERIOD.

TEACHING FLYERS "STUNTS"

Aviation Students to Learn the Acrobatics Quickly or Not at All—War Department Compels the Making of Clinical Thermometers.

(From Committee on Public Information.)

Washington.—The acting secretary of war has approved the recommendations of General March, chief of staff, to graduate the two upper classes at the United States Military academy on November 1, and to authorize a one-year course at West Point for the remainder of the war. It is proposed to utilize this valuable and expensive institution, the war department announces, to the limit during the period of the war. The number of cadets graduated each year from West Point is now only about 200. Under the new system it will be possible to graduate 1,000 officers a year.

Vacancies resulting from the graduation of the two upper classes will be filled by the war department, if possible, by the admission on November 1, 1918, of qualified candidates. Appointments will be made in the usual way—through senators and representatives in congress, and other customary channels. The war department desires that candidates to be admitted on November 1 shall be not under eighteen years of age on that date.

As the result of an investigation by the war department, following the failure of the medical department to obtain a supply of clinical thermometers except at what were considered exorbitant prices, the general staff has ordered 18 manufacturers in different parts of the country to furnish about 668,000 of the instruments, which are urgently needed here and abroad.

Under these orders the war department will not only take the entire stock of clinical thermometers now manufactured, but will require the factories to produce in large quantities for 20 weeks. The compulsory order specifies that the entire quantity must be delivered by February 10, 1919.

The price of clinical thermometers has advanced in the past year from 25 cents and 30 cents to 50 cents and 60 cents each. The investigations of the military authorities disclosed a combination between the glass-blowers and the makers of thermometers.

The prices to be paid by the government for the 668,000 thermometers which have been requisitioned will be fixed by the war department board of appraisers.

One undertaking in connection with the registration of more than 18,000,000 men for the draft, September 12, is illustrated by figures by Provost Marshal General Crowder. A statistician in the provost marshal's office has calculated that if all the printed forms distributed since August 7 in connection with the work of registration, classification and mobilization were placed in a pile ten feet square it would tower above the ground to a height of 887 feet, or more than one and a half times the altitude of Washington monument.

Altogether there have been printed and shipped out, since August 7, 224,000,000 forms of all kinds, weighing 4,200,000 pounds, and measuring, in the aggregate, 88,787 cubic feet. A total of 44,000 mail sacks were used to carry this vast quantity of matter. The largest number of sacks shipped in a single day was 1,828. These weighed about 83 tons.

If these forms were placed in one mail train 143 60-foot postal cars would be required and the train would be one and two-thirds miles long. Placed end to end, the forms would extend 68,044 miles—more than twice the distance around the earth.

Many sample cans of tomatoes such as are used in the army have been found by the inspection branch of the subsistence division, quartermaster corps, to be filled only to three-fourths of an inch of the top, although weighing the requisite amount. Instructions have been issued that regardless of weight, the cans must be filled to within three-eighths of an inch of the top. If the cans are not filled to within half an inch of the top there is to be a readjustment of prices and under no circumstances, it is announced, will underfilled cans be sent overseas.

It has been calculated that if this saving of three-eighths of an inch were made in all cans of tomatoes purchased by the army for a year, it would equal 417,000 cases, costing about $1,500,000. The saving of tin-plate used in the can would equal about 7,000,000 square feet.

German prisoners are being used in the construction of homes for Belgian refugees in the village which the American Red Cross is building near Havre, France, for families who were driven from their country by the German invasion. Many such prisoners also have been put to work in the fields in the section surrounding Havre. They have harvested wheat and other crops, thus lessening the burden on the women and very old men who have been operating the farms while the young and vigorous males are fighting at the front.

Naval and military flyers who loop the loop at altitudes of 4,000 feet, who do nose dives, side slips and other thrilling and seemingly frivolous evolutions, learn to accomplish these feats in seven or eight hours—or they never learn them at all. For the mastery of airplane acrobatics does not require the time that is requisite to train a performer for a circus.

Cadet flyers receive this instruction, which is called the acrobatic stage, toward the end of their training and after they have become masters of their machines and possess absolute control. Otherwise they could not acquire the knack of throwing their machines in and out of these whirls and loops. And, by the way, some of them never do. Because a cadet becomes master of his plane, it does not inevitably follow that he can "stunt." He may not be fitted for it temperamentally; he may lack the head or the heart or the stomach for it. If that be so, then he must abandon acrobatics. Those who like it stick to it, and thus it happens that frequently these stunt flyers become the aces in actual combat in France, because fights in the air are more or less games of tag; and the more artful the dodger the greater are his chances.

The course in acrobatics is not chosen because it is showy or spectacular. It is as much a part of a cadet's training as pursuit work, reconnaissance or bombing. It is designed to inspire the student with confidence in his ship and in his ability; to teach him the feel of dangerous positions in the air; to actually get into them and out of them safely, and in general to demonstrate to him how much may be accomplished by the proper and skillful handling of his plane.

The greatest care is taken in choosing instructors for this work and in selecting the ships or planes to be used. Expert riggers are assigned to check the aligment of the planes used after each flight.

At Kelly field, Texas, there is a special stage for the instruction and to insure safety for the cadets and their instructors. Others not flying in this stage of instruction are required to keep entirely away from the territory over which the stunts are being performed. A severe penalty is attached to the slightest infringement of this regulation. No student or instructor is allowed to stunt under 2,000 feet, and practically all of the work in the acrobatic line is done between 2,000 and 4,000 feet.

When a student reports to the stage for instruction, he is assigned to a teacher who at the first opportunity takes him and performs the requisite evolutions. The student is then given the control and directed to repeat the maneuver. After the third or fourth trial he is usually able to perform in a creditable manner. However, in no case does the instructor allow a student to fly alone unless he shows himself well qualified.

When a student is sent into the air he is directed to follow a definite course in gaining his altitude; to turn over his sector, and, if at a sufficient altitude, to do his stunts. It may be that he will have been directed to do a one-turn spin, a two-turn, spin, five loops and three Immelmann turns. Upon returning to the ground he reports to his instructor, who has carefully watched the execution of the stunts and who offers appropriate criticism and suggestions. This is repeated several times, and before the student is transferred he again goes up with the instructor, who estimates whether the former is qualified to advance to the next stage.

Troops for the Slavic legion which is to be a part of the United States army will soon be recruited under regulations just promulgated by President Wilson. The officers and enlisted men in these regiments will be Jugo-Slavs, Czecho-Slavs and Ruthenians. If practicable, companies will be composed of members of the same race and this plan of organization will be followed as far as can be in the larger units—battalions and regiments.

Enlisted men for the Slavic legion will be obtained by voluntary induction from among the members of the races mentioned. They must be residents but not citizens of the United States and not subject to the draft. Enlistments in coal mining regions will not be authorized. Volunteers for this legion will be forwarded by draft boards to depots in the usual manner and will be sent from there to Camp Wadsworth, South Carolina.

The weather bureau will publish in its National Weather and Crop Bulletin a series of charts showing for the country east of the Rocky mountains the southward progression of the earliest killing-frost date line and the total area covered by killing frost to the date of each issue. These charts are expected to be of much interest and value, as they will indicate the time of the ending of the growing season for summer crops this year in the various sections of the country.

Much loss is caused at times by early frosts and interest is unusually great this year because of the possibility of frost damage affecting the food supply.

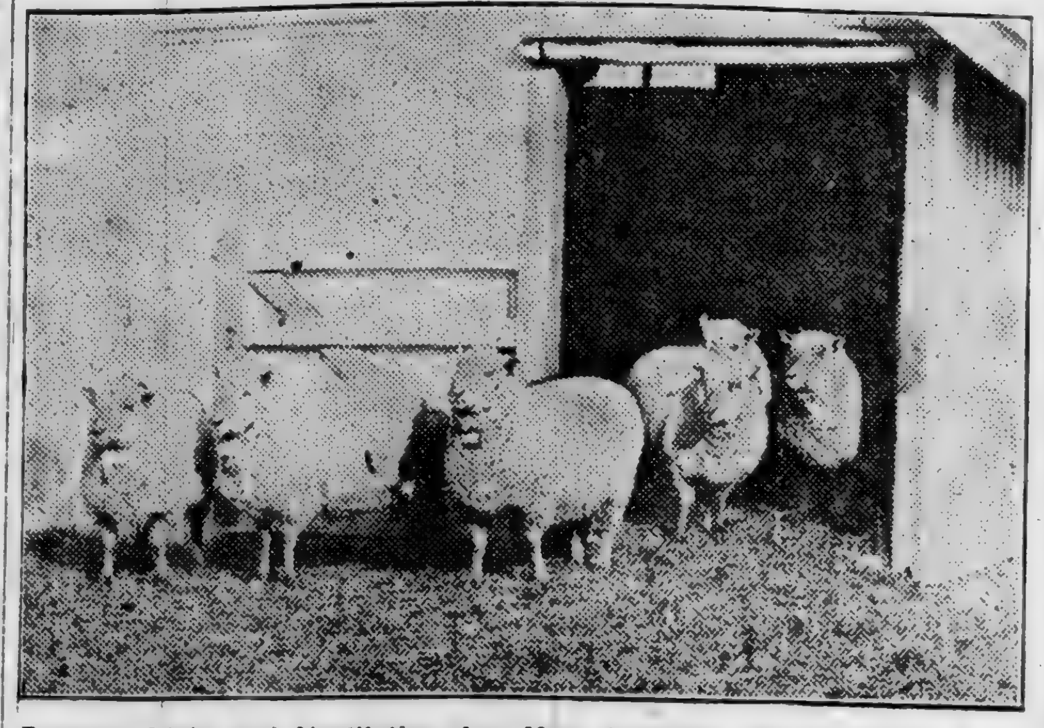
To test the present health of the nation's children, the child welfare committee of the council of national defense throughout the country has weighed and measured more than 6,500,000 babies. Hundreds of committees, endeavoring to meet the needs revealed by this test, have employed public-health nurses, opened infant welfare stations.

In England, since the beginning of the present war, the infantile death rate has been reduced nine points below the mortality among American children of the same ages.

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

SHEEP NEED WINTER CARE.



Dryness, Light and Ventilation Are More Essential Than Warmth in the Winter Sheep Quarters.

WOOL AND MEAT ARE WAR NEEDS

Principal Sheep Requirements Are Dryness, Good Ventilation, and Sunlight.

WET COATS FOSTER DISEASE

Protection From Winter Rainfalls and Heavy Snowfalls Is Desirable—Freedom From Drafts Is Most Important.

Sheep supply two very essential war needs—meat and wool. During the winter they need special care. Their heavy coat will keep them warm provided it is dry, but if it becomes wet the animals will suffer from chills and sickness.

In any part of the United States the main essentials of sheep barns are dryness and freedom from drafts. Unless lambs are to be dropped in cold weather, no expense to provide warmth is necessary, as the buildings should seldom be closed. Protection from winter rains and heavy snowfalls is desirable, but the best results may be expected when ewes are allowed access to a dry bed in the open.

Warmth, Dryness and Light.

Since sheep do not require quarters that are especially warm, a single wall will ordinarily insure sufficient warmth. If lambs are dropped in very cold weather, a temporary covering over the lambing panels will provide warmth, or a small space can be partitioned off in which to keep a few ewes until their lambs become strong.

Even in winter it is well to plan ahead, and to keep in mind that next summer shade and protection from heat are peculiarly necessary for sheep. Shade cannot always be furnished in pastures, and buildings that are well located and constructed so as to render them cool in summer will often provide greater comfort to the sheep during hot days than would be possible for them out of doors.

Dryness and freedom from draft are most important. Sheep cannot possibly thrive in quarters that are damp or dark. In fact, the flock should be shut in only during storms. Abundance of light in all parts of the building and at all times is necessary not only for the health of the sheep but for convenience of the shepherds in caring for them. One square foot of window for each 20 square feet of floor space is necessary. Windows should be placed at a height to insure a good distribution of light, and particularly to receive direct sunlight for the lambing pens during the period the ewes are lambing.

Ventilation Is Essential.

Close confinement in poorly ventilated pens is very injurious to breeding ewes. While they should seldom be shut indoors, a part of the flock will usually lie inside at night. At lambing and during storms, doors should be closed. For such times it is necessary to provide means of securing fresh air without creating drafts. In a very large building with numerous doors and windows it is often advisable to build one or two partitions from floor to ceiling to prevent drafts. Fresh air can be admitted through muslin-screened windows opened on the side opposite to that from which the wind is blowing without causing drafts if all other sides of the buildings are tightly closed.

In very cold sections, or where lambs are to arrive in the winter months, specially arranged outlets for foul air and inlets for fresh air will be necessary. Foul-air flues should extend from the ceiling with as few bends as possible to the roof. They should be of sufficient size and number to give 8 to 10 square inches for each sheep in the building. Fresh air may be admitted through arranged inlets near the floor line. Some attention is required to adjust such inlets to the variations in wind and temperature, and the same is true where windows are depended upon. There is no efficient automatic system of ventilating sheep buildings, though some of the "wind baffles" which have been devised for poultry houses might be adapted.

Well-Drained Floors.

Level and well-drained clay-surfaced floors are satisfactory and economical. Sheep pack the surface very firmly, and if there is proper drainage the only objection to this floor is that it does not exclude rats. Concrete floors for alleys and feed rooms are necessary, but will seldom be called for in the pens.

Arrangement of Building.

The main features to be provided in the floor plan are minimum of waste space, convenience and ease in feeding and in cleaning the pens, and elimination of the need of moving or disturbing the sheep. Pen partitions should be movable. By using feed racks to make divisions in the pen space the size of the pens can be varied as needed, and in special cases the racks can be removed to permit the use of the space for other stock.

Locating Sheep Buildings.

The site for permanent buildings for sheep should first of all be dry and well drained. Ample yard space that is dry and sheltered should be available adjacent to the main barn or shed. A southern slope with sandy soil is especially satisfactory for this purpose.

On most farms it will be advantageous to have the buildings and yards easily reached from the regular pastures or from fields used to grow forage crops for summer pasture. As the flock requires attention many times daily during part of the year, convenience of location in relation to the farm dwelling and to other buildings will effect an economy of time in the performance of routine labor.

BUY EWES IN FALL

Many farmers make a practice of buying ewes in the fall, breeding them and selling the lambs the following summer. Such ewes can be carried through the winter on wheat and rye fields if not pastured too closely, or on clover hay with some roots and a little linseed meal. If the clover hay is not available, corn fodder may be used as roughage, in which case it should always be supplemented with bran or linseed meal. Lambs should come early and should be taught to eat as soon as they are old enough. Give lambs access to corn by providing a creep through which they can go without allowing the ewes to follow.

Feed Cows Legume Hay.

In co-operation with the extension department of Purdue university the United States department of agriculture last year made an investigation of the cost of producing milk in 16 dairy herds in Porter county, Ind. In that study it was found that when other conditions were the same the dairymen who fed the largest quantity of clover, alfalfa, and other legume hays used 38 per cent less grain without lessening the production of their cows. That is, the dairymen who fed legume hay obtained as much milk from 62 pounds of grain as the others obtained from 100 pounds of grain.

Such a saving is certainly worth while. Patriotism demands increased production; the high cost of living demands economical production; both those demands are met when all our good cows are kept, and when their milk flow is maintained at low cost.

Feeding Racks for Sheep.

Combination hay and grain racks are probably the most convenient for feeding small lots of sheep. The open-end rack is suitable for use in barns where feeding can be done by passing directly from the feed alley to the rack, thus obviating the difficulties which follow from entering pens filled with sheep. Some shepherds prefer a rack with closed sides instead of slats; such a rack requires that the hay be eaten through an opening at the bottom.

Helpless as a Baby

Bent Like an Old Man and Suffered Terribly—Quickly Cured by Doan's.

Jno. Bleumke, Jr., 2553 Courtland St., Chicago, Ill., says: "I was down with my back suffering from lumbago. I walked like an old man, all bent over. My back pained terribly and when I moved my arms my back hurt. I finally had to go to bed and just felt sick all over and was helpless as a baby. My kidneys acted too frequently, the secretions were scanty and highly colored. I had terrible pains in the back of my head and I felt drowsy all the time. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills and soon felt one hundred per cent better. When I finished the one box I was entirely cured. The pains left my back and head and my kidneys acted normally. I am glad to recommend Doan's to other kidney sufferers."

Mr. Bleumke

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Soothe Your Itching Skin With Cuticura

All druggists: Soap 25, Ointment 25 & 50, Talcum 25. Sample each free of "Cuticura, Dept. E, Boston."

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 42--1918.

ONE WAY TO CURE HEADACHE

Barbarous Practice That Is Said to Be by No Means Uncommon in Palestine.

Major Theodore Waters of the Christian Herald on his arrival in Jerusalem went around with Dr. Henry C. Hurd when the latter visited the poor sick in that city. This is one of his experiences:

The doctor went around among them, advising here, prescribing there, with little Marcus chatting his interpretations in his voluble way.

"This man, he have a great bees pain in hees head. It hurt heem in the back of hees heed."

In the back of the man's neck was a piece of cord. It entered the skin at the side of the neck, continued under the skin across the other side, where the end came through. The two ends of the cord had been brought together on the outside and tied in a knot. Naturally it had suppurated, and the chance of blood poison was very great; but the man cherished it because it was the "cure" of a well-known native "doctor," who had ordered that it be kept there for seven years, after which the man's chronic headache would disappear and the cord might be taken out. It was shudderful to think of. Yet the practice is by no means uncommon.

Just in Time.

"Did she return the engagement ring when she jilted you?"

"She didn't have any engagement ring. Just before I proposed to her I joined a society for the prevention of useless giving."

The Stages.

"What did they do with the vessel?"

"First, they buoyed her up and then they manned her."

POSTUM

When the morning cup is unsatisfactory suppose you make a change from the old-time beverage to the snappy cereal drink

INSTANT POSTUM

You'll be surprised at its cheering, satisfying qualities and delightful flavor. It's all health—no caffeine.

Try a Tin

OCTOBER

L 90

0542

WRIGLEY'S

For Victory Buy Liberty Bonds

We will win this war—

Nothing else really matters until we do!

WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT THE PERFECT GUM — JUICY FRUIT CHEWING GUM — WRIGLEY'S DOUBLEMINT CHEWING GUM

The Flavor Lasts

Suspicious Motives.

Nippen—Funny thing about old Titewold. His wife coaxed him all season for enough money to go on a vacation. He finally gave her $10 and told her to stay as long as she liked.

Tuck—And did she go?

Nippen—No, she thought her husband must have had a sudden change of heart and she had better stick around.

One Better.

"I've got a fireless cooker in my house."

"I'll go you one better. I've a smokeless husband in mine."

Dr. Peery's "Dead Shot" is powerful but safe. One dose is enough to expel Worms or Tapeworm. No castor oil necessary. Adv.

Chinese are said to be taking to the alcohol habit.

Rebuke for Jane.

At school the twins are in the first grade. Jane is quite talkative, while John is more quiet and sedate.

Arriving home, Jane said: "Mother, John didn't have his lesson this morning."

"Well," haughtily replied her twin, "you talked so much I forgetted it."

Important to Mothers
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it
Bears the
Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
In Use for Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Unseen.

Billie—"Has you baby sister got any teeth?" Tillie—"Oh, yes, but she ain't hatched 'em out yet.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

For PINK EYE DISTEMPER CATARRHAL FEVER AND ALL NOSE AND THROAT DISEASES

Cures the sick and acts as a preventative for others. Liquid given on the tongue. Safe for brood mares and all others. Best kidney remedy. 60 cents a bottle, $5.50 a dozen. Sold by all druggists and turf goods houses, or sent, express paid, by the manufacturers. Booklet, "Distemper, Cause and Cure," free.
SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION
IS A CRIME AGAINST NATURE
Stop it or you never can keep well. If you wake with a bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, perhaps headache, your liver is torpid. A torpid liver deranges the whole system, produces dyspepsia, costiveness and piles. There is no better remedy for these disorders than DR. TUTT'S LIVER PILLS. Try them just once and be eternally convinced. For sale by all druggists.
Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills

Indigestion, Bloat, Heartburn, Caused by Acid-Stomach

What is the cause of indigestion, dyspepsia, bloat, heartburn, food-repeating, belching, gassy, sour stomach, and so many stomach miseries? Just this—acid-stomach—superacidity as the doctors call it. It robs millions of their full strength, vitality and the power to enjoy life—to be real men and women.

It is well known that an acid mouth destroys the teeth. The acid is so powerful that it eats right through the hard enamel and causes the teeth to decay. This is fair warning of what excess acidity will do to the delicate organization of the stomach; as a matter of fact, excess acidity not only produces a great many painful and disagreeable symptoms that we generally name "Stomach troubles," but it is the creator of a long train of very serious ailments. Acid-stomach interferes with the digestion and causes the food to ferment. This mass of sour, fermented food passes into the intestines, where it becomes the breeding place for germs and toxic poisons, which in turn are absorbed into the blood and distributed throughout the entire body.

Wherever you go you see victims of acid-stomach — people who, while not actually down sick are always ailing—have no appetite, food doesn't digest, belching all the time, continually complaining of being weak and tired and worn out. It is this excess acidity that takes the pep and punch out of them, leaves little or no vitality.

Strike at the very cause of all this trouble and clean this excess acid out of the stomach. This will give the stomach a chance to digest the food properly; nature will do the rest.

A wonderful new remedy removes excess acid without the slightest discomfort. It is called EATONIC, made in the form of tablets—they are good to eat—just like a bit of candy. EATONIC literally absorbs the injurious excess acid and carries it away through the intestines. It drives the bloat out of the body—you can fairly feel it work.

Try EATONIC and see how quickly it banishes bloat, heartburn, belching, food-repeating, indigestion, etc. See too, how quickly your general health improves — how much more of your food is digested—how nervousness and irritability disappear. Learn how easy it is to get back your physical and mental punch. Have the power and energy to work with vim. Enjoy the good things of life. Learn what it means to fairly bubble over with health.

So get a box of EATONIC from your druggist today. We authorize him to guarantee EATONIC to please you and you can trust your druggist to make this guarantee good. If it fails in any way, take it back—he will refund your money.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 20

ABRAHAM GIVING ISAAC TO GOD.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 22:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life.—I Samuel 1:11.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Luke 14:25-33.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Genesis 15:1-6; 18:9-15; 21-1-12.

I. Abraham Tested (vv. 1, 2).

God does not tempt men to sin (James 1:13), but he subjects them to rigid tests to prove them. In the treatment of Abraham we have a supreme example. God tested Abraham, not Lot. Sodom tested Lot. God tests the man who is proof against the tests of Sodom. God had promised Abraham an heir through whom blessings were to come to the world. For many years his faith was sorely tried in waiting for its fulfillment. At length, his heart rejoiced in the realization of that hope. In the lad in the patriarch's tent were wrapped Abraham's hopes of the future when his seed should be as the stars for multitude. His was no ordinary expectation. The human affections and hopes were, no doubt, included; but a new nation was to spring from him, and Isaac was the sole link making the connection. Then, too, he saw the coming Redeemer, for "Abraham saw my day and was glad" (John 8:56). It is only as we thus see all that Isaac meant to his father and God's purpose for the future of the world, that we really can appreciate the crucial test that came to Abraham. A test in some sense similar comes to many Christian fathers and mothers. God is calling for sons and daughters to be offered on the altar of his service. The test is something terrific, as some who have given up sons and daughters for the mission field can testify. It is only as God is known to be almighty (Genesis 17:1) shall ability be given to give them up.

II. Abraham Standing the Test (vv. 2-10).

1. On the way (vv. 3, 4). Abraham promptly obeyed. There was neither hesitancy nor arguing. God had issued the command. At his call Abraham said: "Here am I" (v. 1). He could not say "No" to God. In the ordinary affairs of life we call a man weak who cannot say "No," who has no will of his own; but the man who could not say "No" to God, we count strong. Early in the morning he was on the way to the place of which God had told him. All who really believe in God will yield themselves to him without question, reserve, or shrinking. Anything short of this is not consecration. We should not stop to ask how or why. It is enough to know that God has spoken.

2. "Abide ye here" (v. 5). This testing experience was too sacred for human eyes to gaze upon. How like this the words of Jesus in Gethsemane: "Tarry ye here." Human sympathy is sweet, and is to be prized, but we need to be alone in times of great testing. There are times when human sympathy hinders us from doing our duty. When Abraham said: "We will come down again to you," he spoke sincerely, for he believed that God would give him Isaac back from the dead (Heb. 11:19).

3. Isaac bearing the wood upon which he is to be offered (vv. 6, 7). This reminds us of Christ bearing the cross on the way to Calvary. Isaac must have been now a young man. He did not resist or cry out, but graciously submitted, showing that he is making a willing sacrifice.

4. The angel of the Lord calls (vv. 8-12). At the critical moment when Abraham's hand had lifted the gleaming blade to make real the offering, God interfered. God did not want human sacrifice as a burnt offering, but he wanted Abraham to give up to him his best, the surrender of his will to him. God is always pleased with submissive obedience. "To obey is better than sacrifice." Many times we are face to face with the test of giving up our fondest hopes and purposes, but when we have met the test as Abraham did, we get back our offering or greater things instead.

III. God Will Provide Himself a Lamb (vv. 13, 14).

Just behind Abraham was a ram caught in a thicket by his horns. Him Abraham offered instead of his son. In the words "God will provide himself a lamb (v. 8) we have the whole plan of redemption outlined. God has provided the costly sacrifice of his Son to satisfy himself.

He who has no taste for order will be often wrong in his judgment and seldom considerate or conscientious in his actions.—Lavater.

Value of the Bible.

The Bible is to us what the star was to the wise men; but if we spend all our time in gazing upon it, observing its motions, and admiring its splendor and are not led to Christ by it, the use of it will be lost to us.—T. Adams.

Truths From on High.

All human discoveries seem to be made only for the purpose of confirming more and more strongly the truths that come from on high and are contained in the sacred writings.—Herschel.

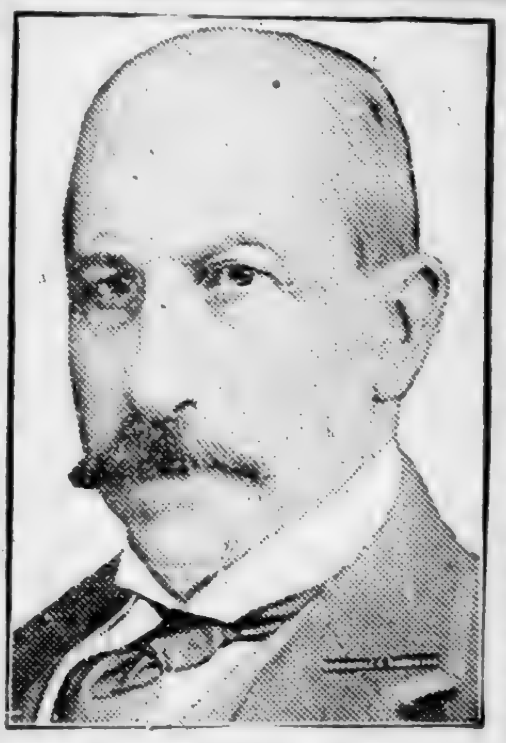
OUT-OF-ORDINARY PEOPLE

HERO OF REMARKABLE ESCAPE

Sergt. Pilot E. T. Buckley of Chicago whose parents live in Kilbourne, Ill., is back in America after some 20 months of service in the great war, topped off with capture by the Huns and a remarkable escape from their prison camps.

It was on January 2, 1916, that Buckley, then fresh from the University of Illinois, joined the Foreign Legion of France with the intention of qualifying as a flyer. After a thorough course in a French aviation school he was assigned to Nungesser's traveling squadron, known as Escadrille Spad, which corresponded to the German traveling circus headed by the late Baron Richthofen. He and his French comrades, while attached to the Lafayette flying corps, had a roving commission which took them along the western front, but it was in the Verdun region that the American volunteer was to meet the biggest experience of his life. On September 6 last year he was brought down in a fight with three German planes, one of which he crashed. He was taken to a German prison camp wounded. He was fed badly and treated with studied cruelty because he was an American volunteer in the French army. He made three efforts to escape, but each time was caught on the Swiss frontier or before he reached it. On the fourth occasion he also was stopped by a German sentry, but he gave battle with a pocket knife which a German had given him in the prison camp, laid out the sentry, and made his way back to his squadron in France.

LORD MILNER, WORKER

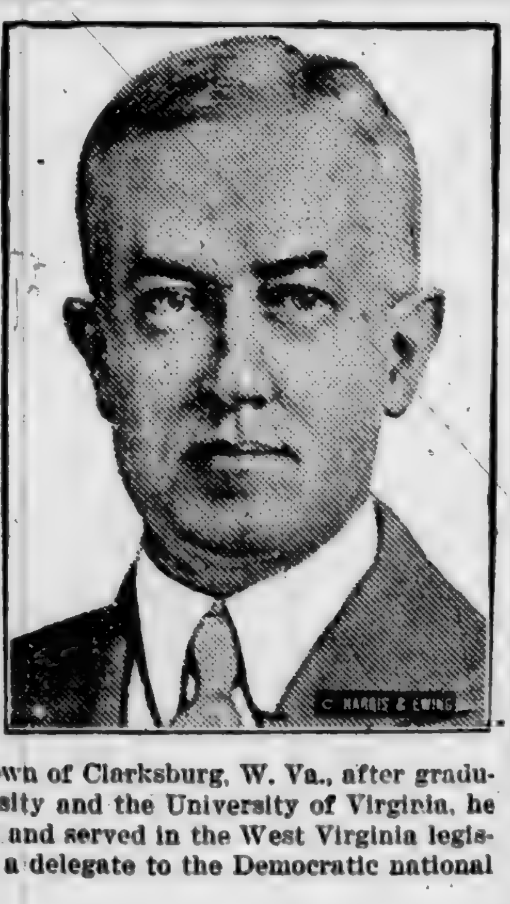


On the one occasion—it was but a few weeks ago—when Lord Milner has submitted to an interview, I had gone to him greatly impressed by the high privilege granted me, and, somehow, expected something rather formidable, Edward Marshall writes in London Answers. I found nothing of the sort, but a tall man, very approachable, very human, ready to answer "leading questions" if he thought replies to them would further international understanding.

That is the impression which he makes—that of the very highest type of public servant. In the best sense of the word, his governmental work all has been service—that of a man caring very little, if anything at all, for place and power, but above all things to be of value to the empire. He never has conceded anything to ease; his close associates declare he never thinks about himself. His heart is with the worker, although his own tastes are indicated by the fact that at Oxford he was pre-eminently the first scholar of his class, despite the fact that brilliant men, including Mr. Asquith, were in opposition.

The passion of his life is to see the British empire knit in true democracy, coherent, unalterably cohesive, so equipped with governmental power and individual impulse that all great natural resources will be developed for the public good. The public good! Those three words are his creed. Now they mean defeat of Germany, the rights of all the allies.

NEW AMBASSADOR TO BRITAIN



When President Wilson selected John W. Davis of West Virginia to succeed Walter Hines Page as ambassador to Great Britain there was considerable surprise but not a single adverse criticism of the appointment. The announcement was made just as Mr. Davis, who was then solicitor general of the United States, arrived in Switzerland to serve as the head of the American delegation at the Berne conference between American and German missions on the treatment and exchange of prisoners of war.

Since he went to Washington seven years ago as a member of congress from the First West Virginia district, Mr. Davis has been an active figure in the capital. He was elected to succeed himself in the house, but hardly had begun his second term when President Wilson appointed him solicitor general in August, 1913.

Mr. Davis is forty-five years old. Beginning life as a lawyer in his home town of Clarksburg, W. Va., after graduating at the Washington and Lee university and the University of Virginia, he became prominent in Democratic politics and served in the West Virginia legislature before going to congress and was a delegate to the Democratic national convention of 1904.

ITALY'S WARRIOR PRINCE

The youngest boy officially fighting at the front with the allies is the fourteen-year-old Prince Umberto of Italy.

As long ago as 1916, when he was only twelve, the principe di Piedmont was a familiar figure at the Italian army headquarters, but he was there then only as a privileged visitor. When Italy was invaded, however, the desire of the heir to the throne to join the colors could no longer be refused.

While he has not been permitted to run into great danger, he is seeing actual military service and is experiencing many phases of the war at first hand.

Humbert Nicholas Thomas Jean Marie—to give him his full name in English—is the only son of King Victor Emmanuel. He is head of the Young Explorers of Italy, a body that corresponds to the boy scouts in America. He has gone up in airplanes, down in submarines, steered warships, sailed boats, shot at wild boars and ridden cavalry horses. But the things he is proudest of are his trips at the front, for he has been there not once, but many times.

At the front young Humbert went practically everywhere, made friends with the soldiers, was petted by them in return and all in all had a fine time.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Drop Freezone on a touchy corn, then lift that corn off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! No humbug!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.—Adv.

Some Memory.

"You seem to recollect matters that occurred 20 years ago," said counsel for the defendant sneeringly to an adverse witness on cross-examination. "Can you remember as distinctly any other trifling circumstances that occurred at the same time?"

"Oh, yes," was the response. "I remember that you dressed very shabbily at that time and your shirt was visible through the seat of your breeches, and my father loaned your father $30 to buy you a suit of clothes so that you could appear decently clad for admission to the bar. And I also remember that neither you nor your father ever returned the money. But then $30 was not a trifling circumstance. It was a $30 circumstance."—New York Times.

"Cold In the Head"
is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Persons who are subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the System, cleanse the Blood and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrh may lead to Chronic Catarrh.
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System.
All Druggists 75c. Testimonials free. $100.00 for any case of catarrh that HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will not cure.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Its Movement Uncertain.

Willie—Say, pop, what is an element of chance?

Willie's Pop—Lightning, my boy.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills contain nothing but vegetable ingredients, which act gently as a tonic and purgative by stimulation and not by irritation. Adv.

The egg that can't be beat isn't as good as it might be.

ASTHMA
INSTANTLY RELIEVED WITH
ASTHMADOR
OR MONEY REFUNDED ASK ANY DRUGGIST

No Substitute For Dodd's Kidney Pills.

That's Why Their Sale Has Increased Wonderfully for the Last Forty Years.

Don't accept a substitute for Dodd's when you know that if they didn't relieve and give permanent satisfaction they couldn't be selling to the same families for two generations. Thousands of users, who have saved themselves from the ravages of kidney troubles and Bright's Disease by the use of this famous old remedy, will accept nothing else. They know that upon the slightest backache, pain in the loins, stiffness in stooping or lifting, you must take warning and use Dodd's and Dodd's only.

You are protected by the name on the flat, round box—the name with the three D's for diseased, disordered and deranged kidneys. No article of similar name will do. Get your box today and start on the road to health. Druggists will gladly refund your money if not promptly relieved.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Every Woman Wants
Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC POWDER
FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE
Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co, for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

A Bad Cough
If neglected, often leads to serious trouble. Safeguard your health, relieve your distress and soothe your irritated throat by taking
PISO'S

OCTOBER

L 90

0543

STOMACH TROUBLES

AN IRRITABLE, fault finding disposition is often due to a disordered stomach. A man with good digestion is nearly always good natured. A great many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by Chamberlain's Tablets after years of suffering. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Try them. They only cost a quarter.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Red Cross Department

Yarn for thirty sweaters has been received. The yarn must be handed out at once as sweaters MUST be completed in a month's time. Yarn may be had at the local chairman, Ada Bassett's, home.

The board of directors of the DeKalb county chapter, American Red Cross, voted at their last meeting to hold the elections the last of October to conform with the ruling of the national organization. Only members of the chapter, which means members of all branches, will be entitled to a vote in the election. Therefore, all who joined during the first drive for membership will not have that privilege. No special effort has been made to renew memberships on account of the national ruling that all memberships must expire with the calendar year, and the DeKalb county chapter has waited to make the great drive for memberships during December. However, all who feel they would like to join now to have the privilege of voting in the coming elections, their memberships to expire January 1, will help the great cause to the amount of one dollar, as no membership fee can be taken for a less amount, half of which is sent to national headquarters and half remains in DeKalb county for use of the chapter and branches.

The election will be as follows: The branches will elect officers the last Wednesday in October. The newly elected chairmen of branches constitute the board of directors, which with the officers of the chapter constitute the ruling body of the chapter. The board of directors will elect the chapter officers at their first meeting after the last Wednesday in October.

Fred W. Knott, Co. Chairman.

The election of local officers of the Red Cross, will be held at the M. P. Church, October 23, at 7:30. All members are requested to be present.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to

Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

Other Jurors Are Called.

Securing only nine men out of twenty-four for jury service, Judge Dan M. Link Tuesday instructed the jury commissioners to draw another venire Tuesday. Thirteen of the men drawn as jurymen for the October term were excused from service because of pressing farm work and two had removed from the county.

The following names were drawn Tuesday:

Dennis Poorman, Grant.
Israel Layman, Concord.
L. W. Yeiser, Concord.
John Muhn, Union.
Ira Grogg, Butler.
Ira Bone, Concord.
Dennis F. Harding, Richland.
William Sommers, Spencer.
William Blodgett, Union.
George E. Blaker, Troy.
John Deusler, Grant.
Clarence King, Smithfield.

The new jurymen will be called as soon as there is a jury case to be heard. Sickness among the attorneys and witnesses in a number of jury cases is causing their postponement to a later date.

WINTER WEAR.

Sweaters, $1.50 to 12.00
Cotton Union Suits $2.00 to 2.50
Cotton 2-Piece Underwear $1.25 a Garment
Woolen Underwear $4.00 to 8.00 a Suit
Wool Hose for Men 50c to 75c a Pair
Flannel Shirts $3.00 to 4.50
Browns Beach Jackets $4.50 to 5.00
Browns Beach Vests $2.50
Sheep Skin Lined Coats $13.50
Work Coats 4.00 to 10.00
—0—
We have All Kinds Footwear for Men.

WM. KNISELY & SON.
Butler, Indiana
CLOTHING FURNISHINGS SHOES.

THE YANKEES ON THE MARNE

According to T. Atkins

Oh! the English and the Irish and the 'owlin' Scotties, too,
The Canucks and Austryleyuns and the 'airy French Poilu—
The only thing that bothered us a year before we knew
Was 'ow in 'ell the Yanks 'ud look an' wot in 'ell they'd do.

They 'adn't 'ad no trynein', they didn't know the gyme,
They 'adn't never marched it much—their shootin' was the syme;
An' the only thing that bothered us that day in lawst July
Was 'ow in 'ell the line 'ud 'old if they should run aw'y.

My word! It 'appened sudden w'en the drive 'ad first begun:
We seed the Yanks a-runnin—Gaw blimy! 'ow they run!
But the only thing that bothered us that seed the chase begin
Was 'ow in 'ell to stop 'em 'fore they got into Berlin!

So we're standin' all together in a stiffish firin' line.
If anyone should awsk you, you can say we're doin' fine.
The only thing that bothered us don't bother us no more:
It's why in 'ell we didn't know the Yankee boys before!

—EMERSON HOUGH in the Vigilantes.

BRAINSTORM

THE American people are given to boasting. There is no denying it. We have carried this propensity to brag into the war. We inflate our chests and pompously and extravagantly grow eloquent over the wondrous work of the Yanks at Chateau Thierry and Saint Mihiel. There is truth in what we say: our boys did nobly and our hearts warm when we think of their heroism and we are proud of them; but we tell this truth in such a manner as to leave the inference that no one else is fighting over there—in such a way as to belittle the valor of the Belgian, the Frenchman, the Briton, the Italian, the Serb and other allies. We have reason to be proud. You bet! But we have no reason to "imitate the lordly strut of the turkey gobbler" and indulge in frothy braggadocio about the Americans' parading the streets of Berlin before snow flies, as nonsensical as boasting about America's ability to "lick the whul world" with an army of old women and kids armed with mop sticks and popguns while the men stay at home and mind the babies. Will the Americans march through Berlin? Yes, in due time; but, remember, when they do, beside Old Glory will float the flags of other nations, and underneath those flags will be men who did their part in the great struggle. It will be an allied triumph, not an American. This article is not written to disparage the soldierly qualities of the Americans. On the contrary, they are among the best in the war: it seems almost incredible that boys without previous military training could be gathered from the fields, the factoriks and the stores and within a few months drilled into an army that is able to cope on equal terms with the trained German war machine or take a place in battle line beside the Belgian, French and British veterans. America will be the determining factor in the war: her men and resources will turn the scale against the kaiser; but our allies had fought over two years before we entered and are still fighting. There will be glory enough for all!

* * *

EVERYONE would rejoice to see the war end. If it is to continue, however, it is to be hoped that it soon will be transferred to German soil; and when it is—and it will be—no one will pity the Germans if the French and Belgians, enraged at what they have suffered from the outraging of their people, the spoliation of their land and the destruction of their temples, turn the enemy's country into a Sahara. Such action is barbaric, it is true—is a reversal to ancient warfare—and would not be tolerated among civilized nations except in Gesmany. The German people justified the methods of warfare practiced by their army and navy: they celebrated the sinking of the Lusitania and rejoiced over the air raids on London and Paris. Germany is the great national bully. The only argument that the individual bully understands is that which he uses on others—a smash on the jaw or some other vulnerable point. He immediately gets good. The national bully should be treated the same way—should be given what it has been giving others. If the German people are subjected to the same brutality and frightfulness they have practiced and applauded, it may be a lesson to them. Desperate diseases are prevented by inoculation: to inoculate the Germans with the virus of their own cruelty may act as a preventive in their case.

* * *

NEWS from Europe justifies the belief that the turning point in the war has come: the von Hindenberg line, which the Germans considered impregnable, has been pierced over a wide front, and the men who defended it at this point are fleeing eastward with their backs to the allies. Military experts are of the opinion that the enemy must withdraw from the greater part of Belgium and France or be overwhelmed, as the breach in their battle line divides them and endangers them to flanking attacks; and retreat only can be effected by great losses in killed an prisoners. The German army has heretofore been on the offensive, and for them to be compelled to fight a defensive campaign means that the beginning of the end has come. As an evidence that the Germans are preparing to evacuate their present positions is the fact that, with their usual brutality, they are rasing towns and laying waste to the country in their rear. But the war is not over; and the only way to end it—to end it right—is for America and her allies to continue their efforts as if they think they have years of warfare before them.

* * *

THE other day, we heard a man railing at the hypocrites in the church. As is usual in such cases, his language was coarse and full of oaths, just what is to be expected from the person who is so mean that he can see nothin but meanness in others. A man's view of his surroundings is governed by his altitude: if he is down in the valley, he can see but to the tops of the surrounding hills; but if he is up on the mountain, his range of vision is greatly enlarged. The one who sees no good in others, particularly the church, views mankind from a low moral plane. He is a moral parasite—not hurtful, simply disgusting. There are weak members in the church, plenty of them; but the hypocrites are few. The runtiest sheep in the Lord's fold is a paragon of virture beside the foul mouted reviler of religion.

* * *

"EVENTUALLY, why not now?" should become the motto of the kaiser when considering the allies' peace terms.

HERE AND THERE

Ed Miser and family visited Auburn friends over Sunday.

Daniel Oberholtzer is improving his residence property by painting.

Rev. S. Heininger, of New Haven, was in town Wednesday morning.

W. E. Peterson and wife spent Sunday with Mrs. Anna Stevick, of Cedarville.

B. E. Widney and wife spent Saturday night and Sunday with R. H. Abel and wife.

B. V Widney and wife, of Albion, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, A. Copp and wife.

Mesdames Anna Baker and Anna Hursey made a business trip to Fort Wayne on Saturday.

Mrs. Kate A. Leighty was called to Fort Wayne on Sunday by the illness of her niece, Miss Magers.

Ora Quance has advertised his farm property for sale and expects to quit farming. Sale, Sat'y, Nov. 2.

Mrs. Ada Berry and children, Edith and George, spent Saturday night and Sunday with John Betz and wife.

J. L. Rhodenbaugh, D. L. Carpenter and Emillus Case attended the stock sale at Huntertown on Wednesday.

Tuesday evening, eight automobiles were parked on the south side of Main street. Six had no tail lights burning.

Since the recent rain, the cement wall on the east side of the saw mill has caved in, and the debris covers the basement floor

John Knight and two daughters and Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer visited Sunday at the C. W. Jackson home, south of Hicksville.

Florence Buchanan and wife spent from Friday until Sunday evening with their daughter, Mrs. John Sturgis, and family, of Butler.

O. K. Shull and family were dinner guests at the Will. Hamilton home on Sunday. Mrs. Frank Bechtol was an afternoon visitor at the same place.

St. Joe is a safe place to trade at present. Influenza, which has become epidemic in and is ravaging some of our neighboring towns, has not appeared here.

Mesdames G. W. Milliman and Nan Lysher are patriotically doing their bit toward saving the crops: they are husking corn at the Erick farm, south of town.

The convention of the M. P. church, Fort Wayne sub-district, has been postponed on account of the influenza epidemic until the first week in December.

Monroe Foltz, of Cleveland, and W. J. Hiltner, wife and daughters, Vera and Margaret, of Continental, Ohio, were over-Sunday guests of J. P. Buckingham and wife.

James Harter reports that his wife is no better. She is at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Ginder. He intends bringing her back to St. Joe within a short time.

J. W. Sherer, formerly of Fairview and now of Fort Wayne, has suffered two strokes of paralysis within the last two weeks. He is completely helpless and his mind is greatly weakened by the disease.

Harvey Judson, of Auburn, Democratic candidate for treasurer, was in town on Tuesday; and Denny Johnston, of Garrett, Republican candidate for auditor, was here on Wednesday.

On Sunday, it was reported that Mrs. Cordelia Yarnelle was dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Beeks Erick, of Fort Wayne. This proved to be untrue. However, she is critically ill.

To Members of Lutheran Sunday School:—Study lesson No. 3, "Abraham Giving Isaac to God." Lay by your offering each Sunday, and bring it when we again have Sunday school. Get your Sunday school paper of S. S. Widney.

M. T. BISHOP, Sup't.

Mrs. Vern Wilmot and daughter, Mrs. Elma House, and George Baker left Wednesday for Cleveland, where they were called by the death of a niece, Mrs. Charles Olrich, of that place. Besides her husband, deceasrd leaves six children and her mother, Mrs. Catherine Morrison.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - - - - $1.25
Six Months, - - - - .65
Three Months, - - - .35
One Month, - - - - .15
Single Copy, - - - - .05
(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Henry Krabill, wife and daughter, Mrs. Princess Zonker, spent Wednesday at Fort Wayne.

J. R. Shilling and wife returned home on Wednesday evening, after a few days' visit with their daughter, Mrs. T. A. Northrup, and family.

R. H. Abel, wife and mother, Mrs Ann Abel, motored to Auburn on Monday afternoon to visit at the Philip Carper home previous to Hugh Carper's departure for training school at Warsaw.

Mesdames Fred B. Leighty, H. C. Hathaway, Nan Lysher, G. W. Milliman and C. A. Woodcox were entertained at a chicken dinner on Friday by William Staman, Jr, and wife. Just to show their patriotism, the ladies husked corn while there.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale.--Good round Jewel heating stove. Burns coal or wood. Inquire of Mrs. Benjamin Hamilton.

FOR SALE: Shropshire Buck Lamb. Inquire of D. D. Burley, St. Joe.

For Sale:--Two good spring colts.
Menno Gerig.

For Sale:--Two fresh cows with calves by their sides and two to be fresh soon.
R. U. Bowser, Phone 36-12, Spencerville.

The Complexion Is the Health Barometer

A good complexion can not be obtained when the liver, kidneys or bowels are inactive. Bilious or poisonous matter within the body causes the sallow, muddy or splotchy complexion. Why drag around looking tired, old and dejected when Glando Tonic will put you right? It will remove the poisons and give you new life and strength. Glando Tonic acts directly on the liver, kidneys and small glands of the stomach and bowels. Its great popularity is due to the wonderful cures which have been obtained through its use. Sold by druggists or may be secured by sending direct to the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 30
ST. JOE, - - - IND

OCTOBER

L 90

0544

Samuel Denny Johnston
REPUBLICAN
Candidate FOR AUDITOR of DeKalb County

In appealing to the public for support, I wish to make this statement: On account of being requested to act as Registration Clerk for Keyser and Richland townships, the duties of which have taken up my entire time until now, I have been unable to meet all the voters face to face, as I should like to have done: therefore I make this public statement. Any favor shown will be gratefully received." Yours respectfully,

Samuel Denny Johnston.

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. Anna Henderson is again confined to the house by illness.

Samuel Cole and wife were Monday guests at the Roy Zimmerman home.

Miss Jean Mumma was a Thursday guest of Miss Jessie Moffet, of Auburn.

Gale Bowser, who recently broke a leg, is able to be about on crutches.

Miss Mae Moody was the guest of Miss Mary Pervines, Saturday night and Sunday.

Rev. A. K. Mumma and family and Mrs Ezra Horn were guests of friends at Auburn on Friday.

Milton Chaney and wife spent Sunday with the former's brother, Philip Chaney, and family, west of town.

Mrs. R. U. Bowser on Thursday received word of the death of a nephew, William Brockerman, of Chicago.

Bert Davis is Camp Taylor assisting in caring for his nephew, Henry Walters, who is seriously ill with influenza.

A letter has been received from Beeks Erick, who is stationed at Camp Taylor, in which he states that he is well, but very home sick.

William Benninghoff, wife and babe and Arthur Heyman, wife and daughter, Mary Ellen, all of Fort Wayne, were over-Sunday guests at the John Benninghoff home.

Lynn Romine, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Romine, died at the home of his parents, east of town, on Wednesday. Besides his parents, he leaves a twin brother, Leo, and grandparents, Bert Romine and wife, of Hopewell, and C. A. Holton and wife, of Rehobeth. The funeral was held at the Holton home on Friday. Interment was at Auburn.

COLETOWN

Lidda Conrad, of Grabill, visited Saturday and Sunday with Gladys Conine.

Edwin Guthrie and wife visited at the home of Albert Ginther, of Cedarville, Sunday.

George Koeppe and wife, of Butler, took dinner at the George Brown home, Sunday.

Mrs Edwin Guthrie and Pauline Bosserman called on Mrs. James Evans, Friday afternoon.

Henry Kling, wife and daughter, Lillian, took dinner Sunday with Frank Kling and wife, of Hicksville.

W. M. Martin and wife, of Continental, Ohio, visited the latter part of the week with Fred Martin and family.

McClellan Hart, wife and daughter, Lizzie, Jesse Klopfenstine and wife and Gladys Sauers visited Sunday afternoon with R. H. Conine and family.

NEWVILLE

There were no services held here on Sunday.

Earl Tustison and family were Sunday guests of Mrs. Whitehurst and family.

Mrs. Pearl Richmond had for her guest part of last week her grandfather, Mr. Smith, of Hicksville.

Miss Fern Tarney is caring for a little girl at the Frank Ginther home.

Mrs. Lizzie Smith, of Wabash, has come to stay a few weeks with Mrs. Julie Wyatt.

Miss Lena Roberts has returned to her home at Hicksville, after spending a few days with Mrs. Julie Wyatt.

Mrs. Dellie Lyons, who had been assisting in the care of her mother, returned to her home at Hesperia, Mich., last week.

Miss Ethel Lyons is here assisting with the duties at the Gillingham home.

Mesdames Julie Wyatt and Lizzie Smith were guests of George Simanton and family, of St. Joe, on Sunday.

Mesdames Ina Traxler, Gladys Menable and Belle Miller and little Mona Traxler were added to the sick list last week.

Mrs. Mitchell has been bedfast part of the time for several weeks.

Mrs. Ann Griest, of Hicksville, was the guest of David Griest and wife part of last week.

Emmett Sawyer died at Waterloo the latter part of last week. The funeral was held Monday at Waterloo, and the remains were brought to Newville for interment. Mrs. Sawyer was a Newville girl, and will be remembered as Miss Ethel Miller, daughter of Warren Miller and sister of J. Glen Miller.

The Gossip Say-

POST CARDS

are now on dispay at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratuation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent folders.

ST JOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY PUB.
ST. JOE IND.

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS

By Dr. Harry E. Barnard,
Federal Food Administrator for Indiana

Powdered sugar may not be sold except for commercial manufacturing purposes and for commercial baking. Its sale for domestic consumption and to retailers for distribution among domestic consumers is forbidden.

The foregoing shall become effective October 10, 1918, but Federal Food Administrators may permit wholesale and retail dealers to dispose of stocks then on hand, if satisfied they were purchased in good faith.

Green straw stacks are proof of wasteful threshing. Where stacks have started to turn green it is an indication that the wheat, which should have gone to the flour barrel, is sprouting and has been wasted. County food administrators are requested to report all green stacks in their jurisdiction in order that the "slacker" machine may be located and repaired before it is responsible for still greater waste. Many farmers have reported their great satisfaction at the saving effected by the execution of the program of the grain threshing division, which called for improved machinery and greater care to prevent wasted grain in the wagons and about the separators.

Beet sugar growers should have a higher price for their product, based upon prevailing sugar quotations, the food administration believes. The administration will endeavor to secure a fair price for beets in order to maintain production.

Soft drink manufacturers will be permitttd a 50 per cent. sugar supply, as compared with their 1917 consumption, after November 1. The food administration intends to conserve materials used in the bottling business, other than sugar, and will limit the latter very radically.

Official announcement has been made of the continuing policy of the food administration to support a $15.50 per hundredweight for hogs, in packers' droves, at the Chicago market. The packers have agreed to stand by the policy which is intended to guarantee pork producers of a fair return, corn and feed prices considered

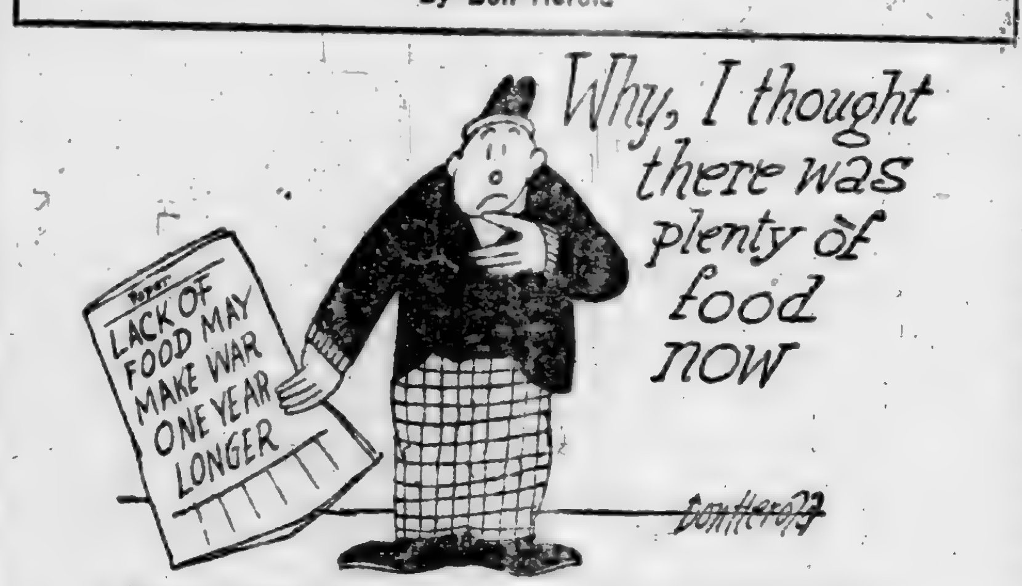
Fair price lists have been reported from thirty-three counties and the organization is being perfected in other counties of the state. On eight staples the variation has been from 50 per cent. in the retail prices of milk—from 10 cents to 15 cents; to a 20 per cent. difference in the prices of a 16 ounce loaf of bread, which range from 8 to 10 cents. In other instances there was a slight variation, usually explained by differences in freight rates. The fair price publication is the method adopted by the food administration to indicate to the consumer about what should be paid for staples, which may be the subject of profiteering in unlicensed retail stores.

There will be publishtd, October 14 a new official card for the regulation of public eating houses. The new regulations will differ from the old ones in that many are to be mandatory and will be enforced through sources of supply. In the meantime every county administrator has been asked to nominate an active hotel and restaurant chairman to assist in the enforcement of the regulations.

Enlarged demands from General Pershing for material, resulting from the progress of the American and allied forces on the western front, in France, have necessitated the temporary withdrawal of many ships from the grain carrying trade. This condition has caused a corresponding curtailment of ships from interior points, and has filled the seaboard warehouses and terminal elevators checking the entire grain movement. Yet the food administration is positively announcing that there is no occasion for farmers accepting less than the guaranteed price of wheat. They are urged to have patience as the situation is expected to clear up in a short time.

ONE-MINUTE FOOD TALKS

By Don Herold



Why, I thought there was plenty of food now
LACK OF FOOD MAY MAKE WAR ONE YEAR LONGER
Don Herold

SAVE FOOD—TO SAVE A MILLION AMERICAN LIVES.

Men who know Mr. Herbert Hoover closely say that he is always careful and cautious and conservative in every statement that he makes.

So when Mr. Hoover comes out with the remark that American people can save a million American lives by saving food, every boy and girl and man and woman in this country ought to stop and listen and think.

Mr. Hoover lived for years in Europe. He was in the middle of the war for three years. He has just returned from a trip to France. He is in as good a position to give "war dope" as almost anybody in this country. And he says that the war can be won next year.

But there is a big "If."

"If," says Mr. Hoover, "if the American people, out of their food economies, will save the food necessary to maintain the strength of the armies and allied civil populations.—

"But if," he says further, "by failure to save food and enable the United States to increase by one-third its food shipments to France, the war is prolonged to 1920, the nation is warned it will cost an additional million American lives."

Get that. Get that hard. LACK OF FOOD MIGHT CAUSE THE WAR TO RUN OVER INTO 1920. We have been in the war long enough to know that four-fifthe of a war is fought behind the lines. We know enough now to know that war does hinge on other things than actual fighting.

For the coming year (ending July 1, 1919) we must ship 5,730,000 tons more of food to Europe than we sent last year. Here is how. The food administration has figured out that if everybody eats one-half pound less per week of breadstuffs (anything made of cereals of any kind) and one-half pound less per week of meats and fats (beef, pork, poultry, dairy and vegetable oil products) than he is now eating, it will solve the problem.

That is not much for you, but it is, oh, so much for the world as a whole. To stop the war in 1919! To keep our allies strong so that Germany may be whipped decisively in 1919!

Or are you going to eat as you like and drag the war over into 1920?

A million American lives—and many others—are up to you—are in your hands.

Hollis Jackson and wife spent Sunday with Mrs. Elma Brown.

F. M. Monroe and wife spent Sunday at the Clint Lucas home.

George McCann and wife are now living on the Reuben Koch farm.

Stanley Koch, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with his parents, Charles Koch and wife.

Earl Enzor, who died at Camp Taylor a few days ago from influenza, was buried at Hamilton on Sunday.

Mrs. Addie Filley on Sunday was called to Waterloo by the death of Emmet Sawyer, the husband of her niece.

Mrs. Glen Wineland was called ed to Columbus, Ohio, on Saturday by the death of her sister's husband, Bert Woodcox.

Miss Imo Lancaster, of Angola, returned home on Lunday, after a brief visit at this place. Miss Ines Hart accompanied her.

Marvin Poper is dangerously ill with influenza at his home at Jackson, Mich.

Miss Edna Jackson spent Saturday night with her uncle, Hollis Jackson, and wife.

Subscribe for this paper.

Mrs. Sherman Wolff spent Friday afternoon at Butler.

Mrs. S. A Abel is visiting her son, Wallace Abel, near Newville.

Mrs. Ann Abel returned home on Saturday, after spending the week at Newville.

Mrs. John Gill and Mrs. Sherman Wolff spent Sunday at the Eugene White home.

Sherman Wolff and wife were Sunday visitors at the Mitch. Hanes home, near Auburn.

Mrs Newmeyer and children, of Logansport, are here the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

Sam Keesler, wife and three children—Doris, Jane and Henry—spent Sunday with Al Martin and family.

Glen Abel and wife, of Huntington, came Friday morning for a visit with his parents, J. C. F. Abel and wife.

D. J. Baker and wife, of Fort Wayne, visited over Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. F. R. Bowman, and family.

Mrs. J. B Gibford, of Auburn, is visiting relatives in this vicinity. She spent Sunday at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. B. Leighty.

George Ridgway and wife, of Waukegan, Ill., came Saturday morning for a visit with the former's mother, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, and other relatives.

Mesdames Ann Dilley and Frank Sechler spent the latter part of the week with the former's son and the latter's daughter, Hollis Dilley and wife, of Fort Wayne.

Mesdames Ella Patterson, Bessie Tustison and G. M. Barney and Misses Margaret Tustison and Pauline Barney spent Wednesday with Mrs. C. T. Bayman, of New Haven.

Harry Randall was home from Lima, Ohio, over Sunday. He reports that "Commodore" Coburn and he are employed in an army motor truck factory, one in the paint shop and the other in the assembly room.

Alberta Hart, who has been critically ill for several weeks, was taken in the Kinsey ambulance to the Lutheran hospital, Fort Wayne, Saturday afternoon. She has since undergone an operation by Dr. Duemling.

Mesdames H. C. Hathaway, Ella Patterson and Bessie Tustison and Miss Margaret Tustison on Thursday were guests of Charles Abel and wife, of Garrett. Mrs. Alice Zimmerman accompanied them as far as Auburn.

Don't Be Careless About Your Health

When the liver is not acting properly, the system becomes full of poisonous accumulations, the kidneys and intestinal glands become sluggish and a general debilitated and nervous condition exists. The blood becomes impure, the circulation sluggish and the brain clouded.

A neglected liver causes chronic constipation, jaundice, gall stones and very often cancer.

Glando Tonic acts upon the whole glandular system, of which the liver is the chief gland. If this glandular system is in good working condition, disease has no chance to fasten itself upon you. The best time to doctor is when you begin to feel tired, achy or languid.

To neglect one's self when that tired, draggy feeling is present may mean weeks of severe illness. Let Glando Tonic remove that feeling and give you life and health.

Mothers who have nursing babies should use Glando Tonic to keep their bowels well regulated and their system in good condition. This will regulate baby's bowels and help it to withstand the heat and germs of summer.

Glando Tonic can be obtained of druggists or direct from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

FALL FOOTWEAR

We have received several new styles of Men's and Women's Fall Shoes, and would advise our customers to get in early. Shoes are going to be hard to get in the styles you want.

DON'T PUT IT OFF!

Women's Fine Kid in brown or grey Goodyear welts	$8.00
Same in black, $7 and	7.50
Dress Shoes—Martha Washington, $5.50 to	8.00
Men's Fine Kangaroo, Vici Kid or Calfskin Shoes.—Thompson Bros. make, $6 to	9.00
Others down to	3.00

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP
Fort Wayne, Ind.

OCTOBER

0545

THE KITCHEN CABINET

They never taste who always drink;
They always talk who never think.
—Prior.

We live upon not what we eat, but what we digest.

FAMILIAR FOODS IN DIFFERENT WAYS.

AN ORDINARY dish may become something quite unusual and appetizing by the addition of a few well-blended seasonings.

Blanquette of Chicken.—Take one cold cooked chicken or fowl, the yolks of two eggs, one pint of chicken broth, with salt and pepper to taste. Peel four fresh mushrooms and simmer in the broth until tender. Add the chicken sliced in thin slices and cook until hot; add the beaten yolks and as soon as the sauce is smooth and creamy add the salt and pepper and a few drops of lemon juice.

Serbian Chicken.—Put a good-sized slice of salt pork into a saucepan and fry, add some minced parsley root, carrot, onion and a clove of garlic. Joint the fowl and place it in the pan; add salt and pepper. Cook in the oven one hour; then add three peeled tomatoes with the seeds removed. Continue to add to the pan enough water to baste the fowl frequently. Cook until the fowl is tender and serve with rice and bacon or minced ham for flavor. Pour the gravy over the chicken.

Baked Ham.—Soak the ham over night; in the morning scrub it and trim away any rusty part, wipe dry and cover the ham with a thick paste of bread dough, one-half inch thick. Lay in a dripping pan with a little sweet cider, basting often and adding more cider as it is needed. When a skewer will pierce the thickest part, remove the crust and outside skin, sprinkle with brown sugar and crumbs, stick with cloves and brown in the oven.

Brown the cornmeal before making it into mush, using care that it does not scorch. It will have a most tasty flavor of parched corn.

Crab Salad.—Take four cupfuls of crab meat, one cupful of well-seasoned boiled dressing, one-half cupful of cut pickles, salt and pepper, two tablespoonfuls of chopped green peppers. Mix all together and serve on lettuce.

Brown Bread.—Take one cupful each of graham, rye and corn meal, one cupful of sour milk, two cupfuls of sweet milk, two-thirds of a cupful of molasses, one egg, one teaspoonful of soda and a half-teaspoonful of salt. Steam three hours and set in the oven to dry off, after taking from the pan.

Give to your friends a cordial welcome instead of a variety of cakes and pastry.

The smile of the hostess is the cream of the feast.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

AN UNUSUAL but most palatable salad is the following: Take a cupful of crab meat, the canned variety, cut with a sharp knife into small pieces, add an equal amount of finely diced tart apple, season with salt and a few dashes of paprika, add a half-cupful of mayonnaise and serve. A little chopped green pepper may be added for variety.

Ham With Cider.—Slices of cold ham are heated in cider which has been thickened with cornstarch. Serve poured over the ham. A half glassful of apple or currant jelly with a half cupful of water and a tablespoonful of cornstarch makes a good sauce.

Cheese and Pepper Fondu.—Use two tablespoonfuls each of chopped red and green peppers, two-thirds of a cupful of corn cake crumbs, the same amount of scalded milk and cheese, one-half teaspoonful each of salt and paprika, a few grains of mustard and two well-beaten eggs. Grease a baking dish and sprinkle with the finely chopped peppers. Add the scalded milk to the grated cheese, seasonings, crumbs, and beaten egg yolks; mix well, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Turn into the baking dish and bake in a slow oven twenty-five minutes.

Chocolate Molasses Cakes.—Take one-third of a cupful of molasses, one-sixth of a cup of boiling water, one tablespoonful of shortening, one-half cupful of flour, one-fourth cupful of corn flour, one-third of a teaspoonful of soda, the same of salt and cinnamon, one and a half squares of melted chocolate and a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat thoroughly after combining as usual, and bake in small greased muffin pans.

Coconut Biscuit.—Sift two cupfuls of barley flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of shortening and one cupful of fresh grated coconut. Add the coconut milk for the liquid and roll out one-half inch thick. Brush the top with milk and bake moderately twenty-five minutes.

To be the guiding star, the ruling spirit in a true home is higher honor than to rule an empire.

DISHES WE LIKE.

A MOST appetizing dish is apples and onions cooked together and served as a vegetable. Take three pints of chopped apple and two pints of onion; if this is too large an amount for the family use cups instead of pints. Cook the onion in a little hot bacon or salt pork fat until nearly soft, then add the apple, a little salt and cayenne and a tablespoonful or two of corn sirup. Cook until the apples are brown.

Sardine Salad.—Remove the skin from eight boneless sardines and break them in pieces. Pare and core a firm tart apple, cut in very thin slices and mash with a fork. Mix the fish and the apple together, adding a little of the sardine oil from the box to make the mixture of the right consistency to mold. Shape like sardines and serve two on a nest of lettuce hearts. Serve this salad with either French or mayonnaise dressing.

Apple and Raisin Sandwich.—Chop one large apple with a third of a cupful of raisins; mix well, add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and spread on buttered graham bread; cover with another slice of buttered bread.

The rich spiced sirup left from pickled peaches may be used again another year to save sugar. This same sirup gives a delicious flavor to meat when used to baste it.

Tango Salad.—Pare, halve and core three ripe, juicy pears. Squeeze lemon juice over them to keep them from discoloring. Place a ball of cream cheese or a cube of Roquefort in the cavity of each pear. Set these on the heart leaves and pour over a French dressing seasoned with chopped red and green pepper, a dash of mustard with the olive oil and vinegar, salt and cayenne pepper.

Apple Cake.—Line a deep pie plate with pastry. Then mix together one-half cupful each of raisins, nuts and two-thirds of a cupful of honey and a teaspoonful of cinnamon; sprinkle these over the crust and cover with three thinly sliced tart apples; sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of sugar; pour over a cupful of milk beaten with one egg. Bake slowly until the custard is set, then reduce the heat and bake until the apples are cooked.

A tart, grated apple, one cupful of sugar and an egg white beaten until stiff and it will stand up, makes a fine flavored filling for a layer cake. The cake with such a filling will not dry quickly.

In all the world there is no vice,
Less prone to excess than avarice;
It neither cares for food nor clothing,
Nature's content with little, that with nothing.

FAVORITE DISHES.

THERE is such a diversity of dishes that he is indeed hard to suit who cannot find some in all menus which will please.

"Three" Ice Cream.—Take the juice of three oranges, three lemons and the riced pulp of three bananas, three cupfuls of strained honey, three cupfuls of water. Let stand one hour then pour into a freezer, add a cupful of cream and freeze. This amount will serve ten persons.

Peanut Straws.—Roll rich pastry one-eighth of an inch in thickness, spread one-half with peanut butter, wet the edges and fold the remaining half over it. Roll lightly, prick with a fork to prevent puffing up. Cut in strips a half-inch wide and four inches long. Brush with milk and bake in a quick oven. When done sprinkle with paprika.

Spanish Meat Dish.—In the bottom of a baking dish place a layer of thinly sliced potatoes. Over these lay sliced cold roast beef, chicken or any kind of cooked meat; pour over a cupful or less of good gravy. A very finely-shredded onion is then sprinkled over the gravy. Then cover with two cupfuls of thick tomato; put into the oven to bake; after an hour add a tablespoonful of cooked green peas and serve at once. Salt and pepper should be added to each layer, as the seasoning improves as the dish cooks.

Stuffed Green Peppers.—Cut off the tops of a dozen green peppers and put these bits with one small onion through a meat chopper. Add a pound of sausage meat, two-thirds of a cupful of cracked crumbs, two tablespoonfuls of catsup, one egg well beaten, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt and milk to soften. Remove the seeds, stuff the peppers and set them in a baking dish with a little warm water to keep them from sticking. Bake in a moderate oven one hour or until the meat is brown and the peppers soft.

Nellie Maxwell

STATE NEWS

Indianapolis.—The number of cases of influenza among the civilian population of Indianapolis reported to the city board of health in the last few days is rapidly approaching the 1,000 mark. Several deaths were recently reported, making a total of over forty among the civilian population. One hundred and twenty-two new cases were reported in one day. It is pointed out that the total number of cases reported to the board of health may be taken only as an indication of how the disease is spreading. No doubt in many of the cases reported more than a week ago the persons have recovered, but the health authorities say there are many cases that are not reported at all, thus making up for the difference caused by recoveries. A sufficient number of trained nurses to care for the soldiers ill of influenza and pneumonia have been on duty at Fort Benjamin Harrison and the vocational training detachments, William Fortune, president of the Indianapolis Red Cross, reported. Names are still being taken, however, at Red Cross headquarters. The epidemic is increasing throughout the state.

Evansville.—James Harvey Robinson and Charles Austin Beard, authors of a modern European history text book, adopted for Indiana's public schools, and which has been criticised because of its treatment of the world war now going on, will not be permitted to revise that part of the text for use in this state. Instead other historians will be asked to do the rewriting. The decision was reached at a conference between William Lowe Bryan, president of Indiana university, and Louis P. Benezet, superintendent of public schools here, who are both members of the state board of education and who recently were named on a committee by the board to have charge of a revision of the text book. One feature of the book objected to was that it fails to make clear what nation started the present war. Both Robinson and Beard formerly were professors at Columbia university, New York. Beard was born at Knightstown and is a graduate of DePauw university at Greencastle.

Lafayette. — Announcement was made that the truck masters training school at Purdue university here would be immediately increased to 900 men. Already there are 350 men in this course and they are being trained to take charge of army transport trains all of them being experts after they have completed the work. Nine hundred men will be selected from the training detachments all over the United States. It is also announced that a new school for army farriers would be established at Purdue. It will be composed of 20 men.

Indianapolis.—The state board of pardons turned over to Governor Goodrich recommendations in 51 of the cases considered by it at the September term, which has just closed. The other cases on its docket are continued. More than the usual lenity is shown in the report. Seven pardons, twenty-eight paroles, one release, four commutations and eleven refusals are in the recommendations. Fifteen of the persons for whom degrees of clemency are recommended are ones sentenced for life.

Anderson.—A city complaint department has been organized with Joseph Essington, city clerk, at the head. Hereafter when the people of Anderson have any complaint to make concerning electric light service, water service or conditions of alleys or streets, they will call the complaint department and a duplicate record of their statements will be made, one to be presented to the department concerned and the other sent to the board of works.

Indianapolis.—Members of the Indiana Congress of Mothers and Parent-teacher associations stand pledged not to buy any new clothes for their convention in Fort Wayne November 4, 5 and 6. The action has been taken by the board of directors as a wartime measure, and all members are expected to conform so that old clothes will Indianapolis—Indiana schools and cities did not observe national fire prevention day, as has been the custom for many years. The change is the result of a request some time ago by Secretary McAdoo that observance of the day be postponed until November 2 because of the Liberty loan campaign.

Indianapolis.—In the state-wide campaign to increase the membership of civic and commercial organizations, the drive to begin October 28. A. W. McKeand, director of extension of the Indiana state chamber of commerce, has mailed an invitation to participate to more than 100 associations.

Lawrenceburg.—H. H. Friedley, state fire marshal, has filed an affidavit against John Kearney on account of the burning of a barn at the county farm, entailing a loss of $12,000. Kearney is in jail.

Logansport.—A total of 3,816 voters have registered in Lagrange county for the November elections. This number is more than the usual number of votes cast, even in presidential years. An unusual feature was the large number of Amish citizens who registered, a class of people who seldom take any part in elections.

Shelbyville.—The first load of new corn to be brought to the Shelbyville market was sold here by George Linville to Charles P. Sindlinger. The corn, which will be used for feeding hogs, brought $1 a bushel. The grade of the corn was good.

Indianapolis.—The oats crop, with a total production of 79,500,000 bushels, is the outstanding feature of the October crop report for Indiana issued by George C. Bryant, field agent of the bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture. This is the largest crop ever produced in the state and the quality is exceptionally good. At present prices it represents a value of about $52,000,000 to the farmers of the state. Reports received the first of the month indicate that the frost on June 23 did more damage to the corn crop than was anticipated at the time. The drought during July and August also contributed to the deterioration, and probably did more damage than the frost. On something over 7,000 acres of spring wheat in the state the yield averaged slightly better than winter wheat. This is probably due to better seed and more care in preparing the soil. Most of it was on small experimental patches, but has encouraged farmers to try it on a more extensive scale next year.

Indianapolis.—Steps to obtain deferred classification for more skilled farm hands of draft age were taken at a meeting of county agents in the state house, called by Maurice Douglas of Flat Rock, agricultural advisor of the Third district draft board. It was decided to make surveys in each county to determine how many men are needed for farm operations and who should and who should not be left to uphold the second line of defense. These surveys will be made under the direction of the county agents at the request of the war department and department of agriculture, so that food production may not suffer because of the lack of men. Results of the surveys will form the basis for recommendation from Mr. Douglas to district boards.

Indianapolis. — The Indianapolis chapter of the American Red Cross has seven acres of excellent corn for sale and is ready to meet all bidders. Desiring that some practical use be made of the ground early in the year the owner plowed it and planted it in corn with the understanding at the time that the crop would be turned over to the Red Cross. The corn was not damaged by the frost of last June and has matured rapidly. It is estimated that the seven acres will yield an average of 50 bushels to the acre. It is the desire of the local chapter to sell the corn standing in the field, the buyer to remove it.

Indianapolis.—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Akin have the distinction of being the first couple to enlist at the local navy recruiting station. The husband enlisted as a gunner's mate, first class, and Mrs. Akin as a yeowoman. Mr. Akin is a previous service man, having served five years and five months in the navy. Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCoy, also of Indianapolis, are in naval service, but they enlisted 19 days apart. Mr. McCoy, who is a chief machinist's instructor in the machine gun school at Camp Saufley, Santa Rosa island, Pensacola, Fla., arrived here on a ten-day furlough. His wife is a yeowoman in the navy recruiting headquarters.

Huntington.—Ten thousand gallons of sorghum molasses will be manufactured in Huntington county this year, according to an estimate by F. A. Loew, county agricultural agent. This is an increase of 50 per cent over last year's production. The production would have been larger if many farmers had not obtained poor seed. Mr. Loew has a list of farmers who kept seed from good cane, and he hopes this will supply the entire county next year.

Goshen.—The Elkhart county board of education, which was in session here recently, will ask for deferred classifications for one year for commissioned school teachers who are in the army draft. For all other teachers, who are in the draft, no deferred classifications will be asked until such time as the supply of available women teachers is exhausted.

Indianapolis.—Banking institutions under state control show an increase in resources of more than $24,000,000 at the time of the last call, August 31, over the previous call, June 29, according to a report completed by Charles W. Kamp of the state bank department in the auditor of state's office. The increased resources are due mainly to increased deposits.

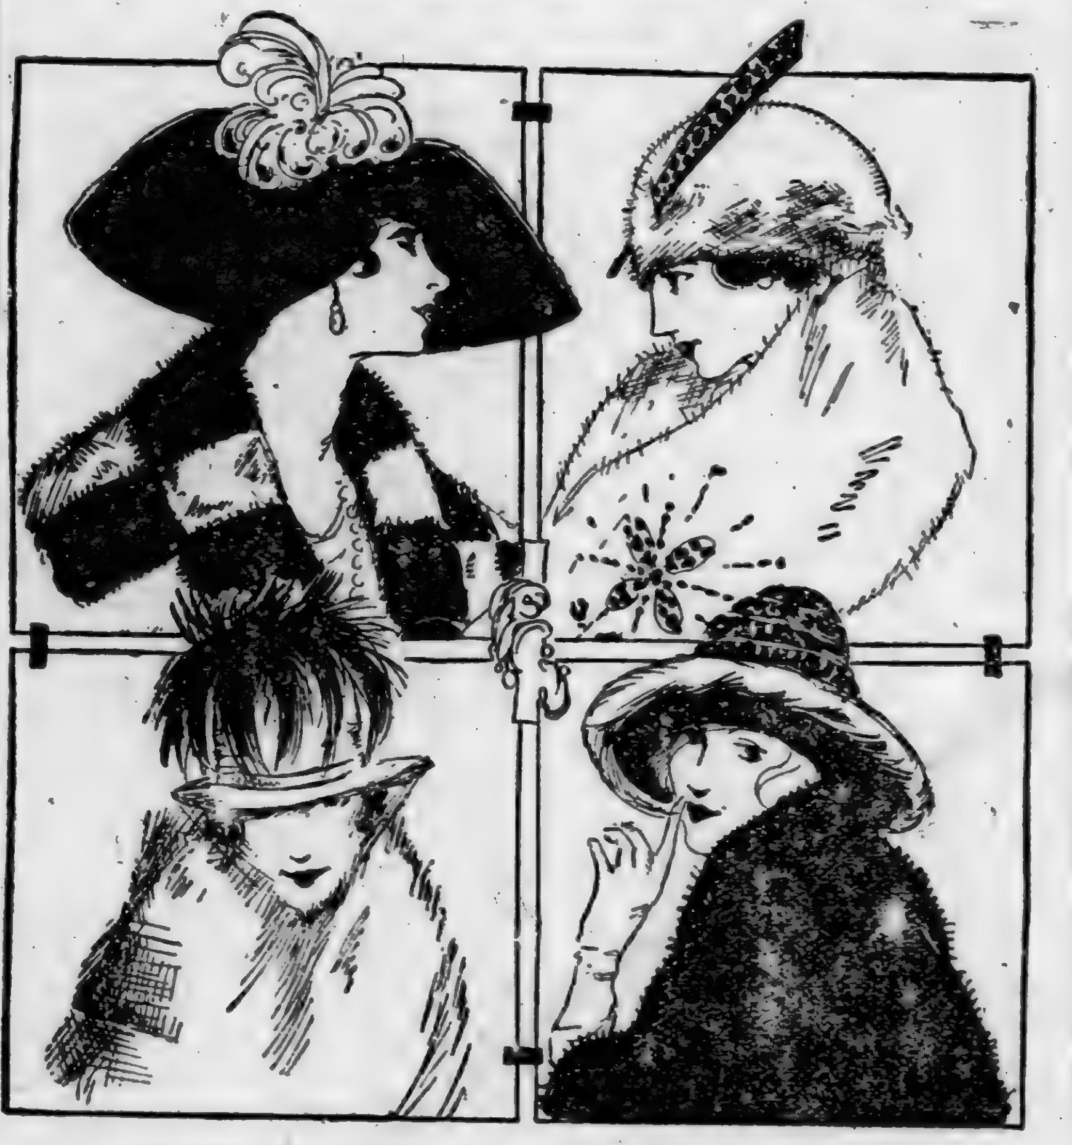
Terre Haute.—Indiana coal mines in September hoisted 2,624,750 tons of coal, according to reports from 208 mines. This was 2,884,120 tons less than in August. The fact that Labor day caused a loss of one day's work and that August was a larger month about accounts for the difference in the two months. The car situation was better in September than in August.

Indianapolis.—To maintain a united front for the protection of Indiana in freight rates, a freight and traffic bureau, as a department of the Indiana state chamber of commerce, was resolved at a meeting of representatives of that organization held here a few days ago.

Indianapolis.—Indiana was the only state in the central army department to supply its September quota of Y. M. C. A. secretaries for overseas service, leading the 14 states in the middle West for the second consecutive month.

Indianapolis.—Five eastern Indiana telephone companies merged into the Eastern Indiana Telephone company, Winchester, on consent of the public service commission. The E. I. T. company was authorized to issue $262,000 common stock to acquire the properties, valued at $257,962. The merging corporations went in at the following figures: Eastern Indiana Telephone company, $129,284; Ridgeville Telephone company, $21,177; Red Key Telephone company, $22,090; Farmland Telephone company, $29,820; Lynn Local Telephone company, $35,041.

NO NEW NOTE IN FALL MILLINERY



THE NEW HATS OBEY NO LAW, BUT SUIT ALL FACES.

(1) Adapted Anzac hat made of black satin and turned up at one side with a huge shell puff made of Nattier-blue ostrich strands. The collar is made from squares of seal and beaver, which is a new idea. (2) Shrapnel helmet of violet velvet, with sweeping willow effect in long ostrich flues of black and violet. (3) Cone-shaped Mexican hat of sapphire-blue velvet, with shirred crown and brim edged with a band of Russian squirrel. (4) Oblong walking hat in imitation of the new service caps. It is made of gray angora with a broad quill of jet beads. With this goes a neckpiece of angora heavily embroidered in jet.

New York.—There is nothing in millinery today upon which one can put the finger and say that it is definitely new, asserts a leading authority. In looking over the collection, one feels that a strong struggle goes on between the fashion for trimmed hats and the fashion for untrimmed ones.

At a meeting of all the milliners in America, which was held in New York last spring, there was a loud clamor for ornamentation in millinery. The mere mention of it brought forth the clapping of hands. Roses were desired, quills, feathers, fantasies, pieces of fur and jeweled bandings—in fact, anything and everything that would create something that has not existed for a half decade.

The desire of the French for severity and that of the Americans for ornamentation are shown, undoubtedly, in the conflicting hats of this autumn. There is nothing that has not been, and yet there is much that is good and acceptable.

Since there is no exclusive path of fashion in which all should walk if they would be in the procession, there is the more genial, broad highway, in which all types are jostled and mingled and call themselves in the fashion. All the hats of the hour are on this broad highway, and that suits the majority.

No matter what a woman chooses, she has some master designer back of her choice. To begin with fabrics, she may keep loyal to velvet, or she may dip into the caprice of the moment as it is expressed by angora, braid or even serge.

She may insist upon satin from now until next April, and she may choose it in any color that harmonizes or corresponds with her gown. She may feel inclined to avoid felt, for it is so little in the picture.

As for ornamentation, she may adopt it if she likes the idea. If she prefers simplicity, she has three dozen or more French hats at her disposal.

If she likes ostrich feathers, she may join in with the 'Arriets of London and buy herself a big, thick, curled one, place it on her head, and feel herself as correctly plumed as was Henri Quatre. She cannot buy paradise, because of a law that is greater than that of fashion, but she has a plenteous supply of hackel, monkey fur or goura to take its place. She will also find that shredded taffeta is considered as ornamental as dahlias on a turban, and she will soon realize that toothbrush fringe can be used to flicker over the surface of any hat, with good results.

Question of Brims and Crowns.

Suppose she is concerned about the shape of her hat, and if she isn't she should at once take the lesson of first aid to the ignorant. If her face demands a wide brim, let her choose that shape, and she will find that each milliner has made at least three hats to suit her fancy.

There are irregular brims; there are brims that slope upward on one side and downward on the other, with the perilous side tip of an airplane when the observer wishes to see what is happening below.

The milliners take it for granted that every woman does not wish to conceal the upper part of her face, even though fashion has gone to the most extreme limit in that line, so there are hats that roll straight away from a tight headband and spread out to astonishing proportions when they take the air. They are draped, or they are made exactly like a nice thick cream puff, with a bunch of foolish or daring little feathers coming out of the top, as though the cream were oozing out.

There are comic opera hats, but they do not play the comedy role on a woman's head. They are quite attractive. They need a veil, and a good-looking one at that, for veils are back in fashion and they may be the forerunners of gloves.

There are women who always wear both, and there is a large majority that avoid both whenever fashion allows the slightest loophole of escape. Even the French forsook veils for four or five years; but as the weather last winter demanded that they use every means of protection to their flesh and blood, veils came back as a part of costumery. They at once became ornamental and coquettish. They carried their own collars with them, and they sometimes seemed to carry the hat, which they evidently considered merely a trifle on which to rest their own ornamental selves.

These are the veils that hold good today. But it is quite probable that they will be discarded when the cold weather comes by those who will take up the two leading fashions that have been revived from two years ago: the funnel collar that envelopes the neck, the chin and the lobes of the ears, and the hat that envelopes the eyebrows, the top of the ears and the upper part of the eyelids. What in the name of all common sense can a veil do between these two?

Inspiration From the Anzacs.

We like to trace our present fashions to an immediate inspiration, to some fantastic or picturesque source that is a part and parcel of our present struggle for existence. It suits our mood better than going back to the dead and gone personages who probably figure more gloriously in literature than they did in fact.

We hate caps on women. There is something of undying coquetry in the rolling, dashing, spirited headgear as against the new street suit which is flecked with an insignia never before exploited by women—the stars of service, the insignia of rank, the colored departmental bands.

The brims of hats, therefore, are cut according to romance or shortened according to practical ideas, but the crowns are unusually high. The majority of American women have long faces—it is the racial stamp—and to such women a high-crowned hat is never becoming. The French wear it well because they have slender, oval faces, with pointed chins and delicately painted mouths; but when one puts the typical French hat of the hour above the typical American face, with its lengthened line from high cheekbone to chin and the long clean-cut line of the jaw backward to the ear, then the defects, if defects they are, stand out in a rugged prominence that is far from attractive.

The average American face needs a low-crowned hat, no matter what the brim. This is a fundamental fact that is provoked by a continental demand; it has nothing to do with the phases of fashion. We look our best in width over the eyes, not height.

Each woman, therefore, must struggle with her own problem in this new deluge bearing down upon us of high crowns. Some of them are direct imitations of coaching hats, and others rise to a peak that no Chinaman ever allowed in the turban upon which we have patterned some of our new hats.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

An inventor has combined a pencil holder, ruler, comb, envelope opener and nail file in a single compact implement.

OCTOBER

L 90

0546

Carolyn of the Corners

-BY-

RUTH BELMORE ENDICOTT

COPYRIGHT -1918- BY
DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY.

CAROLYN AND PRINCE MAKE THE ACQUAINTANCE OF AUNTY ROSE, MR. STAGG'S HOUSEKEEPER

Synopsis.—Her father and mother reported lost at sea when the Dunraven, on which they had sailed for Europe, was sunk, Carolyn May Cameron—Hannah's Carolyn—is sent from New York to her bachelor uncle, Joseph Stagg at The Corners. The reception given her by her uncle is not very enthusiastic.

CHAPTER I—Continued.

—2—

A voice calling, "Chuck! Chuck! Chuck-a-chuck!" came from behind the old house. A few white-feathered fowls that had been in sight scurried wildly away in answer to the summons.

Mr. Stagg, still looking at the little girl, set down the bag and reached for the dog's leash. The loop of the latter he passed around the gatepost.

"I tell you what it is, Car'lyn May. You'd better meet Aunty Rose first alone. I've my fears about this mongrel."

"Oh, Uncle Joe!" quivered his niece.

"You go ahead and get acquainted with her," urged Mr. Stagg. "She don't like dogs. They chase her chickens and run over her flower beds. Aunty Rose is peculiar, I might say."

"Oh, Uncle Joe!" repeated the little girl faintly.

"You've got to make her like you, if you want to live here," the hardware dealer concluded firmly.

He gave Carolyn May a little shove up the path and then stood back and mopped his brow with his handkerchief. Prince strained at the leash and whined, wishing to follow his little mistress.

Mr. Stagg said: "You'd better keep mighty quiet, dog. If you want your home address to be The Corners, sing small!"

Carolyn May did not hear this, but disappeared after the fowls around the corner of the wide, vine-draped porch. The pleasant back yard was full of sunshine. On the gravel path beyond the old well, with its long sweep and bucket, half a hundred chickens, some guineas and a flock of turkeys scuffled for grain which was being thrown to them from an open pan.

That pan was held in the plump hand of a very dignified-looking woman, dressed in drab and with a sunbonnet on her head.

Aunty Rose's appearance smote the little girl with a feeling of awe.

There was no frown on her face; it was only calm, unruffled, unemotional. It simply seemed as though nothing, either material or spiritual, could ruffle the placidity of Aunty Rose Kennedy.

She came of Quaker stock and the serenity of body and spirit taught by the sect built a wall between her and everybody else.

"Child, who are you?" asked Aunty Rose with some curiosity.

The little girl told her name; but perhaps it was her black frock and hat that identified her in Aunty Rose's mind, after all.

"You are Hannah Stagg's little girl," she said.

"Yes'm—if you please," Carolyn May confessed faintly.

"And how came you here alone?"

"If you please, Uncle Joe said I'd better prob'ly come ahead and get acquainted with you first."

"'First?' What do you mean, 'first?'" asked Aunty Rose sternly.

"First—before you saw Prince," responded the perfectly frank little girl. "Uncle Joe thought maybe you wouldn't care for dogs."

"Dogs!"

"No, ma'am. And of course where I live Prince has to live too. So—"

"So you brought your dog?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Of course," said Aunty Rose composedly, "I expected you to come here. I do not know what Joseph Stagg expected. But I did not suppose you would have a dog. Where is Joseph Stagg?"

"He—he's coming."

"With the dog?"

"Yes, ma'am."

Aunty Rose seemed to take some time to digest this; but she made no further comment in regard to the matter, only saying:

"Let us go into the house, Car'lyn May. You must take off your hat and bathe your face and hands."

Carolyn May Cameron followed the stately figure of Aunty Rose Kennedy into the blue-and-white kitchen of the old house, with something of the feeling of a culprit on the way to the block.

Such a big kitchen as it was! The little girl thought it must be almost as big as their whole apartment in Harlem "put together."

The little girl took off her plain black hat, shook back her hair and patted it smooth with her hands, then plunged her hands and face into the basin of cool water Aunty Rose had drawn for her at the sink. The dust was all washed away and a fresh glow came into her flowerlike face. Aunty Rose watched her silently.

Such a dignified, upright, unresponsive woman as she seemed standing there! And so particular, neat and immaculate was this kitchen!

Carolyn May, as she dried her face and hands, heard a familiar whine at the door. It was Prince. She wondered if she had at all broken the ice for him with Aunty Rose.

"Oh," the little girl mused, "I wonder what she will say to a mongorel."

CHAPTER II.

Going to Bed.

Mr. Stagg had fastened Prince's strap to the porch rail and he now came in with the bag.

"Is that all the child's baggage, Joseph Stagg?" asked Aunty Rose, taking it from his hand.

"Why—why, I never thought to ask her," the man admitted. "Have you a trunk check, Car'lyn?"

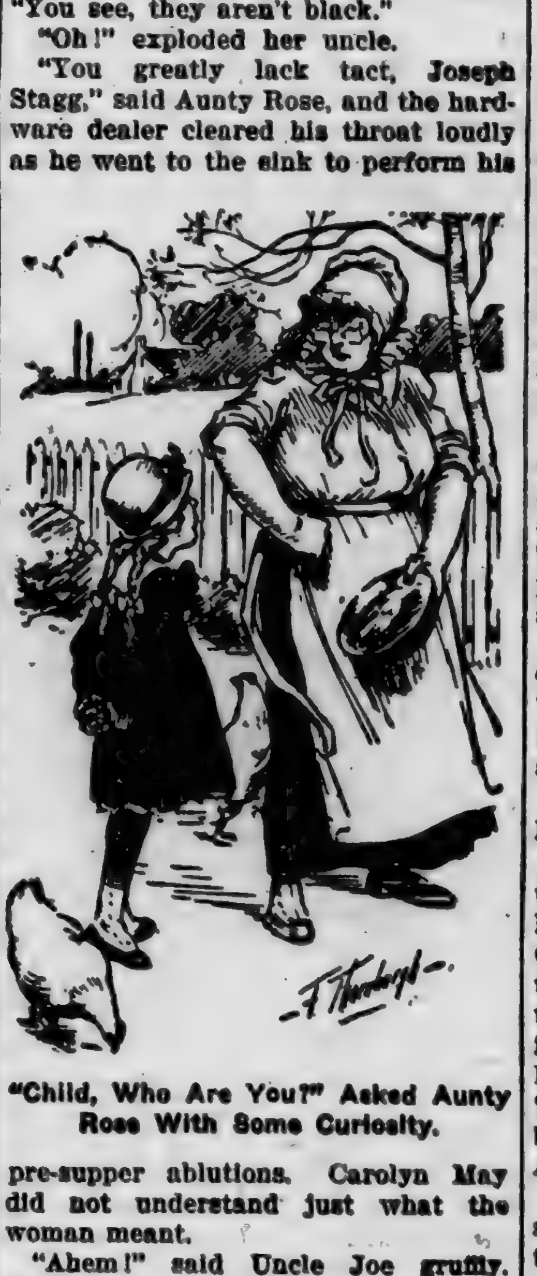
"No, sir."

"They sent you up here with only that bag?" Mr. Stagg said with some exasperation. "Haven't you got any clothes but those you stand in?"

"Mrs. Price said—said they weren't suitable," explained the little girl. "You see, they aren't black."

"Oh!" exploded her uncle.

"You greatly lack tact, Joseph Stagg," said Aunty Rose, and the hardware dealer cleared his throat loudly as he went to the sink to perform his pre-supper ablutions. Carolyn May did not understand just what the woman meant.



"Child, Who Are You?" Asked Aunty Rose With Some Curiosity.

"Ahem!" said Uncle Joe gruffly. "S'pose I ought t've read that letter before. What's come of it, Car'lyn May?"

But just then the little girl was so deeply interested in what Aunty Rose was doing that she failed to hear him. Mrs. Kennedy brought out of the pantry a tin pie plate, on which were scraps of meat and bread, besides a goodly marrow bone.

"If you think the dog is hungry, Car'lyn May," she said, "you would better give him this before we break our fast."

"Oh, Aunty Rose!" gasped the little girl, her sober face all a-smile. "He'll be de-light-ed."

She carried the pan out to Prince.

When the door closed again, Mrs. Kennedy went to the stove and instantly, with the opening of the oven, the rush of delicious odor from it made Carolyn May's mouth fairly water.

Such flaky biscuit—two great pans full of the brown beauties! Mr. Stagg sat down at the table and actually smiled.

The little girl took her indicated place at the table timidly.

"Joseph Stagg," said Aunty Rose, sitting down, "ask a blessing."

Uncle Joe's harsh voice seemed suddenly to become gentle as he reverently said grace.

Mr. Stagg was in haste to eat and get back to the store. "Or that Chet Gormley will try to make a meal off some of the hardware, I guess," he said gloomily.

"Oh, dear me, Uncle Joe!" exclaimed Carolyn May. "If he did that, he'd die of indignation."

"Huh? Oh! I guess 'twould cause indigestion," agreed her uncle.

Aunty Rose did not even smile.

"Bless me!" Mr. Stagg exclaimed suddenly. "What's that on the mantel, Aunty Rose? That yaller letter?"

"A telegram for you, Joseph Stagg," replied the old lady composedly.

"Well!" muttered the hardware dealer, and Carolyn May wondered if he were not afraid to express just the emotion he felt at that instant. His face was red and he got up clumsily to secure the sealed message.

"Who brought it, and when?" he asked finally, having read the lawyer's night letter.

"A boy. This morning," said Aunty Rose, utterly calm.

"And I never saw it this noon," grumbled the hardware dealer.

Mrs. Kennedy quite ignored any suggestion of impatience in Mr. Stagg's voice or manner. But he seemed to lose taste for his supper after reading the telegram.

"Where is the letter that this Mr. Price wrote and sent by you, Car'lyn?" he asked as he was about to depart for the store.

The little girl asked permission to leave the table and then ran to open her bag. Mr. Stagg said doubtfully:

"I s'pose you'll have to put her somewhere—for the present. Don't see what else we can do, Aunty Rose."

"You may be sure, Joseph Stagg, that her room was ready for her a week ago," Mrs. Kennedy rejoined, quite unruffled.

The surprised hardware dealer gurgled something in his throat. "What room?" he finally stammered.

"That which was her mother's, Hannah Stagg's room. It is next to mine and she will come to no harm there."

"Hannah's!" exclaimed Mr. Stagg. "Why, that ain't been slept in since she went away."

"It is quite fit, then," said Aunty Rose, "that it should be used for her child. Trouble nothing about things that do not concern you, Joseph Stagg," she added with, perhaps, additional sternness.

Carolyn May did not hear this. She now produced the letter from her lawyer.

"There it is, Uncle Joe," she said. "I—I guess he tells you all about me in it."

"Hum!" said the hardware man, clearing his throat and picking up his hat. "I'll read it down at the store."

"Shall—shall I see you again tonight, Uncle Joe?" the little girl asked wistfully. "You know, my bedtime's half-past eight."

"Well, if you don't see me tonight again, you'll be well cared for, I haven't a doubt," said Uncle Joe shortly, and went out.

Carolyn May went soberly back to her chair. She did not eat much more. Somehow there seemed to be a big lump in her throat past which she could not force the food. As the dusk fell, the spirit of loneliness gripped her and the tears pooled behind her eyelids, ready to pour over her cheeks at the least "joggle." Yet she was not usually a "cry-baby" girl.

Aunty Rose was watching her more closely than Carolyn May supposed. After her third cup of tea she arose and began quietly clearing the table. The newcomer was nodding in her place, her blue eyes clouded with sleep and unhappiness.

"It is time for you to go to bed, Car'lyn May," said Aunty Rose firmly. "I will show you the room Hannah Stagg had for her own when she was a girl."

"Thank you, Aunty Rose," said the little girl humbly.

She picked up the bag and followed the stately old woman into the back hall and up the stairway into the ell. Carolyn May saw that at the foot of the stairs was a door leading out upon the porch where Prince was now moving about uneasily at the end of his leash. She would have liked to say "good night" to Prince, but it seemed better not to mention this feeling to Aunty Rose.

The fading hues of sunset in the sky gave the little girl plenty of light to undress by. She thought the room very beautiful, too.

"Do you need any help, child?" asked Mrs. Kennedy, standing in her soldierly manner in the doorway. It was dusky there and the little girl could not see her face.

"Oh, no, ma'am," said Carolyn May faintly.

"Very well," said Aunty Rose and turned away. Carolyn May stood in the middle of the room and listened to her descending footsteps. Aunty Rose had not even bidden her good night!

Like a marooned sailor upon a desert island the little girl went about exploring the bedroom which was to be hers—and which had once been her mother's. That fact helped greatly. Then she looked at the high, puffy bed.

"How ever can I get into it?" sighed Carolyn May.

She had to stand upon her tiptoes in her fluffy little bedroom slippers to pull back the quilt and the blanket and sheet underneath it. The bed was just a great big bag of feathers!

"Just like a big, big pillow," thought the little girl. "And if I do get into it I'm li'ble to sink down and down and down till I'm buried, and won't ever be able to get up in the morning."

Joseph Stagg is filled with dismay when he learns from a lawyer friend of his brother-in-law that Carolyn has been left penniless and has been consigned to his care. His frame of mind does not promise well for Carolyn's future happiness.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Two Kinds of Allies

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON
of The Vigilantes

An Italian widow living in New York city had five sons. Four of them were born in the United States, the other in Italy. He was one year old when his parents came to New York to live. When Italy entered the war against her domineering, exacting ally three of these boys—all American subjects—lost no time in doing what thousands of other American boys already had done. Where the other thousands had cast their lot with the Canadians, the French and the British, as free-born Americans had the right to do, these three young men set sail for the land of their father, and took up the arms of their forefathers against the foe. They entered the Italian army. They were volunteers, not conscripts. Two of them had never even seen the land from which came their father and mother.

Then came the decision of the United States to engage in the conflict on the side of civilization and humanity. This old Italian mother gave her two remaining Americans to the army of the United States. They were her youngest—one of them barely eighteen—and they were as eager to fight as their brothers had been. They did not want to be drafted. They enlisted as common soldiers, and went away with the troops to France.

The old mother did not give up her boys to the armies of Italy and France. She gave them to the armies that were fighting for the things dear to them as Americans. They went as Americans, not as Italians. No matter what their father may have been when he was a boy, these boys were Americans. They loved the land in which they were born, even as their father loved the land in which he was born. They believed in the land of their birth and in its ideals, as their father and mother had taught them to believe. They did not go forth as adventurers, but as soldiers with a principle behind them.

Difference in Mothers.

A German mother in a Connecticut city also had five sons of the fighting age when the war broke out. They were all born in the United States and they were American citizens, as their father deliberately had made himself by the processes of naturalization perhaps before any one of them came into the world. Two of these sons succeeded in reaching Germany, and, like the sons of the Italian mother, took up the arms of their father's native land. No one will gainsay them the right to join the kaiser's army. They were free-born American citizens, as much so as the boys who went out to fight with the Italian, the French and the Canadian forces, and it was their individual right to fight wheresoever and with whomsoever they elected. But when the United States went into the war, did the three remaining sons offer their services to the country in which they were born, the country which had enriched their father, the country which honored them by calling them citizens? They did not. They were not Americans. They were Germans. The mother of the three young men openly declared that she would rather see them dead by her own hand than to have them take up arms against their kaiser!

The Fortunes of War.

But the fortunes of war produce strange conditions. The fortunes of war demanded that three Americans should go forth and shoot two Germans. There can be no going behind the fact that the instant the United States entered the conflict these three boys automatically became the enemies of their brothers. Their brothers had gone out voluntarily to fight with the German armies. That was their right, their privilege. They did so at the time when their native land was not lined up against the kaiser. They elected to face the bullets that were aimed at Germany, just as those other boys elected to face the shells fired at Italy. But the two Germans went out to fight for Germany because they were Germans, because they were not allowed to be anything but Germans. Their mother sent them out to die for Germany. Was she willing to send the other three out to die for the United States? NO! She preferred to kill them with her own hands. The Italian mother did not send her two remaining boys to fight in Italy but in France. They went as American soldiers. They would have gone with the American armies to fight against Italy if the call had been from that direction. She would not have preferred to kill them with her own hands.

In the great Civil war that threatened the existence of the United States of America back in 1861-65 brother fought against brother. Thousands of young men came up from the Southland and put on the uniform of blue. Their brothers, their cousins, even their fathers, were wearing the gray. The instances in which Northern-born men went to fight with the Confederate armies are notably rare. These men who came north loved their Southland with a devotion that cannot be questioned, and yet they loved their country more. They did not fight with the North because they were Northerners but because they believed in a United States of America.

Blood may be thicker than water, but it is neither blood nor water that counts in the making of an honest man. It is his heart that counts.

GOD'S WILL OR MAN'S

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY
Of The Vigilantes

If God be perfection in wisdom and love, and all powerful, why does He not stop this war? He must know of the suffering, He must feel for the sufferers, if He can why does He not end it? Grave questions, indeed, and wrung from hearts unaccustomed to doubt, by sorrow and shame and despair. God is wisdom, love and power; God knows and feels, yet the war goes on. He does not act. There is no Divine intervention! What then? Shall we, like Job's wife, curse God and die? By no means.

Let us ask ourselves the exact meaning of that clause in the world wide prayer "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven." Is that a statement of invariable ever-present fact, or is is a necessary petition? Is God's will always and everywhere and at all times being done upon earth, or is it not?

I think that statement is a petition and that it is properly included in the Lord's prayer. I am sure that God's will is not always being done, but that often and for long periods the evil will of man is being done under the inspiration of the devil. Incidently, after the experiences of the past few years I don't see how any one can doubt the existence of the devil and legions of attendant spirits of evil. He is incarnated at Potsdam, and his fallen Angels in the ravagers of the stricken lands of Europe and Asia. Have you seen that terrible cartoon in which the devil shakes his finger at the kaiser and says, "If you don't quit calling me 'God,' you will get into trouble?"

We Must Continue Free.

Will any one say to the maimed children, the outraged women, the starved men, that these sufferings are inflicted upon them by the will of God? Were Reims and Ypres and Louvain destroyed by the will of God? Does he pollute wells, and devastate fields and destroy villages? Is He responsible for Poland, Serbia and Armenia? Is the torpedo launched against the merchant ship in accordance with His will? Is He using liquid fire and poison gas? Is God accessory after the fact to murder, rape, outrage, devastation, destruction? The thing is unthinkable; the claim monstrous, impossible, incredible.

But if God be not responsible and if men are, still why does He not prevent them? A restatement of the question. The answer? Is No! We are endowed by God with free will, power to choose. That is and must be a real power else we are victims of a ghastly jest, a hideous delusion. If God has limited Himself by giving us this power we can, if we will, choose evil instead of good. Men have chosen evil and the world is suffering because of the choice. Once more you ask, why does not God withdraw from us our freedom of will, since it is abused? Because the privilege is so great, so inestimable, so necessary, that it is better even to suffer all the ills that follow upon its abuse, than that it should be withdrawn or abrogated, and we ascend to the position of automata, irresponsible beings, moved about arbitrarily by an omnipotent hand. We must work out our own salvation by the help of God. We are not children of the bond woman but of the free and we must so continue.

What Is Your Answer?

How, then, is God's will to be done? How is the war to be won? In what way is a stop to be put to all these atrocities? When men, by whatever means and searching, do discover the will of God, and after the discovery develop sufficient consecration and devotion to do the will of God, then, and not until then, will it be done.

"The Son of God goes forth to war—" Yes, always and at all times, but He never comes back a victor unless the Sons of Men go with Him.

When we find out the will of God and do it, we shall end the war, and every other evil that results from the inability or unwillingness of men to see and do that will.

Are your hearts set upon righteousness, upon doing the will of God, oh ye people of America? So the question is not of God's duty but of your own. What answer are you making?

TO GERMANY

By GEORGE STERLING,
of the Vigilantes.

Thy monstrousness stirs men no more to hate,
But nausea. What defiled and fetid sea,
What dark abysses of putridity,
Have belched thee? Thou hast reached the world too late,
For with the reptile is thy place and date;
Yet must we love the saurian, as we Find it a gentle thing compared to thee
Whose maw no blood of nurse or babe can sate.

The Abominable shall put by its crown
Because of thee. Because of thee all speech
Goes bankrupt, and imagination gains
No curse that does not bless thy black renown—
Thou, who dost hold all infamy in reach!
Thou, with the blood of devils in thy veins!

London's population includes 471,000 persons who reside in flats.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

WHAT PROHIBITION WILL AND WILL NOT DO ECONOMICALLY.

Do not think that prohibition alone, potent as it has been and trebly potent as it will be when applied nationally, will secure to a laborer his just share of the profits from his labors, and insure to the honest investor the safety of and a fair return from his investment. Do not think that prohibition alone will eliminate the waste and inefficiency, correct the positive wrong that at one and the same time leaves children to starve in great cities and apples to rot in orchard fields; that makes 10-cent bread out of dollar wheat; that creates a mob mad with hunger and cold in the same community and hour with drunken feasts that equal the debauches of decadent Rome. No, prohibition will not of itself bring in the economic millennium; but it will put out the uncontrollable fires that consume the hearts and brains of men and women who must meet this industrial crisis, who must find the plan of justice that will enable all, with the full guarantee of safety to each, to live as brothers on one sod. It will clear the air for sober thinking and equip minds and souls for constructive statesmanship. And directly it will save the nation annually $2,250,000,000, a sum so fabulous that not even the richest nation of the world may waste it without inviting disaster.—Daniel C. Poling.

W. C. T. U. WAR WORK.

Up to the middle of July the W. C. T. U. had sent four ambulances and fifteen field kitchens to France, donated twenty stereomotorgraphs to the cantonments and expended $200,000 for comfort kits. It is adopting hundreds of French orphans, contributing generously to Belgian, Syrian, Armenian, and other relief abroad, also to the relief of families of soldiers and sailors at home. It is furnishing hospital supplies in vast quantities, establishing hostess houses and home centers near the camps and supplying books, magazines and other literature to camp libraries. It has officially promoted the Liberty loans and co-operated all over the country in pushing Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and other financial drives.

A questionnaire sent out by the national W. C. T. U. war service committee as a means to compiling a record of war work done by the 20,000 local unions during the current year covers the subjects of wartime prohibition, soldiers' and sailors' relief at home and abroad, moral education, women in industry, Americanization, and shows that the white-ribbon organization has in mind, not only present win-the-war needs, but the demands of coming reconstruction days as well. Through well-organized departments of work, whose machinery was humming long before the war, the W. C. T. U. will be ready when peace is declared to do a work invaluable to the country and to humanity.

STATE RIGHTS.

"What about the state rights arguments?" some one asked Mr. William J. Bryan when discussing the ratification of the federal prohibition amendment.

"My observation is that the state rights objection disappears whenever the state declares for prohibition," replied Mr. Bryan. "If a state wants prohibition it doesn't object to having the federal government help to enforce it. Those who oppose national prohibition on that ground as a rule oppose state prohibition on some other grounds. This is not a universal rule but it is almost universal. Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Virginia and Florida are all good state rights states but their representatives in congress voted solidly in favor of the amendment. South Carolina and North Carolina were nearly solid and the amendment had its supporters in every Southern state."

THEY WISH THEIR NAVY HAD PROHIBITION.

Perhaps the most interesting thing of all is the large and increasing number of British officers who one hears speaking sympathetically, and even approvingly, of the total abstinence of liquor in force on the American ships. The fact that the officers of the latter are practically unanimous in declaring that they would never favor going back to the old regime has made a good deal of an impression on the British, and more and more frequently I hear the older royal navy officers saying that they wished they had the same antiliquor rules in force on their own ships.—From an article on "Getting Together," by Lewis R. Freeman, Lieutenant Royal Navy, in The Outlook.

ALCOHOL AND COLD.

The advocate of alcohol points triumphantly to the fact that he feels the comforting warmth produced by a glass of whisky, and adduces the experience of our men in the cold, wet trenches. Science admits the "feeling," but denies the "reality." The flux of blood to the skin gives a feeling of warmth to the individual, but it is by subtracting valuable heat from the internal organs where it is of vital importance.—William L. Reid, M. D., ex-President of the Royal Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons.

OCTOBER
L 96
0547

The man with money keeps it safe in our Bank.
GOLD $

Why You Should Have an Account In This Bank:

For Aid in Business:

2. An account here is a great business convenience.
   - —In making payments.
   - —In collecting drafts and checks.
   - —In sending remittances.
3. We loan money on good security to promote business, and we like to favor those who consistently build accounts with us.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

CAMP WITTENBERG,
SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Oct 6.

DEAR FOLKS AT HOME:—

I suppose you think I am a peach for not writing more promptly; but, as a matter of fact, I haven't had time. Still, after a little while, I can get around to write oftener, even if I have as many duties to perform as now; but, you see, this thing is all new, and a person is more or less excited.

On Tuesday at 9:30 a. m., the lieutenant had us assemble at Zimmerman field, the college athletic grounds, where we have since held our drills, and gave us instructions as to how we were to carry ourselves at the general induction exercises at the barracks. Our pictures were taken from several different positions at this time. They were taken for the newspapers, but pictures would be finished for anyone who cared for copies. I think I will wait until I can get a picture of us in uniform, and then I shall send some home.

At 11 a. m., we marched back to the barracks in company formation to attend the exercises mentioned before. Speeches by several important men, especially military men, and repeating the oath after the commanding officer constituted the exercises. At noon, I ate my first meal off the government; and on Wednesday at 1:30 p. m., I was sworn into the service finally, at which time my pay began.

A mess hall here at the barracks is not yet provided for, and we have been going down town to the Haume hotel for meals. This is quite a hike, but we get good grub; and the commanding officer announced today that we will be able to eat in the mess hall here about this coming Tuesday noon. I will like that much better unless I have to do kitchen police duty; and, of course, that would be different.

Believe me, we lads had some house cleaning time Tuesday afternoon. All rooms were cleared of all furniture except beds, the furniture being stored closely in a few rooms on the extreme top of the building. It was a bad time for a person to lose belongings, for it was just luck that a fellow got to clean his own room. You see, we were detailed to clean certain rooms; and the person that cleaned your room could easily help himself to things he might want. But, as a lucky guy, I did not lose anything.

The company of about 250 men is divided into four platoons—1st, 2d, 3d and 4th. I am in the 19th squad (first man of the rear flank) of the 4th platoon. Our three hours' drill each day is great dope to me, as it is to nearly every other member. It seems like I have learned a great deal, but I will have to wait a while yet before I am appointed gigadier brindle. But, nevertheless, I have not been bawled out or taken down for not doing right, as many have been. You see, when a man has been told how to do a thing and then retold time and time again, he is expected to do it right; and if he doesn't, he has to do the dirty work about the barracks and is put on guard Saturday and Sunday when others get passes.

I could have been off from today noon until Monday morning at reveille, which is at 6 a. m. As it was, I just took this afternoon off to go to Aunt Pearl's and got back at 7:30 p. m.

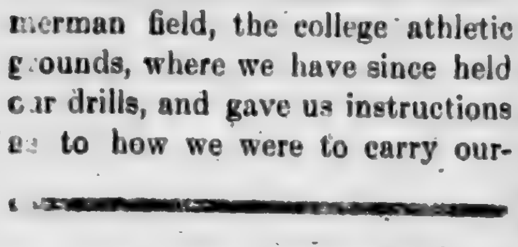
Spanish influenza, a serious, contagious disease, has broken out in Springfield, and the commanding officer has forbidden anyone from going to any public gathering, picture show, dance, etc. There are, I believe, eleven persons in our company hospital now, none of them being with this disease.

Clayton is sick as the result of being on guard duty last night. Gee! I would hate to be on guard duty tonight, because it is raining hard. I will have to go on next week some time, just as it comes my turn. I hope it will be nice.

I am separated from all the other boys from home, because I am in another squad; and we sleep, eat, march, etc., by squad.

Well, you will have to make this suffice for this time, as I am getting sleepy. Your son,

WILLIE QUANCE.



PUBLIC SALE!

The undersigned will sell at public sale at his residence, located one-half mile east of the Horn school house and 2 miles south of Spencerville, beginning at 10 a. m. on

Thursday, Oct. 24, 1918

Eighteen Head of Cattle.—Two steers coming 2 years old, 4 heifers coming 2 years old, red cow 4 years old, black Jersey 3 years old white-faced cow 4 years old, half-blood Jersey 6 years old, spotted cow 5 years old, roan Durham cow 4 years old. All the above cows are giving nice flow of milk.

Seven Shropshire Ewes.

Farming Machinery.

141 acres land Will be offered for sale on this date. Good buildings, well fenced and drained, 7 acres good timber, balance of land is tillable and crops are fine.

B. W. WELCH

RHODENBAUGH & McNAMARA, Auc's; Jerry Klopfenstine, Clk.

FRANCE, Aug. 31, 1918.

DEAR MOTHER:—

How are you all? I am all right. Did you get my other letters? How is everything around there? Tell Hazel and Lucile I am going to write to them a little later on. This is quite a country over here. Every thing is old fashioned. Most of them wear wooden shoes. The buildings are all stone. The name of the place where I am is Quincy, France It's a small town. The weather is fine. There are lots of English walnut trees here, and they hang full. How are Clark's? Expect by the time this letter gets there, you will be getting ready to move. I would not wait till it got very cold. How are grandma and Agnes? Has Wilbur had to go yet? Expect if he does, Lucile will come home. Do you hear from Dean any more? I guess this is about all I can think of at this time. Will write as often as I can. Tell the kids to write; and don't worry about me, for I am all right. Good bye.

From your son,
Pvt WALTER S. WHITEHURST.
Co. G, 154th Reg. Infantry,
American E F. A. P. O. 741.

St. Joe Locals

—‡—‡—‡—

H. F. Garton returned home from Hog Island, near Philadelphia, Wednesday evening.

—‡—‡—‡—

American soldiers fight for you—Tuberculosis fights American soldiers! County Sanitoria fight tuberculosis—This County needs a Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

—‡—‡—‡—

Mrs Verne Monroe went to Fort Wayne on Tuesday morning to visit Hollis Dilley and wife. She will also visit Jesse Copp and wife, of New Haven, before returning.

—‡—‡—‡—

Miss Lela Yocum and Ralph Wiles, of Fort Wayne, were Saturday afternoon guests of H. F. Garton and wife. Dr. Merl Ivans and family, of Fort Wayne, were also Monday guests at the same place.

We Are Always Ready
to serve you with good printing. No matter what the nature of the job may be we are ready to do it at a price that will be Satisfactory

UNCLE SAM'S ADVICE ON FLU

U. S. Public Health Service Issues Official Health Bulletin on Influenza.

LATEST WORD ON SUBJECT.

Epidemic Probably Not Spanish In Origin—Germ Still Unknown—People Should Guard Against "Droplet Infection"—Surgeon General Blue Makes Authoritative Statement.

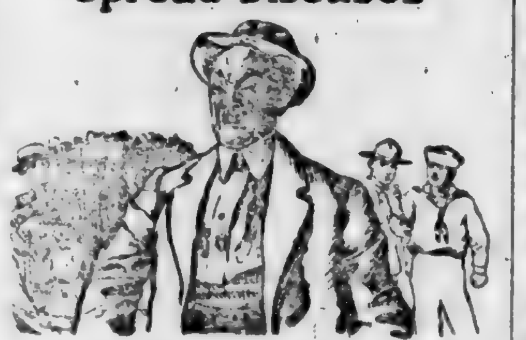
Washington, D. C.—(Special.)—Although King Alfonso of Spain was one of the victims of the influenza epidemic in 1893 and again this summer, Spanish authorities repudiate any claim to influenza as a "Spanish" disease. If the people of this country do not take care the epidemic will become so widespread throughout the United States that soon we shall hear the disease called "American" influenza.

In response to a request for definite information concerning Spanish influenza, Surgeon General Rupert Blue of the U. S. Public Health Service has authorized the following official interview:

What is Spanish Influenza? Is it something new? Does it come from Spain?

"The disease now occurring in this country and called 'Spanish Influenza' resembles a very contagious kind of 'cold,' accompanied by fever, pains in the head, eyes, ears, back or other parts of the body and a feeling of severe sickness. In most of the cases the symptoms disappear after three or four days, the patient then rapidly recovering. Some of the patients, however, develop pneumonia, or inflammation of the ear, or meningitis, and many of these complicated cases die. Whether this so-called 'Spanish' influenza is identical with the epidemics of influenza of earlier years is not yet known.

Coughs and Sneezes Spread Diseases



As Dangerous as Poison Gas Shells

"Epidemics of influenza have visited this country since 1647. It is interesting to know that this first epidemic was brought here from Valencia, Spain. Since that time there have been numerous epidemics of the disease. In 1889 and 1890 an epidemic of influenza, starting somewhere in the Orient, spread first to Russia and thence over practically the entire civilized world. Three years later there was another flare-up of the disease. Both times the epidemic spread widely over the United States.

"Although the present epidemic is called 'Spanish influenza,' there is no reason to believe that it originated in Spain. Some writers who have studied the question believe that the epidemic came from the Orient and they call attention to the fact that the Germans mention the disease as occurring along the eastern front in the summer and fall of 1917."

How can "Spanish Influenza" be recognized?

"There is as yet no certain way in which a single case of 'Spanish influenza' can be recognized. On the other hand, recognition is easy where there is a group of cases. In contrast to the outbreaks of ordinary coughs and colds, which usually occur in the cold months, epidemics of influenza may occur at any season of the year. Thus the present epidemic raged most intensely in Europe in May, June and July. Moreover, in the case of ordinary colds, the general symptoms (fever, pain, depression) are by no means as severe or as sudden in their onset as they are in influenza. Finally, ordinary colds do not spread through the community so rapidly or so extensively as does influenza.

"In most cases a person taken sick with influenza feels sick rather suddenly. He feels weak, has pains in the eyes, ears, head or back, and may be sore all over. Many patients feel dizzy, some vomit. Most of the patients complain of feeling chilly, and with this comes a fever in which the temperature rises to 100 to 104. In most cases the pulse remains relatively slow.

"In appearance one is struck by the fact that the patient looks sick. His eyes and the inner side of his eyelids may be slightly 'bloodshot,' or 'congested,' as the doctors say. There may be running from the nose, or there may be some cough. These signs of a cold may not be marked; nevertheless the patient looks and feels very sick.

"In addition to the appearance and the symptoms as already described, examination of the patient's blood may aid the physician in recognizing 'Spanish influenza,' for it has been found that in this disease the number of white corpuscles shows little or no increase above the normal. It is possible that the laboratory investigations now being made through the National Research Council and the United States Hygienic Laboratory will furnish a more certain way in which individual cases of this disease can be recognized."

What is the course of the disease? Do people die of it?

"Ordinarily, the fever lasts from three to four days and the patient recovers. But while the proportion of deaths in the present epidemic has generally been low, in some places the outbreak has been severe and deaths have been numerous. When death occurs it is usually the result of a complication."

What causes the disease and how is it spread?

"Bacteriologists who have studied influenza epidemics in the past have found in many of the cases a very small rod-shaped germ called, after its discoverer, Pfeiffer's bacillus. In other cases of apparently the same kind of disease there were found pneumococci, the germs of lobar pneumonia. Still others have been caused by streptococci, and by others germs with long names.

"No matter what particular kind of germ causes the epidemic, it is now believed that influenza is always spread from person to person, the germs being carried with the air along with the very small droplets of mucus, expelled by coughing or sneezing, forceful talking, and the like by one who already has the germs of the disease. They may also be carried about in the air in the form of dust coming from dried mucus, from coughing and sneezing, or from careless people who spit on the floor and on the sidewalk. As in most other catching diseases, a person who has only a mild attack of the disease himself may give a very severe attack to others."

What should be done by those who catch the disease?

"It is very important that every person who becomes sick with influenza should go home at once and go to bed. This will help keep away dangerous complications and will, at the same time, keep the patient from scattering the disease far and wide. It is highly desirable that no one be allowed to sleep in the same room with the patient. In fact, no one but the nurse should be allowed in the room.

"If there is cough and sputum or running of the eyes and nose, care should be taken that all such discharges are collected on bits of gauze or rag or paper napkins and burned. If the patient complains of fever and headache, he should be given water to drink, a cold compress to the forehead and a light sponge. Only such medicine should be given as is prescribed by the doctor. It is foolish to ask the druggist to prescribe and may be dangerous to take the so-called 'safe, sure and harmless' remedies advertised by patent medicine manufacturers.

"If the patient is so situated that he can be attended only by some one who must also look after others in the family, it is advisable that such attendant wear a wrapper, apron or gown over the ordinary house clothes while in the sick room and slip this off when leaving to look after the others.

"Nurses and attendants will do well to guard against breathing in dangerous disease germs by wearing a simple fold of gauze or mask while near the patient."

Will a person who has had influenza before catch the disease again?

"It is well known that an attack of measles or scarlet fever or smallpox usually protects a person against another attack of the same disease. This appears not to be true of 'Spanish influenza.' According to newspaper reports the King of Spain suffered an attack of influenza during the epidemic thirty years ago, and was again stricken during the recent outbreak in Spain."

How can one guard against influenza?

"In guarding against disease of all kinds, it is important that the body be kept strong and able to fight off disease germs. This can be done by having a proper proportion of work, play and rest, by keeping the body well clothed, and by eating sufficient wholesome and properly selected food. In connection with diet, it is well to remember that milk is one of the best all-around foods obtainable for adults as well as children. So far as a disease like influenza is concerned, health authorities everywhere recognize the very close relation between its spread and overcrowded homes. While it is not always possible, especially in times like the present, to avoid such overcrowding, people should consider the health danger and make every effort to reduce the home overcrowding to a minimum. The value of fresh air through open windows cannot be over emphasized.

"When crowding is unavoidable, as in street cars, care should be taken to keep the face so turned as not to inhale directly the air breathed out by another person.

"It is especially important to beware of the person who coughs or sneezes without covering his mouth and nose. It also follows that one should keep out of crowds and stuffy places as much as possible, keep homes, offices and workshops well aired, spend some time out of doors each day, walk to work if at all practicable—in short, make every possible effort to breathe as much pure air as possible.

"In all health matters follow the advice of your doctor and obey the regulations of your local and state health officers."

"Cover up each cough and sneeze, if you don't you'll spread disease."

A BIT OF HOME WITHIN THE CAMP

A long, low building of frame construction, attractively planned, with wide verandas and a homelike aspect. Outside are hanging the flags—the Stars and Stripes, which must soon be taken in as it is nearly sunset, and another flag bearing a little triangle of blue and the letters Y. W. C. A. It is a fall afternoon and the air is a bit sharp. Through the front windows of the house the woman approaching up the walk can see the cheerful glow of an open fireplace. There is the sound of a piano and some one is singing.

The woman, who is slight and young and tired-looking, puts her heavy suitcase down on the walk and shifts the baby she is carrying to the other arm. She listens a minute, then picks up the luggage and walks bravely up to the front door. Some one has heard her coming and is there to meet her. Some one always is in places like this. The door is thrown open and a kind woman's voice says: "Oh, do come in and rest. Let me take the baby." The baby is passed over and the stranger, worn from a long journey, tired and sad, is given the welcome which only the Y. W. C. A. hostesses know how to give.

She explains that she has come to see John before he leaves for the front. She has been saving her money for traveling expenses, and has come to surprise him. John has never seen the baby, and now maybe he never will, for she has discovered that John has just left on a two days' furlough to surprise her. Before she could get a train back to her home John's furlough will have expired and he will be on his way back to camp. The little mother does not know how to meet the situation and tears of fatigue and disappointment begin to flow.

"Well, that's too bad," says the sympathetic Y. W. C. A. worker. "But cheer up. You can just stay here for a couple of days. We'll send a wire to John at the first place his train stops and tell him to take the next train back. He can enjoy his furlough here."

This is done and the little family has a glorious day of it.

The Young Women's Christian association has established 92 hostess houses of this character for American soldiers and sailors and their families. In this brief bulletin of news lies one of the most potent factors in the winning of this war. Our boys are fighting for their homes. The Y. W. C. A. with its hostess work in this country and in France is helping to keep the ideal of American home life constantly before the men who are protecting it. These men had to go away from their individual homes, but there is a home which follows them—a place where they can go when they are off duty and meet their families and rest. There is a room in every Y. W. C. A. hostess house with a real fireplace in it and a domestic hearth. There are chairs with cushions on them; the china is not of the iron-bound bucket variety necessary in camps; and best of all, the boys say, there are nice women to talk to. No boy in camp would hesitate to ask his mother or sister or the girl he thinks most of to meet him at a Y. W. C. A. house, for he knows that the women she will see there are of the right kind. The very fact that it is known that there is a real, homey place near each camp authorized by the war department and presided over by dignified and refined women, has served very largely to discourage the other type of woman and keep her away from the men she formerly preyed upon.

The Y. W. C. A. houses are not established with any view to marking class lines, however, although many of the hostesses who assist led lives of greatest ease and luxury before the war. Democracy rules at the sign of the little Blue Triangle.

A story is told of a great merchant's wife whose individual fortune mounts to the million mark. This lady is a member of one of the Y. W. C. A. committees, and on one occasion she was helping in the cafeteria of a hostess house at the Great Lakes naval training station. A little shopgirl who had a "day off" from her work in the basement of the great store owned by the Y. W. C. A. worker's husband, and who had come to see her sailor brother, was in a State street hurry for service. She sharply ordered the merchant's wife to "look alive with these forks, girlie."

The lady addressed as "girlie" quite humbly saw to it that the pile of forks was replenished. Then she went over and talked to the girl, helped her to locate her brother and sent her away happy. The shopgirl never knew that she had been talking to her employer's wife.

There are two hostess houses at the Great Lakes station, and it is a wonderful sight to see the crowds of women relatives and friends of the sailors who throng to them on the Wednesday drill afternoons. From 1,000 to 3,000 persons a day are cared for in the cafeterias, and the nurseries are full of sailor babies, whose mothers can leave them there safely while they are on the grounds.

In addition to the hostess house work in this country the Y. W. C. A. has established the famous Hotel Petrograd in Paris as a center for transient women war workers overseas. There are also many foyers or recreation centers in France where girl munitions workers, signal corps girls and others are refreshed and brightened by association with the play leaders of the Y. W. C. A. who have introduced American gymnasium classes into French life.

OCTOBER

L 90

0548

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXII ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24 1918 NO. 43

Mrs. Schlosser's Death

The sad intelligence of the death of Mrs. W. K. Schlosser, of Plymouth, was received here Tuesday afternoon, several hours after the end came. Her death occurred at her home and was due to influenza. Further details the NEWS has been unable to secure. Deceased is survived by her husband, Dr. W. K Schlosser, and two young sons.

The duty of chronicling the death of one whom he esteemed is not a pleasant one for a newspaper man; but his work is lightened by the thought that he can speak well of the departed and, at the same time, speak truthfully. Mrs. Schlosser came to St. Joe in 1913 --came here with her husband, a happy bride; and it is hard to think that a life so full of promise as was hers should have such an untimely ending. Her stay among us was short—a little over two years; but during that time, by her kindliness, by her irreproachable character and by her consistent Christian life, she endeared herself to our people. She was a lady in the full acceptance of that term. What more can be said?

Last Call to Pay Up

The publisher of the NEWS dislikes to remind his subscribers of the new postal regulations about paying in advance. The provisions of the law were printed in this paper for three successive weeks and notices were mailed to all those in arrears. A number of subscribers have paid no attention to these repeated warnings—some through carelessness, we think; others passing it by with the thought that it can be attended to on the next visit to St. Joe. We wish to say for the last time that the publisher of a newspaper has no option in the matter—subscriptions must be paid in advance. It is not a question of honesty nor ability to pay. Next week the time limit to pay up ends. After that, only those who have paid in advance will receive papers. Our friends are requested to give the matter immediate attention.

* * *

T. H. Shull, residing near Coburntown, was operated upon on Wednesday of last week for hernia. The operation was performed by Dr. Sheffer, assisted by Drs. Shook and Farnham. The patient is doing well.

FOODS

Ryde's Calf Meal, Hominy Feed, Buttermilk Feed, Cotton Seed Oil Meal, Flax Seed Meal, Wheat Bran, Gold Medal Flour, Aristos Flour

SUBSTITUTES

Corn Meal, white and yellow; Rye, Barley and Corn Flour; Hominey for table use.

Oyster Shells...
...Scratch Feed

COKE

We expect a carload of Coke for hard coal burners today—The last carload this serson.
Phone in your orders.

The Steward Lumber & Grain Co.
Spencerville, Indiana

IF YOU

are not a patron of this Bank consider this an invitation to become one. We know our relations will be mutually profitable. The possession of a bank account should be a

Don't forget

Matter of Interest to every Member of the family.

You insure your property against fire. Why not insure your loved ones against poverty? It's wise to open an account toyay.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

E. I. Lewis, Chairman
J. W. McCardle
C. A. Edwards
Edwin Corr
Paul P. Haynes
Commiss'nrs
Carl H. Mote, Secretary

Public Service Commission of Indiana
INDIANAPOLIS

October 18, 1918
File I. R. C. 628

FRED B. LEIGHTY,
St. Joe, Indiana.

Dear Sir: The Public Service Commission of Indiana will hold a hearing on complaints received from patrons of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in the matter of the discontinuance of stops by Baltimore & Ohio trains at said town of St Joe, and also other matters of service. This hearing will be held in the City Hall at Garrett on October 29, 1918, beginning at 1 p. m.

Kindly accept this as notice of hearing and govern yourself accordingly. Please give notice through your paper of this hearing.

Very Truly Yours,
CARL H. MOTE, Secretary.

EIL RC

The foregoing letter needs no comment. It is now up to the people of St. Joe to do something. If the town is properly represented by leading citizens and the matter is properly presented to the public service commission, No. 6 can be made stop here again. All depends upon St. Joe, however; and the subject is of importance enough to enlist general attention. While about it, too, why not do it right? Insist on the train's stopping to let off passengers from Garrett. That would accommodate the public west of Garrett, to which place they could come on the evening plug train and thence here on No. 6. As it is now, passengers from points between Chicago and Garrett can not reach here within twenty-four hours.

At the same time, why not call attention to the punk telephone service? That needs remedying as much as the train service.

FROM The BOYS in SERVICE

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 6, 1918.

DEAR DAD AND MOTHER:—

Received your welcome letter today noon. I am glad you like the service pin. Have you received my allotment for September yet? I was paid $8.50 for August. I didn't get it until the last half of September, and have $3 59 at present. That will last me quite a while, as I am now in quarantine. I also expect my September pay next week. So I will be pretty well "heeled."

School will start next week, so I hear. You can hear most anything in the army. I also heard that the 305th battalion would leave here by the 15th, but you never can tell.

Was on guard last night. I was on the first relief, which goes on from 5 till 7 p. m. The officer of the day came around about 7 o'clock and asked me if I knew my orders and what they were. I told him my orders were divided into two classes, special and general. He says: "What is your second general order?" I says: "To walk my post in a military manner, keeping always on the alert and observing everything that takes place within sight or hearing." He says: "What is your eighth?" I says: "In case of fire or disorder, give the alarm." Then he says, "That's all;" and I saluted by presenting arms, and he walked away to try to catch some other guard napping.

Oct. 7, 8:40 p. m.—Just finished reading the ST. JOE NEWS, received today. Tom seems to be having a good time now. He doesn't say whether he is getting any drilling or not. I'll bet if he was with me, he would feel a trifle different. I sure have had a busy week, having been on guard Saturday and Sunday and today on kitchen police; but I can consider myself lucky, for the company commander got "hard boiled" today and took names of boys who made mistakes in drilling and made about half the company drill for two hours from 7:30 till 9:30 p. m. He said he was ashamed to have them seen drilling in the daytime. I'll bet the "cap" thought that was come joke.

I haven't got the Spanish "flu" yet, and am hoping I can dodge it. We have several cases of it here, but have had no deaths yet.

Last evening, we had one of the Tar-heels doing jig dancing. They sure do some fine dancing. He would dance awhile and then pass the hat. Then tell stories and dance some more. After awhile, he would get tired and stop. Some one would try to start him dancing again and he would say: "You all will dance me to death tonight and then kill me doing detail tomorrow." We sure have some fun with them. The other day, a couple of them were quarreling and one called the other a "black nigger" (the one who said it was of lighter complexion). So the "black one" said: "What are you? You're neither white or black. You're nothing." There are about 400 "niggers" here now, and they sure are one happy bunch. They were brought here to build the camp. The government has taken over about 900 acres of land.

Well' it's 9:30 and the "moonlight squad" has just come in making all the noise possible. So I will close. I remain your loving son,

PVT. CHAS. P. BASSETT,
Co. C, 305th Bat., Camp
Polk, Raleigh, N. C.

Samuel Denny Johnston
REPUBLICAN
Candidate FOR AUDITOR of DeKalb County

In appealing to the public for support, I wish to make this statement: On account of being requested to act as Registration Clerk for Keyser and Richland townships, the duties of which have taken up my entire time until now, I have been unable to meet all the voters face to face, as I should like to have done: therefore I make this public statement. Any favor shown will be gratefully received." Yours respectfully,
Samuel Denny Johnston

DO IT NOW

Send us the price of a year's subscription if you are in arrears.

We Need the Money

DeKalb Co. over the Top

DeKalb county did just what everybody expected she would do—went over the top on the fourth Liberty loan. The quota was $650,000; total amount subscribed, $818,600, or $168,600 to the good. The number of subscribers in the county numbered 4,082, not including the B. & O. employes at Garrett. The banks in this vicinity made the following reports:

Farmers & Merchants Bank, Spencerville.—Subscribers, 210; total subscriptions, $25,000.

St. Joe Valley Bank.—Subscribers, 186; total subscriptions, $29,650.

The B. & O. Liberty loan car was here twice. The second time it was here local railroad men subscribed $600. This should be credited to Concord township, and would make a total of $30,250, or $250 more than the quota.

Going to Hunt Deer

Next week, H. M. Widney starts on his annual hunting trip. He will be gone two weeks, and will be accompanied by L. L. Dennison, of Garrett. Instead of going to Maine, as has been Mr. Widney's custom, they will go to the province of Quebec, Canada.

Girl Dies Suddenly

Word comes to St. Joe friends that Miss Roberta, the 16-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dixon, died within the past week at the family home at Wajameja, Mich., where the doctor has charge of the state home for epileptics. The young lady had been in poor health for several years with an affliction of the heart, although her death came as a great shock to her family and friends.

Mr. Dixon will be remembered as superintendent of the St. Joe public schools some years ago.

Vote With Co. Clerk

Voters who expect to be absent on election day can go to the county clerk and vote before leaving. This arrangement has been made for the convenience of absent voters.

Patronize the advertisers.

American soldiers fight for you — Tuberculosis fights American soldiers! County Sanitoria fight tuberculosis —This County needs a Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

Ed Leighty Buys Eggs

I am again buying eggs at my grocery, for which I will pay 50c per dozen and the rise of the market. Sugar, 10c; 8 ounces per person per week is the allotment.

ED LEIGHTY, St. Joe.

Death Is a Mystery

Mystery surrounds the death of Edward H. Ross, of Garrett, who, Sunday evening, was found in an unconscious condition at the foot of a stairway leading to rooms over Duerk's soft drink thirst parlor. Whether he was the victim of foul play or whether he fell down stairs accidentally is being investigated. Officers are inclined to believe that Ross had been drinking.

The unfortunate man was taken to the Sacred Heart hospital, where he died early Monday morning. He never regained consciousness.

* * *

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

POULTRY

The Highest Market Price Paid for Poultry of All Kinds

W. A. G SMITH,
MEAT MARKET

Highest Market Prices paid for Hides and Pelts of All Kinds.

YOUR Life Insurance!

Our Policy Provides for Waiver of Premium--

10 % Income of face amount of Policy each year for total dissability.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY and ANNUAL DIVIDEND

Let me show you the MUTUAL LIFE POLICY.

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

COAL!

in our bins more on the way. Best Indiana Lump that money will buy. Get yours before the COLD weather sets in.

Best market for all your grains and seeds. Don't forget to take a sack or two of Schumacher home with you, best Hog Food Ever.

Call on us always glad to see you. If we have not got what you want we will try and get it for you. Highest prices paid for all grains at all times.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Manager

OCTOBER

There was never a time when the sacrifices and the help of women were more appreciated than at the present time. Women should learn war-nursing and nursing at home. There is no better way than to study the new edition of the "Common Sense Medical Adviser"—with chapters on First Aid, Bandaging, Anatomy, Hygiene, care of the Sick, Diseases of Women, Mother and Babe, the Marriage Relations—to be had at some drug-stores or send 50c. to Publisher, 654 Washington Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

If a woman suffers from weak back, nervousness or dizziness—if pains afflict her, the best tonic and corrective is one made up of native herbs and made without alcohol, which makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is the prescription of Dr. Pierce, used by him in active practice many years and now sold by almost every druggist in the land, in liquid or in tablets. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c. for trial pkg. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are also best for liver and bowel trouble.

Laporte, Ind.—"When approaching middle life I suffered severely. I had never before suffered with any sort of womanly weakness and I was very much afraid that it would go hard with me, but one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription completely removed my pains and the critical time passed so easily that I was scarcely consciou of it. It is fifteen years since I took that one bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' and I am just as strong and well as can be and have never had the least sign of weakness since. I think it the most wonderful medicine for women and would advise its use by all women at the critical time of life."
—Mrs. S. J. Baker, 916 Scott St.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 43--1918.

Pity for Benedict.

"All men who get married are not fools." "No; some are merely unfortunate."—London Tit-Bits.

For speedy and effective action Dr. Peery's "Dead Shot" has no equal. One dose only will clean out Worms or Tapeworm. Adv.

COULD ANYTHING BE SIMPLER

Yet Probably Many Who Have Suddenly Dismounted From Mule Never Saw Things That Way.

A young soldier was watching the efforts of his fellow privates to ride a refractory mule. Not one of them could stay on its back for two seconds.

At last the looker-on approached and drawled:

"I say, let me show you how it's done."

"Come on, then," said the soldiers.

The youth sidled up to the mule, swung himself on the animal's back, wrapped his legs beneath its body and took a firm hold on the reins. The mule made a slight effort to dislodge him, but the man stuck. Another slightly more strenuous effort by the mule also failed. Then, laying his ears back, and taking a deep breath, the mule shot his heels into the air at an angle of 65 degrees, and the young man was propelled to the ground.

He slowly arose to his feet, screwed his face into a smile and said:

"Now, that's the way, boys! When you see he's goin' to pitch you off, just get off."

Youthful Dodger.

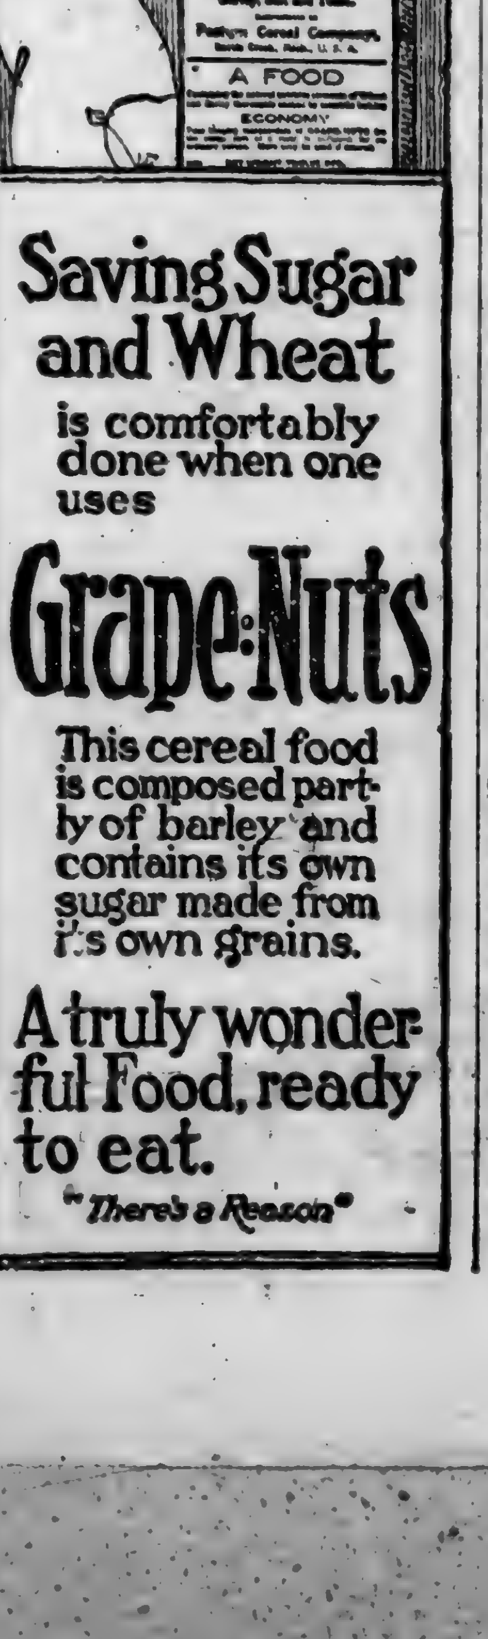
"Did you find any hard problems in your lesson, Tommy?"

"No, ma'am," answered Tommy. "I didn't look for any."—London Answers.

Personal.

He—The fools are not all dead yet.
She—That's as sure as you live.—Boston Transcript.

Not strange that the Huns destroy the trees on the French farms. A criminal doesn't like a tree.



Grape Nuts
A Compound made of Wheat, Barley, Salt and Yeast.
Postum Cereal Company,
Battle Creek, Mich., U. S. A.
A FOOD
ECONOMY

Saving Sugar and Wheat is comfortably done when one uses
Grape-Nuts
This cereal food is composed partly of barley and contains its own sugar made from it's own grains.
A truly wonderful Food, ready to eat.
"There's a Reason"

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The hero we love in this land today
Is the hero who lightens some fellowman's load—
Who makes of the mountain some pleasant highway,
Who makes of the desert some blossoming road.

The ones who mean to win their stars
For the deeds they shall have wrought
Won't have too many sleeping cars
Attached to their train of thought.
—Nixon Waterman.

A FEW SNACKS.

FOR a small company when supplies are limited, a salad is the dish upon which we all rely. A most tasty and attractive one is this that was the invention of necessity, for one cucumber, one tomato, and one large apple served a happy salad. The apple was peeled and cored, then cut in thin rings and dropped in cold water with a little vinegar; this keeps the apple from turning brown. The cucumber was chopped or cut in fine cubes; and one small onion was also cut in the same manner. The slices of apple was heaped with the onion and cucumber mixture, which had been well seasoned and mixed with salad dressing and garnished with a strip or two of red pepper. The tomato was heaped with a teaspoonful of the salad dressing and garnished with two or three strips of green pepper.

National War Garden Commission

Cheese Dreams.—With a biscuit cutter cut circles from slices of close-textured bread. Lay on thinly sliced cheese, place another circle on it in the form of a sandwich, and brown lightly in a little olive oil in a hot frying pan.

Hot Cheese Sandwiches. — Break open hot baking powder biscuit, butter, and lay in a thin slice of cheese. Cover with a hot cloth and serve quickly as the cheese should be melted at once. These make a most dainty lunch with a cupful of tea and a dish of fruit.

Tomatoes With Eggs.—Peel small firm tomatoes, scoop out the centers which may be used as a soup or in sauces, season well inside and out with salt and paprika and put in the oven, cook until boiling hot, then remove. Drop in a piece of butter and an egg, using care not to break the yolk. When the egg is firm, remove from the oven and serve on buttered rounds of toast. Leftover greens of any kind that are cooked and seasoned may be molded in small cups and served as a salad with a good dressing. Small balls of cottage cheese are good with these.

The white-fleshed fishes, such as cod, whitefish, haddock and halibut, make most acceptable dishes served in a white sauce.

Age is an opportunity no less
Than youth itself, though in another dress;
And as the evening twilight fades away
The sky is filled with stars invisible by day.

A FEW PUREES.

PUREE is commonly known as a thickened soup. The kinds of purees are without limit.

National War Garden Commission

Puree of Cucumber.—Peel, slice and parboil six cucumbers. Drain and fry in butter, season with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Dredge with four tablespoonfuls of flour, add two quarts of milk and one quart of veal stock; cook 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Rub through a sieve, reheat, add one cupful of scalding hot cream, season with sugar and butter and serve with croutons.

Puree of Beans and Rice.—Put a quart of beans into a soup pan with a little salt, a small onion, a slice of carrot, a tablespoonful of fat, a sprig of parsley and boiling water to cover. Cook until the beans are soft, rub through a sieve and add sufficient veal stock to make the desired quantity of soup. Season to taste, add two tablespoonfuls of butter substitute and a cupful of boiled rice. Reheat and serve at once.

Puree a la Croissy.—Put into a saucepan a carrot, a turnip and an onion cut fine, two cupfuls of beans, two leeks, a stalk of celery and a small bunch of parsley. Fry in butter, dredge with flour, add a can of tomatoes and two quarts of veal stock. Simmer for two hours, rub through a sieve, reheat, season with salt, pepper, sugar and butter. Add one cupful of cooked green peas and one cupful of boiling cream. Serve with croutons.

Puree of Celery.—Cut two bunches of celery into small pieces, parboil and drain, then fry in butter. Add salt, pepper and nutmeg to season; cover with veal stock and simmer one hour. Blend two tablespoonfuls of butter with two of flour, add a quart of veal stock and the celery and cook until thick. Rub through a sieve, reheat, add two cupfuls of hot milk, a pinch of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. Serve with croutons.

The soup needs to be but opened and heated, adding a dash of paprika or a bit of onion or cooked rice and it is ready to serve.

WHAT TO HAVE FOR BREAKFAST.

NO MONTH is known, even in the summer time, when griddle cakes are not welcomed in the average family. In a large majority of hotels hot griddle cakes are always on the bill of fare, summer or winter, and in many, the cake is a favorite finish for the night meal.

National War Garden Commission

Corn Flour Griddle Cakes.—Beat one egg very light, add a cupful of good rich buttermilk or sour milk, a half-teaspoonful of salt and a half-teaspoonful of soda, a quarter of a teaspoonful of baking powder; then add enough corn flour to make a thin batter. Cook on a hot griddle. The secret of a good tender cake is the materials used, sour or buttermilk making most tender and fluffy cakes, then the care with which they are baked.

A breakfast, which is quite satisfactory, is the following: Either a dish of sliced peaches or a canteloupe or muskmelon, a dish of well-cooked oatmeal, and if the peaches are served, they may be eaten with the cereal, cream and sugar, an egg on toast and a cupful of coffee.

Pears, plums, quinces and grapes are all in the market and furnish a good variety. The quinces are to be stewed or baked to make them palatable.

Scrambled Eggs a la Guerre.—Make a paste of a cupful of milk and a third of a cupful of flour—any kind may be used; cook until smooth and the starchy flavor is entirely removed. Now add three eggs, stir and cook with butter and seasoning until the eggs are thick. Serve at once.

Kentucky Batter Bread.—Take two cupfuls of cornmeal, three eggs, well beaten, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted fat. Mix with milk to make a thin batter. Pour into shallow buttered tins and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven.

Rice With Eggs.—Brown a third of a cupful of rice in a little sweet fat, season and add broth or water, cook until the rice is tender, then stir in three eggs and serve hot at once.

We search the world for truth; we cull
The good, the pure, the beautiful,
From graven stone and written scroll,
From all old flower-fields of the soul;
And, weary seekers of the best
We come back laden from our quest
To find that all the sages said
Is in the book our mothers read.
—John G. Whittier.

COMMONPLACE LUNCHEONS.

A MOST tasty dish to serve hot for a main dish is a combination of fish, potato and white sauce.

National War Garden Commission

Escalloped Fish and Potato. — Prepare creamed salmon by melting one tablespoonful of butter, adding two of flour, stirring until the mixture is smooth. Then add a cupful of milk, salt and pepper to taste; add the can of drained fish after the sauce is well cooked. Put a layer of the creamed fish into a baking dish, cover with a layer of cold mashed potato, then another layer of fish until all is used. Have the potato for a finish to the top. Dot with bits of butter, sprinkle with salt and paprika and bake in moderate oven.

Salmon Rice.—Line a buttered mold with cold boiled rice left from breakfast, fill the center with creamed salmon and cover with more rice. Cover mold and steam half an hour or more. Serve with a cream sauce, which may be seasoned with curry, lemon juice or chopped sour pickle.

Fruit Popovers.—Take one cupful of flour, one egg, unbeaten, one cupful of milk and half a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of baking powder; mix all together and beat well. When the gem pans are sizzling hot and well greased drop in the batter, filling each pan half-full; add a piece of banana, a spoonful of blackberries or any fruit. Bake in a hot oven until a golden brown. These may be served with a simple fruit sirup for dessert.

Tongue and Potato Salad.—Cut cold cooked pickled lambs' tongues into dice; mix with double the quantity of cold boiled potatoes; cut in dice and add hard-cooked egg, finely chopped. Pour over a French dressing and serve.

Baked Sausages With Rice.—Cut large pork sausages into thin slices; butter a baking dish and fill with cold boiled rice. Moisten the rice with cold water in which a little beef extract has been dissolved. Spread the sliced sausages over the rice and bake in a hot oven until the sausage is crisp.

Nellie Maxwell

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BROTHER BACON'S WORD.

"Grunt, grunt, what's the news?" asked Grandfather Porky Pig.

"Well," said Brother Bacon, "they say that it's going to be a fine day tomorrow."

"Who in thunder do you mean by 'they?'" asked Grandfather Porky Pig, crossly.

"I mean people when I say 'they,'" said Brother Bacon. "At least I meant it just now when I said 'they,' and it is of this occasion we are talking."

"Hum," grunted Porky Pig; "you are being very smart in your manner of speaking, eh?"

"Maybe so," said Brother Bacon, "but if I were in your place I wouldn't speak of thunder when I had just heard it was going to be a fine day tomorrow."

"Why not?" asked Porky.

"Because," said Brother Bacon.

"That's a fine reason," squealed Porky Pig. "Yes, that is most assuredly a fine and noble reason."

"I'm a pig," said Brother Bacon.

"I know it," said Grandfather Porky.

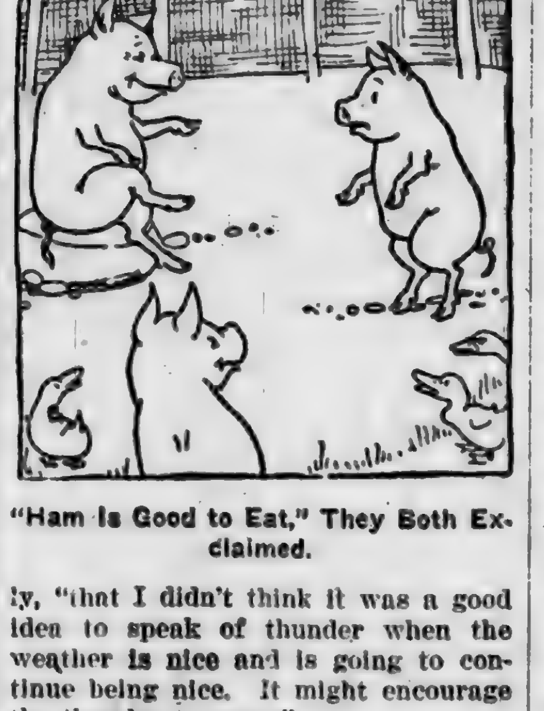
"And I'm not a professor or a teacher or a scholar," said Brother Bacon. "Such people may know the reasons for everything, but I don't. Pigs aren't supposed to be so awfully wise."

"I thought you might have given a slightly better answer than you did, though," said Porky Pig; "even though you are a pig."

"I can if you will give me time," said Brother Bacon.

"Take your time, take your time. Your time means nothing to me," said Porky Pig. "My time means nothing to me except when it is meal time. Then I feel differently about time, for I am in a hurry to grab the goodies."

"I meant," said Brother Bacon slowly, "that I didn't think it was a good idea to speak of thunder when the weather is nice and is going to continue being nice. It might encourage the thunder to come."



"Ham Is Good to Eat," They Both Exclaimed.

"Nonsense," squealed Porky Pig. "You have silly ideas. If it's going to thunder, it's going to, and it will take more than a couple of pigs from the barnyard to stop it, I can tell you.

"There, now! What do you think of that for superior pig brains?"

"I believe they have a food called pig brains," said Brother Bacon.

"Have the delicacy, young Pig, to leave my name out of conversation when you are mentioning foods. That is—only mention my name as being the one to whom to give things to eat. I don't wish to be spoken of as a food for others."

"Oh, all right," said Brother Bacon. "I won't speak of salt pork and roast pork and pork chops any more."

"You're very rude," said Porky Pig. "Very rude. Let me reply, however, by saying that bacon is a fine breakfast food, a splendid breakfast food. And it's especially nice on a picnic."

"Well," said Miss Ham, joining the other two, "what is this strange conversation I hear?"

"Ham is good to eat," they both exclaimed together.

"Well, Porky Pig and Brother Bacon," said Miss Ham, "you have no consideration and kindness."

"We started trying to hear the news—that is, I wanted to hear it," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

"And I tried to give it to you," said Brother Bacon.

"Well, if you can't talk about anything more interesting than the weather, I don't think much of your conversation," said Porky Pig.

"The weather is very interesting," said Brother Bacon, squealing and twisting his little tail angrily; "it can be snowy, rainy, sunny or moony. That is, I believe it can be moony, although I don't think there is such a word, but if there isn't I'll make it up, for there is certainly weather when it's fine and when it's clear and when it's night and the moon is shining, or gleaming or beaming or whatever the moon does do.

"So if we speak of sunny weather and rainy weather, we should speak of moony weather, too, when the moon is out, looking down at the pig pen."

"I fancy the moon has something else to look at besides pig pens," said Porky Pig, "although I am worth looking at!"

Can't Be Answered.

Willie—Mother, why does it rain?

Mother—To make the grass and vegetables grow and the strawberries you love so well.

Willie—But why does it rain in the streets?

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

LINCOLN ON THE TEMPERANCE REVOLUTION.

An early speech of Abraham Lincoln's, says a magazine writer, "does not appear to have been quoted as often as some others. One wonders why." Speaking in Fourth of July vein, Lincoln said:

"Of our political revolution of 1776 we are all justly proud. It has given us a degree of political freedom, far exceeding that of any other of the nations of the earth. In it the world has found a solution of the long mooted problem as to the capability of the man to govern himself. In it was the germ which has vegetated, and still is to grow and expand into the universal liberty of mankind."

"Turn now," he proceeded, "to the temperance revolution. In it we shall find a stronger bondage broken, a viler slavery manumitted, a greater tyrant deposed. In it more of want supplied, more disease healed, more sorrow assuaged. By it no orphans starving, no widows weeping. By it none wounded in feeling, none injured in interest. Even the drammaker, and dramseller, will have glided into other occupations so gradually as never to have felt the shock of change, and will stand ready to join all others in the universal song of gladness."

NEVER AGAIN!

"Nothing could be more unjust to labor than to represent it as wanting the saloon or its vicious association," says the Anniston (Ala.) Star. "Had it not been for the labor vote the saloon could not have been wiped out of existence in this state. Were it not for the labor vote there would be no hope of keeping it out of the state. That is why the antis are going to profess such interest in labor and the labor vote. What part has labor with the liquor traffic? Why should they want to perpetuate the scurrilous business? Let the liquor crowd tell the laboring man why they want him to have the bad business on their hands! They dare not do so! They dare not insult the intelligence and the common sense of the laboring people by trying to say what the liquor business means for them.

"Once upon a time he may have thought he needed his drink; once upon a time he may have felt that he was suffering personal invasion of rights when the saloon by the vote of his fellow citizens was taken out of the community, but he does not feel so now. Never again, says the laboring man."

LABOR UNIONS AND PROHIBITION.

Dr. Wilbur Crafts of the International Reform Bureau says he has lived at the doors of congress for 23 years and has kept close tab on petitions. He finds none against prohibition from labor unions in dry states. "Only 447 in all," he tells us, "one-fiftieth of the 22,000 labor unions in the land, and all these from wet states that know nothing about prohibition except from hearsay. It is a case of unintended humor—as if 447 witnesses were called in court against a man's character—none of whom had ever seen him or known of him except by rumors that had reached them in other states. It is as if 447 persons had presented prize essays on dentistry that never pulled a tooth; as if 447 frogs in the marsh had united in a declaration that it was unhealthy to live high and dry."

SHOW THE LIQUOR SELLER.

A Pennsylvania saloonkeeper went South to visit his son, in Camp Greene. He was asked how he liked the place. "Like it?" he replied, "I thank God that my boy is down here training. The sight of 30,000 young men, enjoying themselves without drinking a drop, has made me a prohibitionist. I'm going home, close out my saloon and get into some other line."

Apropos of this incident, it has been suggested that successive batches of saloonkeepers be sent to the various cantonments to see the thousands of young men who are having the jolliest time of their lives without any aid from John Barleycorn.

NOTHING IN IT.

There is nothing in the talk that prohibition completely demoralizes a large city. There must necessarily be a period of adjustment, which is oftentimes a trifle trying, but no disaster befalls a community if agencies in behalf of it are properly at work. In short, there is nothing of a serious nature in this community growing out of the sudden transition from open saloons to a dry town.—R. H. Faxon, General Secretary Des Moines Chamber of Commerce.

THE PEOPLE DEMAND.

Railroad trains speed swiftly day and night in storm and wind and snow along their way. They thread mountain chasms; they cross deep cuts on airy, scarey trestles; they round dangerous curves. Only the brain of hair-trigger quickness, only the nerves of steel, can be trusted with trainloads of human lives. A single glass of whisky may mean the misreading of a signal and a holocaust of hundreds of human lives snuffed out. The public demanded sober railway men—and got them. It now demands a sober nation.

THIS WOMAN SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, One of Thousands of Such Cases.

Black River Falls, Wis.—"As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation, I cannot say enough in praise of it. I suffered from organic troubles and my side hurt me so I could hardly be up from my bed, and I was unable to do my housework. I had the best doctors in Eau Claire and they wanted me to have an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me so I did not need the operation, and I am telling all my friends about it."—Mrs. A. W. BINZER, Black River Falls, Wis.

It is just such experiences as that of Mrs. Binzer that has made this famous root and herb remedy a household word from ocean to ocean. Any woman who suffers from inflammation, ulceration, displacements, backache, nervousness, irregularities or "the blues" should not rest until she has given it a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Force of Habit.

While in a certain government office recently Sir Edwin Jones, the British transport board chairman, overheard the following dialogue between two fair typewriter tappers:

"Isn't it terrible the way we have to work these days?"

"Rather! Why, I typed so many letters yesterday that last night I finished my prayers with 'yours truly.'"
—Vancouver (B. C.) Province.

Cure pimples, headache, bad breath by taking May Apple, Aloe, Jalap rolled into a tiny sugar pill called Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Adv.

Aversion to Boats.

On landing in France an American soldier wrote home to his father: "Sell my sailboat. I never want to see a boat again after I get home."

Itching, Burning Skins.

For eczemas, rashes, itchings, irritations, pimples, dandruff, sore hands, and baby humors, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are supremely effective. For free samples address "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail. Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50.—Adv.

Consolation.

"I tell you these times tax one's brains—" "Don't worry; that tax won't break you."

The more a man studies women the less he knows about them.

While Coal Is Scarce.

"Summer is lingering in the lap of fall." "Then may fall never take a stand."

ASTHMADOR
GUARANTEED TO INSTANTLY RELIEVE
ASTHMA
OR MONEY REFUNDED—ASK ANY DRUGGIST

Rx Red + Cross Ball Blue
Dr. Wise.

First Aid for Laundry Troubles

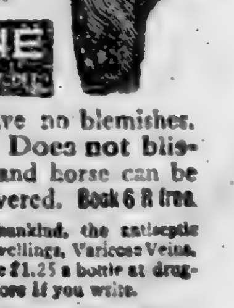
If every wash-day is a day for the "Blues"—the right blue will send them scuttling away

Red Cross Ball Blue

is the secret of successful washing—Pure White, dazzling clothes that leave the happy smile of satisfaction at the end of a day of hard work.

5 Cents. At Your Grocers'

DON'T CUT OUT
A Shoe Boil, Capped Hock or Bursitis
FOR
ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.



will reduce them and leave no blemishes. Stops lameness promptly. Does not blister or remove the hair, and horse can be worked. $2.50 a bottle delivered. Book 6 R free.
ABSORBINE, JR., for mankind, the antiseptic liniment for Boils, Bruises, Sores, Swellings, Varicose Veins. Allays Pain and Inflammation. Price $1.25 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Will tell you more if you write.
W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D.C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

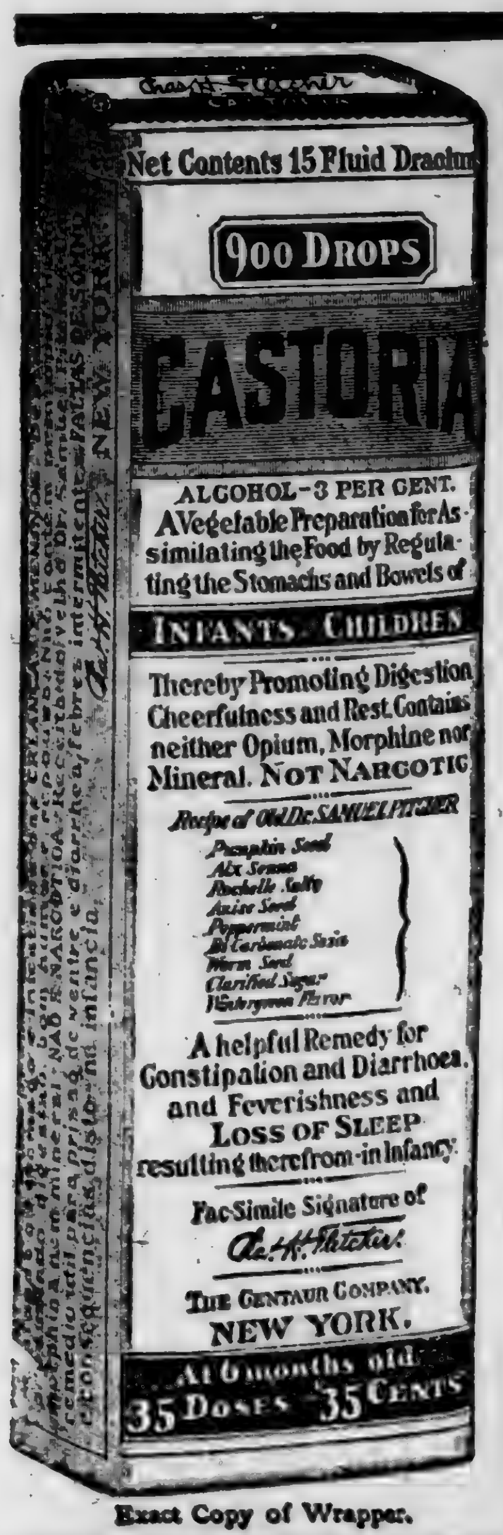
Children's Coughs may be checked and more serious conditions of the throat will be avoided by promptly giving the child a dose of safe
PISO'S

OCTOBER



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY. NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES 35 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria

Always Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

How Acid-Stomach Wrecks Health of Millions

Many people make the mistake of thinking that acid-stomach—superacidity as the doctors call it—merely means an occasional attack of indigestion, bloat, heartburn, belching, sour, gassy stomach, or some other such minor ailment quickly remedied—or will cure itself—and leave no serious after effects. As a matter of fact superacidity is responsible for a long train of serious ailments that cause awful suffering and sometimes baffle the best medical skill. It is a well established fact that many cases of chronic stomach trouble, anemia, stomatitis, gastritis, rheumatism, gout, lumbago, cirrhosis of the liver, auto-intoxication, dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach, intestinal ulcer, cancer of the stomach, and frequently valvular heart trouble and heart failure, can be traced directly to an acid-stomach.

This is not at all surprising when you consider that even the acid formed in the mouth from fermentation of bits of food lodged in the teeth—an acid that is actually tasteless—is yet powerful enough to eat through the hard enamel of the teeth and decay them. Is it any wonder, then, that an excess amount of acid in the stomach causes so much misery, undermines the strength and wrecks the health and happiness of so many people? Is it not a fact, within the range of your own observation, that nine people out of ten are victims of acid-stomach?

If you ever hope to be well and strong you must get rid of that excess acid. Nothing is gained by taking medicines which merely stimulate and give one a false sense of strength and that leave the excess acid still in the stomach. You must depend upon your food for your strength — and unless you keep your stomach free from excess acid, pure, sweet and strong, it cannot properly digest food; your whole body suffers.

What you want is relief — yes — and here is the way—absolutely guaranteed —you take no chance. It's been tested tens of thousands of times with universal success. Go to your druggist and get just one package of EATONIC, a wonderful preparation that will literally wipe the excess acidity out of your stomach. The results obtained are nothing short of marvelous. Almost instantly it relieves that painful, puffed up feeling after eating, belching, heartburn, sour stomach, etc. Makes the stomach feel cool and comfortable.

If you need this help it's your own fault if you suffer another day.

EATONIC is absolutely guaranteed, so get a big 50c box from your druggist. If it does not help you your money will be refunded. If your druggist does not keep EATONIC, send your name and address to the Eatonic Remedy Company, 1018 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., and they will at once mail you a 50c box and you can send them the money for it after you receive it.

Consolation.

He—Mr. Cadby refused to recognize me today. Thinks, I suppose, that I am not his equal.

She—Ridiculous. Of course you are. Why, he's nothing but a conceited idiot.—Boston Transcript.

The silent partner in a firm always has a lot to say.

Bank tellers usually know more than they tell.

Its Sort.

"How was that spiritualistic medium exhibition the other night?"

"Merely the ghost of a show."

Her Speciality.

"Has your wife been canning much fruit this season?"

"No; she has been canning me."

Dandelion, rabbits and taxes will never be exterminated, no matter how long the war lasts.

The Blue Valley System
It Makes Better Butter
It Sells for a Higher Price
It Pays More for Cream

Free Cans for Trial Shipment

Very Special Offer to 1,000 Farmers

Perhaps you have never shipped your cream to a Blue Valley Creamery and therefore lost the extra profit we pay.

Or, perhaps you haven't any shipping cans—and that held you back.

If that is the case, we will send you one or two cans free, so that you can prove to yourself how much more money we pay for cream. There is a big difference—enough so that in a comparatively short time you can add another cow to your herd or buy a new separator out of the extra profits.

Over 150,000 farmers get these extra profits. So can you by selling your cream direct to us instead of paying a middleman to ship it for you.

Don't delay now when free cans will be sent you. Don't refuse to accept a larger check when we offer it to you.

Your cows are only of VALUE to you in proportion to the amount of money you get for your butter-fat. To take less than what we give is like cheating yourself—and the cows.

You can ship to a Blue Valley Creamery any time, from anywhere. Besides getting more money for your cream, there is the additional satisfaction of having your empty cans returned immediately and receiving your check by return mail.

Such service as this is only a part of the Blue Valley effort to please. Other benefits of equal importance is the help we give our customers in disposing of surplus dairy stock, selling for more profit or buying at greater advantage.

INVESTIGATE

Don't postpone a profitable action. Write us at once. State size can wanted—5, 8 or 10 gallons. Or, ask for Free Bulletin. Address Dept. 133 Address our nearest creamery.

BLUE VALLEY CREAMERY CO.

(Originators of the Truly Co-operative Creamery System—Est. 13 Years)

Chicago, Ill. Clinton, Ill. Springfield, Ill. Indianapolis, Ind. Detroit, Mich. Grand Rapids, Mich. Columbus, Ohio Sioux City, Ia. Cedar Rapids, Ia. Hastings, Neb. Parsons, Kan. St. Joseph, Mo.

WE GUARANTEE

That our check in payment for each and every can of cream you send us will satisfy you.
We guarantee the safe return of your empty cans.
If, for any reason whatever, you are not satisfied, we expect to hear from you.
We guarantee to satisfy you perfectly.
BLUE VALLEY CREAMERY CO.

FOR FREE CANS

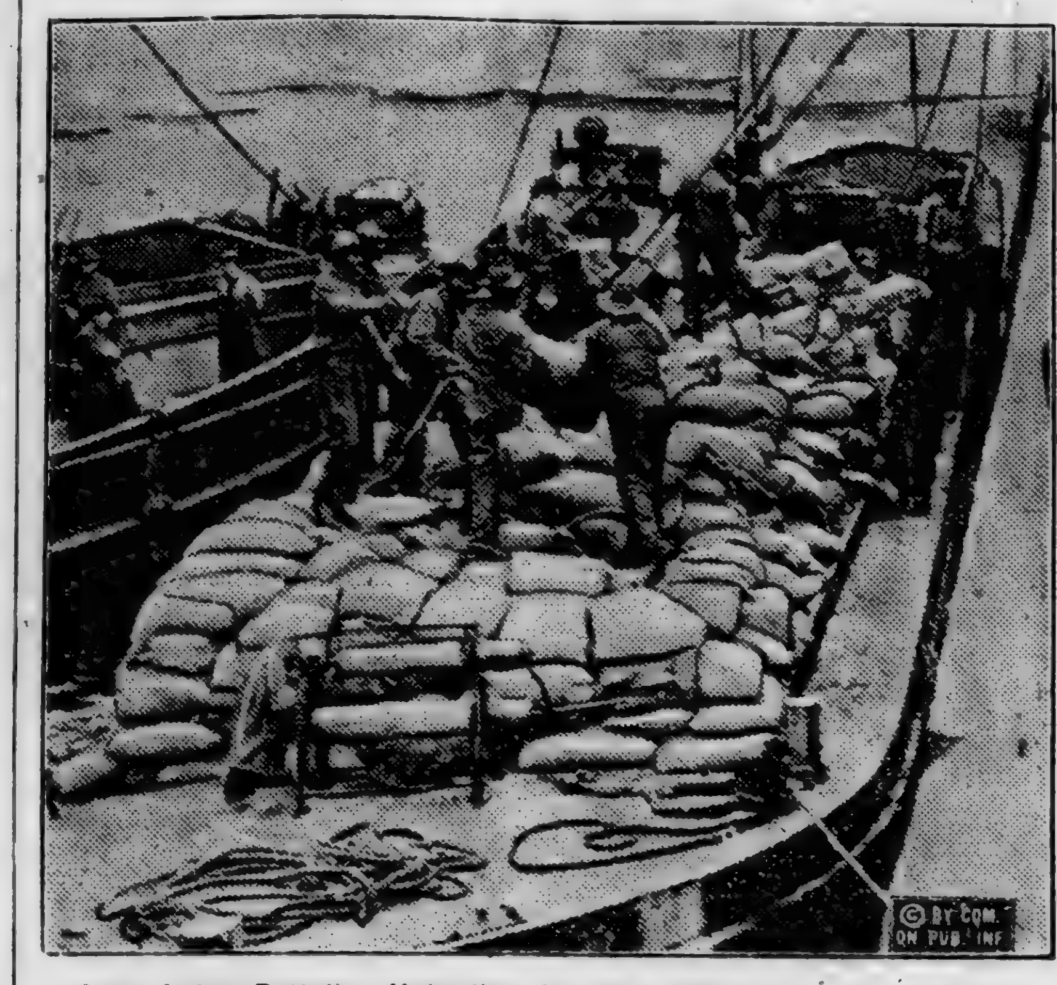
address our nearest creamery. Cans shipped prepaid. Use them for 30 days. Then, if you decide to continue selling us your cream, we will deduct factory cost price from your check or we keep the cans and the use of them will not cost you a cent. Address Dept. 133, BLUE VALLEY CREAMERY CO.

Free

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)

FEDERAL GRADING INSURES STANDARD GRAIN.



© BY COM. ON PUB. INF.

Army Labor Battalion Unloading American Wheat at a French Port.

STANDARD GRAIN IS NOW ASSURED

Tests Are Applied From Country Elevators to Holds of Transatlantic Liners.

BEST WHEAT GIVEN PREMIUM

Department of Agriculture Has Made Study of Marketing and Grading Practices—War Necessitated Some Changes.

From country elevators to the hold of a transatlantic liner wheat and corn destined for the army and the allies and almost all of that arriving at mills and terminal markets is handled on grades fixed and applied under federal supervision. The inspection of wheat and shelled corn is under the direction of the United States department of agriculture, with licensed inspectors located at small markets, terminals or at the seaboard and the standards in use are the same at all inspection points. Before federal grades were in effect there was little uniformity in grain standards at the different markets such as now exists throughout the United States.

In the past grain was often graded at country points on the basis of an average for the crop which placed the best grain in lower grades than it deserved. Now a grower of the best wheat receives a premium, even under fixed prices, for his extra care in producing it. Thus federal standards provide premium grades for grain of superior quality.

How Grades Were Made.

Before the passage of the United States grain standards act complaints were received from foreign buyers and buyers of grain located outside the grain-producing sections of the United States, stating that grain purchased frequently did not conform to the grade specifications for which their contracts called. For over ten years the department of agriculture has made a study of grain marketing and grain grading practices throughout the United States and in foreign trade, obtained samples of many shipments, and devised apparatus for the mechanical determination of grading factors. Before the official grain standards were adopted they were submitted to representatives of producers and to the grain trade for suggestions and criticisms, and the standards were decided upon after all phases of marketing were considered so that no single interest would be favored at the expense of any other interest.

Grades Revised for Wheat.

Because of the abnormal conditions in the grain trade, due to the war and the resulting fixed prices for wheat, certain changes in wheat grades were suggested. A series of five hearings were held during March of this year to receive suggestions from interested persons on the proposed revision of the official standards for wheat. Out of these hearings and the practical experience in supervising the application of the standards the grades were revised to have effect July 15, 1918. The changes were all in the nature of percentage of grains other than wheat, increase in the amount of foreign material present within each grade, and minor changes in definitions of classes and grades. Increased percentages of moisture were allowed in several grades, reduction in test weight per bushel was made in some instances, and more damaged and heat-damaged kernels allowed in some grades.

How Grades Are Applied.

The bureau of markets of the department of agriculture now maintains 35 local offices at the principal grain markets to supervise the grading of wheat and shelled corn. The actual grading is done by licensed inspectors who are not employed by the department but operate either independently from fees collected for their services or are employed by commercial or state inspection departments. The work of the inspectors is checked up by representatives of the grain supervision division of the bureau of markets, which also maintains district supervisors and serves as a court of appeals whenever grades assigned by inspectors on interstate shipments are questioned by growers or dealers. All this organization assures that wheat and shelled corn inspected by licensed inspectors will be graded in accordance with the same fixed standards whether sold by country elevators, at terminal markets or in foreign markets.

GRAIN GRADE APPEALS

If a farmer or dealer interested in a lot of wheat or corn sold by grade in interstate commerce questions the grade assigned, he can take an appeal or dispute to the secretary of agriculture, who determines the true grade.

To take an appeal he must notify the federal district supervisor by telegraph, telephone or mail, in advance of the arrival of the grain in the market, of his intention to appeal the inspector's grade, or after the arrival of the grain, within 48 hours after inspection. The name and address of the nearest federal supervisor can be secured by writing the bureau of markets, department of agriculture, Washington.

A dispute is an appeal on an interstate shipment of uninspected grain that moves between points where no licensed inspectors are located and where the grade has been determined by shipper or receiver. The method of taking a dispute is the same as in the case of an appeal.

Farmers and dealers can take up all grain-grading questions by writing or visiting federal grain supervision offices in the terminal markets.

High Spots in Agriculture.

Mottled butter is due largely to uneven distribution of salt.

Operation of gins at rapid speeds injures the fiber of cotton by cutting it.

Three C's for caring for milk in the home: Keep it cold, covered and clean.

Oats watered to make them weigh more cannot legally be shipped in interstate commerce.

A ton of soy beans will yield about forty gallons of oil useful in various ways.

One hundred and twenty-five pairs of birds nest on the average farm in the Northwest.

Garlic flavor can be eliminated by heating milk to 145 degrees F. and blowing air through it.

The sense of direction in migratory birds is as marvelous as it is mysterious. The familiar inhabitants of the dooryard martin boxes return the next year, though meanwhile they have visited Brazil.

The melting point of Southern-made butter is higher where cattle are fed cottonseed products.

Fall plowing, disking and harrowing help to destroy eggs of grasshoppers and other insects.

Delicious table sirup can be made from cull and waste apples by home methods developed by the United States department of agriculture.

Profitable Dairying.

High producing cows are the basis of profitable dairying. The most economical results cannot be obtained with poor producers.

HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES IF YOUR BACK ACHES

Do you feel tired and "worn-out?" Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged out," unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys, and the little poisonous animal germs, which are causing the inflammation, are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

Don't ignore the "little pains and aches," especially backaches. They may be little now but there is no telling how soon a dangerous or fatal disease of which they are the forerunners may show itself. Go after the cause of that backache at once, or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition, and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, and thus be sure of getting the genuine.—Adv.

"Canada made me Prosperous"
160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

—that's what thousands of farmers say, who have gone from the U. S. to settle on homesteads or buy land in Western Canada. Canada's invitation to every industrious worker to settle in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta is especially attractive. She wants farmers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves by helping her raise immense wheat crops to feed the world.

You Can Get a Homestead of 160 Acres Free

or other lands at very low prices. Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $30 per acre that will raise 20 to 45 bushels of $2 wheat to the acre—it's easy to become prosperous. Canadian farmers also grow wonderful crops of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed Farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses, full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools and churches; markets convenient; climate excellent. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.; J. M. MacLachlan, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

Do You Think There is No Competition?

If anyone thinks there is no competition amongst the big packers he ought to go through a day's work with Swift & Company.

Let him begin at the pens when the live stock comes in; let him try to buy a nice bunch of fat steers quietly and at his own price without somebody's bidding against him.

Let him realize the scrupulous care taken at the plant that not one thing is lost or wasted in order that costs may be held to a minimum.

Let him go up into the office where market reports are coming in,—and reports of what other concerns are doing.

Let him watch the director of the Swift Refrigerator fleet, maneuvering it over the face of the country like a fleet of battleships at sea.

Let him take a trip with a Swift & Company salesman and try to sell a few orders of meat.

Let him stay at a branch house for an hour or two and see the retail meat dealers drive their bargains to the last penny as they shop around among the packers' branch houses, the wholesale dealers, and the local packing plants.

And then, when the day is over, let him have half an hour in the accounting department, where he can see for himself on what small profits the business is done. (Less than 4 cents on each dollar of sales.)

If he still thinks there is no competition in the meat business it will be because he wants to think so.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

OCTOBER

2 90

0551

Indigestion

DO YOU KNOW that indigestion can be cured, permanently cured, so that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? It has been done not only once, but in almost every case when Chamberlain's Tablets are used. An instance: Mr. J. Pominville, Stillwater, Minn., who had spent over $2,000.00 for medicine and treatment was permanently cured by these tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

The Gossip Say-

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

Mrs. S. D. Gee spent Saturday at Fort Wayne with her son, Howard, and family.

Mrs. A. D. Brunson spent Tuesday afternoon with her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Bassett.

Miss Mildred, daughter of Laney Gee and wife, east of town, is seriously ill with influenza.

Miss Helen Webb spent Saturday night and Sunday the guest of Miss Marguerite Milliman.

Mrs Sadie Bruce and son, Ralph, of Auburn, spent from Thursday until Saturday with John Betz and wife.

Miss Edith Berry, of Spencerville, visited her aunt, Mrs. John Betz, and Miss Dorothy Scholes from Saturday until Monday.

S. N. Brunson and family, Mrs. Tom Brunson and baby, John Bash and wife and Fred Badman and wife were Sunday guests at the A. D Brunson home.

Charles Jackson and wife received a letter from their son, Ford, Monday, dated October 1, from Bordeaux, France, in which he stated he was in the best of health.

Marie Weildaker, Hazel Hoover, Glenis Steiver, Ray Hoover, Ray and Earl Weildaker all of Antwerp, Ohio, spent Saturday night and Sunday the guests of Sidney and Bessie Gustin.

M. T. Bishop and wife and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway and son, Russell, motored to Auburn on Sunday afternoon and visited with Mrs. Charles Bishop and children, of Cleveland, at the home of her parents, Mahlon Baker and wife.

Frank Kinsey and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Harriet Sechler, of Orangeville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bash, residing northeast of here, on Sunday received notice of the death from influenza of their daughter, Mrs. Dora Fisher, and her son, Blair, of Battle Creek, Mich. Mr. Fisher and two younger children are also afflicted with the disease.

The Odell Safety Razor Stropper

First aid to a dull blade. Sharpens all makes. Used blades made much keener than new blades. Double Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz Single Edge blades, 25 cts. a doz. Bring or mail your blades to
Ashton Staman, Druggist,
Auburn Indiana.

COLETOWN

Frank Kling and wife, of Hicksville, spent the past week at the Henry Kling home.

James Evans, wife and daugnters, Gladys and Lula, took dinner Sunday with Edwin Guthrie and wife.

Mrs John Acton called on Mrs. Fred Martin, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. G. W. Palmer visited Sunday with Mrs. Rhoda Murphy, of Hicksville.

Mildred Pierman spent Saturday and Sunday with Grace Meek, of Hamilton lake.

R. H. Conine and family and Jay Hart and family spent Sunday at the J. W. Hart home.

George Brown and wife took dinner Sunday with J. D. Brown and family.

Grace and Gladys Sauers and Gladys Conine visited Wednesday with J. B. Miller and wife, of West Milford.

WINTER WEAR.

Sweaters, $1.50 to 12.00
Cotton Union Suits $2.00 to 2.50
Cotton 2-Piece Underwear $1.25 a Garment
Woolen Underwear $4.00 to 8 00 a Suit
Wool Hose for Men 50c to 75c a Pair
Flannel Shirts $3.00 to 4.50
Browns Beach Jackets $4.50 to 5.00
Browns Beach Vests $2.50
Sheep Skin Lined Coats $13.50
Work Coats 4.00 to 10.00

—o—

We have All Kinds Footwear for Men.

WM. KNISELY & SON.
Butler, Indiana
CLOTHING FURNISHINGS SHOES.

THE PRICE HE PAID

I said I would have my fling
And do what a young man may,
And I didn't believe a thing
That the parsons have to say:
I didn't believe in a God
That gives us blood like fire,
Then flings us into hell because
We answer the call of desire.

And I said: "Religion is rot
And the laws of the world are nil;
For the bad man is he who is caught
And can not foot his bill.
And there is no place called hell;
And heaven is only a truth
When a man has his way with a maid
In the fresh, keen hour of youth.

"And money can buy us grace,
If it ring on the plate of the church;
And money can neatly erase
Each sign of a sinful smirch."
And I saw men everywhere
Hotfooting the road of vice;
And women and preachers smiled on them
As long as they paid the price.

So I had my joy of life:
I went the pace of the town;
And then I took me a wife,
And started to settle down.
I had gold enough and to spare
For all of the simple joys
That belong with a house and a home
And a brood of girls and boys.

I married a girl with health
And virtue and spotless fame.
I gave in exchange my wealth
And a proud old family name;
And I gave her the love of a heart
Grown sated and sick of sin!
My deal with the devil was all cleaned up
And the last bill handed in.

She was going to bring me a child;
And when in labor, she cried:
With love and fear I was wild,
But now I wish she had died.
For the son she bore me was blind
And crippled and weak and sore;
And the mother was left a wreck—
It was so she settled my score!

I said I must have my fling,
And they knew the path I would go;
Yet no one told me a thing
Ofwhat I needed to know.
Folks talk too much of the soul—
Of heavenly joys debarred;
And not enough of babes unborn,
By the sins of the fathers scarred.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

BRAINSTORM

No one can rightfully accuse the News of being pro-German: its position on the war has been too clearly defined to admit of such an accusation's being given any credence by readers of the paper. No great credit is claimed for this, however; for, at a time like this, no journal nor individual has a right so to conduct himself as to cause his reputation for loyalty to be questioned: i. e., a man's loyalty should be above question. The News hopes that no reader of this article will misconstrue it: see in it a condoning of German barbarity. To excuse Hun offenses is not its object; for to do that is impossible, and the News does not attempt to do the impossible. The writer's intention is to endeavor to show that German brutality in war is the outgrowth of a false education rather than to the people of Germany being naturally brutal. Now, don't rear back and declare that the writer is pro-German before reading the article. Read it. If the reader agrees with it, all right; if he doesn't, he is requested not to do the editor an injustice by accusing him of favoring the Germans.

A man can practice a wrong so long that he reaches a point where he justifies his acts; and a nation, which is but an aggregation of individuals, can do the same. Lives of certain men show this to be true, and history proves it in the case of Prussia. In order to prove this latter assertion, it becomes necessary to outline that country's rise from a single state to a mighty kingdom. Prussia started in a robber baron's castle in the mountains of southern Germany. A robber baron's occupation was slitting the throats of such as possessed wealth without the means of defending it. A man whose breathing apparatus has been operated upon with a dagger has no further use for wealth, but a live baron has; and, in the end, the wealth went into possession of him who had use for it, the aforesaid baron. One of these throat-cutting gentry was the Count of Hohenzollern. He lived up to his title, too; for "ho hen zollern" is German for "high tolls," and he took tolls from those richer and weaker than himself until he became wealthy. It so happened that one of the German emperors became hard up. The Hohenzollern family had been doing a thriving business as throat cutting specialists, and had cornered a goodly portion of the coin of the realm. The two made a swap. The emperor got the needed cash and the count came into possessor of the province of Brandenbug. The robber baron became a royal prince, ruling by divine right.

The Hohenzollerns continued to follow their old avocation of robbing. They no longer preyed upon individuals, however: they robbed other princes. Province after province was added to their dominions. Today, they rule over twelve. The Prussians are good assimilators: the people of the conquered territory have been thoroughly Prussianised. The Prussians have deluded themselves into the belief that they are fashioned out of superior clay from other peoples; and this, together with their power of assimilation, causes them to imagine that others are benfitted by being conquered by them and made like them.

* * *

The kaiser is still making peace overtures. No better evidence is needed to prove that he realizes that he is beaten. To be sure, he has made peace offers before, but they were meant to mislead his own people. Their terms were of such a nature that he knew the allies would reject them. Then he was justified in playing the role of a victor. Now he heads an army with its back to the enemy. He is stalling for better terms. President Wilson's letter answers his stalling.

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

Mrs. C. C. Bassett spent Wednesday morning in Hicksville.

A baby son was born Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Glen Freeburn.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Peterson were guests of relatives at Cedarville, Monday.

Harry Kinsey, wife and baby of Garrett, returned home Saturday after two weeks visit with the former's parents, Georgo Kinsey and wife.

Mrs. George Ringle and daughter, Marion, of Fort Wayne, spent from Wednesday until Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hart.

A party of twenty-five from Antwerp besides several from the vicinity of St. Joe, spent Saturday evening at the Gustin home north of town.

Mrs. Frank Hull and daughter Ruth, of Auburn, Mrs. George Kinsey and Mrs. Billary Shuff, spent Thursday with Mrs Frank Milliman and family.

For Sale.—150 full blooded White Leghorn hens, 1 year old —Darrel English strain. Price —25c per pound.
Mrs. H. M. Widney.

The Red Cross sewing room was open for work Wednesday afternoon. According to the rules of the Board of Health, anyone with a cold was asked not to attend.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway entertained the following Wednesday evening, Mr. Abe Mason and family of Auburn, Mrs. Durwood Ridgway and children, Mrs. Grover Curie and children and Mr. and Mrs. George Ridgway and bady, of Waukeegan, Ill , and little Miss Patrice Wineland.

C. C. Bassett and wife have received a letter from their son, Charles, who is stationed at Camp Polk, Raleigh, N. C., dated Oct. 17, stating that he had the influenza in mild form and was in the camp infirmary, but expected to be dismissed soon. He also stated that there had been 300 cases and three deaths and that he had received the best of care.

All coal shipped these days is subject to the order of the United States Fuel Administration and the man who steals coal is stealing from Uncle Sam. A determined campaign is on to break up the coal stealing gangs throughout the state. In Indianapolis the administration, the coal dealers, and the municipal authorities have just started in to round up the coal thieves. Heavy fines and jail sentences will be imposed on conviction and a second offense may take the culprit into a federal court from which he may be sent to the penitentiary. The coal thief might just as well realize now as later, that if Uncle Sam starts after him he'll get him.

Slacker Work

Herman L. Brown, Federal Food Administrator for DeKalb County, has received the following bulletin from the U. S. Food Administration. He desires that he be furnished the name of any farmer having a green stack, the name of the thresher, doing the job, and the name of the party sending in the names. The last is as important as the first.

GREEN STRAW STACKS SHOW "SLACKER" WORK.

Now is the time to check up the work of the threshing outfits for every straw stack shows whether the straw was threshed clean or wastefully. A green stack is perfect evidence of poor threshing either because of careless work or bad order machines. May I suggest that your threshing committee be asked to report to you all green straw stacks together with the name of the owner of the threshing outfit that did the slacker work. The data thus accumulated will be of great value to the Food Administration in its control of harvesting practices in 1919.

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.25
Six Months,	.65
Three Months,	.35
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

The local Red Cross on Thursday shipped 475 pounds of clothes for Belgian relief work.

George Ridgway and family on Saturday returned to their home at Waukegan, Ill., after a week's visit with his mother, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, and other relatives. Darwin Fry and wife returned with them for a few days' visit.

Cleve H. Grube and Charles Cook, Democratic candidates for representative and auditor, visited the News office on Tuesday; and Twite L. Hoodelmire, Republican candidate for sheriff, dropped in on Monday evening. Harry H. Hilgeman, of Fort Wayne, Democratic nominee for congress, called on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.
NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only.
—Editor News.]

For Sale.--Good round Jewel heating stove. Burns coal or wood. Inquire of Mrs. Benjamin Hamilton.

FOR SALE: Shropshire Buck Lambs. Inquire of D. D. Burley, St. Joe.

For Sale:--Two good spring colts.
Menno Gerig.

For Sale:--Two fresh cows with calves by their sides and two to be fresh soon.
R. U. Bowser, Phone 36-12, Spencerville.

For Sale:---3 Thoroughbred Chester White Male Pigs. 1 mile north and one half mile west of St. Joe. L. H. Douglas.

The Complexion Is the Health Barometer

A good complexion can not be obtained when the liver, kidneys or bowels are inactive. Bilious or poisonous matter within the body causes the sallow, muddy or splotchy complexion. Why drag around looking tired, old and dejected when Glando Tonic will put you right? It will remove the poisons and give you new life and strength. Glando Tonic acts directly on the liver, kidneys and small glands of the stomach and bowels. Its great popularity is due to the wonderful cures which have been obtained through its use. Sold by druggists or may be secured by sending direct to the Gland-Aid Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. Price. 50 cents.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20

Office Hours.
Spencerville—1:00 to 2:00 P. M.
7:00 to 8:00 P. M.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, . . . IND

OCTOBER
L 90
0552

SPENCERVILLE

Mr. Davis, of Wallen, is at the home of Mrs. Emila Gloyd this week.

Mrs. Emma Kees, of Ft. Wayne, visited several days last week at the home of her son, William Allen, and family.

New desks arrived last week and were installed in the high school. The Seniors occupied the class room, there not being desks enough.

Ivan Bowser and sons, Harold and Owen, and Win Archer and daughter, Vera, of Fort Wayne, on Sunday were guests of R. U. Bowser and family.

Joel Betz and wife entertained the following company at dinner on Sunday: Walter Perkins, wife and son, Lloyd, of Harlan; John Betz and wife, of St. Joe; Edward Billman and wife and Mrs. John House.

Mrs. Perry Fitch, of New Era, and Bert Fitch and daughters, Florida and Velma, of Garrett, were Friday supper guests of Mrs. Emila Gloyd and family. Mrs Fitch remained for a few days' visit. On Sunday, they entertained the following company at dinner: Isidore Badica and family and Mrs. Charles Badica, of near Fort Wayne; and Fred Osborne and family.

Grandma Zehner is very poorly. She is suffering from cancer and heart trouble.

Word has been received here that Henry Walter, who has influenza at Camp Taylor, is better.

Raymond Rhodes, wife and daughter Sundayed at the home of the lady's aunt, Mrs. Henry Porter, of Leo.

Rev. and Mrs Glenn Bryan and son, Dwight, are at Geneva. Mr. Bryan is building a new residence on his farm near that place.

D. F. Benninghoff and wife, of St. Joe, and Golden Benninghoff and wife, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests at the John Benninghoff home.

Mrs. Vern Wilmot on Monday evening received news of the death of a grandniece at Cleveland. The mother of the deceased lady died last week.

Rolla Moffet, wife and daughters, Jessie and Pauline, of Auburn, were Saturday guests of the lady's parents, Jacob Baltz and wife; and on Sunday, Frank Baltz and wife, of Auburn, motored over and took his parents to the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Sommers, where they spent the day.

Personal Items

I. S. Hadsell, wife and daughter, of Hicksville, spent Sunday with S. D. Gee and wife.

David Dill and wife and Lawrence Dill, of Pierceton, came Sunday for a short visit with Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price.

Sherman Musser, who worked for H. M. Widney, has moved to his home at Hamilton.

John Benninghoff, Jr., and wife, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday afternoon with the latter's parents, H. S. Bowman and wife.

Miss Melba Andress spent the past week with her sistrr, Mrs. Harry Hursh, of Garrett.

Will and Grover Curie and Ward Woodcox went to Lake Hamilton on Saturday for a brief stay.

Mrs. Margaret Swineford spent Thursday night with her son, George Swineford, and wife.

Mrs. Emma Woodcox moved last week into her old home in the east end of town.

Eugene Carper and George Foltz, of Auburn, accompanied by their wives, spent Sunday at the Foster Gee home.

Virgil Perry is suffering from a broken right arm as the result of cranking up an automobile at Concord a few days ago.

EGGS SELL FOR
50c
Feed chickens Dr. Hess' Panacea and produce more eggs
PRICE, = = = 25 cents
E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana

Vote For
CHAS. C. COOK
Democratic candidate
...For...
County Auditor!

It will be impossible for me to meet all of the voters; but if you do not know me, inquire of anyone who does as to my qualifications for the office. I was always a farmer and school teacher until elected trustee of Wilmighton township. Would be pleased to serve you as County Auditor and would appreciate your support.

POST CARDS
are now on display at the News Office — you cannot find a better assortment of 1 cent cards anywhere. Birthday, Congratuation, Stork, Comic, Best Wishes, and Patriotic card. Just a few 5 cent folders.

ST JOE NEWS
FRED B LEIGHTY, PUB.
ST JOE .... IND

"So long as we have any differences abroad we must not have any at home."
—PRESIDENT MCKINLEY, in 1898.

IN THE WAR with Spain, President McKinley, ex-President Harrison and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt demanded a Republican Congress to support a Republican President.

In the great World War, a Democratic Congress is needed to support a Democratic President—the spokesman of the allies to whom all the world is now looking.

Republican victory would be understood "over there" as a refusal to sustain President Wilson.

Democratic victory can only mean "over there" that President Wilson is sustained by the American people.

Vote for
HARRY H.
HILGEMANN
Democratic Candidate for Congress.

Don't Be Careless About Your Health

When the liver is not acting properly, the system becomes full of poisonous accumulations, the kidneys and intestinal glands become sluggish and a general debilitated and nervous condition exists. The blood becomes impure, the circulation sluggish and the brain clouded.

A neglected liver causes chronic constipation, jaundice, gall stones and very often cancer.

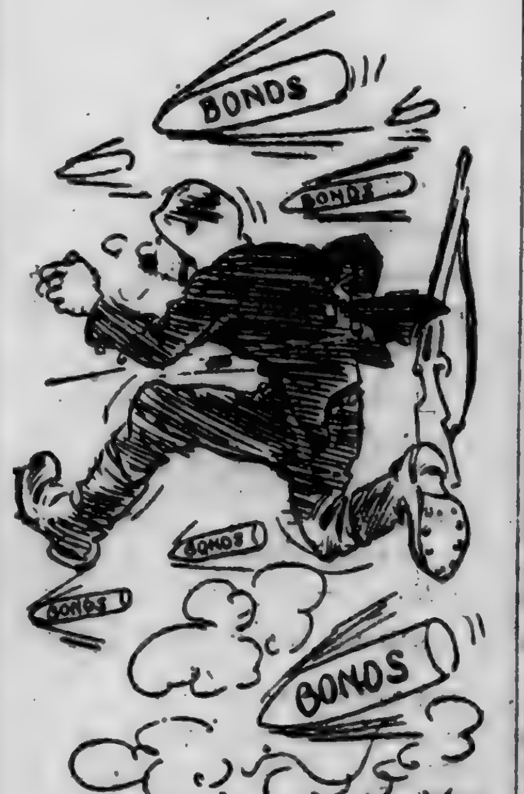
Glando Tonic acts upon the whole glandular system, of which the liver is the chief gland. If this glandular system is in good working condition, disease has no chance to fasten itself upon you. The best time to doctor is when you begin to feel tired, achy or languid.

To neglect one's self when that tired, draggy feeling is present may mean weeks of severe illness. Let Glando Tonic remove that feeling and give you life and health.

Mothers who have nursing babies should use Glando Tonic to keep their bowels well regulated and their system in good condition. This will regulate baby's bowels and help it to withstand the heat and germs of summer.

Glando Tonic can be obtained of druggists or direct from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Price, 50 cents.

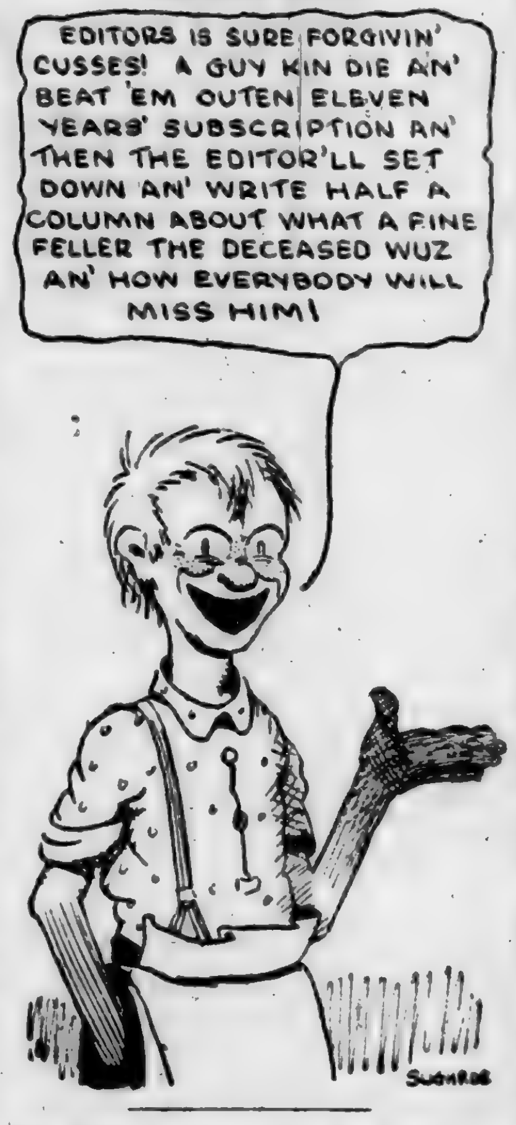
KEEP HIM ON THE RUN



Buy Your Bond Early—
Wherefore delay?
Head off Tomorrow—
Sign up Today.

Buy Your Bonds now
And "save your face."
Delay and dodging
Mean disgrace.

MICKIE SAYS



EDITORS IS SURE FORGIVIN' CUSSES! A GUY KIN DIE AN' BEAT 'EM OUTEN ELEVEN YEARS' SUBSCRIPTION AN' THEN THE EDITOR'LL SET DOWN AN' WRITE HALF A COLUMN ABOUT WHAT A FINE FELLER THE DECEASED WUZ AN' HOW EVERYBODY WILL MISS HIM!

Buy your Bonds—Load the guns!
Buying Early halts the Huns.

Vote For
Twite Hoodelmier
Republican Candidate
...For...
SHERIFF

On Tuesday, Nov. 5

I am a laboring man and will be unable to see all the voters before the coming election. I have been a life-long resident of DeKalb county, and will appreciate any support you may give me.
Twite Hoodelmier

Let Us Print Your
Sale Bills
When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Public Sale!

The undersigned will sell at public sale at his residence, located 1 mile east and one-half mile south of Coburntown and 4 miles east and one-half mile north of Spencerville on the Wayne Hughes farm, beginning at 10 a. m on

Saturday, Nov. 2, 1918

3 HEAD HORSES.—Brown mare 13 years old; weight, 1,250. Sorrel driving mare 9 years old; weight, 850. Black gelding 5 years old; weight, 1,500.

4 HEAD CATTLE —Red Durham cow 8 years old; will be fresh April 10. Spotted cow 4 years old; will be fresh March 25. Red Durham heifer 2 years old; will be fresh March 1. Spring calf 6 months old.

2 HOGS.—Red Duroc sow due to farrow by date of sale; spotted sow due to farrow Nov. 5.

FARM MACHINERY.—Milwaukee grain binder (6-foot cut), Plano mower, Ohio hay loader, Emerson side delivery rake and tedder combined (good as new), Emerson riding plow (good as new), Ohio wooden frame corn cultivator, Gale riding corn cultivator, 5-tooth cultivator, double shovel plow, John Deere walking plow, Gibbs walking plow, spike-tooth harrow, pipe roller, disc harrow, Milburn 3½-inch wagon, double buggy, log chain, wagon box, hay rack, scoop board.

Blue Bell Cream Separator—About 30 Chickens

J. O. QUANCE

J. L. RHODENBAUGH, Auc'r
FRED B. LEIGHTY, Clerk

FALL FOOTWEAR

We have received several new styles of Men's and Women's Fall Shoes, and would advise our customers to get in early. Shoes are going to be hard to get in the styles you want.

DON'T PUT IT OFF!

Women's Fine Kid in brown or grey Goodyear welts $8.00
Same in black, $7 and .. 7.50
Dress Shoes—Martha Washington, $5.50 to 8.00
Men's Fine Kangaroo, Vici Kid or Calfskin Shoes, — Thompson Bros. make, $6 to ... 9.00
Others down to....... 3.00

H. L. LAWRENCE
AUBURN

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

B. O. SHOOK,
M. D.
St. JOE, INDIANA
Am now located in the Widney property, two doors west of opera house.
PHONE NO. 2

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
Office Hours—2 to 4 P. M.
Wednesday—Each Week.
At Dr. SHEFFER'S Office.
ST. JOE, INDIANA.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP
Fort Wayne, Ind.

OCTOBER

L 90

0553

The Woman's Peace Party

By HARRIET CHAPPEL

Of The Vigilantes

Ages ago—that is, in the early days of the European war, the Woman's Peace party undertook the noble work of curing the world's war sickness. They attracted my attention by announcing a two weeks' course of lectures which promised vast enlightenment. On their list of speakers were notable names. I remember hearing Professor Hull, Professor Nasmith, Norman Angell, Madeline Z. Doty and Crystal Eastman.

I attached myself to them with great hopes. I thought, "Now I shall hear of a substitute for war, effective enough to check evil doers," for I had a Philistine feeling that there were evildoers yet about.

Daily I listened to those lectures and even timidly put my questions when the proper time for question came. They were nice people, those friends, and I am very grateful for the opportunity of study which they afforded me.

But my first question, "Suppose some evil-minded nation is really bent on aggression, what means can be used for curbing it without warfare?" never received a direct answer. That was because they blandly assumed that all nations are really bent on peace and wars arise purely from misapprehensions; therefore what is needed is agreements to arbitrate and to boycott fretful nations. So simple!

Might Be Sinner Nations.

My supposition that there might be sinner nations must have seemed frightfully crude, but somehow it lingers with me yet. Their plans, based on international agreements and economic penalties, appeared to me so remote and so conditional upon the good will of the parties—which good will would keep the peace anyway—that I grew doubtful of their practical value.

But a second problem there was, which might bring to light a remedy for war. "In case an aggressor appeared, would he be disarmed by nonresistance?" I thought. Perhaps a nation of willing martyrs, ready to be stripped of land and life rather than fight, would shame the world into peace. "But," thought I, "what an amount of educating it will take to tune the minds of a whole people to this self-sacrifice. Perhaps these friends seek to do that work of education?"

But no. They scarcely admitted the case of invasion of an unresisting people. Neither did I hear advice to endure all that might be inflicted by a foe. Friends might persecute a pacifist, but a foe—hardly. Since that time Russia's conflagration has illuminated the idea, but even Russians have not been consistent martyrs. They have done some lively fighting when antagonists have proved to be not altogether harmless.

Finally I thought, "Although they have neither a practical substitute for war, nor a holy teaching of non-resistance, perhaps still they offer the clearest, swiftest leadership we have, and in a little while they will, perhaps, formulate the practical remedy." But a third time I was disappointed.

Could Not Follow Them.

As the current of events swept the United States toward war, these people might have joined in the needed work of the hour, making themselves useful as Norman Angell has, and deferred their teaching of ideals until the people returned to a teachable mood. In such a course they would have shown practical leadership and good pedagogy. Instead they persistently forced their cry for "peace" upon a nation angrily conscious of a throttling hand at its throat. They did more. They went to Washington and hung upon the skirts of a sorely-tried government with the aim of hampering its action. And their I broke with them.

Regretfully I wrote to them saying I could no longer follow a leadership so lacking in propriety, so out of touch with the actual American spirit, so dominated by fantastic theories made in Germany. But I had to resign a second time before they could understand it.

They are, however, well-meaning people and very earnest in the pursuit of the ideal, and I am grateful for the opportunity for study which they offered in this institute. But—I wonder if now, in the light of recent history, they have discovered that much-wanted substitute for war?

Or—that there may be sinner nations?

Or—if they are ready now for the alternative of non-resistance, as in Armenia?

Or—if they have discovered the American principle of co-operation and neighborly solidarity, as an adequate social method in place of socialism?

Why Can't I Kill a German?

By WILLIAM HAMILTON OSBORNE

of The Vigilantes

I am, we'll say, a loyal American citizen, over draft and enlistment age, with not the slightest present chance of going to war. But I am war-like, we'll say,—and I want to kill my German. Why won't they let me?

One day along comes my opportunity. I overhear two men conspiring to blow up a bridge over which a troop train is to pass. I follow them. While they are engaged in their operations I draw a gun and shoot them dead. I am satisfied. I have killed two Germans instead of one. And I have saved the lives of a thousand American soldiers. I am a hero. Nevertheless I get a jolt. Instead of lauding me to the skies, the authorities arrest me, and hold me on the technical charge of murder. Why? Well, in the first place, when the facts come out, the situation is a little inconvenient. One of the two men I have killed turns out to be a secret service man, who has pretended to be a German spy, and who has pretended to fall in with the other man's plans—his idea being to arrest him, or even shoot him before the plan can be carried out. Therefore in this particular case, one of the men I have killed turns out to have been not only a patriotic American citizen, but a very valuable American citizen. In my excess of zeal I have overstepped the mark. Perhaps I should be held for manslaughter in the case of the secret service man—but why should they hold me for the murder of the German? And yet they do. He is an enemy alien.

Why the Slayer Is a Murderer.

The facts above are purely fanciful of course. And yet, they are significant. He is a slayer, in the suppositious case, guilty of murder—and if so, why? He is a civilian, not assigned to duty, and not acting under orders. He is not a warrior—he is not a police officer. Now, every citizen is vested with several rights. In the first place, he may defend himself, his home, his household, his chattels, to the death. In the second place, he has the right of arrest. Where a crime is committed in his presence, he can arrest the offender; if the offender resists arrest, the civilian may enforce arrest; if the enforcement of arrest endangers his own life, then he may take life in enforcing the arrest. Take two cases: a belligerent mob, or a detachment of enemy soldiers, descend upon a village or community, with the evident and avowed purpose of attacking it. Every man, woman and child in that community has the right to resist the advances of that mob or squad of soldiers, and in defending that right, they have the right to kill. So, too, as in the instance of the German who had conspired to blow up a bridge, the citizen has the right of arrest—but he cannot kill without first arresting. Why? In the case at hand, note what would have followed an attempt to arrest. The citizen, acting within the law, might have drawn a weapon (assuming his right to carry one) and inform the two men that they were under arrest. There, then, is a notification to them that he is about to enforce his right. This notification draws forth an explanation—one man says, we'll say: "I am a secret service officer. I am engaged in the performance of my duty." On both sides then there is an understanding of the situation. The citizen still may enforce arrest, if he can, for the two men have conspired, and he has overheard their conspiracy. Attempt to enforce arrest, would, in the case at hand, lead to the exhibition by the secret service man, of his credentials. Result, no hasty murder—no breaking of the law. Instead of that, our man, without affording the two men a trial, prejudged their case in his own mind, tried and convicted them, and then executed them on the spot. It cannot be done.

Be on the Watch.

What is the object of presenting here, this peculiar situation? Are American citizens to be discouraged in the exercise of their patriotic zeal? Is a man to think twice before killing a German engaged in the performance of a traitorous or seditious act? Yes—because the man may turn out not to be a German, and not to be engaged in the performance of such an act. He is entitled to be heard in his defense. The national government, in this crisis, needs the civilian's intelligent aid, not his unreasoning, erratic, impulsive, oft-times dangerous blundering. The government department can cope with any situation—if you will put them wise to anything suspicious that you see or hear. One fortunate phase of the matter is that German citizens loyal to America are at work all over this country engaged in trapping and running down disloyal Germans or enemy aliens. The disloyal German cannot trust his loyal German neighbor. German spy activity has been well checked. Once a man comes under suspicion, the expert sleuths of the country can handle him. It is up to us, the average American citizens, to sharpen our wits, to act, not with blind and dangerous and blundering zeal—but with care and caution. Do not do anything that will spring a trap too soon—do not spoil the stratagems of perfectly competent sleuths. Your friends and acquaintances may laud you as a hero—yet you may have set at naught weeks and months of careful secret service plans. Watch—report—go back and watch again.

Origins of Military Titles.

Commodore and commander are forms borrowed and corrupted from the Spanish comendador, a knight, a commander, or the superior of a monastery. The French have the word commandeur, the Italian comandatore. Commandant, however, meaning the officer of a fortified town's garrison, etc., comes from the medieval Latin commandator, a commander, and commandare, to command.

OUR WAR EFFORTS ARE NOT ABATED

TALK OF PEACE CAUSES NO RELAXATION HERE, SAYS ASSISTANT SECRETARY CROWELL.

SIGNIFICANT FIGURES GIVEN

United States Has Gas Mask That Fully Protects the Wearer—One Concern Turns Out Hundred Hand Grenades a Minute.

(From Committee on Public Information.)

Washington.—In the midst of the discussions of peace, Assistant Secretary of War Benedict Crowell has made public statistics to demonstrate that the United States has not abated its efforts or ceased its preparations to prosecute the war to a victorious conclusion.

"A proof that there is not the slightest relaxation," said Assistant Secretary Crowell, "is found in the fact that congress has just been asked to increase by $1,100,000,000 its appropriations for heavy cannon. The enemy is being driven back and this is the best time to increase our pressure. It would be the worst time to pause. This applies to civilians as well as to the military forces. It is not the time to question when or how the end of the war will come."

Assistant Secretary Crowell said that an idea of the immensity of the supplies required by a single branch of our forces overseas, for which additional finances are necessary, is indicated by the shipment of materials from this country to France by the engineer corps up to August 31, 1918.

These shipments included 277,000 tons of rails and accessories for standard and narrow gauge track, 45,000 tons of structural steel, 7,000 tons of corrugated iron, 16,000 tons of barbed wire, 17,000 tons of metal building materials, 6,900,000 square yards of camouflage materials—wire netting, fish netting and burlap, pontoon equipment for three divisions, and 57,000 tons of lumber, ties, stringers and piles.

In addition to these supplies, large quantities of engineering materials have been purchased also in England, France and Switzerland, Assistant Secretary Crowell pointed out. The aggregate tonnage of these purchases up to June 30, 1919, he estimated at more than 600,000 tons.

Hundreds of thousands of tons of supplies are on the docks in this country waiting transportation abroad, Assistant Secretary Crowell said, but the ships to carry them are being produced. There was a very large increase in ships in September, he said.

Motor trucks must be shipped "knocked down" and distributed among different vessels, the assistant secretary explained. This is done to meet the demands of the shipping people. Locomotives are shipped in two ways—completely "set up" and "knocked down." Those that are shipped "set up" are landed and steam away under their own power.

More than 5,000 motor trucks were sent to France in September, the assistant secretary announced. The number would have been much smaller if they had been forwarded "set up."

Employees of the Single Service corporation of New York were recently commended by Maj. Gen. C. C. Williams, chief of ordnance, for having attained a production of more than 100 hand grenades a minute. The grenade manufactured by this concern is of the "offensive type," which is used by infantry when making an attack to "clean up" the enemy's trenches and other systems of defense.

The third million of grenades made by this company was shipped to France in the middle of last month, having been produced in exactly one month's time. In the week ending September 14, the plant shipped a total of more than 300,000—which was at the rate of 55,000 a day, Saturday being counted as four-ninths of a day. This record was attained notwithstanding that the plant was closed down ahead of time on September 12 to permit employees to register for the draft. The maximum production was reached Friday, September 13, when 55,200 grenades were turned out. Simple as it appears when completed, it requires twenty-five distinct operations to make a grenade.

Reports to the United States fuel administration disclose that the saving of gasoline through the discontinuance of pleasure motoring on Sunday has aggregated between 650,000 and 700,000 barrels. The requirements in France continue heavy, and it is expected further deprivations of Sunday driving may be necessary.

The United States fuel administration has announced that pending an investigation into the increase of 200 per cent in the number of coal and coke distributors, in the last seven months, no additional licenses to distribute these classes of fuel will be issued.

It is believed that many of those who engaged in the business of distributing coal and coke since the adoption of the purchasing agent's commission plan last March, have contributed neither skill nor experience to the distribution of coal in a way to insure the successful prosecution of the war.

German forces opposing the advance of the American line on the Lorraine front have brought into play every method of defense considered effective in modern warfare, and in particular they are making heavy use of poison gas. Pershing's men have been unceasingly bombarded with "mustard" shells and every effort has been made to drench American positions with deadly fumes. It is considered a tribute to the chemical warfare work in the United States that these frantic endeavors to stay the progress of the American offensive have proved utterly futile.

The American attacking forces are protected against gas by masks which actual field tests prove are twenty times more efficient than those in use by the Germans. The war department contends that there is not a single recorded case of an American soldier falling a victim to a gas attack when protected by the mask that is now being manufactured in the United States.

Every American soldier who goes to France is trained to adjust his mask with almost incredible speed. The mask is put on with just five motions of the arms and hands. The man who fails to accomplish the feat within a limit of six seconds' time is left behind when his unit goes to the front. Recently, in a practice drill, one company of Americans set a record of four seconds, counting from the instant the order to don masks was given to the moment when adjustment was made by the slowest man.

American masks withstand tests that German masks cannot meet. German masks will not afford protection against a high concentration of gas. This was demonstrated recently when the British assembled a sufficiently large battery of projectors to put seventy tons of phosgene gas into the air at once, with consequences quite well known to the German general staff. There is no concentration that the American masks will not defy. This has been amply attested not only on the battlefield but in the experimental stations in this country.

The American gas mask was developed by actual manufacture. The proper authorities obtained complete information about the French and British masks, and full data as to the efficiency they demonstrated under German gas attacks. With this knowledge, an order for making several thousand masks was placed in this country. Members of the force of 300 officers and 2,000 enlisted men who are credited with the production of this means of defense showed the courage of their convictions by volunteering for experiments. From time to time they donned the masks and exposed themselves to actual gas attacks. American ingenuity suggested improvements in the original models and as a result the officers of the allied armies are unanimous that the American mask is the best on the western front.

Although a gas mask is an uncomfortable bit of gear the first few times it is worn, the soldiers soon become accustomed to the handicap on the natural method of breathing. It fits over the head like a baseball catcher's mask. A nose clip closes the nostrils and insures breathing through the mouth, by means of a tube that is connected with a canister filled with chemicals. The breath exhaled leaves the mask through a flutter valve near the chin. Air cannot reach the mouth except by passing first through the chemicals in the canister, and the most exhaustive tests show that these chemicals never fail to extract the poison.

At the end of thorough training in this country, American soldiers can wear the masks for almost an indefinite period, and can indulge in practically any form of activity while wearing them. Pershing's men—merely as a "stunt"—have played baseball and soccer while wearing the regulation American army masks. On numerous occasions the soldiers have served batteries under hurricane fire for periods of twelve hours without taking off their masks.

For the month of August waste of foodstuffs, which include bread, cooked meat, grease and bones, was reduced to three-fifths of a pound a man per day in the various camps and cantonments of the army in this country. The facts have just been made public by the conservation and reclamation division of the quartermaster corps. This figure is much lower than that for waste among the civilian population of any of the larger cities in the United States. Statistics gathered from 31 camps and cantonments show a total garbage collection of 592.1 pounds per 1,000 men a day.

In the course of the month the conservation and reclamation division repaired in the camps a total of 1,783,735 articles of wearing apparel—hats, uniforms, leggings, shoes, underwear, sweaters, blankets and the like. The dry cleaning and pressing shops cleaned and pressed 1,618,868 garments, and there were laundered 6,119,611 pieces. The revenue from reclamation was $70,567.40. The revenue from laundry work was $184,719.

Thirty thousand beds are now ready for American wounded in southern France, and American hospital units are being detailed at Nice and other points along the Riviera. Their work will cover Cannes, Menton, Beaulieu and Monte Carlo.

At Nice, hotels are undergoing conversion into hospitals. The Astoria, Majestic, Suisse and Winter Palace, are to be devoted to this use. The leases run for a term of one year beyond the conclusion of the war. Extensive alterations are being made in most of the buildings.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 27

ISAAC'S MARRIAGE TO REBECCA.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let not mercy and truth forsake thee: . . . So shalt thou find favor and good understanding in the sight of God and man.—Proverbs 3:3-4.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Ephesians 5:22-33; I Thessalonians 4:13-18.

